

The MOTION PICTURE

Studio

Vol. 1.—No. 1.

Saturday, June 11, 1921.

FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH
MOTION
PICTURES

[Photo.]

[Broadwest

JACK JARMAN

The Popular British Film Artist.

Well known before and since the War as juvenile lead, Mr. Jarman is now taking character and heavy parts, which he likes better. His latest of the latter type will be in a Master Film Production entitled "Miss Charity." 161, Wymering Mansions, Maida Vale, W.9.

Artists

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."
219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Now playing lead in "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" (Ideal). Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.
Address—c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.
Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds," "The Knight Errant," "Haigh Serial," "Love Maggie."
4 Park Place, St. James, S.W. Regent 4060.

VICTOR McLAGLAN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES.
LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs. NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc.
Carlton House, Kew Green, Kew, Surrey.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

GORDON BEGG. Char. Straight, Com.
197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph. Batt. 1770 or 21.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT,
Disengaged July 4. 'Phone: Walthamstow 938.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,
15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.
'Phone: Hornsey 1784.

CRISPIN HAY,
c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

DALTON SOMERS. Author, Actor,
Producer,
114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

HARDING STEERMAN,
Characters of Distinction,
56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,
24, Cleveland Road,
Barnes, S.W. 13.

DICK WEBB

Lead GAUMONT,
MASTER PRODUCTIONS, etc.
180, Elmhurst Mansions,
Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

Producers

BERT HALDANE,

14a, Little Ealing Lane,
:: South Ealing ::

'Phone: Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
"The Face at the Window."

Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON

Producing for Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd.

Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

ADRIAN BRUNEL,
Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone: 5280 Paddington).

Mr. ALBERT WARD,
Producing and Adapting
for Samuelson, Worton Hall, Isleworth.

Scenario Writers

COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,
:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,
Kinedramatist,
Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

Publicity

F. J. STANDERWICK,
Photographer.

I am making a speciality of Catering for Film Artists. 'Phone for appointment—Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington, W.14.

FRANK J. WOOLF,

"The Pithy Paragraphist."

Now pushing Publicity permanently for B. & C. Films, Kenelm Foss, etc.

Address: c/o B. & C. Studios.

Studio Manager

JOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—

B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,

Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone: W'stow 364."

Cameramen

JOHN J. COX

44, Barrowgate Road.

:: Chiswick, W.4. ::

'Phone: Chiswick 294.

Cameraman for Mr. Rene Plaissetty,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD

Cameraman—MASTER FILMS,
TEDDINGTON.

Latest Productions, "HARD CASH," "STELLA," "MISS CHARITY."

EDWIN DAY

Motion Picture Photographer,

12, Archer Street, Piccadilly Circus, London, W.1.

Telephone: Gerrard 780.

Telegrams: "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON

Thelton House, Cambolt

:: Road, Putney Hill. ::

Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN

"GAUMONT'S,"

105, King's Road,
Kingston-on-Thames.

FRANK CANHAM

Cameraman—

ASTRA FILM CO., LTD.

Permanent Address: Royal Forest
Hotel, Chingford, Essex.

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT

GAUMONT,

:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::

Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT

Expert Cameraman.

"The Better 'Ole," "Her Benny,"
etc., etc.

2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.

'Phone: Streatham 1969.

ALFRED H. MOSES

Chief Cameraman—

GEORGE RIDGWELL PRODUCTIONS
STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS

Formerly Chief Cameraman of Norma
Talmadge, Thanhouser, B. & C., etc.

THIS SPACE
TO LET

£2 : 10 : 0
for 13 insertions.

Williamsons

BRITISH MADE

CAMERAS

The Studio Man's Ideal

Williamson's Type 8 — 1921 Introduction, Mechanism mounted on Centre Plate, an ideal Camera for all-round Studio and Outdoor Work. Price from £110.

WILLIAMSON'S CAMERAS are Dependable Always, in all Climes

Dear Sirs,

I have just returned after a tour to Burma, Ceylon and the East, and you will probably be interested to hear that the WILLIAMSON CAMERA which I had from you never failed me once. I had two other makes of cameras with me, both of which gave me trouble, but I was able to rely upon the WILLIAMSON any time throughout the expedition.

The camera has gone through every kind of climate, heat, monsoons, etc., etc., and has been subjected to every known camera enemy, including ants.

On one occasion a film had to be taken standing on the cow-catcher of a Burmese engine. An attempt to take the film was first made with one of the other cameras, but the terrific vibration soon put this camera out of action. We had to re-take the film with the WILLIAMSON and the result was everything that could be desired.

Yours faithfully,

(Signed) ROWLAND WHITING.

WRITE FOR PRICE LIST. CALL ON US, OR WE WILL WAIT ON YOU.

Williamson's Paragon — The Camera man's Camera. Complete with Iris and Shutter made out, worked by Push Button from back. Three Lenses mounted on Revolving Turret. Price £200.

W. Butcher & Sons, Ltd.

SOLE DISTRIBUTORS FOR THE WILLIAMSON KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD

Camera House, Farringdon Avenue,

Telephone—
Holborn 5995 (5 lines).

LONDON, E.C.4.

Telegrams—
"England, London."

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT

KINEDRAMATIST

Author of over 200 Original Photo-plays and nearly 100 adaptations, including, during 1920-21, such notable successes as:—

For Ideal.

"BLEAK HOUSE."
"COLONEL NEWCOME."
"BEYOND THE DREAMS OF AVARICE."
"THE EVER-OPEN DOOR."

For Master Films.

"THE CHANNINGS."

For Stoll's.

"INNOCENT."
"THE PLACE OF HONOUR."
"A GENTLEMAN OF FRANCE."

"THE ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES" SERIES.

"A SCANDAL IN BOHEMIA."
"THE DEVIL'S FOOT."
"THE YELLOW FACE."
"THE EMPTY HOUSE."
"THE MAN WITH THE TWISTED LIP."
"THE SOLITARY CYCLIST."
"THE COPPER BEECHES."
"THE DYING DETECTIVE."
"THE RED-HEADED LEAGUE."
"A CASE OF IDENTITY."
"THE TIGER OF SAN PEDRO."
"THE RESIDENT PATIENT."
"THE NOBLE BACHELOR."
"THE PRIORY SCHOOL."

And

"THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES."

"One of the few picture-playwrights in this country who have made good."

"Mr. Elliott takes his art very seriously."

"A master of the craft."—THE FILM
RENTER in 1915.

"Mr. Elliott has done his work with skill, and one is grateful to him, not only for what he has preserved, but for what he has omitted."—THE BIOSCOPE (Reviewing "BLEAK HOUSE") in 1920.

All coms.,

c/o BRAMLIN'S,
241, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.C.2

MILTON ROSMER

Starring in

"The Pointing Finger,"
"A Woman of No Importance,"
"The Amazing Adventure,"
"Demos," "The Diamond Necklace,"
"Belphegor the Mountebank,"
"The Will," "The Twelve Pound
Look," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

88, NEWMAN ST., W.1.

'Phone - - - Museum 5145.

E. HAY PLUMB

42, Fordhook Avenue,
Ealing Common,
W.5.

JACK HULBERT PRODUCTIONS

THIS WEEK—

Producing MUSICAL PLAY for the Footlights Club, Cambridge University.

GEOFFREY H. MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE,"
"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
"SETTLED IN FULL,"
"ALL THE WINNERS,"
"WATCHING EYES," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

Film Editing.

If you are desirous of making contact with a Film Editor who can tackle your next release with intelligence, imagination and enthusiasm, you might do worse than ring me up.

HARRY HUGHES,

Editing, Sub-Titles, Continuities,
47, Dean St., London, W.1.
Telephone: Regent 2592.

H. & M. RAYNE

COSTUMES WIGS FOOTWEAR UNIFORMS supplied on HIRE

for FILM PRODUCTION

EVERY REQUISITE for the SCREEN.

Our Wardrobes were used in

"The Old Curiosity Shop"
and
"The Call of the Road."

H. & M. RAYNE

115-119, Waterloo Road, S.E.1
Telephone . . . CENTRAL 7978

WEST END BRANCH

15, Rupert St., Shaftesbury Av.
Telephone . . . REGENT 4535

ADRIAN JOHNSON

WRITING INDEPENDENTLY

CURRENT ENGLISH ADAPTATIONS:

Story.	Star.	Company.
CARNIVAL - - -	Matheson Lang	Alliance
THE DOOR THAT HAS NO KEY - - -	George Relph -	Alliance
THE MONEY MOON	Stella Campbell	Alliance
SINGLE LIFE - - -	Ideal

CURRENT ITALIAN ADAPTATIONS:

LA FAMA (FAME) -	Francesca Bertini	U.C.I.
La Femme Nue - -	Francesca Bertini	U.C.I.
The World - - -	Soava Gallone -	U.C.I.
The Marble Faun -	Francesca Bertini	U.C.I.

A FEW STORIES DONE IN AMERICA:

The Jungle Trail -	William Farnum	Fox
The Marriage Bond -	Nat C. Goodwin	Mirror
Madame Du Barry -	Theda Bara -	Fox
The Caillaux Case -	Madlaine Traverse -	Fox
Three Musketeers -	Kay-Bee
April Folly - - -	Marion Davies	Cosmopolitan-Famous
The Miracle of Love -	Wyndham Standing -	Cosmopolitan-Famous
Cleopatra - - -	Theda Bara -	Fox
Salome - - -	Theda Bara -	Fox
Romeo and Juliet -	Theda Bara -	Fox
The Ruse - - -	William S. Hart	Kay-Bee
Checkers - - -	Eileen Cassidy	Fox
Mary Queen of Scots -	Fox
Camille - - -	Theda Bara -	Fox
Darling of Paris -	Theda Bara -	Fox
Daughter of France -	Virginia Pearson	Fox
The Tiger Woman -	Theda Bara -	Fox
Royal Romance -	Virginia Pearson	Fox
Small Town Girl -	June Caprice -	Fox
Why I Didn't Marry -	Edith Fox -	Fox

C/o. FRYER & RODGERS, 12, Broad Court, W.C.2.

'PHONE

Bramlins

MUSEUM 4038, 4039,

FOR

Everything You Require for
YOUR PRODUCTION.

YOUR STORY
YOUR STAFF
YOUR CAST
YOUR LOCATIONS.

We make it Easy for You
to Make Your Pictures.

*American Agents:
Edward Small Inc.,
1493 Broadway,
New York, U.S.A.*

*Telegrams :
Bramlifilms
(Westcent),
London.*

Bramlins

241, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.C.2

THE past two years have seen a great increase in the number, but more particularly in the quality, of motion pictures produced in Great Britain. It is certain that the future

The Growth of British Production. will see this improvement grow. More people, and better people, are coming into the production field; artistes, producers, art directors, scenario writers, camera-men, title-authors and film editors are almost day by day gaining increased experience and repute. And, though the time may still be rather far ahead when this country is the centre of the film producing industry, the time has arrived when it may rightly claim to be considered seriously as a factor in the Art of the Screen.

BUT—as America has long since discovered—one of the chief needs of the studio worker, artiste, producer and everyone alike, is publicity. So far the British studio worker has

What is Needed. not been too well served in this matter. Why? It is to a large extent because the studio worker has not been catered for by the Press. A certain amount of publicity has come through the lay papers, which devote space to film matters. But the Trade Press, representing mainly the distributor and the exhibitor, cannot adequately serve the studio worker. Even a paper like the Kinema-tograph Weekly, which covers every branch of the film industry, is not able to provide the full outlet.

SO many people are now engaged in the production of motion pictures in this country that there is a need and a demand for an organ of their own, for a paper devoted solely

Our Object and Appeal. to the interests of all those directly engaged in making British motion pictures. It is to supply this need and to fulfil this demand that we launched the Motion Picture Studio. It will be the studio workers' own journal. And let us here and now define "Studio worker" in the sense of the appeal of the Motion Picture Studio. We include artistes, producers, continuity and scenario writers, art and technical directors, casting directors, camera-men, title-writers, film editors—all those, that is, concerned immediately in actual production.

THE Motion Picture Studio will be their mouthpiece. It will devote itself solely to furthering their interests, and will in no way concern itself in the commercial side of the

Your Paper—and Why. film industry. It is a paper for film artistes in the very widest sense of the word, and for them only. To help them, to make them more widely known to the producing industry,

The MOTION PICTURE Studio

The Organ of all concerned in the production of British Motion Pictures.

Editorial and Advertisement Offices:
85, Long Acre :: London, W.C. 2.

Telegrams:
Southernwood,
Rand, London.

Telephone:
Gerrard 6870
(15 lines)

Subscription Rate: Great Britain and Canada, 20s. per annum. All other countries, 30s. per annum.

The editorial contents of this paper, unless otherwise denoted, are copyright, and must not be reproduced without permission.

Vol. I. June 11, 1921. No. 1.

to watch their interests and to give them an outlet for their ideas and opinions. These things—and only these things—will be the function of the Motion Picture Studio. It is a bold project, and its success depends on YOUR support. This we are confident of earning—and receiving.

IT is one of the big grievances of the professional artiste—and unfortunately it is a grievance which is growing—that many producers care far more for "names" than for ability.

The Wrong Approach. Stage stars are given leading parts for which they are temperamentally and physically unfitted because the producer or the business people behind think they must have a "big" name to draw the public. They do not appear to realise that it matters most if the picture is good and if it is played by people who look and act as if they are what they are supposed to be. The public only cares for big names when their owners do big things. It has an awkward habit of making its own stars. And it soon refuses to accept a "name" if it is not accompanied by an equally prominent performance. How many times have stage stars been brought into the studio with results unfortunate both to themselves and the resultant picture?

THIS is by no means to advance the theory, of course, that the stage performer does not make a good screen artiste. Quite the contrary. What it means is that it is a great mistake to cast an artiste for name without reference to ability or suitability to play the part. The fault is based mainly on the mistaken mentality of the people who believe that the public wants names and nothing else. The process is often unfair to the artistes whose names are thus exploited, for it depreciates them in the eyes of the public when they are seen at a disadvantage on the screen. That is a point which the artistes themselves should take into full consideration. In the near future, when "legitimate" performers regard screen acting as seriously as they do the older art, they will no doubt refuse to accept a part for which they know they are not fitted, realising that they are not being offered the part because they will make an artistic success in it, but because it is desired to exploit their name and reputation in a branch of the art in which it has not been acquired.

THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO

THERE is another process of star selection which is really an outcome of the same peculiar convulsion of commercial mentality. It is the use of titled people and Society and artiste who is dependent on his work for a livelihood, it is very doubtful if the public appreciates the appearance of these people in what should be an entertainment. In any case it gets plenty of them in the news films! So far the introduction of notorieties in British pictures has not seriously arisen, and each individual case as it arose could be dealt with effectively by the Variety Artists' Federation or the Actors' Association. Several times the music-hall artiste has been menaced by the threatened exploitation of notorious persons, and on every occasion the V.A.F. has been instrumental in awakening the agents and proprietors concerned to a sense of decency. By timely protests and threats of action, as well as by enlisting public sympathy, screen artistes in the States have frequently prevented ex-outlaws, divorcees and "unwritten law" murders from being used as a film "attraction."

The Competition of Amateurs. other notorieties as picture stars. Apart from the unfairness to the professional

BUT to be in a position successfully to combat any such threats to their livelihood it is essential for screen artistes—supers as well as stars—to be organised.

The music-hall artistes would have been helpless in face of this or any other abuse if they had not possessed a strong organisation in the shape of the V.A.F. Exactly the same applies to "legitimate" actors and the Actors' Association. It is not within our province, perhaps, to suggest to which—if either—of these organisations film artistes should attach themselves. If the necessity arose no doubt both the V.A.F. and the A.A. would work in co-operation. And both have film sections. So many film artistes are recruited from the stage and the variety theatre that it is probably not possible that they should have a separate organisation of their own. One thing is certain, however, and that is that they should have some protecting society to look after their interest. We shall be glad to receive suggestions and ideas from artistes along these lines and will willingly devote space to their views.

ADRIAN JOHNSON

EXPANSION is as necessary to the building up of big business as is competition. Without competition there is no expansion, and without expansion enterprise stagnates. At the present moment I am living in a country beautiful beyond description. England is more beautiful than Italy, because it combines the beauty of Nature and also Nature under advanced cultivation. The citizens of this country early found that expansion was necessary and, as a result, impressed their seal upon the world. They have expanded and established an empire as large, if not larger, than any in the history of the world.

In every colony of Great Britain we find her handiwork, her ideals, her modes of thought and solid, conservative business indelibly impressed. In order to accomplish this result, it was necessary for Englishmen to visit these colonies, to exploit their modes of business and finally to convince alien peoples of different character and tongues of the excellence of the innovations they sought to establish, and this was done successfully. In order to bring this about money was spent, the best methods of conservative, solid and lasting expansion were employed. In every enterprise such expansion is necessary if the particular business is to eventually become an enterprise.

A Commercial Enterprise.

The same conditions which apply to territorial and commercial expansion apply also to the kinema industry because it is, primarily, a commercial enterprise. The same spirit which led this people to colonise and to expand should apply to what can easily be made a great and lasting industry, with immense profit-bearing possibilities to Great Britain. If British producers are to avail themselves of the beauties of their country, money must be spent in production and methods must be employed which meet the rapidly advancing strides of the times. Slowly but surely the British producer is improving, but the kinema industry is one in which quick modes are necessary. There are too many quick and enterprising nations grasping at the world's kinema markets to-day to admit of hesitation and delay, because ultra conservatism means that

EXPANSION

:: :: Some Opinions on its Necessity :: ::
:: :: :: by ADRIAN JOHNSON :: ::

other nations will practically control markets where all should have an equal share. When one considers the money spent upon spectacular features by other nations, one must realise that expenditure is necessary, not that unadvised and wild expenditure which does not net corresponding profits, but that careful, judicious outlay of the money necessary to make productions in this country, scenically, photographically and technically which will be equal to those of the other film producing nations.

The Great Gamble.

The amusement business, more than any other, is a gambler's business, and the English are the greatest gamblers in the world. A producer never knows whether his stage production will be a success until the curtain rises. He has made an outlay of thousands of pounds upon his production, he has engaged artistes of repute, he has employed a stage director of recognised ability and, in many cases, his efforts result in flat and unqualified failure. The producer takes his loss, does a little grumbling and like a good gambler, gambles again, because there is a fascination in the business which is irresistible. The finest settings must be employed and expensive properties bought because the man across the street has them and because the public demands them.

The Parallel.

So, in the kinema business, the same conditions prevail. If one has a wonderful drama it must be properly staged. No detail, however expensive, must be forgotten if the full effect and corresponding profit from the story are to be realised. It is only by spending money that one can make it. One cannot camouflage in these days because the publics of all countries expect productions which are up to the mark in these respects. Other nations do it and success has rewarded their efforts and no one can deny the profits accruing from the kinema industry if properly conducted. To accomplish these results technical people are required who are expert and who can demand and secure salaries commensurate with their efforts and experience. When one sees the gorgeous scenes in the Italian production "Theodora," which will shortly be exhibited, these facts are brought home convincingly for it is a production which cost 6,000,000 lire, and which paved the way into America for the Italian film.

Expense that is Worth While.

When one considers the fact that "Theodora" will be the introduction into America for the accumulated store of smaller features produced by the Italians, one must realise that the end justifies the means and "Theodora" will pay for itself many times over. While the public does not wish to see nor would it enjoy a "Theodora" every night, it certainly demands excellence in all departments so that the drama may be properly conveyed. The conspicuous attempt at economy where economy spells failure, is easily detected these days.

A Case in Point.

If the public is easily fooled with old sets, with props used many times over, why do stage producers rack their brains for new effects, novelties, both of dance, dialogue, in fact in all branches? Why was "Carnival" such a pronounced success in this country? Because it is the most pretentious English production yet made, because it pleases the eye; because, besides the undeniably good direction, no expense was spared to make "Carnival" a production which would help pave the way for the entrance of the British film into America. Again I say that the end justifies the means. One cannot enter the world market in these days with films which cost two, three, and five thousand pounds.

Why Don't We Do It?

I wish some one would come forward and tell me why England should not make a successful bid for her share in the big world market which is daily and hourly crying for pictures. Why is it that certain American executives who were here recently were unable to secure any pictures in England, but did secure them in Italy and Germany?

Why is it that American producers are constantly invading England and producing pictures, when these same producers could buy English-made pictures, give the English producer a corresponding profit and exhibit these pictures in America with a large profit to themselves and everyone satisfied? Is it because the British producer is satisfied now and ever will be with the limited area which he can see as an exhibition field? If, as I have said at the outside, Britain has expanded, colonised, impressed her seal, shall it be said that, in the case of an industry which can be made tremendous and profitable diplomatically, politically, artistically, and commercially, she is satisfied to lie dormant, to make no effort to grasp a thing which is well within her grasp? The thing seems impossible.

Our Libelled Climate.

I have heard it repeatedly advanced as a theory and a belief that the English climatic conditions render production here impossible for long periods of time. Yet, several studios worked very successfully in England this winter. In America, when the winter season comes on, producers do one of two things. They call in a scenario writer and instruct him to write or adapt a story which is all interior. There is hardly a story which could not be so changed, still retaining the essential drama and situation, as to admit of being played almost entirely on the inside. I have seen exteriors so convincing, built in studios in America, that one would never know the difference, and I am quite sure this method will be found more economic than in dispatching large companies to Continental points and giving the temperamental producer and the equally temperamental star the famous and well-known "winter trip."

(To be continued.)

BRITAIN'S FILM OPPORTUNITIES

The greatest opportunities in the film world to-day are not in America, but here in England.

The moment is at hand when British producers may come into their own and establish themselves permanently among the great picture-makers. Opportunity is knocking vigorously at the door. To those who hear and understand a golden future is certain. There can be no mistake about this. The situation is crystal-clear. Here is the precious secret:

First and foremost, there is no real conspiracy against foreign-made pictures in the rich American market. If pictures do not break into that market, it is solely because they are unworthy. Despite anti-German feeling, "Passion," a German-made product, is achieving a terrific financial success. You can talk all you want about post-war hatreds, but money inevitably dominates, and picture magnates will go out every time after pictures that will get the money.

So German, or British, or French pictures will always find an international market if they are the "goods"; just as Viennese operas are now on the London stage, solely through superior qualities. "It is always a bad year for a bad show"; unquestionably America is a bad field for bad pictures.

America, craving relief from Los Angeles streets, cacti and mesquite, wants foreign subjects and a fresh atmosphere. But American audiences will not tolerate pictures technically inferior to their own. The marvellous estates and old-world gardens here; Scotch and Irish village life; the sea coasts and fishing villages; the Thames and its beauty; Cornwall, Devon, the palaces and castles; and Paris, the Riviera, Holland and Belgium at England's front door. What scenic splendour!

An American director would revel in such beauty. And the tragedy is that all goes to waste because scenario and production are found wanting.

My pleasant sojourn here has created such friendly bonds with your picture-makers that I sincerely hope your opportunities will not pass by unheeded. If I were permitted to give a word of advice in the most friendly spirit, I would urge the studios here to bring their work up to such technical perfection within the next seven months that when 1922 is ushered in, and a survey of the world's markets is made, Britain's answer can be: "Ready!" That answer will mean a fortune to those who can speak the word.

"Ready" means two things:

First, the scenario, the basis of the whole thing, must be perfected. Stories must be simple, powerful, skilfully and dramatically

CHANCES
:: FOR ::
BRITISH PRODUCERS

by
DENISON CLIFT

handled; and must, as entertainment, be worth while and embrace some criticism of life.

Secondly, the production must be technically up to the highest standard. Money must be spent to make sets, lighting and photography adequate. This does not infer extravagance nor excessive expenditure. Money alone never did make a successful picture—and never will. Some of the most successful pictures have been the simplest stories, simply told, and economically produced.

The answer to this is: Intensive study of the most modern methods of the world's masters of the kinema. Don't go through the milling process. Start in where the other fellow leaves off. Use your competitors' supreme efforts as your starting point.

BRITISH STUDIO DIRECTORY

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. Phone: Kingsbury 120. Telegraphic address: Arfilodro, Hyde, London.

AFRICAN FILMS PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Killarney, Johannesburg, South Africa.

ALLIANCE FILM Co., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. Phone: Richmond 1945.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582. Telegraphic address: Barmopho, Ealux.

B. P. FILMS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, London, W.4. Phone: Streatham 2652.

BRITISH AND COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow, E.17. Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH ART FILMS CO., LTD., Princess Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford. Phone: Chiswick 574.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PICTURES, LTD., Tuileries Street, Hackney Road, London, E.2. Phone: Dalston 3454.

BRITISH MASTERCRAFT FILMS, LTD., Princess Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford. Phone: Chiswick 574.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. Phone: Walthamstow 399. Telegraphic address: Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

CAIRNS FILM Co., Wateombe Hall, Torquay. Phone: Torquay 886. Telegraphic address: Cairnsfilm, Torquay.

CENTRAL FILM PRODUCING Co., Eel Pie Island, Twickenham.

DAVIDSON, I. B., 588, Lea Bridge Road, Leyton, E.10. Phone: Walthamstow 634.

EROS FILM PRODUCTIONS, Pavilion Studios, Portsmouth Road, Esher, Surrey.

STUDIO MANAGERS are requested to co-operate in keeping this Directory up-to-date and complete, by forwarding details of any changes of address, telephone number and so on to the

Motion Picture Studio,
85, Long Acre, W.C.2

FAMOUS PICTURES, LTD., Woodlands, Whetstone, London. Phone: Finchley 1297.

FAMOUS PLAYERS LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. Phone: Dalston 3704.

GAITY PRODUCTIONS, Wadden New Road, Croydon.

GAUMONT Co., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. Phone: Hammersmith 2090-1-2. Telegraphic address: Prolougue, Phone, London.

HARMA CLARENDON Co., 16, Limes Road, Croydon. Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084. Telegraphic address: Cinemat

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16. Telegraphic address: Hepworth, Walton.

IDEAL FILM Co., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. Phone: Elstree 25. Telegraphic address: Idefilms, Borehamwood.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. Phone: Kingston 1617.

MIDLAND ACTORS FILM Co., 76, Broad Street, Birmingham.

NEW AGENCY FILM Co., 115A, Ebury Street, London, S.W.1. Phone: Victoria 6856.

PROGRESS FILM Co., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. Phone: Shoreham 19.

SAMUELSON FILM Co., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. Phone: Hounslow 212.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Phone: Willesden 3293. Telegraphic address: Stollpie, Crikle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. Phone: Central 1903. Telegraphic address: Success Films, Liverpool.

TORQUAY AND PAIGNTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON AND Co., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. Phone: Willesden 2862.

WHERE AND WHAT

PARS ABOUT EVERYONE IN BRITISH STUDIOS

Where they are and what they are doing.

William J. Elliott is engaged in adapting a well-known book for Stolls, for which firm he has recently finished "The Hound of the Baskervilles."

Lillie Wilde has been engaged to play in "Dick's Fairy" for Seal.

Eva Westlake has an important part in the latest Seal production, "Dick's Fairy."

Joan Griffiths is playing in "Dick's Fairy" (Seal).

Sadie Bennett has been working for the past few days in "Dick's Fairy" (Seal).

Gertrude McCoy has been playing the title rôle in "Christie Johnston" for Broadwest.

Gordon Craig is in the cast of "Christie Johnston" (Broadwest).

Clive Brook is playing in "Christie Johnston" (Broadwest).

Rene Plaissetty is working on "The Woman with the Fan" for Stoll.

Reginald Garton plays in "Laughter and Tears" (Granger-Binger).

Mary Massart plays a dual rôle in "The Woman with the Fan" (Stoll).

Cyril Percival is the hero in "The Woman with the Fan" (Stoll).

Burton Craig is playing in "Dick's Fairy," the latest Seal production.

Ernest Spalding is in the cast of "Dick's Fairy" (Seal).

H. Westlake is playing for Seal in "Dick's Fairy."

Frank Canham is turning the handle for the Kenelm Foss production, and is assisted by Patt Quinn.

E. G. Egrot is now in Aberystwyth taking pictures for "Land of My Fathers" for the Glen Film Company.

G. Pauli is now busy with the laboratory work in connection with "Christie Johnston," the Broadwest Production.

Peter Coleman has been offered a part in "Dick's Fairy" (Seal), and has accepted the offer.

Betty Belloc has been booked by Bertram Fryer and W. K. Rodger for Ideal's new production.

Bernard Vaughan is now playing in "Dick's Fairy" (Seal) at the Princes Studio, Kew.

Albert Prantford is at work at the Princes Studios on a prominent part in "Dick's Fairy" (Seal).

Margreaves Mansell is in the cast of "Dick's Fairy," which Bert Wynne is producing for Seal.

Mercy Hatton is provided with an important part in the latest Broadwest production, "Christie Johnston."

George Leyton is producing a Welsh film, "Land of My Fathers," at Aberystwyth for the Glen Film Company.

Kenelm Foss is now completing "Cherry Ripe," and about to commence work on his next production.

Albert Ward is now in his third year with Samuelson and is engaged on his ninth film for that company.

Bert Wynne is now at work on "Dick's Fairy," a Seal production, at the Princes Studio, Kew.

Harry Lorraine has completed preparations for commencing work on his first production for a newly-formed producing company.

Norman MacDonald is nearing the end of his work on "Christie Johnston," the Broadwest Picture.

Gladys Jennings has been provided with the part of the heroine, Sybil Denham, in "The Prey of the Dragon" (Stoll).

Harvey Braban is playing the Villain, Robin Wentworth, in the Stoll production, "The Prey of the Dragon."

Walter Forde is being featured with the Forde Beauties in a Zodiac two-reeler, "Walter's Winning Ways."

Marjorie Russell is playing opposite Walter Forde in "Walter's Winning Ways" (Zodiac).

Evelyn Brent is now at the Haarlem Studios playing female lead in "Laughter and Tears" (Granger-Binger).

Bert Darley has been engaged for an important part in "Laughter and Tears" (Granger-Binger).

Alec Fraser has been engaged to play the part of Lord Fritz Holme in "The Woman with the Fan" (Stoll).

Paulette del Rave has been provided with the part of Mrs. Wolfstein in the Stoll film, "The Woman with the Fan."

Martin Thornton has now finished "The River of Stars" and is commencing work on another Stoll picture, "The Prey of the Dragon."

Henry Ainley has now finished work on "Money," the film version of Lord Lytton's drama which Duncan Macrae has produced for Ideal.

Jane Grahame, now playing the part of Violet Relph in "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (Stoll) has lately been playing in "The Betrothal" at the Gaiety.

Milton Rosmer is playing lead in "A Woman of No Importance," directed by Denison Clift, for Ideal.

Victor McLaglan is engaged to play the part of the "Dragon," a sheep rancher, in the Stoll version of Ethel M. Dell's "The Prey of the Dragon."

Ronald Power has just finished playing the part of Sutton in "The River of Stars" (Stoll), and has now adopted a new type of character studies.

Dorothy Fane is playing the part of the adventuress in the Granger-Binger film, "Laughter and Tears." This is her third "G.-B." production.

Adelqui Millar is being featured in "Laughter and Tears" (Granger-Binger), the scenario of which has been made from the play of which he is the author.

Maudie Dunham is playing the part of a little girl from the artist quarter in Venice in the Granger-Binger film, "Laughter and Tears."

E. Story-Goffon plays a characteristic part in "Laughter and Tears," which is now in course of production at Granger-Binger's Haarlem studio.

Cora Coffin has just signed a long contract with Lambart Films to play leading parts in several British pictures which are to be produced for the American market.

Madame D'Esterre has been engaged to play an important part in the latest Seal production, "Dick's Fairy," now being produced at the Kew studio.

Peggy Fishwick has just finished the star part in "Playthings of Fate," and is being retained by Claude H. Verity for the leading part in his next talking picture—a five-reel drama.

Fay Compton is busy playing the title rôle in Ideal's version of Oscar Wilde's well-known play, "A Woman of No Importance," in addition to appearing in "The Circle" at the Haymarket Theatre.

Harley Knoles is back from America, where he has been for some weeks in connection with his first Alliance production, "Carnival." He expects to start producing shortly.

W. A. ("Billy") Bowman started work on his first film for the Zodiac Company, "Walter's Winning Ways," on June 6. He is working at the Catford Studios with R. Clifton as assistant.

Molly Adair has been engaged to play the leading part in "The Puppet Man," B. and C.'s latest production. This engagement is said to be a reward for her keen attention to detail when playing a minor part in the previous B. and C. film.

Beatrice Grosvenor is now with Masters.

Arthur St. A. Brown is photographing Will Kellino's next Gaumont production.

Geoffrey Malins has started work on a series of comedies.

Henry Victor is working at the Granger-Binger studios in Holland.

Kathleen Vaughan is still at the Ideal studios.

James Lindsay is playing a leading part in "All Sorts and Conditions of Men."

A. G. Poulton is working at the Elstree studios.

Edith Craig is appearing in Edwin Collins' next Master Film production.

Arthur Pusey is playing a leading part in "God in the Garden," at Masters.

Lionelle Howard is appearing in the Astra production.

John Wyndham is assisting Bert Wynne with the production of "Dick's Fairy."

Gladys Hamer has been engaged to appear in "God in the Garden," under Edwin Collins' direction.

Renee Kelly is playing lead in George Treville's first production for Ideal, which is now nearly finished.

Frank Dane has an excellent rôle in "Laughter and Tears," the new Granger-Binger production.

Gerald McCarthy's work in "The Black Tulip" is enabling him to see quite a lot of Holland.

Zoe Palmer, has an important part in "The Black Tulip," which is being produced in Holland.

Hay Plumb will be back in London shortly. At present he is producing a play at Cambridge.

Capt. Calvert's next "British Screen-craft" production will be from an original story, "Roses in the Dust."

Will Kellino has finished the Westminster Film, "The Autumn of Pride," and is now busy cutting and assembling it.

D. P. Cooper is just finishing "The Fifth Form at St. Dominic's," which he is photographing for Davidson.

I. Roseman is "turning" for B. and C. on "The Puppet Man," which is being filmed in the Tyrol.

Ward MacCallister has finished work with Ideal, where he was appearing in Denison Clift's "The Woman of No Importance."

Stanley Rodwell is photographing the "Grand Guignol" films at the Cranmer Court Studios.

Olaf Hvtten has just completed his work with Stoll. He has been appearing in leading rôles in "The Knave of Diamonds" and "The Knight Errant."

E. Harvey Harrison has just returned from a holiday in Devonshire, where he has been combining business with pleasure. During his visit he filmed a number of pretty scenes in the district.

"ENERGY HUTCHINGS PRESENTS"

AN ESSAY IN STUDIO HUMOUR

by ADRIAN BRUNEL

"Mister'utchings barmy, sir," said the electrician with bitter emphasis. The electrician was the only man in the film studio, including Hutchings, who did not consider Hutchings a genius.

"I'm fed up with this idoltry stunt," he continued. "If Mister'utchings really noo something—'is own mind, for instance—I'd respect 'im. But all he does is to get 'old of barmy ideas and—and go barmy about 'em."

Crudely put, but it does hit the nail on the head. Hutchings is a crank; he does vacillate; and he is very obstinate. Yes, he must be barmy. No one but a barmy one would put such barmy ideas as his into practice. He is the victim of his theories.

His present theory is resulting in disquieting complications. Let Hutchings propound his theory in his own words:—

"Acting for the film has to be done in a confined space—a restriction caused by the narrowness of the angle of the cinematograph camera lens; we therefore employ what are called 'limits,' i.e., narrow boards laid on the floor of the studio to prevent the actors moving out of view of the camera. This is not only difficult for most people, it is unnatural and therefore bad art. But it is not unnatural for many; for there is a vast population in this country living in small two-roomed cottages in which there is actually not room to swing a cat. Here you will find your ready-made film actors, here are the people who can act naturally within the required limits."

So now you know.

I visited his studio last week and saw the result. The part of the hero, Lord Chislehurst, was being played by one Sawyer, a fine strapping labourer of about thirty-four. His lounge suit had cost Hutchings £17 17s., and for the last three weeks Sawyer had been bathed, shaved, hair-cutted, singed, manicured, face-massaged and teeth scraped until he had a bleached appearance. Something was wrong. Sawyer had somehow missed the polish of the gentleman; his only polish was on his shoes and his face, his nails and his hair.

I arrived at the studio just in time to see Hutchings commence the rehearsal of the "great scene" of his film play, the one in which the Marchioness of Bickley (played by Mrs. Banks, of Lavender Mews) begs her son, Lord Chislehurst, to desist from his infatuation for the Comtesse de Vitesse (played by Lizzie Scott, of Johnson's Nougat Factory). The scene was scheduled in the scenario to require 87 seconds action. I counted that Hutchings rehearsed it forty-three times, and even then these people couldn't behave naturally, let alone aristocratically, within their limits. In the end Sawyer burst into violence, while Mrs. Banks and Lizzie Scott burst into tears and hysterics respectively, and Hutchings jumped around them, pulling his hair.

The electrician quickly slipped up to the cameraman. "Go on—take the scene of the 'ole barmy lot—'utchings included—and we'll use it to get him certified insane."

The cameraman took many feet of the scene—enough to make a short film of the Strindberg or Georg Kaiser variety.

But this is only one of Hutchings' aberrations. I suppose most people have seen that very amusing burlesque in five reels, "The Worst in the World," but very few people know that this was in intention a very serious film which Hutchings produced over two years ago and which he called "Vendetta."

For some time previously Hutchings had been saying that film acting was too restrained. Then he saw Grassi's famous Sicilian Players and determined that he would produce a film of London life in which the characters behaved "perfectly naturally, as their passions dictated."

The first scene was of Sir Roderick Stephens, Prime Minister, receiving news of the success of the Opposition at a by-election. The immediate effect of this news upon Sir Roderick was a gastric attack. Miss Horton, one of his secretaries, with whom he was in love, thereupon smashed her typewriter with disappointment. Lady Stephens, however, was secretly satisfied, being in love with the new Opposition member, and eagerly scanned the evening paper which she constantly embraced. In the kitchen the news had a mixed reception, which was expressed with equal frankness. From this point on we had unbridled passion and villainy.

Hutchings somehow missed the effect he desired, with the result that the film was re-titled throughout and turned into one of the most successful farces ever presented.

Hutchings has been successful in getting financial backing for his various theories, but, as the electrician says, "His days are surely numbered. He'll bust 'is brain-box with 'is barmy fads and then perhaps I'll get a look in with my scheme. Did I ever tell you my idea for films in which the camera, the characters, and everything was controlled by electricity? We'd 'ave no producer—I'd work it all."

And then I realised that there was some truth in the tag about the kinema being in its infancy.

STOP PRESS

Mr. Henry Hutchings, the well-known film producer, has been killed by a mysteriously-controlled electrical appliance. His electrician is reported to be missing.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for Kinematograph Productions. 'Phone—London Wall 7568.

MOY—OMNIA

APPARATUS.

Used universally for the past 25 years, during which period the name of MOY has become a guarantee of unquestionable quality, perfect workmanship, and supreme reliability.

"Take," Perforate, Clean, Print, Develop and Project by MOY methods. They have evolved from the long manufacturing experience and costly research of one of the world's highest authorities on Kinema and Electrical Apparatus.

MOY CAMERA.

Used exclusively for "Renown" Tour of Prince of Wales.

From The Referee, 28/11/20.

"The Photography is a striking example of the excellence of British workmanship as embodied in the MOY-OMNIA Camera used throughout the Tour."

MOY PERFORATOR.

Designed to withstand unlimited wear and tear.

ACCURACY GUARANTEED BY SYSTEM OF HOLE-TO-HOLE ADJUSTMENT.

OMNIA VACUUM FILM CLEANER

Mr. MOY'S LATEST MACHINE.

Delivery by rotation of order. First two completed were installed in Alliance and Barker's Studios.

MOY PRINTER.

With or without "Take Up" and Automatic Light Control.

As used by all the Leading Studios. Printers, etc. Also shipped regularly to U.S.A.

OMNIA FILM GAUGE.

A new and indispensable machine for testing perforation of all classes of Film (undeveloped and developed).

K.M.A. NEW STANDARD MEASUREMENT.

Price £15.

NEW AUTOMATIC DEVELOPING EQUIPMENT

NEW SPOT LIGHT,
SWITCHGEAR and ELECTRICAL WORK

FILM MEASURERS.
FILM JOINERS,
REWINDERS, etc., etc.

OMNIA PROJECTORS.

From the Kinematograph Weekly: 28/10/20. By Colin N. Bennett,

"... a flickerless picture is combined with at least thirty per cent. greater brilliancy, current for current, than is usually got with projectors of other makes. That the projected picture is perfectly steady goes without saying. No kinematograph machine maker in the world works to a better standard of general accuracy than Moy, Ltd. The present high level of projection at the 'Poly' Cinema in Regent Street, London, W., is mechanically speaking, due to the installation of a set of Moy-Omnia M.C. machines."

OMNIA KINE APPARATUS CO., LTD.

27, HIGH STREET, BLOOMSBURY, W.C. 2.

:: (Adjoining Tottenham Court Road Tube Station.) ::

Telephone: Gerrard 2114.

Telegrams: "Omniabury, Westcent, London."

STUDIO LIGHTING PROBLEMS

:: :: Two Points of View on Some of the Difficulties :: ::

I was invited to attend a recent meeting of the Royal Photographic Society, and was agreeably surprised to find that the discussion was to turn upon the subject of artificial lighting of film studios. The film producing industry is certain to learn something by listening to the opinions of photographers, especially of those who combine considerable experience of artificial lighting with some experience of the special requirements of film studios.

The Chairman, Dr. Rodman, mentioned a committee which had been formed, consisting of photographers and engineers, illuminating and electrical. Being particularly interested in this subject, I hope those not on this committee will have every opportunity of learning the results of their deliberations. I regard the meeting as having been highly successful, and any comments that here follow are entirely directed towards the making of future meetings still more successful.

Then as to discussions on the relative actinic values of lamps—phases of the old “enclosed versus open arc” controversy—I have tried to make it clear that the value of a lamp lies not in its ability to make photographs—any lamp will do this—and not in its ability to make kine-photographs—any lamp of sufficient actinic power will do this—but in its ability to produce good results, and this will always depend at least as much on its adaptability to the requirements of photography as upon its actinic strength.

When two photographs are projected on the screen side by side, unless they are both good results I care not two pins whether one shows more exposure than the other. If one gives a more pleasing result, a better likeness of the victim, more roundness or more modelling, less chalkiness and less of that muddled or muddy look we all know so well, that is the lamp, be its wattage ten times that of the other. The difficulty in film studios is not shortage of light but ignorant misdirection and inadequate diffusion, resulting in great waste of “juice.” In other words, the lamps used are not deficient in actinic power, but are wrongly designed or wrongly used, and generally—universally as far as my experience has been able to penetrate—both.

Again, discussions on the wave lengths of light, heat and chemical rays are very interesting, and if Nature would only do a quick change (so one argument ran) and shift the actinic rays into the middle red or even into the infra-red, how happy we should be! If panchromatism consisted in levelling up the less actinic colours instead of levelling down the more actinic, what power we should possess! While we are dependent on the silver haloids for our photo-sensitive materials, I fear we must be content to leave the actinic rays in their present relative position, and panchromatism will remain a levelling down—a slowing of sensitiveness.

I.—THE PHOTOGRAPHER'S

:: by M. P. PROUT ::

Turning now to the principles of artificial photo-lighting, what the portraitist who is not conversant with the requirements of film studios is apt to forget is the allowance which must be made for the movement of the artistes. The lighting requires to be good “open” lighting—what, from the portraitist's point of view, is inclined to be “flat,” but, fortunately, there is no need to flatten it by cross-lighting it from both sides of the camera and even from underneath!

Again, an exposure of 1-40th sec. is never required in portraiture, and plates are double the speed of film stock. Smaller stops are often required in kine. work to obtain the necessary depth of focus notwithstanding the shorter focal length of the lenses in use. It is thus necessary to bear in mind that the intensity of illumination requires to be of a different order.

It is to be remembered, too, that many portraitists have little useful experience of artificial lighting, regarding it as a kind of disagreeable necessity only to be resorted to when daylight fails. Consequently, many have their installations in their daylight studio—a building generally ill-adapted for the purpose. It is among those who have entirely discarded daylight, and yet turn out high-class work indistinguishable from daylight, that the most useful experience is likely to be gained.

Further, it must be confessed that some of their systems, however highly applicable to portraiture, are likely to prove wide of the mark if applied to kinema work. Such is, in my opinion, the arrangement of which Mr. Banfield drew a diagram on the blackboard. Gasfilled lamps are, on account of their bulk compared with actinic value, hardly likely to become the main source of light in kinema work, even though, in many other respects, they are highly suitable.

Now, what has the kine-man to bear in mind in meeting the portraitist? Chiefly, I think, three facts. Firstly, that his individual photographs must be well lighted, and that the rattling through of sixteen bad or indifferent photographs every second will only produce a bad or indifferent effect. Secondly, that cinematography as applied to the photo-play is practically and essentially kine-portraiture—that and nothing else. It is watching the changing expressions of the artistes in those portions of the play in which the story is being unfolded that constitutes the absorbing interest of the good photoplay. Given a good story and good expressions, of what avail are they if the photography is bad? Given story, expressions and photowork all good, who can resist the appeal of the screen? These are “the goods”—the “fillers.” Thirdly, he should, I think, bear in mind that if he were, like the portraitist, dependent for his livelihood upon the turning out of good individual photographs—by “good”

I mean good as well as pleasing likenesses, portraits that his victims would pay for instead of being paid to suffer—he would be compelled, to avoid starvation, to make many and drastic alterations in his methods of lighting. For, in the matter of film-studio portraits, I have never seen a good one. I have never been in a film studio in which it would be possible, however skilled the operator, to make a good one.

Furthermore, I know several photo-lighting experts who could with a single half-watt lamp, or even a single gas mantle, produce in an ordinary room (by applying the first and most elementary principles deducible from a cursory study of natural lighting) a better portrait—one indistinguishable from daylight—than can be produced with the aid of hundreds of amperes in a film studio built at great expense solely for photographic purposes, though built without any consideration whatsoever to those self-same elementary principles.

I will conclude by quoting from a paper read over thirty-four years ago by Captain Abney, which is not only interesting and pertinent but which, I consider, contains a message for all students of artificial lighting.

“This arc light is now used in portraiture in some establishments, and instead of the eye of the ‘patient’ being put out, or becoming ophthalmic, the kind photographer uses a light reflected from a white surface, the actual arc and crater being hidden from view, and only the light from the white surface striking the eyes. Now let us see what loss (if any) of light there is by this method.” Here follow some calculations, and the paragraph concludes: “So it is apparent that there is a gain by using the reflector instead of the naked light.”

I hope these few remarks will be found helpful in limiting future discussions on the subject of artificial photographic lighting a little more, however little, to the things that matter.

II.—THE ENGINEER'S

by J. C. ELVY, A.M.I.E.E., M.I.E.S.

An interesting lecture was given on May 24, at the headquarters of the Royal Photographic Society by J. C. Elvy, A.M.I.E.E., M.I.E.S., on Illumination Problems in Cinematography.

Mr. Elvy is a consulting engineer whose researches have been devoted to the comparative values of different types of illuminating devices in studios. One of his chief points in the paper was the quality of the atmosphere in the studios.

The consulting engineer's first duty, he says, is to consider the question of lighting and clearness of atmosphere, bearing in mind that mist is a series of globules of moisture, each globule a lens in itself. It is absolutely essential for him to co-operate with the photographer, who, again, should be a recognised professional expert, and therefore, well acquainted with all sides of the question, such as the best

You cannot do better than by placing your orders with L. BENJAMIN & CO., 99, Middlesex Street, E.1.

Phone—London Wall 7568.

W. VINTEN

MODEL "C" CAMERA—
the up-to-date Camera for Studio Work.

MODEL "M" TRIPOD—the Tripod with the mechanically correct Tilt

SPECIALIST IN CINEMATOGRAPH APPARATUS

Printers — Winders — Measurers — Gauges — Developing Plant

RUSH REPAIRS carried out by expert mechanics

89-91, WARDOUR STREET, W.1. Telephone :
REGENT 2702

THE LARGEST, BEST
AND CHEAPEST

Theatre Seat Makers

in the World.

JAMES S. LYON

LTD.,

The THEATRICAL FURNISHERS

whose Offices, Showrooms,
:: and Factory are at ::

112, HIGH HOLBORN, W.C.1.

where customers can at any time see their goods in process of manufacture.

Established over 100 years.

Telegrams—"Proscenium, Westcent, London."
Telephone—HOLBORN 1152.

THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO

ADVERTISEMENT RATES

	One insertion	Six inser- tions (per insertion)	Thirteen inser- tions (per insertion)
Front Cover	£6 10 0	£6 0 0	£5 15 0
Back Cover	£6 0 0	£5 15 0	£5 10 0
Full page	£5 10 0	£5 7 6	£5 5 0
Half page	£3 0 0	£2 17 0	£2 15 0
Third page	£2 5 0	£2 2 6	£2 0 0
Quarter page	£1 15 0	£1 12 6	£1 10 0
Sixth page	£1 5 0	£1 2 6	£1 0 0
Eighth page	£1 0 0	18 9	17 6
Twelfth page	12 6	11 3	10 0
Per inch (single column)	5 0	4 6	4 0

(Blockmaking extra)

Professional Cards :

Displayed cards (2½ in. square)	£6 10 0	per quarter year
3-column cards, including photo block	£3 0 0	" "
3-column cards, without photo block	£2 10 0	" "
2-column cards	£2 0 0	" "
Small cards	12 6	" "

PRODUCERS

if you are in difficulty with your NEGATIVE DEVELOPING
through static marking, carelessness, delays, etc., REMEMBER you will receive best attention from

L. G. EGROT, 2B, Streatham Place,
LONDON, S.W. 2.

STREATHAM 1969.

part of spectrum necessary to suit sensitivity of certain types of film emulsion; absorption of light by the lens; the amount of light necessary for the speed of, say, 1/64th second exposures; location of lights; artistic requirements, etc.

These experts might, with advantage, be allowed more freedom to act on their own initiative. Who knows but that a studio may be sheltering the potential inventor of spectroscopic or colour photography? Each studio can form its own research department without disturbing to any great extent its routine work, and thus equip itself to meet the competition of other countries. The staffs, electrical and photographic alike, must be composed of skilled men. Seeing that the most satisfactory natural light was not direct sunlight, but diffused sunlight, was it not best to imitate this?

Mr. Elvy recently discussed with a gentleman, who is called upon at times to produce posters from photographs for film publicity.

He stated that his difficulty with photographs produced by artificial illuminants arose from the fact that the lights strike the object or the person at different angles and destroy the natural modelling.

The characteristics of the features are frequently entirely lost. This trouble is aggravated by use or misuse of "Spot" or "Search" lights. In some instances, a beam is thrown "up" into the artistes' faces.

Under natural conditions we only have one main source of light—the sun.

How is it that excellent results have been achieved by some with a few lights, while others crave for a superabundance?

Is scientific application impossible? Cannot an instrument be devised by which the intensity of photographic illumination may be quickly and easily measured at any desired point, bearing in mind the camera lens as an absorbent of certain rays?

Illuminants should be examined in view of:—

1. High actinic value, with relatively low cost of energy, minimum losses in diffusion, reflection and resistance.
2. Low intrinsic brilliancy.
3. Absence of heat or fumes.
4. Constancy and steadiness of illumination.
5. Long useful life.
6. Initial cost of equipment, together with maintenance and running charges.
7. Stage room accommodation.

With special regard to No. 7, it seems that sufficient attention has not been devoted to the alternative of overhead suspension. After all, the principal source of daylight is above the horizontal.

The uniform soft light resulting from the filtration of the sun's rays through a light cloud down to horizon is much to be preferred to the unadulterated sun's rays. Where buildings and pavements are present, of course, we still get some reflections from below the horizontal, tending to soften shadows. Why should we not imitate this, our golden natural asset, as closely as possible? He suggested it would be much easier, by this means, to produce a really good soft-toned picture—not "soot and whitewash," by the way—much to be preferred to those harsh black-and-white contrasts which some producers term "needle-sharpness," and essential for tragedy.

There was still much to be done in cinematography before the final word could be given on ideal artificial illumination, more especially in view of possible changes in type of emulsion. He himself was engaged in perfecting his own illumination scheme for studios, but details would be premature at the present stage of development.

Apart from the photographic and visual aspects, it may well be that the craving for a superabundance of light on the stage arises from a lack of knowledge regarding the inverse square law of illumination. This omission brings another fault in its train, referred to as "artistes walking into the light."

It should be realised that when the distance of an object from the source of light is doubled the illumination received is reduced to one-fourth, trebled one-ninth and so on.

J . C . E L V Y

Due consideration of this law may obviate the use of "spot" lights.

This trouble is not experienced in outdoor photography owing to great distance between light source and object, and also as compared with distance between object and camera.

With artificial illumination if we imitate the spectrum of daylight too closely, are we not, from the photographic and economical points of view, wasting a great deal of electrical energy in visual illumination?

With existing film stock the selection of an illuminant of high visual brightness might increase the outlay on generating plant from say £10,000 to £30,000, in addition to cost of additional apparatus to "make up" necessary photographic values.

A large number of very illustrative slides were shown, and some instructive tables were on the black-board, which compared the values of open, enclosed, and flame arcs, mercury vapour, quartz, nitrogen clear, and tungsten blue-glass, according to their qualities, constancy, and visual and photographic efficiency. The figures from which this table was prepared were published by the American Illuminating Engineering Society, and proved that there was ample data available on which research work could be founded.

Many members and visitors joined in the general discussion which followed the reading of the paper, and one or two suggestions were made which will be interesting to the research worker. These were chiefly in the direction of diffusion devices, which should, it was agreed, be designed to imitate natural light as nearly as possible.

BRITISH SCREEN BEAUTIES

D O R O T H Y F A N E

who has played nine different vamps in the same number of months, is now playing Countess Sonia in "Laughter and Tears," for Anglo-Hollandia, directed by B. E. Doxat-Pratt. The picture is being made in London, Paris, Venice and Holland and is from an original play by Adelqui Millar.

The Biggest Successes have BENJAMIN COSTUMES

PERSONAL SUPERVISION GUARANTEED in every detail. 'Phone—London Wall 7568.

SIDNEY JAY

Representing Producers & Stars,

'Phone :
Regent 4329.

181, WARDOUR ST.,
LONDON, W.1

WHAT'S DOING IN THE STUDIOS

British and Colonial Kinematograph Co.

ADDRESS: Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
FILM: "The Puppet Man."
PRODUCER: Frank Crane.
STAR: Hugh Miller.
CAMERAMAN: J. Roseman.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Finishing.

J. Stuart Blackton.

ADDRESS: Bush House, Aldwych.
FILM: "The Glorious Romance."
PRODUCER: J. Stuart Blackton.
STAR: Lady Diana Duff-Cooper.
SCENARIST: Felix Orman.
ART DIRECTOR: Almon C. Whiting.
CAMERAMAN: Nicholas Mursuraca.
TYPE: Seven-reel drama.
STAGE: Casting.

Broadwest.

ADDRESS: Walthamstow and Esher.
FILM: "The Imperfect Lover."
PRODUCER: Walter West.
ART DIRECTOR: Thomas Fleetwood.
CAMERAMAN: J. Frangueli.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "Christie Johnson."
PRODUCER: Norman McDonald.
STARS: Stewart Rome and Gertrude McCoy.
SCENARIST: W. G. Clifford.
CAMERAMAN: G. Pauli.
TYPE: Costume romance.
STAGE: Cutting.

I. B. Davidson.

ADDRESS: Lea Bridge Road, Leyton.
FILM: "Fifth Form at St. Dominic's."
PRODUCER: A. E. Coleby.
SCENARIST: A. E. Coleby.
CAMERAMAN: D. P. Cooper.
TYPE: School story.
STAGE: Finishing.

Famous Players-Lasky British Producers.

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.
FILM: "Twice Wed" (working title).
PRODUCER: Paul Powell.
STARS: Mary Glyme, David Powell.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: R. J. Cullen.

SCENARIST: Mary O'Connor.
ART DIRECTOR: L. Dawson.
CAMERAMAN: C. McDonnell.
TYPE: Social drama.
STAGE: Fifth week.

Gaumont.

ADDRESS: Shepherd's Bush.
FILM: "The Autumn of Pride."
PRODUCER: W. P. Kellino.
STAR: Nora Swinburne.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Cyril Smith.
SCENARIST: Paul Roof.
CAMERAMAN: A. St. A. Brown.
TYPE: Five-reel country drama.
STAGE: Fourth week.

Ideal.

FILM: "All Sorts and Conditions of Men."
PRODUCER: G. Treville.
STAR: Rex Davis.
TYPE: Costume drama.
STAGE: Third week.

Master Films.

ADDRESS: Weir House, Teddington.
FILM: "God in the Garden."
PRODUCER: Edwin J. Collins.
STARS: Arthur Passey, Edith Craig, Mabel Poulton.
SCENARIST: Edwin J. Collins.
CAMERAMAN: Jack Parker.
TYPE: Comedy-drama.
STAGE: Nearing Completion.

FILM: "The Marriage Lines."
PRODUCER: Wilfred Noy.
STAR: Barbara Hoff.
SCENARIST: Wilfred Noy.
CAMERAMAN: Theodore Thumwood.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Nearing completion.

Progress.

ADDRESS: Shoreham.
FILM: "The Wooing of April."
PRODUCER: Sidney Morgan.
STARS: Pauline Johnson, Harold French and Ellis Jeffries.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.

(Continued on page 19.)

REX DAVIS

"THE HOUSE OF TEMPERLEY"

☒ 1914—1918. ☒

Juvenile Lead in—"Won by a Head,"
"Pride of the Fancy,"
"Rodney Stone,"
"Uncle Bernac."

Now playing lead in.
"All Sorts and Conditions of Men" (Ideal).

OPEN FOR OFFERS.

Manly Juvenile Leads.

Address:—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES

:: :: No. 1. JACK JARMAN :: ::

Jack Jarman was born at Meldreith, Cambridge, and educated at Beeches College, Melbourne, Cambridge.

Prior to his first appearance on the screen, in 1911, he was a well-known figure in West End musical comedy, and appeared at the Empire and most of the leading theatres in London.

One of his earliest screen appearances was in "In the Hands of London Crooks," which was produced for Barkers. He also appeared in "The Lure of London" (Barker), "The Fighting Strain of Old England" (Martin), "The Second Lieutenant" (Martin), "On the Steps of the Altar" (Martin), "The Great Cheque Fraud" (Davidson), "The Counterfeiters" (Davidson), "In Fate's Grip" (B. and C.), "By the Hand of a Brother" (Broadwest), "The Ashes of Revenge" (London), "The Woman Who Did" (Broadwest), "The Hard Way" (Broadwest), "In the Gloaming" (Broadwest), "Under Suspicion" (Broadwest), "Sweethearts" (Samuelson), "Gamblers All" (Samuelson), "Her Own People" (Samuelson), "The River of Light" (Brilliant), "Heart of the Moorlands" (British Famous Films).

He has, until recently, been playing juvenile lead, and was under contract with Broadwest to appear in such roles in most of its recent productions. In "Miss Charity," a Master Film production which has just been completed, he makes his first entry in screen villaindom, for in this picture he plays heavy lead.

He is a fine type for juvenile or heavy parts, and has had a great deal of experience. During the war he served in the Artists' Rifles.

His address is 161, Wymering Mansions, Maida Vale, W.9.

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer of
"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

BOOKS ON KINEMATOGRAPHY, &c.

FOR OWNERS, MANAGERS AND OPERATORS.

PRACTICAL ELECTRICIAN'S POCKET BOOK. An invaluable pocket book of over 500 pp. Full of useful information for bioscope operators and electricians. Contains a special chapter on Electricity and the Kinematograph, by Capt. J. W. Barber, C.B.E., the well-known expert. 3s. 4d. net, post free.

THE KINEMA OPERATOR'S HANDBOOK. Theory and Practice. By W. S. Ibbetson, B.Sc. Cr. 8vo, 160 pp., 37 illustrations. Just published. 4s. 9d. net, post free.

'LEKTRIK LIGHTING CONNECTIONS. By W. P. Maycock. A useful pocket book of lamp connections of value to all installation attendants controlling picture theatre lighting work, etc. Limp linen, 144 pp., 246 illustrations, 10d. net, post free.

PRACTICAL DYNAMO AND MOTOR MANAGEMENT. A book of direct value to every man in charge of dynamos and motors. 8vo, illustrated, 10d. net, post free.

PRACTICAL ILLUMINATION. By Justus Eck, M.A., M.I.E.E. A useful pocket book on efficient illumination. Crown 8vo, illustrated, 1s. 2d. net, post free.

THE MOTOR GENERATOR IN THEORY AND PRACTICE. By Capt. J. W. Barber, C.B.E. 3rd edition. A handy book for bioscope operators and installation attendants. 88 pp., illustrated. 1s. 8d. net, post free.

HANDY ELECTRICAL DICTIONARY. By W. L. Weber. Contains definitions of over 4,800 words, terms and phrases. Cloth, 1s. 8d. net, post free; leatherette, 2s. 8d. net, post free.

BIOSCOPE ELECTRICIAN'S HAND BOOK. By Capt. J. W. Barber, C.B.E. A most useful pocket book for operators, of which thousands have been sold. New edition in the Press.

ROTARY CONVERTERS, THEIR DESIGN, CONSTRUCTION AND USE. By C. Sylvester, A.M.I.E.E. A handbook for installation attendants and students. 8vo, 62 pp., illustrated, 2s. 3d. net, post free.

A.B.C. OF MOTION PICTURES. By R. E. Welch. A book of a generally descriptive character, showing the main principles of Picture Projection, Play-Writing, etc. Interesting and instructive. Cloth, 8vo, 121 pp., illustrated, 2s. 9d. net, post free.

ELEMENTARY LESSONS IN ELECTRICITY FOR BIOSCOPE OPERATORS. By Lionel Calisch, A.M.I.E.E. A practical-text book containing much valuable information, with good diagrams. Cloth, 130 pp., illustrated, 4s. 4d. post free.

THE CINEMATOGRAPH BOOK. By B. E. Jones. A complete, practical and profusely illustrated guide to the making and showing of kinematograph pictures. Written in simple language by experts for operators and novices. Cloth, 8vo, 216 pp., 135 illustrations, 4s. 6d. net, post free.

PRACTICAL CINEMATOGRAPHY. By Talbot. A useful and up-to-date textbook. Cloth, 8vo, 262 pp., 93 illustrations, 4s. 9d. net, post free.

DYNAMO & MOTOR ATTENDANTS & THEIR MACHINES

By Frank Broadbent, M.I.E.E., etc. The fact that over 35,000 copies of this well-known text book have been sold is ample evidence of its technical value. The tenth edition is now ready, and contains 213 pages with 123 illustrations. For real value to those for whom it is written it stands unrivalled. It is officially recommended by the C. & G. Examiners. Cloth 8vo 4s. 10d. net, post free.

CINEMATOGRAPHY FOR AMATEURS. By L. Donaldson. 1s. 6d. net, post free.

THE MODERN BIOSCOPE OPERATOR. 4th edition. A handy manual for kinematograph operators and installation attendants. Clearly written and well illustrated. Cloth, 8vo. New edition in preparation.

HOPWOOD'S LIVING PICTURES. By R. B. Foster, B.Sc. Second edition. Cloth, 8vo, 377 pp., illustrated. An interesting historical work. 6s. 6d. net, post free.

MOTION PICTURE OPERATION, STAGE ELECTRICS AND ILLUSIONS. By Horstmann and Tousley. A comprehensive textbook on kinematograph work, theatre wiring, etc. Many thousands sold. Cloth, 8vo, 393 pp., 216 illustrations, 7s. 6d. net, post free.

PICTURE THEATRE ADVERTISING. By E. W. Sargent. A book of direct value to every busy picture theatre manager. Contains much helpful information about advertising, programmes, type, printing and paper. Cloth, 8vo, illustrated, 12s. 6d. net, post free.

MOTION PICTURE ELECTRICITY. By J. H. Hallberg. A comprehensive textbook for kinema installation engineers. Cloth, 8vo, 278 pp., 122 illustrations, 15s. 9d. net, post free.

HOW MOTION PICTURES ARE MADE. By Homer Croy. A clearly written textbook of direct value to kinematograph specialists, managers and experts. Cloth, 8vo, 366 pp., illustrated, 16s. 9d. net, post free.

MODERN THEATRE CONSTRUCTION. By Edward Bernard Kinsila, Architect and Theatre Specialist. Cloth, 8vo, 269 pp. Profusely illustrated. 18s. 6d. net, post free.

OPTIC PROJECTION. By S. H. and H. P. Gage. Principles, Installation and Use of the Magic Lantern, Projection Microscope, Reflecting Lantern and Moving Picture Machine. Cloth, 8vo, 730 pp., fully illustrated with plates and with over 400 text figures. 30s. 9d. net, post free.

MODERN ILLUMINANTS AND ILLUMINATING ENGINEERING. By Gaster and Dow. Second edition. 490 pp., 213 illustrations. Cloth, 8vo. The standard textbook on this particular subject. 25s. 9d. net, post free.

ANIMATED CARTOONS. How they are made, their origin and development. By E. G. Lutz. A book of value to all interested in the motion picture industry. Cloth, 8vo, 261 pp., illustrated, 13s. net, post free.

MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK. By F. H. Richardson. A guide for managers and operators of motion picture theatres. The standard textbook of the industry. Cloth 8vo, 702 pp., 318 illustrations, 23s. net, post free.

From

S. RENTELL & CO., LTD., 36, Maiden Lane, LONDON, W.C.2.

Make certain of securing your weekly copy of the

MOTION PICTURE STUDIO

by placing an order with your local newsagent, or by subscribing direct, in which case use this form. Subscription Rates :—3 months, 5/- ; 6 months, 10/- ; yearly 20/-, post free.

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER FORM.

To THE MANAGER,
MOTION PICTURE STUDIO,

85, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

Please send the MOTION PICTURE STUDIO to me at the following address for.....months, for which I enclose remittance of.....

Signed

Address to where copies are to be sent.....

(Continued from page 17)

TYPE : Comedy-drama.

STAGE : Completing.

FILM : "Moth and Rust."

PRODUCER : Sidney Morgan.

STARS : Sybil Thorndyke, Malvina Longfellow, and Langhorne Burton.

SCENARIST : Sidney Morgan.

CAMERAMAN : Stanley Mumford.

TYPE : Drama.

STAGE : Beginning.

Seal.

ADDRESS : Prince's Studio, Kew Bridge.

FILM : "Dick's Fairy."

PRODUCER : Bert Wynne.

STARS : Hargreaves Munsell, Joan Griffith, and Albert Bruntford.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR : John Wyndham.

SCENARIST : Elliot Stannard.

CAMERAMAN : L. Protheroe.

TYPE : Drama.

STAGE : Second week.

Stoll.

ADDRESS : Lungdon Road, Cricklewood.

FILM : "The Woman with the Fan."

PRODUCER : Rene Plaissetty.

STAR : Mary Massart.

CAMERAMAN : Jack Cox.

TYPE : Drama.

STAGE : First week.

FILM : "The Prey of the Dragon."

PRODUCER : Martin Thornton.

STAR : Victor McLaglan.

TYPE : Drama.

STAGE : Just started.

Zodiac.

ADDRESS : Windsor Studios, Catford.

FILM : "Walter's Winning Ways."

PRODUCER : W. A. Bowman.

STAR : Walter Forde.

TYPE : Two-reel comedies.

STAGE : First week.

THE WEEK'S DIARY

Studio Managers and Producers are requested to send details for this :: :: :: section :: :: ::

TRADE SHOWS

"The Broken Road" (Stoll).

PRODUCER : René Plaissetty.

CAST : Harry Ham, Mary Massart and Tony Fraser.

TRADE SHOW : Tuesday, June 14, 11 a.m.,
London Opera House.

* * *

"Money" (Ideal).

PRODUCER : Duncan McRae.

CAST : Henry Ainley, Olaf Hytten,
Adelaide Grace, Sidney Paxton, Faith Devon,
Ethel Newman, Margot Drake and Sam
Wilkinson.

TRADE SHOW : Wednesday, June 15,
11.30 a.m., New Gallery.

* * *

"Candytuft—I Mean Veronica" (Cosmograph).

PRODUCER : Frank Richardson.

CAST : Mary Glynn, Leslie Faber, George
Ralph, Ena Grossmith.

TRADE SHOW : Wednesday, June 15,
11.15 a.m., West End Cinema.

RELEASES

Lady Tetley's Decree (Jury).

PRODUCER : Fred Paul.

CAST : Sir Oliver Tetley, Hamilton
Stewart; Robert Trentham, Phillip Hewland; Lord Herondale, Bernard Vaughan; Rachel

Wynne, Marjorie Hume; and Lionel Grier, Sidney Lewis Ransome.

The Four Just Men (Stoll).

SCENARIO AND PRODUCTION : George Ridgwell.

CAMERAMAN : Alfred H. Moses, Junr.

ART DIRECTOR : Walter W. Murton.

CAST : Manfred, Cecil Humphreys;
Poiccart, Owen Roughwood; Sir Phillip
Ramon, Teddy Arundell; Gonsalez, George
Bellamy; Thery, C. H. Croker-King; Insp.
Falmouth, C.I.D., C. Tilson Chowne; and Billy Marks, Robert Vallis.

SIDNEY L. EATON,

KINEMATOGRAPHER,

3, LEBANON PARK MANSIONS,
T W I C K E N H A M.

Productions include:—

"Darby and Joan," "Westward Ho!"
"Story of the Rosary," "Hobson's
Choice," "Won by a Head," "Rodney
Stone," "The Old Arm Chair," "Like-
ness of the Night," "Croxley Master,"
"Ships that Pass in the Night," etc., etc.

AT —LIBERTY. FOR
FIRST CLASS PRODUCTIONS.

W. CLARKSON,
Costumier and Wigmaker,
41/43, Wardour Street, W. Phone : Gerr. 612.

THIS SPACE TO LET.

17s. 6d. for 13 insertions.

L. BENJAMIN & CO., 99, Middlesex St.,
Bishopsgate, E.1.

'Phone
London Wall
7568.

Kinematograph Costumier,
Naval & Military Outfitter.

JOHN HYMAN

NAVAL, MILITARY, LIVERY & THEATRICAL :: COSTUMIER

Telephone:
Gerrard
7 5 8 5

29, LEICESTER SQUARE
LONDON—W.C.2

Telegrams:
"Realistic,
London."

WE would like producers to see the following films for which we have lately supplied the costumes and uniforms:

TORN SAILS.

OLD COUNTRY.

BELPHEGOR.

SIBYL.

PRINCE AND THE BEGGAR MAID.

DEMOS.

BACHELORS' CLUB.

DANIEL DERONDA.

MISS CHARITY.

PENNILESS

MILLIONAIRE.

ALL SORTS AND CONDITIONS OF MEN.

WOMAN OF NO IMPORTANCE.

CORINTHIAN JACK.

The MOTION PICTURE

Studio

Vol. 1.—No. 2.

Saturday, June 18, 1921.

FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH MOTION
PICTURES

Producer of "The Diamond Necklace,"
"Demos," "A Woman of No Importance,"
"Sonia" and "The Old Wives' Tale."
Mr. Clift will remain in England, and this autumn will start making a series of powerful modern photoplays for an International market, to be known as "DENISON CLIFT ART PRODUCTIONS."

DENISON CLIFT

MILTON ROSMER*Starring in*

"The Pointing Finger,"
 "A Woman of No Importance,"
 "The Amazing Adventure,"
 "Demos," "The Diamond Necklace,"
 "Belphegor the Mountebank,"
 "The Will," "The Twelve Pound
 Look," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

88, NEWMAN ST., W.1.

Phone - - - Museum 5145.

SIDNEY
L. EATON,

KINEMATOGRAPHER,

3, LEBANON PARK MANSIONS,
T W I C K E N H A M.Productions include:—

"Darby and Joan," "Westward Ho!"
 "Story of the Rosary," "Hobson's
 Choice," "Won by a Head," "Rodney
 Stone," "The Old Arm Chair," "Like-
 ness of the Night," "Croxley Master,"
 "Ships that Pass in the Night," etc., etc.

AT LIBERTY FOR
FIRST CLASS PRODUCTIONS.GEOFFREY H.
MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE,"
 "PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
 "SETTLED IN FULL,"
 "ALL THE WINNERS,"
 "WATCHING EYES," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
 26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

Continuities.

My Continuities (originals or adaptations) are planned to smooth out all harassing mechanical details for the Director—leaving his brain and hands free for his job—direction.

HARRY HUGHES,

Editing, Sub-Titling, Continuities,
 47, Dean St., London, W.1.

Telephone: Re ent 2592.

HUGH CROISEProducer.*

Sole Adaptor and Producer
 of
 "THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—
 c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

A. BOCCHI*Producer of*

"THE MAN AND THE MOMENT,"
 "TOP DOG,"
 "THE WAGES OF SIN,"
 "NOT GUILTY,"
 "WHOSOEVER SHALL OFFEND,"
 "PEACE PERFECT PEACE,"
 "WHEN IT WAS DARK,"
 "THE SPLENDID FOLLY,"
 "FETTERED,"
 "THE POLAR STAR,"

Etc., etc.,

will be pleased to receive photographs and terms from well-known film artistes for 3 months' engagement, as he has been requested to advise on the casting of a production for a foreign company

Address:—

British Art Film Co., Ltd.,
 Princess Studio, Kew Bridge, RICHMOND.

KINE CAMERA
EXPOSURE METER*7/8

With I str ction
 Booklet.

Indicates right lens
 opening for the light.

"Very reliable,
 could hardly get on without."

"Complete satisfaction, used for testing actinic value
 of flame arcs."

WATKINS METER Co
HEREFORD.

Artists*HENDERSON
BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger
 to the Cross," Starring in
 "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's
 Love Story," "A Cigarette
 Maker's Romance."

219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Now playing lead in
 "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" (Ideal).
 Open for offers. Manly
 Juvenile Leads.

Address—The Old Manor
 House, East Moseley.
 Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N.
FOLKER.

JUVENILE.
 Leads: London, Samuel-
 son, Ideal, Broadwest,
 etc. 103, Fowlers Walk,
 Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Demos," "Money,"
 "Miss Charity," "Knave of
 Diamonds," "The Knight
 Errant," "Haigh Serial,"
 "Love Maggie,"
 4, Park Place, St. James, S.W.
 Regent 4060.

PHOTO
BLOCK

THIS SPACE
 TO LET
 £3 for 13 insertions, including cost of making block.

VICTOR McLAGLAN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman,
 Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road"
 and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES.

LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs.
 NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc.

Carlton House, Kew
 Green, Kew, Surrey.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex. :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh
 Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

THIS SPACE
 TO LET

£2 : 10 : 0

for 13 insertions

ORDER YOUR COPY through your local newsagent, or fill in the Subscription Order Form on page 14.

ArtistsDICK WEBB

Lead GAUMONT,
MASTER PRODUCTIONS, etc.
180, Elmhurst Mansions,
Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.
197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph. Batt. 1770 or 21.

CLIVE BROOK
INVITES OFFERS.
24, Hyde Park Square, W.2. Padd. 2868.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT,
Disengaged July 4. 'Phone: Walthamstow 938.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,
15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.
'Phone: Hornsey 1784.

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,
Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
62, Foxbourne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

DALTON SOMERS, Author, Actor,
Producer,
114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

HARDING STEERMAN,
Characters of Distinction,
56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,
24, Cleveland Road,
Barnes, S.W. 13.

ProducersBERT HALDANE,

14a, Little Ealing Lane,
:: South Ealing ::

'Phone: Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
"The Face at the Window."

Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON

Producing for Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd.

Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,

Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT
GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE
LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and
"CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."

Five years producer in America.

Address: 1A, DENBIGH PLACE, VICTORIA.

THIS SPACE
TO LET
£2 : 10 : 0
for 13 insertions.

Producers

ADRIAN BRUNEL,
Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone: 5280 Paddington).

Mr. ALBERT WARD,
Producing and Adapting
for Samuelson, Worton Hall, Isleworth.

THIS SPACE TO LET.
17s 6d. for 13 insertions.

Scenario Writers .COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,
:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,

Kinedramatist,
Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

CRISPIN HAY,

c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

THIS SPACE
TO LET
£2 : 10 : 0
for 13 insertions.

PublicityF. J. STANDERWICK,

Photographer.

I am making a speciality of Catering for
Film Artists. 'Phone for appointment—
Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio
—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
W.14.

FRANK J. WOOLF,

"The Pithy Paragraphist"
(by kind permission of Janey).

Persistently perpetrating pernicious puns abetted by argumentative alliteration, for
B. & C. Films, Kenelm Foss, etc.

Address: B. & C. Studios.

EDWARD BAIRD,

Publicity.

172, Goldhurst Terrace, N.W.6.

Studio Manager .JOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—

B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,
Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
Telephone: W'stow 364."

Costumier

W. CLARKSON,
Costumier and Wigmaker,
41/43, Wardour Street, W. 'Phone: Gerr. 612.

CameramenJOHN J. COX

44, Barrowgate Road,
:: Chiswick, W.4. ::

'Phone: Chiswick 294.

Cameraman for Mr. Rene Plaissetty,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD

Cameraman—MASTER FILMS,
TEDDINGTON.

Latest Productions, "HARD CASH," "STELLA," "MISS CHARITY."

EDWIN DAY

Motion Picture Photographer,

12, Archer Street, Picca-
dilly Circus, London, W.1.

Telephone: Gerrard 780.

Telegrams: "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON

Thelton House, Cambolt

:: Road, Putney Hill. ::

Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN

"GAUMONT'S,"

105, King's Road,
Kingston-on-Thames.

FRANK CANHAM

Cameraman—

ASTRA FILM CO., LTD.

Permanent Address: Royal Forest
Hotel, Chingford, Essex.

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT

GAUMONT,

:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::
Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT

Expert Cameraman.

"The Better 'Ole," "Her Benny,"
etc., etc.

2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.

'Phone: Streatham 1969.

ALFRED H. MOSES

Chief Cameraman—

GEORGE RIDGWELL PRODUCTIONS
STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS

Formerly Chief Cameraman of Norma
Talmadge, Thanhauser, B. & C., etc.

THIS SPACE
TO LET
£2 : 10 : 0
for 13 insertions.

MISS OLIVE SLOANE

All coms. : BRAMLINS, 241, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.C.2.

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 2

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

June 18, 1921.

Starved.

IF Los Angeles were in London, would British pictures be any better? Off-hand, we should say "No." The old theory of atmospheric handicaps has been disproved. Another old theory—that pictures can be made as well here as on the Pacific Coast, given the proper facilities—has been proved. "Given the proper facilities . . ." there's the rub! Proper facilities cost money—and time. And time is money. How many producing companies here are at present trying to make pictures for two or three thousand pounds, with a time of about a month? (Reason for the time limit? Actors and actresses, as well as the other essentials, cost money!)

A True Story.

THAT, ladies and gentlemen, is one of the reasons—indeed, the only real reason—why we do not measure up with America and Sweden. Last summer an Englishman who had also achieved some fame in the States as a film producer came home for a holiday. Looking round, he decided, like a sensible man, that it was possible to make real pictures here. So to combine business with pleasure and to have a "come-back" for the knockers when he returned to the States, he thought he would make a motion picture for one of the British companies. So he chose one carefully and put up a practical suggestion.

And the Sequel.

YES, they would very much like him to make a picture for him; be delighted, in fact. How long would it take? The producer reckoned, if he hustled, six or eight weeks from when shooting began, if nothing unforeseen happened. H'm! that was rather a long time; but still . . . Now as to cost. Seeing that it would be a big production with the asset of his name behind it, they were prepared to go to far more than usual. In fact, they were prepared to let it cost £4,500. "All in," of course. To which the producer replied that he made pictures, not jokes, wished them good-day and shut the door behind him. And he has not been seen on This Side from that day to this. But in America he has since produced . . . still, that's another story, and besides it would give too close a clue to his identity.

Two Films a Year!

BUT, apart from any other consideration, the fact that there is (and always has been) a good market abroad, especially in the States, for really good pictures at least up to the best standards of the country of reception, makes one wonder seriously money and time is spent on films, and brains are mixed with the time and money, pictures can be made here which will not only be welcomed by the big American market but will sell there for real cash money. Ask Harley Knoles.

A Problem in Proportion.

LET us bring it down to figures. If it costs £3,000 to make a picture of which the foreign rights are almost unsaleable, and it books here for £7,500, and it costs £15,000 to produce a picture which books here for about the same amount but of which the American and other foreign rights fetch £30,000 or more, which is the better proposition? It is a matter of a profit of £4,500 on £3,000 as against a profit of £22,500 on £15,000. Nothing in it, is there? Only the kudos, the reputation, and the removal of the stigma that we can't make pictures! That's all. Perhaps those things don't count. Maybe our producing companies prefer small risks and quick profits. That's all right, of course, only they mustn't ask us to believe they are making supers on these lines. Any more than we believe the suburban dressmaker who calls herself Louise. We've heard her accent!

The Same All Round.

THE complaint of a scenarist, whose letter appears on another page, is no new one. Unfortunately when a grievance or an abuse becomes common, it is apt to be regarded as an accepted fact. But the story that more businesslike treatment—and incidentally better payment—is accorded by American concerns does not only apply to the scenarist. Artistes, producers, cameramen, continuity writers—in fact, almost every one in the studio—is better paid and better treated on the whole on the Other Side. It comes back to the same cause as that to which the rest of these notes is devoted: We do not or cannot spend the money on our films that is necessary to ensure that they are really photoplays of the first order. Perhaps, after all, it is because we haven't got it!

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"The Broken Road" (Stoll) possesses some fine mass scenes, and the exteriors are extremely picturesque. The essential romantic glamour has been secured, and Rene Plaisetty has used much ingenuity in obtaining the Indian scenes. Acting honours fall to Tony Fraser. Photography is fairly good, and Daisy Martin has done very well with the scenario.

"Money" (Ideal) is an instance of the triumph over difficulties and is an evidence of the power that a good cast has to lift a production from a low level. Henry Ainley appears to cling to the stage conventionalities, but Faith Bevan gives an excellent performance. Sidney Paxton as Sir John Vesey and James Lindsay as Captain Smooth are also quite good. The photography is beyond reproach, while the producer, Duncan Macrae, reveals a noticeable capacity for mechanical exactitude. Most of the scenes are taken in the studio, but some picturesque garden effects have been obtained.

"Candytuft, I mean Veronica" (Cosmograph) is an attempt to introduce some welcome humour to the screen but finds its chief point in the general worth of the technical side of the production. The cast includes names that are well known on the legitimate stage—a fact that need not pre-suppose excellence on the screen. Mary Glynn in the title role is pretty and natural, but in the main the stage stars disappoint. Mabel Barnes Grundy's novel, whoever is responsible for the scenario, has failed to make a presentable film story. Interiors are well staged; exteriors very artistic, and there is some very clever camera work.

where, if anywhere, this sausage-machine policy is going to lead us. The saner producers all over the world have given up the cheap rapid style of output. Sweden, for example, has four of the finest producers in the world at work, and their output for 1921 will be EIGHT PICTURES—not each, but between them. Suggest such a plan to the average director—the executive head, not the producing—and listen to what he says, or, rather, don't listen, it won't be pleasant.

Honesty and Sense.

THE extraordinary part of it is that the exhibitor is usually willing to pay more for a mediocre British film than for a good foreign picture. That's nice, of course, but it isn't business. And to trade on his sentiment by making junk at a lower cost than that of the British distributing rights of a reasonably good American picture is a little less than honest. Worse, it is short-sighted. For if real

WHAT IS WRONG WITH OUR PRODUCERS ?

by J. COBB

Judging by certain recent British releases, I am tempted to reply, "Everything." Do I find a producer with imagination? Then I find also that he cannot tell a coherent story; that the photography is poor, the sub-titles poorer, and the players miscast. Four-fifths of the British offerings to-day are thoroughly and obviously miscast.

Poor Producer !

Is the plot a good one? Then it is pretty certain that at least three reels will be devoted to introductions; events moving so rapidly in the next two, that before they can be fully grasped the film is finished and the lights are up.

Is the photography perfect? Are the players popular and clever? Then rest assured the plot is of the slightest, and despite much padding and many side-issues, the whole thing contrives to end with a jerk.

For these things, and many similar things, I blame the producer.

The art of film making, like any other art, is, after all, only an abbreviation. Let the British producer, then, imitate America in this one respect only: Aim at interesting the public.

The star, alone, is insufficient; not that I discount in any way the value of personality. Also British players in British films have not, nor ever have had, a fair chance. The British film star is every whit as handsome and talented as any foreigner you please; but suffers from lack of opportunity, lack of publicity (of the right kind), and lack of understanding in producers.

What causes the unbalanced effect of the average British offering? I find many feet of film devoted to the unfolding of unimportant side issues, at the expense of the main theme, quite vital details of which are either told in sub-titles, or never told at all. Too much left to the imagination is as bad as too little.

And Title-writer !

A word about the British sub-titles. Most of them resemble schoolboy attempts at composition; and there are too many—far too many. The ideal sub-title is brief, illuminative, and, where possible, "snappy." Here the American scores. Though the substance be the same, the British products are sub-titles, pure and simple; whilst the American, by simply giving the thing a twist and adding a letter, evolves—subtleties.

AND Novelist !

Many deplore the filming of novels, possibly because of the time, labour and money lavishly expended upon filming melodramas, Dell-o-dramas (which are worse), and newspaper serials. I am strongly in favour of filming all the "worth while" novels and plays, but strongly against spoiling them by introducing unnecessary variations, and omitting essentials. In this respect the British producer is a great sinner. Why does he always take it for granted that the public which goes to see the film has read the novel or play on which it is based? Why not assume that the public is unfamiliar with it, and therefore take the trouble to present a clear and easily followed story? Why is he irresistibly impelled to alter types and characters? I can hardly call to mind one instance of characters on the films resembling even remotely the characters of the novel from which the film was made. All the novels screened lately suffer from the same complaint. The essence of adaptation is not mutilation; but simply the art of knowing what to leave out.

Is there no British producer able to make a film out of a novel without making a hash of it?

[We anticipate that the iconoclastic views of our contributor will not be allowed to pass unchallenged by either producers or artistes, and we will give space to any replies.—EDITOR.]

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES

No. II.—DENISON CLIFT

While the original of our front cover this week is comparatively new to the British producing field, he is by no means a stranger to the Film Industry, into which he made his entry over four years ago.

Those who have followed Denison Clift's work have long since realised that he is an artist with a literary mind. In fact, his early career was directed to the literary side of the business.

It was in 1917 that Cecil B. De Mille discovered Mr. Clift, and at once enlisted the services of his brain and pen. For two years he was attached to the literary staffs of both Cecil de Mille and Thos. H. Ince, for whom he wrote stories for films which featured William S. Hart, Sessue Hayakawa, Louise Glaum, Henry B. Walthall, and other leading American players.

In 1919 William Fox, recognising his ability, offered him the position of production editor to the Fox organisation. He also wrote the stories of, and produced, several films in America prior to his migration to this country.

About six months ago he followed a tour of the Continent by making a stay in this country—a stay that, we hope, will be prolonged into permanency. He had not been in England long before he had signed a contract with Ideal to produce a photoplay based on Guy de Maupassant's story, "The Diamond Necklace."

This, his first British production, made on his own scenario, at once established him in the front rank of British producers. With "Demos" he made an even greater success, revealing an insight into character and a recognition of the claims of markets other than this country that has stamped his productions with an appreciable value. "A Woman of No Importance" was the other of his trio of triumphs, and now he is engaged on the preliminaries to his fourth Ideal—"Sonia."

In appearance, Denison Clift, with his dark piercing eyes and lithe body, is suggestive of the man who has no doubts of what he wants and no doubts about getting it. His producing methods are more scientific than blatant. Born in San Francisco, he obtained the advantage of an excellent education at Stanford University, California.

Denison Clift has received from Ideal Films, Ltd., a very high tribute to his work for the firm. S. Rowson, on behalf of Ideal, recently wrote Mr. Clift:—"I wish to take this opportunity to express to you the very high appreciation, both of my colleagues on the board and of myself, of the great excellence of the work you have done. We have the greatest possible admiration for your capacity, and we believe that your pictures ought to be high commercial successes."

Denison Clift is to start work at Elstree on a super-production of Stephen McKenna's brilliant novel, "Sonia" When that is completed in July, Mr. Clift will make one more picture for Ideal under his present contract.

Recreations: Aviation, golf, swimming—and work!

THE WEEK'S TRADE SHOWS

"The Amazing Partnership"

PRODUCER: George Ridgeway.

CAST: Milton Rosmer, Gladys Mason, Teddy Arundel, Robert Vallis, Temple Bell, Arthur Walcott, Charles Barrett, Harry Worth.

CAMERAMAN: Al Moses.

SCENARIST: Charles Barnet.

TRADE SHOW: Friday, June 17, Stoll Opera House, Kingsway, 11 a.m.

"In His Grip" (Gaumont).

PRODUCER: Captain Calvert.

CAST: Christopher Moreton Yorke, David Hawthorne, Netta Westcott, Cecil du Gue, George Bellamy, Hugh Miller, W. T. Ellwanger.

CAMERAMAN: Basil W. G. Emmott.

SCENARIST: Paul Roof.

TRADE SHOW: Wednesday, June 22, Alhambra, 2.30 p.m.

"The Bachelors' Club" (Ideal).

PRODUCER: A. V. Bramble.

CAST: Ben Field, Mary Brough, Arthur Cleave, Sydney Paxton, Sydney Fairbrother, Ernest Thesiger, Dora Lennox, Jack Denton, James Lindsey, Betty Belloc, Arthur Pusey, A. G. Poulton, Margot Drake, Alice de Winton.

SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.

TRADE SHOW: Wednesday, June 22, New Gallery Kinema, Regent Street, 11 a.m.

"Appearances" (Famous-Lasky).

PRODUCER: Donald Crisp.

CAST: Langhorne Burton, Mary Dibley, David Powell, Mary Glynn, Marjorie Hume, Percy Standing, Jane West.

SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.

ART DIRECTOR: Ivo Dawson.

TRADE SHOW: Friday, June 24, Super Cinema, Charing Cross Road, 11 a.m.

"The Place of Honour" (Stoll).

PRODUCER: Sinclair Hill.

CAST: Madge White, Hugh Buckley, Pardoe Woodman.

CAMERAMAN: James Crapper.

SCENARIST: W. J. Elliott.

TRADE SHOW: Tuesday, June 21, Stoll Opera House, Kingsway, 11 a.m.

You cannot do better than by placing your orders with

L. BENJAMIN & CO.

99, Middlesex Street, E.1.

'Phone—London Wall 7568.

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

A. E. Coleby, who has, during the past year, been, perhaps, the most consistently successful producer, is so shy and modest that he can seldom be got to go to the Trade shows of his own pictures. The blushing violet has nothing on him—though one hardly expects to find violets at Leyton! How different is his self-effacement from the methods of some of his contemporaries. But we really do not believe the story that one of them is seriously thinking of putting his name, address, where educated, clubs, hobbies, age, size of family and income, and number of motor-cars on the main lead of his next film.

* * *

The wildest of wild horses will not drag from us the name of the head of a producing concern who is involved in this story: The producer needed a street scene in Paris, and went to some length to get the signs, number plates on vehicles, and so on, accurate. But he overlooked—or didn't know that the traffic keeps to the right in France. When the Big Noise was told of the mistake he remarked: "That's easy. Turn the negative over!"

* * *

Equally we refuse to divulge the identity of the producer who, making his first appearance in one of the more up-to-date studios, was offered a megaphone by his assistant. "What's this for?" he remarked, witheringly. "I ain't deaf."

* * *

There is much to be said in opposition to the tendency that is manifested in American studios to write film stories especially for a certain player. It is fairly obvious that in the general run this would only make for indifferent films; an argument which artistes might prefer to think does not concern them in the least so long as they draw their salaries. But if this purely superficial view is disregarded we are sure that all thinking artistes would readily see that poor films will inevitably mean fewer films—fewer films ensures less work for artistes. And what's the use of being a star if there are no films to star in?

* * *

But we are inclined to think that there are a few exceptions. There are occasions when the specially-written story is all to the good for all concerned. This is in those cases when a reputable author is so impressed with the work of an artiste that he determines to provide that artiste with a vehicle for his work that will enable the public to see the artiste at his best. Such a case comes to our notice this week; we learn that Cosmo Gordon Lennox (the author of "The Puppet Man") has been so intrigued with the artistry of Hugh Miller in the B. and C. film version of his book that he has declared his intention of writing a special continuity for Hugh. This is good news—for Hugh and also for the public—because Cosmo Gordon Lennox, by virtue of

ON THE FLOOR WITH KENELM FOSS

There are many producers who are content to supervise the direction of the production only, and do not concern themselves with preliminary matters that are more or less incidental. Not so Kenelm Foss. From the moment the idea of the film is mooted, until it is Trade shown, he shows an active interest in all that pertains to the production.

In the first place if the picture is to be a film version of a novel, Kenelm Foss makes his own adaptation, with the assistance of Grace Rose of his literary staff.

He also has his own original methods for the costume and scenic department. With so many styles and dresses in use, and in use at conflicting stages in the process of production, he has found it necessary to tabulate with great care the items of dress, and the scenic settings. This is always done before production is commenced and the scheme is so perfect that, with nothing left to chance, when production is actually commenced, the dressing of artistes and studio goes with the smoothness of clockwork. In matters of this description he has the assistance of Roy Travers, the B. and C. Studio manager.

When he takes the floor the scene of quiet inanimation is at once changed. Picture a tall gaunt man stalking up and down the studio, occasionally running his hands through his wild, disordered hair, as he anxiously examines the various camera-positions. Foss is a veritable terror for detail, and to ensure perfect exactitude there is an enormous number of retakes on occasion.

On taking the floor there is an unwritten law that there should be perfect silence. No temperamental person can tolerate noise, and so Kenelm Foss works in perfect silence and without any interruption.

And when we say that, we mean all that the word "work" infers. There is a complete absence of hesitation; he knows what he wants and spares no pains to get it. In his work he seldom, if ever, uses a megaphone, but relies on the intelligence of the artiste to get the best out of the situations. He sees to it that each artiste thoroughly masters the part before entering the set, and rehearsals are ample. Nor does he affect the use of subsidiary aids to acting, such as music or the playing on the emotions. He maintains, as a principle, that the artiste must naturally feel the part, and re-live it without the emotions being forced by artificial means.

his experience, knows what the public wants, and if he is prepared to back Hugh Miller it means that he is convinced that the public will be pleased with the player.

* * *

Arthur Weigall, who made the soul-shattering discovery that British films can get into America if they are up to American standards, is the one note of joy in the present period of depression. He thinks we shall never have a large output of first-class films owing to climatic conditions, but does not explain why, if it is possible to make an unlimited number. But we do agree with his dictum that the salvation of the British picture "lies in the engaging of great creative brains and talents." And we subscribe heartily to the sentiment that British films will never gain a world market so long as illiterate, vulgar, inartistic, second-rate men have any principal part in the work." The "stuff to give 'em" section of the American has never succeeded in getting much of a world market, yet their methods are those largely used here.

* * *

Much more, however, are we inclined to agree with E. A. Baughan, who says that, "Indiscriminate praise of British films will not help the industry. Indeed, anything in the nature of a journalistic stunt in favour of home-made films and against American, or the other way about, is apt to make praise or criticism valueless even when it is just. The Trade, if it pays any attention at all to journalism of that type, makes a very big discount for the stunt."

* * *

When he goes on to complain of the type of producer who knows "what the public wants" and gives it, he comes to a subject on which we hold rather strong views. There is hardly a worse mistake that has been made in film production than this "giving the public what it wants." Because the mentality of the people who believe they are doing so is not the mass mentality of the public. It is the mentality of the least educated minority, of the section which makes possible serials, yellow journalism and the "mother-in-law and lodger" type of music-hall comedian. That is not the public. It is only a part of it. And, unfortunately, the people who give the public what it wants belong intellectually to that part of the public. "MEGAPHONE."

Where they are and

Rosamond Somerset plays in "Too Many Cooks" (Minerva).

Nan Paterson is in the cast of "Too Many Cooks" (Minerva).

Ivy Duke is playing female lead in "The Bigamist" (George Clark).

Charles Clifford has been provided with a part in the new Minerva Comedy, "Too Many Cooks."

Phyllis Joyce has been engaged to play the lead in "Two Many Cooks," for Minerva Comedies.

Guy Newall is still working on exteriors in Nice, for his latest George Clark production, "The Bigamist." He expects to return in two weeks.

Frank Crane is making good progress with his B. and C. production of "The Puppet Man." He is now in Tyrol.

Maurice Elvey is away in the Dartmoor district, obtaining exteriors for his Stoll production of "The Hound of the Baskervilles."

Billy Le Free has started work on "Walter's Winning Ways," a two-reel comedy, which he is producing at the Windsor Studio, Catford for Zodiac.

Adrian Brunel has decided to make three more Minerva Comedies. "Too Many Cooks" (Starting), "A Temporary Lady" and "Do be Careful."

Walter West has just finished "Vi of Smith's Alley," and is casting for his next Broadwest picture, the name of which is "The Imperfect Lover."

Arthur Booth is playing in "Too Many Cooks" (Minerva), and claims to be a grandson of the late General William Booth, Founder of the Salvation Army.

Walter Forde plays the lead in "Walter's Winning Ways," now being produced at Catford.

R. Clifton acts as assistant producer in producing "Walter's Winning Ways," for Zodiac.

Marjorie Russell plays opposite Walter Forde in the Zodiac two-reel comedy, "Walter's Winning Ways."

Walter C. Rowden has just finished producing "Corinthian Jack" at Master's for Butcher.

Victor MacLaglan finished work on the Master production, "Corinthian Jack." He played lead.

Dorothy Fane has finished work on "Corinthian Jack" (Master).

Kathleen Vaughan played an important part in "Corinthian Jack," the latest Master production, which has just been finished.

Warwick Ward is in the cast of "Corinthian Jack" (Master).

Maudie Dunham expects to arrive in England within a fortnight, from the Haarlem Studios, of Granger-Binger, where she is now working on the part of Zizi in "Laughter and Tears."

Hugh Miller is playing the lead in "The Puppet Man," which Frank Crane is producing for B. and C.

Mary Glynne has been working at the Lasky studios at Islington on "Twice Wed," in which she plays the lead.

David Powell has a leading part in "Twice Wed" (Famous-Lasky).

Nora Swinburn plays lead in "The Autumn of Pride" (Gaumont).

Arthur Pusey plays lead in "God in the Garden" (Master).

Rex Davis is now in the fourth week of his work with Ideal in "All Sorts and Conditions of Men."

Edith Craig is in the cast of "God in the Garden" (Master).

Barbara Hoff is playing female lead in "The Marriage Lines" for Master.

Mabel Poulton is finishing work on an important part in the Master film "God in the Garden."

Pauline Johnson is at Shoreham, where she is playing in "The Wooing of April" (Progress).

Harold French is in the cast of "The Wooing of April" (Progress).

Ellis Jeffries is playing an important part in the Progress film "The Wooing of April."

Sybil Thorndike has been engaged by Sidney Morgan to play a leading part in the next Progress production, "Moth and Rust."

Basil W. C. Emmott will be cranking for the next Gaumont production.

Langhorne Burton has the male lead in "Moth and Rust" (Progress).

Stanley Mumford is behind the camera at the Progress Studios.

L. Prothero is busy photographing "Dick's Fairy" for Seal at the Princes Studio.

Jack Cox started work with the camera the other day on "The Woman with the Fan" (Stoll).

Sidney Morgan has been responsible for the scenario of "Moth and Rust" (Progress).

DO YOU

The name of the studio carpenter who calls himself "Art Director"? And—

What the gov'nor calls him?

Whether either the V.A.F. or the A.A. wants the job of organising film artistes?

The significance of the influx of American artistes?

What Maurice Elvey thinks of Dartmoor? And—What Dartmoor thinks of Maurice?

The name of the player who has already been selected as the next Stoll star?

Whether she is yet aware of her fate? And—

If it is not true again that the "Campbells are coming"?

The name of the next "British Mary Pickford"?

How Geoffrey Benstead fared at the Kennington?

What the difference is between a scenario-writer and a kinedramatist? And—

If W. J. Elliott knows?

THE NEED FOR FILM

Your comments on the need for organisation of screen artistes open up a very important question.

The Variety Artistes' Federation and the Actors' Association have jointly made efforts in that direction, with, however, very little success. Personally, I have been in passive opposition to their schemes, as I consider the matter entirely outside the province of both societies.

I have been engaged in motion pictures as an actor for some years, progressing from crowd work to more or less leading parts, and have been greatly impressed by the widely varied types engaged in it; not only the crowds, but also small-part people, leads, and even stars, hundreds of whom have never been on the stage and never dreamed of calling themselves "actors" in that sense of the term as we knew it before the advent of the screen play; which is probably the chief reason why the efforts of the V.A.F. and A.A. have practically failed. None of these have the slightest interest in the theatre or legitimate drama, still less have they any interest in the V.A.F. or A.A. Some even resent the actor as such playing before the camera at all! A friend of mine was once asked by one such "screen artiste": "Why he did not stick to the stage and why he intruded upon the preserves of the film actor?" (This gentleman, by the bye, was an undertaker by trade, who filled in his spare time at the studios!)

Again, there are many well-known actors who have relinquished the stage in favour of the motion pictures, and some have also resigned from the A.A. because they consider their present work as outside the scope of that organisation.

The truth is that acting for a motion picture is a thing quite apart from acting for the stage. The conditions are entirely different in every respect, and even technique becomes subservient to the limits of the camera.

what they are doing

Jack Parker controls the camera in the Master production, "God in the Garden."

Elliot Stannard prepared the scenario of "Dick's Fairy," now being produced by Seal.

Theodore Thumwood is responsible for the photography in "The Marriage Lines" (Master).

— K N O W —

The name of the well-known British producer who is sailing straight for the bankruptcy court?

* * *

If it is not the highest ambition of every film player to work under Denison Clift?

* * *

If a certain producing firm is afraid of the upward tendency in artistes' salaries? And—

* * *

Whether its advice is influencing a newer firm that has no such fear, and is now casting?

* * *

If so many "adaptations" are not really mutilations?

* * *

What Ethel M. Dell really thought of "Greatheart"?

* * *

What Harley Knoles has got up his sleeve?

* * *

The name of the producer who offered Bernard Shaw £10,000 to put his name to a film story?

* * *

Which is the first producing unit that will produce a Bernard Shaw film? And—

* * *

Whether British producers would not get the surprise of their lives if we were to divulge the name?

Wilfred Noy is scenario-writer and producer of "The Marriage Lines" (Master).

G. Treville is producing "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" for Ideal.

Paul Roof is responsible for the scenario of "The Autumn of Pride" (Gaumont).

W. G. Clifford is the scenarioist of "Christie Johnson" (Broadwest).

J. Roseman is turning the handle for "The Puppet Man" (B. and C.).

Mary O'Connor is responsible for the scenario of "Twice Wed" (Famous-Lasky).

L. Dawson is busy art-directing for Famous-Lasky at its Islington studios.

A. St. A. Brown is in charge of the photography in "The Autumn of Pride" (Gaumont).

D. P. Cooper handles the camera at the Davidson studio, and is now working on "The Fifth Form at St. Dominic's."

J. Franguelli is the Broadwest photographer to be engaged on "The Imperfect Lover."

Nicholas Mursuraca has been engaged to attend to the photography for "The Glorious Romance" (J. Stuart Blackton production).

Felix Orman wrote the scenario for the J. Stuart Blackton production, "The Glorious Romance."

Thomas Fleetwood has been working as art-director in connection with the Broadwest forthcoming production, "The Imperfect Lover."

Paul Powell has been directing the production of "Twice Wed" at the Famous-Lasky studio, with R. J. Cullen as his assistant.

Miles Mander has been booked for "A Temporary Lady" (Minerva).

Collette Brettel has just finished work with screen plays in a Grand Guignol subject.

Fred Hearn has also been "Grand-Guignoling" for Screenplays.

Phillip Anthony has just completed his second film with Stoll's.

Marie Minetti has appeared already in two Grand Guignol (Screenplays).

J. Denton Thompson appears as "Wullie" in "Christie Johnson" (Broadwest).

Hubert Willis is working with Stoll on "The Hound of the Baskervilles."

Robert Vallis has been engaged for an important part in "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (Stoll).

Cyril Smith is assistant to W. P. Kellino, who is producing "The Autumn of Pride" for Gaumont.

Catina Campbell plays female lead in the Stoll picture, "The Hound of the Baskervilles."

Grace Rose is playing the part of the bride in the Kenelm Foss Production, "Cherry Ripe."

Jermaine Berger is now cranking the camera for Maurice Elvey's "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (Stoll).

Bert Darley arrived in London on June 13 from Holland, where he has been playing in "Laughter and Tears," for Granger-Binger. He commences work in "Too Many Cooks," at once, for Minerva.

Annette Benson has already been engaged for a leading part in "A Temporary Lady," which Adrian Brunel intends to produce for Minerva so soon as "Too Many Cooks" is finished.

Artistes are asked to register their names with the re-organised company of the Gliddon-D'Eynecourt Productions. Address: 52, Shaftesbury Avenue.

Evelyn Brent has just returned to Granger-Binger's Haarlem studios from Venice, where she has been playing for exteriors in "Laughter and Tears."

G. Pauli is the photographer of "Christie Johnson," and is now engaged on the laboratory work in connection with this Broadwest film.

A. E. Coleby has been working on "The Fifth Form of St. Dominic's" which he is producing at J. B. Davidson's Walthamstow studios, for Granger.

Marjorie Hume is about to finish her engagement on the Famous-Lasky British Producers' stock company, and is to make a big contract with another leading company.

Malvina Longfellow has gone to Shoreham to work on the Progress film, which Sydney Morgan is producing. She then goes to Naples to play Lady Hamilton, in "The Life of Lady Hamilton." She has been engaged for "Nell Gwynne" and "Vanity Fair," which are to follow, "The Life of Lady Hamilton."

ARTISTES TO ORGANISE

But, as you very truly say, the thing that matters is that the picture should be "played by people who look and act as if they are what they are supposed to be." The artist is often a mere automaton in the hands of the producer, being merely required to convey on to the film precisely what is in the producer's mind at the moment, and though, as you further remark, "many film artistes are recruited from the stage," it is obvious that in a very large number of cases such artistes are not necessary, as that type of person required by the producer can readily be found elsewhere. The supply is practically unlimited, because except for the important characters very little genuine ability appears to be needed. On the other hand, a performer in the theatre or on the variety stage must be endowed with some amount of ability; must also have some training as well as considerable experience before earning anything like the salaries that the very youngest and inexperienced do in motion pictures. Again, the A.A. and possibly the V.A.F. may find it desirable some day to declare a "closed shop." It would be futile for any organisation of screen artistes to even dream of a closed shop. No closed shop could ever prevent a producer including in his picture a scene, say, of a society crowd in Bond Street or a crowd of savages in Timbuctoo. The economic conditions alone would preclude the engagement of a crowd from any organisation to represent Bond Street habitues when the material is ready at hand free of charge.

In my opinion, therefore, nothing short of an association independent of the V.A.F. or A.A., devoted entirely and solely to the one class, could ever hope to include in its membership all those people who are daily swelling the ranks and seeking fame and fortune as screen artistes; and in any case I doubt its obtaining sufficient support from the rank and file to enable it to achieve its purpose.

A. HARDING STEERMAN.

SUNLIGHT ARC EQUIPMENT.

❖ ❖ ❖

LATEST TYPE OF
STUDIO
AND PORTABLE GENERATING PLANT, UP TO 150 H.P.

Enquiries invited for Hire or Purchase.

❖ ❖ ❖

DUNCAN WATSON & CO.,
SPECIALISTS IN MODERN STUDIO LIGHTING,
62, Berners Street, London, W.1.

T elephone: MUSEUM 2830 (3 lines. Telegrams: KATHODE, LONDON.

JACKSONVILLE, New Orleans, Miami, St. Augustine are full of kinema people in the winter, but these companies usually surround stars of magnitude, stars of immense drawing possibilities, who specify their intention of sojourning in Florida during some weeks in the winter, and it is well for the harassed executive if he makes no objection. I have seen Oriental stories done in New York studios with great success. Palms are easily obtainable, there is plenty of sand about and a stray camel or two can always be picked up or kept on the premises, if desired.

The production of all interior stories in the winter is an ever present means of economy. Stories of this character should be prepared beforehand, and the interior pictures can easily be equalised with the exterior one taken at the proper season, and thus balance the production. The annual "winter trip" is becoming somewhat overworked. I see no reason why, because a famous novelist described a scene between two characters as occurring outside, that same scene cannot be enacted inside, with proper and logical transposition. The principal thing to do is to secure the drama of the meeting or the action, irrespective of the locale.

The British Artiste

This brings us to the English artiste. Is it a fact that the English artiste is not liked on the Continent and in America? If so, why is it and how is it that some of the greatest artistes in America on stage and screen are Englishmen? Cannot English artistes of this calibre portray dramatic parts as well in England as in America? Some have said they went to America because of the salaries they received. What difference does it make how much a producer pays a man, so long as that man brings in to him correspondingly large profits. An artiste's fame and salary are questions of a week, a year. An artiste springs up overnight in America. Money is spent upon him lavishly, corresponding profits are realised because a producer must grasp and utilise an artiste while he may, as the favour of the public is fickle and fleeting. A motion picture enterprise is a matter of quick action, a matter of quick development, while a commercial enterprise of magnitude is a matter of conservative investment and gradual and sure growth. It is in the nature of things. At this moment, in the City of London, there are more unique characters to the square inch than any three cities in the world. I have seen men in London selling matches, sweeping crossings, who, in America, could earn four pounds a day as types alone.

Potential Chaplins.

To-day there are Charlie Chaplins in London if only sought for. Again, I say, that an enterprising agent can pick more types out of London than any three cities in the world, because London produces types of characters never seen anywhere else. Charles Dickens utilised them and won himself immortal renown, yet we never see them on the screen. Why? Other English novelists have utilised them, described them, word-painted them until the world has loved them all, yet the kinema producer apparently does not know of their existence.

Returning again to the ability of the

EXPANSION

Some Opinions on Its Necessity

by ADRIAN JOHNSON

(Continued from last week.)

English artiste: Suppose a strong man is suffering under terrible stress. Would he rave and rant and tear his hair, if he were a strong man? No. His agony would find expression in repression, which is the truest form of dramatic art and one in which the English artiste absolutely excels. Anyone can tear his hair, bite his monogram upon the furniture, demolish the chandelier and wreck the pictures, but it requires an artiste to stand in front of a camera and convey an agonised emotion quietly and with repression, thus proving the control of a strong man instead of the hysteria of a sentimental weakling. In these respects the English artiste is paramount. In my estimation the English artiste has all the sentimentality of the Latin without the Latin's exaggerated mode of expression. Since interest is always created by character contrast, the English artiste should be particularly valuable in countries where character studies are sought and human life drama constantly finds expression. However, the Continental markets are not the objects of extreme interest and speculation on the part of producers, because these markets are comparatively small in their financial returns.

Stage or Screen?

In America great stage artistes have temporarily deserted the theatre to take contracts in the films. Later, they have returned again to the theatre and found their value enhanced. I need only quote the cases of John Barrymore, Elsie Ferguson and others. Is it not a fact that when the time of an artiste is divided between the stage and the kinema, because of a division of mental interest, a comparatively poor performance will be given in each? Can an artiste play two rôles at once? Can any man or woman do two things at once, each of which requires concentration, interpretation and undivided attention, and do them correctly? Why is it that English artistes will not, as producers say, take contracts in the kinema? Is it because, as some have said, they will be banned by West End Managers, or is it because the salaries offered by the producer do not interest them? Can a popular English artiste be banned by any manager considering the absolute and wonderful devotion shown by the English public to its favourites?

Best are British.

It is a fact that some of the hand-somest and most cultured men in existence are on the English stage, men whom women would flock to see in the kinema, for women, after all is said and done, make largely for the success of any dramatic or kinema production. The great success of Wallace Reid in America is due to the constant interest taken in him by female kinema devotees all over the world. If William Farnum, Douglas Fairbanks and Elsie Ferguson deserted the stage for the screen, why cannot certain popular and accomplished English artistes do the same with corresponding profit to themselves and the producer? Why cannot they devote their brains and personalities to an industry which, in this country, cries for expansion, and be seen by millions instead of thousands and earn five times the money? In the case of a female artiste: A woman is a sensitive and temperamental organisation, and if she is dragged between a studio and a theatre for four or five weeks at a time, can she give her best efforts to either?

The Way to Success.

What is the open sesame to SUCCESS in any line of endeavour?—WORK. In the Victor Studio at 48th Street and 10th Avenue in New York, I have seen an ambitious Irish-American girl, who was being featured in "Checkers," work all night, until her clothing stuck to her, wet with perspiration. This happened in August, and to those who know New York in a hot August nothing remains to be said. In the Biograph studio in New York I have seen artistes working, with the grease paint dripping off their faces and pausing every five minutes to make themselves up again, and a great many of them were women. I have seen an American film cutter work for forty-eight hours on a stretch cutting a film that had to be released quickly. He worked until his feet became swollen, and he sat there with newspapers wrapped around them, falling asleep now and then, but continuing at his task. I have seen technical staffs work in Fort Lee studios for two days and nights continuously, falling asleep against the wings now and again, having sandwiches and coffee, but the "set" was up for the producer next day. The manuscript of "Romeo and Juliet" was done in four days, and the producer made the story in seventeen working days. This was done in order that the Fox production might be released ahead of the Metro production of the same name, which was accomplished, and the story was tremendously successful. I have seen a certain American executive being shaved in the barber chair in his office, with five people around him discussing a scenario. Is there any line of comparison to be drawn between these things and the success of American pictures? Of course, such procedure is drastic, but it comes under the heading of SUCCESS. Success is not easily achieved.

The business of amusing and entertaining people is the most serious business in the world. More disappointments, more heartaches, more broken hearts occur in this business than in any. Men think, study, lie awake at night trying to evolve a new angle to a story, and then they sometimes fail miserably. This business cannot be considered as a vacation. It is commercial, systematic, and not a business in which success is won by accident. It is a business of long hours, broken engagements, sudden calls, peculiar and complicated tasks. It is a business where men are very fond of "passing the buck" or shifting their own mistakes on to the shoulders of others. It is a business where temperament, diverse character, peculiarity must be capitalised by an executive who understands human life and character. It is the most interesting business in the world, and the hardest, because each and every day the business contains new problems.

(To be concluded.)

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for Kinematograph Productions. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

WHAT THE PRODUCER WANTS

Robert E. MacAlarney's Advice to Screen Aspirants

Robert Emmet MacAlarney, the Famous-Lasky producer, and Bannister Merwin, the British scenario writer and producer, recently gave addresses to the Society of Women Journalists, with Frances G. Knowles-Foster in the chair, under the heading, "The Film the Public Really Wants." The addresses were informative and interesting, though not on the subject stated.

Miss Knowles-Foster, in introducing the speakers, said that at present writers wasted a great deal of time composing film stories in one way when the film producers wanted them another way. The writers for the film were faced with many practical and artistic difficulties, and she hoped that they would get helpful hints from the two speakers, who had practical knowledge of what was wanted.

Need for "Saleable" Films.

Robert Emmet MacAlarney, after pointing out that he was himself an old newspaper man, said that "pictures" (meaning by the word the industry of making films) was a practical carpentering trade. Producers could not wait till inspiration came. Americans did not really pretend to know everything about pictures. America was really a very humble nation, always willing to learn. He himself had for some time been trying to think in terms of Great Britain.

He believed in the principle that a writer (unless he were actually a genius) must face the fact that, if his writings would not sell, he might just as well not write at all. Writing was a practical profession, like the law, for instance, and he would abolish the dilettante writers who stood between earnest writers and the people who pay for their work.

What Does the Public Want?

Nobody knew in theory what was a good picture. One simply learnt by experience, and even then one was sometimes wrong. What he was going to say was based on his experience during a few years with a good firm of picture makers. They never returned even the shabbiest script without feeling heavy responsibility. Nobody knew exactly what sort of pictures the public wanted. It wanted decent, dramatic, worth-while films, and so did producers.

Films were a commodity which had to be sold in bulk. They were an artistic commodity in the second place. Dealers in this commodity who supplied shoddy goods should be put out of business. Producers did not wish to lower public taste or welfare. They tried to make a hard medium.

There was a prejudice against period or costume productions, and they were not the wisest kind of work for a tyro, though a distinguished writer (who quite naturally has a great advantage over the tyro) might be successful with such stories.

The Best Form of Script.

No definite answer could be given as to what form a script should take. Any advice given now might be false six months hence. The lecturer could only make clear the present prevailing trend.

If a full scenario were submitted to him, he had to read it from seven to ten times before he could conscientiously assure himself of its possibilities. He, therefore, preferred merely a synopsis—containing the skeleton, the heart, and the vertebrae.

This synopsis should never be less than 5,000 words.

Adaptation he considered a waste of time for a tyro, who should write original fiction, and present it in story form.

Any motion picture firm would be willing to read such stories in a friendly way, but always with an eye, not only as to whether they would make films which would be artistically effective, but also as to whether the films would have an effective sale. Otherwise there would be no picture firms to pay for the stories. Picture people were just normal people in a business which had to be put on a paying basis.

A Constant Demand.

He would not advise writers to take up the writing of film stories if it were not that he was sure that pictures were here to stay. They were the fourth dimension in fiction writing, the first being short stories, the second novels, and the third stage drama. By means of pictures one country can be brought to the mind of another country in a way which was impossible by newspapers or books.

He was heart-broken at the wasted effort that for years had been expended in writing unpractical things for the films; but if writers would stick it, and learn, there were prospects of many successes and great satisfaction in working through a new medium. Producers were in earnest, and they only wanted to be approached by people who took them in earnest.

Prices—in America.

Asked what a producer would pay for the synopsis of an original story, Mr. MacAlarney said that in America he would pay an unknown writer who did not name a price two or three thousand dollars, which would include all film rights, but not stage or publishing rights. So that the writer might still adapt the story for the stage. Producers did not pay royalties, except to some celebrated writers. As to the type of story required, it should be dramatic, interesting, human, and as nearly universal as it could be made.

Bannister Merwin then spoke on the situation in England. He said that years ago two well-known playwrights had tried writing scenarios from studying films simply in the cinemas. The resulting continuity was only fair. They were suffering from the impressions made by the vividness of the new medium, and were overwhelmed by the apparent value of the things which to those in the producing business were merely commonplace. Since then they had studied technique, and perhaps they could write for the film straight into continuity form instead of in a synopsis.

British Demands.

Ordinary writers, however, who had anything to offer British film producers could only offer it in synopsis form—from 4,000 to 5,000 words. The writing of this condensed synopsis was an art in itself, the writer having to make the producer see his many ideas, the situations, and the characters.

He had seen synopses of well-known works written by the authors themselves, which would not have been considered by producers but for the author's name. Many good stories did not sell because the synopses were bad.

Ten years ago what was called "full script" used to be written for one-reel photo-plays; but it was seen that they were becoming too conventionalised. Then producers said that they did not need "full script"—that is, a scenario or continuity. Later the originally crude technique of characterisation and plot developed, and scenarios again became necessary; but it was found impossible for a tyro to write them.

The Ideal Scenario.

However, the future was with the writer who would write a full film play; he did not think it possible for a creative writer to get all his ideas into a synopsis. He only reached the public through the double medium of the continuity writer and the producer himself, who was almost certain to add frills.

At present, however, that was impracticable, and what the writer had to do was to write the most vivid and interesting synopses possible, and try to make producers see them.

It was impossible to write continuity without a knowledge of the studio, the detail being bewilderingly elaborate—far more so than for the stage, and writers would not be able to go into studios until they had shown that they had good film story ideas. The whole technique had made some progress during the last ten years, but we were still in the five-finger exercise state of development.

Perhaps the technique would become more complicated; but he believed that it would become simpler, as most arts did ultimately.

THE NEED FOR CAPITAL

by A. BOCCI

Money alone will not make a picture a success, but trying to produce with a measure in your hand, counting every farthing of expenditure will almost certainly prevent the financial success of any production.

To-day money must be spent if it is desired to compete with outside productions which are presented to the public. The condition of our Industry is due to a large extent to the limited confidence we have secured from the Capitalists and Bankers. Almost always when a play, a revue, a musical comedy is to be produced there are people interested who put up their money willingly in the hope of a quick return, though often the investor, at the end of the run, finds himself disappointed. If a scheme were put forward for climbing to the moon, or visiting the depths of the ocean, or excavating gold in the mountains of the unknown, or digging diamonds in the river Styx, the promoters would find plenty of people prompt to subscribe willingly, and if the results were disastrous, no one would complain; it would be attributed to bad luck.

But if someone presents a scheme for securing capital for film production, there is no money forthcoming.

The root of the trouble is the lack of confidence which the investing public has in our Industry, and the consequence is that the public are losing the opportunity of making this wonderful art a great investment for the nation.

America boasts that the film Industry is to-day the third power of her industrial market, and she is quite correct. Her films are penetrating into every market and deriving profit in every country.

But—there is a but. . . . Money! The American market has confidence in the Industry, therefore the purse is opened freely. We have no faith, therefore it is sealed.

British productions, to be successful, must have perfection of technique, photography and acting. To acquire this, money must be spent. I agree that it is not necessary to throw away money merely for the sake of making a display of crowds, sets and furniture, but I do not agree that, having selected a subject that requires a large amount of capital, it should be done with a small outlay. If the set required is a desert scene, it is not good enough to go on the sands of Cornwall, plant a few artificial palms and try to deceive the public. If the set required is an ancient Florentine castle, it is not sufficient to plant it around a Gothic castle, because it is too expensive to go to a correct location. If an army of soldiers is needed it is absurd to use a few supers, close the lens in an iris and leave the rest to imagination.

Today the public will not submit to deception; it demands reality and perfection, and to obtain these it requires capital, capital, capital. When we get it we shall be able to achieve complete success.

Yet surely, amongst the great number of industrial investors in the country, there are sufficient to give the needed support to this great Industry.

L. BENJAMIN & CO.,

99, Middlesex St.,
Bishopsgate, E.1.'Phone
London Wall
7568.Kinematograph Costumier,
Naval & Military Outfitter

STUDIO FINANCE

NEW COMPANIES.

KENNETH GRAEME HILL SYNDICATE, LTD.—Private company. Registered May 5. Capital, £15,000 in 10,000 10 per cent. participating preference shares of £1 and 100,000 ordinary of 1s. each. To carry on the business of Kinematograph producers, exploiters and exhibitors of kinematograph and film subjects, etc., in the United Kingdom or elsewhere. The managing directors are :—S. T. Hosken, Warrington Lodge, King's Road, Richmond, Surrey; P. C. W. King, 31, Holford Square, W.C. Qualification: 500 ordinary shares. Secretary: F. K. Brownrigg. Solicitor: H. M. Smith, 48, Full Street, Derby. Registered office: 38, Regency House, Warwick Street, Regent Street, W.1.

ANGLO-ORIENTAL FILM CORPORATION, LTD.—Private company. Registered May 5. Capital, £7,000 in £1 shares. To adopt an agreement with J. Verity and exploit and carry on the kinema trade and industry in all its branches at home and abroad. The first directors are: J. W. Verity, Palace Hotel, Bloomsbury, W.C. (director of Moving Picture Exhibition of British Industries, Ltd.); E. E. Long, 21, Yarrell Mansions, Queen's Club Gardens, W. Kensington; A. S. Buckle, 36, St. George's Square, S.W. Qualification, £100. Secretary, G. Bell. Solicitor, H. N. B. Bryant, 188, Strand, W.C. Registered office: 16a, Regent Street, S.W.

SCOTT FILM CO., LTD.—Private company. Registered May 21. Capital, £500 in 480 ordinary shares of £1 each and 400 founders' shares of 1s. each. To carry on the business of kinematograph and general film producers and renters, etc. The first directors are: H. A. S. Kingswill, 33, Sinclair Gardens, West Kensington; J. E. Williams, 222, Broomwood Road, Clapham, S.W. Secretary: A. Bauret. Registered office: 18, Charing Cross Road, W.C.

F. D. M. SYNDICATE, LTD.—Private company. Registered May 25. Capital, £1,000 in £1 shares. To develop the kinematograph industry in the United Kingdom or abroad. The subscribers (each with 100 shares) are: R. V. Burnett, A.R.I.B.A., 18, Redcliffe Gardens, S.W.10, architect; Count De Fernandez, 25, Wymering Mansions, W.8. The first directors are to be appointed by the subscribers. Remuneration as fixed by the company. Solicitors: Downer and Johnson, 426, Salisbury House, London Wall, E.C.2. Registered office: 28, Regent Street, W.1.

HARLEY SYNDICATE, LTD.—Private company. Registered May 28. Capital, £15,000 in £1 shares. To take over the business of theatre and music-hall proprietors and managers, producers of stage and other plays, kinematograph films, etc. The provisional directors are: R. C. Leach, 10, St. Helens Place, E.C.1, solicitor; F. H. March, 66, Mount Road, New Malden, Surrey, solicitor's clerk. Remuneration, £50 each per annum. Secretary: J. G. Crisp. Solicitors: Ralph C. Leach and Co., 10, St. Helen's Place, E.C.2. Registered office: 28, Wellington Street, Strand, W.C.2.

MORTGAGES, CHARGES AND SATISFACTIONS.

WELSH, PEARSON & CO., LTD.—Deposit dated April 27, 1921, charged on 41 and 45, Craven Park, Willesden, to secure all moneys due or to become due from company to Barclay's Bank.

CAIRNS TORQUAY FILM CO., LTD.—Mortgage dated May 19, 1921, to secure all moneys not exceeding £7,000, which the mortgagees may have to pay under their guarantee charged on benefit of a certain agreement. Holders: C. M. Myott, 8, Strand, Torquay, and others.

DEVELOPMENT AND AFTER TREATMENT OF NEGATIVE

by HARRY J. COWARD

The importance of skilful handling of negative in development and after is a fact that is not always realised to the full extent. The quality of a picture can be made or marred in the laboratory; in fact, it is a department that cannot receive too much attention.

Negative taken in the studio by artificial light, and that taken outside by daylight, require very different treatment in the developing bath, and I have seen negative, if not ruined, at any rate taken well along that road in the hands of a man who was not absolutely up to studio work.

The popular idea is to develop negative until the image is well through on the back, and although this may apply fairly well to stock exposed in natural light, it is a fatal mistake to use the same rule for interiors. Negative taken in artificial light gathers density and becomes "hard" much sooner than that exposed in daylight.

I have always found it best to stop development as soon as the principal portion of the picture can be faintly seen on the back. Now, in studio work, the principal portion is usually the face, and if the scene has been properly lighted, and the laboratory worker "goes for" the face, the result on the screen will be right, but if the "well out on the back" rule is carried out, the result is a hard, "chalky" picture that is painful to look at. It is always best to keep negative on the soft side, and a formula selected accordingly. The following is a good one, that I have used with good results:—

Metol	6 ozs.
Soda sulphite ...	12 lb.
Hydroquinone ...	1½ "
Soda carbonate ...	18 "
Pott. bromide ...	4 "
Water	55 gals.

All the chemicals should be absolutely pure, and should be dissolved in the order given. It is an excellent all-round bath, and keeps well.

With exterior work the development may be taken further, as the negative "fixes out" more than does interior, and allows for greater latitude in development.

Another point to watch is the dark-room assistant. He will sometimes, instead of breaking at indications as given by punches, try to get a 400 ft. roll on to three frames, and probably get a light effect sandwiched between quite different exposures, and the man who is developing is in a fix, for he has to compromise, and one part gets a little too much and the other too little, and the framefull has lost something in quality.

There should be perfect understanding between the camera-man and the developer, and a system of punch marks arranged so that the laboratory knows instantly what two punches mean, that three is something else, and so on.

With regard to after treatment, negative suffering from incorrect exposure on development can be greatly improved by the skilful use of intensifiers and reducers. A badly over-exposed negative should be taken almost as far as it will go, even though it looks much too black, and then reduced in Farmer's reducer, Pott. ferrocyanide and hypo, which every laboratory hand has used. This is far better than stopping development, which would result in a flat "muddy" picture.

Correctly exposed but over-developed negative, or from any other cause too hard, can be altered wonderfully by the use of ammonium persulphate reducer, which attacks the denser portions and leaves the thin parts almost untouched, thereby giving a much softer effect. The ammonium persulphate can be used at a proportion of about 300 grains to the pint of water, and when reduction is complete the negative should be placed in a 5 per cent. solution of sulphite of soda. A few drops of sulphuric acid added to the persulphate solution will make the action more regular.

The solution should be made fresh at time of use. There are some good textbooks containing these and many other useful formulas, notably the Kinematograph Year Book and the British Journal Almanac, both well worth the small sum charged for them. In conclusion, all tanks, etc., should be thoroughly cleaned at frequent intervals, and should be fitted with covers, and always remember that the negative developing is just as important as the actual taking, and a little slip may mean a costly retake.

YOUR CORNER

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

I have just been reading an account of the under-rated value of the screen author in your Trade paper, and I feel bound to agree with you, as everyone else must. The encouragement the screen author receives in this country is non-existent. An author may write a good original story and submit it to a company, or a dozen, but it is usually returned or ignored. He sends it to the States; there they recognise the soundness of the story and accept it forthwith. Naturally, the author is not going to bother with English concerns, no matter how British he is, after this kind of experience.

I am now writing a thoroughly English drama around the beautiful old English house and estate at Ashton Court, the Ministry of Pensions Hospital, where I am unfortunately resident owing to the war. I shall give about two English film concerns the opportunity of accepting the play. If neither of these do so then away it goes to the States.

I have had several interviews during the course of last year with some of the supposedly best qualified men in the Trade, and it is the same story every time; no chance for new writers. There is by far better stuff in the new writers for the photoplay than there ever was in the old.—Frank H. C. Wharton.

THANKS!

Congratulations upon the first issue of the Studio. There are great possibilities in the future of the paper.—Denison Clift.

The new journal I consider one of the most representative I have so far read.—Gerald de Beaurepaire.

KENMA

The "Star" of Greaseless Paints

Kenma is the only greaseless paint, and is the perfect substitute for grease paint. It is much more easily applied than grease paint, and is easier to get off. It enables the user to make up quickly, without discomfort.

Kenma adheres with perfect natural-looking evenness. It never cakes. It is sufficiently opaque to obliterate all skin blemishes such as freckles, etc. Kenma gives much better photographic results than are possible with grease paints.

With Kenma you can "work over" the make-up—that is, you can rectify accidental smudges without removing the entire make-up.

Kenma can be removed instantly with soap and water. It will not cause the familiar spots that ordinary grease paints make on clothing.

Supplied in four colours—white, pale yellow, medium yellow and pink, in collapsible tubes, price 1/3 and 2/6.

KENMA

Eyebrow & Eyelash Black

Is as efficient as Kenma Greaseless Paint. In collapsible tubes, price 1/3.

It is 1. Easy to apply. 3. Does not "matt" on the lashes.
2. Easy to remove. 4. Promotes the natural growth of lashes.

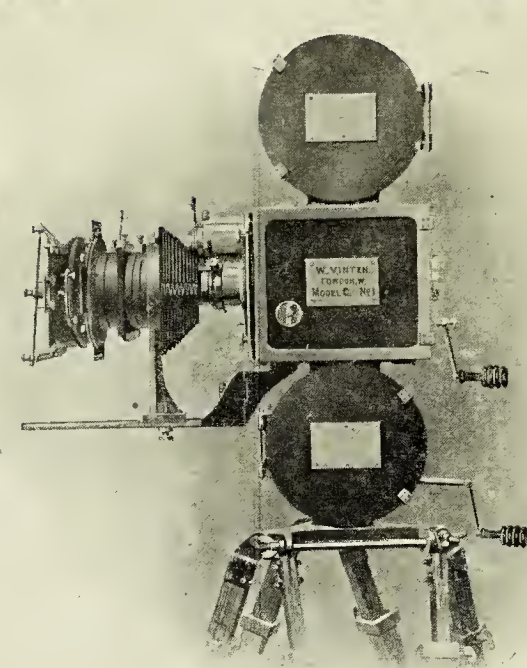

Kenma Greaseless Paint and Eyelash Darkener may be obtained from—Clarkson's, Harrods (Hairdressing Department), Shirecliff & Co., 66, Goldhawk Rd., Shepherd's Bush, or direct from the Manufacturers.

A FREE SAMPLE.

On request, we will send a Free Sample Tube of Kenma Greaseless Paint—write for it to day.

The
OATINE Company, Limited,
Oatine Buildings, Borough, London, SE1.

W. VINTEN

MODEL 'C'
STUDIO CAMERA

All Metal,
Four Lenses
Fade-out,
Three Speeds Patented
Sight Tube

89-91, Wardour St., W.1. Telephone :
Regent 2702

ADVERTISEMENT RATES
	One insertion	Six inser- tions (per insertion)	Thirteen inser- tions (per insertion)
Front Cover	£6 10 0	£6 0 0	£5 15 0
Back Cover	£6 0 0	£5 15 0	£5 10 0
Full page	£5 10 0	£5 7 6	£5 5 0
Half page	£3 0 0	£2 17 6	£2 15 0
Third page	£2 5 0	£2 2 6	£2 0 0
Quarter page	£1 15 0	£1 12 6	£1 10 0
Sixth page	£1 5 0	£1 2 6	£1 0 0
Eighth page	£1 0 0	18 9	17 6
Twelfth page	12 6	11 3	10 0
Per inch (single column) ...	5 0	4 6	4 0
(Blockmaking extra)

Editorial and Advertisement
Offices :
85, LONG ACRE, LONDON, W.C.2.

The MOTION PICTURE

studio

Telegrams : "Southernwood, Rand,
London."
Telephone : Gerrard 9870.

The Organ of all concerned in the production of British Motion Pictures.

MAKE CERTAIN of securing your copy regularly each week by placing an order with your local Newsagent or by becoming a regular Subscriber — in which case fill in the Order Form and post with remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER FORM

To The Manager,
"MOTION PICTURE STUDIO,"
85, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

Please send "THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO" to me at the following address for months, for which I enclose remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES :: ::

Months - 5/- 6 " - 10/-
Yearly - 20/-

Name.....

Address to which copies are to be sent :
.....
.....

WHO'S WORKING

The Pulse of the Studio

J. Stuart Blackton.

ADDRESS: Bush House, Aldwych.
FILM: "The Glorious Romance."
PRODUCER: J. Stuart Blackton.
STAR: Lady Diana Manners.
SCENARIST: Felix Orman.
STAGE: Finishing Casting.
ART DIRECTOR: Almon C. Whiting.
CAMERAMAN: Nicholas Mursuraca
TYPE: Seven-reel drama.

British and Colonial Kinematograph Co.

ADDRESS: Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
FILM: "The Puppet Man."
PRODUCER: Frank Crane.
STAR: Hugh Miller.
CAMERAMAN: J. Roseman.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Finishing.

Broadwest.

ADDRESS: Walthamstow and Esher
FILM: "The Imperfect Lover."
PRODUCER: Walter West.
ART DIRECTOR: Thomas Fleetwood.
CAMERAMAN: J. Franguelli.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "Christie Johnstone."
PRODUCER: Norman MacDonald.
STARS: Stewart Rome and Gertrude McCoy.
SCENARIST: W. G. Clifford.
CAMERAMAN: G. Pauli.
TYPE: Costume romance.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "Vi of Smith's Alley."
PRODUCER: Walter West.
STARS: Violet Hopson, Cameron Carr.
SCENARISTS: J. B. Bertram Brown, Charles Barnet.
CAMERAMAN: J. Franguelli.
TYPE: Domestic Drama.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

George Clark

ADDRESS: 41, Ebury Street, Victoria, S.W.1 (now working in Nice).
FILM: "The Bigamist."
PRODUCER: Guy Newall.
STARS: Ivy Duke and Guy Newall.
SCENARIST: Guy Newall.
CAMERAMAN: Bert Ford.
TYPE: Social Drama.
STAGE: Nearing Completion.

I. B. Davidson.

ADDRESS: Lea Bridge Road, Leyton.
FILM: "Fifth Form at St. Dominic's."
PRODUCER: A. E. Coleby.
SCENARIST: A. E. Coleby.
CAMERAMAN: D. P. Cooper.
TYPE: School story.
STAGE: Final Stages.

Famous Players-Lasky British Producers.

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington
FILM: "Twice Wed" (working title).
PRODUCER: Paul Powell.
STARS: Mary Gynne, David Powell.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: R. J. Cullen.
SCENARIST: Mary O'Connor.
ART DIRECTOR: Ivo Dawson.
CAMERAMAN: C. McDonnell.
TYPE: Social drama.
STAGE: Sixth week.

FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."

PRODUCER: Donald Crisp.
STAR: Donald Crisp.
STAGE: Third week.

Gaumont.

ADDRESS: Shepherd's Bush.
FILM: "The Autumn of Pride."
PRODUCER: W. P. Kellino.
STAR: Nora Swinburne.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Cyril Smith.
SCENARIST: Paul Roof.
CAMERAMAN: A. St. A. Brown.
TYPE: Five-reel country drama.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "Roses in the Dark."

PRODUCER: Captain Calvert.
CAMERAMAN: Basil W. G. Emmott.
STAGE: Just starting.

Harma.

ADDRESS: Limes Grove, Croydon.
FILM: (not titled).
PRODUCER: Bernard Dudley.
STARS: Marjorie Villis and James Knight.
CAMERAMAN: J. Mackenzie.
TYPE: Comedy Drama.
STAGE: Beginning.

Ideal.

FILM: "All Sorts and Conditions of Men."
PRODUCER: G. Treville.
STAR: Rex Davis.
SCENARIST: Colden Lore.
TYPE: Costume drama.
STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: "Sonia."
PRODUCER: Denison Clift.
STAGE: Casting.

Master Films.

ADDRESS: Weir House, Teddington.
FILM: "God in the Garden."
PRODUCER: Edwin J. Collins.
STARS: Arthur Pusey, Edith Craig, Mabel Poulton.
SCENARIST: Edwin J. Collins.
CAMERAMAN: Jack Parker.
TYPE: Comedy-drama.
STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: "The Marriage Lines."

PRODUCER: Wilfred Noy.
STAR: Barbara Hoff.
SCENARIST: Wilfred Noy.
CAMERAMAN: Theodore Thumwood.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Fourth week.

Progress.

ADDRESS: Shoreham.
FILM: "The Wooing of April."
PRODUCER: Sidney Morgan.
STARS: Pauline Johnson, Harold French and Ellis Jeffries.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
TYPE: Comedy-drama.
STAGE: Finished.

FILM: "Moth and Rust."

PRODUCER: Sidney Morgan.
STARS: Sybil Thorndyke, Malvina Longfellow, and Langhorne Burton.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Second week.

Seal.

ADDRESS: Prince's Studio, Kew Bridge.
FILM: "Dick's Fairy."

PRODUCER: Bert Wynne.

STARS: Hargreaves Munsell, Joan Griffith, and Albert Bruntford.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: John Wyndham.
SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.
CAMERAMAN: L. Protheroe.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Third week.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Criklewood.
FILM: "The Woman with the Fan."
PRODUCER: Rene Plaissetty.
STARS: Mary Massart, Alec Fraser and Cyril Percival.
CAMERAMAN: Jack Cox.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "The Prey of the Dragon."

PRODUCER: Martin Thornton.
STARS: Victor McLaglan, Harley Braban and Gladys Jennings.
CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Beginning.

FILM: "The Pointing Finger."

PRODUCER: George Ridgewell.
STARS: Milton Rosmer, Madge Stuart.
CAMERAMAN: Al Moses.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "Gerald John Regan."

PRODUCER: Harold Shaw.
STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "The Hound of the Baskervilles."

PRODUCER: Maurice Elvey.

STARS: Eille Norwood, Catina Campbell.
SCENARIST: W. J. Elliott.
CAMERAMAN: Jermaine Berger.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Third week.

H. W. Thompson.

ADDRESS: Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow.
FILM: "Cherry Ripe."
PRODUCER: Kenelm Foss.
STARS: Mary Odette, Lionelle Howard, Roy Travers.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Jack Miller.
SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.
ART DIRECTORS: Tom Gilson and Grace Rose.
CAMERAMAN: Frank Canham.
TYPE: Five-reel social drama (Mid-Victorian).
STAGE: Assembling.

Welsh Pearson.

ADDRESS: Craven Park, Willesden, N.W.
FILM: "Squibs."
PRODUCER: George Pearson.
STARS: Betty Balfour, Fred Groves, Hugh E. Wright.
SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.
CAMERAMAN: Emile Lauste.
TYPE: Comedy.
STAGE: Nearing completion.

Zodiac.

ADDRESS: Windsor Studios, Catford.
FILM: "Walter's Winning Ways."
STAR: Walter Forde.
TYPE: Two-reel comedies.
STAGE: Second week.

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Arfilodre, Hyde, London.

AFRICAN FILMS PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Killarney, Johannesburg, South Africa.

ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmopho, Ealux.

BRITISH ART FILMS, CO., LTD., Princess Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford. 'Phone: Chiswick 574.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PICTURES, LTD., Tuilerie Street, Hackney Road, London, E.2. 'Phone: Dalston 3454.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Portsmouth Road, Esher, Surrey. 'Phone: Esher 325.

CAIRNS FILM CO., Watcombe Hall, Torquay. 'Phone: Torquay 886—Cairnsfilm, Torquay.

CENTRAL FILM PRODUCING CO., Eel Pie Island, Twickenham.

DAVIDSON, I. B., 58, Lea Bridge Road, Leyton, E.10. 'Phone: Walthamstow 634.

FAMOUS PICTURES, LTD., Woodlands, Whetstone, London. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

GAITY PRODUCTIONS, Wadden New Road, Croydon.

B. P. FILMS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, London, W.4. 'Phone: Streatham 2652.

BRITISH ACTORS' FILM CO., Melbourne Road, Bushey, Herts. 'Phone: Bushey Heath 259—British Actors.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer Smith 2090-1-2—Prolougue, 'Phone London.

HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16, Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth, Waltham.

IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Idefilms, Borehamwood.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MIDLAND ACTORS' FILM CO., 76, Broad Street, Birmingham.

NEW AGENCY FILM CO., 115a, Ebury Street, London, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 6856.

PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Criklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpie, Crikle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1903—Success Films, Liverpool.

TORQUAY & PAIGTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paigton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & CO., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.

The Biggest Successes have BENJAMIN COSTUMES PERSONAL SUPERVISION GUARANTEED in every detail. 'Phone—London Wall 7568.

The G.E.C. Studio Arc Lamp

(Patents applied for.)

THE new G.E.C. Studio Arc Lamp marks a distinct advance in Film Production. The Lamp is of the semi-enclosed type, and the high voltage long arc produced yields the highest possible actinic values, giving much superior photographic results.

Salient Features.

The mechanism chamber is placed level with the globe and behind the reflector, thus eliminating all daylight shadow of the mechanism. The heavy parts being placed low down top heaviness is eliminated, enabling the lamp to be fastened to a stand fairly high above the floor. The operating solenoid is placed at a good distance from the globe to give the long strike to the carbons which is essential for long actinic arcs.

Simplicity of construction and easy accessibility to all parts, facilitating trimming, which can be carried out without disturbing the bottom carbon. Fitted with special clutch gear, arranged so that the weight of lamp grips the clutch to supporting tubes.

Weight reduced to minimum.

After extended critical tests an order has been placed for a large quantity by one of the leading British Studios.

PURE CARBONS ARE USED.

No poisonous fumes from flame carbons.

*Write for prices and particulars
:: of lamp and stands. ::*

G.E.C. STUDIO ARC LAMP.
Showing mechanism on level with globe.

The General Electric Co., Ltd.,

Head Office: MAGNET HOUSE, KINGSWAY, LONDON, W.C. 2.

Telephone: Regent 7050 (50 lines.)

Branches: Manchester, Glasgow, Birmingham, Newcastle, Cardiff, Dublin, Belfast, Liverpool, Leeds, Sheffield, Bristol, Swansea, Nottingham, Hull, Southampton, Cork, Aberdeen, Ipswich, Edinburgh, Dundee.

The MOTION PICTURE

Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 3.

Saturday, June 25, 1921.

FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH MOTION
PICTURES

GUY NEWALL

See page 14

MILTON ROSMER*Starring in*

"The Pointing Finger,"
 "A Woman of No Importance,"
 "The Amazing Partnership,"
 "Demos," "The Diamond Necklace,"
 "Belphegor the Mountebank,"
 "The Will," "The Twelve Pound
 Look," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

88, NEWMAN ST., W.1.

Phone - - - Museum 5145.

SIDNEY
L. EATON,

KINEMATOGRAPHER,

3, LEBANON PARK MANSIONS,
T W I C K E N H A M.Productions include:-

"Darby and Joan," "Westward Ho!"
 "Story of the Rosary," "Hobson's
 Choice," "Won by a Head," "Rodney
 Stone," "The Old Arm Chair," "Like-
 ness of the Night," "Croxley Master,"
 "Ships that Pass in the Night," etc., etc.

AT LIBERTY FOR
FIRST CLASS PRODUCTIONS.HUGH CROISEProducer.*Sole Adaptor and Producer
of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

Continuities.

My Continuities (originals or adaptations) are planned to smooth out all harassing
 mechanical details for the Director—leaving his brain and hands free for his job—
 direction.

HARRY HUGHES,Editing, Sub-Titling, Continuities,
47, Dean St., London, W.1.

Telephone: Regent 2592.

CAMERAMEN

You no doubt have some idea for the improvement of your Camera. Why not have it carried out by

W. VINTEN

The following are a few jobs
 recently executed:

Cut-off Attachments fitted to Cameras.
 Sight Tube fitted to inside box Camera.
 Lenses mounted, including long focus and Telephoto.
 SHUTTER FADE-OUT fitted to various Cameras.
 Masks Cut, Screens and Filters Mounted.
 Camera Masking altered, Steel Gates fitted, etc.

URGENT REPAIRS executed in a few hours by expert mechanics.

MAINTENANCE CONTRACTS
 ARRANGED.

Urbanora House
89-91, Wardour St., W.1

Telephone - - - REGENT 2702

CAMERA FOR SALE With Tripod
 New Model fitted with automatic indicator, showing amount of film used, direct focussing on film, magnificent lens, four film boxes, tripod has panoramic and tilting head. £36. Can be seen any time.

ILLUSTRATION ENTERPRISES,
 167, Wardour Street, W.1.
 Phone: Gerard 7789.

GEOFFREY H.
MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE,"
 "PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
 "SETTLED IN FULL,"
 "ALL THE WINNERS,"
 "WATCHING EYES," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
 26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

FOR SALE. Williamson's latest model
 Type 8 400 ft. boxes, Ross f3.5 Xpres, complete with Type 6 stand, absolutely brand new, cost £158. What offers.
 Box 501, MOTION PICTURE STUDIO,
 85, Long Acre, W.C.2.

ARTISTSHENDERSON
BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger
 to the Cross." Starring in
 "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's
 Love Story," "A Cigarette
 Maker's Romance."
 219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Now playing lead in
 "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" (Ideal).
 Open for offers. Manly
 Juvenile Leads.
 Address—The Old Manor
 House, E. St. Moseley.
 Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N.
FOLKER.

JUVENILE.
 Leads: London, Samuel-
 son, Ideal, Broadwest,
 etc. 103, Fowlers Walk,
 Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Demos," "Money,"
 "Miss Charity," "Knave of
 Diamonds," "The Knight
 Errant," "Haigh Serial,"
 "Love Maggie."
 4, Park Place, St. James, S.W.
 Regent 4060.

PHOTO
BLOCK

THIS SPACE
 TO LET
 £3 for 13 insertions, including cost of making block.

VICTOR McLAGLAN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman,
 Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road"
 and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES.
 LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs.
 NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc.

Carlton House, Kew
 Green, Kew, Surrey.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex. :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh
 Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

ANN TREVOR.

"Wuthering Heights,"

"Build thy House," "The Headmaster," "Daniel Deronda," etc.

148, AMHURST ROAD, HACKNEY.

Phone: Dalston 813.

ORDER YOUR COPY through your local newsagent, or fill in the Subscription Order Form on page 14.

ARTISTS.DICK WEBB

Lead GAUMONT,
MASTER PRODUCTIONS, etc.
180, Elmhurst Mansions,
Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

GORDON BEGG. Char. Straight, Com.
197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph. Batt. 1770 or 21.

CLIVE BROOK

INVITES OFFERS.
24, Hyde Park Square, W.2. Padd. 2868.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT.
Disengaged July 4. 'Phone: Walthamstow 938.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,

15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.
'Phone: Hornsey 1784.

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE.

Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
62, Foxburne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

DALTON SOMERS,

Author, Actor,
Producer,
114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

HARDING STEERMAN,

Characters of Distinction,
56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,

24, Cleveland Road,
Barnes, S.W.13.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,

Character Parts,
57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

PRODUCERS.BERT HALDANE,

14a, Little Ealing Lane,
:: South Ealing ::

'Phone: Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
"The Face at the Window."

Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON

Producing for Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd.

Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,

Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT
GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE
LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and
"CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."

Five years producer in America.

Address: 1A, DENBIGH PLACE, VICTORIA.

ADRIAN BRUNEL,

Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone: 5280 Paddington).

PRODUCERS.S. L. GLENISTER

Professionally Major Comnenus-Palæologus.
PRODUCER, TECHNICAL & ART DIRECTOR.
"Under the Crescent," "Dumb Girl of Portici,"
"Campbells are Coming," "Where are My Children?"
etc., for UNIVERSAL. "The Arab," for LASKY.
"Less than Dust," for ART-CRAFT, etc., etc. Open
for Engagement. Address: 25, Randolph Crescent,
W. 9. 'Phone: Paddington 3819.

GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer
THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.

Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,
Hoe St, Walthamstow, E.17.

Mr. ALBERT WARD,

Producing and Adapting for Samuels in, Worton Hall, Isleworth.

SCENARIO WRITERS.COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,
:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,

Kinedramatist,
Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

CRISPIN HAY,

c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

PUBLICITY.F. J. STANDERWICK,

Photographer.

I am making a speciality of Catering for
Film Artists. 'Phone for appointment—
Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio
—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
W.14.

FRANK J. WOOLF,

"The Pithy"

(No prizes given for missing word.)
Still somewhat safe from starvation by jovial journalistic jests for B. & C. Films, Kene m Foss, etc

Address: B. & C. Studios.

EDWARD BAIRD,

Publicity.
172, Goldhurst Terrace, N.W.6.

STUDIO MANAGERJOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—
B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,
Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
Telephone: W'stow 364.

COSTUMIER.W. CLARKSON,

Costumier and Wigmaker,
41/43, Wardour Street, W. 'Phone: Gerr. 612.

CAMERAMEN.JOHN J. COX

44, Barrowgate Road,
:: Chiswick, W.4. ::

'Phone: Chiswick 294.

Cameraman for Mr. Rene Plaissetty,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD

Cameraman—MASTER FILMS,
TEDDINGTON.

Latest Productions, "HARD CASH," "STELLA," "MISS CHARITY."

EDWIN DAY

Motion Picture Photographer,
12, Archer Street, Picca-
dilly Circus, London, W.1.

Telephone: Gerrard 780.

Telegrams: "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON

Thelton House, Cambolt
:: Road, Putney Hill. ::

Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN

"GAUMONT'S,"

105, King's Road,
Kingston-on-Thames.

FRANK CANHAM

Cameraman—

ASTRA FILM CO., LTD.

Permanent Address: Royal Forest
Hotel, Chingford, Essex.

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT

GAUMONT,

:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::
Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT

Expert Cameraman.

"The Better 'Ole," "Her Benny,"
etc., etc.

2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.

'Phone: Streatham 1969.

ALFRED H. MOSES

Chief Cameraman—

GEORGE RIDGWELL PRODUCTIONS
STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS

Formerly Chief Cameraman of Norma
Talmadge, Thanhouser, B. & C., etc.

THIS SPACE TO LET.

£2 10 0 for 13 insertions.

'PHONE

Bramlins

MUSEUM 4038, 4039

FOR

Everything You Require for
YOUR PRODUCTION.

YOUR STORY
YOUR STAFF
YOUR CAST
YOUR LOCATIONS.

We make it Easy for You
to Make Your Pictures.

*American Agents:
Edward Small Inc.,
1493 Broadway,
New York, U.S.A.*

*Telegrams :
Bramlifilms
(Westcent),
London.*

Bramlins

241, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.C.2

Editorial and Advertisement
Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 3.

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

June 25, 1921.

Riding for a Fall.

LAST week we had a few things to say about cheap production. There is more to come. And the more is rather worse. In a few cases the system has been adopted of booking films, before production, on the strength of their titles. Having secured all the possible bookings—for there are exhibitors who will contract to take pictures in these extraordinary circumstances—the company casts up how much is coming in and cuts its cloth—or rather its film—accordingly. The result is—but why continue? You can see the result in several studios and in the expressions of disgust from producers and artistes who have to work under such conditions.

The Last Result.

HOW will such a system end? In the first place, the producer almost certainly undertakes to make a picture without knowing that such conditions exist. He soon finds all his needs and requests reduced by seventy-five per cent. He asks for bread, and he doesn't even get a stone. But he makes some kind of a picture. Then the publicity departments let loose their superlatives and eventually there is a Trade show. The critics, eager to help forward the formation of a real British producing Industry, gloss over the defects in some cases. But the producer, the artiste, and finally the public, KNOW. And the result will be that these incompetent and short-sighted, spoilt celluloid organisations will go out of business after about a couple of years, or else they will reform . . . if the leopard can change his spots.

A Reply but No Answer.

IN the previous issue a contributor had some hard things to say about the producer, and especially the producer of adapted novels—adapted mainly for title or author's name. "Story? What does that matter? The public doesn't go to the kinema to see the pictures. It goes to see book titles and authors' names." But that is beside the immediate point. We anticipated, as we said in a comment on J. Cobb's article, that the opinions there expressed would not be allowed to pass unchallenged. They have not. But the reply from Norman MacDonald is not an answer on a single point. It is an outburst of annoyance and an attack on the contributor. Surely somewhere there is a producer who takes his art sufficiently seriously to write a reasoned reply to the criticisms which are daily levelled at the existing methods. Even if he were only able to write an apologia pro sua vita.

extent. Such a proceeding has been advocated in many quarters for a long time.

Colour and Production.

IF J. Stuart Blackton succeeds in taking his first British picture in colour it is not unlikely that other producers will follow the lead. Such a possibility opens wide avenues for the use of ornate sets, and it also would see the vanishing of crude scenery and properties. The use of colour, if it became anything like general—as it would undoubtedly do when it became possible to take and print coloured pictures without materially increasing their cost, would add a very real terror to the lives of those producing units which make anything do in the studio so long as it saves expense. No longer would it be possible to use bits of broomstick for candles and painted canvas for windows. They would have to build proper sets and use real "props," which would be a very good thing if it made impossible the production of factory junk.

What is Adaptation?

NOVELS are acquired more often than not for their title or the author's name alone. The story they

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"The Amazing Partnership" (Stoll) is a very good piece of straight production by George Ridgewell, from a workmanlike script. Probability is offended in some minor details, but in a frankly melodramatic production this is of less importance than in a film purporting to be serious drama, and the story interest and suspense value of E. Phillips Oppenheim's work is ably transferred to the screen. Gladys Mason and Milton Rosmer in the leads are notable for their lack of exaggeration and ease of method. Good photography and an effective choice of camera positions must be credited to Al Moses.

"The Place of Honour" (Stoll).—A good cast, clever photographer and skilful producer have conspired to make a picture that will be really popular. William J. Elliott's scenario of the Dell original is an instance of excellent continuity, and Sinclair Hill has shown himself a producer of undoubted merit. Hugh Buckler becomes, for the nonce, the "strong, silent man," and as such gives a convincing performance, while Madge White's work is beyond reproach.

"The Princess of New York" (Famous-Lasky).—Although there is nothing very original about the theme or the treatment, the pictures of the West-end and English countryside have a strong appeal, and they are presented with taste and considerable appreciation of the beautiful. J. Rosenthal's camera work is excellent, and the fifth scene is vigorously and convincingly carried out. Mary Glynn, in the name part, acts prettily, but has few chances of showing her powers. Ivo Dawson and Dorothy Fane are good.

A Studio Entente.

SOME months ago Rex Daris went to France to play in "Uncle Bernac," and was the only British artiste in the cast. The whole of the picture was made on the other side of the Channel, and now the compliment is being returned, for the same organisation is making another picture with a British story. Torn Gallon's "A Dead Man's Love." Most of the action takes place in London and the Provinces, and these parts of the picture are being made here, the B. & C. studios at Walthamstow being used for the interiors. Two British artistes are this time in the cast: Amy Verity and Bertram Burleigh. Such a process of picture making has much to recommend it, for if the results are reasonably good the film is sure of a circulation both here and in France. We should like to see some of the bigger organisations adopt this international system to some do not trouble about. And the poor devil who undertakes the adaptation frequently finds that there is nothing to adapt and makes some kind of story to which to hang the title. Then the critics, naturally, complain that there is not much connection between the novel and the film, and the reputation of the scenarist suffers, because he is not in a position to make clear the handicaps under which he worked. Now there is no reason why novels should not be adapted for the screen, providing the acid test in their choice is their story value. But while the old idea remains that names or title is all that matters; while producers do not realise that the public is not only becoming picture wise but resents the murdering of its reading matter to make five reels of spoiled celluloid, we shall continue to get alleged adaptations that are as much like photo plays as a sow's ear is like a silk purse. But perhaps the people responsible don't know the difference.!

BRITISH SCREEN BEAUTIES

I V O R Y D U K E

Who, with Guy Newall, will shortly be seen in the leading roles of two big productions—"The Bigamist" and "The Persistent Lovers"—each of which has been filmed in the south of France during the past six months. The pictures promise to be super-productions.

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

To some people appearances count for nothing, but with film artistes the reverse is the case. Their facial appearances very often determine the type of part they are destined to play. This can be a mixed blessing, and Ronald Power, who has hitherto rejoiced in the possession of a well-trimmed beard, à la Captain Kettle, has discarded the facial fungi, and is now creating a new type with just an ultra-military moustache. Ivo Dawson, also, has made a similar sacrifice, and, having finished his Famous-Lasky picture, he is now about to close with another offer. But this depends on how he will screen clean-shaven. Methinks that the price of success is exorbitantly high.

* * *

J. Stuart Blackton has now finished casting, I understand, and will start active production at the end of this week with Lady Diana Manners in the lead. By the way, it is interesting to note that Famous-Lasky (the American version) is working on "The Wild Goose," in which the heroine—played by Mary MacLaren—is named Diana Manners. Who is basking in reflected glory—Lady Diana or the Lasky heroine, I wonder?

* * *

There appears to be quite a craze among film artistes for making personal appearances at public functions. Vi Hopson, Stewart Rome, and several others have promised to go to the Leeds Gymkhana on July 2; Gerald Ames was one of the judges at the thirty-first annual competitions of the Children's Salon at the Connaught Rooms last Saturday; and Betty Doyle has been invited to make personal appearances at certain cinemas which are showing her latest release, "Little Dorrit." This is quite good publicity; there's nothing like getting on nodding terms with your public.

* * *

According to the Stoll Publicity Department, the Hon. Mrs. Astley played an important part in "A Dear Fool." This lady is a sister-in-law of Lord Hastings and her brother was Governor of Burma, "but she is not a Society woman who is taking up screen work just to while away the time." I ought to be relieved to hear this, but I cannot help thinking of the crowds of professional film artistes who I know are haunting agents and studios. The Hon. Mrs. Astley does not carry my judgment even when she announces a change of name to Vere Tyndale, nor even when she says: "In Society I shake hands with the King and Queen, but in front of the camera I am just an artist." Fancy shaking hands with the King! I am amazed—for more reasons than one.

* * *

A Correspondent, writing in the New Zealand Picture News, tries to prove that London is impossible as a producing centre. He explains that London is built on clay and lies very low (so do some Londoners, by the way), that it attracts all the fog there is for miles round. In view of the fact that the men from the Antipodes won the war, be it far from me to suggest that the writer is slightly out when he says: "I think some of the surrounding districts may eventually locate several big studios." That "may eventually" is decidedly rich, in view of the existence of the Famous-Lasky, Stoll, Broadwest, and numerous other studios.

* * *

I see that the cricketers at the Ideal studio have fought four battles on the playing fields of Elstree and registered three victories. While uncharitable folks are amazed that the Idealists should win three, I am more than amazed that they should lose one—which does not necessarily mean the same thing.

* * *

Rumour has it that a number of prominent firms are closing down, and we have heard the names of three of the leading producing concerns mentioned as likely to discontinue work. These firms have not yet made any statement, but even if they do close down things will not be so bad for the artiste

ON THE FLOOR WITH GEORGE TREVILLE

George Treville, who is working at the Ideal Studio on "All Sorts and Conditions of Men," is, of course, a Frenchman. Many years ago he filmed in this country, but returned to France, and this is his first British picture for many years.

At work Treville wears a resigned look, perhaps a symbol of his long experience in the cinema Trade. He gets through his work in a quiet way, and although he rehearses his artistes and takes as much care as any other producer we have seen, yet somehow he seems to get through the work quicker and without any long waits in between "shots."

In his quiet way he explains to the artiste exactly what he wants. But he will not have any acting, if a man is there for a certain part Treville will see that he lives the part, but he must not act—while Treville is on the floor.

Everyone is given a chance; he will tell a "crowd" what he wants. It is then up to the "crowd" to give him it. He allows them to walk about as they like in the picture, so long as they do not get in the way of the principal.

In extra long scenes he will use numbers, but very seldom does he resort to this method.

He does not interfere with his cameraman, who is given ample time to set the lights and "shoot" the scene. Treville just tells him what he wants, and it is left to the cameraman to get it.

Another thing about him is the friendly way he treats his artistes. There is none of the "I'm Mr. Producer" about Treville. He is there to help his artiste, and by this means gets the best out of him.

as some people believe. Work is shortly being started at Teddington on a few more episodes of the Haigh serial. Stuart Blackton commences work shortly; at the present moment the company is casting, and we believe the artistes for a big crowd scene have already been booked. Gliddon-D'Eyncourt productions is getting ready a five-reeler. Three other firms we could mention are shortly starting on five-reelers, and Alliance will also be ready to film another production in the course of a few weeks. So, on the whole, things are not nearly so black as they are painted. There are at present about thirty-five producing companies actually working in England, and many more will commence shortly. A glance at "Who's Working" at the end of this issue will reveal the healthy condition of the industry.

* * *

George Bernard Shaw says: "The films do not lack anything when the photographic work is good and the authors and producers are competent. Bad photography—for instance, the frequent recurrence of horribly over-exposed faces—ought to be easily curable. But authors and producers, if incompetent, are incurable, and usually horribly expensive." But will they admit it? Not Pygmalion likely!

* * *

One of the vices of which the average British artiste is guilty is being possessed of a poverty-stricken idea of the value of publicity. We repeatedly hear British players complaining of the amount of space given in the Press to American players, but they never pause to think that the reason is that the Americans go out of their way to keep the Press supplied with all kinds of news matter—good, bad, and indifferent. But it takes days of hard work to drag two words of news out of the average British player. And when these two words are obtained they are neither good nor indifferent. This week we have been informed that a certain leading lady here dropped a gold hairpin from her golden locks while working in the studio, and that the gilded pin has been sent to America, where it hangs framed in one of the large cinemas. And that is what they call publicity!

* * *

British players should realise that they cannot live without true publicity. It is to them the breath of professional life. The next thing to realise is that the Press does not view the news matter from the artiste's angle, but from the angle of its public, which means to say that every Press par must have real news value. And the smart publicity man can give a newsy twist to every bit of "dope" he turns out. The gold hairpin and the fabulous salary tales have been done to death. Let them rest in peace.

"MEGAPHONE."

Where they are and

Madge Stuart plays Lady Susan in "The Pointing Finger" (Stoll).

Harvey Braban plays the villain in "The Prey of the Dragon" (Stoll).

Gladys Jennings is the heroine in the Stoll production "The Prey of the Dragon."

Victor MacLaglan plays "The Dragon" in "The Prey of the Dragon" (Stoll).

Ronald Power is now concentrating on a new character type.

Norma Whalley is in the cast of "The Pointing Finger" (Stoll).

Mary Brough is playing an important part in "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" (Ideal).

Edwin J. Collins is just finishing "God in the Garden" for Masters.

Al Moses is photographing George Ridgewell's Stoll productions.

Renee Kelly is playing the leading female rôle in "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" for Ideal.

Walter Forde's second comedy has been started. It will be called "Walter Finds a Father" (Zodiac).

W. A. (Billy) Bowman has completed his contract with Zodiac and is shortly starting with another firm.

Billy Le Fre was mentioned as producer of the next Zodiac comedy. He is playing an important part in the film.

Milton Rosmer is now at work on the part of Rolleston in the Stoll picture "The Pointing Finger."

William Frost, the night watchman at the Stoll Studio, Surbiton, has just been awarded the Meritorious Service Medal by the King.

Martin Thornton is in the thick of his latest production for Stoll, "The Prey of the Dragon."

Ruth Mackay and Jane Grahame, wife and daughter of Eille Norwood, play with him in some of the Sherlock Holmes episodes.

Fred Thatcher has been playing the part of Francis Sutton in "The River of Stars" for Stoll.

C. H. Croker King has been playing the part of the Duke of Holderness in "The Priory School" for Stoll.

Edward R. Gordon will commence work on further episodes of the "Haigh Serial," which he is producing for Frederick White at Masters, almost immediately.

D. P. Cooper has finished the photography of "The Fifth Form of St. Dominic's," which A. E. Coleby has just completed for Davidson.

Teddy Arundell has been provided with the part of Daniel O'Shea in "The Pointing Finger," which George Ridgewell is producing for Stoll at Cricklewood.

Eille Norwood has just completed the last of the fifteen episodes of "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" (Stoll), in which he has played the lead.

Jack Ross has just returned from Wales and is expecting to fix up shortly.

Teddy Day is on the free list just at the moment.

Geoffrey Wilmer is assistant to George Ridgewell, the Stoll producer.

Edmund Blake has finished producing "Flotsam" for Isle of Man Films at Manchester.

Johnny Reid is starring in "The Puppet Man," a circus story which B. and C. is just finishing in the Tyrol.

A. E. Coleby is nearing the end of his work as producer of "The Fifth Form at St. Dominic's" (Davidson) now being cut.

Francis Inyys has been re-engaged by Gliddon-D'Eyncourt Productions, and will be featured in "The Haven," Eden Phillpotts' story.

William Drury is still making single-reel comedies for the Union Film Co., of Liverpool, and is now working on "The Grass Widowers."

Ralph Forbes plays Oliver Greenwood in "The Fifth Form at St. Dominic's," which A. E. Coleby is finishing at the Davidson Studio for Granger.

Maudie Dunham, by permission of Samuelson, to whom she is under contract, is playing ingenue in "Laughter and Tears," the Granger-Binger production.

Arthur Walcott has just finished a six-weeks' contract with Masters. He has been playing a "crook" part in "Marriage Lines." This completes his eighth year of film work.

Violet Hopson, Stewart Rome, Constance Worth, Marjorie Villis, James Knight, Owen Nares, Matheson Lang, and Gerald Du Maurier have promised to be present at the Leeds Gymkhana on July 2.

Elizabeth Brandt is to play female lead in "The Haven" (Gliddon-D'Eyncourt).

George Roberts acts as scenario editor to Union Film Productions (Liverpool).

James Drury acts as art-director for Union Film Co., of Liverpool, which is producing several single-reel comedies.

Billie Bird is in the cast of "The Grass Widowers," which is being produced at the Union Film Co.'s Liverpool studios.

Vi Francom has been engaged to play in "The Grass Widowers" (Union Film, Liverpool).

Paul Square has an important part in Union Film's (Liverpool) comedy "The Grass Widowers."

—DO YOU—

If Felix Orman really interviewed five thousand artistes the first day he started casting?

* * *

The name of the agent who is going to produce?

* * *

What Rex Davis thinks of a certain juvenile lead?

* * *

What is the attraction at Patmac's?

* * *

If a certain cameraman could throw some light on the subject?

* * *

Whether all is well between the members of the producing company now in the Tyrol? And—

* * *

If some of them wanted to change their hotel?

* * *

Why so many new studios have public-houses for next-door neighbours? And—

* * *

Who was there first?

“ S P O I L I N G —

THE PLAINT OF

When the subject of British pictures is discussed much can be said about them. In the last issue of the Motion-Picture Studio a contributor blamed the producer in an article headed "What is Wrong with our Producers?" Perhaps he is right, but I hasten to take up the cudgels on behalf of the British producers and will give you a few instances, taken from my own experience, of what is really wrong with British pictures.

Not long ago I was working on a picture, one of the biggest I have attempted in this country, and which I was producing for a certain well-known firm. The directors, I found, would put down a certain sum of money, and it was up to the producer to get the picture. Any extras they positively refused to give. Here is an instance of how details are overlooked and the obstacles we are working against in this country.

My big set represented a party, at which the lady of the house had to cut a birthday cake. My company was on the set at ten o'clock sharp, and everything was ready for "shooting."

After waiting for a few minutes my assistant arrived to tell me that I could not have a birthday cake for the scene. Considering the lady must cut a birthday cake, I had to see the man who looked after the cash and beg of him to give me the necessary funds to purchase the cake.

But, no! He would not part with a cent. "Besides, what was the property man doing?"

I went to the property man, who obligingly had a block of wood painted to represent a cake. After two hours waiting about for the cake to be painted, it was brought on the set—and what a cake! The script had to be altered, so

what they are doing

Pat à Beckett acted in "The River of Stars" (Stoll).

Lionelle Howard plays in "The Wonderful Year."

Kenelm Foss is now finishing "Cherry Ripe," and commences work immediately on "The Wonderful Year."

Margot Drake plays lead in "The Wonderful Year" (Thompson British Productions).

Mary Odette has been provided with the part of a young French girl in the forthcoming Thompson production, "The Wonderful Year."

Eille Norwood is on the free-list and undecided whether to remain in film work or concentrate on the stage. He may produce films himself.

— K N O W —

The name of the kinema agent who casts artistes according to the shape of their ankle?

* * *

Why De Hems is so popular with film players?

* * *

The name of the film producing company which is advertising for £5,000 more capital?

* * *

The name of the producer's lady assistant who has turned artiste; and—

* * *

Why?

* * *

If A. E. Coleby's cat really had kittens in his Sands-Hutton camera; and—

* * *

(But, there, we don't like to ask what we are curious to know.)

* * *

Who is really going to work at the Alliance studio?

Eileen Munro is in the cast of "A Temporary Lady" (Minerva).

Claude H. Mitchell, assistant producer to Donald Crisp, is now working on "The Bonnie Brier Bush" (Famous-Lasky).

Violet Hopson has been at the Isle of Wight playing in the Broadwest picture, "Christie Johnstone."

Louise Ayrton has returned from America, where she has been playing at the Belasco Theatre.

Olga Conway is away on her honeymoon. Her husband is a Flight-Lieutenant. Her future movements are uncertain.

Bert Darley has just signed a contract to appear in Minerva Comedies. He commenced work this week.

Florence Turner, the American film star, who is settling in this country, has received offers from four leading British producing companies.

Randle Ayrton has just returned from America to play as "The Dispenser of Happiness" in the Thompson film, "The Wonderful Year."

Margaret Turnbull is responsible for the screen adaptation of Ian MacLaren's book, "The Bonnie Brier Bush" (Famous-Lasky).

Donald Crisp is now in Scotland producing the latest Famous-Lasky British production, "The Bonnie Brier Bush." He also plays the part of Lachlan Campbell.

Donald Crisp suffered bereavement last week by the death of his father, Dr. James Crisp, who passed peacefully away in his sleep at the age of 90. He held the position of Royal Surgeon to the late King Edward.

Stewart Rome made a personal appearance at the Royalty Kinema, Cowes, in which town he had been working on scenes for "Christie Johnstone" (Broadwest).

Jack Miller is editing Kenelm Foss' films at the B. and C. Studios.

Frank J. Woolf is doing the publicity for B. and C. films and Kenelm Foss.

Grace Rose is assistant to Kenelm Foss for the H. W. Thompson productions.

Arthur Claremont has been engaged for an important part in the next Minerva Comedy, "A Temporary Lady."

John MacAndrews, the Hepworth player, has been very ill, but is now convalescent, and will soon be back at Walton.

Vesta Sylva has been forced to refuse an offer from Hepworth owing to being engaged in France.

Robert Vallis is playing the part of the convict in the Stoll production, "The Hound of the Baskervilles."

Vere Tyndale, who is really the Hon. Mrs. Astley, has been playing the part of Lady Boscatelle in "A Dear Fool" (Stoll). She is a sister-in-law of Lord Hastings.

John A. Geeves is now in his third year of studio management for B. and C. at the Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow.

I. Roseman is doing the camera work for B. and C.'s "Puppet Man" production in the Tyrol.

Cosmo Gordon Lennox has written a special story for B. and C. films entitled, "The Puppet Man."

Stuart Blackton has brought with him several members of his American organisation who have been associated with him in his productions on that side. They are Felix Orman, Literary Director; Almon C. Whiting, Art Director; Walter Mullin, electrician; and Nicholas Musuraca, camera man.

Felix Orman was formerly literary director of the Periodical Publishers' Association of America, one of the editorial council of The Outlook, a staff writer for Leslie's Weekly, a correspondent for a number of American newspapers, and for many years has been in intimate touch with American theatres, opera houses and motion-picture studios. He is now literary editor for Stuart Blackton Productions.

Almon C. Whiting is a well-known artist, decorator and painter, who studied for years in Paris under Whistler, Laurens and Constant. He founded, and for six years directed, the Toledo Museum of Art, and has had a wide experience in his present field. Now with Stuart Blackton as art director.

Hilda Anthony is in the cast of "The Puppet Man" (B. and C.).

Hubert Carter has been provided with a splendid part in "The Wonderful Year" (Kenelm Foss).

Mary Odette is again with Kenelm Foss in "Wonderful Year."

Pat Quinn is assisting Frank Canham in the camera work for "Wonderful Year."

— T H E S H I P —

A PRODUCER

that the lady did not cut the cake, but was just about to do so when a sub-title was flashed on.

That is one instance; trivial it may seem, but as the lady finds a note in the cake, and the note makes the plot, you may agree that the sub-title was hardly the thing to use in this instance. In addition to this, my company of artistes had been kept waiting around for two hours while the cake was being made, and by the time the scene was "shot" they were quite weary-looking.

Another thing of a similar nature took place with the same firm. At a dinner the guests are seen drinking wine. Wine, of course, was out of the question, so I sent my assistant to get three bottles of lemonade, so that it would sparkle in the same way as wine, and so obtain some degree of realism.

In a few minutes my assistant returned to say that the director of the company would not allow me to have the money for lemonade, but that I was to use cold tea. So cold tea it was!

These are the obstacles we are up against. Some people may think they are trivial, but they are the things that count in the long run. The saving of a few pence on lemonade and other details may eventually mean the ruining of a picture costing thousands of pounds. It is heartbreaking to a producer, and he cannot put his mind into his work when the men he is making the picture for put every obstacle in his way.

The handing out of a set sum of money is spoiling British films. Give the producer something more to work with; do not let him waste it, but do let him have a fair sum, and then perhaps we may be able to compete with other countries' pictures.

WANTED — A FILM GENIUS

by Bannister Merwin

Nobody knows very much about picture making. Up to the present every attempt to make the screen a real medium of expression has been more or less tentative—and often very feebly tentative at that. We might as well admit it; we are all beginners—no matter how glibly we talk of technique.

In twelve years what have we learned? How to build good sets; how to light them well and photograph them well; and how to tell the story smoothly on the screen?

But that is only a beginning. Good sets, good photography, smooth continuity will not keep the public interested for ever. No; we must learn how to be more interesting—how to employ the peculiar vividness of our medium along lines quite apart from the novel or the stage.

With all deference to the splendid work done by many well-known producers in England, on the Continent, and in America, we are compelled to say that even those of them who have most strongly impressed their individuality upon the development of the film play have not discovered in themselves the breadth of background which is necessary to make their work really great and lasting. And what applies to the producer applies also to the film playwright—and in some degree to the film actor.

The truth is that all of us, in our gropings after good results, are at the mercy of certain very restricting conditions—and especially in England. First, as regards stories.

In choosing a story for a film we are subject to the retarding influence of the trade demand. We must find a story which will be acceptable to the average English audience.

It is not as if we were preparing a play to be shown at a single theatre, there to attract audiences who are interested in that particular play. We must hit public interest in all quarters and among all classes at the same time.

For that reason originality is dangerous. It is necessary to play safe. We dare not write to satisfy the West End at the cost of losing the interest of the Midlands or the North. And, as a rule, if we are out to please an average audience, we must present them with an average story—one that is developed more or less according to formula. Death to originality, of course—but business is business. That is why producing companies are always on the look out for stories that are like some other story that has just proved successful.

Then as to production: Again—play safe is the accepted maxim. In one limited section picture-goers may like subtlety. In other sections subtleties will pass unheeded, and audiences will wonder what the picture is all about. Therefore, don't be subtle. People who enjoy subtleties can at least understand a broader treatment; that is enough to go by! Use the broader treatment, because it is most likely to satisfy your average audience.

As to technical quality, we in England have been pretty well up against it. A few months ago an American producer who had been working in England said to me that, in his opinion, a man who could make a picture in England could make one anywhere. The ordinary English studio, even if it has the facilities for good sets and good lighting, seldom seems to get the best technical results.

In my experience, the reason lies not so much in bad equipment as in faulty organisation. It is not that we don't spend enough time and money. Very often we waste both. But by failing to organise productions completely before beginning the actual work we not only lose time later, but lose quality as well. If we can get into the habit of producing our pictures before we begin actual production we shall do much better in England.

Really, English production has been at the mercy of special trade conditions. Those conditions do not seem likely to alter very materially for the present. There is only one thing that will break them down, and that is a film genius. If a writer or producer comes along who has the money and the confidence to make the picture he sees, without regard to trade demand—and if he is a genius—he will shatter conventions and traditions so quickly that the film pundits will gasp. He will break away from our half-baked theories and make an art that is as different from the stage play as the stage play is different from the novel. And then everybody will imitate his methods, and we shall have a new era of film production, and the monotonous films now in reserve on the renters' shelves will most certainly never see the light.

YOUR CORNER

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

I consider the article written by J. Cobb is worthy of contempt—not an answer. A fool might take the dictation of his master, but an ass never! Evidently Mr. Cobb has never entered a British or an American studio, as by his article he is stupidly ignorant of both.

When Mr. Cobb can send me a subtitle—original and written by himself, not quoting Shakespeare or the Classics, which evidently he knows nothing about—I will perhaps have time to correct his sub-title and answer any stupid questions that he cares to ask in future.—NORMAN MACDONALD.

Allow me to congratulate you on your splendid little paper, The Motion Picture Studio, which I feel is going to do a great deal towards assisting British productions to equal those of other countries, and I wish you every success with your new venture.

I sincerely hope your article on the lack of finance for British productions will be read and understood by those who could render valuable assistance to the straightforward British producer, who is being held up during the whole of the summer owing to insufficient capital. I myself have plans to produce comedies under the heading of "Westland British Productions," but my schemes have had to be shelved.—PHILIP V. EAST.

STUDIO FINANCE

NEW COMPANIES.

GEARSLEY DE GROOT PRODUCTIONS, LTD.—Private company. Registered June 2. Capital, £15,000 in £1 shares. To carry on the business of producers of revues, kinema and other plays, proprietors of theatres, music-halls, etc. The subscribers are: Mrs. D. Clarke, 26, Regent Square, W.C.2; Mrs. M. England, 24, Norsham Street, Lewisham, S.E.13. The first directors are not named. Qualification: 250 shares. Solicitors: Lloyd Richardson and Co., 3, Howard Street, W.C.2.

LONDON AND CONTINENTAL FILM STUDIOS, LTD.—Private company. Registered June 6. Capital, £5,000 in £1 shares. To acquire 16, Maida Vale, W., or any other premises in the British Empire or elsewhere, and to carry on the business of cinematographers, film producers, etc. The company may issue debenture stock or mortgage debentures for not more than £30,000. The first directors are: R. H. Green-Wilkinson, 38, Glebe Place, S.W.3; W. E. Tooth, 187, Hampton Road, Ilford; H. Corbyn, 35, Upper Baker Street, W. Qualification: £50. Secretary: W. E. Tooth. Registered office: 61 and 62, Chancery Lane, W.C.2.

PEARL FILMS, LTD.—Private Company. Registered June 2. Capital, £1,000 in £1 shares. To carry on the business of producers, manufacturers, licensors and exhibitors of, agents for and dealers in films, photographic negatives and positives, photo-plays, scenarios, photographic instruments, material and products, etc. The subscribers (each with one share) are: E. G. Tindell, 40, Datchet Road, Catford, S.E., clerk; S. B. Collings, 118B, Mallinson Road, S.W.11, clerk; Miss E. Josephs, 296, Willesden Lane, N.W.2; B. W. Gould, 18, Cicely Road, Rye Lane, Peckham, S.E., clerk. The subscribers are to appoint the first directors. No qualification required. Remuneration as fixed by company. Secretary: H. A. Mabbott. Registered office: 86 and 88, Wardour Street, W.

BARTRUMS, LTD.—Private company. Registered June 8. Capital £10,000 in £1 shares. To take over the business carried on at 70, Carlton House, Regent Street, S.W., as "Bartrums," and to carry on the business of publicity and advertising agents, agents for political, social, artistic, theatrical, commercial, financial and other propaganda, proprietors and managers of theatres, kinemas, concert halls and entertainments, dramatic and musical publishers, etc. The subscribers (who are also provisional directors) are: A. S. Niblett, 11, Basil Mansions, Knightsbridge, S.W., advertising agent; R. Pierpoint, Westminster Mansions, S.W.1, journalist. Solicitors: T. Eggar and Co., Winchester House, E.C.

WILSONIAN FILM PRODUCING Co., LTD.—Private company. Registered June 9. Capital £2,000 in £1 shares. To carry on the business of film makers, producers and dealers, cinematograph instructors and agents, etc. The first directors are: C. H. Wilson, 8, Clitheroe Road, Clapham Road, S.W., cinematograph producer; J. Wagstaff, 145, Lambeth Walk, S.E., butcher; W. J. Crook, 8, Clitheroe Road, Clapham Road, S.W., butcher. Qualification: £1. Remuneration: £120 each per annum. Secretary: W. J. Crook. Registered office, 547, Wandsworth Road, S.W.

MORTGAGES, CHARGES AND SATISFACTIONS.

BRITISH AND COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH, Co., LTD.—Satisfaction in full on June 1, 1921, of 1st and 2nd debentures, both dated March 6, 1914, securing £3,000 and £1,000 respectively.

PERSONAL SUPERVISION GUARANTEED in every detail. 'Phone—London Wall 7568.

The Biggest Successes have BENJAMIN COSTUMES

HARLEY KNOLES

THE WORLD-FAMOUS DIRECTOR

Sole producer of "CARNIVAL," which is being presented by Samuel Rothapfel, at the Capitol, New York (the largest Picture Theatre in the World), to-morrow, Sunday, June 26.

OUR BUSINESS AND YOURS

Milton Rosmer and Our Future

I welcome the advent of The Motion Picture Studio because at last those of us who are engaged upon the creative side of the film "industry" will be provided with a platform upon which we can discuss the problems and ideals of our art, without falling under suspicion of seeking notoriety or clamouring for the gaudy prizes of publicity.

There are many subjects, at present discussed only in draughty dressing-rooms or over cigarettes and coffee, which are of supreme importance to all of us who take our profession seriously, and who are not only anxious for the advancement of our own interests as actors, producers, writers or craftsmen, but desire the fullest possible development of the motion picture as a medium of artistic expression.

Now that is a point of view which I hope The Motion Picture Studio will continuously and courageously put forward. I want it to stand as a living demonstration that new ideas, fresh inspirations, novel methods of treatment, daring departures from established rules are the very life-blood of our art.

In standing for the steady advancement of cinematographic art there are certain duties which, I think, The Motion Picture Studio should undertake. It should encourage every spark of originality that manifests itself. It should help to bring into the studio the finest creative intelligences of our day and generation. It should stand for a policy of "Free and Fair Play for the Artist" (applying the name in its widest sense to all whose work contributes towards the perfecting of the film). It should demand greater expenditure of time and money not only upon production but also upon experiment. This journal should cultivate an attitude of mind consistent with the dignity and the illimitable possibilities of our art, so that it may assert its own individuality and enter at last into its own inheritance. And, finally, it should stand firmly for the permanent exclusion from the screen of those things which are offensive to art and to humanity, the exploitation of cruelty, indecency, and mere sensationalism.

To my mind all these factors are necessary for the full and perfect development of our art. Kinematography must no longer be a parasite upon the other arts. It must grow upon its own stem. It must develop its own distinctive form. It must draw its vitality from the very well-springs of art and life. Inspiration, rather than adaptation, should be its watchword. The title of a famous book, the glamour of a stage reputation, will never, in themselves, advance our art by one hair's breadth. But the writer and the artist who is willing to study and develop a new medium should be warmly welcomed.

We want fresh blood rather than borrowed ideas.

But largely conditioning all this, there must be a bigger realisation of their opportunities among the men who control the finance of production. How can the producer whose expenditure is restricted to the minimum extract the fullest value from his subject even upon "safe lines"? How can he experiment with new methods or novel effects which may or may not be successful? How can the actor develop his technique when engagements are spasmodic and a livelihood uncertain? How can the original film author be expected to exist at all when the adapted novel seems to be the chief article of faith among the captains of the film industry, with its corollary of a big fee for the novelist (who takes no further interest in the matter), and a microscopic fee for the adaptor.

(Continued top of next column.)

Yet the men who by their cheeseparer policy are preventing that free play of expression in the studio which is the essential condition of better work are those who grumble about the exclusion of British pictures from foreign screens. By restricting their expenditure to a sum which just allows a safe return for their money to be made out of the receipts from British theatres they are spoiling the home market and making foreign sales impossible. We need what the Americans call "the Big Idea," and it is up to those of us who are engaged upon the creative side of affairs, and for The Motion Picture Studio, which speaks for us, to present the Big Idea for all it is worth.

I believe that The Motion Picture Studio will be keenly alive to all these questions, because the best interests of British studio workers are intimately bound up in the welfare and progress of their art, and because it will provide a clearing house for the ideas and opinions of those of us who are conscious that we are laying the foundations of one of the greatest arts that the world has yet known.

PULSE OF THE STUDIO

(Continued from page 15).

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "The Pointing Finger."

PRODUCER: George Ridgewell.

STARS: Milton Rosmer, Madge Stuart.

CAMERAMAN: Al Moses.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "General John Regan."

PRODUCER: Harold Shaw.

STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "The Hound of the Baskervilles."

PRODUCER: Maurie Elvey.

STARS: Eille Norwood, Catina Campbell.

SCENARIST: W. J. Elliott.

CAMERAMAN: Jermaine Berger.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Fourth week.

H. W. Thompson.

ADDRESS: Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow.

FILM: "Cherry Ripe."

PRODUCER: Kenelm Foss.

STARS: Mary Odette, Lionelle Howard, Roy Travers.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Jack Miller.

SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.

ART DIRECTORS: Tom Gilson and Grace Rose.

CAMERAMAN: Frank Canham.

TYPE: Five-reel social drama (Mid-Victorian).

STAGE: Editing.

Welsh Pearson.

ADDRESS: Craven Park, Willesden, N.W.

FILM: "Squibs."

PRODUCER: George Pearson.

STARS: Betty Balfour, Fred Groves, Hugh E. Wright.

SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.

CAMERAMAN: Emile Lauste.

TYPE: Comedy.

STAGE: Nearing completion.

Zodiac.

ADDRESS: Windsor Studios, Catford.

FILM: "Walter Finds a Father."

STAR: Walter Forde.

TYPE: Two-reel comedy.

STAGE: First week.

THE WEEK'S DIARY

TRADE SHOWS

"Corinthian Jack" (Mustar)

PRODUCER: Walter Courtenay Rowden.

CAST: Victor MaeLaglen, Warwick Ward, Dorothy Fane, Kathleen Vaughan, Ray Raymond, Colin Kent, Malcolm Todd, Conway Dixon, Will Lemders, Roeky Knight.

SCENARIST: W. C. Rowden.

TRADE SHOW: Tuesday, June 28, London Pav., 3 p.m.

RELEASES

"The Broken Road" (Stoll).

PRODUCER: Rene Plaissetty.

CAST: Harry J. Worth, Harry Ham, Robert English, Cyril Percival, Mary Masart, Dorothy Langley, Tony Fraser, Charles Wemyss, Gwen Williams, June Putnam.

CAMERAMAN: John L. Cox.

SCENARIST: Daisy Martin.

"The Lunatic at Large" (Hepworth).

SCENARIST: Daisy Martin.

CAST: Henry Edwards, Chrissie White, Gwynne Herbert, George Dewhurst, Lyell

Johnston, Beuna Bent, James Annand, John MaeAndrews, Hugh Clifton, P. K. Esdaile.

SCENARIST: George W. Dewhurst

"Sybil" (Ideal).

PRODUCER: Jaek Denton.

CAST: Evelyn Brent, Philip D. Williams, F. Cowley Wright, Harry Gilbey, William Burehill, Hubert Gordon, John Wyndham.

SCENARIST: Colden Lore.

"Lady Tetley's Decree" (Jury).

PRODUCER: Fred Paul.

CAST: Hamilton Stewart; Phillip Hewland; Bernard Vaughan; Marjorie Hume; and Sidney Lewis Ransome.

"The Four Just Men" (Stoll).

SCENARIO AND PRODUCTION: George Ridgewell.

CAMERAMAN: Alfred H. Moses, Junr.

ART DIRECTOR: Walter W. Murton.

CAST: Cecil Humphreys; Poiceart; Teddy Arundell; George Bellamy; C. H. Croker-King; C. Tilson Chowne; and Robert Vallis.

L. BENJAMIN & CO.,

99, Middlesex St.,
Bishopsgate, E.1.

'Phone
London Wall
7568.

Kinematograph Costumier,
Naval & Military Outfitter.

EXPANSION

by ADRIAN JOHNSON

(Concluded)

What does the word COST mean? All productions are calculated on profit. To some minds COST makes no difference, always with due consideration to judicious expenditure, it is PROFIT that counts. To make money, one must spend it. I have heard it said that some British producers express themselves as being satisfied to exhibit their pictures in the British Isles only, for home consumption. Go into any British kinema theatre and look at the bill. Is it an all-British kinema bill? Is the British producer succeeding in his design of monopolising his country and realising the kinema profits to be obtained there? If the English people are, to a certain extent, tired of their own productions and like to see Western American cowboy pictures, the reverse applies, for a Western American or any American is delighted to see the quiet, beautiful scenery of an English village and a drama built around the types there. Why do thousands of Americans come to Europe every year? To see it and pause a moment and think of the millions who have never come, who cannot come. London is the most interesting old city in the world, yet there are a number of people here who do not realise it. It seems that foreigners are the ones to grasp its possibilities. There are some of the most wonderful old corners, squares, etc., to be obtained in London. American producers have to get pictures of them and build them in Los Angeles. The British producer could get them by sending a cameraman there to photograph them. What is the answer?

In conclusion: England to-day and in all time has stood for expansion. Is this policy being exhibited in its kinema? If not, why not? Nations become friendly by acquaintance. The kinema is the greatest medium of expression, of exploitation of manners, customs, sports, character, scenery, and beauty in the world. I have seen an audience in Los Angeles positively go into ecstasies over the delightful scenery of a certain English production made years ago, a picturisation of one of Dickens' novels. They have not seen another.

Now is the time for the British producer to get his share. The Italians are going into America, the Germans have gone in. There is plenty there for all. Shall it be said that the British producer is satisfied to produce pictures for two or three thousand pounds, allow alien peoples to capitalise his country, exploit it, realise its profits? Shall it be said that the immense amount of capital in England for investment shall seek the old, conservative commercial channels with the old commercial percentage of profit, or shall it seek its percentage in an industry which has realised millions, is realising them, and will realise more? When one has the money, why inquire about COST perpetually? When this people sought a world expansion, cost was not a paramount factor, and it was accomplished. Expansion and the gambler's chance makes for SUCCESS in this business, and if the proper people are employed and their characters and past efforts carefully investigated in England, which in the kinema business has absolutely not been done, FAILURE cannot result. If an alien cannot understand the conservatism attendant upon British methods, if he becomes nervous, those methods should be explained to him. If he is employed for the purpose of benefiting the British kinema, he should meet with co-operation, possible personal antipathy, because of differing modes of speech and character, should be carefully laid in the background and all should work in the interests of the kinema of this country, if expansion is the watchword, and if not, there is no use in working at all.

BLACKTON AND COLOUR

A cable from the Prizma Laboratories of New York, received recently by J. Stuart Blackton, announced the completion of work on the process by which the first photo-play is to be taken in colour, and Mr. Blackton states that the colour camera expert with his specially designed and perfected apparatus and a special type of film negative for this colour photo-play sailed from New York on the Mauretania on June 15, and immediately after his arrival in London production would start at once.

For some time Mr. Blackton has had an ambition to produce a super film play in natural colours; and he and the Prizma people decided that they would start with the initial Blackton production in England featuring Lady Diana Manners.

The Prizma organisation in New York has been at work for more than six months on special photographic devices to attain this end. It has employed the abilities of the recognised experts of the world in camera, colour and motion photography, with the idea of presenting a full length dramatic photo-play artistically and accurately done in colour throughout.

This work has been conducted with such thoroughness and has involved such an enormous extent of research and experiment, that Mr. Blackton's first British production has been delayed almost two months, and this first photoplay in colour is expected to revolutionise the photoplay art.

Film producers, for some time, have realised the limitations of ordinary black and white motion photography. The sense of depth and detail was lacking. There was no stereoscopic value. The effect often was dull and lifeless. This new process, after long and painstaking effort towards its perfection, should not only take the picture in natural colours—interiors as well as exteriors—but should bring out the detail of the scene in a much more emphatic manner and give a stereoscopic value to the picture that has not hitherto been attained.

All the special lighting fixtures from Mr. Blackton's American studios have been shipped to England and installed in his Criklewood studios.

VANITY FAIR Supplement No. 2354.

MEN OF THE DAY

KENELM FOSS

"MAGIC"

To be selected for the subject of a cartoon in "Vanity Fair" was always a great honour, and it is safe to say that KENELM FOSS is the only member of the cinematograph industry who ever attained such a distinction. The admirable caricature of KENELM FOSS, which is reproduced above appeared in "Vanity Fair" in 1914, before KENELM FOSS had ever even seen a picture-play! We all know KENELM FOSS as actor, scenario writer, designer, novelist and poet, as well as producer, but it will perhaps be news to some members of the Trade that for years KENELM FOSS was a well-known theatrical manager, and that in 1913-1914 he was in successful control of a London theatre, the Little, where he introduced to London playgoers "MAGIC" by G. K. Chesterton, an "DAMAGED GOODS." It was for this reason that "Vanity Fair" included him in their series of men of note, a series comprising very few actors or managers, and more usually consisting of barristers, judges, politicians and prominent sportsmen.

TINTING FILM

Kodak has recommended methods for tinting and toning motion picture film and the tinting formulæ have since then been issued in a leaflet named the "Kodak Motion Picture Bulletin No. 2," a copy of which has been sent us with the evident intention that we should reprint whatever of its contents we think fit. Since these tinting formulæ are simple and valuable, we give them below.

Kodak Formulæ for Tinting (at 65 F.)

	Avoirdupois	Metric	Time of Tinting
Cine Red	2 lbs.	1000 grams	3 min.
Water	50 gal.	200 lit.
Cine Red	13 ozs.	400 grams	3 min.
Water	50 gal.	200 lit.
Cine Scarlet	13 ozs.	400 grams	3 min.
Water	50 gal.	200 lit.
Cine Orange Red	13 ozs.	400 grams	3 min.
Water	50 gal.	200 lit.
Cine Orange	6 ozs.	200 grams	3 min.
Acetic Acid (glacial)	3 ozs.	100 cc
Water	50 gal.	200 lit.
Cine Orange	6 ozs.	200 grams	1 min.
Acetic Acid (glacial)	3 ozs.	100 cc
Water	50 gal.	200 lit.
Cine Yellow	13 ozs.	400 grams	3 min.
Water	50 gal.	200 lit.
Cine Light Green	26 ozs.	800 grams	3 min.
Water	50 gal.	200 lit.
Cine Green	26 ozs.	800 grams	3 min.
Water	50 gal.	200 lit.
Cine Blue	13 ozs.	400 grams	3 min.
Water	50 gal.	200 lit.
Cine Blue	12 ozs.	400 grams	1 min.
Water	50 gal.	200 lit.
Cine Violet	13 ozs.	400 grams	3 min.
Water	50 gal.	200 lit.

DYESTUFF REFERENCE LIST.

Name of Dye and Manufacturer.

Cine Red.—AMARANTH—H. A. Metz and Co., New York. AZO RUBINE—White Tar Aniline Corp., 56, Vesey Street, New York.

Cine Scarlet.—CROCEIN SCARLET MOO—National Aniline and Chemical Co. SCARLET G. R.—Levinstein, 74, India Street, Boston, Mass.

Cine Orange Red.—LAKE SCARLET R.—N. A. and C. Co.

Cine Orange.—WOOL ORANGE GG—N. A. and C. Co.

Cine Yellow.—WOOL YELLOW EXTRA CONC.—N. A. and C. Co. QUINOLIN YELLOW—N. A. and C. Co.

Cine Light Green.—NAPHTHOL GREEN B CONC.—White Tar Aniline Corp.

Cine Green.—ACID GREEN L—FAST ACID GREEN B—N. A. and C. Co.

Cine Blue.—AZORAL SKY BLUE—Holliday Kemp, 90, William Street, New York. DIRECT BLUE 5B—Essex Aniline Works, 39, Oliver Street, Boston, Mass. NIAGARA SKY BLUE—N. A. and C. Co.

Cine Violet.—FAST WOOL VIOLET B—N. A. and C. Co.

The alternative dyes recommended differ slightly in colour and physical properties.

STUDIO PATENTS

This list is specially compiled for the MOTION PICTURE STUDIO by Rayner and Co., Registered Patent Agents, of 5, Chancery Lane, London, W.C.2, from whom all information relating to Patents, Trade Marks and Designs, can be obtained gratuitously.

Latest Patent Applications.

14,420.—J. B. Barton. Kinematographic cameras. May 24.

14,827.—F. W. Daniels. Method of producing increased speed and stereoscopic or relief effect in photographic plates or films. May 28

14,732.—J. V. Davies. Means for taking, printing, and projecting films. May 27.

15,104.—Cincmundi. Kinematographic picture taking and projection apparatus. May 31.

14,997.—A. C. Coppier. Manufacture of kinematograph films. May 30.

15,721.—De Vry Corporation. Motion picture machines. June 7.

15,995.—W. Holmes. Appliance for reflecting electric arc of kinematograph lamp upon a screen, etc. June 10.

16,008.—A. R. Trist. Methods for production of screens for photo-mechanical printing, etc. June 10.

Specifications Published this Week.

143,230.—J. Mason. Method and apparatus for treating films.

Abstract Published this Week.

161,995.—Colour photography. J. T. Smith, St. Peter's, Cornhill, London.

Consists in processes and apparatus for ruling coloured line screens on celluloid. To prevent the spreading of the colours when ruled, the celluloid is treated with a pounce which may be phenol, aniline, alcohols, water, nitro-benzene, benzyl acetate, benzal-dehyde, fatty acid esters of alcohols, etc. Pounces in powder form such as pumice, french chalk, etc., may be used. The colour is dissolved in a suitable liquid such as aniline, phenol, or an alcohol. The solvent may be similar to the pouncing-liquid, for example, benzyl alcohol, but if necessary a softener such as nitro-benzene may be added to promote the attack of the colours. A preferred form of ruling-pen consists of a piece of parchment, fine wire gauze, etc., which runs skate-fashion on the celluloid, the width of the line being adjusted by setting the blades obliquely to the line. A ruling-machine may be provided in which the celluloid first passes through a pouncing-device, then between soft rollers of conducting material connected to earth to remove any electrification and so to the first set of pens. An electrically heated wire serves to dry the ruled lines before the next set of pens is reached for ruling the second colour lines and so on. The use of this microscope is facilitated by having a transparent bed over which the ruled celluloid passes. The screen finally passes through a device in which surplus colour is cleaned off by means of a weak solution of caustic soda, acid, alcohol, etc. Specification 129,717 is referred to.

Rayner and Co. will obtain printed copies of the published specifications, and will forward on post free for the sum of 1s. each.

CAMERAMEN AT WORK

The Topical Budget nowadays contains quite a number of "shots" taken with Charlie Heath's new lens.

The next meeting of the Society takes place on Friday next, July 1.

Although there have been no meetings for the last few weeks, quite a number of cameramen still seem to congregate in Patmac's every Friday night.

L. G. Egrot was there last Friday, his first appearance for many weeks, as he has been away filming in Wales.

D. P. Cooper tells us that his experiments with his famous diamond lens have been discontinued temporarily.

It is rumoured that if Kenneth Gordon is present at the next Society meeting he will have something to say.

MEN BEHIND THE CAMERA

No. 1:—Moses, Alfred H.: Born in Louisville, Kentucky, U.S.A., and educated technically in analytical and technological chemistry, electrical and mechanical engineering, at the Alabama Polytechnic and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In 1888 he invented the "enclosed arc," and many other electrical devices since then. He invented the Alamo pocket kinema camera, the Alamo projector, and the Multi-Exposure camera. It was in 1888 that he started in photography, and his first cinematography was in 1907. He was chief cameraman for Thannhauser, and has filmed Norma Talmadge in many productions. He is a member of the Royal Photographic Society and Vice-President of the Kine-Cameramen's Society. At present with Stoll.

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES No. III.—GUY NEWALL

One of the most notable personalities in the British film world at the moment is Guy Newall, of George Clark fame. His rise to film distinction has been meteoric, for, although he entered the industry in the old London Films so long as nine years ago, it is only during the last two or three years that he achieved his present fame.

An Englishman by birth, tradition, and breeding, Guy Newall was born in the Isle of Wight in the late eighties. He commenced a theatrical career, and had considerable success on the stage, but in 1912 his attention was directed to the "movies," and before that year was very old he had made his first screen appearance.

On joining George Clark in a partnership, which afterwards became the George Clark Productions, Ltd., he played, with Ivy Duke, the leading parts in every picture put out by this enterprising firm with the exception of "Testimony," and in this picture Guy Newall won his first aurels as a producer. The success of this film in America has done much to convince the film world that his destined career is as the producer of pictures.

Of the two pictures completed in the South of France, where he has been working for the past half-year, "The Persistent Lovers" and "The Bigamist," each promises to be a considerable advance in British picture making.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for Kinematograph Productions. Phone—London Wall 7568

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Productions and Who is Working on Them

J. Stuart Blackton.

ADDRESS: Bush House, Aldwych.
FILM: "The Glorious Romance."
PRODUCER: J. Stuart Blackton.
STAR: Lady Diana Manners.
SCENARIST: Felix Orman.
ART DIRECTOR: Almon C. Whiting.
CAMERAMAN: Nicholas Mursuraca
TYPE: Seven-reel drama.
STAGE: Finishing Casting.

British and Colonial.

ADDRESS: Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
FILM: "The Puppet Man."
PRODUCER: Frank Crane.
STARS: Hugh Miller, John Reid.
CAMERAMAN: I. Roseman.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Last Stages.

Broadwest.

ADDRESS: Walthamstow and Esher.
FILM: "The Imperfect Lover."
PRODUCER: Walter West.
ART DIRECTOR: Thomas Fleetwood.
CAMERAMAN: J. Franguelli.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "Christie Johnstone."
PRODUCER: Norman MacDonald.
STARS: Stewart Rome and Gertrude McCoy.
SCENARIST: W. G. Clifford.
CAMERAMAN: G. Pauli.
TYPE: Costume romance.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "Vi of Smith's Alley."
PRODUCER: Walter West.
STARS: Violet Hopson, Cameron Carr.
SCENARISTS: J. B. Bertram Brown, Charles Barnet.
CAMERAMAN: J. Franguelli.
TYPE: Domestic drama.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

George Clark.

ADDRESS: 41, Ebury Street, Victoria, S.W.1 (now working in Nice).
FILM: "The Bigamist."
PRODUCER: Guy Newall.
STARS: Ivy Duke and Guy Newall.
SCENARIST: Guy Newall.
CAMERAMAN: Bert Ford.
TYPE: Social drama.
STAGE: Finishing.

I. B. Davidson.

ADDRESS: Lea Bridge Road, Leyton.
FILM: "The Fifth Form at St. Dominic's."
PRODUCER: A. E. Coleby.
SCENARIST: A. E. Coleby.
CAMERAMAN: D. P. Cooper.
TYPE: School story.
STAGE: Finishing.

Famous Players-Lasky British Producers.

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.
FILM: "Twice Wed" (working title).
PRODUCER: Paul Powell.
STARS: Mary Glynne, David Powell.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: R. J. Cullen.
SCENARIST: Mary O'Connor.
ART DIRECTOR: Leslie Dawson.
CAMERAMAN: C. McDonnell.

TYPE: Social drama.
STAGE: Nearing Completion.
FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."
PRODUCER: Donald Crisp.
ASSISTANT PRODUCER: Claude H. Mitchell.
STAR: Donald Crisp.
SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.
STAGE: Fourth Week.
Frederick White.
ADDRESS: Weir House, Teddington.
FILM: "The Haigh Serial."
PRODUCER: Edward R. Gordon.
STAR: Ernest Haigh.
SCENARIST: Edward R. Gordon.
TYPE: Detective serial.
STAGE: Commencing fifth episode.
Gaumont.
ADDRESS: Shepherd's Bush.
FILM: "The Autumn of Pride."
PRODUCER: W. P. Kellino.
STAR: Nora Swinburne.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Cyril Smith.
SCENARIST: Paul Roof.
CAMERAMAN: A. St. A. Brown.
TYPE: Five-reel country drama.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "Roses in the Dust."
PRODUCER: Captain Calvert.
CAMERAMAN: Basil W. G. Emmott.
STAGE: Just starting.
Harma.
ADDRESS: Limes Grove, Croydon.
FILM: (not titled).
PRODUCER: Bernard Dudley.
STARS: Marjorie Villis and James Knight.
CAMERAMAN: J. Mackenzie.
TYPE: Comedy drama.
STAGE: Beginning.
Ideal.
FILM: "All Sorts and Conditions of Men."
PRODUCER: G. Treville.
STARS: Rex Davis, Rence Kelly.
SCENARIST: Colden Lore.
TYPE: Costume drama.
STAGE: Fifth week.
FILM: "Sonia."
PRODUCER: Denison Clift.
STAGE: Casting.
Master Films.
ADDRESS: Weir House, Teddington.
FILM: "God in the Garden."
PRODUCER: Edwin J. Collins.

STARS: Arthur Pusey, Edith Craig, Mabel Poulton.
SCENARIST: Edwin J. Collins.
CAMERAMAN: Jack Parker.
TYPE: Comedy drama.
STAGE: Nearing completion.
FILM: "The Marriage Lines."
PRODUCER: Wilfred Noy.
STAR: Barbara Hoff.
SCENARIST: Wilfred Noy.
CAMERAMAN: Theodore Thumwood.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Nearing completion.

Progress.
ADDRESS: Shoreham.
FILM: "The Wooing of April."
PRODUCER: Sidney Morgan.
STARS: Pauline Johnson, Harold French and Ellis Jeffries.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
TYPE: Comedy drama.
STAGE: Cutting and assembling.

FILM: "Moth and Rust."
PRODUCER: Sidney Morgan.
STARS: Sybil Thorndyke, Malvina Longfellow, and Langhorne Burton.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "Mayor of Casterbridge."
STAR: Pauline Peters
PRODUCER: Sydney Morgan.
SCENARIST: Sydney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
STAGE: Just commencing.

Seal.

ADDRESS: Prince's Studio, Kew Bridge.
FILM: "Dick's Fairy."
PRODUCER: Bert Wynne.
STARS: Hargreaves Munsell, Joan Griffith, and Albert Bruntford.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: John Wyndham.
SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.
CAMERAMAN: L. Protheroe.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Fourth week.

Screen Plays.

ADDRESS: Cranmer Court, Clapham S.W.
FILM: Grand Guignol series.
PRODUCERS: Fred Paul and Jack Raymond.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Rodwell.
TYPE: Short melodramas.
STAGE: Producing one a week.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Cricklewood.
FILM: "The Woman with the Fan."
PRODUCER: Rene Plaissetty.
STARS: Mary Massart, Alec Fraser and Cyril Percival.
CAMERAMAN: Jack Cox.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: "The Prey of the Dragon."
PRODUCER: Martin Thornton.
STARS: Victor McLaglan, Harvey Braban and Gladys Jennings.
CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.

(Continued on page 12).

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Aerodrome, Hyde, London.
ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.
B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2048.
BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmopho, Ealux.
B. P. FILMS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, London, W.4. 'Phone: Streatham 2652.
BRITISH ACTORS' FILM CO., Melbourne Road, Bushey, Herts. 'Phone: Bushey Heath 259—British Actors.
BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.
BRITISH ART FILMS, CO., LTD., Prince's Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford. 'Phone: Chiswick 574.
BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.
BRITISH PICTURES, LTD., Tullerle Street, Hackney Road, London, E.2. 'Phone: Dalston 3454.
BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.
BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Portsmouth Road, Esher, Surrey. 'Phone: Esher 325.
CAIRNS FILM CO., Wateombe Hall, Torquay. 'Phone: Torquay 886—Cairnsfilm, Torquay.
CENTRAL FILM PRODUCING CO., Eel Pie Island, Twickenham.
DAVIDSON, I. B., 58, Lea Bridge Road, Leyton, E.10. 'Phone: Walthamstow 634.
FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.
FREDERICK WHITE, LTD., Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.
GAIETY PRODUCTIONS, Wadden New Road, Croydon.
GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prologue, 'Phone London.
GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland., London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exelugrang, London.
GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 41, Ebury Street, London, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 1519.
HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16, Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.
HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.
IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Idealfilms, Borehamwood.
J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Cricklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).
MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.
MIDLAND ACTORS' FILM CO., 76, Broad Street, Birmingham.
MINERVA FILM CO., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.
NEW AGENCY FILM CO., 115a, Ebury Street, London, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 6856.
PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shoreham-Ly-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.
SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.
SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Streatham 2652.
STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpie, Crickle, London.
SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1933—Success Films, Liverpool.
THOMSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 361 and 712.
TORQUAY & PAIGINTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.
WELSH, PEARSON & CO., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.
WILSONIAN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD., Secretary, W. J. Crook, 547, Wandsworth Road, S.W.
ZODIAC FILMS, Windsor Studios, Bromley Road, Catford. 'Phone: Lee Green, 948.

You cannot do better than by placing your orders with

L. BENJAMIN & CO.

99, Middlesex Street, E.1.

'Phone—London Wall 7568.

KENMA

The "Star" of Greaseless Paints

Kenma is the only greaseless paint, and is the perfect substitute for grease paint. It is much more easily applied than grease paint, and is easier to get off. It enables the user to make up quickly, without discomfort.

Kenma adheres with perfect natural-looking evenness. It never cakes. It is sufficiently opaque to obliterate all skin blemishes such as freckles, etc. Kenma gives much better photographic results than are possible with grease paints.

With Kenma you can "work over" the make-up—that is, you can rectify accidental smudges without removing the entire make-up.

Kenma can be removed instantly with soap and water. It will not cause the familiar spots that ordinary grease paints make on clothing.

Supplied in four colours—white, pale yellow, medium yellow and pink, in collapsible tubes, price 1/3 and 2/6.

KENMA

Eyebrow & Eyelash Black

is as efficient as Kenma Greaseless Paint. In collapsible tubes, price 1/3.

It is 1. Easy to apply. 3. Does not "matt" on the lashes.
2. Easy to remove. 4. Promotes the natural growth of lashes.

Kenma Greaseless Paint and Eye-lash Darkener may be obtained from—Clarkson's, Harrods (Hairdressing Department), Shirecliff & Co., 66, Goldhawk Rd., Shepherd's Bush, or direct from the Manufacturers

A FREE SAMPLE.

On request, we will send a Free Sample Tube of Kenma Greaseless Paint—write for it to day.

The
OATINE Company, Limited,
Oatine Buildings, Borough, London, SE1.

The MOTION PICTURE Studio

The only weekly journal devoted solely to the interests of all concerned in the Production of British Motion Pictures.

Editorial and Advertisement Offices:
85, LONG ACRE, LONDON, W.C. 2.
Grams: Southernwood, Rand, London.
Telephone: ———— Gerrard 9870.

Make certain of securing your copy regularly each week by placing an order with your local newsagent or by becoming a regular subscriber—in which case fill in the Order Form printed below and post with remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER FORM

To The Manager,
"MOTION PICTURE STUDIO,"
85, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

Please send "THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO" to me at the following address for months, for which I enclose remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES
3 Months -	5/-
6 " -	10/-
Yearly -	20/-

Name
Address to which copies are to be sent :
.....
.....

TO KINEMA PRODUCERS.

PICKFORDS, Ltd., 206, High Holborn, London, W.C.1,

Supply on Hire by Hour or Job—

PORTABLE GENERATING MACHINES

Capable of 36 K.W. and carrying 23 Artists at same time.

HORSES OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

PERIOD VEHICLES.

MODERN MOTORS.

VANS FOR ALL PURPOSES.

Arrange—

EVERY FORM OF TRAVEL TO ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

HOTEL ACCOMMODATION EVERYWHERE.

FORWARDING OF FILMS ABROAD AND ALL CUSTOMS MATTERS.

PASSPORTS.

LOCATION ADVICE GRATIS BY EXPERTS.

The Motion Picture Studio, July 2, 1921.

The MOTION PICTURE Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 4.

Saturday, July 2, 1921.

FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH MOTION
PICTURES

IVO DAWSON

See page 13

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."
219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Now playing lead in "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" (Ideal). Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.
Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.
Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds," "The Knight Errant," "Haigh Serial," "Love Maggie."
4 Park Place, St. James, S.W. Regent 4060.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal). "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).

7, Dynham Road, West Hampstead, N.W.6.

PHOTO
BLOCK

THIS SPACE
TO LET

£3 for 13 insertions, including cost of making block.

VICTOR McLAGLAN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES. LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs. NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc.

Carlton House, Kew Green, Kew, Surrey.

ORDER YOUR COPY through your local newsagent, or fill in the Subscription Order Form on page 14.

ARTISTES

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House,"

"Wuthering Heights," etc.

148, AMHURST ROAD, HACKNEY.

Phone: Dalston 813.

DICK WEBB

Lead GAUMONT, MASTER PRODUCTIONS, etc.

180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

THIS SPACE
TO LET

£2 : 10 : 0
for 13 insertions

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.
197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph. Batt. 1770 or 21.

CLIVE BROOK
INVITES OFFERS.

24, Hyde Park Square, W.2. Padd. 2868.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT,

Disengaged July 4. Phone: Walthamstow 938.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,

15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.
Phone: Hornsey 1784.

CHARLES CLIFFORD,

38, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.2.
Phone: Regent 5692.

CRISPIN HAY,

c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,

1, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS, Author, Actor,

Producer,
114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

HARDING STEERMAN,

Characters of Distinction,
56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,

24, Cleveland Road,
Barnes, S.W. 13.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,

Character Parts,
57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

COSTUMIER

W. CLARKSON,

Costumier and Wigmaker,
41/43, Wardour Street, W. Phone: Gerr. 612.

THIS SPACE TO LET
£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

PRODUCERS

BERT HALDANE,

14a, Little Ealing Lane,

:: South Ealing ::

Phone: Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord,"

"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"

"The Face at the Window."

Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road, Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON

Producing for Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd.

Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron," "Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,

Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and "CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."

Five years producer in America.

Address: 1A, DENBIGH PLACE, VICTORIA.

S. L. GLENISTER

Professionally Major Comnenus-Palæologus,

PRODUCER, TECHNICAL & ART DIRECTOR.
"Under the Crescent," "Dumb Girl of Portici," "Campbells are Coming," "Where are My Children?" etc., for UNIVERSAL. "The Arab," for LASKY. "Less than Dust," for ART-CRAFT, etc., etc. Open for Engagement. Address: 25, Randolph Crescent, W. 9. Phone: Paddington 3819.

"Because she can't drown."

GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer to KENELM FOSS

Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,

Hoe St, Walthamstow, E.17.

THIS SPACE
TO LET

£2 : 10 : 0
for 13 insertions

ADRIAN BRUNEL,

Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 (Phone: 5280 Paddington)

RICHARD GARRICK,

Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

Mr. ALBERT WARD,

Producing and Adapting
for Samuelson, Worton Hall, Isleworth.

STUDIO MANAGERJOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—

B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,

Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone: W'stow 364."

CAMERAMEN. . . .JOHN J. COX

44, Barrowgate Road,
 :: Chiswick, W.4. ::
 'Phone : Chiswick 294.
 Cameraman for Mr. Rene Plaissetty,
 Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD

Cameraman—MASTER FILMS,
 TEDDINGTON.
 Latest Productions, "HARD CASH," "STELLA," "MISS CHARITY."

EDWIN DAY

Motion Picture Photographer,
 12, Archer Street, Picca-
 dilly Circus, London, W.1.
 Telephone : Gerrard 780.
 Telegrams : "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON

Thelton House, Cambolt
 :: Road, Putney Hill. ::
 Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN

"GAUMONT'S,"
 105, King's Road,
 Kingston-on-Thames.

"Still playing 'queen' rôles."
FRANK CANHAM

Cameraman—
 ASTRA FILM CO., LTD.
 Permanent Address : Royal Forest
 Hotel, Chingford, Essex.
 What does the pithy person say now ?

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT

GAUMONT,
 :: Chesterfield Lodge, ::
 Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT

Expert Cameraman.
 "The Better 'Ole," "Her Benny,"
 etc., etc.
 2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.
 'Phone : Streatham 1969.

ALFRED H. MOSES

Chief Cameraman—
 GEORGE RIDGWELL PRODUCTIONS
 STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS
 Formerly Chief Cameraman of Norma
 Talmadge, Thanhouser, B. & C., etc.

THIS SPACE TO LET.
 £2 10 0 for 13 insertions.

SCENARISTS. . . .COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,
 The Samuelson Film Co.,
 :: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.
 STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,
 Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.
 Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.
 7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11
 ('Phone : Park 2945).

THIS SPACE TO LET.
 £2 10 0 for 13 insertions.

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,
 Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
 62, Foxbourne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,
 Kinedramatist,
 Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

PUBLICITY. . . .F. J. STANDERWICK,

Photographer.
 I am making a speciality of Catering for
 Film Artists. 'Phone for appointment—
 Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio
 —9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
 W.14.

"The Pithy Persiflage Purveyor."
FRANK J. WOOLF,

Barely earning bread and cheese by bits of earnest boost that please.
 B. & C. FILMS, KENELM FOSS, etc.
 Address : B. & C. Studios.

EDWARD BAIRD,
 Publicity.
 172, Goldhurst Terrace, N.W.6.

GEOFFREY H. MALINS, O.B.E.—Producer—Latest Productions :*

"THE GREATER LOVE."
 "PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
 "SETTLED IN FULL,"
 "ALL THE WINNERS,"
 "WATCHING EYES," etc.

All coms. : c/o A. FRASER,
 26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2
 FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

MILTON ROSMER

Starring in
 "The Pointing Finger,"
 "A Woman of No Importance,"
 "The Amazing Partnership,"
 "Demos," "The Diamond Necklace,"
 "Belphegor the Mountebank,"
 "The Will," "The Twelve Pound
 Look," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

88, NEWMAN ST., W.1.
 Phone - - - Museum 5145.

SIDNEY L. EATON,

KINEMATOGRAPHER,
 3, LEBANON PARK MANSIONS,
 TWICKENHAM.

Productions include:—
 "Darby and Joan," "Westward Ho!"
 "Story of the Rosary," "Hobson's
 Choice," "Wen by a Head," "Rodney
 Stone," "The Old Arm Chair," "Like-
 ness of the Night," "Croxley Master,"
 "Ships that Pass in the Night," etc., etc.

AT LIBERTY FOR
 FIRST CLASS PRODUCTIONS.

HUGH CROISE*Producer.*

Sole Adaptor and Producer
 of
 "THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—
 c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

DO YOU WANT A SCENARIO ?

I have a 5/6-reel working continuity on my hands owing to suspension of work at a British studio. The story, which is original, will be published by me in book-form simultaneously with release of film.

HARRY HUGHES,

Editing Sub-titling, Continuities.
 47, DEAN ST., LONDON, W.1.
 Regent 2592.

'PHONE
Bramlins

MUSEUM 4038, 4039

FOR

Everything You Require for
YOUR PRODUCTION.

YOUR STORY
YOUR STAFF
YOUR CAST
YOUR LOCATIONS.

We make it Easy for You
to Make Your Pictures.

*American Agents:
Edward Small Inc.,
1493 Broadway,
New York, U.S.A.*

*Telegrams:
Bramlifilms
(Westcent),
London.*

Bramlins

241, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.C.2

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 4

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

July 2, 1921.

The Authors Defend Themselves..

NOW that a number of famous—and in some cases popular—authors has been induced to go to the City of the Angels to write stories for the screen, the question has arisen in low high-brow circles as to whether they damage their reputation thereby. The obvious reply of the cheap humorist is that such a thing is impossible. But the authors themselves are taking the question rather more seriously. For it has been suggested that their efforts are inefficient and misguided, and that the results of their collaboration with the scenarist and the producer will do harm to an Industry which has already suffered severely from a misalliance of art and commerce.

The "Uplift" Movement.

THE heads of the larger producing organisations have claimed that this co-operation with the author is an attempt to put the photo-play on a higher plane. No doubt it is, but equally doubtless is their real motive the exploitation of names and big reputations. Witness the fact that G. B. S. is credited with having been offered a large sum for the use of his name only. Here is concrete proof of the desire for name only for purposes of commercial exploitation. At the same time, there are a few producing heads who are foresighted enough to see that good screen stories by real authors who have studied the technique of the photoplay, have a very great business value. For once then, uplift goes hand in hand with commerce.

What the Writers Say.

IN defending themselves against the accusations referred to at the beginning of these notes, several well known English and American novelists have made some good points. Elinor Glyn, for example says that "no author should be condemned as a poor screen writer unless he has been responsible for the manner in which his story has been presented." That is our old American friend, the alibi! Then she remarks that "No further author has the right to expect success upon merely his name. If eminent authors fail as screen writers it is up to them—and if they cannot learn their lesson as to why they failed—the conditions being as they wished—the sooner they clear out the better. A humble attitude is what eminent authors want to cultivate, and then let them stand or fall by the merits or demerits of their conception of the new art they are trying to learn." Humble attitudes for eminent authors! Ye Gods!!

Maurice, Hughes and Language.

THE opinion of Gouverneur Morris deals with the "mission" of the the policy of the cameraman to the producer. While agreeing with much that he writes we are inclined to the opinion that while the cameraman has certain duties to the producer the latter also has obligations to his cameraman. In too many cases does the producer regard the cameraman as a kind of higher-grade menial labourer whose sole function is to turn a handle. This idea, we sometimes think, accounts for many of the technical defects found in British productions.

Pioneering.

NOT without reason has J. Stuart Blackton been accused of being an inveterate pioneer, for he has led the way in many of the innovations that are now commonplaces of film production. His latest is, of course, the production of a full length photoplay in natural colours. Such an epoch making event cannot be allowed to pass without special notice, and as Milton Rosmer last week claimed for the Motion Picture Studio that it should "stand as a living demonstration that new ideas are the very life-blood of our art," we have decided to set

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"A Woman of No Importance"

(Ideal) is in all departments one of the most successful films turned out by a British studio. Denison Clift's technique is practically flawless and he has handled the artistes—of whom Fay Compton and Milton Rosmer particularly distinguish themselves—with fine power and imagination. The scenario, the joint work of the producer and Arthur Q. Walton has been a model in balance and detail. The production as an example of proper appreciation and employment of photoplay values could be studied with advantage by British producers and artistes. William Shenton's photography is on a high level, some clouds and landscapes are exceptionally fine.

"Appearances" (Famous-Lasky)

owes its greatest virtue to the cast in which Marjorie Hume has a part, which, small as it is, serves to indicate her great possibilities. Mary Glynne gives an excellent performance, to which David Powell runs a close second. The costumer of the Lasky studio has done excellently—the female members of the cast are exquisitely gowned. Donald Crisp reveals himself as a brilliant producer with artistic ideas, and the cameraman has excelled himself. The story is strong in plot and Margaret Turnbull's continuity has developed the dramatic possibilities to the utmost. Somewhat scrappy at times this should nevertheless be a successful production.

author. He says that "the elimination of the superficial pictures—the establishment of the picture with a thought element that will reach the masses—the subsequent education of the masses—that, I believe, is the mission of the author in the photoplay world." Fine—if only the executors of the producing units would believe it. Then Rupert Hughes, speaking his little piece, opines that the author can do through the medium of the screen some of the things which all the other arts can do and many things which no other art can do. He is quite right; it can! But he is a bit hard on the language of his own country when he declared that "stories written in the American language are really hard for the Englishman to understand."

The Cameraman's Function.

ELSEWHERE in this issue will be found an article by a working cameraman on what he thinks should be aside our July 16 issue as a Blackton number. And in order to show to America that British studios are subscribing to a progressive policy we have arranged for copies of this special number to be circulated in every American studio. There are numerous obvious advantages for British artistes in this scheme; but we wish particularly to point out that the July 16 issue will be printed throughout in colour and the numerous Blackton players that have inserted their photographs will have the advantage of knowing that producers on both sides of the Atlantic will see them in their coloured costumes that they will wear in the film. This special issue, we are gratified to know, is already in great demand both for circulation and advertisements, and we are now assured that it is going to be the sensation of the season in studio-land; a success in which all who are getting into its pages will share.

BRITISH SCREEN BEAUTIES

Photo]

[Claude Harris

EVELYN BRENT

Played lead in "Sybil" (Ideal) and "Laughter and Tears" (Granger-Binger Production) now playing lead in "Sonia." at Ideal Studios, Boreham Wood.

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

A . V . B R A M B L E

What training should all producers have? That is a question that intrigues me at the moment. Take A. V. Bramble. He has had what I consider an ideal education for his present work. Starting as an art student, he subsequently joined the stage, where he played with such masters as Oscar Asche and Fred Terry. Next, he took to film acting and film production, studying photography, as a hobby, on the way. It would be interesting and informative if my readers would send me their views of the best form of training for film producers.

* * *

Ruby Miller, I see, is of the opinion that stage-acting experience is very valuable for film work, and thinks it would be of great value to both arts if everybody connected with them did six months on the stage and six months on the films. Without passing any too serious a comment on this assertion I really think that there are some folk engaged in both arts who ought to do six months in Pentonville!

I have had a chat with Percy Nash who has returned home for a few days from Rome, where he is producing for the U.C.I., an Italian firm. Said Mr. Nash: "Nearly every hill surrounding the capital glistens with glass studios the size of which simply makes you stand aghast. For instance, two studios have just been completed, each with a floor space of nearly 300 ft. In one of them the firm I am with is making twelve pictures, all the sets of which are solidly built in plaster, framework playing a very small part in their manufacture. Every facility is available to help make a perfect production. What a difference from England, where everybody and everything works against the producer,

ON THE FLOOR WITH G. RIDGEWELL

George Ridgewell has his own ideas as to how a producer should work. Originally he was a scenarist in the States, but shortly before he came back to his native land he started out as a producer.

The scenario he writes himself. He goes through it, carefully cutting down the scenes, until he gets to the correct length. He spends a great deal of time and labour on the scenario, and when on the floor follows it exactly.

He explains to his artistes what he wants, and as often as not first acts the part himself, so that there can be no mistake. After a short rehearsal he shoots.

Ridgewell can certainly be classed among the quietest of producers in existence. Almost in a whisper he directs his artistes, and while they are working stands at the back of the camera acting the part himself.

Ridgewell, with all his quiet ways, certainly gets results. When the scene has been "shot" he knows that he has got what he wants—he knows that the scene will want little cutting when the picture is being assembled. He has gone right through the script carefully, visualising each scene and marking at the side how many feet it should be. If at the end he discovers that there are a few hundred feet too many, he goes through it again and again until he has cut it down to the footage required.

For a producer, he is wonderfully economical; by taking care in the writing of his scenario, he saves wasting film. There is no taking forty thousand feet of film and then cutting it down to five thousand. Besides regarding this as wasteful, he claims that cutting such a large amount of footage out is bound to spoil the continuity.

He does not claim to know more about photography than his cameraman—Al Moses. Before a scene is "shot" he allows Moses to have a walk round the set and to see that everything is in order. He will wait until the cameraman pronounces judgment before he starts. By careful co-operation with his cameraman, he gets the best possible results.

from the financier (who is afraid to spend money for fear the film should not pay) to the authorities who refuse to allow places of public interest to be photographed for reasons best known to themselves."

* * *

At the moment Maudie Dunham is playing in two productions, "Laughter and Tears," for Granger-Binger, and "Love, Courtship and Marriage" for George Horton—their engagement has just been announced. (Cynics will say the name of the G.-B. production will also do for the romantic one!) According to Maudie's publicity manager, she says: "I have always played the dear little simple heroine, but not this time." But I hasten to explain that Maudie is speaking about her part in "Laughter and Tears."

* * *

Bush House has for the last few weeks been the Mecca of all film artistes. There has been an extraordinary rush to get parts in Blackton's first production, but the casting (save for some crowd scenes) has now ceased. Work has been commenced on the first scenes, and Felix Orman is trying to take a well-deserved rest. Orman tells us that he has had quite a number of Society people in trying to get jobs.

* * *

There seems to be an extraordinary boom in the film business just now for producing comedies. There have been some good English comedies lately, and an equal number of rubbishy ones. Most of them are merely attempts to copy traditional American stuff, forgetting that most American comedies are not in the slightest degree funny, and therefore to copy them is just making more junk for the market. Nor is it a fact that music-hall comedians are necessarily film comedians, because showing a red nose and making faces at the camera is not film fun.

* * *

Very few companies have made use of the wonderful clear atmosphere around London during the coal lock-out. But things are bound to liven up when everyone gets back from holiday, and when the good old November fogs come on most of the companies will feel more at home, and business will be good once more. "MEGAPHONE."

Where they are and

Harry Worth has just finished work with Stoll.

L. G. Egrot has been photographing in Wales.

Jack Jarman appeared recently in a Grand Guignol film.

Rex Wilson will shortly recommence work at Samuelsons.

James Knight is appearing in Harma's next production.

Adrian Johnson, the scenarist, is now free-lancing.

Denison Clift is just starting work on "Sonia" for Ideal.

Harold Shaw is producing "General John Regan" at Cricklewood.

Ward McAllister is playing in "General John Regan" at Stoll's.

Jack Raymond has produced a number of the Grand Guignol series.

Edwin G. Collins has finished "God in the Garden" for Masters.

Wilfred Noy has completed "The Marriage Lines" for Masters.

Marjorie Villis plays the part of a Welsh girl in the next Harma production.

Bert Darley is playing with Minerva Films after a few weeks in Holland.

Bernard Dudley makes his debut as a producer in the next Harma photoplay.

Donald Crisp is appearing in "The Bonnie Briar Bush," a Lasky production.

Harry Lorraine is filming his picture for the Atlantic Artcraft Productions, in Jersey.

Dorothy Fane plays lead in "One Week to Live," a comedy which Sinclair Hill is producing.

Campbell Gallan plays opposite Dorothy Fane in Sinclair Hill's new comedy, "One Week to Live."

Fred Paul has been busy on the Grand Guignol films, which he has been directing for Screenplays.

S. D. Brahmé is assisting with the production of "One Week to Live" at Samuelson's studio.

Barbara Hoff has finished work with Masters, where she has been appearing in "The Marriage Lines."

Frank Millar wrote the Scenario of "One Week to Live," which is being produced at Samuelson's.

Teddy O'Neil is playing the part of Timothy Doyle in "General John Regan," being produced by Harold Shaw for Stoll.

Mary Odette is playing in the next Thompson production, a number of the scenes of which will be produced on the Continent.

Frank Stanmore is in "The Wonderful Year."

Louis Mercanton made a flying visit to London last week.

Olaf Hytten has been re-engaged for Stoll's by Sydney Jay.

Gwen Williams has an important part in "The Wonderful Year" (Thompson).

Kenneth Gordon has returned from Ireland, and is photographing for Pathé.

A. V. Bramble is now engaged on the production of "The Rotters" for Ideal.

Lionelle Howard has a leading part in "The Wonderful Year," the latest Thompson British Production.

Robert Vallis has just finished playing the part of the convict in "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (Stoll).

Sydney Fairbrother has been engaged to play the female lead in "The Rotters," which A. V. Bramble is producing for Ideal at the Elstree studios.

Randle Ayrton, recently returned from the States, is now playing in "The Wonderful Year," which Kenelm Foss is producing for Thompson British Productions.

Georges Treville, in producing "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" for Ideal, is working in his nineteenth year of film production. He intends to stay in this country for some time.

Mary Patterson is "making comedy" in "The Beggars' Syndicate" (Minerva).

Adrian Brunel is now busy on his next comedy for Minerva, "The Beggars' Syndicate."

Arthur Beard, one of the directors of B. and C., is with the company on location in the Tyrol. Edward Godal is also there.

Crispin Hay has been provided with an important comedy part in the latest Minerva Comedy, "The Beggars' Syndicate."

—DO YOU—

The name of the leading character in the forthcoming "Queen-mother" film; and—

* * *
What Frank Canham is doing about it.
* * *

Who is the studio manager now starring in a well-known film; and—

* * *
What Janie thinks about it.
* * *

The name of the prominent film actor who was seriously likened unto one, Bernard Shaw? And—

* * *
Whether it is G.B.S. or the actor who has been libelled.
* * *

The name of the producer who quarrelled with the leading man for making love to the heroine too realistically; and—

HOW PRODUCERS

by WILLIAM

I intend the term "producer" to include the whole of the commercial side of the organisation of film production, and not merely the "director," whom I shall describe by that title for the purposes of this article. So far as the English director goes, I have no particular grouch against him. I regard him rather as a companion in misfortune.

Nevertheless, there are two types of directors who do consistently spoil scenarios. First, the gentleman who, no matter how perfect, technically and artistically, the script may be, obstinately refuse to take the floor until he has more or less completely pulled the said script to pieces and reassembled it according to his own ideas—with many additions and interpolations of his own.

And, secondly, the type of director who suffers from "brain waves." Sooner or later in the course of production the brain wave will come—a "stunt," a piece of byplay, a particular effect—something more or less extraneous to the plot and that direct line of continuity which is the first principle of a good scenario.

But, on the whole, the director is not the person responsible for the consistent spoiling of scenarios which, in my humble opinion, goes so far to mar the success of British films. The crime is a collective one, perpetrated by those commercial gentleman (and the tragedy of it is that they are not sufficiently commercial to understand the commercial value of really artistic work) who are responsible for the "business side."

What usually happens is something like this: One is commissioned to adapt a novel and to make a seven-reel scenario therefrom. With infinite care and labour he produces the continuity. In order to please the firm's director, the firm's scenario editor, and the firm's managing director, he makes various minor alterations in this, until finally, after many anxious consultations, the director, scenario editor, and managing director all express their entire satisfaction with the script and hand over a cheque.

Then the film is transported to the lair of the Commercial Gentleman in Wardour-street. It has now passed entirely out of the hands of its creators into those of people who, as a general rule, have about as much knowledge of art or of the requirements of the public as a pound-note has of the Athenasian Creed; it is viewed no longer as an artistic creation, but simply as a Commercial Possibility. It is then Trade Shown. Not the pictorial presentation of the story one spent

what they are doing

Arthur Booth is finishing work on "Too Many Cooks" (Minerva).

Gladys Jennings figures as Sybil in "The Prey of the Dragon" (Stoll).

Maudie Dunham is engaged to be married to George Horton, of Westcliff.

Edward R. Gordon has completed the script of a further series of episodes of the Haigh serial, which he is producing at the Master studio.

—KNOW—

The real reason for the producer's anger?

What really is happening at Master studios?

If the Ideal cricket team hope it never meets Harlesden again; and—

Whether Kendrick really was hypnotised?

What would have happened if Margaret Hope had hypnotised Geoffrey Malins?

The real reason of Renee Kelly's joke about "man embracing woman"; and—

What it was Rex Davis whispered to her at the wedding scene?

How George Ridgewell liked the inside of Vine-street Police Station?

Mm. de Marsan and Mandru, of the De Marsan Producing Co., of Paris, were in London last week securing exteriors for "A Dead Man's Love."

Amy Verity is playing female lead in "A Dead Man's Love" (De Marsan).

Warwick Ward is in the cast of "The Mayor of Casterbridge" (Progress).

Pauline Peters is supporting Fred Groves in "The Mayor of Casterbridge" (Progress).

Mairns Clare has been engaged for a part in "The Mayor of Casterbridge" (Progress).

Sidney Morgan is under contract to star Fred Groves in his latest Progress production, "The Mayor of Casterbridge."

Peggy Fishwick has been working at the Ideal studios at Elstree on a part in Denison Clift's production, "Sonia."

Fred Groves is the star player in "The Mayor of Casterbridge" (Progress), and not Pauline Peters, as stated previously.

Dora Henwood has just finished playing Marion Pickwick, the heroine in Neville Bruce's latest comedy, which is the last of a series of leading parts.

Bertram Burleigh is playing male lead in "A Dead Man's Love," which De Marsan, of Paris, is producing in this country and France. Bertram Burleigh goes to France this week.

John Miller is busily editing "Cherry Ripe" (Foss).

J. Cordova is the new scenarist at the Gaumont studios.

Margot Drake plays in Kenelm Foss's "Wonderful Year."

Winifred Nelson has a part in "Roses in the Dust" (Gaumont).

Olive Eltone has been working in Grand Guignol's for screen plays.

John A. Geeves is in his third year of studio management for B. and C.

Richard Garrick is now working in Paris as supervising director for Pathé.

Langhorne Burton is now back with Famous-Lasky at Islington again.

Will Kellino will shortly be casting for a special picture at the Gaumont studio.

Frederick Tooze is the male lead in the Gaumont production, "Roses in the Dust."

Johnny Reid has the male lead in B. and C.'s "Puppet Man," by Cosmo Gordon Lennox.

Holiday Attley has been booked by Frycr and Rodger for an important part for screen plays.

H. McLellan has now severed his connection with Gaumont, and is, for the moment, on the free list.

M. Minetta has just finished leading parts in Grand Guignol films produced at the Cranmer Court for screen plays.

Frank J. Woolf is in charge of the publicity department for B. and C., and is also doing the Press work for Kenelm Foss.

Grace Rose is acting as assistant producer for Kenelm Foss's "Wonderful Year," as she does with all his productions.

Gordon Craig (who is the grandson of Ellen Terry) has been booked by Fryer and Rodger for Captain Calvert's next Gaumont production.

Robert Field has been booked to play in "Roses in the Dust," the British Screen-craft production now being produced at the Gaumont studio.

Harry Hearty has just concluded a short contract with Perfect Day Productions, and until he starts work on a series of comedies specially written for him, is working for Geoffrey Malins.

Fred Paul has been on the sick list for the past six weeks, and has now returned to work at Cranmer Court, where he is directing the production of Grand Guignol dramas from an invalid's chair.

Captain Calvert began the British Screen-craft Production, "Roses in the Dust" last Wednesday. He has engaged a houseboat at Henley for ten days' work on big scenes, and will take a party of 30 artistes down to-day (Saturday).

SPOIL SCENARIOS

J. ELLIOTT

many weeks in laboriously shaping and building up. Not even the crude and rather untrimmed presentation that one saw on the screen of the studio projection room, but just bits and fragments of the original film—long sequences and essentially important scenes having been ruthlessly hacked out and covered by inadequate and often ungrammatical subtitles.

On inquiry as to the reason for this mutilation, one is informed that it has been deemed "commercially expedient" to reduce the length of the film from seven reels to six, and, without much difficulty, one is able to further discover that the gentleman who cut the film was one of the firm's most trusted office boys, on whose judgment and opinion they put considerable reliance! . . . In due course one reads in the reviews that "The Producer has evidently done his best with what was obviously a very poor scenario."

It is not an encouraging business, and, furthermore, it seems to me logically and even commercially inconsistent. Why pay an expert a big fee to write a scenario and another expert a big fee to produce it, only to deliberately spoil the result of their expert knowledge by giving an office boy a pair of shears and permitting him to hack it about at his own sweet will?

It is always as well, in making a plaint of this kind, to suggest some sort of constructive policy, and my suggestion is this: The scenario being of primary importance in the production of technically and artistically sound photoplays, the scenarist should remain responsible for the story and continuity throughout the production. No alterations should be made in his script and no cuts should be made in the completed film without his presence and consent.

The responsibility for the production of a photoplay should be divided as follows: The Scenarist for the story, the continuity and the incident; the Director for the acting; the camera man for the photography and lighting effects; and the Art Director for the sets and the general dressing of the subject. These four should work throughout the whole production in the closest collaboration, while the cutting should be supervised throughout by the Scenarist and the Director together, and it should be realised that it cannot in any circumstances be "commercially expedient" to further cut or alter the result of their labours—at any rate, without close and careful consultation with them.

MODEL "C" CAMERA

The Up to-date Studio Camera.W. VINTEN

89-91, Wardour Street, W.1.

Telephone: - - - REGENT 2702.

ALL WE ASK IS—*TO LEARN YOUR REQUIREMENTS

IN THE WAY OF

COSTUMES,WIGS,*PROPS, etc.,*FOR YOUR NEXT FILM.*EFFICIENT SERVICE.*H. & M. RAYNE,
115-119, WATERLOO RD., S.E.

WEST END BRANCH—

15, RUPERT STREET.

A CLUB FOR STUDIO WORKERS
SOME OPINIONS AND A PROPOSITIONThe Suggestion.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that while the Vaudeville Club caters effectively for the variety artistes, there is a great need for a spot where all engaged in kinema work could meet on common ground for social intercourse and other obvious amenities. We are convinced that the time has arrived when this need should be met if only for the reason that the day of the British film world and its population has dawned: that those engaged in making British pictures are becoming a highly organised body, and therefore experience the need of a neutral meeting place that all organised bodies are conscious of.

At the moment it is not possible to go to any specific place with the certainty of meeting a group of film players for the purpose of discussing with them their work and their prospects; no place for film players to spend their leisure or to conduct their personal business. There is some talk of the Actors' Association forming an Actors' Club, but A. Harding Steerman, in a letter to the Stage, says that the committee is "entirely agreed" that "it will be an A.A. club for A.A. members."

What we have in mind is the establishment of a club with rooms which could be used for refreshment, recreation, correspondence, interviews, and society meetings. In this suggestion we have the support of many sections of the producing end of the business. The cameramen, for instance, now meet at Patmacs, but probably would be glad to utilise the accommodation available at the Kinema Club.

At this juncture we are not concerning ourselves with ways and means, although we are prepared at any moment to submit a scheme for organising the club. The plan that we have in mind would ensure the club being self-supporting, and should show a gratifying profit that could be used either for benevolent purposes or for furthering the financial stability of the venture.

Opinions Invited.

We invite opinions and suggestions from all our readers. Do not hesitate to criticise the idea if you fail to see the wisdom or utility of it. Do not hesitate to send along your suggestions and offers of support if it appeals to you. The Kinema Club ought to be in actual existence before the fall of the year.

An Artiste's View.

This is a project upon which I am particularly keen—in fact, as far back as 1914 I put the proposition up to G. B. Samuelson, but he did not then see the practicability of the scheme. However, we have grown since then.

I should like to see a club established which had fairly stiff qualifications as to membership, only those being eligible who have done something worthy in the industry, so that a person who was a member would at once have a standing as somebody who "mattered" in Film-land. Let it be an honour to be a member of the Kinema Club.

Of course, I should welcome associate members, as producers, managers and others would be able to draw from these for countless needs.

There is a great need for a Kinema Club, not merely socially—though here, of course, it would do immense good, as it would bring thinkers together for an exchange of ideas for the good of the new art—but with a proper governing body it would, I feel sure, obviate the possibility of a trade union or other organisation which might breed strikes.

I should be only too happy to meet others interested and help in any way to bring into being this scheme through the medium of this our Press organ."—BERTRAM BURLEIGH.

The Film Press Club.

My personal views are that such a club would be both welcome and desirable, but it is difficult to express a real opinion on the matter in regard to the Film Press Club without having some fairly comprehensive outline of the suggested organisation.

I hardly think that a similar arrangement to the Vaudeville Club will meet the case of the film trade. We shall, in fact, have to go in for something on a far more ambitious scale, and I think it will be necessary to take over a whole building for the purpose if the co-operation of the various associations and clubs in the Trade is required.

For instance, as far as the Film Press Club is concerned, I feel certain that the members would desire a separate part of the premises for their exclusive use. As you know, in common with many other members of the club, I am very anxious for the Film Press Club to have its own premises, but, for obvious reasons, these must have an asset of exclusiveness.

Apart from what would best serve the interests of the Film Press Club individually, there is no doubt but that, in the event of such a Kinema Club as you suggest being inaugurated, the Film Press Club would also be glad to utilise the accommodation available at the club for its meetings and social gatherings. I am at least sufficiently interested in the idea to want to see it further developed, and I should like, if possible, to see a scheme outlined that could be brought before the members of the Film Press Club for discussion at the forthcoming annual general meeting.

If you could get a nucleus of support such as might be provided by the Film Press Club and one or two similar organisations, no doubt you could get down to business, and, once started, it should not be a difficult thing to carry on."—R. C. DEARING (Film Press Club).

[Opinions and further suggestions, for publication, are invited from all interested in this proposition. The formation of such a club might well be the first step towards a Film Artistes' Association.]

STILLS IN THE MAKING

by COLIN N. BENNETT, F.C.S., F.R.P.S.

There is a steady demand for good quality stills as advertising matter for feature films. As ten by eight, or twelve by ten prints, done on glossy bromide paper and finished with a ferrotype glaze, they have long since proved themselves useful to attract attention to the kinema frontage. Also the negatives come in handy for making lantern slides by reduction and for preparing half-tone printing blocks for newspaper advertising campaigns. Every large and modern studio has at least one still photographer on the staff with his twelve by ten or his ten by eight camera. Yet all films are not made under conditions which lend themselves to a good set of stills being produced at the same time, and even with some of the biggest feature films it is a fairly common occurrence for the still cameraman to be elsewhere when a splendid chance for exposing a ten by eight plate occurs in the course of location work.

A Makeshift.

When a film producer happens to find himself without a still view of one of the most telling stunts in his production he has to do the best he can by enlarging a single picture from the actual kine. negative, but the best to be got that way is, photographically, never at all good. A ten by eight print from a kine. picture means, for one thing, an enlargement of about twelve diameters, and this from an original not on a fairly homogeneous and reasonably well surfaced glass support, but having for its base sheet celluloid, the surface of which is full of small striate and similar imperfections.

To enlarge decently from a negative kine. picture the usual and simple way is to bind it between sheets of thin, good quality glass, and to minimise what surface imperfections there are by placing a ground glass diffusing screen between the illuminant and the condenser of the enlarging lantern.

A better, though also far more messy way is to pour a small pool of prepared canada balsam upon one of the glass plates, lay the kine. negative picture upon the pool of balsam, gently pressing out air bells, pour more balsam over the upper side of the film picture, lay on the second glass plate, again press air bells out of the field of view, and bind the two plates together, of course, placing round about the edges of the film picture an opaque mask to keep the enlarging paper or plate from being flooded by surrounding light. That second way will help greatly to get rid of the disadvantages otherwise inevitable when enlarging from a celluloid surface.

Still it will not overcome the fact that at twelve diameters of enlargement the grain of the silver particles forming any ordinary photographic image becomes unpleasantly visible, while want of detail is emphasised in a way it never would be on the motion-picture projection screen. To make the best of these latter drawbacks, hand work, with the waste of time, labour and expense attendant upon it, is the one and only fall-back. Hence we shall agree that, if we can avoid making display stills from actual kine. cuttings, we had much better do so.

Be Prepared.

A way of being ready for the unforeseen in location stills, at times when the regular still man is for any reason left behind, is to carry with the motion-picture kit a press camera and a few loaded dark slides. If the press camera is a half-plate reflex we shall be well provided in one way, though at the expense of some additional weight and bulk in the total load to haul about with us. Seeing that a half-plate picture will require enlargement to give us ten by eight, or twelve by ten display prints, a question will naturally arise whether we might not do with a quarter-plate camera instead, and whether a folding one would not do instead of the comparatively heavy and bulky reflex type?

Here is a question upon which different workers will have different views. Some people think a quarter-plate can be enlarged to almost any size without noticeable loss of detail. Hardly anyone will contend that a well-made ten by eight or twelve by ten bromide enlargement from a snappy quarter-plate cannot be so good, but that it will easily pass muster for a sharp contact print. Actually, the shorter focus of quarter-plate lenses, as compared with half-plate lenses embracing the same angle of view, and their greater depth of focus, rapidity for rapidity, are factors on the side of choosing an emergency quarter-plate outfit rather than the half-plate one. As for using a folding pocket camera in place of the reflex, the advantage of small weight and small bulk will again be with the folding camera so long as it is used by a man who knows how to handle his focusing scale properly.

So far we have got down, size by size, to quarter-plate as suitable for the occasional maker of location stills. What of smaller sizes again?

The Pocket Camera.

Quite a number of pocket cameras are obtainable which take plates of the size of three and a half by two and a half inches. These cameras range in price and quality from those like the costly N. and G. "Sybil" to the homely two or three guineas affair, which latter would be of no use at all to us, on account of its lens failing somewhat in rapidity and in marginal crispness of definition. Then again, several French opticians have tiny cameras taking even smaller plates.

A typical example, and probably the best example, of these midget cameras is the Gaumont "Blocknote," made at the Paris factory of the Gaumont Company (the same which makes Chrono projectors). Blocknote cameras take plates of a size of two and five-eighths by one and three-quarter inches. The lenses of these little cameras are the same as we fit to our motion-picture ones, so that plates exposed in them develop up with microscopic definition and will bear enlargement accordingly. To make a ten by eight inch enlargement from a Blocknote negative entails a degree of magnification of between four and five diameters, or just not enough to produce a visible and worrying effect of silver grain in the resulting print. The negative support being glass, it will usually be free from blemishes of the kind which would make trouble in the enlarged picture. Here then, in the Blocknote type of still camera, with its anastigmat wide aperture lens, its ease of manipulation, featherweight, finely-scaled focusing for close-ups and accurately graded range of shutter speeds, is a camera which the producer himself can, if he wills, slip in his pocket and so be ready to snap for himself each suddenly recognised and practicable "still" whenever the fancy may take him.

Similarly, when on the look-out for likely locations and promising scenic settings, the presence of a camera of this sort gives power of recording all one wants to remember at times when the weighty ten by eight, or the quarter or half-plate reflex, are not at hand. Midget cameras really ought, for these reasons, to be better known among kinematographers than they are, for they have distinct value as adjuncts to the making of better motion pictures.

THE NEED FOR FILM ARTISTES TO ORGANISE

by ALFRED LUGG, General Secretary, Actors' Association

I have read with great interest your various remarks on the above subject, and also the remarks made by A. Harding Steerman in your issue of June 18, and would like to add that whatever may be the various points of view on this subject, there can surely be no doubts as to the necessity of organisation among all who labour for their living.

If the reports that one hears can be complete, none can be more in need of organisation than kinema artistes. I learn from "crowd" workers and even from "stars" that the conditions under which they work leave very much to be desired, and, while one naturally does not wish to organise in a spirit of antagonism to fair employers, modern life clearly illustrates that those who remain unorganised must be subjected to a great amount of tyranny and to very bad conditions of labour.

Because it may appear to be very difficult to organise the kinema worker is no argument at all against an attempt, but there is only one person who can work out salvation for this particular branch of worker in the entertainment industry, and that is the kinema artiste himself. Unless and until the kinema artistes are prepared to combine, and individually and collectively stand in a solid phalanx for what is just and right, no improvement can possibly be brought about in the conditions under which they work.

The Actors' Association, in conjunction with the Variety Artistes' Federation, has drawn up a contract which, I think, is fair and equitable in every possible way, and although it can be—and, we hope, will be—criticised in detail, yet there can be no doubt that on the whole it asks for nothing which is not fair to the artiste or which is unfair to the management concerned.

If the organisation of the kinema industry demands a separate organisation, I sincerely hope that some such organisation will immediately be formed; but I am unconvinced that the Actors' Association provided it receives the support of the workers in the kinema industry, cannot achieve anything and everything which these workers may desire.

I feel I must congratulate The Motion Picture Studio on the attitude that it has taken on this subject, and I am also quite sure that most of the best producers and manufacturing companies would welcome organisation on the part of artistes provided it is conducted in a proper way.

The Biggest Successes have BENJAMIN COSTUMES

PERSONAL SUPERVISION GUARANTEED in every detail. 'Phone—London Wall 7568.

HUMAN MATERIAL

WHY CASTING IS SO BADLY DONE

by AN ARTISTE-VICTIM.

Next to story the weakest part of many British productions is the casting. And as a result of careful investigation and consultation, I have come to the regrettable conclusion that one of the difficulties in the way of quality-casts is the sex aspect that is forced in. There is an undeniable tendency among certain studio men to use girls who are prepared to exploit their femininity for the gratification of the man who casts. My readers will know of one studio that is notorious for this, and of a certain managing director who repeatedly turns down the best artistes when they fail to respond to his invitation to familiarity.

Only last week the irate father of a capable and experienced actress complained to me of the overtures that had been made to his daughter: her refusal meant her dismissal. Our screens have been purged of the unclean element. It is now the turn of the studio to be cleansed.

Another difficulty in the way of good casts is the fact that friends and relatives of the studio "heads" are given star parts because of their relation to the "heads." In the office of one casting director is a notice from the head of the organisation: "Miss — must always be used." Again, it is in the knowledge of my readers of producers who "star" their wives with perfect disregard of the fitness of the lady for the part.

This subject raises the question: "Who should do the casting?" And, in my opinion, there should be only two engaged in this task: the producer and the scenarist. As matters stand, the selection by the producer is often overruled by the managing director, who (for reasons that I refrain from stating more explicitly than I have done already) has some other ladies for the cast.

I know of one instance where the producer turned down a certain actress because she was unsuitable, and engaged another, whereupon the managing director himself engaged the lady who had been "turned down."

I am afraid that I am one of those who fail to see the ultimate utility of the casting director. I am convinced that if producers used agents rightly they would get much better service. An agent stands to gain by obtaining the best cast—he loses if he sends along the wrong people, because the producer in future would not use him.

But the producer may argue that his past experience with agents has not been favourable. Has he used the agent rightly? Or has he just 'phoned him: "I want a juvenile lead—a young fellow about twenty-two"? And, having done this, has he grumbled because "the young fellow about twenty-two" has been hopeless?

To use the agent to the best advantage for all concerned the producer should send the agent the full script two weeks before casting. The agent could then study the character that the "young fellow about twenty-two" had to portray, and select the man accordingly.

I have no brief for agents—there are some who ought to be kicked out of the business—but there are some who have made an intelligent study of their register, and who go to the extent of seeing the folk who are on their register on the screen.

There is, of course, another aspect, and that is the financial one. On this point I admit my inability to speak with undue authority—possibly some of my readers could fill in this blank!—but I know of few studios that pay their artistes adequately. There is one very large studio with an avowed policy of "Maximum salary for any star to be £30." No wonder, bearing all these points in mind, that British productions are what they are. My wonder is not that they are so poor, but that they are so good.

THEIR IDEAL

In an attempt to translate Robbie Burn's pious wish into action and allow Producers and Artistes to see themselves as others see them we have invited representative Producers to give what they consider to be the attributes of their Ideal Artiste from the Producer's point of view, and for Artistes to return the compliment. This series is commenced below, and will be continued for the next few weeks.

MY IDEAL ARTISTE

by NORMAN MACDONALD

My ideal artiste would possess—

FIRST: A soul (or what is usually termed as such) for knowing what acting is and means.

SECOND: The quality of being able to show the feeling of that soul through the medium of expression.

THIRD: The combination of the two above attributes dissolving into a mutual understanding of respect between artiste and producer.

FOURTH.—An artiste who loves the work for the work's sake, knowing that he has within him that "feu sacré." Proud, but modest, in this knowledge; diligent and painstaking in whatever told to do, even in the minutest detail, which may seem trivial at the time.

These attributes, combined with patience and a will power to succeed, seems to me would make as near as possible "an ideal artiste."

MY IDEAL PRODUCER

by MARJORIE HUME

He must combine the qualities of tact, patience, and enthusiasm. He should have a keen artistic sense, which should show itself even in the smallest details, which go so far to make or mar successful production.

He should be in sympathy with his artistes, and although controlling their work, should not lose sight of the little individual touches which go to make up their different personalities.

The producer must have a thorough knowledge of his work from every point of view, as almost the entire success of a film rests with him.

CAMERA, Universal, by Burke & James of Chicago. A beautifully constructed camera, fitted with every device for studio and outdoor work, including fade in or out. Cost 435 dollars, quite new, accept £95. Professional Cine stand with tilt and panoram. head, in perfect condition, £12 10s.
THE KINEMATOGRAPH EXCHANGE,
81, Aldersgate Street, E C 1,

KINE CAMERA EXPOSURE METER

7/8

With Instruction Booklet.

Indicates right lens opening for the light.

"Very reliable, could hardly get on without."

"Complete satisfaction, used for testing actinic value of flame arcs."

WATKINS METER Co
HEREFORD.

IN SEARCH OF BEAUTY

More than 10,000 applicants for parts in the photoplay called at the Blackton offices and studio last week, and the crowd was so great and the eagerness of the applicants such that guards had to be installed to keep the crowd in order. Fully 25,000 people have applied for parts in this picture.

The crush was so great at one time that an elderly character actress was nearly run down in the crowd, and was taken in an almost fainting condition into the office of the casting director. Those applying for parts included not only prominent players of stage and screen, but many society people of prominence who are anxious to be associated with Lady Diana Manners in this film.

When the word got out that Mr. Blackton was seeking the most beautiful women in London, hundreds arrived to show prizes won in beauty contests, or to state that they had been chosen by a noted artist as his model, or had been selected for this or that rôle because of their beauty! The work of picking the most beautiful ones out of the many was a large undertaking.

The more important rôles will be played by leading artistes of the English stage and screen. Many smaller rôles also will be played by well-known artistes. To the smallest of the 130 parts every player has been selected to delineate a definite type. The film is called "The Glorious Adventure," and the story is laid in the time of Charles II.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for Kinematograph Productions. Phone—London Wall 7568

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES

No. IV.—IVO DAWSON

To those who have seen Ivo Dawson in the flesh or on the screen it will be stating the obvious to say that he comes from a military family. At the time of his birth his father was A.D.C. to the Governor of Malta, and his grandfather was a general. His own inclination was to follow in their footsteps, after his education at Uppingham was completed, but apparently, he says, his mental equipment was not regarded as suitable for that life, and he did not get into the King's uniform until six or seven years ago.

Instead his family tried to make him into an insurance clerk—an attempt which had short shrift, for the footlights soon called him, and, like a good many more aspirants, he had a hard fight before he made a name for himself.

But his education in stagecraft under such men as Sir George Alexander, Sir John Hare, and Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree gave him a wonderfully wide experience, and he was as well known in the United States as on this side, when the war upset his plans. It was after a tour in America for Frohmann that he found his way on to the studio floor, and worked for Fox, Famous-Players, Selznick, Goldwyn, Whitman Bennett, and with the Talmadges.

All his work there was done in New York, although he had one tempting offer from Goldwyn to go to California. Another contract, however, prevented him from going. Practically all his parts were heavy leads, and now he is working in England he is still playing this type.

Although "The Princess of New York," which was Trade shown last week, is the first photoplay in which he has worked in this country, he has figured in two of the Granger-Binger productions which were made in Haarlem—"The Other Person" and "In the Night."

But now he has made a start here he is quite content to remain. To work on pictures in England has been his ambition; his experience in the Lasky studio in Islington has confirmed him in this determination.

He is very enthusiastic over the arrangements of the organisation under Major Bell, for whom he has a very high respect. He has imbued his spirit, says Mr. Dawson, into the whole of his staff, and the result is that the atmosphere of welcome and cordiality pervades the studio.

Every artiste is given a card daily, telling him his call for the next day, and there is no room for the misunderstandings so frequent and baffling in the studios. Film acting is a very tiring life, and good treatment and organisation do much to make it easier.

All the artistes had a most charming time during the production of "The Princess," and the keen interest taken by the adapter, Margaret Turnbull, was a valuable aid to the smooth working and accurate presentation of the play. It is this intimate co-operation of all departments which keeps the artiste in good temper.

Mr. Dawson since his demobilisation married the sister of a very old friend—Leslie Faber, the actor—an old living at Claygate.

YOUR CORNER

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To my mind our pictures are all too stagey. The popular idea in England is that all stage actors and actresses must of necessity be film artistes. It has been proved conclusively on all the Continents that is not always so, and particularly in America. Now, film and stage acting are vastly different. To be a film actor you must have the following qualifications: Be a quick reader of character, to quickly grasp the producer's interpretation and aims, have a strong personality, and have a temperament that is kept under proper control.

I advocate speaking the lines if possible and showing by your lips that you are speaking. I was at a Trade Show some time ago, and in a very strong dramatic scene between the actor and actress I could not detect the least movement of the lips, although I was in the second row.

I also am an advocate for music in the studios—a piano will do—in dramatic scenes. The crude environment of a studio is not the best atmosphere to raise one to dramatic heights at a moment's notice.—THOMAS WATERS.

Permit me to congratulate you on a journal that is full of interesting and instructive reading matter. If you keep up the pace you set I am sure nothing can stop you.—RICHARD GARRICK.

The Motion Picture Studio is the very journal I have been looking for, and it fills a much-needed want. I should be pleased to see articles on photography appear in it.—P. J. SMITH.

[We welcome suggestions from readers as to the features they would like included in our columns. We are intending to cater for all classes of readers.—ED.]

STUDIO
PATENTS

This list is specially compiled for the MOTION PICTURE STUDIO by Rayner and Co., Registered Patent Agents, of 5, Chancery Lane, London, W.C.2, from whom all information relating to Patents, Trade Marks and Designs, can be obtained gratuitously.

Latest Patent Applications.

16,236.—A. Schwaryhaupt. Guiding endless films. June 13.

Specifications Published this Week.

164,404.—N. Pemberton-Billing. Motion picture apparatus.

164,447.—C. M. Williamson. Kinematograph cameras.

164,467.—J. E. Thornton. Carriers or holders for kinematograph films.

164,476.—A. R. Trist. Cameras for use in colour photography.

163,776.—J. B. A. E. Peranne and A. Aube. Film feeding and centring means for kinematograph apparatus.

163,829.—J. E. Thornton. Apparatus for holding and feeding forward the films in kinematograph apparatus.

Rayner and Co., will obtain printed copies of the published specifications, and will forward on post free for the sum of 1s. each.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY

The July 16 issue of "THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO" will be a special souvenir number of the great J. Stuart Blackton production "The Glorious Adventure."

The cover will be occupied by an art portrait of Lady Diana Manners, printed in colours and, in addition to the regular weekly editorial features, there will be an artistic supplement dealing with this epoch making film.

Artistes who are appearing in "The Glorious Adventure" and who have not yet booked space are urged to forward their photographs and instructions immediately to avoid the disappointment of not being included.

To Artistes, Producers, Scenarists, Cameramen and Advertisers in general, this unique issue offers wonderful advertising value. It is our intention to supply copies to every Studio in America and on the Continent.

A few choice advertisement positions in both the Supplement and the ordinary section are available. 'Phone: Gerrard 9870 or call at 85, Long Acre, W.C.2. and RESERVE YOUR SPACE NOW.

Readers are advised to place an order for "THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO" with their local newsagent, or, better still, to be certain of securing a copy each week fill up the subscription order form on the back page and post with remittance to-day.

L. BENJAMIN & CO., 99, Middlesex St., Bishopsgate, E.1.

'Phone
London Wall
7568.

Kinematograph Costumier.
Naval & Military Outfitter.

PRODUCER PLUS CAMERAMAN

by L. G. EGROT

Picture-making as an art is not a "one-man job." When the picture is finished what predominates in the result is the mark left by the producer, whose aim is to realise what the scenarist has conceived. If anyone has failed in his task the result is impaired; if all have worked in perfect harmony on a well-chosen subject the producer justly receives the best part of the honours, for he is the leading spirit—the general who wins the battle. It is the producer who extracts from his artistes all that their souls can give of emotional capabilities; it is the producer who incites the cameraman to do better every time.

All in the studio are proud of their work, and are in earnest to make the producer "turn out a winner," and the producer soon knows the spirit animating his collaborators, however humble they are, and that the best they know, the best they can do is at his disposal, with the will of doing better still. And this is the case where a small acknowledgment is appreciated gratefully, and goes deeper into the heart of a man than the "weekly cash," which is only the remuneration for mere work.

The cameraman gets from the producer the consideration he deserves; nothing inspires more confidence than methodical work. All operations which are just mechanical in essence should be done without any effort, camera loading, focussing, levelling should become with practice a very simple affair, entailing no waste of time, thus leaving all faculties free to tackle other problems with a more direct bearing on the artistic side of the picture. A careful cameraman will never make the producer impatient: the camera will always be loaded, ready to start at a second's notice, nothing being left to chance.

Now that most studios are working with artificial light the cameraman should make a point of studying electric lighting, so that he should be able to "talk shop" with the electrician, who, as a rule, knows his job, means to do his best, and will certainly do better still if he works in conjunction with someone who understands what the difficulties are and can suggest alternatives to what the electrician proposes.

Never must the camera work detract from the main trend of the picture; it is the duty of the photographer to show the producer that in many cases he gains nothing by trick photography. Of course, a cameraman must be able to work all kinds of tricks, find some new ones if necessary, but the work must be always subordinate to the picture. Art does not look clever, Art looks enormous or quiet, forbidding or familiar. Art is Nature, Art is Life, seen through the eyes of the artist.

The cameraman should be the sharpest critic of his own work, and, having made a mistake, be ready not only to admit it and shoulder all the blame, but point it out as quickly as possible in order to put matters right if there is a chance. We are only human beings, and as such likely to fail any day. What an asset for the producer when he can rely on the man behind the camera, and devote all his care to the actual producing of the film, without worries, and knowing that if anything went amiss his cameraman would tell him! This is the spirit that means progress, reliability, honesty and better pictures.

And what a satisfaction for the cameraman when he works in perfect harmony with the producer and knows that his well-meaning suggestions are welcome and that the most is made of them!

CAMERAMEN AT WORK

Pathé's cameramen pulled off another big "scoop" when they filmed the opening of Parliament in Belfast by the King. Seven cameramen went over, and after the films had been taken they were transported to England by aeroplane. The films, which were taken at about one o'clock in Belfast, were showing in London cinemas at 7.30 the same evening.

* * *

After waiting a fortnight to take a picture of the new airship, Leslie Wyand had the satisfaction of seeing the machine come out of its shed at ten o'clock in the evening. By three o'clock in the morning it was once more safely in the shed. Imagine Wyand's feelings!

* * *

Henry Sanders, the chairman of the Society, is back from his voyage in the Mediterranean, where he has been filming.

MEN BEHIND THE CAMERA

No. II.—Lucien G. Egrot was born very young, and commenced work as a scenic artist. In 1904 went to Pathé Frères in Paris and a year later "signed on" with Gaumont (then known as Pathé Lux), at which period he started his study of electrical lighting for studio purposes. In 1912 he came to England and fitted up a dark studio, with artificial light, for the Co-operative Cinematograph Co. He was behind the camera with "The Better 'Ole," "Her Benny" and "Pillars of Society." L. G. Egrot is well known as the Vice-President of the Kine. Cameramen's Society.

KINE. CAMERAMEN'S SOCIETY

Offices: 83, Wardour Street, W.1.

President: H. A. Sanders. Vice-Presidents: W. Bool, L. G. Egrot and A. H. Moses, jun. Trustees: F. Basil, F. Grainger and P. Ross. Treasurer: A. Brown. Committee: D. Cooper, J. Gemmel, C. Heath, H. H. Jones, J. Roseman, T. Scales. Secretary: George Woods Taylor, 50, Hamlet Court Road, Westcliff-on-Sea, Essex.

Objects.

(1) To regulate the relations between cameramen and employers, directors, producers, agents and others, and also between member and member.

(2) To secure unity of action, by organisation and otherwise, in order to improve the position and status of cameramen.

(3) To abolish all abuses detrimental to their welfare.

(4) To promote industrial peace and progress by all amicable means, and when differences do arise, to obtain an equitable settlement.

(5) To accumulate from the contributions of the members a fund adequate for the protection of their interests, and the provision of the benefits specified in the rules.

(6) To provide benefits on the death of a member.

(7) To provide legal assistance to secure the due fulfilment of contracts or engagements.

(8) To provide (when the funds of the Society shall permit) a scheme for the establishing of an old-age pension fund.

(9) To secure or assist in securing legislation for the protection of the Society's interests.

(10) To adopt any other legal method which may be decided to be advisable in the general interests of the members.

STUDIO FINANCE

NEW COMPANIES.

AUTOKINEMATICS, LTD. (175,299).—Private company. Registered June 21. Capital £16,500 in 15,000 preferred ordinary shares of £1 and 30,000 deferred ordinary shares of 1s. To acquire from G. S. James and others the exclusive benefit of certain inventions relating to the more efficient use of cinematograph apparatus and films and particularly the adaptation of same for advertising purposes, etc. The provisional directors are: J. E. Ward, 44, Bedford Row, W.C.; G. H. E. Goodman, 44, Bedford Row, W.C.1. Remuneration: £250 each per annum (ch. £200 extra) and a percentage of the profits. Secretary: A. G. Emblon. Registered office: 24, Holborn, E.C.1.

G. AND J. KIRBY, LTD.—Private company. Registered May 10. Capital, £5,000 in £1 shares. To take over the performing rights in "Where the Rainbow Ends," and to carry on the business of manufacturers and producers of films, etc., and to adopt an agreement with G. T. Kirby and J. R. Kirby. The permanent directors are: G. T. Kirby, 5, Speenham Road, S.W.9; J. R. Kirby, 110, Tulse Hill, S.W.2 (joint managers with £10 each per week as remuneration from November 7, 1921). Qualification of permanent directors, 200 shares; of other directors 500 shares. Registered office: 53, Doughty Street, John Street, Bedford Row, W.C.1.

DANIEL CHINERY, LTD.—Private company. Registered May 25. Capital, £1,000 in £1 shares. To carry on the business of photographers, photographic artists and printers, manufacturers of, and directors in, photographic apparatus and chemicals, cinematograph film producers, etc. The subscribers (each with one share) are: C. W. D. Chinery, 3, Silvertown Road, W.6, automobile engineer; Mrs. F. M. Chinery, 3, Silvertown Road, W.6; C. W. D. Chinery signs as "Director." Qualification, 50 shares. Remuneration as fixed by the company. Solicitors: Benham, Barrett, Synnott and Wade, Suffolk House, Laurence Pountney Hill, E.C. Registered office: 13, Eccleston Street, S.W.

MORTGAGES, CHARGES AND SATISFACTIONS.

R.T.A. PICTURES, LTD.—Issues between May 19 and June 9, 1921, of debentures totalling £1,100, parts of a series already registered.

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Productions and Who is Working on Them

J. Stuart Blackton.

ADDRESS: Bush House, Aldwych.
FILM: "The Glorious Adventure."
PRODUCER: J. Stuart Blackton.
ASSISTANT PRODUCER: Clifford Grey.
STAR: Lady Diana Manners.
SCENARIST: Felix Orman.
ART DIRECTOR: Almon C. Whiting.
CAMERAMAN: Nicholas Mursuraca
TYPE: Seven-reel drama.
STAGE: Started Producing.

British and Colonial.

ADDRESS: Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
FILM: "The Puppet Man."
PRODUCER: Frank Crane.
STARS: Hugh Miller, John Reid.
CAMERAMAN: I. Roseman.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Finishing.

Broadwest.

ADDRESS: Walthamstow and Esher.
STAR: Stewart Rome.
FILM: "The Imperfect Lover."
PRODUCER: Walter West.
ART DIRECTOR: Thomas Fleetwood.
CAMERAMAN: J. Franguelli.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: First Week.

George Clark.

ADDRESS: 41, Ebury Street, Victoria, S.W.1 (now working in Nice).
FILM: "The Bigamist."
PRODUCER: Guy Newall.
STARS: Ivy Duke and Guy Newall.
SCENARIST: Guy Newall.
CAMERAMAN: Bert Ford.
TYPE: Social drama.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Famous Players-Lasky British Producers.

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.
FILM: "Twice Wed" (working title).
PRODUCER: Paul Powell.
STARS: Mary Glynne, David Powell.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: R. J. Cullen.
SCENARIST: Mary O'Connor.
ART DIRECTOR: Leslie Dawson.
CAMERAMAN: C. McDonnell.
TYPE: Social drama.
STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."
PRODUCER: Donald Crisp.
ASSISTANT PRODUCER: Claude H. Mitchell.
STAR: Donald Crisp.
SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.
STAGE: Fifth Week.

Gaumont.

ADDRESS: Shepherd's Bush.
FILM: "Roses in the Dust."
PRODUCER: Captain Calvert.
STARS: Iris Rowe, Gladys Mason.
CAMERAMAN: Basil W. G. Emmott.
SCENARIST: H. Morgan.
STAGE: Just starting.

Harma.

ADDRESS: Limes Grove, Croydon.
FILM: (not titled).
PRODUCER: Bernard Dudley.
STARS: Marjorie Villis and James Knight.
CAMERAMAN: J. Mackenzie.
TYPE: Comedy drama.
STAGE: Second Week.

Ideal.

FILM: "All Sorts and Conditions of Men."
PRODUCER: G. Treville.
STARS: Rex Davis, Renee Kelly.
SCENARIST: Colden Lore.
TYPE: Costume drama.
STAGE: Sixth Week.

FILM: "Sonia."
STARS: Evelyn Brent, Clive Brook.
PRODUCER: Denison Clift.
SCENARIST: Denison Clift.
CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.
STAGE: Second week.

Master Films.

ADDRESS: Weir House, Teddington.
FILM: "God in the Garden."
PRODUCER: Edwin J. Collins.
STARS: Arthur Pusey, Edith Craig.
SCENARIST: Edwin J. Collins.
CAMERAMAN: Jack Parker.
TYPE: Comedy drama.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "The Marriage Lines."
PRODUCER: Wilfred Noy.
STAR: Barbara Hoff.
SCENARIST: Wilfred Noy.
CAMERAMAN: Theodore Thumwood.
TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.
Progress.

ADDRESS: Shoreham.
FILM: "Moth and Rust."
PRODUCER: Sidney Morgan.
STARS: Sybil Thorndyke, Malvina Longfellow, and Langhorne Burton.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: "Mayor of Casterbridge."
STAR: Fred Groves.
PRODUCER: Sidney Morgan.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
STAGE: Just commencing.

Samuelson.

ADDRESS: Warton Hall, Isleworth.
FILM: Title not announced.
PRODUCER: Rex Wilson.
STAGE: Starting shortly.

Seal.

ADDRESS: Prince's Studio, Kew Bridge.
FILM: "Diek's Fairy."
PRODUCER: Bert Wynne.
STARS: Hargreaves Munsell, Joan Griffith, and Albert Bruntford.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: John Wyndham.

SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.
CAMERAMAN: L. Protheroe.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Fifth week.

Screen Plays.

ADDRESS: Cranmer Court, Clapham S.W.
FILM: Grand Guignol series.
PRODUCERS: Fred Paul and Jack Raymond.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Rodwell.
TYPE: Short melodramas.
STAGE: Producing one a week.

Sinclair Hill Productions.

ADDRESS: Jay's Agency, Wardour Street, London, W.
FILM: "Only One Week to Live."
PRODUCER: Sinclair Hill.
STARS: Dorothy Fane and Campbell Gullan.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: S. D. Bra-hame.
SCENARIST: Frank Millar.
TYPE: Straight Comedy.
STAGE: First week.

Stoil.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Cricklewood.
FILM: "The Woman with the Fan."
PRODUCER: Rene Plaissetty.
STARS: Mary Massart, Alec Fraser.
CAMERAMAN: Jack Cox.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: First week.

FILM: "The Prey of the Dragon."
PRODUCER: Martin Thornton.
STAR: Victor McLaglan.
CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "The Pointing Finger."
PRODUCER: George Ridgewell.
STARS: Milton Rosmer, Madge Stuart.
CAMERAMAN: Al Moses.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Fourth week.

H. W. Thompson.

FILM: "The Wonderful Year."
PRODUCER: Kenelm Foss.
STARS: Marie Odette, Lionel Howard.
ASSISTANT PRODUCER: Grace Rose.
SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.
EDITOR: John Miller.
TYPE: Light French Drama.
STAGE: Second week.

Welsh Pearson.

ADDRESS: Craven Park, Willesden.
FILM: "Squibs."
PRODUCER: George Pearson.
STARS: Betty Balfour, Fred Groves.
SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.
CAMERAMAN: Emile Lauste.
TYPE: Comedy.
STAGE: Finishing.

Zodiac.

ADDRESS: Windsor Studios, Catford.
FILM: "Walter Finds a Father."
STAR: Walter Forde.
TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.
STAGE: Second week.

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Arfilodro, Hyde, London.

ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmopho, Ealux.
B. P. FILMS, LTD., Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clapham Park.

BRITISH ACTORS' FILM CO., Melbourne Road, Bushey, Herts. 'Phone: Bushey Heath 259—British Actors.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH ART FILMS, CO., LTD., Princes Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford. 'Phone: Chiswick 574.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PICTURES, LTD., Tullerie Street, Hackney Road, London, E.2. 'Phone: Dalston 3454.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Portsmouth Road, Esher, Surrey. 'Phone: Esher 325.

CAIRNS FILM CO., Watcombe Hall, Torquay. 'Phone: Torquay 886—Cairnsfilm, Torquay.

CENTRAL FILM PRODUCING CO., Eel Pie Island, Twickenham.

DAVIDSON, I. B., 58, Lea Bridge Road, Leyton, E.10. 'Phone: Walthamstow 634.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

FREDERICK WHITE, LTD., Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

GAIETY PRODUCTIONS, Wadden New Road, Croydon.

GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolougue, 'Phone London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland., London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exchugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 41, Ebury Street, London, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 1519.

HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16, Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.

IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Idefilms, Borehamwood.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Cricklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MIDLAND ACTORS' FILM CO., 76, Broad Street, Birmingham.

MINERVA FILM CO., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

NEW AGENCY FILM CO., 115a, Ebury Street, London, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 6856.

PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton 2956.

SEAL PRODUCTIONS, Prince's Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford. 'Phone: Chiswick 574.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpie, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1933—Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMPSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGNTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & CO., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.

WILSONIAN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD., Secretary, W. J. Crook, 547, Wandsworth Road, S.W.

ZODIAC FILMS, Windsor Studios, Bromley Road, Catford. 'Phone: Lee Green, 948.

You cannot do better than by placing your orders with L. BENJAMIN & CO. 99, Middlesex Street, E.1.

'Phone—London Wall 7568.

KENMA

The "Star" of Greaseless Paints

Kenma is the only greaseless paint, and is the perfect substitute for grease paint. It is much more easily applied than grease paint, and is easier to get off. It enables the user to make up quickly, without discomfort.

Kenma adheres with perfect natural-looking evenness. It never cakes. It is sufficiently opaque to obliterate all skin blemishes such as freckles, etc. Kenma gives much better photographic results than are possible with grease paints.

With Kenma you can "work over" the make-up—that is, you can rectify accidental smudges without removing the entire make-up.

Kenma can be removed instantly with soap and water. It will not cause the familiar spots that ordinary grease paints make on clothing.

Supplied in four colours—white, pale yellow, medium yellow and pink, in collapsible tubes, price 1/3 and 2/6.

KENMA

Eyebrow & Eyelash Black

is as efficient as Kenma Greaseless Paint. In collapsible tubes, price 1/3.

It is 1. Easy to apply. 3. Does not "matt" on the lashes.
2. Easy to remove. 4. Promotes the natural growth of lashes.

Kenma Greaseless Paint and Eyelash Darkener may be obtained from—Clarkson's, Harrods (Hairdressing Department), Shirecliff & Co., 66, Goldhawk Rd., Shepherd's Bush, or direct from the Manufacturers

A FREE SAMPLE.

On request, we will send a Free Sample Tube of Kenma Greaseless Paint—write for it to-day.

The OATINE Company, Limited,
Catine Buildings, Borough, London, SE1.

JUST PUBLISHED.

The

PICTUREGOER PORTFOLIO

of

KINEMA CELEBRITIES

Contains the following:

SIXTEEN MAGNIFICENT PHOTOGRAVURE
PORTRAITS, Size, 10in. x 6½in.

MARY PICKFORD.	PEARL WHITE.
NORMA TALMADGE.	LILIAN GISH.
CHARLES CHAPLIN.	RICHARD BARTHELMESS.
DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS.	WILLIAM FARNUM.
NAZIMOVA.	PAULINE FREDERICK.
MARY MILES MINTER.	CONSTANCE TALMADGE.
WILLIAM S. HART.	THOMAS MEIGHAN.
RALPH GRAVES.	JACKIE COOGAN.

All worth Framing. Price

ONE SHILLING

(Post free 1/2)

On Sale everywhere or direct from

PICTURES LTD.

88, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

EVERY FILM LOVER MUST HAVE A COPY.

The MOTION PICTURE Studio

The only weekly journal devoted solely to the interests of all concerned in the Production of British Motion Pictures.

Editorial and Advertisement Offices:
85, LONG ACRE, LONDON, W.C. 2.

'Grams: Southernwood, Rand, London.
Telephone: ———— Gerrard 9870.

ADVERTISEMENT RATES

	One insertion	Six inser- tions (per insertion)
Front Cover	£6 10 0	£6 0 0
Back Cover	£6 0 0	£5 15 0
Full page	£5 10 0	£5 7 6
Half page	£3 0 0	£2 17 0
Third page	£2 5 0	£2 2 6
Quarter page	£1 15 0	£1 12 6
Sixth page	£1 5 0	£1 2 6
Eighth page	£1 0 0	18 9
Twelfth page	12 6	11 3
Per inch (single column)	5 0	4 6
(Blockmaking extra)

Professional Cards:

Photo Cards, 1 in deep £3 0 0 per quarter year.
(Inclusive of Blockmaking)

1 in. Cards (without blockmaking) £2 10 0
per quarter year.

Small Cards 17/6 per quarter year

Make certain of securing your copy regularly each week by filling in the Subscription Order Form and post with remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER FORM

To The Manager,

"MOTION PICTURE STUDIO,"

85, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

Please send "THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO" to me at the following address for months, for which I enclose remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

3 Months - 5/-
6 " - 10/-
Yearly - 20/-

Name

Address to which copies are to be sent:

.....

.....

The MOTION PICTURE

studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 5.

Saturday, July 9, 1921.

FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH MOTION
PICTURES

Playing lead in Lambart Film Co.'s Productions.

CORA GOFFIN

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."
219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Now playing lead in "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" (Ideal). Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.
Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.
Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds," "The Knight Errant," "Haigh Serial," "Love Maggie."
4 Park Place, St. James, S.W. Regent 4060.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."
31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.
Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal). "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).
7, Dynham Road, West Hampstead, N.W.6.

PHOTO
BLOCK

THIS SPACE
TO LET
£3 for 13 insertions, including cost of making block.

VICTOR McLAGLAN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES. LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs. NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc.

Carlton House, Kew Green, Kew, Surrey.

ORDER YOUR COPY through your local newsagent, or fill in the Subscription Order Form on page 14.

ARTISTES

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.
"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.
:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::
Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.
Open to accept engagement 1st August.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"
"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House,"
"Wuthering Heights," etc.
148, AMHURST ROAD, HACKNEY.
Phone: Dalston 813.

DICK WEBB

Lead GAUMONT,
MASTER PRODUCTIONS, etc.
180, Elmhurst Mansions,
Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late
Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc.
DISENGAGED.
All coms: c/o Sidney Day,
181, Wardour Street, W.1.

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.
197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph. Batt. 1770 or 21.

CLIVE BROOK
INVITES OFFERS.
24, Hyde Park Square, W.2. Padd. 2868.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT,
Disengaged July 4. Phone: Walthamstow 938.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,
15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.
Phone: Hornsey 1784.

CHARLES CLIFFORD,
38, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.2.
Phone: Regent 5692.

CRISPIN HAY,
c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,
1, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS, Author, Actor,
Producer,
114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

HARDING STEERMAN,
Characters of Distinction,
56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,
24, Cleveland Road,
Barnes, S.W.13.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,
Character Parts,
57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

COSTUMIER

W. CLARKSON,
Costumier and Wigmaker,
41/43, Wardour Street, W. Phone: Gerr. 612.

THIS SPACE TO LET
£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,

14a, Little Ealing Lane,
:: South Ealing ::
Phone: Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
"The Face at the Window."
Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON

Producing for Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd.
Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,

Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and "CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."
Five years producer in America. At Liberty.
Address: 1A, DENBIGH PLACE, VICTORIA.

S. L. GLENISTER

Professionally Major Comnenus-Palæologus.
PRODUCER, TECHNICAL & ART DIRECTOR.
"Under the Crescent," "Dumb Girl of Portici,"
"Campbells are Coming," "Where are My Children?"
etc., for UNIVERSAL. "The Arab" for LASKY.
"Less than Dust" for ART-CRAFT, etc., etc. Open
for Engagement. Address: 25, Randolph Crescent,
W. 9. Phone: Paddington 3819.

GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer
THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.
Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,
Hoe St, Walthamstow, E.17.

THIS SPACE
TO LET £2 : 10 : 0
for 13 insertions

ADRIAN BRUNEL,
Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 (Phone: 5280 Paddington)

RICHARD GARRICK,
Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

Mr. ALBERT WARD,
Producing and Adapting
for Samuelson, Worton Hall, Isleworth.

STUDIO MANAGERJOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—
B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,
Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
Telephone: W'stow 364."

CAMERAMEN. . . .

JOHN J. COX

44, Barrowgate Road,

:: Chiswick, W.4. ::

'Phone : Chiswick 294.

Cameraman for Mr. Rene Plaissetty,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD

Cameraman—MASTER FILMS,
TEDDINGTON.

Latest Productions, "HARD CASH," "STELLA," "MISS CHARITY."

EDWIN DAY

Motion Picture Photographer,

12, Archer Street, Piccadilly Circus, London, W.1.

Telephone : Gerrard 780.

Telegrams : "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON

Thelton House, Cambolt

:: Road, Putney Hill. ::

Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN

"GAUMONT'S,"

105, King's Road,

Kingston-on-Thames.

FRANK CANHAM

ASTRA FILM CO., LTD.

Now turning on "The Wonderful Year."

Permanent Address : Royal Forest
Hotel, Chingford, Essex.

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT

GAUMONT,

:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::

Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT

Expert Cameraman.

"The Better 'Ole," "Her Benny,"
etc., etc.

2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.

'Phone : Streatham 1969.

ALFRED H. MOSES

Chief Cameraman—

GEORGE RIDGWELL PRODUCTIONS
STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS

Formerly Chief Cameraman of Norma
Talmadge, Thainhauser, B. & C., etc.

WILLIAM SHENTON

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Private Address :

17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

JAMES E. ROGERS,

Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth.

"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"

"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"

"Last Rose of Summer,"

PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

SCENARISTS. . . .

COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,

:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.

7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11

('Phone : Park 2945).

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,

Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
62, Foxbourne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,

Kinedramatist,

Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

PUBLICITY. . . .

F. J. STANDERWICK,

Photographer.

I am making a speciality of Catering for
Film Artists. 'Phone for appointment—
Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio
—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
W.14.

No connection with trick cyclists, swimmers, or Norma Talmadge's chief cameraman.

FRANK J. WOLF

Duly delivering didactic dope daily for
B. & C. CO., KENELM FOSS, etc.

Address : B. & C. Studios.

EDWARD BAIRD,

Publicity.

172, Goldhurst Terrace, N.W.6.

GEOFFREY H.

MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions :

"THE GREATER LOVE,"

"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"

"SETTLED IN FULL,"

"ALL THE WINNERS,"

"WATCHING EYES," etc.

All coms. : c/o A. FRASER,
26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

MILTON ROSMER

Starring in

"The Pointing Finger,"

"A Woman of No Importance,"

"The Amazing Partnership,"

"Demos," "The Diamond Necklace,"

"Belphegor the Mountebank,"

"The Will," "The Twelve Pound

Look," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

88, NEWMAN ST., W.1.

Phone - - - - Museum 5145

SIDNEY

L. EATON,

KINEMATOGRAPHER,

3, LEBANON PARK MANSIONS,

T W I C K E N H A M.

Productions include:—

"Darby and Joan," "Westward Ho!"

"Story of the Rosary," "Hobson's

Choice," "Won by a Head," "Rodney

Stone," "The Old Arm Chair," "Like-

ness of the Night," "Croxley Master,"

"Ships that Pass in the Night," etc., etc.

AT LIBERTY FOR
FIRST CLASS PRODUCTIONS.

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer

of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

DO YOU WANT A SCENARIO?

I have a 5/6-reel working continuity on my hands owing to suspension of work at a British studio. The story, which is original, will be published by me in book-form simultaneously
with release of film.

HARRY HUGHES,

Editing. Sub-titling, Continuities.

47, DEAN ST., LONDON, W.1.

Regent 2592.

Bramlins

.....

Have been casting for TWELVE FILMS within a fortnight

Verb. Sap.

.....

Bramlins

241, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.C.2

*Telegrams :
Bramlifilms
(Westcent),
London.*

*Telephone :
Museum
4038-4039.*

Editorial and Advertisement
Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 5.

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

July 9, 1921.

The Passing of a Genius.

THE news of the death of George Loane Tucker (who passed away at Los Angeles on Monday, June 20, after a long illness and several major operations) will come as a personal shock to the many artistes who came into touch with him while he was in this country some years ago. He was one of the few outstanding geniuses of the screen, and there was a sincerity in his work which no circumstance could hide. His last big film to be seen on this side was "The Miracle Man," which was in many respects one of the greatest films that has come out of America.

His Work in England.

IT was in October, 1913, that Tucker came to England, and here he remained until July, 1916, when he returned to the States with the intention of coming back to these shores. But America came into the War; and circumstances altered, and he did not return. During the three years in which he was producing here for the old London Film Company, G.L. Tucker endeared himself to all the artistes and others connected with production with whom he came into contact.

Temperamental but full of business acumen, and with a great gift for detachment, he was able to play on the emotions of his artistes to an extent which few others have achieved. His first British picture was "Bo'sun's Mate," and W. H. Berry, Wyndham Guise, George Bellamy and Mary Brough were in the cast.

A Long List.

THIS was followed by "Lawyer Quince," "The Third String," "Her Uncle," "His Lordship," and "The Odd Freak," all W. W. Jacob's subjects, which at the time created a sensation in the film world and set a standard of production which had not hitherto been reached anywhere. Then came "The Prisoner of Zenda" and "Rupert of Hentzau," "The Middleman," "The Christian" and many others. After his return to America, he directed "The Cinderella Man" for Goldwyn, and then went out on his own, his first independent production being "Virtuous Wives." Later came "The Miracle Man," and his last production—which he succeeded in finishing despite interruptions due to his illness—was "Ladies Must Live." His untimely death—for he was less than forty years old—is a severe loss to the whole of the film world. Directors of his calibre are rare and, like poets, are born, not made.

America and "Protection."

FOLLOWING on the successful exploitation of one or two of the big German pictures in the United States are struggling to build up a production industry in face of America's fierce competition, would at once place a similar or even higher duty on films from the States. And where would the poor rich studio workers of God's Own Country be then?

The Press and the Photoplay.

IN its attempts to exalt the British picture by belittling the foreign, and especially the American film, the public Press has done the Film Industry a serious disservice. As the Kinematograph Weekly said in its last issue, there has been much "mischief done by the lay Press misrepresentation of Trade conditions—a misrepresentation partly arising out of ignorance, but frequently deliberate in order to further 'shop-window' stunts, paying no regard to the interests of the picturegoer or the rights of the exhibitor."

These interests and rights are so wrapped up with those of artistes and others concerned in the production of pictures, that some further remarks may not be out of place.

The Harm That Is Done.

MOST of the lay Press writers are chiefly concerned primarily with Press

"stunts." They—and their proprietors—care more for making a noise and going one better than another paper than they do for the interests either of the public or of the Industry which they attack. There is little doubt but that the public which takes its ideas ready-made from its daily papers has been led to believe that pictures as a whole are bad, that the cinemas are mainly filled with rubbish, and this has had a reflective effect in the studio—mainly by the creation of appalling economies. The "stupid film" stunt has been badly overdone, and the Industry is reaping the whirlwind. Partly it is its own fault. It has never attempted to "sell itself" to the newspapers, to persuade them that it has outgrown the fair-ground stage and is a serious business. This sin of omission has done more than anything else to encourage the lay Press to belittle it.

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"In His Grip" (Gaumont).—Technique here is of a high standard, while the strong point of the story is its character study, capably provided by clever artistes, of whom Cecil Morton York stands out. Captain Calvert's direction is obviously very painstaking, and much of the credit for the success of the production is due to Paul Rooff's scenario. All members of the cast (including Netta Westcott, George Bellamy, David Hawthorne, Hugh Miller, W. T. Ellwanger and Cecil du Gue) do excellent work, while Basil G. Emmott's photography is beyond reproach.

"The Bachelors Club" (Ideal) is excellent film humour, thanks to the characterisation and A. V. Bramble's direction of the production. Eliot Stannard has provided a scenario rich with humorous situations. Acting honours go to Ernest Thesiger whose work will be the talk of the trade. Mary Brough is right up to her usual high standard, with Sydney Fairbrother adding to her reputation for screencraft, although she deserves a bigger part than she has. The supporting cast has been well chosen and submit excellent performances. Sub-titling is the fly in the ointment—too much quantity and too little quality.

"Corinthian Jack" (Master) is a really artistic picturisation, with great credit to W. C. Rowden, the director, and his staff and cast. Victor MacLagan has a realistic fight and Dorothy Fane and Kathleen Vaughan give polished performances. Jack Parker's camera work is excellent. The story is none too robust in build.

there has come an outcry—chiefly from artistes and directors—for a tariff on foreign films. Considering that for at least half-a-dozen years they have had the field almost entirely to themselves, and that many of them have received huge salaries while the best of our own and France's talent was otherwise engaged, their demand is a little selfish, to say the least of it. And it savours, too, of cutting off their own noses, for as the greater part of the world's pictures comes from America, and as the artistes and directors are only able to get such high salaries because of the extent of the Film Export Trade, they stand to lose very much more than they can gain if there is retaliation. All the saner elements in the States' Film Trade are strongly opposed to the suggested tariff, realising quite well that several European countries which

THEIR IDEAL

In an attempt to translate Robbie Burn's and Artistes to see themselves as others see Directors to give what they consider to be Director's point of view, and for Artistes commenced below, and will be continued for all and sundry are invited.

MY IDEAL DIRECTOR

by KATHLEEN VAUGHAN

Just a kindly, human man, with a real sense of humour to come to the rescue when things go wrong.

He would not only know himself exactly what he wanted, but would be able to convey that knowledge to his artistes; and, he would create in the studio that happy atmosphere of good comradeship, which inspires everyone to give of their very best.

by MARY ODETTE

The thing that really counts in a Director is his results. His method of getting them—the way he goes to work—are really unimportant to the adaptable and intelligent artiste. It is not by his personality in the studio that a Director should be judged (as is so often the case) but by his work that is thrown on the screen.

My ideal Director is the Director who makes a good picture and gets good work out of me; whether it is in my way or his—I don't mind. It is results that count every time.

Next to his ability to produce, the first essential for a Director is vitality. A vital Director always inspires his little band of workers better than one of more placid temperament.

Also my ideal producer insists on silence in the studio while working. I know directors who do not seem to hear people talking and laughing, sawing and hammering around them. Personally I have not yet attained to that degree of artistic evolution of detachment.

My experience is that a bad Director sets to work to teach one one's part and expects one to copy him in every detail like a parrot. A good Director will always leave a little, even if only a very little, to one's own personality. But my one real abomination is the Director who suffers from that picturesque delusion—that artistes are immune from hunger and can subsist for countless hours on Art alone.

by ANN TREVOR

My picture of the director I would wish to work with will not be a portrait, it will be hardly a sketch, and I cannot guarantee that it will be drawn from life. But it will perhaps be a composite of the characteristics I have valued in some directors, and of the qualities which I have missed in others.

The director I want is the one who can help me to do my best work. To do this I must not only understand him, but I must feel that he understands me. He should in fact study his artistes as closely as he studies his scenario, and realise the personalities of the actors as well as of the characters they play.

Is this an impossible demand? To me this seems a primary essential, if there is to be any correspondence of ideas be-etween them; for a flash of understanding will often convey far more than an ocean of mere words.

Having established this personal contract with his artistes my ideal director would endeavour to explain not merely the motives, emotions and actions of the characters, but the general theme or story in which they play their part. The director who can make me think, feel, and understand, not only the emotions of the moment but their significance in the picture, obtains, I am sure, a five-hundred-per-cent better performance than the man who is content merely to issue his instructions.

The first makes me live the part with every fibre of my being, the second dries up my imagination, and nips every germ of inspiration in the bud. The one creates an atmosphere that is electric with ideas, so that we become creatures responsive to his slightest wish, the other turns us into a handful of mechanical dolls.

My idealised director will need, I fear, a great fund of tact, patience, and good-humour, for he will have to keep us all fresh, alert and good-tempered. He must possess an enthusiasm which he can pass on to others, but which he will not allow to run away with him. He must know his job, know his staff, know his artistes, know what he wants, and know how to get it.

MY IDEAL ARTISTE

by ALBERT WARD

The most important factor in my Ideal Screen Artiste is the total absence of self-consciousness (this is called having the "Camera sense"), for that alone will enable him to give a perfectly natural rendering of the character assumed. And by that I do not mean that he is merely to "play himself," as is so often thought sufficient, but that he will enact his part with no suggestion of being theatrical.

The next in importance is Psychology—it is the art of the screen that the face becomes the medium by which to convey those innermost thoughts of the mind and the manifold emotions of the soul which cannot, and should not, be expressed in words: it is not sufficient, as is so often done, for the artiste to show that he is thinking; he must enable the audience to follow minutely his every train of thought. This should be within the power of every actor endowed with an artistic and emotional temperament, combined with that other great asset—personality.

It is also very important for the artiste to remember that the director sees everything from the "Camera Angle," and that whilst a scene is in progress it is being visualised by him as it will appear on the screen; it is therefore necessary that he should be treated with confidence and patience, whilst he must be tactful and courteous always.

Camera Sense—A Mastery of Expression—Personality—Temperament—all these are requisites in my "Ideal Artiste."

HARLEY KNOLES' SHEFFIELD VISIT

In connection with the screening of "Carnival" at Sheffield and other South Yorkshire [kinemas, Harley Knoles, who produced the film, has been paying a visit to Rotherham, his native town. When the film was screened at the Albert Hall, Sheffield, last week, Mr. Knoles appeared personally on the Monday night and received a most enthusiastic reception. Answering an insistent call for a speech, he told some home truths about British productions and why America had captured the markets in the past. But there were great possibilities for British directors if they would rise to the occasion and take advantage of them. The British Isles contained vast natural and historical beauties not available in America, and in that he said lay the great opportunity of directors in the old country. He went on to allude what might be done, prophesying that in a few years time English films would be as popular in America as American films were in this country to-day. During his visit, Mr. Knoles was principal guest at the lunch of the Sheffield Rotarians.

ASKING FOR TROUBLE

One of the most important items in "The Pointing Finger," which George Ridgwell is directing, is a picture of a monk with real eyes and pointing finger, which gives the title to the story. Naturally, the effect of movement in this picture could not be obtained in a mere painting, and so a real face and real hand are thrust through two suitable openings in the framed canvas.

The actor who thus figures as part of a painting is a Bert McLaughlin, who was specially selected by the Director on account of his appropriately saturnine cast of countenance!

In the first instance Mr. McLaughlin made up as a monk, and was photographed; then a painting was made from the photograph, and the face and right hand was cut out so that the actor, in his make-up, could fill the empty spaces with his own face and hands.

As the picture hangs in the hall at Caerwydden Abbey, the home of the Edensores, corresponding holes had to be made in the wall, and Mr. McLaughlin had to kneel in a more or less comfortable perch up the chimney when scenes in which the picture figures were being taken.

STUDIO FINANCE

NEW COMPANIES.

SHERWOOD EXCLUSIVE FILM AGENCY, LTD. (175,384).—Private company. Registered June 24th. Capital £1,000, in £1 shares. To take over the business of kinematographers, film producers, owners, renters, agents, contractors, hirers, etc., carried on at Stanley House, 8-9, Sherwood Street, W.1, as the "Sherwood Exclusive Film Agency." The first directors are:—T. Lenton (managing director), 30, Whymark Avenue, Wood Green, N.22; F. T. Lenton, 106, Raleigh Road, Hornsey, N.8. Secretary, F. T. Lenton. Registered office, Stanley House, 8-9, Sherwood Street, W.1.

STEREO-KINEMA SYNDICATE, LTD. (175,342).—Private company. Registered June 22. Capital £30, in 1s. shares. To acquire from the London and New York, Syndicate, Ltd., the benefit of certain existing inventions relating to kinema and photographic apparatus, etc. The subscribers (each with one share) are:—T. W. Goulding, 2, Staple Inn, W.C.1, merchant; E. J. Vavasour Earle, 2, Staple Inn, W.C.1, merchant. The first directors are not named. Secretary, E. Harwood. Registered office, 2, Staple Inn, Holborn, W.C.1.

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

One of the causes which account for faulty film-acting is the practice that exists in most studios of never providing any player but the star with a copy of the script. How can a player register correctly when she does not know in what connection she is playing? Every player should be given the opportunity of studying and mastering the script, and I was gratified to learn that with "Dead Man's Love," which De Massan is directing, this dictum was conformed to: all in the cast were provided with a full script.

* * *

"Should a Press critic say what he himself thinks about a film or what he thinks the public will say?" is the question asked by J. R. Hunt, the editor of King's Pictorial Weekly. And this opens up such an interesting subject that I am inviting my readers to discuss it in these columns. Artistes, directors and cameramen have all, at some time or another, complained of the Press critiques of their work. But what exactly is the grouse? Does the critic help or hinder the worker whom he constructively criticises? What do you think?

* * *

A thick fog enshrouded the house-tops and turned the day into night. Gerald Jones, the cameraman, felt his way along Wardour Street. Suddenly a form emerged out of the veil of mist, and on its back could dimly be discerned a film camera. "Where are you going with that?" queried Jones. "Just off to take a couple of fade-outs," was the quick reply.

* * *

A certain American cameraman proudly claims to be the chief actor in the following little drama. Years ago he was working for a certain director in the States who suffered from violent fits of temper, and was greatly feared by all. He was filming a Wild West drama and some scenes had to be "shot" on top of a very high mountain. Taking only the bare necessity for the two days' journey up the mountain, the company left the rest of the packages at a hut.

After the rehearsal the cameraman opened his machine to see that everything was in order only to discover that he had forgotten to load up, and that all his negatives were in the hut! Just then the producer's voice broke in, and the cameraman slamming the door shut, nodded to indicate that all was well. The hero performed his most sensational stunt, thousands of feet above the ground, the cameraman started cranking as if nothing was wrong (and during the day "shot" a number of other incidents which had to be enacted on the peak) but when the company returned to the hut the cameraman was nowhere to be found!

ON THE FLOOR WITH W. P. KELLINO

From the moment he first picks up his scenario, Will Kellino's primary object is to extract from it the very last ounce of entertainment. On this account his first consideration is invariably given to pictorial possibilities and opportunities for the introduction of humour. Thus "spotting" is one of his first jobs.

After "spotting," he will usually complete his preparations for "pictorial divertisement" by planning and roughly designing all his important sets, handing over his rough designs (and frequently cardboard models as well) for elaboration in the Art Department. "Casting" is the next job; and then he "takes the floor."

He is one of the few British directors who, in all important scenes (especially crowd scenes), always plans the movements of his principal players in advance. He has a system for this which not only helps to make the movements more effective, but which always ensures practically perfect matching of "close-ups" and "long shots."

In the studio he is one of the quickest men at work. Not that he rushes about a lot; on the contrary, he moves quietly and calmly—but he gets his results in double-quick time. He rarely rehearses his players more than two or three times; he takes his players aside to explain what he wants; encourages them in action; keeps light-hearted and jolly; never shows disappointment or annoyance, and invariably covers a "re-take" with a joke.

But to see Kellino at his best you must see him infusing "life" into a crowd; then he will sing, dance, perform acrobatics—do a hundred and one things, any one of which would be anathema to many directing dignities—and work till the perspiration streams off his face and his voice is hoarse with shouting; but there is no other director in the country who can more quickly rouse a crowd to the top-most pitch of excitement than Will Kellino. We have yet to meet the "principal" or "super" who does not retain the happiest recollections of his or her work under the direction of W. P. Kellino.

This is the reign of King Sport and I am anxious that his subjects in studioland should have their exploits recorded. At almost every studio there are several branches of sport indulged in—cricket, tennis, bowls, swimming, etc.—and the editor of the Motion Picture Studio is willing to devote space for the reporting of these activities. Will all secretaries kindly let me know what is happening, has happened or will happen in connection with their sports clubs?

* * *

Writing to the Idealetter, Compton Mackenzie complains of the superfluity of reading matter with films; a complaint that is very justified. It is very often possible to read the heroine's pathetic letter through half-a-dozen times owing to the length of time it is allowed to appear on the screen. I do not like to think that the reason for this is to use up footage; I prefer to think it is due to the director's mistaken idea of the intelligence of the public. At least, it is handy to have the director to blame it on to!

* * *

When John MacAndrews returned to the Hepworth Studios last week after a long and critical illness, he was no less amazed than pleased to find that his studio colleagues had planned an elaborate campaign of welcome. A kingly throne (every cushion in the studio had been appropriated for its use) was erected in his dressing room, which was bedecked with numerous flags and banners bearing all sorts of inscriptions. Mac, glancing timidly to the left of him, learnt that "Old Soldiers never die," to the right of him, that "He's a jolly good fellow," in front of him, "Welcome back," and behind him, "Everybody loves you just as much as ever." That's what I call the real camaraderie of the studio. And good old Mac deserved the welcome.

* * *

All those engaged in British productions will regret to hear that the great American director, George Loane Tucker, died in Los Angeles last week. His "Miracle Man" has been an education to all engaged in making photoplays in both hemispheres, and the industry is the poorer by his death. "MEGAPHONE."

Where they are and

Ena Beaumont is leading lady in the Kinema Expansions' comedies.

Frank Hoffman is now turning on "The Beggars' Syndicate" (Minerva).

Johnny Reid, who plays lead in B. and C.'s "Puppet Man," is the youngest British film artiste in star parts.

L. G. Egrot, the cameraman, is expecting to go to Paris in the course of the next few days.

Joan Morgan returned from South Africa last Tuesday. She has starred in three South African Film Productions there.

William Veats, the laboratory expert, has now left Barkers and is on the free list. Address, c/o this office.

Irene Tripod is now playing a character part in "The Wonderful Year" (Thompson).

The B. and C. Company is still in the Tyrol on Frank Crane's "Puppet Man," and does not expect to be back for some weeks.

Kenelm Foss has started work on W. J. Locke's "Wonderful Year," which he has adapted himself for Thompson's British productions.

George K. Arthur has been presented with a signed copy of "Kipps," by H. G. Wells, "in astounded recognition" of his work in the title rôle of the film of that name.

Max Gionti has been engaged by Geoffrev Malins as the leading comedian in the Kinema Expansions comedies now being produced.

Charlie Slonien plays the part of the café manager in "The Wonderful Year," following his Mephistophelian part in "The Double Event."

Cameron Carr has left Broadwest's Stock Company, but has been re-engaged to play a leading part in "The Imperfect Lover," which Walter West is directing.

Pat Quinn is assistant-cameraman to Frank Canham in "The Wonderful Year," which Kenelm Foss is directing for Thompson.

Violet Hopson, Stewart Rome and Gregory Scott now comprise the whole of the Broadwest Stock Company. This announcement should settle all the various rumours that have been floating around.

Sydney N. Folker is at present playing the two juvenile leads in the first of the new Kenneth Graeme series of comedies, but advises that he will be free at the end of this week.

Walter West is now examining the scenario of "Levity Hicks," which is to be the next Broadwest production. Casting has not yet commenced. This will be followed by "The Candy Men" and "Double Life."

Irene Rooke is now playing at the Stoll studio under the direction of Maurice Elvey.

Yvonne Thomas has an important part in "Land of My Fathers" (Glen).

Elizabeth Brandt is leading lady in "The Night Hawk" (International Artists).

Lewis Willoughby is now on the free list with Sid Jay as booking agent.

Violet Hopson plays lead in "The Imperfect Lover" (Broadwest).

Edith Pierson plays a leading part in the Glen Productions "Land of My Fathers."

Stewart Rome is playing opposite Violet Hopson in "The Imperfect Lover," now being produced at the Broadwest studio.

Henry Victor has the part of Sam Broken-shau, the skipper of the Night Hawk, in "The Night Hawk" (International Artists).

Pauline Johnson is playing in "The Imperfect Lover" (Broadwest), a part similar to that she played in "The Great Gay Road," her first Broadwest picture.

Milton Rosmer is being specially featured as Lucius O'Grady in "General John Regan," which Harold Shaw is directing at the Stoll studio.

George Leyton has now returned from Wales where he has been supervising production of "Land of My Fathers," for Glen Productions.

Fred Rains is the director of "Land of My Fathers" (Glen Productions), which is based on the Welsh National Anthem of the same title.

Margaret Bannerman made a personal appearance at the Globe Kinema, Acton, at a special performance in aid of the unemployed.

John Stuart is still playing the part of David Morgan in "Land of My Fathers," which Glen Productions is making at Aberystwith.

Ann Trevor finishes her engagement as leading lady in "Grumpy" at the Criterion Theatre on July 15 and will probably be starred in an important film production within the next few weeks.

John Gliddon will direct the whole output of International Artists.

John Robertson, the Famous-Lasky director, is in this country with reference to the production of Barrie's "Peter Pan."

Harry Hearty is with Perfect Day Productions and is playing "Fatty Aibuckle" parts.

Evelyn Brent is playing the titular role in Denison Clift's production of "Sonia" for Ideal.

Alan Butler is the managing director of the new International Artists' Film Company; address 52, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.

Raoul Paoli, who plays Kortes, the strong man in Mercanton's "Phroso," arrived in London from Paris last Thursday. He took part in the Stamford Bridge sports last Friday and Saturday, where he came second in the weight-throwing competition, of which he was the holder of the Championship.

—DO YOU—

Who is the child actress that Frank Crane discovered in Milan?

* * *

What they thought of "The Hound" at the Stoll studios?

* * *

Why the "Human Material" article in the last issue created such a stir.

* * *

The name of De Hem's best patron in the film trade?

* * *

How Olga Conway is spending her time at Maidenhead; and—

* * *

If she intends to leave film work now that she is in the "united states"?

* * *

Why a certain girl pesters Bert Darley for his photograph?

* * *

Whether Syd Jay's new car is a sign of his prosperity; and—

* * *

Who is the "Big Noise" in the film trade who calls the car a "tin Lizzie"?

WHAT DO

THIS is the question that has been submitted by Ideal to various "big" authors, and their replies are very suggestive.

Stephen McKenna says, "the greatest defect in the films of the day is that they are designed for the least intelligent members of every audience. Nothing that can be thrown on to the screen is ever left to the imagination. The audiences are treated like children, who cannot be told that anyone went from one place to another on horseback without being shown a picture of the horse. . . . Film production could be immensely improved by a very simple mechanical arrangement, by which for certain passages of a film play the sides of the screen were used for the caption or for any letter that is to be presented. Thus, while a character is seen reading a letter, the letter itself would be visible to the audience at the side of the picture, and it would not be necessary to break the continuity of the film as is so exasperatingly done at present. . . . An effort should be made to free film production from the vices which have already become ineradicable on the stage. . . . Economy in effects is what film directors should now aim to achieve."

— what they are doing —

Francis Inny is in the cast of "The Night Hawk" (International Artists).

Crispin Hay is playing in "The Beggars' Syndicate" (Minerva).

Edward Sorby has been cast for the part of Richard Varwell in "The Night Hawk" (International Artists).

Mary Patterson is working on "The Beggars' Syndicate," which Adrian Brunel is directing for Minerva.

Nadja Ostrovska, the Russian actress, will be Deborah in "The Night Hawk" (International Artists).

Malvina Longfellow plays female lead in "The Night Hawk," the next International Artists' production.

Henri de Vries has been cast for male lead in "The Night Hawk" (International Artists).

Gerard Ford Buckle is responsible for the scenario of "The Night Hawk" (based on Philpotts "The Haven"), for International Artists.

— K N O W —

If Stoll really intends to do a second Sherlock Holmes series; and—

* * *

If Eille Norwood will wait while Stoll makes up its mind?

* * *

If Florence Turner is the cause of the daily trek of directors to the Regent Palace Hotel?

* * *

If the Hon. Mrs. Astley is screen-acting for fun?

* * *

Where Jack Selfridge has got to these days; and—

* * *

If he is cast for a part that he has never played before and hopes never to play again?

* * *

If C. Croker King got the wind up over the possibilities of being electrocuted?

* * *

What George Treville thinks of the Elstree rose-petals.

Iris Rowe is the Gaumont star in "Roses in the Dust."

Gladys Mason is in the cast of "Roses in the Dust" (Gaumont).

Guy Newall is expected home from Nice this week

What George Treville thinks of the Fruitful Vinc" for Stoll.

Olaf Hytten is working at Cricklewood for Stoll.

Geoffrey Malins is the director of a series of one-reel comedies for Kinema Expansions.

Lewis Gilbert has been playing the part of "The Tiger" in "The Tiger of San Pedro," for Stoll.

William Shentin is responsible for the photographic work in "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" (Ideal).

Clive Brook has joined the cast of "Sonia" (Ideal), in which Evelyn Brent is the star.

Claude H. Mitchell, whom Donald Crisp brought over with him from the States, is Crisp's assistant at the Islington studio.

Mary O'Connor was responsible for the scenario of "Dangerous Lies" (Famous Lasky).

Harold Shaw, in completing "The Wheels of Chance," creates a record: it is the 130th picture of which he has been the director.

Will Howse will be the cameraman for the first International Artists' production, "The Night Hawk."

Bert Darley is now playing lead opposite Mary Patterson in "The Beggars' Syndicate," a Minerva production, being directed by Adrian Brunel.

Jeff Barlow has been engaged to play the part of Titus Peach, the sailmaker, in "The Night Hawk," which John Gliddon is directing for International Artists.

Kenelm Foss has started work on "The Wonderful Year," and leaves for the Continent this week with the full company. Florence, Naples, Milan and Rome are in the itinerary.

Nicholas Mursuraca is in charge of the camera work on Blackton's "The Glorious Adventure."

Donald Crisp is in the thick of the Lasky picture, "Bonnie Briar Bush," which he is directing as well as acting lead.

Paul Powell's direction of "Twice Wed" is now drawing to a close, and the final title of "Dangerous Lies" has been definitely fixed.

Frank Hoffman is still cranking for Minerva, and is at present working under Adrian Brunel's direction on "The Beggar's Syndicate."

Gertrude McCoy left for Capetown by Union Castle mail boat last week. She is under contract for South African Film Productions to star in three pictures, the first of which is "Chips," in which she plays a boy's part. "Blue Lagoon" is the second.

CAMERA for Cartoon and Studio work in perfect order fitted with one, two, four eight turn and reverse, four 400-ft. Boxes direct focussing, two Carl Zeiss. f3.5.2-in. and 3-in. lenses and stand, with panoramic head, £45-

THE KINEMATOGRAPH EXCHANGE,
81, Aldersgate Street, E.C.1.

The next issue of the

MOTION PICTURE STUDIO

will be a

SPECIAL SOUVENIR NUMBER

of

J. Stuart Blackton's,
SUPERB PRODUCTION,

"THE GLORIOUS ADVENTURE"

Artistes who have not yet reserved space in the Art Supplement should forward full instructions by first post Tuesday, Formes close at noon.

Make certain of securing a copy by filling in the Subscription Order Form on back page and post with remittance.

FILMS LACK?

Ethel M. Dell writes:—"To secure the best possible results in picture plays, all scenario and production work should be placed in the hands of men of sound education and artistic perception—not mere business men. The sub-titling should be in every respect as studied a work of art as the picture, and all cheap sentiment and poetical tags should be avoided. The pictures should be as far as possible a sequence easy to follow, and only under very exceptional circumstances should 'throw-backs' be permitted, for these, in my opinion, are bad art and often very confusing."

There is much in the foregoing opinions with which we find ourselves in hearty agreement. On the other hand it has to be remembered that the writers are taking their own point of view which is not necessarily that of the man and woman in the studio. And as the mouth-piece of all engaged in film production, this journal throws its columns open to those obvious replies that directors, scenarists and artistes must be impatient to make. Letters should not be too long and should deal with specific points in the above.

CENTRALISED ORGANISATION OF THE STUDIO

Studio organisation, as we understand the term to-day, is nothing more than a specialised system applied to the production of motion pictures, a system by which energy, time and money are husbanded by steady concentration in one direction and not dissipated in a number of extraneous issues.

By this means the director of to-day should be able to give his entire attention to his story and its production, without having to worry about such matters as getting a cast together, running up a set or superintending the exigencies of the leading lady's screen wardrobe. The system of centralised organisation at our Islington Studio can be seen at a glance from the accompanying chart.

The staff receives its orders from departmental heads and are responsible to them directly in all matters pertaining to their respective duties. Only heads of departments are in direct touch with the studio manager.

Every new member, on starting work at the studio, receives a copy of this chart, so that he can make himself conversant with the general organisation of the plant and under what heading his duties automatically place him. On the first of every month a list is issued giving the names of the whole staff grouped beneath departmental heads.

The "pictorial" group indicated, such as draughtsmen, carpenters, painters, properties, engineers, etc., co-operate in their work under the chief art director as the head of their combined departments.

The cameramen are attached to their own particular directorial group during the making of a picture. They take their orders from the director, who, for the time being, is their departmental head. When the picture is finished they come under the Studio Manager, as always, for by Major C. H. BELL, O.B.E., Studio General Manager

F.P.-Lasky British Producers.

administration, who, after a consultation with his producing staff, decides under which director they are to work for their next picture.

The value of time is possibly the most important consideration that the management of a modern moving picture studio has to bear in mind. Every hour that is wasted invariably entails a corresponding financial loss, sometimes to the tune of a very considerable sum of money.

A very ordinary door knocker, the intrinsic value of which could have been safely assessed at a couple of shillings, once cost us £70. It was not on the set when wanted and the company, together with the "extra" people had to be called for the following morning, although the director had hoped to clean up that particular episode of his picture the same evening.

A few hours' standstill in our business is an expensive luxury with nothing to show for the outlay in the end.

A few minutes after the scenario of a new production has passed officially into the hands of the studio management, a conference is held, attended by all the heads of departments. After half an hour's discussion, each chief knows really what is expected of him, and the assistant director has only to notify the various departments when the different sets and costumes or other effects will be required.

Donald Crisp only needed fifteen days to film "The Princess of New York." Fifteen sets were built, "dressed" and "shot" in seven days—which, I think, constitutes something of a record in the British producing business.

With our system of centralised organisation, any director who gets, let us say, a happy inspiration at five o'clock in the afternoon, which necessitates a slight alteration in the story, can call for a new set to be built by nine o'clock the following morning; and, what is more, find it ready for him at the stipulated time. These little rush calls, which would demoralise a studio lacking in an efficient system of organisation, put us on our mettle and our system to a test.

We have found it false economy to cut down the number of our carpenters, painters, etc., during a lull in activities. There is no economy more expensive in the long run than that of keeping the director waiting for the sake of dispensing with a few work-people, when skilled labour is so difficult to procure, especially in any sudden emergency.

The whole of our system in the direction of its various energies into the proper channels is nothing but a practical realisation of the value of time.

ARTISTES' PROFESSIONAL NAMES

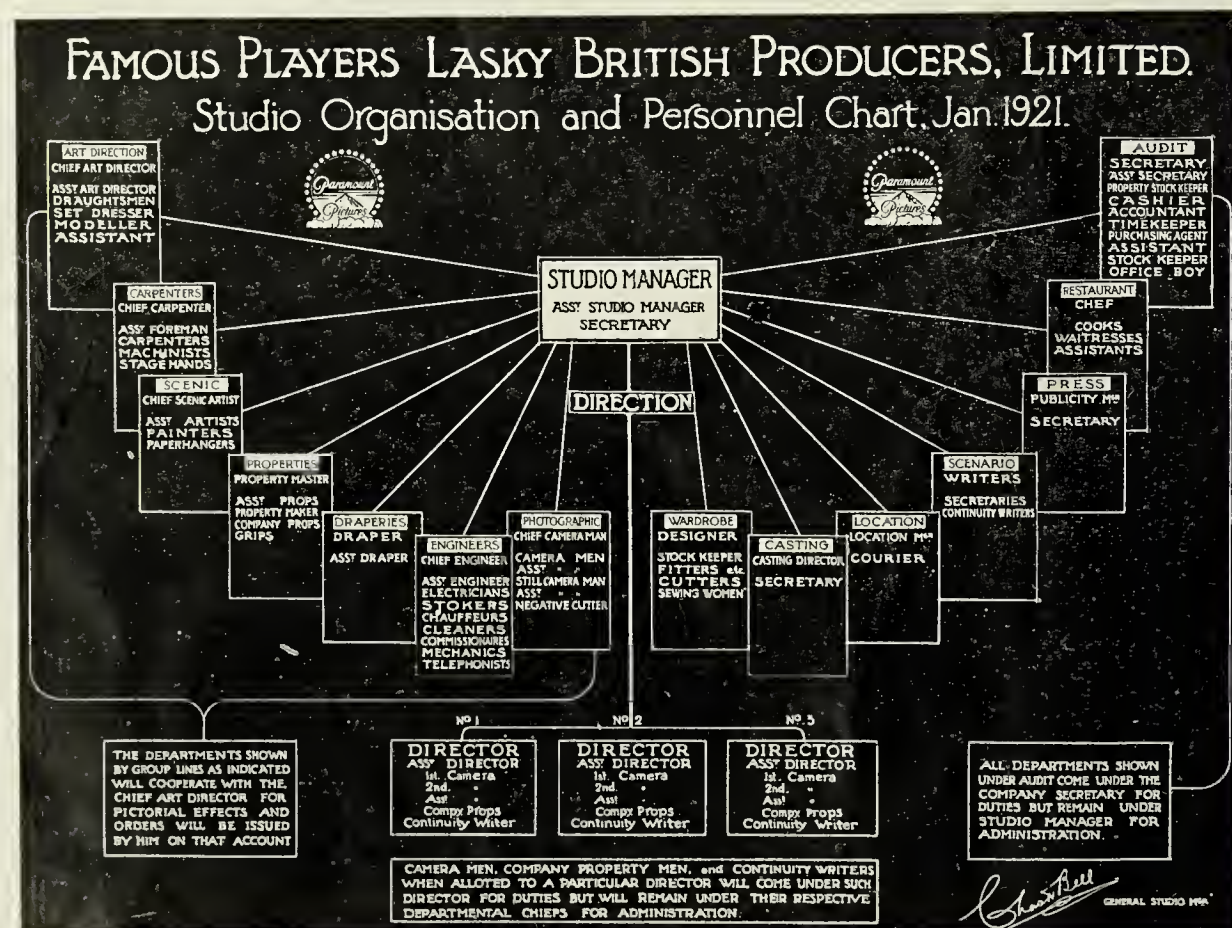

Under the provisions of the Registration of Business Names Act of 1916, every individual or firm "having a place of business" and carrying on business in the United Kingdom under a name or names not his or her or their own, must register in the manner directed by the Act, furnishing particulars as to (a) the business name; (b) general nature of business; (c) principal place of business; (d) present Christian name and surname and nationality.

Whether the Act applies to a performer having no permanent address and, therefore, no place of business, has not been settled in law, although in one or two instances stipendiary magistrates have held that even in such cases the regulations as to registration should be observed. A performer having a place of business or permanent address, if he uses a name other than his own, should register; while the Act also applies to agents who may trade in names other than their own.

The office of the Register of Business Names is at 3 and 4, Clement's Inn, Strand, London, W.C., where forms for registration are obtainable. The fee for registration is 5s. a stamp to that value being affixed to the registration form on completion.—(From The Performer Handbook.)

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR AT GAUMONT'S STUDIO.

Last week the Maharajah of Patiala paid a visit to the Gaumont Studio and Laboratories at Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, and willingly consented to be filmed. Afterwards he was conducted round the works by the works manager, W. T. Hitchcock, who explained every process in detail. The Maharajah was extremely interested in the printing plant and in the working of the perforators. In passing through the developing rooms he witnessed the various stages of development of the film which had been taken of himself. Later, after he had returned to his hotel, he expressed considerable surprise at the rapidity with which he was presented with a positive print of the film.

Major Bell's Studio Organisation Chart

STUDIO CRAFT AND SCREEN CRAFT

by EILLE NORWOOD

The difference between acting for the stage and acting for the screen is considerably more marked than is generally realised by the man in the street. But the two forms of dramatic art are as distinct from one another as an oil painting is distinct from a water-colour drawing—and everyone knows that the master in oils is seldom a master in water-colour, or vice versa.

If the man in the street were right in his assumption, the actor who scores in a play should be equally successful in a film, and the star who shines on the screen should scintillate with equal brilliance on the stage; but, actually, the technique of these two branches of dramatic art is so different that many artistes who have won their laurels in the theatre have come woeful croppers on the screen. There have been exceptions, to be sure—artistes who have triumphed in both branches—but they have not been numerous enough to abolish the rule; they have merely broken it.

The reason is not far to seek. On the stage, as in an oil painting, breadth of treatment is not only permissible—it is essential. One looks at the stage as one looks at an oil painting—from a distance. The worst seats in a theatre are those in the front row of the stalls; the best are those in the front row of the dress circle; but there are many seats beyond and above the front row of the dress circle, as well as below and before it, and the stage actor, to be successful, has to adopt methods which will prove effective even to those who watch and listen in the farthest corner of the building.

His make-up may appear coarse and crude to the members of the orchestra who are immediately in front of him; but, on the other hand, if it appeared perfect to the members of the orchestra, it would be virtually lost on the crowd in the gallery.

Facial expression, too, is a thing that calls almost for exaggeration in the theatre. The tilt of an eyebrow, the twitch of a lip, would not carry beyond the stalls; and the various gestures and movements we lump together under the one significant title, "dramatic action," must be of a fairly robust order to "get over."

But the screen is a more intimate thing. It demands as much delicacy as a water-colour drawing because it is seen at closer quarters. The picture palace may be as big as the theatre, but the movie camera annihilates distance—the close-up brings the actor's face nearer to the people in the back row of the picture palace than it is to the people in the front row of the stalls at a theatre. To express the thing in screen language, a theatrical performance consists of a series of long shots—only the long shots are of a vocal as well as of a visual character; the average filmplay consists more of close-ups than of long shots, and facial expression largely takes the place of verbal expression.

That tilt of the eyebrow, that twitch of the lip, so ineffective on the stage, may convey a whole world of meaning on the screen; consequently, just as the broad sweep of the oil-painter's brush, or the generous use of his palette knife, is required in the theatre, so is the delicate work of a Meissonier needed for the screen. Exaggeration becomes unparadonable.

Herein lies the actor's difficulty; for the methods of the theatre must be not merely adapted, but altogether discarded, if he would satisfactorily supply the more subtle requirements of the Kinema and become, in truth, a film artiste.

The environment of the theatre does not call for the meticulous care in make-up demanded by the screen. The softening effect of the footlights, and the distance that "lends enchantment to the view," are both distressingly absent in studio work. The merciless eye of the all-searching camera will see through the tricks of an actor's disguise and reveal every one of them to the audience. He must not merely indicate lines and wrinkles; he must reproduce them with sufficient fidelity to make them look like lines and wrinkles in his own dressing-room mirror. He must not be content to suggest the character he is going to play, he must literally assume that character; for the light in which he is called upon to work, instead of helping him out with the character, will do its best to tumble him out of it. And he is denied all the tricks of speech which, on the stage, would help him so much to simulate the part he is to play.

Keener concentration, quicker decision, and greater self-command are needed for the screen than for the stage. An actor in a play may effect improvements in his characterisation by repeated performance of his part. He may eliminate the flaws of which he becomes conscious on the first night when he makes his appearance on the second night, and he may build up the character as he gets more and more into the skin of his part. The film artist has his one chance of making good, and he must either take it or lose it.

He must convey, by facial expression, the unspoken thought in his mind; he must use his eyes with all the eloquence a gifted author's lines would, on the stage, enable him to use his tongue. And he must be slower, more deliberate, in all his actions than an actor in front of the footlights. The sudden movement, the abrupt turn of the head, the quick stride, all of which are so often entirely appropriate on the stage, are never appropriate in front of the camera. He must remember that his actions are being recorded in pictures taken at the rate of about sixteen to the second, and that natural movements do not necessarily look natural when recorded at this speed. The actor who is too slow and deliberate to be altogether successful on the stage, stands far more chance of scoring on the screen than his more rapid colleague.

It is a well-established fact that the stage actors and actresses of the so-called "natural" school have, almost without exception, proved disappointing in the studio. To be successful on the screen, an actor must rely upon himself and his personality—and personality, in spite of the absence of the spoken word, gets over on the screen more quickly and more forcibly than it does on the stage. Perhaps this is because the audience is brought into closer touch with the actor and his meaning, on the screen—because, so to speak, one is brought into greater intimacy with him.

Communication by signs and gestures existed before the formation of speech, and to the primitiveness that is in all of us, the screen consequently has an enormous power of natural appeal. We hear nothing, but we see all; and our emotions are as truly reached through the eyes as through the ears. On the stage the actor can appeal to our ears as well as to our eyes; on the screen he can appeal only to our eyes.

COPYRIGHT IN PHOTOGRAPHS

Film artistes, now that they are just beginning to appreciate the great importance of Press publicity, will do well to understand the law of copyright as it affects their photographs. Let us put it in simple and untechnical language.

In the first place, it should be distinctly understood that every photograph is copyright. Its copyright is vested in some one person, and that person alone has the control of its use. The holder of the copyright is the only person who can allow or prohibit its reproduction, sale, or publication. If this copyright is violated the holder can claim damages.

It can be accepted as a general rule that this copyright is vested in the person who orders the photograph to be made; but, like the copyright of a song or a book, it can be transferred to another person. The actual and original ownership of the copyright, however, is determined by the person who ordered it, and this takes place not at the time of payment, but at the time of ordering.

There are instances in which a professional photographer will invite an artiste to his studio to be photographed, and in this case the copyright belongs to the photographer—it does not matter how much the artiste may pay subsequently, the copyright is the photographer's. Artistes are particularly requested to notice this point, as we, in common with all other papers, are continually having trouble with photographers because of photographs of artistes that are supplied us by the artiste. These we publish, and unknowingly violate the photographer's copyright, for which we are mulcted in damages.

If the manager of a studio arranges for an artiste's photograph to be taken the copyright rests with him, and even if the artiste, later, obtains copies of the photograph from the photographer for payment, they are still the studio manager's copyright. In fact, it should be taken as a safe ruling that before an artiste uses a photograph that has not been ordered and paid for by herself she should ascertain in whom the copyright is vested and obtain the necessary permission before using it, or, if a fee is involved, the amount of this should be ascertained and the information passed on with the photograph to whoever is to use it.

WANTED : A KINEMA CLUB

Some more Opinions on the Need

Whatever doubts may have been entertained as to whether there really existed a desire for a kinema club have been banished by the gratifying reception the suggestion contained in our last issue obtained. On all sides we hear opinions supporting the idea, a selection of which we give below.

Some Directors' Opinions

"I shall be glad to support any plan for establishing a club for Kinema Studio workers. Such a club would, undoubtedly, meet a long-felt want. I am leaving town immediately for three weeks, and so have little time to make suggestions, but will write you again immediately I return. We certainly want a meeting-place where we can discuss business and, later on, we might have lectures, meetings, etc., for an interchange of views on technical matters. The possibilities of a good club, run on business lines, are great."—EDWIN J. COLLINS.

Adding Dignity.

"I personally think the idea of a Kinema Club exclusively for the use of kinema workers would be an excellent idea, and would, apart from its actual use, to my mind, add dignity to a profession which is becoming daily a bigger factor in public life.—FREDERICK EARLE, Casting Director (Stoll).

Some Artistes'

"I am quite in accord with the project for a Kinema Club provided, of course, it is conducted on really business-like lines, as I am convinced would be the case with a scheme started under the auspices of those associated with the Motion Picture Studio.

Members of the legitimate profession have already the Green Room Club, and, in addition, there is a prospect of another place of meeting being found for them at the instance of the Actors' Association. I think the promoters of that scheme are wise in limiting the qualification for membership to those who belong to the A.A., and I am of opinion that membership of the Kinema Club should be exclusively confined, to use the phrase in your last week's article, to those engaged in making British pictures.

"Speaking as a Kinema artist, I continually realise the need of a recognised centre at which one can meet for personal business and for recreation. Although I attach a great deal of value to the scheme from a social point of view, I am even more concerned with the effectual use that could be made of such an institution for purely business affairs. At present there are now only two places (and they are ordinary licensed premises) to which one can resort in the hope of finding those interested in British films, and it is not under such conditions that matters of vital import to artistes personally, and to the producing side of the Trade as a whole, can be usefully discussed.

"In the program of a Kinema Club there might very well be allocated an evening, once a week or at less frequent intervals, devoted entirely to the consideration of the many important questions which arise from time to time, and from such gatherings surely it is not too much to expect that valuable suggestions might emanate.

One other matter I think should not be overlooked, and that is that membership should be open to members of the Trade Press and contributors of articles on Kinema subjects to the lay Press."—JAMES KNIGHT.

"I am at present on the Committee for the forming of the Actors' Club in connection with the A.A. At the same time I am sure the forming of a Kinema Club would meet a long-felt want, and the sooner the better, and hope to hear more on the matter.—ARTHUR WALCOTT.

And a Scenarist's.

"I am convinced that a Kinema Club "where all engaged in kinema work could meet on common ground for social intercourse and other amenities," would be a ghastly failure.

The film industry is divided into three distinct camps. 1. Business Group.—Manufacturers, renters, exhibitors, etc., most of whom doubtless have their social clubs already. 2. The Technical Group.—Scenario writers, directors, cameramen, art directors, etc., who have no time for any club! 3. Artistes' Group.—Principals, small parts, supers, and gifted amateurs, most of whom are already amply provided for by the Green Room Club and the Actors' Association, etc.

The Cameramen's Society meets once a week, not for social intercourse, but as a deliberate and clearly defined technical association. Its meetings, brief and businesslike, are jammed in between a hard day's work and the last train home.

The Green Room, the Vaudeville, and other stage clubs have for members people who work at night, and therefore can congregate during the day for social intercourse, etc.; but we film people work by day, and most of us are ready for our beds by the time the day's work is over.

I feel the proposed club would be useless for business purposes, since both manufacturers and dramatic agents have their offices in which to engage their staffs and their players. Therefore neither the one nor the other are likely to come to a club to transact their business. Socially, I believe the club would almost immediately degenerate into a dumping ground for film people who congregate not for "social intercourse," but to air their grievances.—ELIOT STANNARD.

* * *

We have also received offers of service and premises, which offers only serve to prove that the idea of a Club is being taken up enthusiastically. One film actor, who was the first organising President and later Vice-President of a big association in Canada, has offered to assist with advice in the formation of such an institution, while a chartered accountant has volunteered his services in that capacity.

YOUR CORNER

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

With regard to the suggested Film Artistes' Association, to look round some of the Studios and to get into the hands of some of the agents is to know that the lot of the Kinema Artiste is far from pleasant and at times utterly disgusting to any artiste of refinement and temperament. I firmly believe that an efficient organisation would soon black-list:

(1) A few directors who need to be made to toe the line in their treatment of artistes;

(2) About 75 per cent. of the Studios, which because of the working conditions, need some very necessary reforms;

(3) About 95 per cent. of the Booking Agents.

(4) Practically all Kinema "schools" and "colleges."

I, furthermore, suggest that there could be run in connection with the Association an "Educational" Department, where beginners, for a small fee, could be initiated into the first essentials of screen work, such as the use of make-up, etc., which safely get them past the eagle eye of the director and save the temper of other artistes in the dressing-room.—Charity has a taint with grease paint the price it is!

This department could well be cared for by one of our dear old "Daddies" of the screen.—MARC OLDHAM.

I notice that "Megaphone" in "High Lights" in your issue of July 2, remarks upon the fact that "very few companies have made use of the wonderful clear atmosphere around London during the coal lock-out."

It certainly seems a pity that such splendid weather should be wasted, especially as there are usually so very few good opportunities for shooting exteriors in London.

"Megaphone" will be glad to hear, however, that Minerva has been busy on London exteriors every day for the past fortnight, shooting scenes for "The Beggars' Syndicate," which features Mary Patterson and myself—Bert Darley and Peggie Hathaway also having important roles in this film.

Incidentally, may I say that I heartily agree with "Megaphone's" remarks about American comedies and that "showing a red nose and making faces at the camera" certainly is not film fun.—CRISPIN HAY.

I am heartily in agreement with all that has been written in your first two numbers, both editorial and otherwise. Thank heaven someone is tackling the awful tragedy of British films from the correct angle at last. Best wishes to you in your new venture and more power to your elbow.—TERRY CAVANAGH.

We are regular readers of your weekly and consider the Motion Picture Studio the greatest medium through which British films can be improved and the film industry in this country made the success that other countries have enjoyed for many years.—T. Bosac (Bosac and Fellner).

The Biggest Successes have BENJAMIN COSTUMES

PERSONAL SUPERVISION GUARANTEED
in every detail. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

WHAT IS WRONG?

AN ANSWER TO J. COBB

by L. BOSAC

British directors are human and, like everybody human, are not without what might be called errors.

As we all know, the work assigned to a director is enormous. Reading countless scenarios, arranging for locations, supervising settings, and endeavouring to get a number of different temperaments to harmonize, is enough to tax to the utmost the most wonderful nervous system. Is it any wonder, then, that British Pictures are frequently miscast?

The success of a picture depends upon him. And one who should be of vast assistance to him in casting, the agent is all too frequently inadequate, or lacking in ability, or wilfully unfair.

Artistes must be studied thoroughly to determine their fitness for a rôle. Just because he or she is of the right stature and fine-looking, it does not signify that he has an alert and responsive brain capable of readily interpreting the director's directions. Because certain artistes have been, and are, stage successes, does not assure them of a screen success. Names count for nought if the actions registered by the camera are poor. A good voice and fine clothes help many a stage artiste to success, but the screen play is pantomime, the picture-goer must follow the story mostly from the action, as few people are successful lip-readers.

The director has not the time to make these investigations. He has, and does, trust to the agent's ability to send him fitting artistes. And unless the agent is a good character reader, knows human nature, and will not utilise his social favourite to the detriment of the film business, the director is irreparably handicapped and frightfully overworked—because he has not the proper material to work with. Even when the director sends for a certain artiste, knowing his or her ability, the agent oftentimes will deliberately send someone else, because of private relations we all know exist between certain agents and certain artistes.

When there are more really intelligent agents who are willing to "play fair," give the director what he needs and what he asks for, British Films will not any longer be "obviously miscast."

A NEW PRODUCING CONCERN.

An addition to the ranks of British producing companies is the Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate, which has just commenced operations. Kenneth Graeme, the principal figure in the company, is a well-known member of the Industry.

P.C.W. King, who will be in charge of the technical side of the business, is also well known in the Industry. After a course of study he joined the photographic industry, becoming a member of the staff of Houghton's, whom he subsequently left to join Ross, where he became conversant with the cinematograph side of the business. He was next with Ruffells as technical adviser, where he was in charge of the department handling the Debie apparatus, studio lighting and electrical equipment. During the war he served on the experimental staff of the technical section dealing with the provision of optical instruments for airships.

DON'T WORRY

THERE IS NO NEED TO

IF THE COSTUMES,

WIGS,

PROPS, etc.,

For Your PRODUCTION

are SUPPLIED BY

H. & M. Rayne,

115-119, WATERLOO RD., S.E. 1

Phone: 7978 CENTRAL.

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

(Continued from page 15).

Progress:

ADDRESS: Shoreham.

FILM: "Moth and Rust."

DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.

STARS: Sybil Thorndike, Malvina Longfellow, and Langhorne Burton.

SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Fifth week.

FILM: "Mayor of Casterbridge."

STAR: Fred Groves.

DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.

SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.

STAGE: First week.

FILM: "The Wooing of April."

DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.

STARS: Pauline Johnson, Harold French and Ellis Jeffries.

SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.

TYPE: Comedy drama.

STAGE: Cutting and assembling

Samuelson.

ADDRESS: Warton Hall, Isleworth.

FILM: Title not announced.

DIRECTOR: Rex Wilson.

STAGE: Starting shortly.

Seal.

ADDRESS: Prince's Studio, Kew Bridge.

FILM: "Diek's Fairy."

DIRECTOR: Bert Wynne.

STARS: Hargreaves Munsell, Joan Griffith, and Albert Bruntford.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: John Wyndham.

SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.

CAMERAMAN: L. Protheroe.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Sixth week.

Screen Plays.

ADDRESS: Cranmer Court, Clapham S.W.

FILM: Grand Guignol series.

DIRECTORS: Fred Paul and Jack Raymond.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Rodwell.

TYPE: Short melodramas.

STAGE: Producing one a week.

Sinclair Hill Productions.

ADDRESS: Jay's Agency, Wardour Street, London, W.

FILM: "Only One Week to Live."

DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.

STARS: Dorothy Fane and Campbell Gullan.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: S. D. Braham.

SCENARIST: Frank Millar.

TYPE: Straight Comedy.

STAGE: Second week.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Criklewood.

FILM: "The Woman with the Fan."

DIRECTOR: Rene Plaissetty.

STARS: Mary Massart, Alee Fraser.

CAMERAMAN: Jack Cox.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "The Fruitful Vine."

DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.

CAMERAMAN: Jermaine Berger.

STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "The Prey of the Dragon."

DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.

STAR: Victor McLaglan.

CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Nearing completion.

FILM: "General John Regan."

DIRECTOR: Harold Shaw.

STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "The Hound of the Baskervilles."

DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.

STARS: Eille Norwood, Catin Campbell.

SCENARIST: W. J. Elliott.

CAMERAMAN: Jermaine Berger.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "The Pointing Finger."

DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.

STARS: Milton Rosmer, Madge Stuart.

CAMERAMAN: Al Moses.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Fifth week.

H. W. Thompson.

ADDRESS: B. & C. Studio, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

FILM: "The Wonderful Year."

DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.

STARS: Marie Odette, Lionello Howard.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Grace Rose.

SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.

EDITOR: John Miller.

CAMERAMAN: Frank Canham.

ASSISTANT CAMERAMAN: Pat Quinn.

TYPE: Light French Drama.

STAGE: Third week.

Welsh Pearson.

ADDRESS: Craven Park, Willesden

FILM: "Squibs."

DIRECTOR: George Pearson.

STARS: Betty Balfour, Fred Groves

SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.

CAMERAMAN: Emile Lauste.

TYPE: Comedy.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Zodiac.

ADDRESS: Windsor Studios, Catford.

FILM: "Walter Finds a Father."

STAR: Walter Forde.

TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.

STAGE: Second week.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for Kinematograph Productions. Phone—London Wall 7568

LIGHTING A STUDIO SET

by WILLIAM SHENTON

Should the set be photographically light in colour, direct light should never be allowed to reach it, as there would be trouble from shadows and a great loss of distance from artiste to backing. As an example of sound lighting for such a set, which I will assume is a sitting-room of a middle-class house, and the preceding scene is outdoors in day time, the following method, carefully worked, always gives satisfaction:—

Place one group of undiffused floor lights as closely together as possible: right angles to the action and camera position, and screen off from backing as much as possible with light flats. Roughly measure off the distance from there to the action, or the place where the close-ups are most likely to occur—the farther away the better, generally speaking.

Next place half the number of lights as nearly in a line with the camera (dead front) as practicable, and the same distance from the action, and slightly diffuse. It will be found that the harsh shadows created by the side group can be completely controlled by the quantity or distance of these front lights, and no false high lights occur, as frequently do where figures are lighted from both sides instead of front and side.

When these two groups of floor lights are satisfactorily arranged and all stray-light rays screened from backing, add just so much spot back light as to be visible photographically—no top light should be used.

Now suppose it is night time, and the same room is artificially lighted, one has at once freedom as to source of light, quantity and effect. Remember, artificial sources of illumination can be anywhere in a room; it is safe to take the fullest advantage of this, as night-time interiors do not present the serious camera opportunities.

A good group of top lights can be safely used, much stronger back spot light, and at a prettier angle than dead behind; shadows to some extent are permissible, and what would be false high light in day time lighting can be made an added beauty at night time and much stronger effects aimed at. The continuity contrasts are, of course, reversed, and the set may safely be lighted up good and strong.

A great thing to remember in artificial studio lighting is that it is really the shadows one is creating, and from which light and shade are photographically rendered. Therefore watch most particularly all facial shadows, and before moving well-placed lights to soften them try the effect of a reflector. The most impressive and generally admired kine-photography is that which shows the whitest high light (however small), the blackest shadow (no matter where), and the greatest range of light and shade between the two. This range can be immensely improved, or rather added to, by the skilled use of reflectors, floor lights and spot lights.

An abundance of soft front light will make a thin person look stouter, or, rather, rounder, and a greater amount of side light will make a stout person photograph with less evidence of stoutness, showing more character and expression. A person with long features, if photographed from a low camera position, is rendered with shortened features. A very short nose is made to look longer and straighter if photographed from a high camera position.

HOW THE K.C.S. GROWS

The K.C.S. was formed in December, 1918, with 18 members; this grew to 70 in 1919 and 98 in 1920, and now numbers 103, compared with the total number of cameramen (i.e., doing nothing else but camera-work) in the United Kingdom which is 130.

In March, 1920, a resolution was passed to register the Society as a Trade Union, and this was carried into effect in October, 1920.

In December, 1920, the whole of the funds of the Society—£110—was lost in Farrow's, with outstanding liabilities of £50; these have all been cleared off and the K.C.S. has again over £60 in funds.

Most of the cameramen who are engaged in the big productions are members of the Society, and they are always willing to help to give advice to those members who have not had their experience.

The Society has had a good many lectures and demonstrations of cameras, lens, etc., and at these lectures "inside information" is given to the members.

There are now members working in India, America, South America, Africa, France, Italy, etc.

Note change of H.Q. to 99, Wardour Street.

* * *

Am very sorry to find Pat Tobin, who was unjustly imprisoned while working as a topical man in Dublin, is still on the tree list, owing to that occurrence. Pat is a real good cameraman with an excellent personal character, and I hope to see someone fix him up soon.—"TRIPOD."

THE WEEK'S DIARY
TRADE SHOWSTHE DOUBLE EVENT (Thompson).

DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Grace Rose.
CAST: Mary Odette, Lionelle Howard, Roy Byford, Tom Coventry, Roy Travers.
SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.
EDITOR: John Miller.
CAMERAMAN: Frank Canham.
ART TITLER: Tom Gilson.
TRADE SHOW: July 6, New Gallery Kinema, 11 a.m.

AUTUMN PRIDE (Gaumont).

DIRECTOR: W. P. Kellino.
STAR: Nora Swinburne.
TRADE SHOW: July 13, Alhambra, 11.15 a.m.

RELEASES

THE WOMAN OF THE IRON BRACELETS (Progress).

DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.
CAST: Eve Balfour, Alice de Winton, Marguerite Blanche, Arthur Walcott, George Bellamy, George Keene.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
RELEASED: July 4, by Butchers.

GARRYOWEN (Welsh Pearson).

DIRECTOR: George Pearson.
CAST: Moyna MacGill, Fred Groves, Hugh E. Wright, Alec Thompson, B. Arthur Cleaves, Tommy Morris, Leo Carelli, Louise Loland, Mrs. Braithwaite, Marjorie Gaffney, Stella Brereton, Betsy Cameron, Little Zillah

CAMERAMAN: Emile Lauste
SCENARIST: George Pearson.
RELEASED: July 4, by Jury.

GREATHEART (Stoll).

DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.
CAST: Madge Stuart, Paulette Del Baye, William Ferris, Teddy Arundell, Olive, Sloan, Cecil Humphreys, Ernest Benham, Norma Whalley, Winifred Harris.
SCENARIST: Mrs. Sidney Broome.
CAMERAMAN: Al Moses.
RELEASED: July 11, by Stoll.

STUDIO
PATENTS

Latest Patent Applications.

17,375.—J. D. Brunton. Kinematograph machines. June 25.

17,208.—W. C. Jeapes. Kinema films, etc., and printing mechanism, etc., therefor. June 23.

17,060.—J. G. Kitchen. Masking device for lanterns for photographic enlargement. June 22.

17,142.—E. Schieron. Kinematographic machines. June 22.

Specifications Published this Week.

154,873.—Petra-Akt-Ges-Fur Electro-Mechanik. Kinematograph apparatus.

V I N T E N
APPARATUS

has been evolved from years of practical experience in every branch of kinematography. Every machine is thoroughly tested before leaving the shops, and is ABSOLUTELY RELIABLE.

W. VINTEN,

Specialist in Cinematograph Apparatus.

—Urbanora House,
89-91, Wardour St., W.1
Telephone Regent 2702.

L. BENJAMIN & CO., 99, Middlesex St.,
Bishopsgate, E.1.

'Phone
London Wall
7568.

Kinematograph Costumier
Naval & Military Outfitter

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Productions and Who is Working on Them

J. Stuart Blackton.

ADDRESS: Bush House, Aldwych.
FILM: "The Glorious Adventure."
DIRECTOR: J. Stuart Blackton.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Clifford Grey.
STAR: Lady Diana Manners.
SCENARIST: Felix Orman.
ART DIRECTOR: Almon C. Whiting.
CAMERAMAN: Nicholas Mursuraca
TYPE: Seven-reel drama.
STAGE: Second week.

British and Colonial.

ADDRESS: Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
FILM: "The Puppet Man."
DIRECTOR: Frank Crane.
STARS: Molly Adair, John Reid.
SCENARIST: Cosmo Gordon Lennox.
CAMERAMAN: I. Roseman.
TYPE: Spectacular Circus drama.
Stage: Finishing.

Broadwest.

ADDRESS: Walthamstow and Esher.
FILM: "The Imperfect Lover."
STAR: Stewart Rome.
DIRECTOR: Walter West.
ART DIRECTOR: Thomas Fleetwood.
CAMERAMAN: J. Franguelli.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: First week.

FILM: "Christie Johnstone."
DIRECTOR: Norman MacDonald.
STARS: Stewart Rome and Gertrude McCoy.
SCENARIST: W. G. Clifford.
CAMERAMAN: G. Pauli.
TYPE: Costume romance.
STAGE: Cutting and assembling.

FILM: "Vi of Smith's Alley."
DIRECTOR: Walter West.
STARS: Violet Hopson, Cameron Carr.
SCENARISTS: J. B. Bertram Brown, Charles Barnet.
CAMERAMAN: J. Franguelli.
TYPE: Domestic drama.
STAGE: Cutting and assembling.

FILM: "Levity Hicks."
STAR: Not cast.
DIRECTOR: Not announced.
STAGE: Schedule—casting shortly.

George Clark.

ADDRESS: 47, Berner's Street, W.1.
FILM: "The Bigamist."
DIRECTOR: Guy Newall.
STARS: Ivy Duke and Guy Newall.
SCENARIST: Guy Newall.
CAMERAMAN: Bort Ford.
TYPE: Social drama.
STAGE: Cutting and assembling.

I. B. Davidson.
ADDRESS: Lea Bridge Road, Leyton.
FILM: "The Fifth Form at St. Dominic's."
DIRECTOR: A. E. Coleby.
SCENARIST: A. E. Coleby.
CAMERAMAN: D. P. Cooper.
TYPE: School story.
STAGE: Cutting and assembling.

Famous Players-Lasky British Producers.

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.
FILM: "Dangerous Lies" (Working title "Twice Wed.")
DIRECTOR: Paul Powell.
STARS: Mary Glynne, David Powell.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: R. J. Cullen.
SCENARIST: Mary O'Connor.
ART DIRECTOR: Leslie Dawson.
CAMERAMAN: C. McDonnell.
TYPE: Social drama.
STAGE: Nearing completion.
FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."

DIRECTOR: Donald Crisp.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Claude H. Mitchell.

STAR: Donald Crisp.
SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.
STAGE: Second week.

Frederick White.

ADDRESS: Weir House, Teddington.

FILM: "The Haigh Serial."
DIRECTOR: Edward R. Gordon.
STAR: Ernest Haigh.
SCENARIST: Edward R. Gordon.
TYPE: Detective serial.
STAGE: Schedule.

Gaumont.

ADDRESS: Shepherd's Bush.
FILM: "Roses in the Dust."
DIRECTOR: Captain Calvert.
STARS: Iris Rowe, Gladys Mason.
CAMERAMAN: Basil W. G. Emmott.
SCENARIST: H. Morgan.
STAGE: First week.

Harma.

ADDRESS: Limes Grove, Croydon.
FILM: (not titled).
DIRECTOR: Bernard Dudley.
STARS: Marjorie Villis and James Knight.
CAMERAMAN: J. Mackenzie.
TYPE: Comedy drama.
STAGE: Third week.

Ideal.

FILM: "All Sorts and Conditions of Men."
DIRECTOR: G. Treville.
STARS: Rex Davis, Renee Kelly.
SCENARIST: Colden Lore.
TYPE: Costume drama.
STAGE: Nearing completion

FILM: "Sonia."

STARS: Evelyn Brent, Clive Brook.
DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.
SCENARIST: Denison Clift.
CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.
STAGE: Third week.

International Artists Films.

ADDRESS: 52, Shaftesbury Avenue.
STUDIO: B. & C. Studios, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
FILM: "The Night Hawk."
DIRECTOR: John Gliddon.
STARS: Malvina Longfellow, Henri de Vries.
SCENARIST: Gerard Ford Buckle.
CAMERAMAN: Will Howse.
STAGE: Starting.

Master Films.

ADDRESS: Weir House, Teddington.
FILM: "God in the Garden."
DIRECTOR: Edwin J. Collins.
STARS: Arthur Pusey, Edith Craig.
SCENARIST: Edwin J. Collins.
CAMERAMAN: Jack Parker.
TYPE: Comedy drama.
STAGE: Cutting and assembling.

FILM: "The Marriage Lines."

DIRECTOR: Wilfred Noy.
STAR: Barbara Hoff.
SCENARIST: Wilfred Noy.
CAMERAMAN: Theodore Thumwood.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Cutting and assembling.

Minerva Films.

ADDRESS: 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1.
FILM: "The Beggar's Syndicate."
DIRECTOR: Adrian Brunel.
STARS: Mary Patterson, Bert Darley, Crispin Hay.
SCENARIST: Adrian Brunel.
CAMERAMAN: Frank Hoffmann.
TYPE: Comedy drama.
STAGE: Second week.

(Continued on page 13.)

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Arfilodre, Hyde, London.

ALLIANCE FILM Co., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barnophio, Ealux.

B. P. FILMS, LTD., Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clapham Park.
BRITISH ACTORS' FILM Co., Melbourne Road, Bushey, Herts. 'Phone: Bushey Heath 259—British Actors.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH Co., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow, E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH ART FILMS, Co., LTD., Princes Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford. 'Phone: Chiswick 574.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PICTURES, LTD., Tuilerie Street, Hackney Road, London, E.2. 'Phone: Dalston 3454.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Portsmouth Road, Esher, Surrey. 'Phone: Esher 325.

CAIRNS FILM Co., Watcombe Hall, Torquay. 'Phone: Torquay 886—Cairnsfilm, Torquay.

CENTRAL FILM PRODUCING Co., Eel Pie Island, Twickenham.

DAVIDSON, I. B., 58, Lea Bridge Road, Leyton, E.10. 'Phone: Walthamstow 634.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

FREDERICK WHITE, LTD., Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

GAILEY PRODUCTIONS, Wadden New Road, Croydon.

GAUMONT Co., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolougue, 'Phone London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland., London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exclugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012.

HARMA CLARENDON Co., 16, Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.

IDEAL FILM Co., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Idefilms, Borehamwood.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Cricklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MIDLAND ACTORS' FILM Co., 76, Broad Street, Birmingham.

MINERVA FILM Co., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

NEW AGENCY FILM Co., 115a, Ebury Street, London, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 6856.

PROGRESS FILM Co., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

SAMUELSON FILM Co., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton 2956.

SEAL PRODUCTIONS, Princes Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford. 'Phone: Chiswick 574.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpic, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1932—Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGNTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & Co., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.

WILSONIAN FILM PRODUCING Co., LTD. Secretary, W. J. Crook, 547, Wandsworth Road, S.W.

ODIAC FILMS, Windsor Studios, Bromley Road, Catford. 'Phone: Lee Green, 948.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

You cannot do better than L. BENJAMIN & CO. 99, Middlesex Street, E.1.
by placing your orders with 'Phone—London Wall 7568.

KENMA

The "Star" of Greaseless Paints

Kenma is the only greaseless paint, and is the perfect substitute for grease paint. It is much more easily applied than grease paint, and is easier to get off. It enables the user to make up quickly, without discomfort.

Kenma adheres with perfect natural-looking evenness. It never cakes. It is sufficiently opaque to obliterate all skin blemishes such as freckles, etc. Kenma gives much better photographic results than are possible with grease paints.

With Kenma you can "work over" the make-up—that is, you can rectify accidental smudges without removing the entire make-up.

Kenma can be removed instantly with soap and water. It will not cause the familiar spots that ordinary grease paints make on clothing.

Supplied in four colours—white, pale yellow, medium yellow and pink, in collapsible tubes, price $1/3$ and $2/6$.

KENMA

Eyebrow & Eyelash Black

is as efficient as Kenma Greaseless Paint. In collapsible tubes, price $1/3$.

It is 1. Easy to apply. 3. Does not "matt" on the lashes.
2. Easy to remove. 4. Promotes the natural growth of lashes.

Kenma Greaseless Paint and Eyelash Darkener may be obtained from—Harrods, Brompton Road, Shortcliff & Co., Shepherd's Bush, Army & Navy Stores, Victoria St., Stepell & Co., Whiteley's Foreign Fancy Dept., or direct from the Manufacturers

A FREE SAMPLE.

On request, we will send a Free Sample Tube of Kenma Greaseless Paint—write for it to-day.

The OATINE Company, Limited,
Oatine Buildings, Borough, London, SE1.

JUST PUBLISHED.

The

PICTUREGOER PORTFOLIO

of

KINEMA CELEBRITIES

Contains the following:

SIXTEEN MAGNIFICENT PHOTOGRAVURE
PORTRAITS, Size, 10in. x 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ in.

MARY PICKFORD.	PEARL WHITE.
NORMA TALMADGE.	LILIAN GISH.
CHARLES CHAPLIN.	RICHARD BARTHELMESS.
DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS.	WILLIAM FARNUM.
NAZIMOVA.	PAULINE FREDERICK.
MARY MILES MINTER.	CONSTANCE TALMADGE.
WILLIAM S. HART.	THOMAS MEIGHAN.
RALPH GRAVES.	JACKIE COOGAN.

All worth Framing. Price

ONE SHILLING

(Post free 1/2)

On Sale everywhere or direct from

PICTURES LTD.

88, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

EVERY FILM LOVER MUST HAVE A COPY.

The MOTION PICTURE Studio

The only weekly journal devoted solely to the interests of all concerned in the Production of British Motion Pictures.

Editorial and Advertisement Offices:
85, LONG ACRE, LONDON, W.C. 2.

'Grams: Southernwood, Rand, London.
Telephone: ————— Gerrard 9870.

ADVERTISEMENT RATES

	One insertion	Six insertions (per insertion)
Front Cover	£6 10 0	£6 0 0
Back Cover	£6 0 0	£5 15 0
Full page	£5 10 0	£5 7 6
Half page	£3 0 0	£2 17 6
Third page	£2 5 0	£2 2 6
Quarter page	£1 15 0	£1 12 6
Sixth page	£1 5 0	£1 2 6
Eighth page	£1 0 0	18 9
Twelfth page	12 6	11 3
Per inch (single column)	5 0	4 6

(Blockmaking extra)

Professional Cards:

Photo. Cards, 1 in. deep £3 0 0 per quarter year.
(Inclusive of Blockmaking)
1 in. Cards (without blockmaking) £2 10 0
per quarter year.
Small Cards 17/6 per quarter year

Make certain of securing your copy regularly each week by filling in the Subscription Order Form and post with remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER FORM

To The Manager,

"MOTION PICTURE STUDIO,"

85, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

Please send "THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO" to me at the following address for months, for which

I enclose remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

3 Months - 5/-
6 " - 10/-
Yearly - 20/-

Name

Address to which copies are to be sent:

.....

.....

The MOTION PICTURE

studio

Registered at the
G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

VOL. I. No 6.
JULY 16 1921

4^D

LADY DIANA MANNERS
in J. STUART BLACKTON'S SUPER PHOTO-PLAY
"The Glorious Adventure"

Photo - Rita Martini

Bramlins

MISS PAULINE JOHNSON.

c/o

Bramlins

241, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.C.2.

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 6.

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

July 16, 1921.

The Tax Threat.

THERE appears from the latest reports to be rather more prospect than originally of the imposition of a heavy tax on foreign films going into America. So much ill-informed nonsense has been written about this matter, that it seems necessary to emphasise a few points which otherwise should be obvious. The present proposition is that foreign films are to pay a tax of thirty per cent. ad valorem, but not in the usual commercial sense. Their ad valorem value is to be based on the probable cost of the production of the picture in America. Now—in spite of letters to the Times—it is probably safe to estimate that, quality for quality, a film would not cost, at the most, over fifty per cent. more to produce in America than it costs here. But that is not the point. The serious part of the proposal is that American producers making films in Europe are to be allowed free entry for pictures not more than a third of which have been made abroad.

* * *

An Unfair Handicap.

SUCH a system would not only impose a forty-five per cent. handicap on foreign films, but would subject them to the further handicap that so-called "foreign" pictures partly made in Europe by American concerns would get in free. It would mean to a great extent the closing of the American market to foreign pictures, and that at a moment when there are bright hopes that there would be a possibility of spending more on British pictures to enable them to measure up to meet the American exhibitors' demand for the foreign films. It has to be remembered, however, that the tax agitation is proceeding largely from producing units and artistes who are afraid of the competition of the foreign picture and want the earth for themselves. They have been used to it for half-a-dozen years, and they do not want anyone else butting in. But if we cannot butt in, we could at least butt out, and the existing 85 per cent. which American films claim of our screens would soon be diminished if there really were a tariff wall.

* * *

Reputation—A Better Chance.

ARTISTES are not as a class well up in the intricacies of the commercial side of the business—there is no reason why they should be—but they are only too well acquainted with one prominent feature of film distribution as it is at present conducted—the fact that a film frequently does not reach the public until eighteen months after its completion. The effect of this Trade custom on reputation is enormous and extremely galling to the ambitious artiste who, after achieving a notable and admitted success, sometimes the status of the artiste, the director, the cameraman and the scenarist, and, therefore, of the British picture. Its success was instantaneous, and studio workers of every degree have hailed its advent with delight. This, our first special number, is to be circulated widely in America. It will prove that picture making really means something here; that artistes of repute are taking the screen seriously, and that we are capable of enterprise equal to America's own.

* * *

The Artiste and His Vehicle.

THE problem of photoplay material is one in which the film player has a much more serious interest than is always realised. An artiste may succeed in making a good personal impression in an indifferently produced film of the novelette order, but the big names are those of artistes who have successfully interpreted the big idea. The player cannot be judged apart from his part. That is one reason why stars grow so much more rapidly in America than in England; and nothing is more certain, if a D. W. Griffith arose here, than that he would begin to "make" stars—as D. W. G.

made the Gish girls and many others.

* * *

A Protest Against "Junk."

WE have already discussed several of the opinions published by the Idealletter in its interesting symposium on this subject. Jerome K. Jerome's view is very pointed. He says that "belief in the intelligence of his audience" is the quality chiefly lacking in the director of to-day. The description of the guilty party should be taken in its commercial application; the "director," in the studio sense, has to make films from the material provided by his employers. But that, as an indictment of the business men who select "story material," the criticism is fully justified is known to everybody on the created side of the business. The real problem is, how the artiste, the scenario man and the director can help to remedy matters.

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"Corinthian Jack" (Masters).—

Very prettily done; the story of this film is easily followed. Victor McLaglen's bright smile greatly enlivens the piece and there are a number of good bare-handed fights. Dorothy Fane contributes some really artistic work and Kathleen Vaughan is a pleasing and natural heroine. The photography by Jack Parker is good. W. C. Rowden has put the story together carefully.

has to wait the best part of two years before receiving his dividend of public appreciation. And this is a distinct business as well as a personal loss. Only the public can make stars; the producer will pay star rates when he is convinced that the popularity of the artiste is sufficient to show a profit on the outlay, and not before. There is, therefore, no film player who will overlook the importance to him personally of the fact that the release system really does seem on the point of reform.

* * *

Our First Big Number.

IT is only six weeks ago that the Motion Picture Studio was started. In spite of the general industrial depression and the special film Trade depression, this paper was brought into being in the belief that it fulfilled a real need and that it could do useful work by helping to improve

THE LOCATION ARTIST

by J. PAYNE

Of course not many people would call him an artist—nor realise that he must be an artist. But then they are without the pale—they don't know!

What is a film without exteriors? What is a film without locations? What is a film without the man who has been told to find a house which must give the idea that it has lately been bought by a successful cigar merchant who recently purchased it from a demobilised officer who has taken up cow-farming and been quite successful till his stock died of foot and mouth disease?

The front must have a wide portico facing N.E. by W. and S., sun full on it midday into which the cameraman (always cantankerous on exteriors—he has generally travelled there with the camera's full weight on his tummy and the points of the tripod driving into his toes) could shoot from any angle at any time at the hero or his father, mother, sweetheart, aunts and butler saying good-bye to him on the doorstep. There must be a conservatory on the right, a veranda on the left and an apple tree by which the hero can climb at night into the front floor window.

Dressing rooms must be obtained in the house. It must be near a forest—a river—a plain—a church and a workhouse and the whole within 10 miles of London, Period 1673.

Oh, its easy!

If it isn't, the location manager, the director, the assistant director, the juvenile lead and the managing director go off in a nice car on a nice day to find it.

But the location art has undoubtedly not been discovered in this country yet. We have schools for Kinema actors which are well patronised (so they tell me), but a location school, well, I am ready to give lessons at an enormous fee and at some risk.

This is essential for getting permits. To get permits simply and without bother—you must dress the part. For instance—you want to get the use of a workhouse. You make yourself up as a deceased governor and you will instantly claim respect. It is on the same principle as when Phil May's man wanted to catch rabbits—he got behind a hedge and made the noise of a turnip.

The whole truth is that a location man never gives anything away (he is generally Scotch—or should be). Personally, I have never found a location yet. I know all about it—I have organised an excellent department for that purpose—but for me, I have not the patience, the tact (in other words, the ability to lie) that a location manager must have.

I remember once I was told off to find some racing stables and a horse. Unfortunately I knew nothing about racing and am frightened of horses. However, I felt I must carry out my principles and I tried to dress the part. I had to look sporting. I had seen the part played in films—my true guide to all that is correct.

I first put a hat-guard into my bowler hat and carefully practised balancing it on one side. I had my hair cut (it suits me best long). I had no riding boots or gaiters—so I wore puttees. My breeches were of a golfing nature—but I pulled them well out at the hips (whenever I thought of it) and I got a canvas belt to keep them up. I left off sounding my "g's" and smoked a big cigar. I read Sporting Life going down in the train and hoped for the best.

I found some racing stables and was taken over them by a Presbyterian-looking old fellow who told me that his eldest daughter had just taken a first prize at a Sunday school.

I thrust the Sporting Life deeper into my pocket and dropped my cigar into a lavender bush.

Then we looked at the horse. What do you do to a horse? I know so little about them. I patted its neck and then I stroked its nose. It instantly lifted its left front foot and placed it gently on mine. Clearly the horse liked me, but I wished it had not pressed its attentions on me so forcibly. I didn't like to say anything, the old man had gone away and the horse, which by the by I discovered was a mare (this of course explained things a bit), would not budge.

"No," she seemed to say "I have discovered a little corn and I am going to keep it." I tried pushing her on one side by leaning heavily against her, but she only leaned the more heavily against me. Matters were reaching an acute crisis, when a little girl appeared round the corner. I explained my position—whereupon she said something abusive, but to the point, and the mare trotted back to the stable.

The child deserved that Sunday school prize.

Well, I fixed everything up very satisfactorily, but when I got back to the studio I found that one of the well-dressed crowd had loaned his racing stable and house to the director and was prepared to put the whole company up for weeks if necessary.

No, the location manager's office is not an easy one. It requires lots of study, and if he adopts an attitude of masterly inactivity the locations are always found. That he will get the blame in any event he may be sure, but someone has to.

A FEW MORE "GLORIOUS ADVENTURERS"

(Continued from page 18.)

comedy in "Under Cover." Petite, dark hair and blue eyes.

FREDA KAYE:—A rising young film artiste, who is appearing as one of the Beauties of the Court of Charles II. in the Blackton's film "The Glorious Adventure." Though not yet 18 years, has had considerable experience of film work.

HAROLD PRESTON.—Has played for Broadwest, Stoll, Samuelsons, B and C., Shoreham and Lotinga Film Companies. Character studies are his speciality, and he can ride and drive motors and horses. A good type for heavies.

EVELYN GARDINER.—Trained for opera but reverted to screen. Keen horse-woman. Medium height, red hair, blue eyes.

CECILIA STURT.—Educated in Italy and England as a lyric soprano. First appearance on the screen. Tall, fair, light brown eyes.

RHODA MANSFIELD.—Well-known dancer (operatic and ballroom), swimmer (gold medallist), and fencer. Medium height, hair and eyes dark brown. Played in "Breed of the Treshams" and "Castles in Spain."

MAUDE LESTOCQ.—Played many stage leads in farce and comedy. For Famous Players-Lasky in "The Mystery Road" and other films. Also for Stoll and Broadwest.

PEGGY MILLER.—Played at the Gaiety, etc. Films for Stoll, Gaumont, Ideal, Samuelson and Lasky.

THOMAS CANNING.—Elderly aristocratic parts. Played Leader of the House of Commons in "The Breed of Treshams." Height, six feet; hair white.

DEZMA
DU MAY

"Grand Guignol" (Sing of Death.)
"Old Curiosity Shop" (Mis. Quilp.)
—Welsh Pearson, "Carnival," "The Door that has No Key," "The Right to Live," "Way of a Man," "Likeness of the Night," Double for Marie Doro in "Beatrice."

Address.—170, HIGH ROAD, ILFORD

Camera Bargains—Largest selection of professional and topical instruments in London, all makers—English, American and Continental. Write stating exact requirements, special quotations post free, or call and inspect our stock, Cash or Easy Payment Terms. Apparatus accepted in exchange, Strict approval terms willingly.
THE KINEMATOGRAPH EXCHANGE,
81, Aldersgate Street, E.C.1.

LETTERING SPECIALIST

is open to undertake one or two commissions for special film work
G. T. SHEARMAN, Bentinck Road, Nottingham.

Where they are and ——— what they are doing

George Travers has a part in "Sonia."

Ray Raymond has an important part in Harma's latest production.

Gordon Begg has just signed up with Stolls in a forthcoming production.

Yvonne Thomas is playing in "Land of My Fathers."

David Hawthorne plays lead in "Roses in the Dust" for Gaumont.

Maurice Elvey has commenced work on "The Fruitful Vine."

Walter Forde has started his third comedy for Zodiac.

Evelyn Brent is once more with Ideal in "Sonia."

Teddy Hayes will be shortly seen in "Teddy Laughs Last" (Regulus).

Audrey Edwards appears in the new Regulus comedy.

James G. Dick is responsible for the scenario of "Teddy Laughs Last" (Regulus).

Cameron Carr is playing lead in "The Imperfect Lover" (Broadwest).

E. Coble is photographing Regulus comedies.

Edwin J. Collins has finished the cutting of "God in the Garden" (Masters).

Hetta Bartlett has an excellent part in "Sonia."

Frank Hoffman is photographing for Minerva.

René Plaissetty has completed "The Woman and the Fan" for Stoll.

John Stuart appears as David Morgan in "Land of My Fathers."

Milton Rosmer plays three different parts in "The Pointing Finger" (Stoll).

Edith Pierson is one of the leading artistes in "Land of My Fathers."

Malvina Longfellow has been booked for "The Night Hawk."

Iris Rowe is playing in "Roses in the Dust" for Gaumont.

Basil W. G. Emmott is "turning" for Captain Calvert on "Roses in the Dust" (Gaumont).

H. Morgan is responsible for the scenario "Roses in the Dust" (Gaumont).

Gladys Mason appears in Captain Calvert's next production for Gaumont, "Roses in the Dust."

Claude H. Mitchell is assisting with the direction of "The Bonnie Briar Bush" for Lasky.

Joan Morgan is back from South Africa and is appearing in "A Lowland Cinderella."

Cyril E. Murrell is busy writing scenarios for two-reel comedies, several of which are in the hands of producers at the moment.

Alfred Vandenbasch, the Belgian director, is directing for North British Productions.

Maudie Dunham has returned to Holland. Sidney Jay is responsible for the booking.

Percy Standing has also been booked through Mr. Jay to appear in a new Granger Binger film.

Bert Wynne has returned from the Isle of Man and is completing "Dick's Fairy" at Kew.

THEIR IDEAL

MY IDEAL DIRECTOR

BY REX DAVIS.

I sometimes think the Ideal Director, like the ideal marriage, must be made in heaven—like the ideal marriage, he is as welcome as the flowers in May.

Recently I was leaving a trade show and I heard a Director (whether he was ideal or no, wild horses shall not drag from me) talking to a reporter and he said, "The fault with the British Artiste is he is not sincere—how many of them study the part they are playing?" I said nothing, but like the parrot, I thought a devil of a lot, for how many of us get the chance to study our parts and be sincere?

Naturally the point of view must be personal; but in the last six films I have made, I have had two scripts only. I would therefore say it is not unreasonable to ask that a Director shall see his principals are provided with scripts. I am sure that my ideal Director would agree that he can only be ideal where the artiste backs up when he calls, but how can the artiste if he doesn't know what his own part is about, nor what bearing other parts have in relation to his own?

I have been directed by British, American, Italian and French directors, and, "with great respect," as they say in the Law Courts, I would remark that it means so much to an artiste if, after doing his utmost, be it stunt thrill or a dramatic scene, for the Director to drop one word of encouragement occasionally.

In the French Studios, after a scene had given satisfaction, the Director would rush up and grasp one's hand and overwork his superlatives—all this was very charming, and if it were an infinite amount of nothing, it was agreeable nothing, and I do think that the Director's natural or unnatural charm need not undergo any severe wear and tear by a more emphatic output than "hum! not too bad, might be worse." A word of encouragement if merited is such a lubricant to one's work—and surely more flies are caught with honey than with vinegar.

It seems to me that as we cannot do without each other we should not forever be "awed" with the divinity that doth hedge a Director—the mighty gulf fixed 'twixt the Director and the Player!

My "IDEAL Director" is one:

Who makes of us one great fellowship of players.

Who wishes us to know he does not consider us only as mechanical rights.

Who clearly differentiates between the Artiste and the Artisan.

Who does not think that the Artiste is intellectually insolvent and bankrupt of ideas.

Who takes the Artistes' wares and shows them to the public through a beautifully dressed window and not on a hawker's barrow.

MY IDEAL ARTISTE

BY JACK DENTON.

I have often dreamed of the Ideal Artiste and it is someone:

Who is always punctual in the morning and is made up and ready at the scheduled time.

Who is NOT playing at night, and is not consequently "on pins and needles" all the afternoon that he will be late for his evening show.

Who DOES NOT want to "just put another dab of powder on" when the light you have been patiently waiting for all day at length comes to hand.

Who carefully notes all details of dress and thus helps the poor harassed secretary.

Who DOES NOT become huffy when the worried Director gets a bit irritable once in a while.

Who, in fact, works staunchly and good humouredly; and thank goodness there are heaps of them!

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

Florence Turner makes no secret of the fact that she is a veteran, and her humorous exaggeration of the fact at the first film dinner of the Lyceum Club secured one of the big laughs of the evening. Making a personal appearance in a small town, she alleges that when she was introduced to the oldest inhabitant, he grasped her hand and quavered delightedly, "So glad to meet you Miss Turner. I feel I've known you all my life; my old nurse used to take me to see you on the pictures!"

At the same highbrow gathering, by the way—the Lyceum is the headquarters of Women who Think—the president, Mrs. Florence Parbury, discussed on "The Effect of Films on the Mentality of the Future," and, among other things, expressed the hope that sound would be more closely allied to the films. Milton Rosmer protested, with tears in his voice, at this threatened addition to the Horrors of Production. Luckily it is not a very serious threat; however the mentality of the future may suffer, that of directors and artistes of the present day is reasonably safe.

Pina Menichelli and her U.C.I. company, who are over here for a fortnight for scenes in "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," will not, I understand, use a British studio, their object being exteriors only. Arriving only on Monday, they found several suitable spots the next day and were at work on Wednesday. It is an all-Italian company, so that British artistes missed the opportunity of experiencing and comparing the methods of an Italian producer with those of British producers.

The stock company plan, which appears to be going out of fashion in America, has never really caught on in England outside the Hepworth studio. It may be only a coincidence that Hepworth turns out such uniformly good work, but I don't think it is. There are obvious advantages in the system as well as disadvantages. Some of the latter may be financial, in some cases, but the artistic benefit of close association with a skilled group of players and, under a director who knows exactly the best qualities of each, must be considerable. When British productions get to the American scale, the experiment may be tried again, and if the policy is not too rigid, the results should be interesting.

The head of one of London's leading producing concerns is, I am told, reading up every work he can lay his hands on dealing with sun spots, the Gulf Stream, and the periodicity of seasons. He has been told that the first has something to do with the present hot spell, that the influence of the second has been modified by the Panama Canal, and that a complete knowledge of the third enables one, instead of wondering "what sort of of a summer we shall have," to predict it exactly for one year. His studies are liberally shot with blasphemy, which is understandable when their inspiring cause is stated—the fact that the unexpected fine spell has caught them with a schedule which condemns his unorganisation to idleness in per-

ON THE FLOOR WITH CAPTAIN CALVERT.

On the floor he is a bundle of nerves kept carefully under control. He betrays temperament, but it is the real artistic stuff, not the kind identified with temper and conceit. He is exacting, but works like a nigger himself to help his players, and there are experienced players who declare that no other director in the country helps them or gets as much out of them as does Calvert. He is a stickler for detail and painstaking to a degree, and he will rehearse a scene over and over again until he is completely satisfied.

If a player finds it either mentally or physically impossible to give Calvert what he wants, Calvert very soon finds it out, and he will then resort to ruses to get what he requires. For instance, he will cut up the action into short pieces and get the result so to speak, a bit at a time. Sometimes he will put his players outside the set and call them on for rehearsal with the camera, unknown to them, already in action. On such occasions he gets the expressions and action he requires by distracting the player's attention as he comes on to the set. He has even been seen in the middle of a big scene, nonchalantly ask the leading player the time by the clock, and the camera having recorded the player's disturbance, Calvert has been perfectly satisfied.

A good instance of the physical means he employs was recorded when he was producing "In His Grip." He had the whole studio saturated with the odour of disinfectant whilst taking a hospital death-bed scene. Calvert deliberately creates "atmosphere" to help his players "put it over"; for instance, his interior sets are built three sided, and he blocks up the fourth with lights or anything else that is handy; so the player walks into a room instead of walking on to a set and finds it correspondingly easier to realise the situation. In pursuance of this policy, Calvert eschews "corner-pieces." He will have a whole room built and furnished even for a fireside "close-up."

fect conditions. And I don't think he is quite a singular case.

Certainly, if there had been any expectations of the prolonged sunshine we have had this year, many companies would have planned exterior work on a much more ambitious scale. Several "dark" studios now working daily would have been limited to scenes essential for films on the point of Trade show; instead of one production, three would have been produced concurrently and some of the interiors allowed to accumulate until the autumn. Taken by surprise, directors have had to see pass unemployed hours of glorious sunshine, for which they will long in vain four months hence, when they will have to be content with a black countryside or cut out exteriors altogether. And though the weather shows small signs of breaking, it will probably do so if plans were revised!

Unexpected contretemps being a common fate of photoplayers, it is interesting to find that the boot is sometimes on the other leg and that the shocks and surprises can happen to outsiders. Witness the Versailles incident last week. A pond was "stocked" with crocodiles for film purposes; they refused to return to their lorries, and while ropes were being obtained, a number of French soldiers appeared, stripped, and dived into the water—and out of it more quickly than the quickest knockabout artiste ever filmed by a slow motion camera! But, of course, no camera was there; the really good things often happen unrehearsed.

The vainglorious director has been known to describe the artistes as his puppets. When will a long-suffering artiste get up and publicly describe himself as the vainglorious type of victim? I am think of the case—a by no means uncommon one—of an artiste slated in the Press for not doing certain things which he has tried to do, only to be forbidden by the director, or for actions which he knows to be foolish but which he has also done under orders? You can't blame the critic—he must go by what he sees on the screen, but it is certainly rough on an artiste, badly directed and not allowed to see the script, to be told that he has a "poor conception of his part."

"MEGAPHONE."

JULY 16, 1921

THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO

THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO SUPPLEMENT ON J. STUART BLACKTON'S

FIRST BRITISH
SUPER PHOTO-PLAY

"THE GLORIOUS ADVENTURE"

THE CAST

LADY BEATRICE FAIR	Lady Diana Manners
HUGH ARGYLE	Gerald Lawrence
WALTER RODERICK	Cecil Humphreys
STEPHANIE DANGERFIELD	Alice Crawford
BULFINCH	Victor McLaglen
THOMAS UNWIN	Rudolf de Cordova
KING CHARLES II.	William Luff
NELL GWYNN	The Hon. Lois Sturt
BARBARA CASTLEMAINE	Elizabeth Beerbohm
SAMUEL PEPYS	Lennox Pawle
DUCHESS OF MORELANE	Gertrude Sterroll
SOLOMON EAGLE	Tom Heselwood
ROSEMARY	Flora Le Breton
QUEEN CATHERINE	Rosalie Heath
OLIVIA	Marjorie Day
MALLOY	Eric Lankester
BUNNY	Fred Wright
MRS. BULFINCH	Haidee Wright
CHARLES HART	Geoffrey Clinton
LORD FITZROY	Lawford Davidson

ISRAEL TAYLOR, Norman Clark; THOMAS SAMPSON, Wyndham Bewes; DEBORAH, Nettie Grossman; PETER, Alfred Woods; PHOEBE, Georgie Esmond; LECLERC, Tom Coventry; ANTOINETTE, Kate Stafford; BOSWELL, Herbert Vyvyan; THE CHAPLAIN, Thomas H. Arthur; THOMAS FARRYNER, Henry Walton; MARGARET FARRYNER, Doris Kealy; CHIEF VALET TO THE KING, Jeff Barlow; SECOND VALET, David Bain; THIRD VALET, Reginald Nugent; WILLIAM STEVENS, Bert Byrne; A FRIEND OF ARGYLE, Conway Dixon; ANOTHER FRIEND, Malcolm Tod; ARGYLE AS A BOY, Tom Craig; BEATRICE AS A GIRL, Violet Virginia Blackton; A SPY, Emlyn Davis; A COURT CHAMBERLAIN, Frank J. Arlton; THE KING'S MAJOR DOMO, John East; THE KING'S STEWARDS, John East and Harold Cundall.

GERALD LAWRENCE

"Hugh Argye" in J. Stuart Blackton's Production, "The Glorious Adventure."
Address: 11, Orna Road, N.W.3. Phone: Hampstead 6809.

Four charming portraits of Lady Diana Manners by Rita Martin, revealing the unusual beauty of this talented actress and distinguished daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Rutland.

Mr. J. Stuart Blackton in the centre.

LEFT: "Jim the Burglar," in "The Man who wanted to Quit" (Eclipse Films, Paris and Nice.)

RIGHT: English Policeman (caricature) in "La Revue de la Moulin Rouge," Paris.

ABOVE: Wright au naturel "GREATER THAN THE MAN IS HIS WORK."

LEFT: Cook's Guide Interpreter (caricature), Revue "L'Amour" Folies Bergere, Paris.

RIGHT: The half-witted hunchback in J. Stuart Blackton's Production "The Glorious Adventure," with Lady Diana Manners.

FRED WRIGHT

Address: Green Room Club,
Leicester Square, London.
Phone: Gerrard 2860.

FLORA LE BRETON

'Rosemary' in J. Stuart Blackton's Production, "The Glorious Adventure".
Address: 34, Nevern Square. S.W.5. Phone: Western 1936

[Photo

Academy Studios

VICTOR M c L A G L E N

"Bulfinch" in J. Stuart Blackton's Production "The Glorious Adventure."

12

Address: c/o The National Sporting Club.

When the real history of the photoplay comes to be written, there is one name which will outcrop very frequently in all its developments. That name is J. Stuart Blackton.

We hear many claims to pioneership and many voices as through a megaphone telling us (not always with any more regard for actualities than a 1916 regimental sergeant-major, and in almost his words): "I'm the bloke!" Blackton is much otherwise. He tells you very little. If you will listen—and the loss is only yours if you will not—he will talk about painting and colour and music and Nature and literature and—oh! most things that matter. Except Blackton. That is one subject on which he is less vocal than is even Lloyd George on hereditary legislators.

What he will not do for himself I am going to do for him now, though perhaps there is little to be written that has not already been recorded in the annals of the screen.

To begin with, he is an Englishman, by permission of Sheffield, where he was born. He left Sheffield in his early youth—which is a further proof of his artistic temperament (do you know Sheffield?)—and emigrated to America. There, while still in his late 'teens, he became a newspaper reporter—and a reporter in the States needs some imagination! And, because he could use a pencil for other purposes than the perpetuation of the memory of Sir Isaac Pitman, he was allowed to illustrate his own stories. Ah, me! editors were more indulgent in those days. Now they seldom let you write your own story, much less illustrate it . . . but this is talking shop.

So it came about that young Blackton interviewed Edison, who had just succeeded in projecting a moving picture on to a screen. What he saw and heard at that interview set Blackton thinking on new lines, and he went on thinking until, with another young Englishman named Albert E. Smith, he invested in one of the first Edison projectors ever sold. Bitten with their new interest, these two improvised a studio on the roof of an office, and (though it was an inversion of the regular architectural process) there laid the foundation-stone of the first production company to operate—Vitagraph. Since that time Blackton's record of "firsts" has been an amazing one.

He made, in 1897, the first film with a story, starting with a 500 feet picture, and soon after producing a 1,000-foot subject. On the outbreak of the Spanish-American War in 1898 he went to Tampa and took the first war, and the first news, films ever made, and later on showed them in variety theatres.

It was in this same year that Blackton and Smith built, not only their own first, but the first studio, on the roof of the Morse Building in the lower part of New York City. Here they worked under the severe handicaps of weather conditions and smoke. But they gained some valuable experience.

In 1899 Blackton began to make pictures based on classic and well-known literature, and later in the same year moved into a larger studio—still on top of a roof in a New York street. It was in this studio that the first motion picture to circulate internationally was made. Its title was "The Haunted Hotel," and its novelty rested on the use of stop-motion photography, discovered by Blackton, and now used for the first time.

The next year, 1900, saw the formation of the Vitagraph Company of America, Blackton and Smith being joined by William T. Rock. Now was produced the first 1,000-foot feature—E. W. Hornung's "Raffles." Then came the need for larger studios, and buildings were put up on what has since become part of greater New York. It was here, at Flatbush, that the first glass studio was built, later in the same year.

Expansions, steady work and experiments continued, and less than two years later the Vitagraph stock company was organised. All the names embraced in that company are indelibly written on the records of the film industry's early days, and the list at random shows such people as Clara Kimball Young, Larry Semon, Mitchell Lewis, Florence Turner, Wallace Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Drew, Mabel Normand, Maurice Costello, Norma and Constance Talmadge, Corinne Griffith and dozens of others equally as noteworthy.

Later "firsts" were the first three-reel photoplay ("A Tale of Two Cities"), the first five-reeler ("The Life of Moses," which was also the first Biblical picture), and the first seven-reel film ("The Christian").

Look back over those old days of pioneering. What memories some of the names recall! Bunny, Flora Finch, Maurice Costello, Charles Kent, G. M. Anderson. And the pictures! "Treasure Island" and "Othello," "Macbeth" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Salome" and "Romeo and Juliet." . . . But this will become a catalogue! And, really, it is not what I set out to write about, though it would be difficult to keep it out. Look what happened when Blackton left the States, after twenty-three years of continuous production, to return to his native land and realise his great dream. The "Old Guard"—an organisation which includes most of the artistes, directors and writers connected with picture-making from its earliest days—paid Blackton a spontaneous tribute in the form of what the organisation itself called a "Testimonial from the Old Guard to its First Leader." One of the motives prompting the action was the fact that all these people had "worked with Blackton in the early days of the screen, and they felt that their careers had been helpfully influenced by his instruction and guidance."

Many men—most men—with this record of achievement would say "It is finished," and for the rest of their days quietly look on. But not so with Blackton. He had a dream to bring true—one which had been with him throughout almost his whole career—a dream that one day he would go back home and say, "This have I learnt, and this, and now I can do all these things in my own country."

For years he had cherished that ambition. But there had been the war, his other activities, many ties that were hard to break.

Then he conceived the idea of making a great historical romance here in England. And he wanted not merely a photoplay, but a living coloured reality. So after more than six months' research and experimenting there has been produced a camera which will produce a photoplay in natural colours throughout. Now, jealous still to pioneer, and more still to make his crowning achievement bridge his country's gulf into the film markets of the world, he begins on "The Glorious Adventure."

What more fitting title? What finer culmination to a quarter of a century's pioneering in a strange land than that this artist should come back home and pour all the result of his long experience into a great creative effort to put upon the screens of the world the first great coloured photoplay with the proud brand, "Made in England"?

When the first colour tests were being taken at Blackton's house at Kennington, the afternoon was dull, and a Sun-Light arc was brought out on to the lawn. Everything was posed, Press photographers and newspaper men crowded round, the artistes deployed, the arc spluttered, Blackton gave the word to shoot, and immediately the sun came out just long enough to get the necessary tests. May it be an omen!

HAIDEE WRIGHT

"Mrs. Bulfinch" in J. Stuart Blackton's Production, "The Glorious Adventure."
Address: 20, John Street, Adelphi, W.C.

MY FIRST BRITISH PRODUCTION AND WHAT IT MEANS TO ME

by J. STUART BLACKTON

The subject upon which I am writing is one that holds a very considerable sentiment for me. This sentiment is not merely personal. It is bigger than that, though the personal element goes deep.

The actual significance in the larger way pertains to a much greater development in a single stroke of the most universal art the world has known—and an art that, more than any other art or form of entertainment, carries pleasure and benefit in countless ways to millions of people the world over.

The screen is rapidly remarking the world. Already its great functions for entertainment, education and social and cultural progress have registered it as a vitalising force in world betterment.

The greatest drawback of the film art thus far has been its drab monotone. The beautiful colours of nature and of interiors had to be presented in black and white. This often left much to be desired, not only because of the absence of colour, but also because of the lack of stereoscopic values.

To me it is a supremely gratifying privilege to be able to present the first photo-play in natural colours throughout, with what I consider a perfect registration of colour. And to make this production in England on a lavish scale and distribute it throughout the world is for me a tremendous satisfaction.

Here I may be forgiven if I digress from the subject of colour films for a little and emphasise what this first British production of mine means to me in a broad way.

At the age of 14 I left my home at Sheffield and sailed with my family to make my home in America. America to an impressionable boy was very wonderful. And America opened its arms to me and treated me most generously. I have lived in America since, until last February, though often visiting England. I married in America and there my children were born. Countless friends, many beautiful associations and a large following of patrons of my productions made America very dear to me.

It was my privilege to be one of the two founders (both of us Englishmen) of the first company organised to produce photo-plays. Albert E. Smith was born at Faversham. Together we established the Vitagraph Company, of which Mr. Smith remains President and I a partner. Before we began making photo-plays (and they were rather crude in those days) there had been only short subjects of what was called "animated photography."

So it is a supreme satisfaction to feel that I was able to devote myself to the upbuilding of an art and industry that to-day means so much to the peoples of the world. During the twenty-four years since I began making films, I have given of the best in me to the promotion of the film art. That so many friendly commentators have given me such liberal credit and praise for my work is a great joy to me.

As an Englishman who has lived and worked in America many years, I believe I understand the American character and the attitude of the American people toward British culture and character. The thought and ideals of the representative American is much the same as those of the representative Englishman, though the outward manifestations may be different. But I know that the rank and file of the American people greatly admire the English race, and above everything desire a close affiliation in sympathy and international relations.

All of which is stated to show that there is an immense market in America for British films. Very few British films have been popular in America thus far, because their technique and their entire visualisation of drama were so different from those of the American films. For years, I have desired to see British films generally shown in America. Because of my familiarity with the American people, because of my English nationality and understanding of English character, and because of my long experience as a producer of motion pictures in America I feel that there is a big vocation for me in returning to England and producing photo-plays here for exhibition in America and throughout the world as well.

Hence my enthusiasm to make my first British production a credit to art and to the country from which it comes. It is now my ambition to produce the most artistic and meritorious photo-plays that I can make, and through such photo-plays to visualise to the world the best things of British character, tradition and life, as well as to show the beauties of the British Isles. It is easily conceivable that such films will have immense value to this country.

So it can be understood why this first colour photo-play, being at the same time my first British production, means so much to me. The introduction of colour into photo-plays is a step forward of immeasurable importance and artistic value.

Edwin Markham, the beloved American poet and good friend of mine, once remarked, "Art is nature idealised." This applies very directly to the colour photo-play, for through the colour we idealise as well as actually reproduce nature. Colour, as a matter of fact, is a necessity in reproducing and idealising nature.

When I sit in my projection room now and see on the screen the scenes I am taking in colour, and then view some specimens of black and white photography, I wonder if the public after seeing the colour photo-play will be content with the old monotone films.

The psychology of colour is one of the most interesting phases in all human reactions. It applies even to foods, which explains why manufacturers of many food commodities colour them in order to enhance their appeal to appetite. The psychology of colour is a component part of drama, music and all the arts, because it is an integral part of human nature and the craving of human nature for beauty.

And think of the mission of motion colour photography in the future! The extraordinary colours of a California landscape, the indigo drapery of clouds that festoons the peaks of the Rocky Mountains, the vivid colouring of the Land of the Midnight Sun, of Alaska, Hawaii, Japan, Scotland and many other beauty spots of the world—all will be placed before the average kinema audience.

J. STUART BLACKTON

I may, therefore, be pardoned for being most enthusiastic over this first British production I am making, for I hope that it will make history to which future generations will look back.

J. Stuart Blackton

THE DIRECTOR, THE STAR, AND SOME OF THE PRINCIPAL ARTISTES.

(1) William Luff in the role of King Charles II. (2) Tom Heselwood as Solomon Eagle. (3) Rudolf de Cordova as Thomas Unwin and Alice Crawford as Stephanie Dangerfield. (4) Haidee Wright, who plays Mrs. Bulfinch. (5) Lady Diana Manners snapped with J. Stuart Blackton just before her first scene of the play was "shot." (6) Lennox Pawle as Samuel Pepys. (7) Fred Wright as Bunny, the crazy hunchback, and Flora Le Breton as Rosemary. (8) Gertrude Sterroll, who appears as the "Duchess of Moreland." (9) Gerald Lawrence as Hugh Argy'e (the hero) and Cecil Humphreys as Walter Roderick (the villain).

SOME OF THE GLORIOUS ADVENTURERS

LADY DIANA MANNERS (Lady Beatrice Fair).

Lady Diana has had an experience unique in the history of the art of the actor. Her appearance marks her début as a professional actress, but few players of the stage or screen have had a more varied experience in acting or have had finer and broader instruction in the technique of acting. Since her first work as an actress when a young girl, Lady Diana has studied with and has been coached by the masters of the art of acting, and in private theatricals and before the most critical audiences in London she has revealed her exceptional ability as actress, dancer and pantomimist.

GERALD LAWRENCE (Hugh Argyle).

Gerald Lawrence has had a distinguished career on the English stage as a romantic and dramatic actor, specialising in costume rôles. He was leading man in "The Great Day" at Drury Lane, and was the lover in Miss Ethel Irving's production of "La Tosca." He has also a successful screen record. Among the photoplays in which he has played the principal parts are "David Garrick," "Enoch Arden," "Harbour Lights," the part played by the late Sir Herbert Tree in "A Bunch of Violets" and "The Fall of a Saint." Is married to Fay Davis, who was a leading actress on the American stage until her marriage.

ALICE CRAWFORD (Stephanie Dangerfield).

One of the best known actresses on the English stage. She was associated with the late Sir Herbert Tree in many of his noted productions, and her fame as a Shakespearean actress is connected with "Twelfth Night," "Antony and Cleopatra," "Macbeth," "The Winter's Tale," "Julius Caesar," "Hamlet," "Othello" and "The Tempest," in which she played Miranda. Miss Crawford's Cleopatra and Lady Macbeth have been frequently said to be the best the English stage has known. In an all-star production of "The Merry Wives of Windsor," Miss Crawford played Mistress Ford and Lady Tree appeared as Mistress Page. One of the greatest successes of the London stage is closely identified with Miss Crawford—"The Christian," Sir Hall Caine's play, which, in its famous revival, ran for many months at the Lyceum, and afterwards at the Shaftesbury Theatre. Miss Crawford was starred as Glory Quayle to the John Storm of Matheson Lang.

CECIL HUMPHREYS (Walter Roderick).

One of England's best-known actors on stage and screen, began his theatrical experience seventeen years ago. He had attained prominence in 1911, when he appeared with Evelyn Millard at the Palace in "Madame Butterfly." Famous engagement with Miss Doris Keane at the Lyric Theatre, playing Van Tuyl in "Romance" two years without a break. During the run of this play, he made his first appearance on the screen, and he has since become one of the leading British kinema stars. Among his best-known film plays are the following: "The Sorrows of Satan," in which he co-starred with Owen Nares and Gladys Cooper; "The Lifeguardsman," "The Veiled Woman," "The Romance of Lady Hamilton," "The Elusive Pimpernel," "The Amateur Gentleman," "The Profligate," "The Tavern Knight," "False Evidence," "Giearheart," and "Four Just Men."

LENNOX PAWLE (Samuel Pepys).

Is one of our best-known character comedians, and is as well-known in America as in England. He has played principal comedy parts in every West-End theatre in London, and is almost as experienced in the theatres of New York. He has run the gamut of characterisation in dramas of Shakespeare, Shaw, Chesterton, Galsworthy and Louis N. Parker; he has also played in the Greek tragedies and grand opera.

WILLIAM LUFF (King Charles II.).

Has had a highly successful career on the English stage, and much the greater part of it has been in romantic and costume rôles. His resemblance to the "Merry Monarch" has been often commented upon, and led to his being selected for the rôle of King Charles II. in this production. Mr. Luff's first London engagement was with the late Sir Charles Wyndham, with whom he remained two years, appearing in leading juvenile rôles with that distinguished actor-manager. After that, he joined Miss Ellen Terry's company at the Imperial Theatre, and remained with her a considerable period, playing many prominent rôles.

FLORA LE BRETON (Rosemary).

Flora Le Breton's career on the English stage and screen has shown a personality and technique of outstanding quality and originality. Began her acting career by capturing the scholarship medal at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, awarded to her by Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, the late Sir John Hare and Irene Vanbrugh. At the age of 16, she played the leading part with Gerald du Maurier at Wyndham's Theatre in "London Pride." Miss Le Breton was starred in the title rôle of "La Poupee," in which notable film production she scores an extraordinary success. After this came a Canadian tour with Fred Wright in "The Maid of the Mountains."

HAIDEE WRIGHT (Mrs. Bulfinch).

Few artistes of the English stage and screen are recognised for such power in acting as that possessed by Miss Wright. In America, where she has played a number of seasons, she is greatly admired and beloved. Indeed, few actresses have had wider acclaim in America than this distinguished English artiste, and her American success has only duplicated her triumphs on the English stage. Miss Wright's abilities as an actress are unique. Miss Wright has played in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," in "Evidence," with Miss Ethel Barrymore in "Tanta," with E. H. Sothorn in Sutro's "The Two Virtues," in "Moloch," and in "A Nocturne." Miss Wright has given several fine performances on the screen, notably her starring rôle in the Ideal production "The Old Country."

THE HON. LOIS STURT (Nell Gwynn).

This talented daughter of Lady Alington was chosen by Mr. Blackton for the rôle of Nell Gwynn after many had called his attention to her striking resemblance to the portraits of the favourite of King Charles II., painted during the lifetime of this remarkable character, and also because Miss Sturt possesses an acting personality of that vivacity and piquancy which all accounts of Nell Gwynn associate with her personality. Like Lady Diana, Miss Sturt is making her professional début in this photo-play, but she has had the most excellent dramatic training.

ELIZABETH BEERBOHM (Barbara Cas Iemaine).

Mrs. Beerbohm is a stately beauty who has had a wide and varied experience on the stage and has appeared successfully on the screen. Much of her career was under the tutelage of the late Sir Herbert Tree, who was the uncle of her husband, Major Evelyn Beerbohm of the Royal Field Artillery, killed in action in 1917.

VICTOR McLAGLEN (Bulfinch).

Victor McLaglen has had an exceptionally varied career which gave him the equipment necessary for a rôle which had been extremely difficult to cast. He had won world-wide fame as a boxer when, after the war, he decided to become a film actor. His combination of fine physique, striking virility and sympathetic personality made his first film rôle in "The Call of the Road," a great success. This was followed by "Corinthian Jack," in which he has been featured, and he has just finished "The Prey of the Dragon." Mr. McLaglen will have his fourth rôle in the Blackton production.

MARJORIE DAY (Olivia).

Marjorie Day is well-known to English playgoers and kinema lovers. She has played in many notable British productions, and often has figured in the Drury Lane plays.

On the screen Miss Day has played many interesting rôles, including the wife in "Damaged Goods," in "The Story of the Rosary," Madge Titheradge's double in "The Woman Who Was Nothing," "When Knights Were Bold," with Miss Ellen Terry in "Her Greatest Performance," etc.

TOM HESELWOOD (Solomon Eagle).

Tom Heselwood is one of the most picturesque figures on the English stage, was a happy choice for the difficult rôle of Solomon Eagle. He is one of the most striking actors of costume and unusual rôles in England, and a stage and costume designer as well, in which capacity he has rendered Mr. Blackton valuable assistance in this period production. Mr. Heselwood began his stage career with the late Laurence Irving. Mr. Heselwood was selected to play Shylock to Ellen Terry's Portia at the recent Shakespearean festival. He last played the Great Mendicant in "The Betrothal" at the Gaiety Theatre.

FRED WRIGHT (Bunny).

Fred Wright, a member of the noted theatrical family including Haidee, Marie, Huntley and Bertie, is best known for his fantastic characterisations on the stage, as well for his rôles in a light eccentric vein. He has played many leading parts in comedy and musical comedy, several of his memorable rôles being those in "Our Miss Gibbs," "The Maid of the Mountains" and "Mother Goose." Mr.

Wright has done much fine picture work, and not long since was co-starred with Sacha Guitry, the leading Parisian actor-manager, in a French film production.

RUDOLF DE CORDOVA (Thomas Unwin).

Rudolf de Cordova is a Shakespearean and costume actor of long experience, and also is a well-known writer and motion picture actor and director. He began his career in Sir W. S. Gilbert's "Broken Hearts," having been selected for the part by this noted theatrical genius. Thereafter he played many of the leading rôles in the plays of Shakespeare. Going to New York, he became interested in the screen and gained a wide American reputation. He returned to England to play this difficult rôle in "The Glorious Adventure."

GERTRUDE STERROLL (The Duchess of Moreland).

Gertrude Sterroll has played for years in the leading West End London theatres, as well as in the leading repertory theatres of Liverpool, Manchester and Glasgow. Among her most notable stage successes are the following: prominent parts in "Billeted," at the Royalty, "Foundations," Mrs. Chichester in the long run of "Peg o' My Heart," Lady Vere in Sir James Barrie's "The Truth about the Russian Dancers," supporting Madame Karsavina, the Marquise in five different productions of "Caste," Lady Brocklehurst in "The Admirable Crichton," and leading parts in "Jim the Penman," "The Importance of Being Earnest," "The Dragon," "Charley's Aunt," and the title rôle in "The Mother." Miss Sterroll has done much fine screen work, notably that in "Lorna Doone" and "The Call of Youth."

BRYAN POWLEY:—Besides a long stage experience, has been a film actor for the last 10 years. Made his debut with the Cunard Film Company in "Saved from the Sea." He had a narrow escape from death while playing for the London Film Company in "The Revenge of Thomas Atkins," when he was caught in a burning haystack. One of his biggest successes was as "The Single Gentleman" in "The Old Curiosity Shop." He is playing in Marie Lohr's new stage production, and has been invited to accompany her in her forthcoming Canadian tour.

DORIS KEALY:—Playing Margaret Farryner in "The Glorious Adventure." Daughter of T. J. Kealy, Press representative for Irene Vanbrugh, Matheson Lang, Lyn Harding, Laurette Taylor, etc., and manager for Sybil Thorndike during her classical season. Educated in Convent. Trained for the stage at Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. Played with Norman Page for Miss Horniman, at Gaiety, Manchester. Later played with Sybil Thorndike in Greek and modern plays. Was engaged by Ethel Irving to play Genarino in her production of "La Tosca." Played for Percy Nash on films in several of his productions. 18 years old.

DAVID GREEN:—Originally intended for an engineer. Did a lot of amateur theatrical and other in addition to the knowledge of the professional side gained through his father led him to seek fortune in the Motion Picture profession in the early part of the year. Has played for various British companies and following the Blackton film is expecting a leading part with another director.

Intends to go abroad next winter in preparation for the time when he realises his ambition to direct. Age 19 Height 5 ft.

MISS NELL ST. JOHN MONTAGUE:—Well known actress, playwright, and authoress. Played Mrs. Egan in "Handy Andy." Is in great demand for the films, owing to her striking type and to the excellence of her interpretation, both of dramatic and character parts. Has had considerable experience of the legitimate stage, on which she has played many parts, including the leads in her own plays "An Irish Lead," "Room 7" (which was produced at the Ambassador's Theatre in April last), and in "A Barrier," which has just returned from a tour of the provinces. Is as well known as a Society journalist and fiction writer as she is as a playwright, actress, and screen artiste.

PHYLLIS CLAUDE:—Has played leads for Bamforth Pictures. Was the "Flapper" in "The Luck of the Navy," in town and on tour, and played juvenile

(Continued on page 4.)

WILLIAM LUFF

Charles II.

In J. Stuart Blackton's Production,
"THE GLORIOUS ADVENTURE."

56, Portland Road,
Holland Park, W.

'Phone: - - Pakk 2529.

The MOTION PICTURE
Studio

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER FORM.

The Manager,
"MOTION PICTURE STUDIO,"
85, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

Please send me "The Motion Picture Studio" for..... months, for which I enclose remittance.

Name

Address to which copies are to be sent :
.....

SUBSCRIPTION

RATES ::::

3 Months - 5/-

6 " - 10/-

Yearly - 20/-

Abroad, 30s. per annum.

MARGARET SHELLEY

Playing for J. Stuart Blackton in
"THE GLORIOUS ADVENTURE."

29, Southwick St., Hyde Park, W.2 'Phone Paddington 5987.

SO THIS IS LONDON!

by FELIX ORMAN

istic experience behind him, the spell of London is absorbing, its lure growing with each day's passing.

These have been weeks of trying work in London, but they have been happy weeks, for the work has been interesting, and everything has been made so pleasant for me by the many representatives of newspapers and periodicals, by English film people, and by many other Londoners I have met. I am happy in feeling that I have made many friends, and I hope my work here may have some constructive value.

Americans, I have found, have a high regard for British character and for the British Government. Every intelligent American realises that the institutions of his country and the ideals of his people are alike in spirit and purpose to those of the English Government and people.

The American people are keenly interested in English stories and acting. Our theatres and picture studios are filled with English players. There are in America many English writers and producers for both stage and screen. There is every reason to believe there is a large interest among Americans in things English.

(1) Violet Virginia and Charles Stuart Blackton, children: Violet Virginia has a charming role in this photo-play. She and her brother have appeared on the American screen since they were wee tots.

(2) Felix Orman, Literary Casting and Publicity Director of the Blackton productions and author of the scenario of "The Glorious Adventure."

(3) Mrs. J. Stuart Blackton who gives valuable assistance to her husband in his productions. This is one of many portraits done of Mrs. Blackton by American artists.

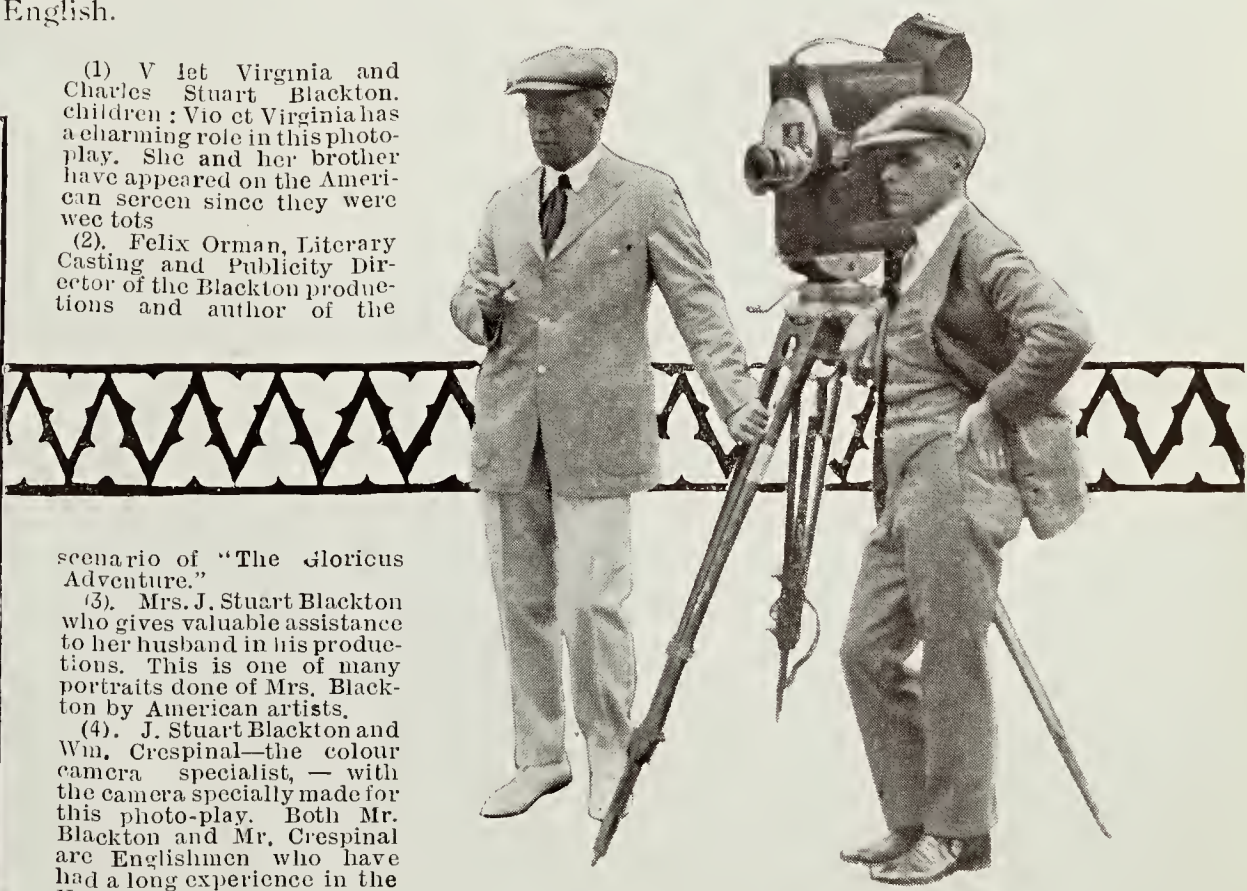

(4) J. Stuart Blackton and Wm. Crespinal—the colour camera specialist, — with the camera specially made for this photo-play. Both Mr. Blackton and Mr. Crespinal are Englishmen who have had a long experience in the U.S.A. motion-picture field.

I have met many hundreds of English dramatic artists since I came, and also many writers and technical people. The associations all have given me great pleasure, and I hope I shall know them in many future productions.

Our cast is a remarkable one in many ways. Probably never on stage or screen has there been such an ensemble of dramatic talent. The principals are all stars, and many of the lesser roles are played by prominent people of the screen and theatre. The smallest parts are enacted by well-known actors.

Our company is like a large family interested in many worth-while things. They are not merely good actors; they are intelligent human beings. Lady Diana Manners to an experienced critic and theatre journalist like myself is a revelation. Her dramatic understanding, her intelligence, her knowledge of technique, her quick comprehension of the values in acting, together with her wit, graciousness, and enthusiasm, make working with her a pleasure.

PEGGY MILLER

*Playing for J. Stuart Blackton in
"The Glorious Adventure."*

Address: 52, Ashworth Mansions,
Maida Vale, W.9.

HENRY WALTON.

Character and Comedy. Thomas Farryner in "The Great Adventure."
Address, Halton Chambers, 20, King Street, W.C.2

DORIS KEALY.

Playing Margaret Farryner in "The Glorious Adventure" for J. Stuart Blackton.
Phone: Wimbledon 2150.

RUDOLF DE CORDOVA

Scenario Editor
Gaumont Co.

Specially lent by the Company to play

THOMAS UNWIN
in "The Glorious Adventure."

ARTHUR VARDON. Playing in "The Great Adventure," "Breed of the Treshams," "Haigh
Serial," "No. 7, Brick, Row," etc.
2, Granville Place, S.W.7. Phone: 2946 Western.

REGINALD NUGENT

Valet to King Charles

in

"The Glorious Adventure."

MIRIAM MURRAY

Playing for J. Stuart
Blackton in "The Glorious Adventure."

Played for Stoll, London, Alliance,
Samuelson, British Industrial and Educational Films, B. & C., etc.

35, Sinclair Mansions,
:: Shepherd's Bush. ::

MARGUERITE LEIGH.

Playing for J. Stuart Blackton in "The Glorious Adventure."

C/o General Cinema Agency,
26, Dean Street, W.

Playing
"Sir Isaac
Newton" in
"The Great Adventure."

BRYAN POWLEY, 17, Lindsay House,
Shaftesbury Ave., W.C.2. Phone: Regent 2780.

MISS EVELYN GARDINER.

Playing in "The Glorious Adventure."
Link House, Chiswick, W.

JOSE BROOKS.

Playing in J. Stuart Blackton's production,
"The Glorious Adventure."
9, Lodge Road, St. John's Wood N.W.8.
Phone: Paddington 6457.

CECILIA STURT.

Playing for J. Stuart Blackton. Lyric Soprano. Studied in Italy and London under Signor Baraldi.

FREDA KAYE

Playing for
J. STUART BLACKTON in his

THOMAS CANNING.

The well-known aristocratic lead, playing in "The Glorious Adventure."
24, Great Quebec St., Bryanston Sq., W.
Phone: Mayfair 2344.

RHODA MANSFIELD

Playing for J. STUART BLACKTON
in
"The Glorious Adventure."
Address: 4, Thavies Inn, Holborn Circus.
Phone: MUSEUM 1058.

PHYLLIS CLAUDE.

Playing for J. Stuart Blackton in "The Glorious Adventure."
Home Address: 126, West End Lane, Hampstead,
N.W.6.

First British
Super-Production

"The Glorious Adventure"

London Address:

70, KENSINGTON
GARDENS SQ., W.

CLAUDE OLIVER.

Playing John Dryden, the Court Poet, in
"The Glorious Adventure."
Link House, Chiswick, W.4.

Photo. Underwood & Underwood.

MALCOLM TOD.

Playing Lord Hampton in "The Glorious Adventure." Previous picture, Sir George Trefusis, opposite Malvina Longfellow, in "Moth and Rust" (Progress).
Address: C/o Motion Picture Studio

ANSTIS H O P E

Playing

Thomas Sampson
(Religious Fanatic)

in

'The Glorious Adventure'

C/o BRAMLINS.

MAUDE LESTOCQ

Playing for J. Stuart Blackton in

"THE GLORIOUS ADVENTURE"

Played leads in "The Mystery Road" (Famous Lasky), "Broken Road" (Stolls), "Sportsman's Wife" (Broadwest), and others.

8, CULWORTH ST., ST. JOHN'S WOOD, N.W.8

NELL ST. JOHN MONTAGUE

Playing for J. Stuart Blackton in
"THE GLORIOUS ADVENTURE."

Address c/o The Motion Picture Studio.

DAVID GREY

JUVENILE.

Address: 18a, Brixton Road, S.W.

GERTRUDE STERROLL

As "The Duchess of Moreland" in the Stuart Blackton Production,

"THE GLORIOUS ADVENTURE"

Address: 14, QUEEN'S ROAD, N.W.8.

HAROLD PRESTON

A Courtier in the
J. Stuart Blackton Production.

Has played for Broadwest, Samuelson, Stoll, Progress, B. & C., Lotinga and
:: other Film Companies. ::

Can ride and drive Horses and Motors.

HALTON CHAMBERS,
20, King St., Covent Garden,
Phone: Gerrard 6279 W.C.2

THE WEEK'S DIARY

TRADE SHOWS

The Knave of Diamonds (Stoll).

DIRECTOR: Rene Plaissetty.
CAST: Alec Fraser, Mary Massart, Cyril Percival and Olaf Hylten.
CAMERAMAN: Jack Cox.
TRADE SHOW: July 18, Shaftesbury Pavilion, 3 p.m.

A Dear Fool (Stoll).

DIRECTOR: Harold Shaw.
CAST: George K. Arthur and Edna Flurath.
TRADE SHOW: July 22, Shaftesbury Pavilion, 3 p.m.

The Woman of His Dreams (Stoll).

DIRECTOR: Harold Shaw.
STAR: Mary Dibley.
TRADE SHOW: July 20, Shaftesbury Pavilion, 3 p.m.

Frailty (Stoll).

DIRECTOR: F. Martin Thornton.
STAR: Madge Stuart.
TRADE SHOW: July 21, Shaftesbury Pavilion, 3 p.m.

The Woman with the Fan (Stoll).

DIRECTOR: Rene Plaissetty.
CAST: Mary Massart, Cyril Percival, Alec Fraser and Paulette del Boye.
CAMERAMAN: Jack Cox.
TRADE SHOW: July 22, Shaftesbury Pavilion, 3 p.m.

RELEASES

The Black Spider (B. and C.).

DIRECTOR: William Humphreys.
CAST: Bertram Burleigh, Lydia Kyasht, Ronald Colman, Sam Livesey, Mrs. Hayden Coffin, Dorothy Cecil, C. Hayden Coffin, Mary Clare and Betty Hall.

SCENARIST: William Humphreys.

RELEASED: July 18, by Butchers.

With All Her Heart (Davidson's).

DIRECTOR: A. E. Coleby.
CAST: Mary Odette, Milton Rosmer, John Hastings Batson and Jack Vincent.
SCENARIST: A. E. Coleby.
CAMERAMAN: D. P. Cooper.
RELEASED: July 18, by Phillips.

THE "WRIGHT" SCENARIO

SCENE: Stage (legit.). Period:—Years ago, and longer than that.

(LONGSHOT): Mrs. Fred Wright, senior, playing two acts of a drama in Fred Wright senior's theatre.—She fades out on second act!

(CLOSE-UP): Little Fred Wright junior, the third act.

SUBTITLE: "Ladies and gentlemen, owing to an unexpected Domestic Event—"

SCENE: On Tour. Little Fred, now growing up, plays many parts.

(VERY LONGSHOT): Waiting for the ghost to walk.

SUBTITLE: "It may be for years and it may be—"

SCENE: The Old Gaiety Theatre, London.

(CLOSE-UP): Audience rising to say "Here we are again," to Fred Wright.

SUBTITLE: "For Years and Years and Years."

SCENE: The Continent. (1) Paris.

(LONGSHOT): Fred Wright learning French.

SUBTITLE: "Why can't they speak French in English?"

(CLOSE-UP): Fred Wright adopts a goldfish as his mascot.

SUBTITLE: "Carpe Diem."

SUBTITLE: "I don't; it's their natural colour."

(2) Berlin. Fred Wright learning German.—Close-up of a Nutmeg-Grater!

(LONGSHOT): Fred Wright and Madge Lessing playing in "Our Miss Gibbs" in German to the goldfish mascot.

(CLOSE-UP): Dying goldfish.

SUBTITLE (Especially for America): "Poor fish."

SCENE: Projection room, London.—Fred Wright, accompanied by George Loane Tucker, watches his first screen performance.

(Fred Wright registering horror.)

SUBTITLE: "What do you think of yourself, Fred?"

SUBTITLE: "I'm terrible!—I came in through the door, but now I feel so small I'm going out through the keyhole."

(CLOSE-UP): Fred Wright crawling through keyhole.

SUBTITLE: "O wad some Power the Gittie gie us Tae see oosels as ithers see us."

(Some years elapse.)

SCENE: Hepworth Studios.

Fred Wright, reformed, plays successfully in several films.

(Fade out on Fred Wright going to America, accompanied by several goldfish.)

(LONGSHOT): U.S. Customs authorities testing goldfish with acid and deciding not to tax them as bullion.

(CLOSE-UP): Fred Wright playing in America.

SUBTITLE: "Speak United States."

(CLOSE-UP): Fred Wright playing in Canada.

(LONGSHOT): The gathering of the Clans o' many Brother "Old Watsonians"

SUBTITLE: "This is a prohibition town, but—"

Close up of Thousands of Empty Bottles.

SCENE: The Atlantic Ocean.

(LONGSHOT): Fred Wright swimming home, accompanied by swarm of goldfish.

(Time passes).

SCENE: Bush House. J. Stuart Blackton casting.

(CLOSE-UP): Fred Wright explaining his idea of some day leaving the stage altogether for the screen. He sees, (fade in vision), Fred Wright as "Quilp." (Do.) As "Tom Pinch."

SUBTITLE: "The best character studies of humorous ferocity and of sweet lovable gentleness, ever penned by Dickens."

(LONGSHOT): J. Stuart Blackton visualising "Bunny," the half-witted hunchback in "The Glorious Adventure."

(CLOSE-UP): Fred Wright finding the character, though not a Star Part, approximates to his ideal of comedy-pathos.

(LONGSHOT): J. Stuart Blackton and Fred Wright discussing a future production with a star part.

SUBTITLE: "But if ever I'm a Star it will not be for my beauty."

2ND SUBTITLE: "If beauty is only skin deep, I'm skinned to death."

Fade out slowly on Fred Wright with a face like a map of Europe and pleated like a Scotch Kilt.

DON'T WORRY

THERE IS NO NEED TO

IF THE COSTUMES,
WIGS,
PROPS, etc.,

For Your PRODUCTION
are SUPPLIED BY

H. & M. Rayne,

115-119, WATERLOO RD., S.E.1

Phone: 7978 CENTRAL.

KINE CAMERA EXPOSURE METER

7/8

With Instruction
Booklet.

Indicates right lens
opening for the light

"Very reliable,
could hardly get on without."

"Complete satisfaction, used for testing actinic value
of flame arcs."

WATKINS METER CO
HEREFORD.

REAL PHOTO POSTCARDS OF YOURSELF

Indispensable to Artistes for sending to clients, agents, and for Autographs, etc.

□

Send for further details—

J. BEAGLE & CO., Ltd.,
9-11, Little Britain, E.C.2.

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."
219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Now playing lead in "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" (Ideal). Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.
Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.
Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds," "The Knight Errant," "Haigh Srial," "Love Maggie."
4 Park Place, St. James, S.W. Regent 4060.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.
Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal). "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).
7, Dymham Road, West Hampstead, N.W.6.

PHOTO
BLOCK

THIS SPACE
TO LET

£3 for 13 insertions, including cost of making block.

VICTOR McLAGLEN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES.
LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs. NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc.

Carlton House, Kew Green, Kew, Surrey.

THIS SPACE TO LET.
17s. 6d. for 13 insertions.

ARTISTES

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House,"

"Wuthering Heights," etc.

148, AMHURST ROAD, HACKNEY.

Phone: Dalston 813.

DICK WEBB

Lead GAUMONT,
MASTER PRODUCTIONS, etc.

180, Elmhurst Mansions,
Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc.
DISENGAGED.

All coms: c/o Sidney Day,
181, Wardour Street, W.1.

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.
197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph. Batt. 1770 or 21.

CLIVE BROOK
INVITES OFFERS.
24, Hyde Park Square, W.2. Padd. 2868.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT,
Disengaged July 4. Phone: Walthamstow 938.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,
15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.
Phone: Hornsey 1784.

CHARLES CLIFFORD,
38, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.2.
Phone: Regent 5692.

CRISPIN HAY,
c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,
12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS, Author, Actor,
Producer,
114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

HARDING STEERMAN,
Characters of Distinction,
56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,
24, Cleveland Road,
Barnes, S.W.13.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,
Character Parts,
57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

COSTUMIER

W. CLARKSON,
Costumier and Wigmaker,
41/43, Wardour Street, W. Phone: Gerr. 612.

THIS SPACE TO LET
£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,

14a, Little Ealing Lane,

:: South Ealing ::

Phone: Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord,"

"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"

"The Face at the Window."

Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON

Producing for Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd.

Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,

Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and "CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."

Five years producer in America. At Liberty.

Address: 1A, DENBIGH PLACE, VICTORIA.

S. L. GLENISTER

Professionally Major Comnenus-Palaologus.

PRODUCER, TECHNICAL & ART DIRECTOR.

"Under the Crescent," "Dumb Girl of Portici,"
"Campbells are Coming," "Where are My Children?"
etc., for UNIVERSAL. "The Arab," for LASKY.
"Less than Dust," for ART-CRAFT, etc., etc. Open
for Engagement. Address: 25, Randolph Crescent,
W.9. Phone: Paddington 3819.

GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer

THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.

Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,
Hoe St, Walthamstow, E.17.

THIS SPACE
TO LET

£2 : 10 : 0
for 13 insertions

ADRIAN BRUNEL,
Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 (Phone: 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK,
Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

Mr. ALBERT WARD,
Producing and Adapting
for Samuelson, Worton Hall, Isleworth.

STUDIO MANAGERJOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—

B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,

Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone: W'stow 364.

The Biggest Successes have BENJAMIN COSTUMES

PERSONAL SUPERVISION GUARANTEED
in every detail. Phone—London Well 7568

CAMERAMEN. . . .JOHN J. COX

44, Barrowgate Road,

:: Chiswick, W.4. ::

'Phone : Chiswick 294.

Cameraman for Mr. Rene Plaissetty,
Stoll Picture Productions.T. R. THUMWOODCameraman—MASTER FILMS, TEDDINGTON.Latest Productions, "HARD CASH," "STELLA," "MISS CHARITY."EDWIN DAY

Motion Picture Photographer,

12, Archer Street, Piccadilly Circus, London, W.1.

Telephone : Gerrard 780.

Telegrams : "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON

Thelton House, Cambolt

:: Road, Putney Hill. ::

Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN

"GAUMONT'S,"

105, King's Road,

Kingston-on-Thames.

FRANK CANHAM

ASTRA FILM CO., LTD.

Now turning on "The Wonderful Year."

Permanent Address : Royal Forest
Hotel, Chingford, Essex.BASIL W. G. EMMOTT

GAUMONT,

:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::

Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT

Expert Cameraman.

"The Better 'Ole," "Her Benny,"
etc., etc.

2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.

'Phone : Streatham 1969.

ALFRED H. MOSES

Chief Cameraman—

GEORGE RIDGWELL PRODUCTIONS
STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONSFormerly Chief Cameraman of Norma Talmadge, Thanhouser, B. & C., etc.WILLIAM SHENTON

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Private Address :

17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

JAMES E. ROGERS,

Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth.

"Edge o' Beyond,"

"Aunt Rachel"

"Damaged Goods,"

"Nance,"

"Last Rose of Summer,"

PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

SCENARISTS. . . .COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,

:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.

7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11

('Phone : Park 2945).

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,

Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.

62, Foxburne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,

Kinedramatist,

Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

PUBLICITY. . . .F. J. STANDERWICK,

Photographer.

I am making a speciality of Catering for
Film Artists. 'Phone for appointment—
Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio
—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
W.14.FRANK J. WOOLF

Publicity Representative,

British and Colonial Kinematograph

Company, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone : Walthamstow 364.

EDWARD BAIRD,

Publicity.

172, Goldhurst Terrace, N.W.6.

GEOFFREY H.MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions :

"THE GREATER LOVE."

"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"

"SETTLED IN FULL,"

"ALL THE WINNERS,"

"WATCHING EYES," etc.

All coms. : c/o A. FRASER,

26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

MILTON ROSMER

Starring in

"The Pointing Finger,"

"A Woman of No Importance,"

"The Amazing Partnership,"

"Demos," "The Diamond Necklace,"

"Belphegor the Mountebank,"

"The Will," "The Twelve Pound

Look," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

88, NEWMAN ST., W.1.

Phone - - - - Museum 5145

SIDNEY
L. EATON,

KINEMATOGRAPHER,

3, LEBANON PARK MANSIONS,
T W I C K E N H A M.

Productions include:—

"Darby and Joan," "Westward Ho!"

"Story of the Rosary," "Hobson's

Choice," "Won by a Head," "Rodney

Stone," "The Old Arm Chair," "Like-

ness of the Night," "Croxley Master."

"Sh'ps that Pass in the Night," etc., etc.

AT LIBERTY FOR
FIRST CLASS PRODUCTIONS.HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer
of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

I am a Free
Lance Scenaristbecause I refuse to work to the set formula of one producer. If you like originality; a refusal to follow the crowd; difference without losing sight of necessary convention—then you might like to have a chat with me.HARRY HUGHES,

Editing, Titling. Continuities.

47, DEAN ST., LONDON, W.1.

Regent 2592.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMESTHE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for
Kinematograph Productions. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Productions and Who is Working on Them

J. Stuart Blackton.

ADDRESS: Bush House, Aldwyeh.
 FILM: "The Glorious Adventure."
 DIRECTOR: J. Stuart Blackton.
 ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Clifford Grey.
 STAR: Lady Diana Manners.
 SCENARIST: Felix Orman.
 ART DIRECTOR: Almon C. Whiting.
 CAMERAMAN: Nicholas Mursuraca
 TYPE: Seven-reel drama.
 STAGE: Third week.

British and Colonial.

ADDRESS: Hoe Street, Waltham-
 stow.
 FILM: "The Puppet Man."
 DIRECTOR: Frank Crane.
 STARS: Molly Adair, John Reid.
 SCENARIST: Cosmo Gordon Lennox.
 CAMERAMAN: I. Roseman.
 TYPE: Spectacular Circus drama.
 Stage: Finishing.

Broadwest.

ADDRESS: Walthamstow and Esher.
 FILM: "The Imperfect Lover."
 STAR: Stewart Rome.
 DIRECTOR: Walter West.
 ART DIRECTOR: Thomas Fleet-
 wood.
 CAMERAMAN: J. Franguelli.
 TYPE: Drama.
 STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "Christie Johnstone."
 DIRECTOR: Norman MacDonald.

STARS: Stewart Rome and Gertrude McCoy.

SCENARIST: W. G. Clifford.
 CAMERAMAN: G. Pauli.
 TYPE: Costume romance.
 STAGE: Completed.

FILM: "Vi of Smith's Alley."
 DIRECTOR: Walter West.
 STARS: Violet Hopson, Cameron
 Carr.
 SCENARISTS: J. B. Bertram Brown,
 Charles Barnet.
 CAMERAMAN: J. Franguelli.
 TYPE: Domestic drama.
 STAGE: Cutting and assembling.

FILM: "Levity Hieks."
 STAR: Not east.
 DIRECTOR: Not announced.
 STAGE: Schedule—casting shortly.
George Clark.

ADDRESS: 47, Berner's Street,
 W.1.

FILM: "The Bigamist."
 DIRECTOR: Guy Newall.
 STARS: Ivy Duke and Guy
 Newall.
 SCENARIST: Guy Newall.
 CAMERAMAN: Bert Ford.
 TYPE: Social drama.
 STAGE: Cutting and assembling.

I. B. Davidson.

ADDRESS: Lea Bridge Road,
 Leyton.

FILM: "The Fifth Form at St.
 Dominic's."

DIRECTOR: A. E. Coleby.
 SCENARIST: A. E. Coleby.
 CAMERAMAN: D. P. Cooper.
 TYPE: School story.
 STAGE: Cutting and assembling.

Famous Players-Lasky
 British Producers.

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.
 FILM: "Dangerous Lies" (Working title "Twice Wed.").

DIRECTOR: Paul Powell.
 STARS: Mary Glynn, David Powell.
 ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: R. J. Cullen.
 SCENARIST: Mary O'Connor.
 ART DIRECTOR: Leslie Dawson.
 CAMERAMAN: C. McDonnell.
 TYPE: Social drama.
 STAGE: Nearing completion.

FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."
 DIRECTOR: Donald Crisp.
 ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Claude H.
 Mitchell.

STAR: Donald Crisp.
 SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.
 STAGE: Second week.

Frederick White.

ADDRESS: Weir House, Tedding-
 ton.

FILM: "The Haigh Serial."
 DIRECTOR: Edward R. Gordon.

STAR: Ernest Haigh.
 SCENARIST: Edward R. Gordon.
 TYPE: Detective serial.
 STAGE: Schedule.

Gaumont.

ADDRESS: Shepherd's Bush.
 FILM: "Roses in the Dust."
 DIRECTOR: Captain Calvert.
 STARS: Iris Rowe, Gladys Mason.
 CAMERAMAN: Basil W. G. Emmott.
 SCENARIST: H. Morgan.
 STAGE: Second week.

Harma.

ADDRESS: Limes Grove, Croydon.
 FILM: (not titled).
 DIRECTOR: Bernard Dudley.
 STARS: Marjorie Villis and James
 Knight.

CAMERAMAN: J. Mackenzie.
 TYPE: Comedy drama.
 STAGE: Fourth week.

Ideal.

FILM: "All Sorts and Conditions of Men."

DIRECTOR: G. Treville.
 STARS: Rex Davis, Renee Kelly.
 SCENARIST: Colden Lore.
 TYPE: Costume drama.
 STAGE: Completed.

FILM: "Sonia."
 STARS: Evelyn Brent, Clive Brook.

(Continued on page 27.)

All the COSTUMES, WIGS, PROPERTIES, etc.,

used in the J. STUART BLACKTON FILM

"THE GLORIOUS ADVENTURE"

made by

W. CLARKSON, 41-43, WARDOUR STREET, W.1.

MOY—OMNIA

APPARATUS

Used universally for the past 25 years, during which period the name of MOY has become a guarantee of unquestionable quality, perfect workmanship, and supreme reliability.

"Take," Perforate, Clean, Print, Develop, and Project by MOY methods. They have evolved from the long manufacturing experience and costly research of one of the world's highest authorities on Kinema and Electrical Apparatus.

OMNIA KINE APPARATUS CO., LTD.

27, HIGH STREET, BLOOMSBURY. W.C.2.

(Adjoining Tottenham Court Road Tube Station.)

Telephone: Gerrard 2114.

Telegrams: "Omniabury, Westcent, London."

L. BENJAMIN & CO., 99, Middlesex St., 'Phone London Wall 7568. Kinematograph Costumier. Naval & Military Outfitter

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

(Continued from page 26).

DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.
SCENARIST: Denison Clift.
CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.
STAGE: Fourth week.

International Artists Films.

ADDRESS: 52, Shaftesbury Avenue.
STUDIO: B. & C. Studios, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
FILM: "The Night Hawk."
DIRECTOR: John Gliddon.
STARS: Malvina Longfellow, Henri de Vries.
SCENARIST: Gerard Ford Buckle.
CAMERAMAN: Will Howse.
STAGE: Starting.

Master Films.

ADDRESS: Weir House, Teddington.
FILM: "God in the Garden."
DIRECTOR: Edwin J. Collins.
STARS: Arthur Pusey, Edith Craig.
SCENARIST: Edwin J. Collins.
CAMERAMAN: Jack Parker.
TYPE: Comedy drama.
STAGE: Completed.

FILM: "The Marriage Lines."
DIRECTOR: Wilfred Noy.
STAR: Barbara Hoff.
SCENARIST: Wilfred Noy.
CAMERAMAN: Theodore Thumwood.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Cutting and assembling.

Minerva Films.

ADDRESS: 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1.
FILM: "The Beggar's Syndicate."
DIRECTOR: Adrian Brunel.
STARS: Mary Patterson, Bert Darley, Crispin Hay.
SCENARIST: Adrian Brunel.
CAMERAMAN: Frank Hoffmann.
TYPE: Comedy drama.
STAGE: Third week

Progress.

ADDRESS: Shoreham.
FILM: "Moth and Rust."
DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.
STARS: Sybil Thorndike, Malvina Longfellow, and Langhorne Burton.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "Mayor of Casterbridge."
STAR: Fred Groves.
DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "The Wooing of April."
DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.
STARS: Pauline Johnson, Harold French and Ellis Jeffries.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
TYPE: Comedy drama.
STAGE: Completed.

Samuelson.

ADDRESS: Warton Hall, Isleworth.
FILM: Title not announced.
DIRECTOR: Rex Wilson.
STAGE: Starting shortly.

Seal.

ADDRESS: Prince's Studio, Kew Bridge.
FILM: "Dick's Fairy."
DIRECTOR: Bert Wynne.

STARS: Hargreaves Munsell, Joan Griffith, and Albert Brantford.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: John Wyndham.

SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.
CAMERAMAN: L. Protheroe.

TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Finishing.

Screen Plays.

ADDRESS: Cranmer Court, Clapham S.W.

FILM: Grand Guignol series.

DIRECTORS: Fred Paul and Jack Raymond.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Rodwell.

TYPE: Short melodramas.

STAGE: Producing one a week.

Sinclair Hill Productions.

ADDRESS: Jay's Agency, Wardour Street, London, W.

FILM: "Only One Week to Live."

DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.

STARS: Dorothy Fane and Campbell Gullan.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: S. D. Bra-hame.

SCENARIST: Frank Millar.

TYPE: Straight Comedy.

STAGE: Completed.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Cricklewood.

FILM: "The Woman with the Fan."

DIRECTOR: Rene Plaissetty.

STARS: Mary Massart, Alec Fraser.

CAMERAMAN: Jack Cox.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Completed.

FILM: "The Fruitful Vine."

DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.

CAMERAMAN: Jermaine Berger.

STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "The Prey of the Dragon."

DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.

STAR: Victor McLaglan.

CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Nearing completion.

FILM: "General John Regan."

DIRECTOR: Harold Shaw.

STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: "The Hound of the Baskervilles."

DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.

STARS: Eille Norwood, Catrina Campbell.

SCENARIST: W. J. Elliott.

CAMERAMAN: Jermaine Berger.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "The Pointing Finger."

DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.

STARS: Milton Rosmer, Madge Stuart.

CAMERAMAN: Al Moses.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Finishing.

H. W. Thompson.

ADDRESS: B. & C. Studio, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

FILM: "The Wonderful Year."

DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.

STARS: Marie Odette, Lionelle Howard.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Grace Rose.

SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.

EDITOR: John Miller.

CAMERAMAN: Frank Canham.

ASSISTANT CAMERAMAN: Pat Quinn.

TYPE: Light French Drama.

STAGE: Fourth week.

Welsh Pearson.

ADDRESS: Craven Park, Willesden

FILM: "Squibs."

DIRECTOR: George Pearson.

STARS: Betty Balfour, Fred Groves

SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.

CAMERAMAN: Emile Lauste.

TYPE: Comedy.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Zodiac.

FILM: "Walter Finds a Father."

STAR: Walter Forde.

TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.

STAGE: Completed.

STUDIO DIRECTORY
Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Arslodre, Hyde, London.

ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2018.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barnopho, Ealux.

B. P. FILMS, LTD., Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clapham Park.
BRITISH ACTORS' FILM CO., Melbourne Road, Bushey, Herts. 'Phone: Bushey Heath 259—British Actors.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD., Hoc Street, Walthamstow, E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH ART FILMS, CO., LTD., Princes Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford. 'Phone: Chiswick 574.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PICTURES, LTD., Taileric Street, Hackney Road, London, E.2. 'Phone: Dalston 3454.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Portsmouth Road, Esher, Surrey. 'Phone: Esher 325.

CAIRNS FILM CO., Watcombe Hall, Torquay. 'Phone: Torquay 886—Cairnsfilm, Torquay.

CENTRAL FILM PRODUCING CO., Eel Pie Island, Twickenham.

DAVIDSON, I. B., 58, Lea Bridge Road, Leyton, E.10. 'Phone: Walthamstow 634.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

FREDERICK WHITE, LTD., Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

GAILEY PRODUCTIONS, Wadden New Road, Croydon.

GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolougue, 'Phone London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland, London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exelugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012.

HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16, Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.

IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Idefilms, Borehamwood.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Cricklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MIDLAND ACTORS' FILM CO., 76, Broad Street, Birmingham.

MINERVA FILM CO., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

NEW AGENCY FILM CO., 115a, Ebury Street, London, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 6856.

PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton 2456.

SEAL PRODUCTIONS, Princes Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford. 'Phone: Chiswick 574.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpie, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1993—Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMPSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & CO., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.

WILSONIAN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD. Secretary, W. J. Crook, 547, Wandsworth Road, S.W.

ODIAC FILMS, Windsor Studios, Bromley Road, Catford. 'Phone: Lec Green, 948.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

You cannot do better than
by placing your orders with

L. BENJAMIN & CO.

99, Middlesex Street, E.1.

'Phone—London Wall 7568.

KENMA

The "Star" of Greaseless Paints

Kenma is the only greaseless paint, and is the perfect substitute for grease paint. It is much more easily applied than grease paint, and is easier to get off. It enables the user to make up quickly, without discomfort.

Kenma adheres with perfect natural-looking evenness. It never cakes. It is sufficiently opaque to obliterate all skin blemishes such as freckles, etc. Kenma gives much better photographic results than are possible with grease paints.

With Kenma you can "work over" the make-up—that is, you can rectify accidental smudges without removing the entire make-up.

Kenma can be removed instantly with soap and water. It will not cause the familiar spots that ordinary grease paints make on clothing.

Supplied in four colours—white, pale yellow, medium yellow and pink, in collapsible tubes, price 1/3 and 2/6.

KENMA

Eyebrow & Eyelash Black

is as efficient as Kenma Greaseless Paint. In collapsible tubes, price 1/3.

It is 1. Easy to apply. 3. Does not "matt" on the lashes.
2. Easy to remove. 4. Promotes the natural growth of lashes.

Kenma Greaseless Paint and Eyelash Darkener may be obtained from—Harrods, Brompton Road, Shortcliff & Co., Shepherd's Bush, Army & Navy Stores, Victoria St., Stepell & Co., Whiteley's Foreign Fancy Dept., or direct from the Manufacturers

A FREE SAMPLE.

On request, we will send a Free Sample Tube of Kenma Greaseless Paint—write for it to-day.

The
OATINE Company, Limited,
Oatine Buildings, Borough, London, SE1.

W. VINTEN, "—"

Specialist in Cinematograph
ApparatusMODEL "C"
STUDIO
CAMERAAll Metal,
Four Lenses,
Patented
Sight Tube,
Three SpeedsUrbanora House,
89-91, Wardour St.,
LONDON, W.1.
Tel: Regent 2702*Sunday Express* :—

Rex Davis returns in an Anglo-French Masterpiece.

"Rex Davis, the English Douglas Fairbanks, boxer, swimmer, swordsman, and all-round athlete, came smiling back into screen fame at the Shaftesbury Pavilion, last Friday afternoon. Rex is a dashing hero, and this outstanding production should bring celebrity to all connected with it."

Evening News :—

"The hero, Rex Davis, was specially selected by Sir A. Conan Doyle for his fine work in 'The House of Temperley' and 'Rodney Stone,' and as Louis de Laval, the ideal lover, French gentleman, and great fighter, is hardly off the screen for a minute. . . . In a stirring chapter of French history, it is interesting to find that the one Englishman in the cast has acquitted himself so well in a very difficult lead that must have made great demands upon him. The whole of the acting is of a high order, especially that of M. Chaumont as Uncle Bernac and Rex Davis as his nephew. In the latter is an ideal hero who, if given greater opportunity, would be the most popular English screen player in this country."

Era :—

"Captain Rex Davis, M.C., is admirable in the part of Louis de Laval."

Kinematograph Weekly :—

"... outstanding success Rex Davis who plays the young hero. The outstanding point is the acting of Rex Davis, who is the only Englishman in the cast, and stands head and shoulders above the rest in restraint."

Film Renter and Moving Picture News :—

"Outstanding feature is the spirited and finished acting of Rex Davis, as the English hero. . . . But it is the acting of Rex Davis as Louis de Laval which maintains the interest of the film at its high level throughout the performance. He is an ideal juvenile lead, handsome and debonair, and wears his costumes with an air that would win the heart of many a less impressionable Miss than the heroine of the story—Eugenie de Choiseul."

The British Press on
REX DAVIS
as Louis de Laval in
"UNCLE BERNAC"

The Motion Picture Studio, July 23, 1921.

The MOTION PICTURE

studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 7.

Saturday, July 23, 1921.

FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH MOTION
PICTURES

NETTA WESTCOTT

the charming British Screen Artiste whose fine work
as the heroine in
"IN HIS GRIP"
(Gaumont)
will be remembered,

49, Drayton Gardens,
South Kensington, S.W.10.
Phone: Kensington 632.

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."
219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Now playing lead in "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" (Ideal). Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.
Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.
Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds," "The Knight Errant," "Haigh Serial," "Love Maggie."
4, Park Place, St. James, S.W. Regent 4060.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.
Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal). "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).
c/o Sidney Jay, 11, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

Juvenile Leads: "Her Son," "Great Gay Road," "Lights of Home," "Land of My Fathers." Now playing Duane in "Belle of the Gambling Den" (Haigh Serial).
OFFERS INVITED.
33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

PHOTO
BLOCK

THIS SPACE
TO LET
£3 for 13 insertions, including cost of making block.

VICTOR McLAGLEN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.
Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack."
Address—N.S.C.

THIS SPACE TO LET.
17s. 6d. for 13 insertions.

ARTISTES

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES.
LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs. NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc.
Carlton House, Kew
Green, Kew, Surrey.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.
"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.
:: :: Crawley, Sussex. :: ::
Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.
Open to accept engagement 1st August.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"
"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House,"
"Wuthering Heights," etc.
148, AMHURST ROAD, HACKNEY.
Phone: Dalston 813.

DICK WEBB

Lead GAUMONT,
MASTER PRODUCTIONS, etc.
180, Elmhurst Mansions,
Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late
Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc.
HARDY FILM CO.
All coms: c/o Sidney Jay,
181, Wardour Street, W.1.

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.
197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph. Batt. 1770 or 21.

CLIVE BROOK
INVITES OFFERS.
24, Hyde Park Square, W.2. Padd. 2868.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT,
Disengaged July 4. Phone: Walthamstow 938.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,
15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.
Phone: Hornsey 1784.

CHARLES CLIFFORD,
38, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.
Phone: Regent 569.

CRISPIN HAY,
c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,
12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS, Author, Actor,
Producer,
114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

HARDING STEERMAN,
Characters of Distinction,
56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,
24, Cleveland Road,
Barnes, S.W.13.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,
Character Parts,
57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

COSTUMIER

W. CLARKSON,
Costumier and Wigmaker,
41/43, Wardour Street, W. Phone: Gerr. 612.

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,

14a, Little Ealing Lane,
:: South Ealing ::
Phone: Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
"The Face at the Window."
Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON

Producing for Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd.
Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,

Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and "CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."
Five years producer in America. At Liberty.
Address: 1A, DENBIGH PLACE, VICTORIA.

S. L. GLENISTER

Professionally Major Commenus-Palæologus.
PRODUCER, TECHNICAL & ART DIRECTOR.
"Under the Crescent," "Dumb Girl of Portici,"
"Campbells are Coming," "Where are My Children?"
etc., for UNIVERSAL. "The Arab," for LASKY.
"Less than Dust," for ART-CRAFT, etc., etc. Open
for Engagement. Address: 25, Randolph Crescent,
W. 9. Phone: Paddington 3819.

GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer
THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.
Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,
Hoe St., Walthamstow, E.17.

THIS SPACE
TO LET £2 : 10 : 0
for 13 insertions

ADRIAN BRUNEL,
Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 (Phone: 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK,
Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

Mr. ALBERT WARD,
Producing and Adapting
for Samuelson, Worton Hall, Isleworth.

STUDIO MANAGERJOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—
B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,
Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
Telephone: W'stow 364.

CAMERAMEN. . . .JOHN J. COX

44, Barrowgate Road,

:: Chiswick, W.4. ::

'Phone : Chiswick 294.

Cameraman for Mr. Rene Plaissetty,
Stoll Picture Productions.T. R. THUMWOOD

Cameraman—AT LIBERTY.

Latest work : "The Channings," "Hard
Cash," "Stella" and "Miss Charity."

MASTER BUTCHER PRODUCTIONS.

"PEMBROKE," CHEAM COMMON RD.,
WORCESTER PARK.EDWIN DAY

Motion Picture Photographer,

12, Archer Street, Picca-
dilly Circus, London, W.1.

Telephone : Gerrard 780.

Telegrams : "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON

Thelton House, Cambolt

:: Road, Putney Hill. ::

Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN

"GAUMONT'S,"

105, King's Road,

Kingston-on-Thames.

FRANK CANHAM

ASTRA FILM CO., LTD.

Now turning on "The Wonderful Year."

Permanent Address : Royal Forest
Hotel, Chingford, Essex.BASIL W. G. EMMOTT

GAUMONT,

:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::

Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT

Expert Cameraman.

"The Better 'Ole," "Her Benny,"
etc., etc.

2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.

'Phone : Streatham 1969.

WILLIAM SHENTON

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Private Address :

17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,

Boreham Wood, Herts.

CAMERAMEN. . . .JAMES E. ROGERS,

Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth.

"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"

"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"

"Last Rose of Summer."

PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

ALFRED H. MOSES

Chief Cameraman—

GEORGE RIDGWELL PRODUCTIONS
STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS

Formerly Chief Cameraman of Norma

Talmadge, Thanhouser, B. & C., etc.

SCENARISTS. . . .COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,

:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.

7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11

('Phone : Park 2945).

THIS SPACE TO LET

£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
62, Foxburne Road, Balham, S.W.17.WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT, Kineamatist,

Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

PUBLICITY.F. J. STANDERWICK,

Photographer.

I am making a speciality of Catering for
Film Artists. 'Phone for appointment—
Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio
—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
W.14.FRANK J. WOOLF

Publicity Representative,

British and Colonial Kinematograph
Company, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone : Walthamstow 364.

EDWARD BAIRD.

Publicity.

172, Goldhurst Terrace, N.W.6.

MILTON ROSMER

Starring in

"The Pointing Finger,"

"A Woman of No Importance,"

"The Amazing Partnership,"

"Demos," "The Diamond Necklace,"

"Belphegor the Mountebank,"

"The Will," "The Twelve Pound

Look," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

88, NEWMAN ST., W.1.

Phone - - - - Museum 5145

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer
of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H.
MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions :

"THE GREATER LOVE."

"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"

"SETTLED IN FULL,"

"ALL THE WINNERS,"

"WATCHING EYES," etc.

All coms. : c/o A. FRASER,
26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

I am a Free
Lance Scenaristbecause I refuse to work to the set formula of one producer. If you like originality ; a refusal to follow the crowd ; difference without losing sight of necessary convention—then you might like to have a
chat with me.HARRY HUGHES,

Editing, Titling, Continuities.

47, DEAN ST., LONDON, W.1.

Regent 2592.

Bramlins

MUSEUM 4038.

Mr. C. TIBSON CHOWNE.

Latest productions: The Honeypot, Love Maggie (Samuelson).
The Loudwater Mystery, In Full Cry (Broadwest).
Four Just Men and Dear Fool (Stoll),
The Marriage Lines (Masters).

C/O

Bramlins

241, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.C.2.

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 7.

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

July 23, 1921

The Latest on the American Tax.

THE projected taxation of foreign films going into the United States is a matter of vital interest to the British artiste and director—in fact to everyone working in British studios. There is, however, a great deal of misconception of the matter, and it is particularly unfortunate that attempts are being made in several quarters to suggest that the proposed imposts arise from a desire to ban British pictures. A little accurate knowledge is all that is needed to prove the falseness of these assertions. Originally the agitation began by the organised opposition, on the part of the American legion, fostered by the Actors' Equity Association and the Fidelity League, against German films. At a time when production had been greatly reduced in America and numbers of actors and other studio workers were unemployed, a German film was shown in Los Angeles. Such a demonstration was made against it by the actors and their sympathisers, that it had to be withdrawn immediately. This agitation was the starting point of a campaign for heavy tariffs against foreign films—a campaign which was further pressed because several of the biggest American producing organisations were making preparations for filming in Europe, principally on account of the lower cost brought about by the exchange differences.

* * *

How the Proposals Really Stand.

THE Fordney Tariff Bill, which contains these taxation proposals—calling for a 30 per cent. tax on negatives and positives, based on the estimated cost of the production in America—is now in the hands of the Senate Finance Committee, which has to report its findings to the Senate. It will therefore be at least the middle of October before the Bill can come into force. In the meantime it is likely to meet with powerful opposition, as all the big American distributors and directors realise how it endangers their foreign trade.

A New Plan Coming.

THREE Trade committees, of renters exhibitors and producers, have been busy on this problem for several months and have now agreed on a plan of reform. No one knows exactly what it is, though its principles could be foreshadowed with some confidence, but it will be announced before the next issue of the Studio is published. Concurrently a renting film is inaugurating an attempt to synchronise British and American release dates for American films, which, if accomplished, seems to entail a well-nigh immediate release in this country. Undoubtedly reform is stirring in this direction, and the day when an artiste will be rewarded by an immediate public approval of good work is success even commercially much beyond the average. Certainly the results, under proper conditions, should be of great interest to all who like to remember that photoplay production is an art as well as a business.

* * *

Sight and Light.

A GREAT deal of agitation was raised some few months ago about the injury to artistes' eyes caused by some of the more intense studio lighting systems. This matter was taken up by the Committee on the Cause and Prevention of Blindness and, arising out of the question in the House of Commons by Viscount Curzon as to whether that Committee had yet reported on the matter of injury to eyes caused by studio lights Sir Alfred Mond stated that the report was to the effect that transient injury had occurred in two cases. This was the only evidence which the Committee had obtained, and in these two cases the injury had been caused by the use of open arcs without a proper screen. He also said that he had received assurances from the K.M.A. that no member of that Association would permit open arcs to be used in studios for general illumination without glare filters. Sir A.

Mond did not think, therefore, that further action was necessary. Probably not, if there have been only two cases, and these of temporary injury.

* * *

Registration of Scenarios.

SCENARIOS, typewritten in duplicate on quarto paper, may, we are informed, be forwarded to the offices of the Authors' Society for registration. One copy will be stamped and returned to the author, and the other filed in the register of the Society. Copies of the scenario thus filed may be obtained at any time by the author only, subject to payment of the usual typewriting charges. The fees are:—Scenarios: 5s. for first twenty pages or part of twenty pages; 2s. 6d. for each subsequent twenty pages or part of twenty pages. Minimum fee in every instance, 5s.

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"The Knave of Diamonds" (Stoll). An excellent example of production, efficient as well as artistic. Rene Plaissetty might have had better material than an Ethel M. Dell novelette, but the story is sufficiently interesting in combination with little value to get over the excellent settings, production and acting cast, including Mary Massart, Cyril Percival, Alec Fraser, and Annie Esmond, adequate, if not distinguished. Camera work, first class all through.

"A Dear Fool" (Stoll). A rarity; real British comedy-drama. Drags a little and is almost a one-man play, the one man being Geo. K. Arthur, who is excellent. Frank Miller's continuity is reasonably good and the production by Harold Shaw the same. Arthur makes the success it will certainly be. Edna Flugarth and Bertie Wright good in minor roles. Photography good enough in a straight way.

"The Woman of His Dreams" (Stoll). More Ethel M. Dell, well produced technically, and in what story there is (and there is no vast amount) clearly presented. Good exterior work is a feature. Mary Dibley, Sidney Seaward and Alec Fraser please specially in a good all-round cast, which does well although the subject rather peters out towards the end.

by no means so far off as one would imagine from present conditions.

* * *

"Co-operative" Production?

ONE suggestion has lately found tremendous favour among many of the most thoughtful of these craftsmen—that some form of co-operative studio should be started, less as a commercial proposition than as an experiment and, to a certain extent, as a demonstration. It would certainly be interesting to discover just what sort of work an artistic group of this type would turn out, if it were free to attempt a realisation of some of its own ideals as to theme and treatment. Freed of the worse type of commercial restrictions—and particularly of unsuitable material and an economy on essentials—it is our impression that they might secure a

MARGOT GREVILLE

Out of the many hundreds of attractive applicants for parts in the lavish court and fete scenes of J. Stuart Blackton's colour film production, "THE GLORIOUS ADVENTURE," featuring Lady Diana Manners, for which the prettiest young women in London were sought, Margot Greville was selected as the most beautiful. Miss Greville is a striking type of English brunette beauty. The photograph shows her in the role of the Countess of Chesterfield.

TITLES—ARTISTIC AND OTHERWISE

by A. J. HITCHCOCK,

Title Designer for Famous Players-Lasky British Producers

There are many elements that go to the making of picture titles—both good and bad.

Apart from their actual phraseology—upon which subject more than enough has already been written—there is much to consider in the matter of their design.

The first and most important aim is to make a title readable. This may seem a fairly obvious statement, but so many cases exist even to-day of titles that present difficulty in reading. If an audience have to read a title that is not legible, they immediately conclude that it was not on the screen long enough for them to decipher, whereas, allowing exactly the same footage, if that title had been clearly written, the result would have been entirely satisfactory.

In the choice of a type, the essential consideration is to select style of lettering or type face that can be easily read. There are a number of type faces that make easy reading; the best is always a "bold" face, the type of all one strength, that is without any variation in thickness, because a letter that has thick and thin portions will present difficulties for photography, inasmuch as the thin portion will not reproduce.

Type presents one or two minor difficulties in spacing. Letters, for instance, have to be spread out to justify a uniform length of line, causing the title to look a little weak in parts. There is also a difficulty at the present time to obtain good quality white foil, with the result that under the present circumstances, an even white is not always attainable.

Hand-lettered titles have an advantage over printed ones. In the first place, an even strength of white will always be assured, the letters can be spaced and balanced without upsetting the appearance of the title, and, again, they are much better looking, as they do not have the hard appearance of a type face. Much of the success of a hand-lettered title depends upon the style of lettering. There have been cases of letterers running riot in the use of ornament, such as enormous tails on g's and y's, etc., the result being a mass of "curly queues."

We now come down to that very interesting subject of Art titling. One or two of the leading directors in the States have made a practice of illustrating all sub and spoken titles. The result of illustrating a spoken title can only confuse the reader, for the essential point in a spoken title is that it is read quickly, and does not hold up the action. Sub-titles, however, benefit greatly by some kind of illustration, as illustration gives colour to the action of the story and helps to space the episodes. The quick reader derives some benefit also from an Art title, for he reads the title, and then his mind is occupied in looking at the picture until the fade out, thus giving continuity to the story.

There is much to be said about the type of illustration used in the title. Co-operation with the director will always be productive of the best results, because a situation may exist in the picture, and can be improved by the use of an appropriate symbol in the accompanying sub-titles. Experience in this studio in the matter of subjects has found that still life is the most effective, as it can be most easily interpreted by the audience. If figures are used, they often clash with the actual photography, for the mind has been reading photographs all the time, and comes up against a change which is too sudden to grasp at a glance.

Symbols are the most effective subjects, provided they are not too subtle, for we must always remember that we are catering for all grades of intelligence, and it is only safe to aim at the understanding of the greater portion of them. But beware of repetition. The hour glass and scales of justice, their day is ended. A fair example of the use of symbols can be seen in Paul Powell's production, "Dangerous Lies," by E. Phillips Oppenheim.

Another fairly effective type of illustration is the landscape background, which often suggests the locale of the current action. This requires careful treatment so as to avoid any "whites" behind the letters. The usual way to overcome this difficulty is to show the silhouette of a large tree in the foreground, and thus provide a black ground for the title itself.

In regard to the actual treatment, we have found that the most effective surface for art work is a black canvas, for it gives a richness and depth to the illustration, at the same time combining softness, which is essential where the titles are shot on positive stock, the latter having a tendency to harden the drawing.

A large ornamental index letter for each sub-title—not spoken titles—has been found to be very effective, as it stands out, and apart from ornamenting the title, focusses the eye, as it were, and acts as a guide to where the lettering commences, thus avoiding any attempt for the eye to stray to the illustration first.

Bad titles can harm a picture, they create an indifferent atmosphere, and look shoddy.

Good titles will create a harmonious setting, and help the picture to run smoothly.

RELEASES

The Amazing Partnership (Stoll).

DIRECTOR: George Ridgwell.

CAST: Milton Rosmer, Gladys Mason and Teddy Arundell.

CAMERAMAN: Al. Moses.

RELEASED: July 25.

The Tinted Venus

DIRECTOR: Cecil Hepworth.

CAST: Alma Taylor, Gwynne Herbert.

RELEASED: July 25 (Imperial).

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

The difference between the make-up needed for colour photography and black-and-white films is interesting to notice. In the former the make-up is much the same as for the stage—if anything, more subdued and natural. Ordinarily, of course, the make-up for studio work is peculiar to itself, and is based on the photographic value of colour. I have noticed artistes who take real trouble with the make-up for a photoplay usually put on blue eyebrows rather than black, and are careful with the carmine on their lips. This is in strong contrast to some players in a recent Hungarian film, who used an accentuated stage make-up, apparently with the idea that the strong light necessitated heavy paint. The result was . . . anyway, I saw the first two reels of one of the five films they wanted to show me!

ON THE FLOOR WITH A E. COLEBY.

A. E. Coleby is not a bit like a director. Many people who have cherished dreams of men with megaphones and broad-brimmed hats would be very grieved to see Coleby at work. He has a method of his own, however, which seems to work quite well. He does not use a megaphone, and it is doubtful whether, even if he were given one, he would know how to use it. Yet, despite all this, he produces pictures which are successes. "The Call of the Road" and "The Right to Live" are his most recent productions. We do not intend to give a list of all his productions; for one thing we have not the space, for another we have forgotten quite a number of them, the list is so long. Mr. Coleby has, perhaps, produced more films than any other English director. Strange as it may seem, he has also had less publicity than any other director on this side.

In most cases you will find Coleby playing in the film. He likes to get in amongst his artistes. While he is being photographed, playing one of the leading rôles in a production, he is also directing. He certainly works hard. The story is usually by A. E. Coleby, the scenario is by A. E. Coleby, the production is by the same person, and A. E. Coleby appears prominently in the cast. When the picture is shown, Coleby's name is seen below the main title, sharing one-half with his cameraman, D. P. Cooper. Coleby and Cooper work well together; they seem to understand each other. For many years Mr. Coleby has been working away quietly at the Davidson studio. He set the standard in sporting pictures. Most of the big boxing champions have appeared under the direction of him in sporting dramas. Men who have been boxers all their lives turn out to be excellent screen actors, but there can be little doubt that it is chiefly due to their director that they can act at all. He goes through every scene himself first, shows what should be done, then lets them go in and do it.

Arising out of a rather tactless question as to what difference there is between a kinedramatist and a scenario writer, William Elliott replies in another column to the effect that the difference is the same as between director and producer. Surely not. The differences between producers and directors—are proverbial, and they are not differences of euphemy. On the contrary, they are usually much otherwise! Now if somebody had asked what difference there was between an artist and an artiste—but there!

Matters with regard to the club for studio workers do not seem to be making much progress. In theory the suggestion has met with much support, but it is in practice that support is needed. I have been inundated with offers of club premises since the question was first raised, but most of the offers have been attempts to sell me leases of buildings, together with contents. And as I do not know of any millionaire studio workers, I have regretfully declined these kind offers up to now.

Norman MacDonald says that he cannot see where sincere criticism could hinder a director in any way, providing the criticism emanates from the heart and brain of the critic. Neither can I. But, unfortunately, so much of the criticism—and laudation—emanates not from the heart and brain of the critic, but from the morals of the advertising department or secret interests of the newspaper owner. And, of course, occasionally from the critic's liver!

The new Pelman paper, the Metropolitan Review, has gone out on the warpath in an article bearing the title of "The Great Film Bubble." It complains that the public has been invited "within the past few weeks" to subscribe to fresh film projects in an already overloaded market, and goes on to declare that no warning has been uttered because "practically everyone connected, or even conversant, with the film Industry—and therefore in a position to give the public the real facts—has an axe to grind, which prevents any approach to frankness. Capitalist, director, and Press form a vicious circle, from which no news except good news is ever issued."

* * *

If this is the best contribution that the new Review can make to the situation of the motion-picture Industry, it would be better advised, in my opinion, to leave it alone. Where and what are the new flotations made during the "past few weeks"? And is it not aware that even inside the Industry itself there is one newspaper which tells the truth not only about bogus flotations, but about the bad pictures put out even by its own advertisers? Really, a newspaper issued by an educational organisation ought to be better informed even on such minor and remote subjects as the film Industry!

"MEGAPHONE."

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES No. V.—NETTA WESTCOTT

Netta Westcott, who has just finished playing the leading rôle in "In His Grip" for Gaumont, was on the stage for nine years before taking up film work. As understudy to Miss Vanbrugh, she played the latter's part in "The Land of Promise," with Dion Boucicault. She also played (with George Alexander) in "The Big Drum"; with Charles Hawtrey in "The Young Girls," and appeared for Miss Gladys Cooper in Barrie's sketch "Half an Hour." She also played leading parts in "The Knife," "Milestones" and "Trelawny of the Wells." She was playing in "The Big Drum," when Gladys Cooper's son was taken suddenly ill, and in consequence Miss Westcott took over the part—learning it in the train en route for Manchester. At the age of 14 she went to the Academy of Dramatic Art. Alfred Sutro saw her and gave her a part in his play "The Perplexed Husband." "This was my real start," Miss Westcott explained, "and from that time I think I may say I have never looked back." Her film debut was by way of "Lady Windermere's Fan" for the Ideal.

Miss Westcott recalls many interesting stage reminiscences. One, which she states she will never forget, concerned the suffragette riots. She was playing in "The Land of Promise," when a party of militants attempted to storm the stage. Miss Westcott was struck by a missile, but managed to "carry on" until the fall of the curtain, in spite of an injury which made her take to her bed a few days later.

THEIR IDEAL MY IDEAL DIRECTOR

by IRENE ROOKE

I shall treat the subject seriously as it is a very serious subject to me.

First, he must have unbounded patience—oh, what patience. He must have imagination, for he must catch his artistes' attention at any hour of the day, and inspire one to act emotions which are not led up to or prepared for. My ideal director gives each artiste, whether old or young, pretty or ugly—the "butler" or the "star"—his heart whole interest.

It is the director who does this, that pieces together what seems a hotch-potch of scenes and people and turns out a satisfying whole. To go into a studio always reminds me of a jig-saw puzzle—then comes my ideal director, each piece he takes, and with care and imagination manipulates it into its place, and lo, the puzzle resolves itself into a wonderful picture.

Then he has sympathy—sympathy to feel what the artiste is feeling—as well as a critical eye to see what the artiste is doing. When his imagination is met with coldness he must goad, when it is met with emotion he must control. Never is he cold or uncontrolled himself.

I wonder whether directors realise how much it depends on them just what the artiste gives. Every director extracts a different quality of work from the artiste.

My ideal director extracts the best I have to give—and a great unbounded delight in giving.

And last—but not least—my director is human, and possesses—a "little Mary" which prompts him to remember that not even artistes can live without food.

by SYDNEY H. FOLKER

The director who comes nearest to my ideal is the one who has been trained through the business via the camera or as an assistant to a director; an artiste naturally feels more confidence in such a man. But he must have the following qualifications as well:

He must be a miniature Napoleon—firm, quick to make up his mind, thorough in all his plans. (Plans properly made avoid much waiting around which is so trying to the artiste.)

He should have the same gift as a first-class schoolmaster: that of imparting his thoughts quickly and clearly to others.

He should also have a strong parental point, for we artistes are mere children in his hands and our work on the screen can be made or marred by him. How much good work has been ruined by the hasty temper of a director, when just a moment's patience or a few kindly encouraging words out of ear-shot of the others, would have obtained the necessary result?

In my seven years kinematograph experience as actor, assistant director and technical director I have formed the opinion that the director who raves and shouts does so in a vain endeavour to camouflage his own ignorance.

YOUR CORNER

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

I am a subscriber to The Motion Picture Studio, and I wonder if you would mind me making a suggestion which I think would assist a great many artistes in general?

Could you find enough space to publish the dates and names of forthcoming trade shows? It would help the paper as well as the artistes. Most of us have been in films and never get to see the Trade show, as tickets are very seldom sent to artistes.—FRED. A. THATCHER.

[This has already been done, forthcoming Trade Shows of British pictures appearing under "The Week's Diary."—ED.]

I have been very interested in the correspondence in your paper referring to the needs of a club for "Kinema Studio Workers." This to my mind is a thing that is greatly wanted, and the sooner it can be arranged the better for all concerned.

I hardly agree with one of your correspondents that members of the club would not congregate for "Social Intercourse," but in order "to air their grievances." All clubs have these members, and I hardly think the Kinema Club would be the exception; however I am sure they would be of the minority, and the "Grieved ones should be left to grieve alone." I shall be pleased to do anything I can to help to the success of this club, and I feel convinced that if it can be run on a good business basis, it would be a great asset to all those connected with the Industry.—IVO. DAWSON.

In regard to the recent query in your "Do you Know" column, the difference between a Kine-dramatist and a scenario-writer is exactly the same as the difference between a Director and a Producer—that is to say, principally a difference of euphemy. If there is any other difference it is that the one is an individual who writes dramas for the Kinema, and the other an individual who plans and arranges continuities. In regard to your proposals for a Kinema Club, I think this, if properly organised, would be of the greatest assistance to all concerned in the artistic side of film production. We have few opportunities to meet and talk shop—a process which, conducing as it would to free interchange of ideas, would undoubtedly be greatly beneficial not only to the individual artist, but to the welfare of the Trade as a whole. I am ready and willing to give to the furthering of such a scheme all the help that lies in my power. I will venture to conclude this somewhat rambling epistle with a word of congratulation on The Motion Picture Studio, which is certainly the finest thing of its kind we have seen in this country, and seems to me likely to be of tremendous help to all connected with studio work. I consider the feature which you entitle "The Pulse of the Studio" particularly useful.—WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT.

Having read with interest the letter from Thomas Walters in your issue of July 2, may I have a little space?

As to why English productions fail to compete with American, to start with we want to find the cause. I will tell you! First, the producer, who is really a stage play producer; secondly, the directors, who are afraid to finance; and, thirdly, having famous actors and actresses (these people know their own particular kind of business, an' that is all), and famous society people for leads. It is the society name that directors want. Not the artiste.

The sooner directors realise that a film production depends upon the producer and a financial standing the better. Pay him a decent salary and let him find the natural artiste, then you will get the production.—SAM NICHOLSON.

HYPNOTISM IN

by GEOFFREY are in any way related to the miraculous or supernatural. The lengthy accounts which have recently appeared about them in nearly every daily newspaper may possibly have contributed to the creation of a few views of this kind.

That hypnotism, which also includes hypnotic suggestion, can be a most useful auxiliary in film producing I have proved again and again. Not, of course, regularly, but as an occasional aid to stimulate and improve latent powers which would not demonstrate themselves in the ordinary way. The results of the various experiments which I have frequently made upon many subjects, both male and female, more than satisfy me as to the wonderful and supreme possibilities for film production. The attitudes and emotions the subjects have registered under hypnotic control are far more superior in refinement, sublimity of gesture, purity and beauty of countenance—even surpassing the wonderful works ever executed by any of our greatest artists.

In one of my recent productions I hypnotised an actor who played the part of a villain, with the result that he gave a most realistic exhibition of savagery. In another film I mesmerised a duck. This was a most restless and frenzied bird, in fact a regular flapper and, like

Were the ancient Greek injunction "Know Thyself" an enjoinder of modern application, how few of us would be able to respond to it. How many people, for example, are aware of the elementary truth that the human body is, in effect, an electric battery and that its communication with the nerves is the cause of all sensation and feeling. And, furthermore, that these communications and influences are so unrestrictive and, at the same time, so powerful that they may be transferred from one person to another, not merely by the exercise of will, but as a natural order of things, whenever two persons come into contact.

That is the secret—if secret there be—of the science or art, call it what you will, of hypnotism and mesmerism. All eyes emit magnetic influence, more or less, and when this, and other elementary principles of hypnotism are more generally understood, the solutions of many problems which have mystified and awed the ignorant throughout the ages will be solved for all time and the world be rendered happier thereby.

I feel that it is necessary for me to have entered into this preamble before giving my views on the employment of hypnotism in film producing, for I wish to disabuse the readers of The Motion Picture Studio of all ideas that my powers

Where they are and ————— ————— what they are doing

Sydney Paxton has a principal part in "Bluff" (Hardy).

Henry Vibart has just finished work with Ideal in "Sonia."

Lord Landassyle makes an appearance in the cast of "Bluff."

Harding Steerman has an important rôle in "Bluff" (Hardy).

Evelyn Brent has been engaged to appear in Sinclair Hill's next Stoll production.

Clive Brook is also appearing in Sinclair Hill's next Stoll production.

Leonard Robson is one of the members of the cast of "Bluff" (Hardy).

Geoffrey Malins is producing "Bluff" for the Hardy Film Company.

Lewis Willoughby is playing the lead in "Bluff" for the Hardy Film Company.

Albert Brouett, from the Pavilion, London, has been booked to appear in "Bluff" (Hardy).

Geoffrey Barkas is responsible for the photography in "All Sorts and Conditions of Men."

Marjorie Hume appears in "Bluff" (Hardy).

Ward MacAllister is playing in "General John Regan" with Stoll's.

W. A. (Billy) Bowman has been working with U.C.I. in London

Colette Brettle appears in the Haigh Serial (Frederick White).

Kenneth Graeme is personally directing his new series of two-reel subjects.

Harry Worth has just finished work in a Grand Guignol film for screen plays.

Don Meredith is playing in a series of comedies by the Kenneth Graeme Company.

Edward R. Gordon is directing for the Frederick White Company at the Teddington Studios.

Davidson's latest film, "The Fifth Form at St. Dominic's" has at last been completed, and the company is closing down for a short time.

William J. Elliott is responsible for the adaptation and scenario of "General John Regan," which Harold Shaw is directing for Stoll's.

Geoffrey Benstead is assisting with the direction of the Haigh serial (Frederick White Company).

Adrian Johnson, the well-known scenario writer, who recently came back from Italy, has returned to the Continent for a short time. Mr. Johnson's visit is more in the nature of a holiday than a business visit, and after a few weeks in France he will return to England.

Bert Darley has just returned to London from Holland, where he has been playing the rôle of a musical genius for Docrat-Pratt, in the Granger-Binger film "Laughter and Tears." Immediately on his return he commenced work with Minerva Films, for whom he is playing lead in a five-reel comedy. This was Darley's second visit to Holland, for he played lead in the Anglo-Hollandia production "Hidden Life," which is now being seen in England.

Frank Dane has been playing William, Prince of Orange, in "The Black Tulip" for Granger-Binger. The Burgomaster of Haarlem, who was present at the taking of the scenes in the interior of the old Haarlem Town Hall, complimented Mr. Dane on his make up, and said that he might have stepped from the painting which hangs in the Town Hall.

Willy Clarkson is providing all the costumes, wigs, hats and properties for "The Glorious Adventure." To ensure accuracy he is making researches and getting information from the best authorities and books. Clarkson has been costuming films for the last few years, and dressed the whole of "Sixty Years a Queen," "Jane Shore," "John Halifax," "Tinker Tailor," "Breed of the Treshams," and "The Game of Life," which has not yet been released.

Captain Harry Lambart, the managing director and director-general of productions of the Lambart Films, Ltd., is at Althorp, Northampton, the seat of Earl Spencer, directing scenes for his film "Romance and Reality." Captain Lambart has obtained permission from Lord Spencer to utilise several of the rooms in his mansion at Althorp, amongst them being those occupied, only recently, by King George, Queen Mary, and the Prince of Wales, together with his famous Picture Gallery, containing several original Van Dycks and Gainsboroughs.

Henry Victor has gone over to play juvenile lead in the new Granger-Binger film "Bluff" which Frankland A. Richardson is directing. His rôle in this production gives him scope for some strong emotional acting, whilst there are also some scenes in lighter vein. Victor is an old-young screen juvenile, having played in England, Holland and Spain for the past seven or eight years, some of his best remembered pictures being "She," opposite Alice Delysia; "The Picture of Dorian Grey"; "Calvary," opposite Malvina Longfellow (just released); "The Dreams of Avarice," opposite Joyce Dearsley, and "As God Made Her," opposite Mary Odette.

FILM PRODUCTION

H. MALINS

most flappers, required a great deal of controlling! In thirty seconds I managed to render it so rigid that I was able to take a close-up of it without the slightest difficulty. Many people saw me do this and can testify that the only thing in the nature of quackery about the whole business was the indignant vociferation of the irate bird when he recovered consciousness! Only to-day, I mesmerised several animals in a series of comedies I am producing for Phillips' Films Ltd.

I am convinced that there is a definite future for the employment of hypnotism in film or theatrical production and that Du Maurier's account of how Trilby was thus "inspired" to genius by Svengali has certainly been paralleled in real life. Of course, Svengali was a villain, but nature has guarded against the evil use of hypnotism by making it impossible for anyone to be hypnotised unless they first voluntarily agree to be controlled. Personally, I am of the opinion that there is a good deal of truth in the rumour, which says that the wonderful result obtained by D. W. Griffiths in "Broken Blossoms" and other screen masterpieces have been contributed to by his employment of hypnotic suggestion.

It may surprise the readers of The Motion Picture Studio to know that the most difficult persons to mesmerise are those of weak intelligence. The more imaginative and intelligent a person is the easier it is for me to get them under control, and it is possibly for this reason that women often make such good subjects.

A point that should be made particularly clear in an article of this kind is that the attempted employment of hypnotism by an inexperienced or incompetent demonstrator is likely to be very hazardous. Such a tyro would most likely lose his head with the result that the subject would get out of control.

I may say that during my service in France as principal Government Kinetographer of the war, that my powers were in frequent request for the purpose of hypnotising wounded and shell-shocked soldiers, who had to undergo operations. It might be thought that hypnotic control would be deleterious to the subjects, but I am of the opinion that they cannot suffer in any way if they are carefully awakened, and the suggestions made during the trance entirely disseminated.

The whole question necessitates a new outlook in film production, and it remains to be seen whether the future will endorse the principles evolved. I, certainly shall always practice it, with, of course the artiste's consent, where and when I think it is necessary.

LIGHTING A STUDIO SET

A REPLY TO WILLIAM SHENTON

by M. P. PROUT

The artificial lighting of studio sets is so unsatisfactory that it is always interesting to read anything that purports to lay down any definite ideas on present practice.

One great fault with the whole kinema producing trade has ever been the difficulty of finding the right people to do the work they want. When therefore it first became desirable to light sets by artificial light it was perhaps natural that they should call in everybody but those who had any knowledge of the special qualities of light that photography demands—and will have—if it is to be reasonably good. It was left entirely to those who had some knowledge of electricity—a science which does not cover any appreciable portion of the subject of photographic lighting.

The lighting of to-day is a direct descendant of this original scheme and is still obviously in the hands of those who are unable to cope with photographic lighting requirements.

If one examines the numerous dark studio stills, which fill the pages of the trade papers, one notices that in practically all of them there is either an absence or a perversion of modelling. The features of very good-looking artistes are not faithfully recorded and there results a portrait which is neither a good likeness of the particular artiste nor a pleasing picture of anyone else. This is, of course, equally true of the moving pictures. The same fault has been emphatically commented upon by those whose business it is to make posters from stills. This great fault is unavoidable by present methods, but is, I am convinced, avoidable by a change of method.

Dealing now with Wm. Shenton's system, he starts with two distinct groups of lights. Now, while it is extremely doubtful whether two distinct groups of lights can be placed in any positions (some distance apart) without seriously affecting the modelling, there is no possible room for doubt that whatever the system of lighting and whatever other lights are used and wherever placed, the "dead front" lights will effectually spoil all modelling—always has and always will. A little consideration will show why this must be so. I will try to explain as briefly as possible this fundamental rule in photographic catoptries.

Premising that objects are only photographable by reason of the light which they reflect (directly or indirectly) from the source or sources of light to the camera, it must be borne in mind that no surface (such as the human face, how-soever carefully it be distempered with "make-up") will be completely diffusive. There will always be a preponderance of light in that direction which obeys the well-known law of the equality of the angles of incidence and reflection and extending all round to a degree depending on the nature of the surface, but which, though it gradually diminishes in intensity, yet extends quite appreciably in the case of the human face to at least 10 degrees in every direction. When therefore any of the planes of the face happen to lie in such a direction that these (imperfectly diffused) reflected rays reach the camera—and this is bound to occur continuously when the lights are near the camera—these planes, even though they differ by as much as 20 degrees, will fuse together and spoil the modelling. This may sound theoretical and difficult to follow, but can easily be tried by anyone and will be found fundamental and practical.

Another disadvantage which results from having lights near the camera is that the reflexes in the eyes come into a portion of the eye so as to spoil the expression. This also is important, for however willing an artiste is to have her face plastered up, she will not tolerate any diffusive material in her eyes, which remain as mirrors in which the lighting student can read all he wishes of the follies committed in studios he has never seen—even to giving the lamps their correct German names.

Eyes without reflexes look dead, but they should never be allowed to approach the nearest spot of the eyeball to the camera (which in the case of a person looking at the camera will be the centre of the pupil), for not only do they thereby spoil the expression in the eyes, but they are for the reason I have explained above, the sure and certain concomitants of great loss or perversion of modelling in the features.

Again—"No top light should be used." I don't see why not. The preponderating light in outdoor work, and in daylight kine. studios is top light and—more instructive still—if Mr. Shenton would visit one of the thousands of daylight portrait studios dotted all over the world, and used by those whose living depend upon turning out good likenesses, he would find that practically speaking all of them use overhead lighting and nothing else all the time. Further, has he never noticed that the visual illumination of actual night-time interiors is largely modified and greatly improved by the presence of a white ceiling, which forms an almost ideal top light? In my opinion the chief reason why toplights have been discarded in American studios is because they did not understand how to use them.

I should like to say more on this important and interesting but inexhaustible subject, but space forbids. I have been very interested in W. Shenton's article and I hope he will believe that my gratitude is at least as great as my difference of opinion.

STUDIO FINANCE

NEW COMPANIES.

AUTOKINEMATICS, LTD. (175,299).—Private company. Registered June 21. Capital £16,500 in 15,000 preferred ordinary shares of £1 and 30,000 deferred ordinary shares of 1s. To acquire from G. S. James and others the exclusive benefit of certain inventions relating to the more efficient use of cinematograph apparatus and films and particularly the adaptation of same for advertising purposes, etc. The provisional directors are: J. E. Ward, 44, Bedford Row, W.C.; G. H. E. Goodman, 44, Bedford Row, W.C.1. Remuneration: £250 each per annum (ch. £200 extra) and a percentage of the profits. Secretary: A. G. Emblon. Registered office: 24, Holborn, E.C.1.

G. AND J. KIRBY, LTD.—Private company. Registered May 10. Capital, £5,000 in £1 shares. To take over the performing rights in "Where the Rainbow Ends," and to carry on the business of manufacturers and producers of films, etc., and to adopt an agreement with G. T. Kirby and J. R. Kirby. The permanent directors are: G. T. Kirby, 5, Speenham Road, S.W.9; J. R. Kirby, 110, Tulse Hill, S.W.2 (joint managers with £10 each per week as remuneration from November 7, 1921). Qualification of permanent directors, 200 shares; of other directors 500 shares. Registered office: 53, Doughty Street, John Street, Bedford Row, W.C.1.

DANIEL CHINERY, LTD.—Private company. Registered May 25. Capital, £1,000 in £1 shares. To carry on the business of photographers, photographic artists and printers, manufacturers of, and directors in, photographic apparatus and chemicals, cinematograph film producers, etc. The subscribers (each with one share) are: C. W. D. Chinery, 3, Silverton Road, W.6, automobile engineer; Mrs. F. M. Chinery, 3, Silverton Road, W.6; C. W. D. Chinery signs as "Director." Qualification, 50 shares. Remuneration as fixed by the company. Solicitors: Benham, Barrett, Synnott and Wade, Suffolk House, Laurence Pountney Hill, E.C. Registered office: 13, Eccleston Street, S.W.

SEMPER NOVO FILMS, LTD.—Registered July 5. Capital, £11,000 in 10,000 preference shares of £1 each and 20,000 ordinary shares of 1s. each. The preference shares are entitled to a preferential cumulative 20 per cent. of the profits, and also to a further 20 per cent. of the surplus profits remaining thereafter, and the ordinary shares are entitled to the residue. Objects: To adopt an agreement with Baron de Ott, and to carry on the business of artists photographers, colour photographers, colour, varnish, solvent, celluloid and film manufacturers, cinematographers, film renters, etc. The minimum cash subscription is 7 shares. The first directors are: J. G. F. Greville, 59, Fairmount Road, Brixton Hill, S.W.2; Dr. M. J. Houghton, 144, Harley Street, W.; S. Fawns, 71, Onslow Square, S.W.7; Baron de Ott, 12, Thistle Grove, South Kensington, S.W.10. Qualification: £25. Registered office: 7, New Square, Lincoln's Inn, W.C.2.

MORTGAGES, CHARGES AND SATISFACTIONS.

R.T.A. PICTURES, LTD.—Issues between May 19 and June 9, 1921, of debentures totalling £1,100, parts of a series already registered.

LETTERING SPECIALIST

is open to undertake one or two commissions for special film work

G. T. SHEARMAN, Bentinck Road, Nottingham.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF COLOUR-PICTURES

by WILLIAM T. CRESPIAL

It has often been said that no one inventor ever constructed a machine in its final and perfected form. This is particularly true of natural colour photography as applied to moving pictures. Many and varied have been the ways invented to obtain results, and several thousand patents have been granted both here and abroad. Yet but few of them are really workable from a commercial point of view. Of the several enterprises that have at various times entered the struggle for supremacy, the Prizma process alone has stood the severe test of public approval. It is now about three years since William V. D. Kelley successfully completed his process for obtaining actual colour pictures by the subtractive process. With this new method all the colours are visible on the film, each picture being an exact production of the original photograph. The film can be projected from any standard machine at the normal rate of speed without attachments of any kind.

Having got so far, Mr. Kelley then set about perfecting the all important photographic camera. Up to that time all colour pictures had been taken with a camera that had a technical error known as fringing. It is in reality lack of registration on the film of quick moving objects. For example, let us suppose we are photographing a person three-quarters length. As long as our model stays fairly still everything would be all right. But should there be a quick movement of the hand, such as waving or removing the hat, then would appear the trouble called fringing, and on the positive film the hand would appear red and green.

The same effect is sometimes noticeable in black and white motion pictures, but it is represented by a monotone blur and, therefore, not objectionable. So, therefore, all subjects to be photographed in colour have to be carefully selected with a thought to movement. This was naturally a great handicap to the photographer, who had to resort to various ways and means of avoiding the covering up quick movements when photographing his picture. Dramatic productions were then discussed and attempted on a small scale. Three one-reel pictures were made, which were perfect as far as colour and reindition was concerned, but they demonstrated very clearly that dramas on a large scale could not be attempted until a camera was made that would permit the photographing of action. It was found that the artistes could not successfully carry their parts when their action was controlled to eliminate fringing, and because of this stories were chosen containing a minimum amount of action—a condition that could not be tolerated for more than a short reel.

To-day we have a camera for Mr. Blackton's production of "The Glorious Adventure" that answers all requirements for dramatic action. With the new camera it is as easy to photograph a bird in flight as it is to photograph it close up. This is accomplished by the use of a device in the camera that imparts a perfect division of the photographed image. The image is divided in such a manner that the red, orange image and the green, blue image are both recorded upon the negative film at exactly the same time. So, therefore, whatever the action, everything, both colour and movement, is recorded in perfect synchronism. The camera photographs at the regular speed of 16 pictures per second, as compared to 32 per second on the old camera.

Another tremendous advantage made possible by the invention is that scenes can now be photographed by electric light. This, of course, has been tried for years, but with little success. No more light than that used for black and white productions is necessary. I have every reason for believing that the entire production of Mr. Blackton's super photo-play, "The Glorious Adventure," will reveal that the new process registers the colour perfectly. The first scenes taken during the last week show not even the slightest flaw.

tive are transferred to the positive film, which is developed and treated so that it automatically absorbs the proper dyes selectively.

By the projection of the completed positive film, nature in her colours is recreated on the screen, not only the more striking colours being shown, but also the delicate tints, tones, and blends as they appear to the human eye.

A Prizma film is a standard size motion picture film, and can be run on any standard projection machine anywhere, without requiring special attachments of any kind, or special training for the operator. Prizma films are projected in exactly the same manner as black and white films.

MAKING UP FOR COLOUR FILMS

There is a widespread interest among player folk in the proper make-up to be used in colour films. William T. Crespihal has supplied this information to all the members of the cast of "The Glorious Adventure"; and we are able to enlighten our readers on this subject through the courtesy of Mr. Crespihal and Mr. Blackton.

"However you appear in the mirror is how you will appear on the screen by the Prizma colour process devised for Mr. Blackton's production," is the general statement made by Mr. Crespihal to the artistes.

According to the colour camera specialist, the difference between make-up for black and white photography and for colour photography is that for the former the artist makes up in monotone, barring all colour, and for colour photography in the colours of nature, such as the artist uses on the stage.

The black and white film is not sensitive to red. The artist in making up for the black and white usually uses a dull yellow facial covering, except on the lips. If rouge were used on the face, it would come out on the black and white negative like a blotch.

In colour photography the colouring of hair, eyes, cheeks and lips comes out exactly as seen in the mirror.

The colour is important also in the psychology of dramatic action, and in suggesting character. Colour brings out the contrasts and emphasises emotions. For example, in "The Glorious Adventure" the hero has a healthy, clear skin; the villain, a sunburnt complexion; an unscrupulous lawyer is pale; the heroine is pink, white and dainty; the adventuress is highly coloured. It is all done subtly, but nevertheless emphatically.

HOW COLOUR FILM IS MADE

The eye of the photographic camera is the lens. All objects viewed through blue coloured glasses will appear blue to the human eye, because only the blue rays of light are filtered through, and those of other colours are excluded. The same result is had if the coloured glass or filter is placed so that it will intercept the rays of light reaching the plate or film in a photographic camera.

Now if successive pictures are taken behind blue, red, green, and orange filters respectively, the three primary colours are recorded, and these, in suitable combination, reproduce all colours.

Prizma Natural Colour Motion Pictures are produced on films in a manner similar to that of making the usual black and white negatives—but the film is rendered sensitive to colour by special emulsions, and the filters of the required colours are successively interposed between the successive exposures. The negatives when developed appear to be black and white only, but the density varies between the respective pictures according to the recorded colour values differing from each other.

Heretofore one of the greatest obstacles encountered in colour cinematography has been the difficulty of reproducing rapid movements of actors or objects without the objectionable defect of colour fringing appearing on the screen due to the different colours having been separately recorded in alternate succession.

This has now been entirely overcome by the latest types of Prizma Cameras, specially designed for J. Stuart Blackton's production "The Glorious Adventure," which simultaneously photograph the several complementary colours in each picture.

The Prizma processes of natural colour photography were developed by William V. D. Kelley, technical adviser of Prizma Incorporated, who has been a student and investigator in the field of colour motion photography for many years. By the processes invented by Mr. Kelley and his staff of experimenters, all scenes are photographed in nature's colours. The colour records photographed in the nega-

Camera Bargains—Largest selection of professional and topical instruments in London, all makers—English, American and Continental. Write stating exact requirements, special quotations post free, or call and inspect our stock, Cash or Easy Payment Terms. Apparatus accepted in exchange, Strict approval terms willingly.
THE KINEMATOGRAH EXCHANGE,
81, Aldersgate Street, E.C.1.

TO PRODUCERSPORTABLE PROJECTOR (NEW)

for SALE. Useful for editing and cutting films. Can be used on any lighting circuit. Will sell at £15 (nearly half usual retail price). Write to

ADRIAN BRUNEL,
19, Randolph Crescent, Mai 'a Va'e, W.9.

REGINALD NUGENT

Valet to King Charles
in

"The Glorious Adventure."

Address: "Ashdown," Middle Lane,
Crouch End, N.8. Phone: 1567 Hornsey.

ALL THE GREAT
ARTISTES

are included in our real Photo-postcard series of famous Kinema Stars

Send your photos for this purpose to

J. BEAGLES & Co., Ltd.
9-11, Little Britain, E.C. 2.

IS THE ART DIRECTOR A NECESSARY EVIL?

by L. DAWSON,

Art Director, Famous Players-Lasky British Producers.

One of the chief reasons given for the failure of the British film industry to keep pace with the progress of American competition has been lack of sufficient capital to carry on its enterprise on a commensurate scale of lavishness in the matter of production.

Directors have been forced to temper their creative ardour by such considerations as tiresome problems in £ s. d. To do them justice, economy for them has been a matter of necessity, not of choice.

Take, for instance, the management of that department which should be responsible for the designing, construction and dressing of the "sets."

The director may rightly argue that the majority of picturegoers know as little about nice things as he does himself. But a Buhl cabinet in a Jacobean dining-room will tend to upset the equilibrium of the connoisseur and seriously detract from any pleasure that we might otherwise experience in the action of the story.

The American industry has been quick to realise a sense of responsibility in this connection. Every American studio has an art director on the staff, whose duty it is to see that every production is as artistically correct as his department can make it. It will possibly be of interest to other firms producing pictures in this country to learn something of the methods employed at the Islington Studio of the F. P.-L. British Producers.

Let us suppose that a drawing-room set is needed for a new picture. The director confers with the Art Department and briefly outlines the type of thing he needs for the requirements of his story. A sketch is then prepared and submitted for approval.

In the case of an elaborate setting which may present certain difficulties in the matter of lighting or the setting up of the cameras, a model is made in cardboard or prepared in plaster by the Plastering Department. If the design receives the director's "O.K." the working plans and scale drawings are then placed in the hands of the carpenters, and the set is constructed of the best procurable materials.

In the painting of the "sets," we are giving careful study in the selection of colours and their toning. It has been found on occasion that better photography will be secured if the upper panellings and columns of a room are somewhat darker than the lower portions. By this graduating and the judicious blending of the shades employed we achieve better lighting effects and that subtle quality known as "atmosphere."

The "dressing" of all more luxurious "sets" is always based on a careful study of style and period. Columns, windows, and panelling, are all designed to this important end. The mouldings are strictly in character with the general ensemble and are all specially designed and carried out in the studio workshops.

The camera is pitiless in detecting any cheapness in the matter of textures, so we make it a principle never to economise in the matter of curtains and hangings, which are made of the richest damasks, silks and brocades.

Most of the furniture used on the "sets" is hired from such stores as specialise in period stuff. Curiously enough, we experience less difficulty in procuring this type of thing than in trivialities which are often necessary as the finishing touch in a satisfactory ensemble.

A Typical Example of Art-Decoration at F.P.-L.B.P.'s Islington Studio

The Biggest Successes have BENJAMIN COSTUMES PERSONAL SUPERVISION GUARANTEED in every detail. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

AUTHORS AND SCREEN RIGHTS OPPOSITION TO PUBLISHERS' NEW DEMANDS

At the last meeting of the Kinematograph Committee of the Authors' Society the question of the claims of Dramatic Managers and Publishers of magazines to have shares in the film rights of the works they produced in book serial or dramatic form was discussed. The Committee is composed of Edgar Jepson (Chairman), Arthur Applin, Kenelm Foss, W. L. George, Justin Huntly McCarthy, John Pollock, Arthur Shirley and Eliot Stannard.

The Committee drew the attention of authors to the fact that certain publishers, dramatic managers, and magazine editors, both in Great Britain and the United States, are trying to obtain a share in the kinematograph rights of an author's work to which they have no claim whatever.

This attempt frequently takes the blackmailing form of refusing to publish a book or story, or produce a play unless they are given a share of the kinematograph rights of it. This should on every occasion be strenuously resisted. The kinematograph rights of a book or story are to-day often worth very much more than all the rest of the rights together.

The Committee pointed out that if one publisher or editor finds a book or story worth publishing, or a dramatic manager finds a play worth producing, others will, and it is far safer and more profitable to deal with publishers, editors and dramatic managers who are fairer and less grasping.

The Committee advises an author who finds his agent lending himself to this imposition to change that agent at once. The Society lays it down as one of the first principles of contracts that a publisher is entitled to a licence to publish a book in book form only, the kinema manufacturer to a licence to produce it on the films only, the dramatic manager to a licence to perform a play on the stage only. If authors do not resist this encroachment strenuously they will presently find publishers claiming not only a share of the kinematograph rights, but also of the dramatic and serial rights of their books.

The Secretary gave a long report of the position in the United States and the Committee considered the position was a very serious one, and supported the Secretary's view that the publisher should be used for book production, the dramatic manager for dramatic production, and the magazine proprietor for production in serial form.

The Committee considered it a dangerous precedent that anyone should be allowed to take a share in the film rights. If the author consented to the proposition in one case he would most probably be forced in time to consent to it in all cases when there would be little or nothing of the kinema rights left for himself.

The Secretary was instructed to write to the Authors' League of America and see whether it would not be possible for it to arrange for all their authors and dramatists to assign their kinema rights to the League. By this means the League should become a sort of clearing house between kinema manufacturers and authors, and the authors would be unable to hand over a share in their rights to others as they were bound to assign to the League.

It also discussed the question of English authors assigning their kinema rights to the Society to obtain the same security. Finally, the Committee went through at considerable length the list of kinema producing units, making the necessary alterations, additions and amendments.

HOW PRESS CRITICISM CAN HELP OR HINDER THE DIRECTOR

by NORMAN MACDONALD

Inasmuch as this is a most important subject and one which naturally must have a wide latitude of different thoughts from each and every British director, I merely offer this article from my own personal viewpoint.

Personally, I am very much in favour of Press criticism, whether it be complimentary or the reverse, but the criticism should be written with an artistic appreciation and thorough understanding of what exactly is right and what wrong in the production, an unbiased judgment from a man who knows and studies as far as possible the subject which he criticises, even if seeing it for the first time. Critics should always be welcome to all artistes as well as directors—even if what they say is scathing at times. It is through them that we can take notes of our bad as well as good points in a production, if even only by comparison with others.

One fault which I think might be somewhat eliminated by the critics in their remarks about British productions is the tendency to keep holding up some American film as a "framed work of art" or an "example of perfection" for the British director to copy.

This, in my opinion, is rather unfair and no doubt oftentimes discouraging.

Having myself produced for nearly six years in America I well know the system and facilities under which productions are made over there. True, that in our British studios we have not yet developed that splendid system, and thus are handicapped in getting results; but we are improving, so give us time.

Another fault of critics which is discouraging, no doubt, to directors, is the fact that they will often discover some very small trivial defect in the production and write this up in glaring letters to the detriment of the production as a whole, and possibly ignoring a much more important fault, which, if told, a conscientious director would appreciate, or at any rate should not kick.

I cannot see where a sincere criticism could hinder a director in any way, providing such criticism emanates from the heart and brain of the critic.

DON'T WORRY

THERE IS NO NEED TO

IF THE COSTUMES,
WIGS,
PROPS, etc.,

For Your PRODUCTION

are SUPPLIED BY

H. & M. Rayne,

115-119, WATERLOO RD., S.E.1

Phone: 7978 CENTRAL.

NOT MANY YEARS AGO

the Camera-man who used an Iris in front of his Lense was laughed at. That, of course, was before the advent of the

VINTEN CUT-OFF ATTACHMENTS

These have been fitted to every make of Camera for all the leading producing firms. With them no cut-off effect is impossible.

Get Particulars from

W. VINTEN

89-91, Wardour Street, W.1

Telephone: REGENT 2702.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for Kinematograph Productions. Phone—London Wall 7568

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Productions and Who is Working on Them

J. Stuart Blackton.

ADDRESS: Bush House, Aldwych.
 FILM: "The Glorious Adventure."
 DIRECTOR: J. Stuart Blackton.
 ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Clifford Grey.
 STAR: Lady Diana Manners.
 SCENARIST: Felix Orman.
 ART DIRECTOR: Almon C. Whiting.
 CAMERAMAN: Nicholas Mursuraea
 TYPE: Seven-reel drama.
 STAGE: Fourth week.

British and Colonial.

ADDRESS: Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
 FILM: "The Puppet Man."
 DIRECTOR: Frank Crane.
 STARS: Molly Adair, John Reid.
 SCENARIST: Cosmo Gordon Lennox.
 CAMERAMAN: I. Roseman.
 TYPE: Spectacular Circus drama.
 STAGE: Completed.

Broadwest.

ADDRESS: Walthamstow.
 FILM: "The Imperfect Lover."
 STAR: Violet Hopson and Stewart Rome.
 DIRECTOR: Walter West.
 ART DIRECTOR: Thomas Fleetwood.
 CAMERAMAN: A. G. Frenguelli.
 TYPE: Drama.
 STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "Vi of Smith's Alley."
 DIRECTOR: Walter West.

STARS: Violet Hopson, Cameron Carr.

SCENARISTS: J. B. Bertram Brown, Charles Barnet.
 CAMERAMAN: A. G. Frenguelli.
 TYPE: Domestic drama.
 STAGE: Completed.

FILM: "The Candy Man."
 STAR: Not east.

DIRECTOR: Not announced.
 SCENARIST: W. G. Clifford
 STAGE: Schedule—casting shortly.

George Clark.

ADDRESS: 47, Berner's Street, W.I.
 FILM: "The Bigamist."
 DIRECTOR: Guy Newall.
 STARS: Ivy Duke and Guy Newall.
 SCENARIST: Guy Newall.
 CAMERAMAN: Bert Ford.
 TYPE: Social drama.
 STAGE: Completed.

I. B. Davidson.

ADDRESS: Lea Bridge Road, Leyton.
 FILM: "The Fifth Form at St. Dominic's."
 DIRECTOR: A. E. Coleby.
 SCENARIST: A. E. Coleby.
 CAMERAMAN: D. P. Cooper.
 TYPE: School story.
 STAGE: Completed.

Famous Players-Lasky British Producers.

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.
 FILM: "Dangerous Lies" (Working title "Twice Wed.").

DIRECTOR: Paul Powell.
 STARS: Mary Glynn, David Powell.
 ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: R. J. Cullen.
 SCENARIST: Mary O'Connor.
 ART DIRECTOR: Leslie Dawson.
 CAMERAMAN: C. McDonnell.
 TYPE: Social drama.
 STAGE: Nearing completion.

FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."

DIRECTOR: Donald Crisp.
 ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Claude H. Mitchell.
 STAR: Donald Crisp.
 SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.
 STAGE: Third week.

Frederick White.

ADDRESS: Weir House, Teddington.
 FILM: "The Haigh Serial."
 DIRECTOR: Edward R. Gordon.
 ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Benstead.
 STAR: Ernest Haigh.
 SCENARIST: Edward R. Gordon.
 TYPE: Detective serial.
 STAGE: First week.

Gaumont.

ADDRESS: Shepherd's Bush.
 FILM: "Roses in the Dust."
 DIRECTOR: Captain Calvert.
 STARS: Iris Rowe, Gladys Mason.
 CAMERAMAN: Basil W. G. Emmott.
 SCENARIST: H. Morgan.
 STAGE: Third week.

Hardy Film Co.

ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W.I.
 FILM: "Bluff."
 STAGE: Casting.

Harma.

ADDRESS: Limes Grove, Croydon.
 FILM: (not titled).
 DIRECTOR: Bernard Dudley.
 STARS: Marjorie Villis and James Knight.
 CAMERAMAN: J. Mackenzie.
 TYPE: Comedy drama.
 STAGE: Fifth week.

Ideal

FILM: "Sonia."
 STARS: Evelyn Brent, Clive Brook.
 DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.
 SCENARIST: Denison Clift.
 CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.
 STAGE: Fifth week.
International Artists Films.
 ADDRESS: 52, Shaftesbury Avenue.
 STUDIO: B. & C. Studios, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

(Continued on page 15.)

SIDNEY
L. EATON,

KINEMATOGRAPHER,

3, LEBANON PARK MANSIONS,
T W I C K E N H A M.

Productions include:—

"Darby and Joan," "Westward Ho!"
 "Story of the Rosary," "Hobson's
 Choice," "Won by a Head," "Rodney
 Stone," "The Old Arm Chair," "Like-
 ness of the Night," "Croxley Master,"
 "Ships that Pass in the Night," etc., etc.

AT LIBERTY FOR
FIRST CLASS PRODUCTIONS.

STAR GREASE PAINT CO.

6d. per stick.

Any Colour
Giant Sticks
2/-

Carriage paid on Orders
of 3/-
and upwards

Judge for yourself as thousands now using
Star Paint. Try our special Cinema tin

Mai' Orders:

Arthur Ace, 51, Clapham Park Rd., London.

SOME NOTES ON STUDIO APPARATUS

Among the more enterprising of English apparatus manufacturers is the firm of W. Vinten, of Wardour Street. The machine shops in Urbanora House, which have been considerably extended since Kinemacolor apparatus was manufactured there, turn out work which is noted for accuracy, reliability, and, above all, originality of design.

In common with other firms, these shops were devoted during the war to work for various Government departments, and it was from a camera designed for the Air Ministry that the Vinten Model "C" Camera, familiar to all cameramen as "the up-to-date studio camera," was evolved. The many unique features found in it—the all-metal construction, the battery of four lenses, the patented tripod head, the shutter fade-out on the third speed of four pictures per turn in addition to the usual one and eight, the shutter indicator and single picture dial, the patented look-through by means of which the actual film can be watched while taking—these, and many other features, combine to form an ideal camera for studio work.

The Cut-off Attachments also maintain the same standard of originality as the camera. These attachments—which incidentally can be fitted to any other make of camera—are carried on a support arm, having a sliding column, to allow for different foci of lenses, and also to obtain a hard or soft cut-off. Bellows connect the column to the lens, and a clamping ring carries the various units, all of which have interchangeable fittings, which means that one or more may be used, and they may be mounted in any order.

The units comprise an iris, which gives a complete close-down without the usual separate blade (two forms of mask boxes, one for shaped masks, the other carrying four straight blades, which can be closed in to give a soft edge to the picture, or to cut off all but one corner or one side of the picture) and a very ingenious fitting, known as a double slide, which carries two sliding masks, and may be used for a square close, or, by changing the masks, for various shapes, including such things as stage curtain effects, or a full moon closing to a crescent, which, although not astronomically correct, is very effective.

Frequently, of course, it is necessary to close down out of centre with the picture, in which case the offset slide is clamped in position, a movement of a lever enabling the iris, or other unit to cover any part of the picture.

Another useful feature is that the masks are made, not in metal, but in thin wood fibre sheet, which can be cut by the operator to his requirements.

Although the Vinten camera does not require a tripod of the orthodox pattern—the rotary and tiltingheads are built solid with the camera—Mr. Vinten manufactures a very ingenious form of tripod, known as the Model "M," which is evidently finding a ready sale.

As with other Vinten apparatus, it is full of novel improvements. The tilting head embodies the same principle as is found in the Model "C" tilt—the camera swings about the lens centre, instead of from a point underneath. In the rotary, embodied in the mechanism for releasing the worm wheel is an adjustable friction, by means of which the camera may be swung round instantaneously, the worm remaining in mesh, so that a handle panoram may be continued without any further adjustment.

All the mechanism is totally enclosed, and an entirely new design of leg ensures absolute steadiness.

L. BENJAMIN & CO., 99, Middlesex St.,

Bishopsgate, E.1.

'Phone
London Wall
7568.

Kinematograph Costumier.
Naval & Military Outfitter

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

(Continued from page 14).

FILM: "The Night Hawk."
DIRECTOR: John Gliddon.
STARS: Malvina Longfellow, Henri de Vries.
SCENARIST: Gerard Ford Buckle.
CAMERAMAN: Will Howse.
STAGE: Starting.

Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate.

ADDRESS: Kew Bridge.
FILM: "The War at Wallaroo."
DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme.
STAR: Don Meredith.
TYPE: Comedy.
STAGE: Completed.

FILM: "M'Lord of the White Road."
DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme.
STAR: Don Meredith.
TYPE: Costume Play.
STAGE: Scheduled.

Master Films.

FILM: "The Marriage Lines."
DIRECTOR: Wilfred Noy.
STAR: Barbara Hoff.
SCENARIST: Wilfred Noy.
CAMERAMAN: Theodore Thumwood.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Completed.

Minerva Films.

ADDRESS: 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1.
FILM: "The Beggar's Syndicate."
DIRECTOR: Adrian Brunel.
STARS: Mary Patterson, Bert Darley, Crispin Hay.
SCENARIST: Adrian Brunel.
CAMERAMAN: Frank Hoffmann.
TYPE: Comedy drama.
STAGE: Finishing.

Progress.

ADDRESS: Shoreham.
FILM: "Moth and Rust."
DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.
STARS: Sybil Thorndike, Malvina Longfellow, and Langhorne Burton.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Completed.

FILM: "Mayor of Casterbridge."
STAR: Fred Groves.
DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
STAGE: Third week.

Samuelson.

ADDRESS: Warton Hall, Isleworth.
FILM: Title not announced.
DIRECTOR: Rex Wilson.
STAGE: Starting shortly.

Seal.

ADDRESS: Prince's Studio, Kew Bridge.
FILM: "Dick's Fairy."
DIRECTOR: Bert Wynne.
STARS: Hargreaves Munsell, Joan Griffith, and Albert Brantford.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: John Wyndham.

SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.
CAMERAMAN: L. Protheroe.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Completed.

Screen Plays.

ADDRESS: Cranmer Court, Clapham S.W.
FILM: Grand Guignol series.
DIRECTORS: Fred Paul and Jack Raymond.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Rodwell.
TYPE: Short melodramas.
STAGE: Producing one a week.

Sinclair Hill Productions.

ADDRESS: Jay's Agency, Wardour Street, London, W.
FILM: Comedy.
DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: S. D. Bra-hame.
TYPE: Straight Comedy.
STAGE: Scheduled.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Cricklewood.
FILM: "The Fruitful Vine."
DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.
CAMERAMAN: Jermaine Berger.
STAGE: Fourth week.

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Arlodro, Hyde, London.

ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmopho, Ealux.

B. P. FILMS, LTD., Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clapham Park.

BRITISH ACTORS' FILM CO., Melbourne Road, Bushey, Herts. 'Phone: Bushey Heath 259—British Actors.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow, E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH ART FILMS, CO., LTD., Princes Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford. 'Phone: Chiswick 574.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PICTURES, LTD., Tuilcrie Street, Hackney Road, London, E.2. 'Phone: Dalston 3454.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Portsmouth Road, Esher, Surrey. 'Phone: Esher 325.

CAIRNS FILM CO., Watcombe Hall, Torquay. 'Phone: Torquay 886—Cairnsfilm, Torquay.

CENTRAL FILM PRODUCING CO., Eel Pie Island, Twickenham.

DAVIDSON, I. B., 58, Lea Bridge Road, Leyton, E.10. 'Phone: Walthamstow 634.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

FREDERICK WHITE, LTD., Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston, 1617.

GAITY PRODUCTIONS, Wadden New Road, Croydon.

GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolougue, 'Phone London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland., London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exelugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012.

HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16, Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.

IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Idefilms, Borehamwood.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Cricklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MIDLAND ACTORS' FILM CO., 76, Broad Street, Birmingham.

MINERVA FILM CO., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

NEW AGENCY FILM CO., 115a, Ebury Street, London, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 6856.

PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton 2956.

SEAL PRODUCTIONS, Princes Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford. 'Phone: Chiswick 574.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpic, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1933—Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & CO., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.

WILSONIAN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD. Secretary, W. J. Crook, 547, Wands-worth Road, S.W.

ZODIAC FILMS, Windsor Studios, Bromley Road, Catford. 'Phone: Lee Green, 948.

FILM: "The Prey of the Dragon."
DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.
STAR: Victor McLaglen.
CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "General John Regan."
DIRECTOR: Harold Shaw.
STAGE: Nearing Completion.

FILM: "The Hound of the Baskervilles."
DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.
STARS: Eille Norwood, Catrina Campbell.
SCENARIST: W. J. Elliott.
CAMERAMAN: Jermaine Berger.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Completed.

FILM: "The Pointing Finger."
DIRECTOR: George Ridgwell.
STARS: Milton Rosmer, Madge Stuart.
CAMERAMAN: Al Moses.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Finishing.

H. W. Thompson.

ADDRESS: B. & C. studio, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
FILM: "The Wonderful Year."
DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.
STARS: Marie Odette, Lionelle Howard.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Grace Ross.
SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.
EDITOR: John Miller.
CAMERAMAN: Frank Canham.
ASSISTANT CAMERAMAN: Pat Quinn.
TYPE: Light French Drama.
STAGE: Fifth week.

Welsh Pearson.

ADDRESS: Craven Park, Willesden
FILM: "Squibs."
DIRECTOR: George Pearson.
STARS: Betty Balfour, Fred Groves
SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.
CAMERAMAN: Emile Lauste.
TYPE: Comedy.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Zodiac.

FILM: "Walter in the Studio."
STAR: Walter Forde.
TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.
STAGE: First week.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

You cannot do better than
by placing your orders with

L. BENJAMIN & CO.

99, Middlesex Street, E.1.

'Phone—London Wall 7568.

3

to read
and enjoy

To every true lover of the Movies these three journals are absolutely indispensable, if he or she is to understand and enjoy the films.

PICTUREGOER

Monthly - - - One Shilling.

The most beautiful Magazine of the Movies published. Magnificent art plates, stories, interviews, etc.—a veritable Budget of good things.

PICTURES

Every Monday - - - 2d.

All the week's news, sound criticisms and views on Movie matters. Profusely illustrated. The oldest established and most popular film weekly.

FILM FICTION

Monthly - - - 6d.

The month's best pictures in story form. Intensely interesting. A permanent souvenir of your favourite films.

Order all Three
from your Newsagent.

JUST PUBLISHED.

The

PICTUREGOER
PORTFOLIO

or

KINEMA CELEBRITIES

Contains the following:

SIXTEEN MAGNIFICENT PHOTOGRAPHURE
PORTRAITS, Size, 10in. x 6½in.

MARY PICKFORD.	PEARL WHITE.
NORMA TALMADGE.	LILIAN GISH.
CHARLES CHAPLIN.	RICHARD BARTHELMESS.
DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS.	WILLIAM FARNUM.
NAZIMOVA.	PAULINE FREDERICK.
MARY MILES MINTER.	CONSTANCE TALMADGE.
WILLIAM S. HART.	THOMAS MEIGHAN.
RALPH GRAVES.	JACKIE COOGAN.

All work Framing. Price

ONE SHILLING

(Post free 1/2)

On Sale everywhere or direct from

PICTURES LTD.

88, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

EVERY FILM LOVER MUST HAVE A COPY.The MOTION PICTURE
Studio

The only weekly journal devoted solely to the interests of all concerned in the Production of British Motion Pictures.

Editorial and Advertisement Offices:
85, LONG ACRE, LONDON, W.C. 2.

'Grams: Southernwood, Rand, London.
Telephone: ———— Gerrard 9870.

ADVERTISEMENT RATES

	One insertion	Six inser- tions (per insertion)
Front Cover	£6 10 0	£6 0 0
Back Cover	£6 0 0	£5 15 0
Full page	£5 10 0	£5 7 6
Half page	£3 0 0	£2 17 6
Third page	£2 5 0	£2 2 6
Quarter page	£1 15 0	£1 12 6
Sixth page	£1 5 0	£1 2 6
Eighth page	£1 0 0	18 9
Twelfth page	12 6	11 3
Per inch (single column)	5 0	4 6
(Blockmaking extra)

Professional Cards:

Photo Cards, 1 in. deep £3 0 0 per quarter year.
(Incusive of Blockmaking)

1 in. Cards (without blockmaking) £2 10 0
per quarter year.

Small Cards 17/6 per quarter year

Make certain of securing your copy regularly each week by filling in the Subscription Order Form and post with remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER FORM

TO The Manager,
"MOTION PICTURE STUDIO,"
85, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

Please send "THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO" to me at the following address for months, for which

I enclose remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION
RATES :: ::
3 Months - 5/-
6 " - 10/-
Yearly - 20/-

Name

Address to which copies are to be sent .
.....
.....

The Motion Picture Studio, July 30, 1921.

The MOTION PICTURE

Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 8.

Saturday, July 30, 1921.

FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH MOTION
PICTURES

LEWIS DAYTON

HEAVY LEAD

Finishing "Romance & Reality"
(Lambart Films)

Lead in "Shadow Between"
(Seal)

"A Rank Outsider" (Broadwest)

"Kitty Tailleur" (Granger-Binger)

All comms.:

BRAMLINS, LTD.,
241, SHAFTESBURY AV.,
W.C.2. (MUSEUM 4038).

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."
219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Now playing lead in "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" (Ideal). Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.
Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.
Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds," "The Knight Errant," "Haigh Serial," "Love Maggie."
4 Park Place, St. James, S.W. Regent 4060

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,*LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal). "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).
c/o Sidney Jay, 111, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

Juvenile Leads: "Her Son," "Great Gay Road," "Lights of Home," "Land of My Fathers." Now playing Duane in "Belle of the Gambling Den" (Haigh Serial).
OFFERS INVITED.
33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

PHOTO
BLOCK

THIS SPACE
TO LET

£3 for 13 insertions, including cost of making block.

VICTOR McLAGLEN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

THIS SPACE TO LET.
17s. 6d. for 13 insertions.

ARTISTES

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES.
LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs. NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc.
Carlton House, Kew Green, Kew, Surrey.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House,"

"Wuthering Heights," etc.

148, AMHURST ROAD, HACKNEY.

Phone: Dalston 813.

DICK WEBB

Lead GAUMONT, MASTER PRODUCTIONS, etc.

180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc.
HARDY FILM CO.

All coms: c/o Sidney Jay,
181, Wardour Street, W.1.

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.
197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph. Batt. 1770 or 21.

CLIVE BROOK

INVITES OFFERS.

24, Hyde Park Square, W.2. Padd. 2868.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT,

Disengaged July 4. Phone: Walthamstow 938.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,

15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.

Phone: Hornsey 1784.

CHARLES CLIFFORD,

38, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.1.

Phone: Regent 569.

CRISPIN HAY,

c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,

12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,

Character, Comedy.

114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

HARDING STEERMAN,

Characters of Distinction,

56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,

24, Cleveland Road,

Barnes, S.W.13.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,

Character Parts,

57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

COSTUMIERW. CLARKSON,

Costumier and Wigmaker,

41/43, Wardour Street, W. Phone: Gerr. 612.

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,

14a, Little Ealing Lane,

:: South Ealing ::

Phone: Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord,"

"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"

"The Face at the Window."

Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road, Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON

Producing for Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd.

Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron," "Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,

Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and "CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."

Five years producer in America. At Liberty.

Address: 1A, DENBIGH PLACE, VICTORIA.

S. L. GLENISTER

Professionally Major Comnenus-Palæologus.

PRODUCER, TECHNICAL & ART DIRECTOR.
"Under the Crescent," "Dumb Girl of Portici," "Campbells are Coming," "Where are My Children?" etc., for UNIVERSAL. "The Arab," for LASKY. "Less than Dust," for ART-CRAFT, etc., etc. Open for Engagement. Address: 25, Randolph Crescent, W.9. Phone: Paddington 3819.

GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer

THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.

Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,

Hoe St, Walthamstow, E.17.

THIS SPACE

TO LET

£2 : 10 : 0

for 13 insertions

ADRIAN BRUNEL,

Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 (Phone: 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK,

Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

Mr. ALBERT WARD,

Producing and Adapting
for Samuelson, Worton Hall, Isleworth.

STUDIO MANAGERJOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—

B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,

Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone: W'stow 364.

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 8.

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

July 30, 1921

The "School" Humbug.

WHILE thousands of stupid people, spoon-fed on stories of film stars' gigantic salaries, believe that acting for the screen is the royal road to wealth and that they are born geniuses whose talent is merely latent, there will always be a field for the schools of film-acting. Probably there are genuine schools, and probably also they occasionally find someone with ability and develop it. But both cases are rare. But even if these schools are conducted on absolutely honest lines, they do not serve a good purpose. For the one artiste they discover, they let loose on an already overcrowded profession hundreds of incompetents, who haunt the studios in a vain endeavour to obtain work. Now and again one may get in a crowd scene; and when that happens, his—or her—fate is sealed. It is far better for them if they meet with persistent refusals until they abandon the quest. It is difficult to suggest an effective means of protecting these dupes from themselves. Refusal on the part of all newspapers to accept film school advertisements would be a step in the right direction, but it is too much to hope for. Exposure of flagrantly dishonest schools is difficult, partly because of the law of libel and partly because the victims will rarely come forward and admit their folly. The elimination of these bogus schools could be done by a strong film artistes' association, but the formation of such an organisation seems as far off as ever.

"The Play's the Thing."

THIS fact is as true now as when Shakespeare put the words into Hamlet's mouth. And directors should note it well, for no amount of subsidiaries will atone for the absence of plot. In fact, one could almost say that the greatest weakness of British films is due to the obvious inattention given to the story. Our photography is quite on a par with the best that the American studios can provide. Our natural settings are exquisite; our players—actors, actresses, and types—compare very favourably with those of Los Angeles. So that we are left with the unpleasant truth that while seeking to perfect the technical aspects of film production, we have neglected the other.

Recognise the Author.

E. TEMPLE THURSTON told the exhibitors that in his opinion directors are always thinking of what "new and startling way" they can put the story before the public. Perhaps Mr. Thurston is right. We cannot say. But we really are convinced that the time has come for the literary side of film production to be dealt with more seriously. Directors taxation scheme will be dropped, and that the cause of the change of mind is the realisation that retaliation would deprive America of most of her overseas film trade, on which the bigger producer-distributors rely for the bulk of their profits. News arrived at the same time that Australia is about to impose a tariff on American and other foreign films and give a preference to British pictures. This move is, no doubt, a reaction against the almost complete monopoly which America has obtained both in films and picture houses in the Antipodes. Both items are good news for the British studios, for an open market in the States and preference in the British Dominions should be of great assistance in the development and expansion of British production.

That Club.

THERE has been no lack of support to the suggestion of a club for Studio workers, as our columns have revealed. Not that we ever doubted this, for the need of such a centre has been obvious for a considerable time; and it was only to be expected that so soon as Studio workers had a journal of their own they would not hesitate to ventilate their wants. At the moment of writing, negotiations are proceeding which will probably result in an announcement in our next issue of the securing of premises for meeting and placing the Club on a proper basis. These will be located in the heart of Wardour Street; so that directors, scenarists, artistes and others will have a centre for refreshment, recreation and business purposes right close at hand. From what we can gather, the majority of Kinema artistes are particularly keen on the venture, as they are hoping that it will be the commencement of a co-ordination movement that will find its culmination and crowning distinction in the formation of that very necessary organisation—the Film Artistes' Association. Of this we cannot say much at the moment beyond stating that however nebulous the proposal may seem now, it has to come.

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"The Woman with the Fan" (Stoll) is a social drama of good general technique. It has weak spots, particularly in absence of characterisation. The camera work of John J. Cox is excellent throughout, but the sub-titling is at times defective.

"Frailty" (Stoll) is made into a good photoplay (despite a vague story) by careful direction, clever character studies and commendable technical work. Martin Thornton reveals a masterful hand as director, while Sydney Ransome's screen-craft is excellent.

"The Woman of His Dreams" (Stoll) is of technical rather than artistic excellence. Very vivid shipwreck scenes and elaborate sets prove the care taken by the director, and Mary Dibley does well in an inadequate part, while Alec Fraser submits a satisfactory performance. Photography is very good.

"The Hound of the Baskervilles" (Stoll) is a satisfying picture. Maurice Elvey's direction of William J. Elliott's scenario supplied a photoplay of sustained interest. Eille Norwood as the famous detective is pleasingly appropriate in his acting, which evidences artistic restraint. The supporting cast (with the possible and occasional exception of the butler) submit flawless performances, while Germain Burger's photographic work is right up to his usual high standard, some excellent night scenes being worthy of particular notice.

should leave the work of preparing the scenario to the scenarist: some all-wise directors sit at the scenarist's elbow in an attempt to guide his pen over the paper! And producing firms must recognise that to get good work, good remuneration must be forthcoming. Also Mr. Thurston's plea for the recognition of the author's "right of interest to discuss various points . . . to be allowed to have some influence of mind in the presentment of the story" should be given sympathetic attention.

Collapse of the Tax Proposals?

ACCORDING to a cable received in London on Thursday morning, it is practically certain that the United States Senate will postpone indefinitely the consideration of the proposed import taxes on foreign films. It is not too much to assume that this postponement means that the

CAMERAMEN. . . .

JOHN J. COX

44, Barrowgate Road,
:: Chiswick, W.4. ::

'Phone: Chiswick 294.

Cameraman for Mr. Rene Plaissetty,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD

Cameraman—AT LIBERTY.

Latest work: "The Channings," "Hard
Cash," "Stella" and "Miss Charity."

MASTER BUTCHER PRODUCTIONS.

"PEMBROKE," CHEAM COMMON RD,
WORCESTER PARK.

EDWIN DAY

Motion Picture Photographer,

12, Archer Street, Picca-
dilly Circus, London, W.1.

Telephone: Gerrard 780.

Telegrams: "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON

Thelton House, Cambolt

:: Road, Putney Hill. ::

Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN

"GAUMONT'S,"

105, King's Road,

Kingston-on-Thames.

FRANK CANHAM

ASTRA FILM CO., LTD.

Now turning on "The Wonderful Year."

Permanent Address: Royal Forest
Hotel, Chingford, Essex.

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT

GAUMONT,

:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::

Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT

Expert Cameraman.

"The Better 'Ole," "Her Benny,"
etc., etc.

2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.

'Phone: Streatham 1969.

WILLIAM SHENTON

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Private Address:

17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,

Boreham Wood, Herts.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

JAMES E. ROGERS,

Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth.

"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"

"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"

"Last Rose of Summer,"

PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

ALFRED H. MOSES

Chief Cameraman—

GEORGE RIDGWELL PRODUCTIONS
STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS

Formerly Chief Cameraman of Norma
Talmadge, Thanhouser, B. & C., etc.

SCENARISTS. . . .

COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,

:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.

7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11

('Phone: Park 2945).

THIS SPACE TO LET

£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,

Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
62, Foxbourne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,

Kinedramatist,
Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

PUBLICITY. . . .

F. J. STANDERWICK,

Photographer.

I am making a speciality of Catering for
Film Artists. 'Phone for appointment—
Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio
—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
W.14.

FRANK J. WOOLF

Publicity Representative,

British and Colonial Kinematograph
Company, Hoe Street, Walthamstow,

Telephone: Walthamstow 364.

EDWARD BAIRD

Publicity.

172, Goldhurst Terrace, N.W.6.

MILTON ROSMER

Starring in

"The Pointing Finger,"

"A Woman of No Importance,"

"The Amazing Partnership,"

"Demos," "The Diamond Necklace,"

"Belphegor the Mountebank,"

"The Will," "The Twelve Pound

Look," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

88, NEWMAN ST., W.1.

Phone - - - - Museum 5145

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer

of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H. MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE."

"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"

"SETTLED IN FULL,"

"ALL THE WINNERS,"

"WATCHING EYES," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,

26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

Change of Address

Just behind the Piccadilly Tube at 128, Jermyn Street, you'll find the man who writes terse titles and conscientious continuities.

He's moved from

47, Dean Street,

HARRY HUGHES,

Editing, Sub-titling, Continuities.

128, Jermyn Street, S.W.1

Regent 2592.

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

MARTIN THORNTON'S next Stoll production is to be "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills," in which, so I am told, the Prime Minister is interested. But I give this piece of hearsay with full reserve; it would be unkind to damn a picture before its birth!

IN the Daily Mirror I notice quite a miniature tempest in a tea-cup over what it describes as "an order recently issued by Jeffrey Bernard debarring directors from playing their wives in any films they are directing." Mr. Bernard says that he issued the order because he considers it unfair to both the director and his wife to have them working together.

"IT is impossible to get sincerity of acting," he stated, "if a girl is expected to portray a dramatic love scene in front of her husband—and you cannot expect a director to exhort his wife to 'put some pep' into her love-making. Recently a star complained to me that the 'love scenes' were not realistic, as the director's wife refused to be kissed. I have no bias against a director's wife as a screen artist. A girl who played 'lead' in one of our later films gave a much better performance under a new director than when playing under her husband's direction."

MY readers will not be slow in seeing the humorous significance in this new system at the Stoll studios. Apart from the amorous aspect of it I welcome it because it is a step away from the wretched plan of starring the wife of a director simply because she is that. This new rule follows the recent article on "Human Material" in our pages when the wife-star system was denounced.

IT is encouraging to record the growth of new producing units and so it pleases me to announce that the Hardy Film Company is making excellent progress with its Sabatini policy. Rafael Sabatini has adapted one of his stories—"Bluff"—and Geoffrey Malins is to direct its production. This is to be followed by "The Dream" and "Bardelys the Magnificent," a film adaptor of the famous novel (the stage version was successfully produced by the late Lewis Waller at the Globe ten years ago). And I congratulate the new company on securing the expert services of Germain Burger. This is, indeed, an achievement.

AGAIN let me invite club secretaries to send me particulars of the sports activities at the studios. I learn that George Clark Productions has been elected a member of the Kinematograph Sports Association, so now things ought to hum. In the Lawn Tennis Singles Competition Queenie Thomas, the B. P. star, beat Miss Scott (F. P. Lasky), while on August 6 the semi-final for the Kine Weekly Challenge Cup will take place between the cricket teams of Gaumont and Ideal. And may the better team win.

ON her way back from Nice, where she has been playing in two new George Clark pictures, Ivy Duke made a tour of the French battlefields. She tells me that it was a most wonderful experience. In Peronne, where there are miles and miles of ruined houses and débris, she felt as though she were in Church and must speak softly.

ON THE FLOOR

With J. STUART BLACKTON.

Amid a blaze of colour, strangely out of keeping with the drab surroundings of the Cricklewood Studio, lords and ladies of King Charles Second's Court wander aimlessly around. Two big sets occupy the floor. One represents a palace where King Charles is enjoying an entertainment, and the other a bedroom.

J. Stuart Blackton is working on the set in the palace. At one end of a hall, arrayed with tapestry and flags, is a miniature stage, where the performers appear. Mr. Blackton is rehearsing King Charles, who, with a haughty air, is seated on his throne.

In a quiet voice the director is giving his instructions, the "shot" is rehearsed about twice and then the lights are switched on. The chattering of the lords and ladies of the court ceases, and during the taking all is quiet.

The director, still in his quiet way, is instructing the artiste. His manner seems to help the artiste. He seems to be smiling all the time.

Everything on the Blackton floor works wonderfully smoothly; the artistes seem to know what to do before the scene has started. There are no tedious rehearsals; instead, the rehearsal is short, and the artistes start work feeling fresh when the camera starts turning. This certainly has a certain advantage over the method of rehearsing scenes for hours, and by which time the artiste goes through the whole thing mechanically.

Stuart Blackton has methods absolutely different from any other English or American directors we have seen at work.

It really is a huge graveyard, and there are still very many bodies under the débris which will be brought to light during the huge task of clearing up.

HER chauffeur was formerly in the Tank Corps, and much of the ground they traversed was familiar to him. It was a curious experience for him to take Ivy over the area he had previously covered in a tank. His tank was eventually blown up, but he was lucky enough to escape with slight injuries. He hoped to be able to show Ivy the spot where the explosion occurred, and they were both surprised and interested to find the tank still there—blown up, but not disintegrated.

DURING some of his screen villainy in "The Imperfect Lover" Cameron Carr noticed that some of the onlookers were certainly not giving their sympathy to him. And this has suggested to me that it is very improbable that an artiste who plays "bad man" parts can ever be really popular. Kine-goers love their heroes for what they do, really; not for their handsome faces and stalwart frames. Equally they dislike the villains for what they do.

SO that I venture to wonder how much a male lead would suffer in loss of popularity were he to play a series of "heavies." Take Stewart Rome for instance. There are scores of flappers who go to sleep with his photo above their beds—bless 'em! They love him for his screen heroism. And much of his popularity rests on this. What would happen were he to appear as a bad bold man in his next three pictures? I am inclined to think that his popularity would suffer considerably. And this would be the case with any screen hero.

IN sheer desperation a group of screen aspirants have formed the London Amateur Film Production Society with headquarters in Oxford Street. They have engaged a director as coach, and the films will be projected, scene by scene, as they are made, in the society's own theatre, so that members may criticise each other. My pious hope is that they get hold of the right coach. I know a certain director who would put them through their "MEGAPHONE" paces!

Where they are and

V. A. Alder is cranking for Ideal.

W. Tiffin is Parkstone Films' scenic expert.

A. Weiner, M.A., acts as scenario editor for Ideal.

Douglas Payne is with Screenplays as studio manager.

A. Mason is in the cast of "Flotsam" (I.O.M. Films).

Walter Buckstone acts as technical advisor to Parkstone Films.

Percival Strong is on the photographic staff at the Stoll studios.

J. Wheddon is on the photographic staff at Ideal's Elstree studios.

Herbert Castleton is in the cast of "Flotsam" (Isle of Man Films).

N. Gregory Arnold is working at the Lasky studios as assistant art director.

David Powell has been playing lead in "Dangerous Lies" (F. P.-Lasky).

B. Kingston is on the photographic staff at the F. P.-Lasky studio, Islington.

Edmund Blake is directing the production of "Flotsam" for Isle of Man Films.

Marjorie Battess plays the leading part in the Isle of Man production "Flotsam."

Kitty Pearce has been provided with an important rôle in "Flotsam" (Isle of Man Films).

J. Kennedy is playing a leading part in "Flotsam," which Isle of Man Films is producing.

George Keene is with Parkstone Films as an advisor on film work.

Ernest Milbourne is behind the camera at the Manx Studios, where "Flotsam" is the latest Isle of Man production.

Paul Powell has finished the direction of "Dangerous Lies" (Famous Players-Lasky), which is now being edited.

Elsie Codd (late publicity manager for Charlie Chaplin) is now controlling the studio publicity at Lasky's Islington studio.

Mary Glynn has now concluded her engagement on "Dangerous Lies" (F. P.-Lasky), in which (under the working title of "Twice Wed") she has been playing female lead.

Sidney Morgan is working on "The Mayor of Casterbridge" at the Progress studios. This will be followed by "The Lilac Bonnet" and "A Lowland Cinderella."

Camera Bargains—Largest selection of professional and topical instruments in London, all makers—English, American and Continental. Write stating exact requirements, special quotations post free, or call and inspect our stock, Cash or Easy Payment Terms. Apparatus accepted in exchange, Strict approval terms willingly.

THE KINEMATOGRAPH EXCHANGE,
81, Aldersgate Street, E.C.1,

Rosina Henley is with Alliance as scenario editor.

Bernard Carrodus is scenario editor for Minerva.

L. A. Russell is doing cinematography for Aerofilms.

Frank J. Arlton is not the the cast of "The Glorious Adventure."

Edward L. Groc is cranking for Kinema Expansion's Comedies.

Fred Rains is directing the production of Glen Film's "Land of My Fathers."

A. C. Hunter will shortly commence casting for a new Alliance production.

Ernest Jones is in charge of the scenic effects for Welsh Pearson.

S. A. Poulton has been behind the camera for Aerofilms in aerial cinematography.

Edith Pearson has been playing the female lead in "Land of My Fathers" for Glen Films.

Clifford Grey is acting as studio manager as well as assistant director for J. Stuart Blackton.

Cronin Wilson has been playing an important part in the latest Welsh-Pearson production, "Squibs."

Duncan McRae is directing the production of "Love in the Wilderness" at the St. Margaret's studio (Alliance).

Milton Rosmer is expected to be featured in "The Card" and "Married Life," as well as "A Pauper Millionaire" (Ideal).

William T. Crespinal is in charge of the colour camerawork on "The Glorious Adventure" (Blackton), while Nicholas Musuraca is responsible for the black-and-white camera work.

Seth Hughes is in Wales working in an important part in Harma's un-titled film.

Eille Norwood has been engaged to play the part of Lord Pryse in "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills," for Stoll.

G. H. McLelland has now completed and sold the scenario of "Rob Roy" on which he has been working for some months.

Viola Compton and her sister Ellen have now turned their attention to screen work. They are sisters of Fay Compton.

Billy (W. A.) Bowman has been assisting in the direction of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," which U.C.I. is producing in this country.

—DO YOU—

Why two producing units are to film "Bluff"; and—

* * *

If the name ought not to be changed to one that does not offer such obvious opportunities for jest?

* * *

If the K.M.A. really has a "Debarred List" of alleged offending studio workers?

* * *

When the Co-operative Producing Unit will be formed; and—

* * *

By whom?

* * *

If Fay Compton advised her two sisters to turn to screen-work; and—

* * *

Whether she meant this to be regarded as a good turn?

* * *

Whether E. Temple Thurston's lecture will not get everybody talking; and—

* * *

That readers who agree or disagree with him are at liberty to use our columns to say so.

THE FILM VALUE

by ADRIAN

We have been told (a) that the introduction of good sub-titles is half the battle in the making of a good picture; (b) that sub-titles should have "punch and pep"; and (c) that the ideal picture has no sub-titles.

I agree emphatically with the first statement—so much so that I think it would be well worth while if British producing companies would call in someone with a gift for epigram and pay him a decent fee—£100 or more if he is a really good man—to revise the sub-titles after they have been written by the scenario-writer and after the picture has been shot.

A film was recently shown to me for an opinion as to the possibility of making it at all presentable by means of cutting and re-titling. It had cost thousands to produce and was practically unbookable. I was asked my fee for undertaking the work and I asked 2 per cent. of the cost of production. The sum quoted was considered too much, so nothing is being done, although that film could have been improved almost out of recognition.

The cutting of the film doesn't arise for the moment, but, needless to say, quite a third of the improvement would have been effected through cutting. The first thing I would have done in regard to the revision of the subtitles would have been to have inserted two introductory sub-titles, making clear the whole point of the story, which the film failed to show and suggesting the atmosphere, which the director had failed to convey.

I would not have hesitated to have spent a whole day or more over these two sub-titles.

After mastering the story myself I should have shown the film to a few people of varying intelligences and examined them as to the relationship and the motives of the characters in the story, and as to any points which might be obscure.

what they are doing

Marguerite Leigh, who played a leading part in "No. 7 Brick Row," has been engaged for the big Blackton production.

Dawn Meredith, who is now playing lead with Kenneth Graeme, has already been booked for the part of Lady Gloria in "M'Lord of the Great White Road," which Kenneth Graeme is to direct.

Bryan Powley has been reluctantly compelled to relinquish his part in J. Stuart Blackton's production, "The Great Adventure," owing to Marie Lohr's play clashing with his film dates. He is to play leading part in her Canadian tour, and sails about August 25. On his return he hopes to resume film work.

— K N O W —

The name of the dark room expert who is playing the violin in the gutter of Wardour Street?—

If he is doing that to support a wife and a tuberculous child; and—

If all the facts of this man's case were known it would not be a disgrace to certain film manufacturers.

Whether the fatted calf was killed at Cricklewood on the occasion of Sinclair Hill's return?

The name of the company which is to produce "Rob Roy?"

Who is the new producing concern that has taken the spacious offices in Wardour Street; and—

The names of the two leading directors who have already been engaged?

Percy Standing plays the uncle in "Bluff" (Granger-Binger).

Frankland H. Richardson is directing the production of "Bluff" for Granger-Binger.

Geoffrey Malins has been engaged to direct the production of "Bluff" for Hardy.

Henry Vibart has finished his engagement with Ideal for the part of Dr. Burgess in "Sonia."

Bertram Phillips expects to start work very shortly in his new studios at Thornton Road, Clapham Park.

Maudie Dunham has been engaged to play feminine lead in "Bluff," the latest Granger-Binger picture.

Rafael Sabatini has prepared the scenario of the Hardy production, "Bluff," from one of his own stories.

Henry Victor has gone to Holland to play juvenile lead in "Bluff," the latest Granger-Binger production.

Evelyn Brent has been booked for Stoll by Sidney Gay and will appear in Sinclair Hill's picture "The Experiment."

Germain Burger, who was at Stoll's with Sam Hardy, has left there to join Hardy Films as photographic director, with a seat on the board of directors.

Frank Dane has the fine character part of William of Orange in "The Black Tulip," which is being finished in the Granger-Binger studio at Haarlem.

Reginald Nugent has left the stage for the screen, and has just finished playing juvenile lead for Kenneth Graeme. He is now with J. Stuart Blackton.

Lewis Gilbert is in the cast of "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills."

Harvey Braban is to play Gwilym Rhys in "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills" (Stoll).

Sinclair Hill has returned to Stoll to direct the production of "The Experiment."

P. C. W. King is attending to the technical side of the Kenneth Graeme Productions.

Dawn Meredith is female lead in the Kenneth Graeme production.

Jack Warboys is playing in "Flotsam" (Isle of Man Films).

Madge Stuart is to play the titular rôle in "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills" (Stoll).

Harry Hughes, the scenarist, has moved from 47, Dean Street, to larger and more comfortable offices at 128, Jermyn Street.

Betty Campbell is playing an important part in "The Adventures of Mr. Pusher Long" (Kenneth Graeme).

Sir Simeon Stuart has now finished work on an important part in "The Imperfect Lover" for Broadwest.

Kenneth Graeme is not only directing the production of "The Adventures of Mr. Pusher Long," but is also playing the leading part.

Lionelle Howard is starring in the new Thompson film, "The Wonderful Year." He expects to be back in England about Thursday or Friday from Lausanne.

Dorothy Warboys is at present in the Isle of Man, taking an important part in "Flotsam," which Isle of Man Films is producing.

Martin Thornton's next Stoll picture is "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills," which he will direct immediately on finish of "The Prey of the Dragon."

Henderson Bland has been engaged to play Shadrack Morgan in "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills," which Martin Thornton is to direct for Stoll.

Mack van Lier, who is in charge of the printing at the Hollandia Studios in Haarlem, has just returned from the States, where he has spent three months studying conditions and modern methods, and is instituting several innovations. He spent some time at the Goldwyn plant in California, where, by courtesy of the company, he was enabled to study its methods in detail. The knowledge he has gained should prove of considerable value to the company, and help to further enhance the value of Granger-Binger films.

LETTERING SPECIALIST

is open to undertake one or two commissions for special film work
G. T. SHEARMAN, Bentinck Road, Nottingham.

OF SUB TITLES BRUNEL

The story was not properly balanced: we saw too little of the dominating character of the story—a powerful, cynical, yet attractive personality. This fault could have been remedied by an especial concentration on that character's spoken sub-titles, and perhaps by the insertion of a few telling extra sub-titles. Just as the part of the character on the stage is made to stand out above others by reason of its "lines," so the same thing can be achieved with sub-titles in a film.

The continuity was loose throughout and a revision of the sub-titles from that point of view alone would have been invaluable to the film.

The use of the fade and the iris is often abused in film production; these are such valuable devices that they should not be used indiscriminately, for they lose their effect if overdone.

Nearly half way through the picture in question there is a sudden change to another key. It is apparently inexplicable in the film's present state, but a sub-title could be placed at this point which, while forming a connecting link between the two parts of the story, would also contain a separate idea which should be impressed on the minds of the viewers from this point onwards. Fading this sub-title in and out would help in obtaining the desired effect.

Sub-title illustrations, too, should be very sparingly used. They are often inane and are apt to obstruct the reading matter. Small drawings in white paint are often useful, particularly in obtaining humorous effects.

One can lead a film-viewer off the scent by a subtle suggestion in an illustration. An atmosphere can be added to by a beautiful illustration in the right spirit. But the great thing with sub-title illustrations is to have few of them and to have only those that are truly apropos.

HOW ADAPTATIONS FAIL

by RAFAEL SABATINI

That the adaptations of novels and stories to the screen do fail in the main, from one point of view or another, is at this time of day so well-established a working hypothesis that I need make no apology for my title. The reasons, too numerous to be packed into the limits of this article, are not really far to seek. One or two of them I have already had the audacity to point out, thereby giving not a little offence—the inevitable result of any attempt to deal in candour. Numerous as these reasons are, they are all—or almost all—subsidiary to one cardinal reason, so obvious that I should hesitate to state it but for the fact that, obvious as it is, either it has not been perceived or else it has been wilfully disregarded.

The title of a famous novel and the name of a famous novelist are valuable assets in themselves. They carry with them a certain amount of very precious publicity. The author whose work is eagerly sought at the libraries has a public which will as eagerly follow him into the cinema theatre. The book which has given pleasure to thousands of readers will, when filmed, once more attract those thousands, eager to make that closer acquaintance with its scenes and characters which visualisation promises.

Thus much film-makers have perceived. But either they have perceived nothing more, or else they have plunged recklessly into error in their anxiety to exploit that ready-made publicity.

A study of the considerations governing stage adaptations would in this, as in other ways, have afforded them sound guidance. The famous name and the popular title are as valuable in theatrical as in cinematographic enterprise. But the theatrical manager knows what the film maker apparently has yet to learn; that however famous and popular a novel may be, it cannot be turned into a successful play unless certain elements indispensable to the making of a play are present.

True the screen is not hampered by the limitations of the stage. But neither does it enjoy the freedom of the novel. As a vehicle of expression it stands midway between the two. Deriving from both, it is yet distinct from either. The clear perception of this is the first lesson for film-directors to learn.

A novel may be all that a perfect novel should be, and yet totally lacking in the essential elements of a satisfactory screen-play. The result is a dull film. A novel may be widely popular and yet fundamentally ill-imagined and loosely constructed. The searching eye of the camera will mercilessly reveal these faults piercing the cloak of verbal ambiguities which have dissembled them. The result is a bad film; the story which read plausibly as a novel is revealed as a foolish, incoherent thing upon the screen.

We have had an abundance of adaptations that fall into one or the other of these classes; and we have had an abundance of others that have failed because those responsible for the adaptations have been content to lift the narrative more or less bodily from one vehicle to the other, lacking either the courage or the ability boldly to strip the story to the bone and relate it anew in the terms of the other medium to which it is to be transferred.

When these errors are corrected, and the adaptable only is adapted, we shall hear less of the failure of adaptations.

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES

No. VI.—LEWIS DAYTON

It is eleven years since Lewis Drayton, at that time an actor on the legitimate stage in America, broke into the movies. Since those days he has appeared in many plays, and under many banners. D. W. Griffiths was his first director in the old Biograph Studio in New York, where he acted in the first picture which brought fame to Mary Pickford.

Beside Griffith, Mr. Dayton has worked in New York, Los Angeles, and Florida, with Fox, Universal, Nestor, General and Vitagraph.

It has generally been his fate to play heavy lead, although his versatility has not allowed him to stick to the one line. In fact, he and Mack Sennett started together as extra hands.

He has only been acting on this side for a little over a year, in which time he has done a tremendous amount of lead work. He played lead in "The Shadow Between" (Seal), Lord Medway in "The Great Day" (F.P.L. British Producers), juvenile leads in the Broadwest, "The Rank Outsider" and the Granger-Binger, "Kitty Tailleur," and heavy leads in "Marriage Lines" (Masters), and "The Way of a Man" (Gaumont). He is just finishing work on "Romance and Reality" (Lambart), in which he has a heavy lead.

Perhaps to get him into training for the strenuous work of a serial hero (which character he has taken in his stride, so to speak), but mainly because he likes it. Mr. Dayton had in America the habit of retiring to the North-West of Canada between pictures. Here he would live the simple life of a trapper and cow-puncher. His adventurous spirit found further outlet during the war, when he was an officer in the R.A.F.

WINDSOR STUDIOS.

A recent issue contained an announcement to the effect that Zodiac Film Co. was working at the Windsor Studios, at Catford. The company, however, only booked the studios for a fortnight; and the studio is now vacant. Companies requiring particulars of the studio can obtain same from Windsor Films, Ltd., 61, Berners Street, W.1.

ARTISTES USE OUR PHOTO-POSTCARDS

□ □

Guaranteed real Photographs, but far more effective and cheaper than ordinary portraits.

Indispensable to Artistes for sending to clients, autographs, etc. Send for further details

J. BEAGLES & Co., Ltd.
9, 10, 11, Little Britain, E C 2

SIDNEY L. EATON,

KINEMATOGRAPHER,

3, LEBANON PARK MANSIONS,
T W I C K E N H A M.

Productions include:—

"Darby and Joan," "Westward Ho!"
"Story of the Rosary," "Hobson's
Choice," "Won by a Head," "Rodney
Stone," "The Old Arm Chair," "Like-
ness of the Night," "Croxley Master,"
"Ships that Pass in the Night," etc., etc.

AT LIBERTY FOR
FIRST CLASS PRODUCTIONS.

THE VINTEN PRINTER.

The Machine that never wears out.

One firm had four machines installed in 1913. These are still running, and three more have since been fitted.

Another firm had three machines in 1913. These were severely damaged by fire, but were repaired and are still running with two more.

W. VINTEN,

89-91, Wardour St., W.1.

Tel. REGENT 2702.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for Kinematograph Productions. Phone—London Wall 7568

AUTHOR AND DIRECTOR

E. TEMPLE THURSTON SPEAKS HIS MIND

Addressing the exhibitors gathered in conference at Birmingham on the occasion of the C.E.A. general meeting, E. Temple Thurston spoke on the subject of the relation of the film author to the director. He said:—

I believe the surest sign that the film is making tradition is the fact that the directors are beginning to realise it has none. Every one of them is feeling his way—now upholding the close-up picture, now condemning it; now affecting the written title, now discarding it; now employing the aid of the vision, now eliminating it altogether.

I have heard of directors begging for someone who could establish an entirely new method of developing a story on the screen. There is doubt in that, and doubt is the beginning of that faith which time strengthens into the creed of tradition.

When an author sits down with his pen, there is no need for him to worry or concern himself with the words he is going to use, the form he is going to employ. The thing that vitally concerns him is what he is going to say—what story he has to tell, and if it is true and real enough in his mind, it will itself mould the form in which it is told out of all the countless forms which tradition has handed down to him for his use.

Is that so with the director and the medium of the film? I doubt it. All the time he is thinking in what new and startling way he can put his story before the public. To such an extent is he obsessed by that thought that what he has to say is of secondary consideration. His medium dominates him. It is his master—but not until it is his slave will he ever say anything that is really worth listening to.

But besides this absence of tradition of the kinema, there is another handicap with which the maker of films has to contend. He started off with what I think I may call a scientific novelty, which the public was only too eager to see. That interest in the moving picture has lasted and increased from year to year. But it seems to me one of the real dangers that faces the film world now is that that interest is not deep-rooted in human nature.

I think that the novelty of the moving pictures in a certain measure has grown stale to the public, and some already having pulled them to pieces to see how they are made, have found there is no deep-laid human sympathy in the stories they have to tell; that their substance, when all is added up, is little more than the movements of the human body, irrespective of the movement of the human mind, or the human heart.

For more than a year I worked on scenario writing in one of the big studios in London, and I have seen inside the production of a good many films. I believe I know the view-point of the director. I would not hesitate to say I feel I know what is wrong with the making of stories for the screen, and why it is that the public is tiring of what was, for a time, its most favourable amusement.

During that year I was in the studios in London I was in negotiation with a large firm to write a certain number of scenarios a year—four, I think it was. An original scenario of mine was then just about to be produced, and when making some suggestion for a scene I learnt what was the attitude of mind of the director to the author. We had a long discussion, in which I pleaded as author, not for the right of decision in matter of cast, costume, and scenery, but for the right of interest to discuss various points—in brief, to be allowed to have some influence of mind in the presentment of my story. A playwright has such a voice in the production of his plays for the stage. In many cases his is the ruling voice. The director then told me this was not his idea at all of the relationship between author and director. So far as I can remember his words, he said, "Your work stops at the studio door. When you have handed in the script of your scenario, you have done all that is required of you."

I was glad we had that discussion. It saved me from signing any contract. I did not write four films a year. I never wrote another. I do what every author does—I sell the film rights of my books or my plays for the best price I can get, and more than likely I do not even see the presentment of them on the screen. There might be many things in the film version to which I might sensitively object, yet be powerless to remedy. It is far more satisfactory not to see the film version at all, and so comes about that not-too-praiseworthy attitude of many authors to the kinema—that which I might call a lucrative indifference.

I might almost suggest to you that in the purchase of the film rights of his books and plays he has been paid to keep away. Well, he is keeping away, and the director with his film stars, with whose work also the public have become familiar, is beginning to wonder why his moving pictures do not create the interest they did.

Supposing, then, you were to say to me: "Well, what does it matter, after all? Plays and books are always being written. They can always be converted to the screen. We don't want the author to meddle with us. Let him go on with his own job, and if he writes books, we'll look after ours." That might sound feasible enough, but on the score of facts and figures alone, it would not support the argument long. More films are produced every year than ever there are books published or plays put on the stage; moreover, a play will run in one theatre for a year, while a super-film finds it hard to pay its pay for a couple of months. Then, again, of all the novels published every year—how many are suitable for conversion to the screen? If I said thirty per cent, I feel sure I should be overstating it.

I do not think that argument would hold good, and even supposing it did, do you believe that producing firms would even then get good material when some of them pay as little as £10, and few more than £50 for the all-important work of converting the novel into a scenario for the screen?

I am trying to impress upon your minds the tendency of the public mind with regard to the kinema, and what it is the film world will have to face in a few years time if it goes on believing that the camera is what makes the success of the moving picture—the camera and the film star, and a sufficient amount of well-engineered advertisement. It is my belief that it will be well-nigh face to face with bankruptcy, and from all I can hear, some of the producing firms in America are beginning to catch the sound of the wolf at the door already.

If the play is the thing—if the story is what the film needs, and the author the man to give it, let him be encouraged by interest before all to give his hand and the work out of his heart, that in time tradition may be won for the kinema as it has been for the stage. It will never come by the adaptation and conversion of work not intended for it—it will never come by advertisement or the beating of the drum.

Only by working for the medium for which his work is intended can real sincerity ever be given by the artist to his task. It is then, when the moving picture gives up the second-hand and creates first and alone for itself a new instrument upon which new melodies and new harmonies can be played, that it will establish a tradition none will dare to ignore.

DON'T WORRY

THERE IS NO NEED TO

IF THE COSTUMES,
WIGS,
PROPS, etc.,

For Your PRODUCTION
are SUPPLIED BY

H. & M. Rayne,

115-119, WATERLOO RD., S.E.1

Phone: 7978 CENTRAL.

KINE CAMERA EXPOSURE METER

7/8

With Instruction
Booklet.

Indicates right lens
opening for the light.

"Very reliable,
could hardly get on without."

"Complete satisfaction, used for testing actinic value
of flame arcs."

WATKINS METER Co
HEREFORD.

STAR GREASE PAINT CO.

6d.

per stick.

Any Colour
Giant Sticks
2/-

USE

STAR

GREASE PAINT

Carriage paid on Orders
of 3/-
and upwards

Judge for yourself as thousands now using Star Paint. Try our special Cinema tin.

Mail Orders:

Arthur Ace, 51, Clapham Park Rd., London.

L. BENJAMIN & CO., 99, Middlesex St.,
Bishopsgate, E.1.

'Phone
London Wall
7568.

Kinematograph Costumier
Naval & Military Outfitter

CAMERAMEN AT WORK

"It's a game of life and death," writes a well-known English Cameraman in Dublin, whose name we do not disclose for obvious reasons, referring to the conditions prevailing in that city. He relates an exciting experience which befel him quite recently while working in the Irish capital. He had put in a busy morning taking pictures of the scenes attendant upon the funeral of a military officer outside the city, and was seated on a tramcar bound for the suburbs, when a number of armed men stopped the vehicle, entered it, "covered" him, and ordered him to follow them, which, of course, he did! The unfortunate cameraman was then marched away some distance and commanded to surrender his camera, containing the pictures of the funeral. His aggressors warned him against attending "any function of a similar nature" in the future, and, on his giving them an undertaking to this effect, he was allowed to go. Since then he has seen neither his captors nor his camera!

Considering its reputed fragility it is rather remarkable that so few lenses bearing marks of hard usage are encountered, says the British Journal of Photography. Such are, however, to be met with occasionally, and it is somewhat difficult for the average photographer to know whether they are worth purchasing at a low figure.

Lenses are, as a rule, damaged either by a fall or by careless cleaning or packing. The damage caused by a fall may take the form of a chip or crack or separation of the cemented surfaces.

Chips, if not large, do not interfere materially with the performance of a lens if they are covered with black varnish or even opaque colour. Cracks, if not large, may be blocked out in the same way, and even if one of the glasses is broken across it may be cemented together with black cement without showing any sign of the line upon the negative, provided that a very small aperture is not used.

A fall may, however, seriously impair the working of a lens without being apparent to the eye. This is when the mount has been distorted and a strain put upon the glass. A general surface dulness, due to careless cleaning with gritty cloths, does not impair the definition, but causes a general fogginess upon the negative.

Deep scratches, caused by allowing the lens to rattle about in the camera case, have the same effect, but an improvement may be effected if they are blocked out as if they were chips.

The next meeting of the Kine-Cameramen's Society is being held on August 8, at 99, Wardour Street, at 7 p.m. It is hoped that it will be well attended, as the Society has only been holding one meeting a month during the summer. The business to be discussed will be of an interesting character, and in addition it will be an opportunity for cameramen to meet each other again.

The Pathé Gazette was well represented in the Pathé Cricket Eleven, when Pathé beat Lasky, thus qualifying for the final. Henry Saunders, Frank Bassil and "Goch" Gimmell were included in the team.

MEN BEHIND THE CAMERA.

No. 3. Sidney Frank Canham, when 18 years old, went in for trick cycling on the halls and was well known as Sid Franks, both in Britain and on the Continent, and in 1904 he won the world's championship at the Coliseum, Vienna. Before the war was with Kinemacolor and Neptune Co. leaving for Italy to fulfil contract with Torquato Montelatici—after joining Milano Film Co. and later with Tespi Film Co., of Rome. On returning to England was appointed official cinematographer to the Ministry of Information under Lord Beaverbrook. Since the armistice has been with Harma, Windsor and Kenelm Foss, and he has taken all the pictures in the present Foss program, including "The Breed of the Treshams," "The Headmaster" and "The Wonderful Year."

SCENIC BACKGROUNDS.

One of the aspects of production that is engaging the attention of those who are really keen on improving the pictorial quality of photoplays is the subject of backgrounds. Recently Rene Plaissetty made a valiant and successful attempt to dispense with elaborate built-up backgrounds and obtain vivid simplicity by the use of curtains only.

The latest move in this direction comes from Germany, where an attempt at paper scenery is to be made. The new idea is to be tried in a vaudeville act as a test upon which a legitimate producing firm will decide the scheme's value.

The inventor is an Englishman interned in Germany four years during the war. During his detention he experimented with paper, using various chemical baths to toughen the fibre. He is said to have succeeded in making ordinary wrapping paper extremely strong, and because its cost is half that of canvas and there is an equal saving in weight, he proposed its use for theatrical scenery.

The inventor made several sets for use in England, and the paper-scenery idea is being taken to generally in Italy.

In addition to its economy, the paper is said to hold colours more readily than canvas. It is claimed the new paper process can be made fireproof, and, further, that once it is fireproofed the process will not need repetition, as is now required in various cities.

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Productions and Who is Working on Them

J. Stuart Blackton.

ADDRESS: Bush House, Aldwych.
STUDIOS: Now using Stoll's at Cricklewood.

STUDIO MANAGER: Clifford Grey.

FILM: "The Glorious Adventure."

DIRECTOR: J. Stuart Blackton.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Clifford Grey.

STAR: Lady Diana Manners.

SCENARIST: Felix Orman.

ART DIRECTOR: Almon C. Whiting.

CAMERAMAN (Black and white)

Nicholas Mursuraca.

CAMERAMAN (Colour): W. T.

Crespinal.

TYPE: Seven-reel drama

STAGE: Third week.

British and Colonial.

ADDRESS: Hoe Street, Waltham-

stow.

FILM: "The Puppet Man."

DIRECTOR: Frank Crane.

STARS: Molly Adair, John Reid.

SCENARIST: Cosmo Gordon Lennox.

CAMERAMAN: I. Roseman.

TYPE: Spectacular Circus drama.

STAGE: Completed.

Broad west.

ADDRESS: Walthamstow.

FILM: "The Imperfect Lover."

STAR: Violet Hopson and Stewart

Rome.

DIRECTOR: Walter West.

ART DIRECTOR: Thomas Fleet-

wood.

CAMERAMAN: A. G. Frenguelli.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Fourth week. (Second week on interiors.)

FILM: "The Candy Man."

STAR: Not cast.

DIRECTOR: Not announced.

SCENARIST: W. G. Clifford

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Schedule—casting shortly.

George Clark.

ADDRESS: 47, Berner's Street,

W.1.

STUDIO: Candlemass Lane, Beaconsfield.

FILM: "The Bigamist."

DIRECTOR: Guy Newall.

STARS: Ivy Duke and Guy

Newall.

SCENARIST: Guy Newall.

CAMERAMAN: Bert Ford.

TYPE: Social drama.

STAGE: Completed.

Famous Players-LaskyBritish Producers.

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.

STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A.

Bell, O.B.E.

FILM: "Dangerous Lies" (Working

title "Twice Wed.")

DIRECTOR: Paul Powell.

STARS: Mary Glynn, David Powell.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: R. J. Cullen.

SCENARIST: Mary O'Connor.

ART DIRECTOR: Leslie Dawson.

ASST. ART DIRECTOR: N. Gregory

Arnold.

CAMERAMAN: C. McDonnell.

TYPE: Social drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assemblin g

FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."

DIRECTOR: Donald Crisp.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Claude H.

Mitchell.

STAR: Donald Crisp.

SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.

STAGE: Fourth week.

Frederick White.

ADDRESS Weir House, Tedding-

ton.

FILM: "The Haigh Serial."

DIRECTOR: Edward R. Gordon.

ASSIST.-DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Ben-stead.

STAR: Ernest Haigh.

SCENARIST: Edward R. Gordon.

TYPE: Detective serial.

STAGE: Casting for Sixth Episode.

Gaumont.

ADDRESS: Lime Grove, Shepherd's

Bush.

STUDIO MANAGER: B. H. Brom-

head.

FILM: "Roses in the Dust."

DIRECTOR: Captain Calvert.

STARS: Iris Rowe, Gladys Mason.

CAMERAMAN: Basil W. G. Emmott.

SCENARIST: H. Morgan.

STAGE: Fourth week.

Glen Films.

ADDRESS: 20 Lisle Street, W.C.

STUDIO: "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

FILM "Land of my Fathers."

DIRECTOR: Fred Rains.

STARS: Edith Pearson, John

Stuart.

CAMERAMAN: L. G. Egrot.

STAGE: Nearing Completion.

Hardy Film Co.

ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W.1.

STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isle-

worth.

FILM: "Bluff."

SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.

STAGE: Casting.

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.

CAMERAMAN: Germain Berger.

STARS: Marjorie Hume, Lewis

Willoughby.

Harma.

ADDRESS: Limes Grove, Croydon.

FILM: (not titled).

DIRECTOR: Bernard Dudley.

STARS: Marjorie Villis and James

Knight.

CAMERAMAN: J. Mackenzie.

TYPE: Comedy drama.

STAGE: Sixth week.

The Biggest Successes have BENJAMIN COSTUMES

PERSONAL SUPERVISION GUARANTEED in every detail. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

Granger-Binger.

ADDRESS: 191, Wardour Street, W.
STUDIO: Haarlem, Holland.
FILM: "Bluff."
DIRECTOR: F. A. Richardson.
STARS: Maudie Dunham, Henry Victor and Percy Standing.
STAGE: Just Commenced.

Ideal

ADDRESS: Boreham Woods, Elstree
STUDIO MANAGER: A. Kendrick.
STAGE MANAGER: J. Barnard.
FILM: "Sonia."
STARS: Evelyn Brent, Clive Brook.
DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.
SCENARIST: Denison Clift.
CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.
STAGE: Sixth week.
FILM: "The Rotters."
STAGE: Schedule.

International Artists Films.

ADDRESS: 52, Shaftesbury Avenue.
STUDIO: B. & C. Studios, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
FILM: "The Night Hawk."
DIRECTOR: John Gliddon.
STARS: Malvina Longfellow, Henri de Vries.

SCENARIST: Gerard Ford Buckle.
CAMERAMAN: Will Howse.
STAGE: Second week.

Isle of Man Films.

ADDRESS: The Manx Studios, Isle of Man.

FILM: "Flotsam."
DIRECTOR: Edmund Blake.
STAR: Marjorie Battess.
CAMERAMAN: Ernest Melbourne.
STAGE: Nearing Completion.

Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate.

ADDRESS: Riverside Studios, Kew Bridge.
FILM: "The Adventures of Mr Pusher Long."
DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme.
STAR: Dawn Meredith.
TYPE: Comedy.
STAGE: Nearing Completion.

FILM: "M'Lord of the White Road."
DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme.
STAR: Dawn Meredith.
TYPE: Costume Play.
STAGE: Scheduled.

Kinema Expansions.

ADDRESS: Motograph House, St. Martin's Lane, W.C.
FILM: "Ally Sloper, the Friend of Man."

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.
CAMERAMAN: Edward L. Groc.
TYPE: Series of short Comedies.

Master Films.

FILM: "The Marriage Lines."
DIRECTOR: Wilfred Noy.
STAR: Barbara Hoff.
SCENARIST: Wilfred Noy.
CAMERAMAN: Theodore Thumwood.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Completed.

Minerva Films.

ADDRESS: 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1.
FILM: "The Beggar's Syndicate."
DIRECTOR: Adrian Brunel.
STARS: Mary Patterson, Bert Darley, Crispin Hay.
SCENARIST: Adrian Brunel.
SCENARIO-EDITOR: Bernard Carrodus.

CAMERAMAN: Frank Hoffmann.
TYPE: Comedy, drama.
STAGE: Finishing.

North British Productions.

ADDRESS: 6, Princes Square, Harrogate.
FILM: "The Lonely Road."
DIRECTOR: Alfred Van Den Bosen.
STARS: Robert Fenimore, Gwyneth Roden.
STAGE: Fifth week.

Progress.

ADDRESS: Shoreham.
FILM: "Moth and Rust."
DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.
STARS: Sybil Thorndike, Malvina Longfellow, and Langhorne Burton.

SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Completed.

FILM: "Mayor of Casterbridge."

STAR: Fred Groves.

DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
STAGE: Fourth week.

Samuelson.

ADDRESS: Warton Hall, Isleworth.
FILM: Title not fixed.
DIRECTOR: Rex Wilson.
STAR: Isabel Jeans.
STAGE: First week.

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Arfilodre, Hyde, London.

ALLIANCE FILM Co., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.
ASSOCIATED EXHIBITORS FILM Co., LTD., 101, Wardour Street. Studios: 16, Limes Road, Croydon.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmopho, Ealux.

B. P. FILMS, LTD., Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clapham Park.
BRITISH ACTORS' FILM Co., Melbourne Road, Bushey, Herts. 'Phone: Bushey Heath 259—British Actors.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH Co., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow, E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH ART FILMS, Co., LTD., Princes Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford. 'Phone: Chiswick 574.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PICTURES, LTD., Tuilerie Street, Hackney Road, London, E.2. 'Phone: Dalston 3454.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Portsmouth Road, Esher, Surrey. 'Phone: Esher 325.

CAIRNS FILM Co., Watcombe Hall, Torquay. 'Phone: Torquay 886—Cairnsfilm, Torquay.

CENTRAL FILM PRODUCING Co., Eel Pie Island, Twickenham.

DAVIDSON, I. B., 58, Lea Bridge Road, Leyton, E.10. 'Phone: Walthamstow 634.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

FREDERICK WHITE, LTD., Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston, 1617.

GAITY PRODUCTIONS, Wadden New Road, Croydon.

GAUMONT Co., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolougue, 'Phone: London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland, London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exclugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3612. Studio: Candlemass Lane, Beaconsfield.

GLEN FILM PRODUCING Co., LTD., 20, Lisle Street, London, W.C., and "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.
HARMA CLARENDON Co., 16, Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.

IDEAL FILM Co., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Idealfilms, Borehamwood.

ISLE OF MAN FILM Co., The Manx Studios, Isle of Man.

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS FILM Co., LTD., 52, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Cricklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).

KINEMA EXPANSIONS, LTD., Motograph House, St. Martin's Lane, W.C.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MIDLAND ACTORS' FILM Co., 76, Broad Street, Birmingham.

MINERVA FILM Co., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

NEW AGENCY FILM Co., 115a, Ebury Street, London, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 6856.

PARKSTONE FILM Co., LTD., Preston Road, Lytham, Lancs.

PROGRESS FILM Co., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

SAMUELSON FILM Co., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton 2956.

SEAL PRODUCTIONS, Princes Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford. 'Phone: Chiswick 574.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpic, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1933—Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMPSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGNTON PICTOPLAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & Co., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.

WILSONIAN FILM PRODUCING Co., LTD. Secretary, W. J. Crook, 547, Wandsworth Road, S.W.

ZODIAC FILMS, Windsor Studios, Bromley Road, Catford. 'Phone: Lee Green, 948.

Seal.

ADDRESS: Prince's Studio, Kew Bridge.
FILM: "Dick's Fairy."
DIRECTOR: Bert Wynne.
STARS: Hargreaves Munsell, Joan Griffith, and Albert Brantford.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: John Wyndham.
SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.
CAMERAMAN: L. Protheroe.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Completed.

Screen Plays.

ADDRESS: Cranmer Court, Clapham S.W.
STUDIO MANAGER: Douglas Payne.
FILM: Grand Guignol series.
DIRECTORS: Fred Paul and Jack Raymond.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Rodwell.
TYPE: Short melodramas.
STAGE: Producing one a week.

Sinclair Hill Productions.

ADDRESS: Jay's Agency, Wardour Street, London, W.
FILM: Comedy.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: S. D. Bra-hame.
TYPE: Straight Comedy.
STAGE: Scheduled.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Cricklewood.
STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman.
FILM: "The Fruitful Vine."
DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.
CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.
STAGE: Fifth week.

FILM: "The Prey of the Dragon."
DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.
STAR: Victor McLaglen.
CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "General John Regan."
DIRECTOR: Harold Shaw.
STAGE: Completed.

FILM: "The Pointing Finger."
DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.
STARS: Milton Rosmer, Madge Stuart.
CAMERAMAN: Al Moses.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Finishing.

H. W. Thompson.

ADDRESS: B. & C. Studio, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
FILM: "The Wonderful Year."
DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.
STARS: Marie Odette, Lionelle Howard.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Grace Rose.
SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.
EDITOR: John Miller.
CAMERAMAN: Frank Canham.
ASSISTANT CAMERAMAN: Pat Quinn.
TYPE: Light French Drama.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Welsh Pearson.

ADDRESS: Craven Park, Willesden
FILM: "Squibs."
DIRECTOR: George Pearson.
STARS: Betty Balfour, Fred Groves
SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.
CAMERAMAN: Emile Lauste.
SCENIC ARTIST: Ernest Jones.
TYPE: Comedy.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.
Zodiac.
FILM: "Walter in the Studio."
STAR: Walter Forde.
TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.
STAGE: Second week.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIESTUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

You cannot do better than by placing your orders with L. BENJAMIN & CO. 99, Middlesex Street, E.1.
'Phone—Lond. n Wall 7568.

3

to read
and enjoy

To every true lover of the Movies these three journals are absolutely indispensable, if he or she is to understand and enjoy the films.

PICTUREGOER

Monthly - - - One Shilling

The most beautiful Magazine of the Movies published. Magnificent art plates, stories, interviews, etc.—a veritable Budget of good things.

PICTURES

Every Monday - - - 2d.

All the week's news, sound criticisms and views on Movie matters. Profusely illustrated. The oldest established and most popular film weekly.

FILM FICTION

Monthly - - - 6d.

The month's best pictures in story form. Intensely interesting. A permanent souvenir of your favourite films.

Order all Three
from your Newsagent.

JUST PUBLISHED.

The

PICTUREGOER
PORTFOLIO

or

KINEMA CELEBRITIES

Contains the following:

SIXTEEN MAGNIFICENT PHOTOGRAVURE
PORTRAITS, Size, 10in. x 6½in.

MARY PICKFORD.	PEARL WHITE.
NORMA TALMADGE.	LILIAN GISH.
CHARLES CHAPLIN.	RICHARD BARTHELMESS.
DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS.	WILLIAM FARNUM.
NAZIMOVA.	PAULINE FREDERICK.
MARY MILES MINTER.	CONSTANCE TALMADGE.
WILLIAM S. HART.	THOMAS MEIGHAN.
RALPH GRAVES.	JACKIE COOGAN.

All worth Framing. Price

ONE SHILLING

(Post free 1½)

On Sale everywhere or direct from

PICTURES LTD.

88, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

EVERY FILM LOVER MUST HAVE A COPY.The MOTION PICTURE
Studio

The only weekly journal devoted solely to the interests of all concerned in the Production of British Motion Pictures.

Editorial and Advertisement Offices:
85, LONG ACRE, LONDON, W.C. 2.

Grams: Southernwood, Rand, London.
Telephone: ———— Gerrard 9870.

ADVERTISEMENT RATES

	One insertion	Six inser- tions (per insertion)
Front Cover	£6 10 0	£6 0 0
Back Cover	£6 0 0	£5 15 0
Full page	£5 10 0	£5 7 6
Half page	£3 0 0	£2 17 6
Third page	£2 5 0	£2 2 6
Quarter page	£1 15 0	£1 12 6
Sixth page	£1 5 0	£1 2 6
Eighth page	£1 0 0	18 9
Twelfth page	12 6	11 3
Per inch (single column)	5 0	4 6

(Blockmaking extra)

Professional Cards:

Photo Cards, 1 in. deep £3 0 0 per quarter year.
(Inclusive of Blockmaking)

1 in. Cards (without blockmaking) £2 10 0
per quarter year.

Small Cards 17/6 per quarter year

Make certain of securing your copy regularly each week by filling in the Subscription Order Form and post with remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER FORM

TO The Manager.

"MOTION PICTURE STUDIO,"

85, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

Please send "THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO" to me at the following address for months, for which

I enclose remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION
RATES

3 Months - 5/-
6 " - 10/-
Yearly - 20/-

Name

Address to which copies are to be sent:

.....

.....

The MOTION PICTURE Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 9.

Saturday, August 6, 1921.

FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH MOTION
PICTURES

FRANCIS INNYS

WHO IS NOW AP-PEARING IN JOHN
GLIDDON'S PRODUC-TION, "THE NIGHT HAWK," THE PRE-MIERE OF THE IN-TERNATIONAL
ARTISTS' FILM CO.,
LTD.

Photo by] [Malcolm Arbuthnot.

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross," Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance,"
219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Now playing lead in "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" (Ideal). Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.
Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
'Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.
Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds," "The Knight Errant," "Haigh Serial," "Love Maggie."
4 Park Place, St. James, S.W. Regent 4060.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."
31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.
Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal), "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).
c/o Sidney Jay, 121, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

Juvenile Leads: "Her Son," "Great Gay Road," "Lights of Home," "Land of My Fathers," Duane in "Belle of the Gambling Den" (Haigh Serial).
OFFERS INVITED.
33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelm Foss Production). Latest Release, "With All Her Heart."
All coms: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, Regent 4329.

VICTOR McLAGLEN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.
Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack."
Address—N.S.C.

THIS SPACE TO LET.
17s. 6d. for 13 insertions.

ARTISTES

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES.
LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs. NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc.
Carlton House, Kew
Green, Kew, Surrey.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.
"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.
:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::
Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.
Open to accept engagement 1st August.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"
"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House,"
"Wuthering Heights," etc.
148, AMHURST ROAD, HACKNEY.
'Phone: Dalston 813.

DICK WEBB

Lead GAUMONT,
MASTER PRODUCTIONS, etc.
180, Elmhurst Mansions,
Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late
Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc.
HARDY FILM CO.
All coms: c/o Sidney Jay,
181, Wardour Street, W.1.

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.
197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph. Batt. 1770 or 21.

CLIVE BROOK
INVITES OFFERS.
24, Hyde Park Square, W.2. Padd. 2868.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT,
Disengage 1 July 4. 'Phone: Walthamstow 938.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,
15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.
'Phone: Hornsey 1784.

CHARLES CLIFFORD,
38, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.2.
'Phone: Regent 569.

CRISPIN HAY,
c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,
12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,
Character, Comedy.
114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

HARDING STEERMAN,
Characters of Distinction,
56, Port and Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,
24, Cleveland Road,
Parnes, S.W.13.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,
Character Parts,
57, Church Street Kensington, W.8.

COSTUMIER

W. CLARKSON,
Costumier and Wigmaker,
41/43, Wardour Street, W. 'Phone: Gerr. 612.

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,

14a, Little Ealing Lane,
:: South Ealing ::
'Phone: Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
"The Face at the Window."
Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON

Producing for Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd.
Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,

Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and "CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."
Five years producer in America. At Liberty.
Address: 1A, DENBIGH PLACE, VICTORIA.

S. L. GLENISTER

Professionally Major Comnenus-Palæologus,
PRODUCER, TECHNICAL & ART DIRECTOR.
"Under the Crescent," "Dumb Girl of Portici,"
"Campbells are Coming," "Where are My Children?"
etc., for UNIVERSAL. "The Arab," for LASKY.
"Less than Dust," for ART-CRAFT, etc., etc. Open
for Engagement. Address: 25, Randolph Crescent,
W. 9. 'Phone: Paddington 3819.

GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer
THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.
Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,
Hoe St., Walthamstow, E.17.

THIS SPACE
TO LET £2 : 10 : 0
for 13 insertions

ADRIAN BRUNEL,
Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone: 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK,
Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

Mr. ALBERT WARD,
Producing and Adapting for Samuelson, Wotton Hall, Isleworth.

STUDIO MANAGER

JOHN A. GEEVES,
Studio Manager—
B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,
Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
'Telephone: W'stow 364.'

CAMERAMEN. . . .JOHN J. COX

44, Barrowgate Road,

:: Chiswick, W.4. ::

Phone: Chiswick 294.

Cameraman for Mr. Rene Plaissetty,
Stoll Picture Productions.T. R. THUMWOOD

Cameraman—AT LIBERTY.

Latest work: "The Channings," "Hard
Cash," "Stella" and "Miss Charity."

MASTER BUTCHER PRODUCTIONS.

"PEMBROKE," CHEAM COMMON RD,
WORCESTER PARK.EDWIN DAY

Motion Picture Photographer,

12, Archer Street, Picca-
dilly Circus, London, W.1.

Telephone: Gerrard 780.

Telegrams: "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON

Thelton House, Cambolt

:: Road, Putney Hill. ::

Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN

"GAUMONT'S,"

105, King's Road,

Kingston-on-Thames.

FRANK CANHAM

ASTRA FILM CO., LTD.

Now turning on "The Wonderful Year."

Permanent Address: Royal Forest
Hotel, Chingford, Essex.BASIL W. G. EMMOTT

GAUMONT,

:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::

Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT

Expert Cameraman.

"The Better 'Ole," "Her Benny,"
etc., etc.

2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.

Phone: Streatham 1959.

WILLIAM SHENTON

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Private Address:

17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,

Boreham Wood, Herts.

CAMERAMEN. . . .JAMES E. ROGERS,

Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth.

"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"

"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"

"Last Rose of Summer,"

PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

ALFRED H. MOSES

Chief Cameraman—

GEORGE RIDGWELL PRODUCTIONS

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS

Formerly Chief Cameraman of Norma

Talmadge, Thanhouser, B. & C., etc.

SCENARISTS. . . .COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,

:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.

7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11

(Phone: Park 2945).

THIS SPACE TO LET

£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,

Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.

62, Foxburn Road, Balham, S.W.17.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,

Kinodramatist,

Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

PUBLICITY. . . .F. J. STANDERWICK,

Photographer.

I am making a speciality of Catering for
Film Artists. Phone for appointment—
Western 1353. Hammersmith 1353. Studio
—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
W.14.FRANK J. WOOLF

Publicity Representative,

British and Colonial Kinematograph
Company, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone: Walthamstow 364.

EDWARD BAIRD

Publicity.

172, Goldhurst Terrace, N.W.6.

MILTON ROSMER

Starring in

"The Pointing Finger,"

"A Woman of No Importance,"

"The Amazing Partnership,"

"Demos," "The Diamond Necklace,"

"Belphegor the Mountebank,"

"The Will," "The Twelve Pound

Look," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

88, NEWMAN ST., W.1.

Phone

Museum 5145

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer

of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H. MALINS, O.B.E.

Producer

Latest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE."

"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"

"SETTLED IN FULL,"

"ALL THE WINNERS,"

"WATCHING EYES," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,

25, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

WHO EDITED IT?When the spokesman of a party of Fleet Street Editors says of an important Travel Film that "the editing is better than anything of the kind I have seen," it's surely worth asking who did it?With an eye on that next film of yours, you might like to know that it wasHARRY HUGHES,

Editing, Titling, Continuities.

128, Jermyn Street, S.W.1

Regent 2592.

Bramlins

.....

Have been casting for TWELVE FILMS within a fortnight

Verb. Sap.

.....

Bramlins

241, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.C.2.

Telegrams :
Bramlifilms
(Westcent),
London.

Telephone :
Museum
4038-4039.

Editorial and Advertisement
Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 9.

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

August 6, 1921

Is there a Slump?

ON all sides we are continually hearing a chorus of wails as to the terrible times that the British studios are passing through. The Jeremiahs point to closed studios and bemoan the fact that there remains little in film life to live for. And in the Trade Press, with the solitary exception of The Kinematograph Weekly, which has evidenced a refreshing spirit of sturdy robust optimism, there has been a unanimity of opinion to the same effect. Knowing how easy it is to utter falsehood with enough repetition and vehemence for it to be mistaken for truth we are inclined seriously to question whether there is the abnormal slump that is complained of.

* * *

Pro and Con.

ON looking through the "Pulse of the Studio" we discover that there are, at the lowest computation, thirty-three companies hard at work. A year ago, when, so we are now told, there was no slump, there were not twenty companies at work. Surely the increase of fifty per cent. cuts dead across the jeremiads of the pessimists. These doleful folks also point to the fact that certain studios have closed down. Admittedly; but for every producing unit that has ceased operations during the last three months we can point to two others that have come into existence and taken their place. This again, traverses the lamentations of the pessimists.

* * *

The Public as Master.

AS a matter of fact, there is a break in the sensational advances that the film world was making some time ago. But there is no abnormal slump. In fact, there can be no abnormal slump so long as the kinema retains its present popularity. It is The Public that determines the advance or decline of the studio, not any particular section of the Trade. Renters may squabble with Exhibitors, but both are powerless in the face of the demand of The Public.

When the Slump Comes.

SO far as the producing end of the business is concerned the important point to note is this: The Public is not the fool it has been credited with being. The Public refuses to have its intelligence insulted by photo plays that would bore a kindergarten. It means to have amusement of genuine value, and if the kinema cannot provide this it will go somewhere else. There is no abnormal or unreasonable slump at the moment—the falling off is a natural one due to the holiday season and the unusual tropical weather. But there will be a real and, we fear, a final slump if the only program that The Public can obtain at kinemas is and the Continent is merit. The Public does not care to enquire the country of origin; it only troubles to make sure that the film is good. Some of our methods must be scrapped and our vision must be broadened, for we have to recognise that to obtain supremacy we have to spare neither trouble, brain-power nor expense to provide The Public with what it wants—best quality films.

* * *

Excuses are Unavailing.

IN this connection we consider that the time has come when British pictures should not be judged in a class apart. Hitherto the tendency has been to make excuses for the defects of our productions. We have pointed to our lack of money and facilities as well as our climatic conditions. In fact, Press critics have often been informed that to judge a British film by the same standard as Americans is unfair. This is not good ethics. Nor is it good business. For this reason: The Public has not two sets of criteria, one for judging American, and one for judging British, films by. The Public judges all films alike by the one standard: "Is it good entertainment?" And so we urge all engaged in British productions to cease finding excuses for any defects. Do not plead the circumstances in which the films were made in excuse for their shortcomings. Adverse circumstances must be overcome. As Carlyle said: "Circumstances are the rulers of the weak; they are the instruments of the strong."

* * *

Coming to an Agreement.

AN attempt has been made by the C.E.A., the Renters' Society and the K.M.A., to come to an agreement on certain vexed topics and one of the clauses in this Agreement is the fixing of the release of films at not less than six months after the trade show. This is a step in the right direction. But it is a belated step.

BILLIE BRISTOW

who, for the past three years, has acted as Press Agent for the Broadwest Film Company, and has handled exclusively all publicity for Violet Hopson, Stewart Rome, Gregory Scott, Cameron Carr and Pauline Peters, is now an independent Press Agent, and is open to conduct publicity campaigns for film companies, directors and artistes.

All enquiries should be addressed to—

175, WARDOUR STREET, LONDON, W.1.

'Phone : GERRARD 240.

a round of invertebrate, insipid pictures.

* * *

The Key of the Situation.

UNHESITATINGLY we say that the future of the whole industry is in the hands of the producing units because they are the nearest to The Public. They supply the demand of The Public. No amount of good music or stage prologues will delude The Public and make it believe that junk is "the most wonderful film ever." The Public can get good music at the concert hall and good stage plays at the "legitimate" theatre. It goes to the kinema for really good photo-plays and it is up to the British producing units to deliver the goods. We would warn firms and directors that the only thing that will tell in the competitive battle for film supremacy with America

FILM EDITING

In many British studios the editing of films is done by the director, but the time is coming when in each studio will be the man whose sole duty is to sort the chaff from the wheat of the raw negative. The film editor's existence is primarily necessitated by the fact that the director has to shoot scenes out of story-sequence.

Writing in The Picturegoer this month, P.R.M. (a film editor) says:—"In a film I recently edited, a long-shot was taken of the hero bending forward to embrace the heroine. Almost immediately the scene faded into a close-up, so that the movements leading up to the actual kiss were enlarged.

"For the sake of realism, these two scenes had to exactly coincide where the posing of the characters was concerned. But often the director forgets just how the actors stood in his long-shot, and alters them for the close-up. This is what happened with the lovers on this occasion. In the first picture the hero had his right arm round the heroine, whilst his left held her hand, but in the close-up both his arms encircled her waist. There was only one cure, and that was the introduction of a sub-title, suggesting that time had elapsed between the long-shot and the close-up. I filled the breach with the wording, 'An hour passed, and still they dreamed in love's garden.' Ananias has nothing on a harassed film editor!"

On the film editor rests the responsibility for the correct use of sub-titles so that they accentuate the thrill in situations or emphasise the humour or pathos of the scene. Of this, P.R.M. says:—

"The film editor, through the printed word which flashes on to the screen, must endeavour to create the feeling amongst the audience that they are moving for the time being amongst the characters in the play. In the store chambers of his mind he has to collect a multitude of mental puppets, ranging from cowboys to melodramatic villains. He is responsible for the tabloid humour necessary for comedy sub-titles, and the 'meaty' melodramatic phrases beloved by the serial fans. Always they must be perfectly in key with the action around them. They must be light, if surface emotions are being depicted on the screen; heavy and gripping if the action is dramatic and tense. And all the time it has to be remembered that the titles must build up the interest of the picture, and not describe what is to be shown on the screen."

P.R.M. was for two years the editor of a "topical," and these years he describes as the most strenuous of his career. "For concentrated bustle there is no atmosphere like that of the developing, printing, and projecting rooms of the offices of a topical film company when scoops are in process of being sped to the screen. Figures flit, silently about the great dark rooms beneath the sombre glow of the ruby lamps, whilst cog-wheels, dials, and dynamos play their part in hurling great lengths of film into a finished condition. And the film editor, on whose judgment the success of the film largely depends, has to keep as cool as a cucumber, although thousands of feet of film race before his eyes in the theatre, which approximates to the sanctum of a newspaper editor."

There is much to be learned of the work of the film editor, and those who aspire to this position in studio life must be prepared for strenuous times; weeks of hard graft. But P.R.M. says:—"It is a life which has its share of triumphs, disappointments, and disillusion, but once one has trod its paths the fascination of shaping the destinies of the denizens of shadowland always remains."

SCREEN MAKE-UP BY AN AMERICAN ARTISTE

I will tell you just how I change my face into that of a cruel, ignorant woman of the lower classes, whose features bear the imprint of a life spent amidst squalid surroundings.

First of all I use plenty of cold cream to cleanse the skin, so that it will be smooth and ready for the make-up. Then I place a foundation of grease-paint over my face. Being a brunette I use white grease-paint; but a blonde would utilise a shade of pink.

The paint has to be massaged into the skin with the finger-tips until it presents a smooth surface. Then the base for the building up of the new face is ready.

Now a stick of brown grease-paint comes into operation. Five lines are traced across the forehead six lines between the eyes, and one under each eye. To lengthen the nose I place a brown line on each side, and to suggest a drooping mouth I carry a line from each nostril, and down the cheeks. By means of dark grease-paint I create an apparent hollowiness of the neck.

All these lines have to be carefully blended with the finger-tips so that there are no sharp edges or smudges.

Tan-coloured powder is then applied to the face and neck. It has to be patted and not rubbed on to the skin, so that the delicate lines of grease-paint do not smear.

Lip rouge alters the mouth to the necessary hard and thin lines, and black grease-paint can transform the eyebrows into a shape which aids towards suggesting a stupid expression.

The hair is brushed back from the forehead, and allowed to droop carelessly over the ears. The mouth is compressed to give the necessary hard line, and the head bent slightly forward to rob it of any suggestion of grace or poise.

A final touch with the powder-puff, and yours truly, Agnes Marc, has the face of a woman of the slum class.

ALLIANCE BUSY

Harley Knoles, the Director General of Productions (who now takes over the managing directorship of Alliance Film Corporation, Ltd.), has started his plans on another stupendous production entitled "The Bohemian Girl," and he will adapt Balfe's world-famous opera as a picture production which promises to equal his great masterpiece, "Carnival" in power and effect.

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES

No. VII.—FRANCIS INNYS.

Stated to be one of the most promising of our screen comedians, Francis Innys is now on "stock" with International Artists' and is at present playing in John Gliddon's production of "The Night Hawk," an adaptation of Eden Phillpotts' well-known sea story, "The Haven."

John Gliddon states that Innys is a real discovery, especially so as prior to "The Night Hawk," he played straight parts exclusively. He owes his introduction to films to George Clark (of George Clark Productions), and made his film debut last year. He has since appeared in many productions, including "My Lord Conceit," "Frailty," "Carmen," "Speed," "A Sportsman's Wife," "The Mystery Road," "The Woman of his Dreams," etc.

He is a very keen golfer, something better than scratch, and always takes his clubs with him when he goes away. The company was filming in a very small Spanish village on the sea coast recently, and having a morning off, he took his clubs down to the sea shore which, when the tide was out, stretched for miles in a long expanse of sand.

Having made one particularly good drive, he began to pace out the distance to get the length. He had not gone far, however, when he was approached by the village policeman, who had evidently been watching him for some time. As he could not speak a word of Spanish, and the policeman could not speak a word of English, he was promptly arrested and taken to the police station. He was released in half an hour after having satisfied the authorities that he was not a lunatic at large, and that the clubs he carried were for playing golf—not for any sinister purpose!

Francis Innys is of a debonair type, quick in thought and action, and, so it is declared, an actor whose natural gifts become apparent without intrusion. If John Gliddon's prediction is proved—if Francis Innys does add his name to the few who can register unforced humour on the screen, his advent will be more welcome than the proverbial "flowers in the spring."

NEW PRODUCING COMPANY

A new producing company, to be known as British Photoplay Productions, Ltd., is now in course of formation at Torquay. During the last fortnight or so good progress has been made towards this end, and the new concern proposes to commence operations immediately on the screen version of the popular stage play, "Where the Rainbow Ends."

The locations of the production will be Torquay, Lydford Gorge, and Becky Falls (Dartmoor), and Cheddar (Somerset).

Lisle Lucoque, who has supervised the making of films in America, Africa and England, will be the director. Mr. Lucoque states that all his British productions had been filmed in Devon, and as everything a director could possibly require was available in that neighbourhood, he had no intention of invading any other part of the country.

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

In order to obtain correct detail for his next production, "Justice," Myron Selznick, of America, has sent his art director, James Fosdick, to this country. He will spend two weeks taking notes and sketches in the criminal courts and in Reading Gaol. Mr. Selznick says: "I looked at several British films, and in many important phases the various British directors contradicted each other as to the correct legal procedure in various details." What an accusation! We really ought to have the names of the offenders.

At last Bertram Phillips has got his studios at Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clapham Park, ship-shape, and I am glad to note that they will be used for the production of films for a newly formed company—British and Oriental Films. The chairman of the board is Lord Meston, K.C.S.I., a late Lieut.-Governor of Agra, and another director is Lieut.-Colonel E. W. Gabriel, C.S.I., late of Rajputana. The plan is to produce films of Indian subjects for India, and to produce films in India for this country. To further this object, an Associated Indian Company will shortly be formed, which will erect and operate theatres in India. The financial position, I am assured, is very secure. Bertram Phillips and Nirangan Pal are the directors of productions.

Upon the completion of "Peter Ibbetson," George Fitzmaurice has come to London, where he will produce a series of pictures at F.P.-Lasky studios. A number of American stars will be sent from America to London to play leading roles in the productions.

Margot Asquith will be able to add to her "Memoirs"—she has paid a visit to the Ideal studios. She said she "wouldn't play for the pictures for a million a minute; their terrible slowness would kill me!" She thought film-making was "monotonous, but funny." Monotonous, perhaps; but funny—? It depends on whether you are a player or the wife of a politician looking on.

Elsewhere we print the latest statement of the plans of Broadwest, but I take this opportunity of wishing success to Billie Bristow, who is starting out as an independent Publicity Expert. We journalists have always agreed that Miss Bristow is one of the smartest Publicity Experts in the business, and those who have used her abilities in the past will corroborate this.

She has handled the Broadwest publicity for the past three years, during which time she has secured valuable prominence for Violet Hopson, Stewart Rome, Greg Scott, Poppy Wyndham, Pauline Peters, Mercy Hatton and Clive Brook among many others. Her arrangement of the

It is with regret that we have to record the death of Cosmo Gordon-Lennox, who came into considerable prominence in the film world on account of his scenarios, which have been used for several photoplays, the last being "The Puppet Man," which B. and C. has just finished. The author was given the "right of interest" claimed by E. Temple Thurston, in that he was enabled to accompany the B. and C. company to the Tyrol for the filming of the story.

Cosmo Gordon-Lennox was the husband of Marie Tempest, the actress. As actor and playwright, Mr. Gordon-Lennox was well known, and the latter pursuit brought him much money.

But not all his wealth came from this source, for his mother was an heiress—one of the Townleys of Lancashire. Through her he was a cousin of Lord Hagan, and through his father of the Duke of Richmond and Gordon.

ON THE FLOOR

With MAURICE ELVEY.

On everything that is done in an Elvey production is the unmistakable imprint of the personality of the director. To study Maurice Elvey's work is to become conscious of his acute painstaking care in detail work. While distributing responsibility as a wise general, yet he all the time keeps his hand on everything that is done. Which, again, is the sign of the wise general.

Watching him on the floor one is forced to admire his sublime patience—a patience that is a result of his knowledge of what he wants and his tenacity of purpose in working, watching and waiting until he gets it. Very gently he will talk to the artiste, imparting directions, and if the artiste fails to obtain the right effect Elvey will have her aside and talk in a whisper to her until she begins to feel the emotions he wants her to portray.

In mass scenes he is also seen as a master of men. With—or without—the use of the megaphone he will succeed in stirring up the necessary excitement so that the mob (assuming it is a rebellion or a fight) will stampede in a riot of fear that is more real than fictitious.

Scottish tour of Violet Hopson proved her capacity for organisation, as did the Mi-Carême Carnival at the Hyde Park Hotel which she organised in conjunction with Lady Angela Forbes. Miss Bristow also handled the publicity for Fox. She has good journalistic experience, having been sub-editor of Pictures and on the staff of the National News, as well as having done much free-lance work.

My congratulations to Phyllis Joyce, who announced to her associates in J. Stuart Blackton's photoplay, "The Glorious Adventure," one day last week, that she would be married in the evening to Geoffrey Wilmer. While Miss Joyce was acting with Mr. Blackton in the studio, her fiancé was working in the adjoining studio, where he is assistant to George Ridgwell, who was directing for Stoll. When Miss Joyce and Mr. Wilmer appeared in the studio luncheon-room after the news of their approaching wedding became known, they were greeted all around with congratulations. Lady Diana Manners hastened to congratulate the happy couple. It is interesting to note that Mr. Ridgwell was an assistant to Mr. Blackton at the Vitagraph studios in America years ago.

Passengers by the Dundee, Perth, and London Shipping Company's steamer "Perth" from London to the Tay last week had an instructive experience. After leaving the Thames, the "Perth" became for a time an Australian liner, and a number of scenes were shot in ideal weather conditions. While the Australian flag flew at the stern, a series of love and other episodes to be used in a Stoll photoplay were filmed. The principal role was taken by Gladys Jennings, while the passengers and members of the ship's company acted as supers.

So far, I have not heard the fate of the enterprising, if somewhat shabby-looking, gentleman who was seen standing outside the Wardour Street office of a big producing firm, last week, with a camera to which was attached a notice offering "your photo while you wait for the ridiculously low charge of 3d." This is the latest version of carrying coals to Newcastle. It only wanted a leading artiste to stop and be photographed to complete the situation. "MEGAPHONE."

Where they are and

Mme. D'Esterne is in "Bluff" (Hardy).

James Lake is in the cast of "Bluff" (Hardy).

Leonard Robson is to play in "Bluff" for Hardy Films.

Francis Innys is playing juvenile lead in "The Night Hawk."

Marjorie Hume is to be the leading lady in "Bluff" (Hardy).

Jack Parker is on the photographic staff of Frederick White Productions.

Sydney Paxton, who has been playing with Ideal, is to play for Hardy in "Bluff."

John Stuart is playing juvenile lead in "The Haigh Serial" (Frederick White).

Cyril E. Murrell is busy writing scenarios for two-reel comedies, several of which are in the director's hands at the moment.

Fred W. Durrant is still with Harma; his "No. 7, Brick Row" has now been completed.

Colette Bretel is playing in "The Haigh Serial" for Frederick White at the Master Studios.

Lawrence Steerman has been provided with a prominent part in the Hardy film, "Bluff."

Ewart Scott has been provided with a part in the Hardy film version of "Bluff," the Sabatini story.

Theodore Thumwood is cranking for Edward R. Gordon in "The Haigh Serial" (Frederick White).

Lewis Willoughby has been engaged to play male lead in "Bluff," which Geoffrey Malins is to direct for Hardy Films.

Malcolm Todd has been engaged for a leading part in "The Haigh Serial" (Frederick White), which Edward R. Gordon is directing.

Isabel Jeans plays the important part of Sylvia in "Tilly of Bloomsbury" (Samuelson). She is the daughter-in-law of the Bishop of Birmingham.

Albert Brouette, who is well known in France as a revue artist and has just finished playing at the London Pavilion, has been engaged to play in "Bluff" for Hardy Films.

Bert Darley has now finished with Minerva, with which he has been playing a leading part in its latest comedy, and has now been engaged to star in a production to be commenced forthwith by a new producing company.

Camera Bargains—Largest selection of professional and topical instruments in London, all makers—English, American and Continental. Write stating exact requirements, special quotations post free, or call and inspect our stock, Cash or Easy Payment Terms. Apparatus accepted in exchange, Strict approval terms willingly.

THE KINEMATOGRAPH EXCHANGE,
81 Aldersgate Street, E.C.1.

Constance Worth is playing for Harma.

G. Robathan is with Harma as assistant cameraman.

Florence Nelson is now playing in Harma's untitled film.

Heaton Grey is in the cast of the latest Harma production.

Leslie Eveleigh is on the photographic staff of the Harma studio.

John Mackenzie is cranking for Bernard Dudley on his Harma production.

Paddy Burke has formed a producing company of her own to make productions in which she will star.

Ernest Spalding has been working in an important part in the Harma film (un-titled) which Bernard Dudley is directing.

Henri de Vries plays John Major in "The Night Hawk" (International Artists).

Robert Fenimore, who is playing lead in "The Lonely Road" (North British Productions), is also on the board of directors.

Alfred Vanden Bosch has been secured from Belgium by North British Productions to direct the production of "The Lonely Road."

Gwyneth Roden, who has played with Eclipse and Mercanton in France, is now playing female lead in "The Lonely Road" (North British Productions).

Edward R. Gordon has completed two more episodes in "The Haigh Serial." These are "The Queen of the Gambling Hell" and "The Notorious Mrs. Fagan." He is now casting for the next episode.

Nadja Ostrovska, the Russian actress, is playing in "The Night Hawk" for International Artists.

Bertram Phillips has been appointed one of the directors of productions for British and Oriental Films.

Max Gionti has been playing the leading comedian rôle in the series of one-reel comedies that Geoffrey Malins has been directing for Kinema Expansions.

Gerard Ford Buckle is responsible for the adaptation of Eden Philpott's "The Haven," which John Gleddon is directing, under the working title of "The Night Hawk," for International Artists.

—DO YOU—

Whether Davidson's studios is working at top pressure or the reverse?

* * *

Why Frank J. Arlston refused to join the cast of "The Glorious Adventure"?

* * *

How Mrs. Asquith enjoyed visiting the Ideal studios; and—

* * *

How the Ideal folk "enjoyed" it?

* * *

Why Harold Shaw left Stoll; and—

* * *

If he is now in Paris?

* * *

Who will be the lucky firm to get Freddie Granville?

* * *

If it is true that a certain well-known West End public house has opened a casting department?

THE KINEMA CLUB

As our recent issues have conclusively proved, there is an overwhelming desire for the immediate formation of the proposed Club for studio workers. From every department of studio work have come opinions in favour of this, and in response to these we have made some inquiries, the result of which is that we are able to announce that in the course of the next few days the Club will be launched.

For some years there have been requests for a Club, and at least one ambitious attempt to launch one has been made. We are of the opinion that rather than dilly-dally with elaborate schemes involving prospectuses and other lavish preliminaries, a start should be made in a less pretentious manner. Once started the club will grow of itself.

It should be pointed out that the idea is to keep the Club exclusive to those engaged in the production of films; this will not include renters or exhibitors.

The only objection that appears to be at all well grounded is that directors will be besieged by the "screen-struck" and "gifted amateurs" on the premises. There is no fear of this for obvious reasons:

only those with previous experience could become members of the Club, and further, there is as much possibility of "supers" seeking jobs as there is in the Vaudeville Club of out-of-work actors button-holing play-producers.

On the other hand, some directors have expressed their belief that such a club would be invaluable for finding the players they required, and certainly they would always have an address to which to write to players with a good chance of finding them.

It is not for us to commit the committee (that will be formed to consider the matter), to any set policy, but there is much to be said for the suggestion made by a prominent director that there should be a Central Management Committee which would control the whole establishment, including the refreshment room and bar and the main hall, while the surrounding rooms would be let to the various societies which were affiliated to the Club. This committee would be composed of delegates from all the affiliated societies and would be responsible for the maintenance of the Club as a financial and social success.

The Club could be run as a limited

what they are doing

W. G. Clifford prepared the scenario of "The Candy Man" for Broadwest.

Sinclair Hill has returned to Stoll to direct "The Experiment."

Milton Rosmer has now finished playing the comedy part of Dr. O'Grady in Stoll's "General John Regan."

Frank J. Woolf is still acting as publicity expert for B. and C. as well as being the London representative of the New York Dramatic Mirror.

C. H. Croker King has been engaged to play the part of Phil in "The Experiment" for Stoll.

—K N O W—

The name of the next film actress who is to form her own producing company?

* * *

That our next issue is to be a special "Bigamist" (George Clark) number; and—

* * *

The following issue is to be a special "Scenarists Number," with new features including "The Scenario Market," which gives the requirements of the producing companies?

* * *

That Geoffrey Benstead, at present playing Haig's friend in "The Haig Serial," is a billiard player of no mean order from the Antipodes; and—

* * *

That he is desirous of meeting another player on the production side of the trade in a friendly match for the cause of St. Dunstan's?

Eric Courtenay is the scenario editor for Regulus Films.

Crispin Hay is acting as scenario editor for Minerva Films.

E. Coble is cranking for Regulus in "Teddy Laughs Last."

Clive Brook is to play in "The Experiment" for Stoll (Sid Jay booking).

Madge Stuart is to play the title-rôle in Stoll's "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills."

Minnie Grey has been booked by Sid Jay for "All Roads Lead to Calvary" (Thompson).

Irene Rooke has been playing the part of Lady Sarah Ides in "The Fruitful Vine" (Stoll).

Maudie Durham has now finished playing the heroine part in "Bluff" (Granger-Binger) and is due back in London this week.

Evelyn Brent has finished "Sonia" for Ideal and has been booked by Jay for the lead in "The Experiment" (Stoll).

Lennox Pawle is playing the part of the gay diarist, Samuel Pepys, in the Blackton production, "The Glorious Adventure."

Fred Le Roy Granville, who returned to America after directing Peggy Hyland in "The Honeypot" and "Love Maggie," is coming back to this country again. He is due back next week, and Sid Jay is open to book him.

Mary Odette, who has been booked by Sid Jay for the last three Thompson productions, has now been booked by him for "No. 5, John Street," and "All Roads Lead to Calvary" (Thompson). Jay handles all her bookings.

Harold Shaw has left Stoll.

Joan Morgan is playing lead in "A Lowland Cinderella" (Progress).

Sydney Paxton is to be one of the "rotters" in Ideal's picture "The Rotters."

Kenelm Foss is busy with the editing of "The Wonderful Year" (Thompson Productions).

Peter Upcher is to tour the variety halls in a sketch written around him and his horse.

Langhorne Burton is working in "The Bonnie Briar Bush" at the F.P. Lasky studios.

Teddy O'Neil has finished his work in the part of the publican in "General John Regan" for Stoll.

Ena Beaumont is playing in the Ally-Sloper Comedies now being produced by Kinema Expansions.

A. V. Bramble has finished casting for "The Rotters," which he is to direct at Ideal's Elstree studios.

Peggy Fishwick has been working for Denison Clift at the Ideal Studios. She has a part in "Sonia."

Sydney Fairbrother has now been engaged for the part of leading lady in "The Rotters," Ideal's latest production.

Malvina Longfellow is playing the part of "Lydia," the wife of the skipper of The Night Hawk, in "The Night Hawk" (International Artists).

Milton Elmore is at work at Barker's Studios, where he is directing the production of "Teddy Laughs Last," a two-reel comedy, for Regulus Films.

Audrey Edwardes has been working at the Barker's studios for some time past in a prominent part in the Regulus comedy—"Teddy Laughs Last."

Felix Orman, the literary director of the Stuart Blackton Photoplays, is, we regret to learn, to go into hospital immediately, and will probably be absent for over a month. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Dalton Somers has now settled his eighth contract with Stoll. He is now playing the part of Gwi in "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills," under the direction of Martin Thornton.

Hugh Muller, during his stay in the Tyrol, where he was working for the B.T.C. production, "The Puppet Man," married Olga Katzin in Paris. He was also offered the leading part in a production by Sachur, of Austria.

ABOUT TO START

liability company, the shares being purchased by the members—or on another basis. The bar, refreshment room, billiard-room, dances, whist drives, rental of rooms, etc., would be very lucrative sources of revenue.

Questions as to qualifications of membership, etc., have not yet arisen; they will arise when the Organising Committee is formed and be dealt with by that Committee. But what we are particularly interested in is the fact that the Club would be the united headquarters of all the professional and Trade organisations whose members are engaged in studio work. And thus it could be the headquarters of the Film Artists' Association which will inevitably come into existence. This is of particular interest and of considerable significance.

We are now in a position to say that temporary Club premises are available at 3, Wardour Street (first and second floors), where refreshment rooms and rooms for interviews, correspondence, etc., are ready for immediate use. Thanks to the public-spirited action of a gentleman interested in the venture, the use of these rooms will not—at the moment—involve any cost until the committee has been formed and the Club placed on a proper basis. The rooms are very picturesque, being decorated in old English style, and arrangements are being made for this to be the meeting place of those engaged in film production. Already, we learn, that Sid Jay has arranged to meet and interview certain of his artistes in a room in this building.

To outline the arrangements and form the committee a general meeting is to be held on the club premises at 3, Wardour Street, on Thursday week, August 18, at 7 p.m., and at this meeting the presence of ALL interested is imperative. Those who have expressed themselves in these columns as favourable to the plan will, undoubtedly, be present; but to ensure success, it is essential that all who intend to join the Club should attend this inaugural meeting. And those who do attend are requested to come prepared to discuss the matter—no sleeping partners are wanted in the Club!

Enter it in your diary:—Date: Thursday, August 18; Time 7 p.m.; Place: 3, Wardour Street.

LETTERING SPECIALIST

is open to undertake one or two commissions for special film work
G. T. SHEARMAN, Bentinck Road Nottingham.

FOR A HA'PORTH OF TAR

by A. G. FRENGUELLI

It is an acknowledged fact that at the present time the best photography in British films is equal to anything that is coming to us from America. I say the best photography because in a great many British productions the photography leaves much to be desired.

But the cameraman turning on a picture in the majority of English studios has little encouragement to do better in every successive picture, because all the care and attention which he may lavish on his negative is probably lost before the picture is screened to the public.

The reason for this is the same reason that applies to nearly every problem which the director of British films has to face—lack of finance. British companies to-day cannot afford to establish expensive dark-rooms and printing plants. The result is that once the Trade Show copy of the film is prepared by the Studio staff, the negative is placed in the hands of the Renting firm, which in turn delivers it to the Trade printer who prepares the exhibition copies. How can the Trade printer be expected to do justice to the film?

As no one is in business for their health, the trade printer cannot, and will not, devote such time and attention to the making of a positive print as would the studio staff which is aware that the cameraman, who is always at hand, knows exactly what the results in the positive print should be.

Motion picture audiences condemn the photography of British films—some I admit deservedly—but they immediately come to the natural conclusion that it is the actual camera work which is at fault. Compare some of the prints at release date with the print made by the studio staff for the Trade Show—one can soon find at whose door the trouble lies.

Again, in many cases the British director is content to entrust thousands of pounds' worth of negative (which represents the work of the highest salaried employees in the motion picture studio, not to mention the cost of artistes' salaries, settings, etc.) to a £5 per week man to develop. The wise cameraman, therefore, becomes his own developer, and supervises the whole of the developing work on his negative and the printing of the first copy. Should he not do this, the results will probably be disastrous, and when the film is screened, the cameraman, and not the dark-room staff, will have to shoulder the blame for mediocre work.

Numerous excuses have been put forward for the poor photography in British films—usually climate is the most popular—but the English climate and atmosphere present no greater difficulties to the experienced cameraman who knows his job, than those of any other land. Certainly studio lighting in this country has not yet reached the high standard of that utilised in other lands, but the cameraman who knows his job thoroughly (with perhaps fifteen years' experience behind him), can and must overcome those difficulties, for here again the question of the lack of finance arises.

Many of the English studios in which I have worked present terrible difficulties on account of their construction, but given the opportunity, the cameraman will, after a time, know his studio and how to obtain the best photographic results.

Given the scope and facilities afforded to American cameramen, I can safely say that those in this country would turn out photography which would rapidly rise to a higher standard than any other in the world. The British companies cannot afford at this present juncture to experiment in any direction whatsoever. The cameraman does not get a fair chance to show what wonderful results can be obtained even in this much belittled climate.

Give the experienced cameraman (the man who has, so to speak, grown up with his camera) a fair chance; let laboratories and dark rooms, manned by an efficient staff, be established in connection with every British studio; and the grumbles about English cinematography will cease.

THEIR IDEAL MY IDEAL ARTISTE

by GUY NEWALL

In my opinion, the ideal screen artiste is Ivy Duke!

But I suppose that is hardly the sort of opinion to satisfy your editorial appetite. To revert from the particular to the general, I think the ideal artiste is born first and made afterwards. For a long time the public and the film critics have been under the impression that being natural constituted the ideal type of acting and satisfied the full demands of the screen. This "Be natural and you will be a star" got to be a fetish, and even now you can hear echoes of the idea.

But the ideal artiste is not in this category.

The ideal artiste, to be paradoxical, must be "artificially" natural. That is, acting should always convey by its subtlety and power the art of "looking and being natural," but it must always be acting. So find your ideal director—teacher—call him what you will—and then look for your ideal artistes.

I don't know which you are going to find the more difficult job of the two, but that's not my business, although you have my sympathy.

I hope this is clear; if it is not, please blame the weather and the fact that I am unable to free my mind from the forthcoming production of the pictures I have just brought back from Nice. By the bye, when the public has had the opportunity in the near future of seeing these productions. I am sure it will back me up by fully agreeing with the first opinion expressed in my opening sentence, which remains in my own mind unqualified.

MOVEMENTS AT ISLINGTON

THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO learns that certain movements of personnel are in operation at the Islington Studios of Famous Players-Lasky British Producers.

According to our official information Paul Powell (the director) and Mary O'Connor (the scenarist) have been instructed to return to Los Angeles, and have left Islington already for America.

In a very short time Donald Crisp (the director), Robert MacAlarney (the scenario-editor), and Margaret Turnbull (the scenarist) are also to return to America.

In the meantime, George Fitzmaurice and John Robertson, the Famous-Lasky directors from Los Angeles, have arrived and will commence work at Islington immediately. John Robertson is to film Barrie's "Peter Pan," but active work on this is held up for the moment owing to the loss that Sir James sustained by the recent death of his son.

BROADWEST CLOSING DOWN

The Broadwest Company has decided, having regard to the present state of the film business, to take a holiday for a few months. The company's directors were in conference during the week, with their customers, the Walturdaw Company, and the latter is in absolute agreement as to the proposed temporary stoppage in production, feeling as they do that it is impossible to get the best out of a British film under existing booking conditions.

The Broadwest Company will recommence operations next March, and meanwhile Walter West, joint managing director and chief director of production, will visit France, Germany, and America.

It is understood that his object is to secure the latest equipment for future production in this country, and to see for himself the conditions of the film business generally, and the method of production in particular in the countries named.

AUTHOR'S FILM RIGHTS

An action in respect of royalties for kinema rights in "The Splendid Folly," was heard by Mr. Justice Peterson in the Chancery Division recently. The plaintiff was Margaret Pedlar, author of the novel, who sued the Marquis Guido Serra, film director, who trades as the Windsor Films, for damages for alleged breach of contract, or in the alternative for an account.

Mr. MacGillevey, for the plaintiff, said that by agreement dated April 23, 1919, the defendant agreed to pay Mrs. Pedlar 10 per cent. of the gross receipts from the leasing, renting or other disposition of the film from her book. What the defendant in fact did was to grant a sub-licence to the Walturdaw Co., with whom he had a prior agreement.

By the agreement he got £2,500 in respect of the estimated cost of producing the negative of "The Splendid Folly." The Walturdaw Co. was to recoup itself for this £2,500

(Continued on Page 11.)

YOUR CORNER

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PRESS CRITICISM

In answer to "Megaphone's" query as to Press criticism, I beg to say that Press criticism is apt to be misconstrued. It generally leads artistes, etc., to believe they must be praised in the public eye. If they are adversely criticised they immediately acclaim the writer as no critic, simply because he does not happen to confirm their point of view.

A Press critic criticises a film and puts his version of it, as it impresses him.

Many people look to this unbiassed criticism as guidance whether a film merits visiting or not, knowing full well that many criticisms of artistes, etc., are only too correctly given, although it may be painful to the criticised one.

I think it will be readily agreed upon that it is all to the best.—S. S. Fox.

Readers are invited to add their views to our correspondent's on this subject.—ED.

AN AUTHOR'S IDEA

Stephen McKenna is an author for whose skill I have a considerable admiration, but it is evident that his knowledge of screen requirements is not yet fully developed. His idea of "The simple mechanical arrangement, by which for certain passages of a film play the sides of the screen were used for the caption or for any letter that is to be presented," has one great drawback. To show simultaneously a letter and the actions of the person reading or writing the same, is asking members of the audience to keep their attention fixed on two things at once—which is impossible. They would either fail to read the letter for fear of missing some of the action, or vice-versa, and, in any case, they would feel extremely uncomfortable. To the regular picture-goer the showing of the insert does not constitute a break in the continuity. With Ethel M. Dell's remarks on the same subject I have no fault to find except that I cannot quite agree with her in the matter of throwbacks, which, used properly by an individual who understands his craft, are often very effective and never in the least confusing to persons of ordinary intelligence.—WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT.

A DISCLAIMER

We notice that in your issue of July 23 you refer to the Metropolitan Review as a new Pelman paper. The Metropolitan Review is a weekly illustrated periodical for general distribution and is in no sense a Pelman House Organ, being an entirely separate company and organisation.—ROBERT R. HEDLEY (manager).

AUTHOR'S FILM RIGHTS

(Continued from page 10.)

and afterwards was to pay the defendant 30 per cent. of its gross receipts.

Up to the time of the action the Walturdaw Co., had received £2,238 in gross receipts from the film. It had, therefore, not paid the defendant anything additional to the £2,500, and defendant claimed that Mrs. Pedar was only entitled to royalty on the 30 per cent., which became payable in addition to the £2,500.

Mr. Higgins, for the defendant, argued that the £2,500 was allocated to the cost of making the negative. In fact it cost £4,500.

His lordship held that there was no breach of contract on the part of Windsor Films in granting the sub-licence to the Walturdaw Co., but that the £2,500 was received by the defendant as the result of "a sale or other disposition." It was therefore a sum on which she was entitled to a 10 per cent. royalty. She had already received £100. There would, therefore, be judgment for the plaintiff for £150.

DRESSING THE CAST

by MARCELLE DE ST. MARTIN, Dress Designer at the Islington Studio of the Famous Players-Lasky British Producers, Ltd.

One of the first things we have to consider in dressing the cast of a Famous Players-Lasky British Production is that a good many months will probably elapse before the picture in question is ready for release. This will naturally mean that we must not be merely content with an effort to present in our feminine "creations" a reflection of the prevailing styles, which the caprice of "la mode" may decree as hopelessly old-fashioned before the year is over. We must always endeavour to keep well in advance of "le dernier cri." We must never be content to follow close in "Fashion's wake." We must study her psychology closely enough to guess in which direction her path will eventually lead her and gauge our present effects with an eye to the future.

I think every wise director is quick to realise the fact that the majority of picturegoers are women, and that women find an additional attraction in a good picture, if it is tastefully dressed. I know for a fact that a great number of women go to the screen for their fashion hints and that, without entertaining otherwise any very great interest in the business angle of motion pictures, they will make a point of noting the name of a firm which releases "well dressed" pictures.

How do I go to work to keep in advance of la mode's capricious fancies?

For one thing, I receive every possible assistance from the firm. It is part of the policy to spare no expense in this respect. For instance, a seat in the Grand Stand was reserved for me at the Ascot Races, for the reason that the firm believed I might gather there a few impressions which might prove useful to me in my work. A week later I was sent to Paris for the Grand Prix. I also attended the Bal de l'Opéra, which is organised by Paul Poiret on the eve of the Grand Prix result. I came back with my note-book filled with sketches which will prove an inspiration to me for some months to come.

In dressing my cast, I give my chief attention to questions of type and the exigencies of a dramatic situation. As a matter of course I am provided with a copy of the entire scenario as soon as it is in the hands of the director and casting director, so that I have ample time to study the characters, their portrayals, and those points of the story which call for particular care in the choice of textures, styles and colours.

As Mary Glynne is the chief feminine centre of interest in F.P.L. British Productions, most of my designs have been made for her. I have made a special study of her very charming personality and know exactly what lines and colours suit her best.

Colour, apart from the limitations imposed by the camera, must be studied in its particular relationship to your subject. It is not sufficient to gauge by the hair whether that subject is to be classed as a blonde or brunette. Miss Glynne, for instance, is a blonde with hazel eyes, and on that account can wear many colours that are usually taboo for the fair woman.

It is self-evident that certain tissues suggest themselves at once in dressing a certain type of character—organdie and muslin for the ingénue, satins and sequins for the lady with a tendency to "vamp." It is not, however, enough to adapt your textures to the psychology of the subject. You must also consider these textures in their bearing on their surroundings.

The costume designer should always make a point of conferring with the art director, so that she has an accurate idea of the kind of background against which her creations are to be grouped. I have seen some pictures in which these two departments have to all appearances been working at entirely cross purposes—figured foulards moving about amidst a nightmare of cretonne upholstery, Axminster carpets, restless wall-papers and cabinets crowded with miscellaneous bric-à-brac.

Practically every frock that I design is carried out by my own staff of workers, though occasionally if we are very much pressed for time we will have an order executed after my designs by one or the other of the most exclusive firms in Bond Street. Our dresses, it may not be superfluous to add, are perfect in every detail and only the very best textures are used.

The camera invariably detects any cheapness and shoddiness in materials, and we have no use whatever for imitations of any kind. The chinchilla wrap, for instance, that Miss Glynne wears in "Dangerous Lies" is valued at £300, and, believe me, it looks every penny of that value on the screen.

Needless to say, we are constantly trying out new effects, and in making any new experiment I receive every assistance from the director, the cameraman and the lighting department, so that we get the sheen of a satin or a velvet in its full beauty and discover that the risk of halation in the instance of a light sequin gown can be obviated by judicious lighting.

Team work is essential if the studio dress designer is to be in any way successful in her efforts.

It should be remembered that in the first instance the director who knows his business finds his actress to suit a part, and does not modify either a part or his opinions about that part to suit the actress. But he and the dress designer should have so clear an idea of their dramatic characters, that they can decide on general lines what they are to wear before the actual casting of the play is an accomplished fact. Minor details can always be modified, but the original conception of the character and the psychology of her clothes should always remain unshaken. Otherwise the result will always be—piecework pure and simple.

STUDIO SPORTS

Hepworth v. Imperial.

A very interesting cricket match was played at Walton-on-Thames on Saturday, July 23, when the Hepworth Studios challenged a team from Hepworth's London Office and Imperial Film Company, Ltd. The result was a clear win for the visitors by three wickets, as the following scores show:—

First Innings.
A. Parmenter, c Herbert, b Leeson	8
E. Andrews, b Herbert	0
G. Dewhurst, b Herbert	0
G. H. Lean, b Leeson	0
G. Nightingale, c Stevens, b Leeson	6
H. Andrews, b Herbert	1
L. Revis, c Leeson, b Herbert	0
F. Woodley, c Stevens, b Herbert	4
L. Gilbey, not out	6
R. Sinclair, c T. Kimberley, b Leeson	0
C. Bryce, c T. Kimberley, b Leeson	0
Extras	5
Total	30

Second Innings.
A. Parmenter, c and b Gray	21
E. Andrews, lbw., C. Palmer	0
G. Dewhurst, b Kimberley	3
G. H. Lean, c and b Kimberley	4
G. Nightingale, b Kimberley	0
H. Andrews, b Gray	10
L. Revis, run out	5
F. Woodley, c Nye, b Gray	2
L. Gilbey, c Leeson, b Herbert	3
R. Sinclair, b Gray	2
C. Bryce, not out	0
Extras	3
Total	53

Hepworth (London) and Imperial Film Company, Ltd.

First Innings.
W. Haigh, b Andrews (E.)	0
G. Turner, std. Andrews (H.), b Andrews (E.)	0
T. Kimberley, b Andrews (E.)	3
H. Nye, c Nightingale, b Parmenter	0
B. Leeson, b Parmenter	5
A. Herbert, std. Andrews (H.), b Parmenter	16
H. Stevens, c Revis, b Parmenter	8
C. Palmer, c Dewhurst, b Parmenter	6
R. Roe, c Andrews (E.), b Parmenter	0
R. Cottle, b Parmenter	0
W. Gray, not out	1
Extras	9
Total	48

Second Innings.
W. Haigh, not out	4
G. Turner, c Dewhurst, b Parmenter	4
T. Kimberley, c Gilbey, b Parmenter	13
B. Leeson, c Andrews (H.), b Parmenter	7
A. Herbert, c Lean, b Andrews (E.)	2
H. Stevens, not out	3
R. Roe, b Andrews (E.)	1
R. Cottle, run out	0
W. Gray, c Dewhurst, b Parmenter	0
Extras	4

Total for 7 wickets... 38

C. Palmer and H. Nye did not bat.

"Ideal" Cricket Team.

The "Ideal" Cricket Team is pursuing its career as victoriously as ever. Up to the time of writing it has played twenty matches, of which it has won fifteen, drawn four, and lost only one.

Only the Australian team itself has a record which compares favourably with this. The Australians have not been beaten. The "Idealists" have been beaten just once! Even the champion county, Middlesex, has one defeat to its credit (or discredit), and it has played thirteen matches against the "Ideal's" twenty.

Recently, the "Ideal" played the Provincial Cinematograph Theatres' team. It scored 187, and dismissed its opponents for 43. The "Ideal" captain, Mr. Kendrick, got 46; Mr. Simpson, the vice-captain, 45; and Mr. Walton 52. The bowling was brilliant, Mr. Evans capturing 3 wickets for 18, Mr. Simpson 3 for 7, Mr. Kendrick 2 for 4, and Mr. Phillips 1 for 3. The match was the second round for the Kine. Weekly Cup.

We shall be pleased to receive news of other studio sports, and also offer space for the announcement of forthcoming fixtures. Secretaries should see that their reports reach this office by first post on Tuesday mornings for the following issue.

REAL INTERIORS

Interesting features in the new Broad-west film, "The Imperfect Lover," are interior scenes which have been made by utilising the actual rooms themselves as backgrounds instead of studio sets.

No artificial lighting whatever was utilised in the filming of the scenes. It was merely a matter of studying the position of the house and the best times at which to film in order to obtain the best effects from the soft, natural lighting of King Sol.

FINANCE

New Companies.

BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD. (175,756).—Registered July 16. Capital £80,000 in 75,000 ordinary shares of £1 each and 50,000 deferred shares of 2s. each. To carry on the business of producers of cinematograph films, manufacturers of cinematograph, biograph, and photograph apparatus, films and negatives, etc. The ordinary shares rank first for a non-cumulative dividend of 10 per cent., and the available balance is to be distributed as to two-fifths among the ordinary shareholders and three-fifths among holders of deferred shares. The first directors are:—Lord Moston, Hurst, Cookham Dene, Berks (chairman Calcutta Electric Supply Corporation, Ltd.); Lt.-Col. K. V. Gabriel, 19, Cornwall Terrace, Regent's Park, N.W.1 (director Khedivial Mail Steamship Graving Dock Co., Ltd.); C. S. Baring-Gould, Mirrow Grange, Guildford (chairman Oatine Co.); A. D. Jackson, 54, Old Broad Street, E.C. (director Commonwealth Trust, Ltd.); W. J. Bartholomew, 40, Gerrard Street, W.1 (director B.P. Films, Ltd.); A. Herring-Shaw, Briar Lea, Finchley Road, N.W. (technical manager and director Peachey Process Co., Ltd.). Minimum cash subscription: 7 shares. Qualification: £100. Remuneration: £150 each per annum (chairman £300), and 5 per cent. of the profits available for distribution after 10 per cent. is paid on ordinary shares, divided between them (free of income tax). Registered office: 40, Gerrard Street, W.

ACTORS' CLUB, LTD. (175,714).—Registered July 14. Capital £3,000 in 1,000 10 per cent. preference shares of £1 each and 4,000 ordinary shares of 10s. each. To take over the business and assets of a certain club recently formed called "The Actors' Club," having temporary offices at 26, Lisle Street, W.1. The first directors are:—H. Russell, 19, Hermitage Road, Finsbury Park, N.4, actor; Norah Greenway, 19, Regent Street, Piccadilly Circus, W., actress; J. R. Brandon-Thomas, 47, Gordon Square, W.C.1, actor; Lydia Donovan, Ye Old Strawberry Gardens, Woking, actress; H. Walton, Halton Chambers, 26, King Street, W.C.2, actor; P. Johnston, Ye Old Strawberry Gardens, Woking, actor; B. D. Parnell, 14, Sutherland Terrace, S.W.7, actor. Minimum cash subscription: 5 per cent. of the shares offered to the public. The directors shall give preference in the allotment of shares to applications from members of the Actors' Association, 32, Regent Street, W.1. Secretary: J. Scott Leighton. Registered office: 26, Lisle Street, W.C.2. (Continued on page 13.)

FILTERS.

Comparatively few cameramen appreciate the advantages gained by the use of a comprehensive series of light filters. This is possibly due to the difficulty hitherto in obtaining any but one or two types.

It is now possible to obtain Filters of any size, from the small screen for the lens mount, to the large diameter glass for mounting in place of the front iris, either plain or graduated—the latter merging from clear glass to a dense yellow, with iris or straight gradation—from

W. VINTEN, 89-91, Wardour St., W.1. Telephone . . . REGENT 2702.

STAR GREASE PAINT CO.

6d. per stick. Any Colour. 6 in Sticks 2/-

USE STAR GREASE PAINT

Carriage paid on Orders of 3/ and upwards

Judge for yourself as thousands now using Star Paint. Try our special Cinema tin. Mai Orders: Arthur Ace, 51, Clapham Park Rd., London.

"LIGHTING A STUDIO SET"

A REPLY TO A REPLY

In reply to M. P. Prout, who rather takes exception to some of my remarks re the above, I imagine he read this as being addressed to experts, which it was not. The idea was to suggest a safe and satisfactory formula of lighting for a specified set in a dark studio, the set selected being a small room in a middle-class house, day and night, and was written for the benefit of the novice or the worker whose experience has been limited to the daylight studio.

With regard to front light I maintain that the hard shadow created by direct side-light as suggested in my brief article is most satisfactorily diffused or softened by direct front light of the correct amount or distance of light source from subject—the maximum roundness being obtained and the minimum of unnatural reflections from the eye, etc.

Dead front light, if of only sufficient strength, most emphatically does not spoil modelling, and almost any dark studio scene will show false light and shade where a fair percentage of front light is not used for diffusion, if the scene in question is to suggest day-time.

Mr. Prout considers that top light should be used in a small set representing a room in a small house in day-time. Where, in natural lighting, could the top-light come from? A skylight?

The spot back-light suggested in my article would represent all the reflection which could possibly come from a white ceiling; and, again, if top-lights were used in the day-time impression, there would be little left to make sufficient difference when the same room had to be shown representing night-time.

I agree very largely with Mr. Prout's remarks in general and would like very much to read more of his contributions, but would like him to understand that my remarks re top-light were in reference to the particular set, and day-time only. I am possibly one of the strongest advocates of top-light, and plenty of it, where the set is such as to offer natural scope for its use, as in a large reception, etc.

I would also remark that I have worked in most of the day-light studios in this country and in the past years two of the leading West End "still" studios, and even now light my close-ups to the same rules as the Court portraits were always lighted by electric light in the old days—always with a studied proportion of front light, rather high and mainly lighted by side light—and I maintain that this simple method would be the soundest line for any cameraman to commence on in his first effort in a dark studio. Of course, in a daylight or part-daylight studio the same remarks would be misleading and wrong, but I am under the impression that I distinctly specified dark studio.

I very heartily agree that it would be all to the good, and very helpful to the promising youngster in our ranks if more were written by men who have made a success in any special branch of the work, especially studio lighting. WM. SHENTON.

NEGATIVES OF PHOTOS

Film artistes, who of course make use of personal photography far more than most people, should understand that according to the British Journal of Photography, while it is perfectly well established that the custody of the negatives of photos made in accordance with a sitter's order is the photographer's right, it is, on the other hand, not so well established that the photographer thereby undertakes the liability to keep them for the sitter's use at any time when the latter may require them for the supply of prints.

Cases in which this question has arisen are rare, and in ordinary practice are not very likely to arise, owing to the facility with which a duplicate negative may be made from a print in the sitter's possession. An exceptional instance came to notice a year or two ago, in which untuned proofs from negatives taken thirteen years before were returned to a studio for delivery of the photographs. In the meantime, however, the studio had changed hands and the new proprietor had no knowledge of the existence of the negative, which presumably had been destroyed by the previous proprietor.

In cases such as these common law is determined, in a measure, by common custom in the circumstances of the particular trade; and certainly it is not possible to say positively that it is the common custom among photographers to preserve all negatives for the use of sitters at any remote date.

On the contrary, the usual relations between photographers and customers are contrary to this assumption, and in the absence of any case in the Courts, so far as our recollection goes, in the history of photography there is no reason for assuming that the photographer is under the liability of keeping each and every negative until, say, he has the customer's permission to destroy it.

FINANCE (Continued from page 12.)

Mortgages, Charges and Satisfactions.

L.M.S. PRODUCTIONS, LTD.—Particulars of £1,000 debentures, authorised July 7, 1921; whole amount issued; charged on the company's undertaking and property, present and future, including uncalled capital.

CHROMATIC FILM PRINTERS, LTD.—F. Morse, of 1 and 2, Great Winchester Street, E.C., as receiver and manager on June 29, 1921, under powers contained in debentures dated October 8, 1919.

Receivership.

EINER J. BRUNN.—The receiving order was made against the above debtor on June 28, on a creditor's petition, and last week the first meeting of the creditors under the failure was held at the London Bankruptcy Court. The Official Receiver, W. P. Bowyer, reported that the debtor had not surrendered to the proceedings and nothing was known of his whereabouts. The Official Receiver's inspector had attended at the address given and nothing was known of the debtor there save that he formerly rented a furnished flat there but left a month ago. The matter was left in the hands of the Official Receiver as trustee.

DON'T WORRY

THERE IS NO NEED TO

IF THE COSTUMES,
WIGS,

PROPS, etc.,

For Your PRODUCTION

are SUPPLIED BY

H. & M. Rayne,

115-119, WATERLOO RD., S.E.1

Phone: 7978 CENTRAL.

SCREEN - STORY
SPECIALISTS CONSULT US FOR FIRST RATE STORIES :: :: ::
CALL, PHONE or WRITE.

ROMA JUNE BUREAU, Ltd

ANCASTER HOUSE,
42-43, Cranbourn Street,
Leicester Square, W.C. 2.

Telephone
Regent
2637.

WE CAN HELP YOU.
ANYTHING WON'T DO.
PRODUCE ONLY THE BEST :: :: ::

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES,
UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for
Kinematograph Productions. Phone—London Wall 7568.

PULSE OF

PRODUCTIONS AND WHO

J. Stuart Blackton.

ADDRESS: Bush House, Aldwych.
STUDIOS: Now using Stoll's at Criklewood.

FILM: "The Glorious Adventure."
DIRECTOR: J. Stuart Blackton.
STAR: Lady Diana Manners.
SCENARIST: Felix Orman.
CAMERAMAN (Black and white): Nicholas Mursuraca.
CAMERAMAN (Colour): W. T. Crespinal.

TYPE: Seven-reel drama
STAGE: Fourth week.

British and Colonial.

ADDRESS: Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

FILM: "The Puppet Man."
DIRECTOR: Frank Crane.
STARS: Molly Adair, John Reid.
SCENARIST: Cosmo Gordon Lennox.
CAMERAMAN: I. Roseman.
TYPE: Spectacular Circus drama.
STAGE: Completed.

Broadwest.

ADDRESS: Walthamstow.
FILM: "The Imperfect Lover."
STAR: Violet Hopson and Stewart Rome.

DIRECTOR: Walter West.
ART DIRECTOR: Thomas Fleetwood.

CAMERAMAN: A. G. Frenguelli.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Finish rg.

FILM: "The Candy Man."
STAR: Not cast.
DIRECTOR: Not announced.
SCENARIST: W. G. Clifford
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Scheduled.

George Clark.

ADDRESS: 47, Berner's Street, W.1.
STUDIO: Candlemass Lane, Beaconsfield.

FILM: "The Bigamist."
DIRECTOR: Guy Newall.
STARS: Ivy Duke and Guy Newall.
SCENARIST: Guy Newall.
CAMERAMAN: Bert Ford.
TYPE: Social drama.
STAGE: Completed.

Famous Players-Lasky British Producers.

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.
STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A. Bell, O.B.E.

FILM: "Dangerous Lies" (Working title "Twice Wed").
DIRECTOR: Paul Powell.
STARS: Mary Glynne, David Powell.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: R. J. Cullen.
SCENARIST: Mary O'Connor.
ART DIRECTOR: Leslie Dawson.
ASST. ART DIRECTOR: N. Gregory Arnold.
CAMERAMAN: C. McDonnell.
TYPE: Social drama.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."
DIRECTOR: Donald Crisp.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Claude H. Mitchell.
STAR: Donald Crisp.
SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.
STAGE: Fifth week.

Frederick White.

ADDRESS: Weir House, Teddington.

FILM: "The Haigh Serial."
DIRECTOR: Edward R. Gordon.
ASSISTANT-DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Benstead.
STAR: Ernest Haigh.
SCENARIST: Edward R. Gordon.
TYPE: Detective serial.
STAGE: Sixth Episode.

Gaumont.

ADDRESS: Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush.

STUDIO MANAGER: B. H. Bromhead.
FILM: "Roses in the Dust."
DIRECTOR: Captain Calvert.
STARS: Iris Rowe, Gladys Mason.
CAMERAMAN: Basil W. G. Emmott.
SCENARIST: H. Morgan.
STAGE: Fifth week.

Glen Films.

ADDRESS: 20 Lisle Street, W.C.
STUDIO: "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

FILM: "Land of my Fathers."
DIRECTOR: Fred Rains.
STARS: Edith Pearson, John Stuart.
CAMERAMAN: L. G. Egrot.
STAGE: Nearing Completion.

Hardy Film Co.

ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W.1.
STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isleworth.

FILM: "Bluff."
STARS: Marjorie Hume, Lewis Willoughby.
SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.
DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.
CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.
STAGE: First week.

Harma.

ADDRESS: Limes Grove, Croydon.
FILM: (not titled).
DIRECTOR: Bernard Dudley.
STARS: Marjorie Willis and James Knight.

CAMERAMAN: J. Mackenzie.
TYPE: Comedy drama.
STAGE: Seventh week.

Granger-Binger.

ADDRESS: 191, Wardour Street, W.
STUDIO: Haarlem, Holland.

FILM: "Bluff."
DIRECTOR: F. A. Richardson.
STARS: Maudie Dunham, Henry Victor and Percy Standing.
STAGE: Second week.

Ideal

ADDRESS: Boreham Woods, Elstree
STUDIO MANAGER: A. Kendrick.
STAGE MANAGER: J. Barnard.

FILM: "Sonia."
STARS: Evelyn Brent, Clive Brook.
DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.
SCENARIST: Denison Clift.
CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.
STAGE: Seventh week.

FILM: "The Rotters."

DIRECTOR: A. V. Bramble.
STAR: Sydney Fairbrother.
STAGE: Scheduled.

International Artists Films.

ADDRESS: 52, Shaftesbury Avenue.
STUDIO: B. & C. Studios, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

FILM: "The Night Hawk."
DIRECTOR: John Gliddon.
STARS: Malvina Longfellow, Henri de Vries.

SCENARIST: Gerard Ford Buckle.
CAMERAMAN: Will Howse.
STAGE: Third week.

Isle of Man Films.

ADDRESS: The Manx Studios, Isle of Man.

FILM: "Flotsam."
DIRECTOR: Edmund Blake.
STAR: Marjorie Battess.
CAMERAMAN: Ernest Melbourne.
STAGE: Nearing Completion.

Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate.
ADDRESS: Riverside Studios, Kew Bridge.

FILM: "The Adventures of Mr. Pusher Long."
DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme.
STAR: Dawn Meredith.
TYPE: Comedy.
STAGE: Nearing Completion.

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Arlodre, Hyde, London.

ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmpho, Ealux.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow, E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD., Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clapham Park.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PICTURES, LTD., Tuilerie Street, Hackney Road, London, E.2. 'Phone: Dalston 3454.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

CAIRNS FILM CO., Watcombe Hall, Torquay. 'Phone: Torquay 886—Cairnsfilm, Torquay.

CENTRAL FILM PRODUCING CO., Eel Pie Island, Twickenham.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

FREDERICK WHITE, LTD., Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston, 1617.

GAITY PRODUCTIONS, Wadden New Road, Croydon.

GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolongue, 'Phone London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland., London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exclugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3612.

STUDIO: Candlemass Lane, Beaconsfield.

GLEN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD., 20, Lisle Street, London, W.C., and "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16, Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.

IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Idefilms, Borehamwood.

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS FILM CO., LTD., 52, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

ISLE OF MAN FILM CO., The Manx Studios, Isle of Man.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Criklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).

KINEMA EXPANSIONS, LTD., Motograph House, St. Martin's Lane, W.C.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MIDLAND ACTORS' FILM CO., 73, Broad Street, Birmingham.

MINERVA FILM CO., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

NEW AGENCY FILM CO., 115a, Ebury Street, London, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 6856.

PARKSTONE FILM CO., LTD., Preston Road, Lytham, Lancs.

PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

REGULUS FILMS: 48, Carnaby Street, Regent Street, W.1.

SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton 2956.

SEAL PRODUCTIONS, Princes Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford. 'Phone: Chiswick 574.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Criklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpic, Crikle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1933—Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMPSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & CO., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.

WILSONIAN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD., Secretary, W. J. Crook, 547, Wandsworth Road, S.W.

ZODIAC FILMS, Windsor Studios, Bromley Road, Catford. 'Phone: Lee Green, 948.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

You cannot do better than by placing your orders with L. BENJAMIN & CO. 99, Middlesex Street, E.1,
'Phone—London Wall 7568.

THE STUDIO

IS WORKING ON THEM

FILM: "M'Lord of the White Road."
DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme.
STAR: Dawn Meredith.
TYPE: Costume Play.
STAGE: Scheduled.

Kinema Expansions.

ADDRESS: Motograph House, St. Martin's Lane, W.C.
FILM: "Ally Sloper, the Friend of Man."

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.
CAMERAMAN: Edward L. Groc.
TYPE: Series of short Comedies.

Minerva Films.

ADDRESS: 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1.

FILM: "The Beggar's Syndicate."
DIRECTOR: Adrian Brunel.
STARS: Mary Patterson, Bert Darley, Crispin Hay.

SCENARIST: Adrian Brunel.
SCENARIO-EDITOR: Bernard Carrodus.

CAMERAMAN: Frank Hoffmann.
TYPE: Comedy drama.
STAGE: Finishing.

North British Productions.

ADDRESS: 6, Princes Square, Harrogate.

FILM: "The Lonely Road."
DIRECTOR: Alfred Van Den Bosch.
STARS: Robert Fenimore, Gwyneth Roden.

STAGE: Sixth week.

Progress.

ADDRESS: Shoreham.
FILM: "Mayor of Casterbridge."
STAR: Fred Groves.
DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.

STAGE: Fifth week.

Regulus Films.

ADDRESS: 48, Carnaby Street, Regent Street, W.1.

SECRETARY: J. G. Dickson.

STUDIOS: Barker's, Ealing.

FILM: "Teddy Laughs Last."

DIRECTOR: Milton Elmore.

STARS: Teddy Hayes, Audrey Edwardes.

SCENARIST: James G. Dickson.

CAMERAMAN: L. Protheroe.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Screen Plays.

ADDRESS: Cranmer Court, Clapham S.W.

STUDIO MANAGER: Douglas Payne.

FILM: Grand Guignol series.

DIRECTORS: Fred Paul and Jack Raymond.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Rodwell.

STAR: Victor McLaglen.

CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "The Pointing Finger."

DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.

STARS: Milton Rosmer, Madge Stuart.

CAMERAMAN: Al Moses.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Finishing.

H. W. Thompson.

ADDRESS: B. & C. Studio, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

FILM: "The Wonderful Year."

DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.

STARS: Marie Odette, Lionelle Howard.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Grace Rose.

SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.

EDITOR: John Miller.

CAMERAMAN: Frank Canham.

ASSISTANT CAMERAMAN: Pat Quinn.

TYPE: Light French Drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Welsh Pearson.

ADDRESS: Craven Park, Willesden

FILM: "Squibs."

DIRECTOR: George Pearson.

STARS: Betty Balfour, Fred Groves

SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.

CAMERAMAN: Emile Lauste.

SCENIC ARTIST: Ernest Jones.

TYPE: Comedy.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Zodiac.

FILM: "Walter in the Studio."

STAR: Walter Forde.

TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.

STAGE: Third week.

All Whose Names are Mentioned in this feature are requested to acquaint us with all alterations in

"THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO"

In no other way can this be kept

RIGHT UP-TO-DATE

CAMERAMAN: E. Coble.

TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.

STAGE: Nearing completion.

Samuelson.

ADDRESS: Warton Hall, Isleworth.

FILM: Title not fixed.

DIRECTOR: Rex Wilson.

STAR: Isabel Jeans.

STAGE: Second week.

Seal.

ADDRESS: Prince's Studio, Kew Bridge.

FILM: "Dick's Fairy."

DIRECTOR: Bert Wynne.

STARS: Hargreaves Munsell, Joan Griffith, and Albert Brantford.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: John Wyndham.

SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.

TYPE: Short melodramas.

STAGE: Producing one a week.

Sinclair Hill Productions.

ADDRESS: Jay's Agency, Wardour Street, London, W.

FILM: Comedy.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: S. D. Braham.

TYPE: Straight Comedy.

STAGE: Scheduled.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Criklewood.

STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman.

FILM: "The Fruitful Vine."

DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.

CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.

STAGE: Fifth week.

FILM: "The Prey of the Dragon."

DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.

SUB-TITLING DISPUTE

At Westminster County Court before Sir Alfred Tobin on July 20 an action to recover £10, for work done and goods supplied, was brought by William Ebenezer Baker, film specialist, Neal Street, Shaftesbury Avenue, against Capt. Edward Newman, film renter, Wardour Street.

Richard O'Sullivan was counsel for the plaintiff, and Humfrey Edwards for the defendant.

The plaintiff's case was that he was to supply 430 ft. of film at 2½d. a foot, and also 60 title cards for which the defendant chose the lettering. The work was done satisfactorily.

In cross-examination, plaintiff said he was present at the private show of the films on January 30 and the titles were level and distinct when thrown on the screen. He had charged 1s. 6d. each for the titles and he was not aware that the usual charge in the Trade was 6d. The only complaint he had was on June 28, when a letter came stating that eight sub-titles were badly scratched.

The defendant, who said he had been three years in the business, said he was counter-claiming fifteen guineas for the expense he had been put to. He complained that the films were not delivered within a reasonable time, and the titles were too short for people to read them easily. He and his men had to cut the films and join them together in order to render them useful, and this occupied two days.

His honour gave judgment for the plaintiff on the claim and dismissed the counter-claim, costs being given in each case. He said there was contradiction as to what took place at the interview between plaintiff and defendant, and, therefore, he preferred to judge the matter from the correspondence. In the letters he found no allusion to the majority of the various defects now alleged, and he drew the conclusion that the defendant had greatly exaggerated small matters of complaint that might possibly have existed in the plaintiff's work. On the whole, he drew the conclusion that plaintiff had done his work reasonably well and was entitled to judgment.

CAMERAMEN AT WORK

Kenneth Gordon is editor of the News Department of the Motion Picture Service.

Skilled photographers are wanted for the Royal Air Force. These men must be medically fit and between the ages of 18 and 28 if civilians, and 18 to 38 if skilled and ex-Service men.

The periods of service are:— 8 years Regular Air Force service and 4 years Reserve, or 7 years Regular Air Force service and 4 years Reserve, and the commencing rates of pay are either 4s. 6d. or 3s. 9d. per day, according to the result of the Trade test which the recruit is required to pass, and is additional to free food and lodging, clothing and medical attendance

Bert Ford has returned from Nice, where he has been filming.

D. P. Cooper was mentioned the other week as the photographer of "With All Her Heart"; this should have been Teddy Day.

Some interesting business was discussed at last night's meeting.

MEN BEHIND THE CAMERA

IV. Cox, John Jaffray, is a Londoner by birth, but was educated at New College, Worthing. It was in 1910 that he first turned his attention to cinematography, and he started his career with L. Fitzhamon, with whom he worked for B. and C., Martin's Films, Charles Urban, Gaumont and others. He was chief cameraman for Kent Films and Central Films, and is now with Stoll. He pleads guilty to no particularly vicious vices other than an intense admiration of the art of cinematography. When he is at home he is to be found at 44, Barrowgate Road, Chiswick, W.4 (phone Chiswick 294).

L. BENJAMIN & CO., 99, Middlesex St., Bishopsgate, E.1. 'Phone London Wall 7568.

Kinematograph Costumier
Naval & Military Outfitter

3 to read

and enjoy

To every true lover of the Movies these three journals are absolutely indispensable, if he or she is to understand and enjoy the films.

PICTUREGOER

Monthly - - - One Shilling

The most beautiful Magazine of the Movies published. Magnificent art plates, stories, interviews, etc.—a veritable Budget of good things.

PICTURES

Every Monday - - - 2d.

All the week's news, sound criticisms and views on Movie matters. Profusely illustrated. The oldest established and most popular film weekly.

FILM FICTION

Monthly - - - 6d.

The month's best pictures in story form. Intensely interesting. A permanent souvenir of your favourite films.

Order all Three
from your Newsagent.

JUST PUBLISHED.

The PICTUREGOER PORTFOLIO of KINEMA CELEBRITIES

Contains the following:
SIXTEEN MAGNIFICENT PHOTOGRAVURE
PORTRAITS, Size, 10in. x 6½in.

MARY PICKFORD.	PEARL WHITE.
NORMA TALMADGE.	LILIAN GISH.
CHARLES CHAPLIN.	RICHARD BARTHELMESS.
DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS.	WILLIAM FARNUM.
NAZIMOVA.	PAULINE FREDERICK.
MARY MILES MINTER.	CONSTANCE TALMADGE.
WILLIAM S. HART.	THOMAS MEIGHAN.
RALPH GRAVES.	JACKIE COOGAN.

All worth Framing. Price

ONE SHILLING

(Post free 1½)

On Sale everywhere or direct from

PICTURES LTD.

88, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

EVERY FILM LOVER MUST HAVE A COPY.

The MOTION PICTURE Studio

The only weekly journal devoted solely to the interests of all concerned in the Production of British Motion Pictures.

Editorial and Advertisement Offices:
85, LONG ACRE, LONDON, W.C. 2.

Grams: Southernwood, Rand, London.
Telephone: ——— Gerrard 9870.

ADVERTISEMENT RATES

	One insertion	Six inser- tions (per insertion)
Front Cover	£6 10 0	£6 0 0
Back Cover	£6 0 0	£5 15 0
Full page	£5 10 0	£5 7 6
Half page	£3 0 0	£2 17 6
Third page	£2 5 0	£2 2 6
Quarter page	£1 15 0	£1 12 6
Sixth page	£1 5 0	£1 2 6
Eighth page	£1 0 0	18 9
Twelfth page	12 6	11 3
Per inch (single column)	5 0	4 6
(Blockmaking extra)

Professional Cards:

Photo Cards, 1 in. deep. £3 0 0 per quarter year.
(Inclusive of Blockmaking)

1 in. Cards (without blockmaking) £2 10 0
per quarter year.

Small Cards 17/6 per quarter year

Make certain of securing your copy regularly each week by filling in the Subscription Order Form and post with remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER FORM

TO The Manager,
"MOTION PICTURE STUDIO,"
85, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

Please send "THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO" to me at the following address for months, for which

I enclose remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

Months - 5/-
Yearly - 20/-

Name

Address to which copies are to be sent:

The Motion Picture Studio, August 13, 1921.

The MOTION PICTURE

Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 10.

Saturday, August 13, 1921.

FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH MOTION
PICTURES

A. BROMLEY DAVENPORT

Just finished "The Bigamist" and "The Persistent Lovers" for George Clark Productions, and "Great Gay Road" (Broadwest).

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross," Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."

219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Now playing lead in "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" (Ideal). Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads. Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley. 'Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE. Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds," "The Knight Errant," "Haigh Serial," "Love Maggie." 4, Park Place, St. James, S.W. Regent 4060.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS. Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal). "Corinthian Jack" (Masters). c/o Sidney Jay, 1-1, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

Juvenile Leads: "Her Son," "Great Gay Road," "Lights of Home," "Land of My Fathers," Duane in "Belle of the Gambling Den" (Haigh Serial.)

OFFERS INVITED. 33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelm Foss Production). Latest Release, "With All Her Heart." All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street. Regent 4329.

VICTOR McLAGLEN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads. Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack." Address—N.S.C.

THIS SPACE TO LET.
17s. 6d. for 13 insertions.

ARTISTES

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES. LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs. NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc. Carlton House, Kew Green, Kew, Surrey.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts. "Mayfields," Lowfield Heath. :: :: Crawley, Sussex :: :: Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes. Open to accept engagement 1st August.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda," "The Headmaster," "Build Thy House," "Wuthering Heights," etc. c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1. 'Phone: Regent 4329

DICK WEBB

Lead GAUMONT, MASTER PRODUCTIONS, etc. 180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc. HARDY FILM CO.

All coms: c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1.

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com. 197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph. Batt. 1770 or 21.

CLIVE BROOK INVITES OFFERS. 24, Hyde Park Square, W.2. Padd. 2868.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT, Disengaged July 4. 'Phone: Walthamstow 938.

ARTHUR CLEAVE, 15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6. 'Phone: Hornsey 1784.

CHARLES CLIFFORD, 38, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.2. 'Phone: Regent 569.

CRISPIN HAY, c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG, 12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS, Character, Comedy. 114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

HARDING STEERMAN, Characters of Distinction, 56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART, 24, Cleveland Road, Barnes, S.W.13.

ARTHUR WALCOTT, Character Parts, 57, Church Street Kensington, W.8.

COSTUMIER

W. CLARKSON, Costumier and Wigmaker, 41/43, Wardour Street, W. 'Phone: Gerr. 612.

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,

14a, Little Ealing Lane, :: South Ealing :: 'Phone: Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord," "Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare," "The Face at the Window." Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road, Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON

Producing for Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd. Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron," "Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,

Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and "CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE." Five years producer in America. At Liberty. Address: 1A, DENBIGH PLACE, VICTORIA.

S. L. GLENISTER

Professionally Major Comnenus-Palaeologus. PRODUCER, TECHNICAL & ART DIRECTOR. "Under the Crescent," "Dumb Girl of Portici," "Campbells are Coming," "Where are My Children?" etc., for UNIVERSAL. "The Arab," for LASKY. "Less than Dust," for ART-CRAFT, etc., etc. Open for Engagement. Address: 25, Randolph Crescent, W. 9. 'Phone: Paddington 3819.

GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS. Address: B. & C. STUDIOS, Hoe St, Walthamstow, E.17.

ADRIAN BRUNEL,

Producer and Scenario-Writer, 19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone: 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK, Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique, 39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

Mr. ALBERT WARD, Producing and Adapting for Samuelson, Worton Hall, Isleworth.

CAMERAMENJOHN J. COX

44, Barrowgate Road, :: Chiswick, W.4. :: 'Phone: Chiswick 294. Cameraman for Mr. Rene Plaissetty, Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD

Cameraman—AT LIBERTY. Latest work: "The Channings," "Hard Cash," "Stella" and "Miss Charity." MASTER BUTCHER PRODUCTIONS. "PEMBROKE," CHEAM COMMON RD, WORCESTER PARK.

C A M E R A M E NE D W I N D A Y

Motion Picture Photographer,
12, Archer Street, Piccadilly Circus, London, W.1.
Telephone: Gerrard 780.
Telegrams: "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON

Thelton House, Cambolt
:: Road, Putney Hill. ::
Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN

"GAUMONT'S,"
105, King's Road,
Kingston-on-Thames.

FRANK CANHAM

Cameraman—ASTRA FILM CO.
Filming "No. 5, John Street."
Featuring Miss Zena Dare.
Permanent Address: Royal Forest
Hotel, Chingford, Essex.

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT

GAUMONT,
:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::
Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT

Expert Cameraman.
"The Better 'Ole," "Her Benny,"
etc., etc.
2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.
'Phone: Streatham 1969.

WILLIAM SHENTON

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address :
17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,
Boreham Wood, Herts.

HORACE M. WHEDDON,

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address
"LYNTON HOUSE,"
BOREHAM WOOD, HERTS.

JAMES E. ROGERS,

Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth.
"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"
"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"
"Last Rose of Summer,"
PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

C A M E R A M E NALFRED H. MOSES

Chief Cameraman—
GEORGE RIDGWELL PRODUCTIONS
STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS
Formerly Chief Cameraman of Norma
Talmadge, Thanhouser, B. & C., etc.

SCENARISTSCOLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,
The Samuelson Film Co.,
:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.
STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,
Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.
Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.
7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11
(Phone: Park 2945).

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,
Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
62, Foxburne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,

Kinedramatist,
Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

I R E N E M I L L A R,

Novelist, Journalist, Scenarist,
10, Arundel Gardens, W. 11, or Bramlins.

CYRIL E. MURRELL,

Scenarist—Comedy,
No. 1, Pine Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2.

PUBLICITYF. J. STANDERWICK,

Photographer.
I am making a speciality of Catering for
Film Artists. 'Phone for appointment—
Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio
—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
W.14.

FRANK J. WOOLF

Publicity Representative,
British and Colonial Kinematograph
Company, Hoe Street, Walthamstow,
Telephone: Walthamstow 364.

E D W A R D B A I R D,

Publicity.
172, Goldhurst Terrace, N.W.6.

STUDIO MANAGERJOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—
B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,
Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
Telephone: W'stow 364."

MILTON ROSMER

Starring in

"The Pointing Finger,"
"A Woman of No Importance,"
"The Amazing Partnership,"
"Demos," "The Diamond Necklace,"
"Belphegor the Mountebank,"
"The Will," "The Twelve Pound
Look," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

88, NEWMAN ST., W.1.

Phone - - - - Museum 5145

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer
of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—
c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H. MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE."
"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
"SETTLED IN FULL,"
"ALL THE WINNERS,"
"WATCHING EYES," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

WHO EDITED IT?

When the spokesman of a party of Fleet Street Editors says of an important Travel Film that "the editing is better than anything of the kind I have seen," it's surely worth asking who did it?

With an eye on that next film of yours, you might like to know that it was

HARRY HUGHES,

Editing, Titling, Continuities.
128, Jermyn Street, S.W.1
Regent 2592.

Bramlins

GIBB McLAUGHLIN

c/o

Bramlins

241, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.C.2.

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 10.

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

August 13, 1921

The Need for Better Scenarios.

THERE are few things more noticeable about many of the films at present being offered than the failure of producing organisations to pay sufficient attention to the necessity for a good scenario. It is merely to repeat a very unfortunate truism to say that hundreds of pounds are spent in buying the film rights of a novel, and that less than the same number of shillings is spent on the scenario. During the past week there has been a particularly noticeable instance of the lack of proportion which causes a director to spend large sums on elaborate settings, devote much time, talent and energy to good direction, but overlook the story. Now the first essential of a photoplay is that it shall contain a story. If this essential is absent, no prodigality of setting, no technical skill, no extensive advance publicity campaign will put it over. The public is merely a little child. It wants to be told a story, and if a few of it are disappointed with the story that is told the rest will not listen.

* * *

Spoiling What Story there is.

BUT it is not always that there is merely no story. It is sometimes that a story which is in itself not suited for translation into terms of the screen is used for its title or for the author's name. That, perhaps, would not matter so much if a scenario were done by an educated writer whose artistic instincts and technical knowledge would enable him to use the skeleton of the story as foundation for a photoplay. Too often, however, the scenario is the result of unintelligent hack work combined with the mistaken ideas of "business" men whose artistry and taste is almost non-existent. Then, when a cheap director (almost as entirely lacking in dramatic and artistic sense as those who have already done their dreadful work) stages the result, a film results at which the public fidgets through the first four reels and finally laughs sardonically at the alleged "climax." We have had personal experience of this reception of so-called "masterpieces" in typical suburban cinemas within recent weeks, an experience which is humiliating and painful to anyone who believes in the ultimate art of the screen and in the possibility of making real pictures in this country.

* * *

Better Films and the Public.

ACCORDING to an announcement which appeared in several papers at the early part of this week, the People's League has started a campaign for better pictures. In itself, such an object is both desirable and praiseworthy, but mental development of a child makes it as undesirable that it should share these entertainments as that it should be allowed to read Balzac or the more popular Sunday newspapers. There is, in most of these leagues, a distinct desire to interfere with the public's amusements, habits and recreations in a way that is not merely grandmotherly but imperinent. This particular League graciously admits that it does not desire more Government interference than is absolutely necessary." Who is to define what is meant by "absolutely necessary"? The League the public or the Government? So far as this League's object is the elimination of vicious and otherwise really undesirable films, it is to be applauded. But the aim of making cinemas fit only for children is about on a par with making the sea fit for freshwater fish.

* * *

A Lack of Knowledge.

IN a paragraph which appeared in the Financial Times, it was stated that "many British films have scored great successes in the States. Can it be that this is one reason for taxing our films going there in future?"

For error it would be difficult to surpass this paragraph. Many British films have not, unfortunately, "scored great successes in America," and there is no reason save lack of knowledge why the writer of the paragraph should talk about "taxing our films going there in future." There is no tax—yet, and must it be emphasised once more that the tax proposals are aimed against German pictures, because they threaten to flood America.

* * *

Raising the Status.

IN the past the scenarist has been regarded as the Cinderella of the British studio. The status of the scenarist must be elevated and to this end the next issue of the MOTION PICTURE STUDIO will be devoted to the interests of those engaged in the literary part of the work.

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"The Bigamist" (George Clark) is a nine-reel British super that finds its chief virtue in the excellence of the production rather than in the strength of the story. In fact this poverty of story is the weak point of the film, and is made additionally apparent by the great length of the picture. From a technical point of view "The Bigamist" is quite as good as, if not better than, the best that has come from America, and, if cut judiciously, it should go well in that country. The cameraman has done excellently, and has secured some of the most beautiful views of the south of France ever screened. No American cameraman has done so well. There are a few defects that can be laid at the door of the director, but these are well countered by the skill with which Guy Newall has developed the dramatic possibilities of what story there is. Ivy Duke gives a polished performance, and Guy Newall plays perfectly. Julian Royce is good but with a tendency to be extravagant; while A. Bromley Davenport is very convincing. Dorothy Scott, Barbara Everest, and Douglas Munro are beyond reproach.

"Unrest" (Dallas Cairns) is a disappointment, judged as a photoplay. As a medium for depicting screen thrills, however, it is quite passable. The photography and printing do not add any value to the production, but the work of Mary Dibley, consistently artistic, relieves the situation considerably. Maud Yates and Marjorie Hoare are also quite good.

the methods by which it is intended to achieve the end are open to serious objection. It is stated that a deputation is being formed to wait on Lloyd George, and the public is being invited to send postcards expressing its opinion to the offices of this League. According to the League's Secretary, the cinema should be made educative and should be a place where parents can take their children. No league, we should imagine, would start a campaign to "reform" music halls and theatres so that children could go. No one would seriously argue that indecency should be allowed or that children ought to be kept away from the music halls and theatres because there is anything improper in the performances. It is simply that these places of amusement cater for the adult public and that the BRITISH FILMS FAILING ?

by ANDREW SOUTAR

One after another, British film companies are failing. I learned this week that one of the foremost has given a week's notice to every member of its staff, intimating that "owing to the trade crisis it has been decided to close down production for the time being."

If these repeated failures help our people to realise that we have never deserved success, they will have come as a blessing. I know that I shall be accused of lacking in patriotism for criticising instead of extolling British productions, but I must risk that.

Screen pictures mean millions of pounds to the revenue of a country; this country isn't making one "bean" out of them. America is the greatest market in the world for screen pictures—eleven million persons go to the kinema theatres in the States every day. I doubt very much if we have sold half a dozen pictures to the States during the last four years, and those that may have been sold have never seen Broadway, where, for a big production, a theatre is leased for as long as three months.

In this country, according to my own investigations, the art or industry is in the wrong hands. Small people are snatching at small profits and whining day by day because America throws their productions on one side as being unworthy.

Looking at it commercially, I say without fear of criticism that there are millions of pounds to be made out of film-making if the right company is formed and the right lines of working adopted.

Griffith's picture, "The Birth of a Nation," is still running in the small towns of the States; it has made over four million sterling to date. "The Miracle Man" had made nearly two millions when I left New York last autumn. "Way Down East" (a Griffith production) will make two millions before it is scrapped. Is there a single British picture that has made ten thousand pounds profit?

In America a good director gets as much as twenty thousand pounds a year for his work; and he is worth every cent of it if any of ours gets five hundred. The Americans spend anything up to a hundred thousand pounds on a picture, so that they may get fifty per cent. on their money.

In order to lift British films to the front, we must see that the directors are people with some sense of art, education and appreciation of what the public wants.

We must also insist on young people playing in the picture. Directors, as Mr. Jeffery Bernerd rightly says, should not be allowed to direct their wives. Joseph Schenck, who has made millions out of pictures, and is the husband of Norma Talmadge, said to me: "We want British pictures in the States, but don't give us old women in the leading roles. Youth, sitting in the theatre, wants to see Youth on the screen."

A director must not be confined to fifteen thousand feet of film with which to make a five thousand reel picture. Frequently D. W. Griffith exposes three hundred thousand feet until he gets the desired effect.

The scenario department should be under the charge of someone who has a grip of literature, can visualise a scene, and has the courage to keep the director in his place.

A film "doctor," or scenario doctor, is essential. In America he is a highly-paid writer, and he goes through the scenario in order that he may put in the human touches that mean so much.

No director should be allowed to choose his own cast. A casting editor, with a committee, should be engaged. There should be no favouritism. We must realise that any good director can make a first-class star or actress who has the right film face. He should know how to talk to them while they are working, and play on their emotions.

In conclusion, I say, emphatically, that if the right company will step in, now that the moment is opportune, and make one good British picture that shall have a chance to take its place among the thousands in America, the way is paved for scores of others.

And yet we have the finest scenery in the world, British cameras are the best. British actors stand first, even in America.

Give us the right combination—money and art—and we shall stand first in the list within four years.—(Sunday Pictorial.)

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES

VIII.—A. BROMLEY DAVONPORT

One of the leading players in the two latest George Clark productions is A. Bromley Davenport. In "The Bigamist" he plays the part of Carruthers, while in "The Persistent Lovers" (one or two remaining scenes of which have yet to be secured) he appears as the Duke. Mr. Davenport's first introduction to the screen was with Broadway in "Great Gay Road," but previously he had had vast and comprehensive experience on the speaking stage. His most recent appearances have been in "The Romantic Age," at the Comedy, "The Choice," and "Our Mr. Hepplewhite," at the Criterion. He joined the Army in January, 1915, and was for three years with the Staffs. Yeomanry, serving for some time in Egypt, after which he was invalided home.

We would take this opportunity of congratulating Mr. Davenport on his marriage to Adele Burdillat, which took place last Tuesday at the Brompton Oratory. The bride is a French widow, whom he met while working on scenes in "The Bigamist" in Nice.

Colonel Bromley-Davenport, the bridegroom's brother, was best man.

The only guests were Lady Newton (the bridegroom's sister) and Lord Newton.

SUB-TITLES

by G. de BEAUREPAIRE

Why so many individuals imagine that the elimination of sub-titles, letters and throwbacks from the screen-play would improve it, I cannot imagine.

Regarding sub-titles: if we cannot have the human voice in the screen-play (and, in my humble opinion, we don't want it) we must have something in print, because, apart from the fact that a continual series of pictures unbroken by print would become monotonous, people always want to know what an actor is saying at the crucial moment (especially if to the villain, or to the heroine) and a good gripping sub-title in a dramatic subject is just as thrilling to an audience as a thrilling scene in action.

And the same remarks apply to comedy. For instance, in Hepworth's screamingly funny film, "Alf's Button," the remarks of "Alf" (Leslie Henson) in sub-title, to his pal in the trenches, and during their capers on leave, helped the film's success eighty per cent., especially the stock gag, "Eustace always was 'ole-sale!" which gag everybody who had seen the film laughingly remarked about to their friends.

This is only one instance, recollect! I could quote many more.

Now take the screened letter. In my opinion a letter is as interesting to read on the screen as it is in the printed novel, provided it is not too long, especially if the letter tells a happy mother that her marriage with her husband was bigamous, and why (as Guy Newall's very effective letter told his "mother" in "The Bigamist"), and provided that the letter is legible and not too long.

It is utterly impossible to convey everything—everything that must be conveyed to an audience—that is, in photographic action. Titles are necessary, and, moreover, desirable, and so are letters.

Now take throwbacks. As William J. Elliott truly says in the last issue of THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO, if throwbacks are used properly by an individual, who understands his craft, they are often very effective, and never in the least confusing to persons of ordinary intelligence. They are desirable, as is the fade-back incident generally. Particularly in the short film, the two-reeler; and, even in the long film, or the five or six reeler, they cannot be often avoided, since most of our stories were not originally written for the screen.

I may remark that I am at present engaged upon a detective series myself, and as each adventure must be given in two reels, I find throw-backs, and the fade-back incident generally the only way in which to tell the stories I have at my elbow in only two reels.

The great thing to remember with regard to sub-titles, letters, and throwbacks is—DON'T OVERDO IT! And this refers to everything in this life, and, I should imagine, in the next!

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

IT is now some days since Jeffrey Bernard decreed that his directors at Stoll's were not to cast their wives for star roles in their productions, and I am wondering if there is not another side to this question. I have met some of these wife-stars who have assured me that they do far better work when the director also happens to be their own husband. A kind of affinity of spirit, I suppose.

ON the other hand, I heard of one wife-star who, after a particularly trying time "on the floor," confessed to a friend, with an ocean of tears in her voice: "He bullied me dreadfully. I'm sure he wouldn't dare speak to any other woman like that."

WHAT thinks Willie Clarkson of Louis Mercanton, I wonder? That leading French director refuses to allow the use of artificial facial fungi by his artistes. If one of them has to play a part which necessitates his screen appearance as a bearded man he has to grow the wealth of whiskers—not hire it! One of his actors in "Phroso," he declares, had to appear with a growth on his chin, and Louis allowed the fellow eight weeks on full pay in order to cultivate this! This rearing of the hirsute crop may be O.K. in such circumstances, but suppose A. Bromley Davenport had to play the part of an artist-fellow with long flowing locks!

RUBY MILLER is now playing the part of Dinah in "The Edge o' Beyond," at the Garrick—the part she played in the film version. And she says that she has found it has been a great help to have been able to study her own acting on the screen, "and I am able to place much more reliance on my expression than I could before." Thank you, Ruby, for that testimonial to the value of screen-craft. So many stage players assert that playing before the camera spoils them.

IF I were more polite than sincere I suppose I would use this par to offer a warm and hearty welcome to the Master of Falkland (the Hon. Lucius Plantagenet Cary) and the Hon. Mrs. Cary, who this week announce that they are taking up film work. The Master of Falkland is the heir of the 12th Viscount Falkland, a representative peer for Scotland, and the Hon. Mrs. Cary until recently had a shop in Knightsbridge. So that this noble couple are fairly versatile in their experience. However, I am optimist enough to believe that if someone were to point out to them that their entry into the studio will mean the keeping out of two professional artistes they would be content with the comfortable position they already enjoy.

INCIDENTS like this serve to point one obvious moral: The urgent necessity of a Film Artistes' Association. Artistes must organise for protection. And when this is done (and not before) will there be a cessation to attempts by Society folk to take from artistes their bread and butter.

I AM informed that an agency to provide work in the studios for ex-officers and their wives will shortly be opened by a party of ex-officers. A meeting to discuss the matter was held at 48, Grosvenor Square, W., and it was decided that propaganda work should be carried on for the

ON THE FLOOR

With JOHN GLIDDON

Anyone who has seen John Gliddon at work at once realises that here is an earnest thinker—a man who is able to concentrate his outstanding abilities on the work in hand—who knows the vast possibilities which lie in film producing, and is determined to develop them.

John Gliddon has that sense of imagination which is "a gift of the gods" to any film director. Young, very active, and bringing to his work a new angle of conception, he is out to do great things for British films. His long experience of casting (his association with Branlins will be remembered) enables him to select his types without difficulty.

It must be said, however, that John is cognisant of the possibilities of new material, so long as it conforms with his own particular standard.

While strongly averse from extravagance in stock, he makes it a principle to get exactly what he wants from any artiste, believing that the soundest economy is gained by delivering the proper goods, rather than stop to estimate to three places of decimals what the ultimate cost will be.

And perhaps the greatest thing of all is the feeling of confidence he wins from his cast. A call at the studio when the company is taking a breather is sufficient to impress one with the cordiality that exists between director and player. John knows his job, and the artiste knows he knows.

next three weeks. A meeting will be held after that time to come to a more definite decision on the matter.

CAPTAIN IRVEN, who presided, said: "We hope to obtain a membership of 2,000 people, and we shall charge 5 per cent. on earnings for the jobs we find for them." With all the sympathy in the world I find myself unable to agree with this movement. Just as the building trade workers refused to allow "dilutees" so ought studio workers. I would like to tell Captain Irven that there is not enough work in studio-land for the present population of that land—immigrants thereto will make matters worse for all concerned.

IN our "Do You Know" feature is a pertinent inquiry as to the production of a British serial, and I share the writer's curiosity. American-made serials are a wash-out, and soon no exhibitor will dare to submit one to his patrons. We have given the Americans enough rope, and they have hanged themselves. And yet serials are of films the most remunerative. What is wanted is a scenarist with enough initiative to prepare a top-hole scenario of a serial and a producing firm with enough business acumen to begin where America has left off. Who will it be?

A WORD about our next issue. Following on a recent suggestion in this journal we have decided to lead the way in the matter of encouraging the use of better literary material in British productions. To this end we have obtained from leading producing firms full particulars of their scenario system and the scenarios required. This will be published under the title of "The Scenario Market," and will become a regular feature. Other special features of interest to scenarists in particular will be included. Arrangements have been made for this special issue to be circulated in the studios in this country and America, and all interested will be well advised to reserve advertising space. August 17 is the latest date for editorial "MEGAPHONE," and advertising copy and blocks.

Where they are and —————

Marjorie Hume, who is now off the F.-P. Lasky stock company, is at Isleworth playing lead in "Bluff" for Hardy.

J. Merton is art director at Stoll's Cricklewood studio.

Teddy Hayes plays lead in "Teddy Laughs Last" (Regulus).

H. L. Morrin is assistant director to Martin Thornton, at Stoll's.

C. T. Crapper is cranking for Lambart Films on "Romance and Reality."

Geo. Foley has just returned from Shoreham, where he has been appearing in "A Lowland Cinderella" (Progress).

James G. Dickson is responsible for the scenario of "Teddy Laughs Last," now being produced for Regulus.

W. Vinall Bennett, who was almost born in the wig business, but has also been in stage management, is wardrobe master at Cricklewood.

Cora Goffin is playing the star part in Lambart Films' production, "Romance and Reality," interiors of which have been secured in the Tuilleries Street Studios.

Camera Bargains—Largest selection of professional and topical instruments in London, all makers—English, American and Continental. Write stating exact requirements, special quotations post free, or call and inspect our stock, Cash or Easy Payment Terms. Apparatus accepted in exchange, Strict approval terms willingly.

THE KINEMATOGRAPH EXCHANGE,
81 Aldersgate Street, E.C.1.

Gray Murray is in the cast of "Sonia."

Hetta Bartlett has been playing in "Sonia" (Ideal).

Caleb Porter is in the cast of "The Night Hawk" (International Artists).

Mdlle. Valya plays Lady Cannyng in Stoll's "The Fruitful Vine."

Edward Dorley is playing for International Artists in "The Night Hawk."

Gordon Craig is playing the "bad man" part in "Roses in the Dust" (Gaumont).

Mary Brough has been provided with an important part in the International Artists' production "The Night Hawk."

John Gliddon with his company of International Artists is now at Brixham, in Devonshire, on exteriors for "The Night Hawk."

Malvina Longfellow is playing the leading part of Lydia, the wife of the skipper of the Night Hawk in "The Night Hawk" (International Artists).

A. Bromley Davenport has returned to England from Nice with the George Clark Company and is to work in one or two scenes, which are to be shot in this country, to complete "The Persistent Lovers."

George K. Arthur, who has just finished playing the title role in "Dear Fool," has received a signed letter from the author, in which "Artemas" says "you were indeed the veritable 'Dear Fool' of my novel."

Milton Rosmer plays three different parts in five different make-ups in "The Pointing Finger" (Stoll), and has now entered into an agreement with Stoll to star in four successive productions.

Capt. Calvert is still busy on "Roses in the Dust" (Gaumont), and is likely to be quite another three weeks before he finishes. The picture will contain scenes taken at Henley Regatta, on the sea-front at Eastbourne and in London and Cornwall.

Langhorne Burton is with F.P.-Lasky.

Madge Stuart has the name part in "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills" (Stoll).

Henderson Bland plays Shadrack Morgan in Stoll's "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills."

Eille Norwood is filling the role of Lord Pryse in "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills," which Martin Thornton is directing for Stoll.

—DO YOU—

If there is any significance in the fact that G. Treville is directing "Married Life" while E. J. Collins is directing "Single Life" for Ideal.

* * *

Whether Sydney Seaward did not do some really striking work at the B. & C. studios and—

* * *

How the other artiste liked being so completely knocked out.

* * *

Why Donald Crisp is returning to the Other Side.

* * *

If in making two reel comedies with George K. Arthur as the star is not a very wise move on the part of Stoll.

* * *

Whether the Gaumont versus Ideal semi-final was a cricket match or a game of nine-pins.

* * *

If it is not a fact that Paris has gone mad over "The Door that has no Key."

* * *

Whether "The Bigamist" is going to be the huge success it was hoped.

* * *

Why Malvina Longfellow turned down the part of "Lady Hamilton" in the German production.

FILM WORK

Contributed by

The Austrian people are always anxious to assist producing companies in any way possible. The scenery is magnificent, and the studios are wonderfully well equipped.

While our company was in Austria we used a magnificent studio, which is run by the Government. It was at one time the summer-house of the ex-Emperor, but it has been transformed into a fine studio.

It is lighted mainly by a lamp known as the "Wienert"—something similar to our Westminster. I saw a set 180 feet long, representing Venice, built in this studio. The set was absolutely solid, and was complete with gondolas and waterways. It was built in a square, to make it possible to shoot from any side.

I believe there is a big market for English films in Austria. I saw plenty of American pictures in Vienna. A thing that struck me as being strange was that

It seems rather unwise that British producing firms are closing down at the present time, a time when they should be doing their best to get films out. Since the Armistice, British productions have been steadily improving, until many are now capable of being sold in America. American films are, however, coming into this country in shoals and into other countries as well. American films have been well received all over the world, because they are better than English, and until we could turn out films of quality we could not hope to compete with the States. Just as we are getting somewhere near the mark we start closing down.

I have just returned from Austria with Frank Crane, my director, who has been producing "The Puppet Man." Austria, so far as the climate is concerned, is an ideal country for film work.

what they are doing

May Blossom has joined the Golden West Company.

Harry Granville has been appointed director of productions of the newly formed Golden West Productions.

Bertram Burleigh has been engaged by Kenelm Foss to play a leading part in "All Roads Lead to Calvary." Sid Jay handled the booking.

—KNOW?—

Why professional film artists allow Society intruders to take their jobs away from them; and—

* * *

If this is not due to the absence of a Film Artists' Association.

* * *

The name of the scenarist who punched the head of an agent in the Criterion.

* * *

Why the Daily Graphic suggested that Maurice Elvey should be made a B.A.

* * *

Which is to be the producing company to make a real British serial.

* * *

The name of the next Hepworth production.

* * *

If the cameramen at Cowes had a very enjoyable time; and—

* * *

The name of the cameraman who contemplates opening a fried fish shop.

* * *

If the suggested Film Agency for Ex-Officers is not an unfair move.

* * *

How Harold Preston enjoyed being smacked by Cora.

* * *

If in "The Missioner" Olaf Hytten will be Hurd as well as seen.

Olaf Hytten has finished work with Stoll in "The Missioner."

Johnnie Butt is in the cast of "Four Men in a Van" (Titan).

Edwin J. Collins is to direct the production of "Single Life" for Ideal.

Thomas Bentley is to direct the production of "Pickwick Papers" for Ideal.

Challis N. Sanderson is now chief assistant to J. Stuart Blackton.

Hugh Croise is to direct the production of "Four Men in a Van" for Titan Films.

A. Manning Haynes is playing a leading part in "Four Men in a Van" (Titan).

Leslie Howard Gordon is staff scenarist at Stoll's Cricklewood studio.

"Bee" Mason has been chosen as cinematographer for the Shackleton Expedition.

Maurice Elvey is to direct the production of "The Romance of Westdale" for Stoll, with Milton Rosmer in the lead.

George Wigan is assistant to Edward R. Gordon, who is directing the production of "The Haigh Serial" (Master).

Elizabeth Brandt, the Swedish member of the International Artists Company, has gone to Sweden to arrange for the disposal of International Artists' output in Scandinavia.

Cyril Percival has just finished work at Stoll, where his last part was the name part in "The Missioner." This is his seventh Stoll picture.

Victor McLaglen has been asked by A. Bocchi to go to Italy for three months as soon as he is free from "The Glorious Adventure" to take a part in a production by the new Italian-American producing Company.

Henri de Vries, the famous Dutch actor, is playing the part of John Mayor, the old skipper in the "The Night Hawk," which John Gliddon is directing for International Artists' Films.

Harding Steerman has been engaged by Bramlins to play for Harma.

Mrs. M. S. Crewdson manages the fine canteen at Stoll's Cricklewood Studio.

Eric Barclay, just over from Paris, is to play for the next Harma production (Bramlins' booking).

Hilda Anthony is playing for the Ideal production, which M. Treville is directing (Bramlins' booking).

Gibb McLaughlin is at present working at Shoreham with Progress Films. (Bramlins arranged this.)

Frances Weatherall is playing the part of the Duchess in "The Lowland Cinderella" for Progress (Bramlins booking).

Brigadier-General W. B. Hulke is paymaster at the Stoll Cricklewood studio and assists Joe Grossman in the general management.

Kate Phillips and Pauline Peters have been re-engaged by Bramlins to play for Mr. Morgan in the Progress production "The Lilac Sunbonnet."

LETTERING SPECIALIST

is open to undertake one or two commissions for special film work
G. T. SHEARMAN, Bank Road Nottingham.

IN AUSTRIA

I. ROSEMAN

a Chaplin film—"The Floorwalker"—did not raise a single laugh.

"Anne Boleyn," the German film, was also being shown. It is, without a doubt, the finest picture I have ever seen. For sets, photography, lighting and acting it will take a lot of beating. Hampton Court and other famous places in England have all been reproduced on the screen.

Germany is another competitor, and when you have seen a German picture you will get some idea of what we are up against. When Germany can turn out films of such a high standard it is no time for English firms to start closing down.

If we are ever going to produce we must start now. If we do not start soon, we may as well give it up altogether.

I saw some British pictures in Vienna of Auriele Sydney which were well received. The picture houses are many, but they are small. The biggest hall in the town runs a five-reeler, a comedy, and perhaps a scenic, but it has an orchestra of eighty-five!

The singing picture is very popular. A hall in Vienna was running a whole opera in pictures. At the foot of the picture was the different notes, and the singers behind the screen sung the notes as they were flashed on, thus synchronising with the characters on the screen.

The projection in most of the theatres is very bad. The pictures are usually rushed through at a terrific speed, or else the masking is wrong.

The Austrian people like exciting films—serials and thrillers. We should be able to supply a few, otherwise the country will be overrun with German and American pictures, and then we will stand a very poor chance.

DARK ROOM VIEWS

by WILLIAM VEATS

The article which recently appeared in your admirable and helpful journal, "Development and After Treatment of Negatives," by Harry J. Coward, touches several very vital points in connection with this, the most important process in Kinetography.

In carefully "grading" the various sections for exposure to obtain the first impression for the director's "cutting copy," it is often surprising what a first-class "judgment" printer discovers. One riddle, which I have not yet seen solved, is how to obtain good results when artistes have not secured that most desirable effect, which, for lack of a better term, I shall call "balance of 'make up.'"

Often the printer "goes for" an artiste's features at the opening of the scene, regulating exposure accordingly, when, upon the appearance of another character, a new proposition is presented. The features of the second figure has an entirely different facial "make up," due to this lack of "balance." The resultant positive from such a negative cannot be termed perfect.

No blame is attached to you, Mr. Negative Developer; rather would I suggest that a deal of credit be due to you for the "average" you do your best to obtain.

Should the printer disregard entirely this difference, the positive shows one "blacked," whilst the other is either good or lacking in detail.

This hard, soot and whitewash effect is unavoidable, unless due regard be paid to the question of "balance of make up."

I lack the necessary knowledge to point out the tint to be used with the various shades of complexion. I, however, feel sure that you will agree with me this question demands your close study and attention.

Mr. Coward's "punch hole" question is a very important one. I would suggest that an "exposure plot" accompany each camera box, indicating its contents, and the meaning of the various punch holes.

Often, upon assembling a negative for commercial printing, it is found that a "retake" is sandwiched between scenes of a similar nature, but of a different density. This would probably have been obviated had the "exposure plot" indicated a "retake" of a particular scene. When this is done, it might be possible in most instances to develop "first takes" and "retakes" of same on one frame, or at the same time, thus obviating the jump in density otherwise unavoidable in finished copy.

Too great an emphasis cannot be laid upon the skilful use of intensifiers and reducers. Very careful judgment and great skill must be exercised when resorting to these methods in an attempt to improve a poor negative. Those of the soft variety are undoubtedly preferred to the hard and dense ones. If at all possible to get the happy medium, it is more desirable from a printer's point of view.

With the soft, thin negative, one great danger asserts itself, viz., that after a few prints have been made the slight base faults and unavoidable microscopic abrasions print far deeper than the average or denser negative. For this reason alone it is often advisable to treat your thin negative with a good intensifier. The printer receives the sections from the negative assembler, duly marked according to effect desired, and if for toning, tinting or black and white. Upon the sections being "graded" and printed, the exposed stock should be classified into separate boxes and labelled according to treatment desired.

Sepia tone, blue tone, light effects and straight developing can then receive Mr. Positive Developer's special attention. With many toning processes the print is greatly intensified, for which due allowance must be made in both printing and developing. Hence the advisability of classified separation. After development is completed a consultation between developer and printer is desirable, that alterations may be made in subsequent prints to obtain an even density throughout the whole section.

If care be exercised in printing and developing, this desirable uniformity can last date for editorial and advertisement copy for the Special Scenarists' Number.

WED. AUG. 17

be obtained, especially with the aid of mechanical light changing apparatus. These machines regulate the exposures to be given each scene, and creates a "standard light" for further copies.

Great improvements are still necessary in the handling of stock after printing. Old-fashioned methods still prevail in most English laboratories. The day will dawn it is to be hoped in the very near future when film will not be touched by hand from the moment it leaves the printer until it reaches the positive joiner for final assembly. Such machines are used to a very great extent both on the Continent and in America, very few being used in England at present.

Greater attention might also be paid to the various toning processes used in Continental laboratories. Many beautiful effects are being obtained there with the aid of both toning and tinting; many colours in toning being obtained by "dye toning." This is a very satisfactory method of producing "tones" in any shade, which, together with a suitable dye wash, a distinct and true two-colour effect is presented on the projection sheet.

Doubtless much more will be heard of this process in the very near future, as many enthusiasts are working upon the question, one of whom showed the writer some wonderful effects, especially various shades of green, a short time since. Some of these were practically "double tones." Unfortunately, it is extremely difficult for the moment to find a mordant which does not infringe various German patents which are registered in this country.

SPECIAL NOTE.—Meeting re Kinema Club announced for next Thursday postponed. See next issue for important announcement.

STUDIO PATENTS

This list is specially compiled for the MOTION PICTURE STUDIO by Rayner and Co., Registered Patent Agents, of 5, Chancery Lane, London, W.C.2, from whom all information relating to Patents, Trade Marks and Designs, can be obtained gratuitously.

Latest Patent Applications.

17,579.—Carey Gavey Syndicate, Ltd. Kinematographic apparatus. June 28.

17,968.—G. Rivetta, Kinematograph film feeding devices. July 1.

17,932.—W. Feuerzeug, Photographic apparatus.

18,523.—D. Barker. Producing animated cartoon films. July 8.

18,670.—W. J. Lyons. Production of picture films for cinematography. July 9.

15,587.—A. R. Boorman. Means for use with a kinema film camera for producing a stereoscopic effect when the pictures are projected on the screen.

163,677.—Petra Akt-Ges. Fur Elektromechanik. Means for guiding kinematograph films.

16,236.—A. Schwaryhaupt. Guiding endless films. June 13.

164,404.—N. Pemberton-Billing. Motion picture apparatus.

164,447.—C. M. Williamson. Kinematograph cameras.

164,467.—J. E. Thornton. Carriers or holders for kinematograph films.

164,476.—A. R. Trist. Cameras for use in colour photography.

163,776.—J. B. A. E. Peranne and A. Aube. Film feeding and centring means for kinematograph apparatus.

163,829.—J. E. Thornton. Apparatus for holding and feeding forward the films in kinematograph apparatus.

19,822.—G. Humphries. Cards for production of film titles for kinematograph projection. July 23.

19,843.—H. C. F. Morant. Film developing apparatus. July 23.

Specifications Published this Week.

132,786.—F. Kaufman. Taking or projection of kinematograph pictures.

165,151.—F. E. Mosley. Recording apparatus for use with kinematographs and the like.

147,021.—A. von. Rothe. Apparatus for taking kinematographic photographs.

160,512.—Stereo-Kinematography. The invention comprises a prismatic optical system for use as a projector for pictures of a kinematographic apparatus, in which two images of a single picture are simultaneously thrown on to the screen and superimposed. In place of the usual projecting-lens a system is used consisting of the back component of an ordinary lens, in front of which is mounted two rhomboidal prisms, each reflecting half the rays through lenses. To insure correct superimposition on the screen, wedge-prisms are fitted, and are capable of rotation. The lenses are mounted in eccentric cells to facilitate adjustment. The whole system is mounted in a casing, so that it may replace any ordinary projection lens.—Charles Henry Frampton, 209, Balham High Road, London, S.W.17.

Rayner and Co. will obtain printed copies of the published specifications, and will forward on post free for the sum of 1s. each.

YOUR CORNER LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE KINEMA CLUB.

When the big inclusive club is formed I would suggest the formation of a more exclusive club, consisting of those interested more particularly in the artistic advancement of the kinema. By including all engaged in kinema work you include a large proportion of those who are not there on account of any intrinsic screen qualities, but who are attracted from supposedly kindred spheres of activity by the lure of the salaries which in past years of boom the industry has been able to pay.

There are plenty of people capable of realising that screen art and stage art are "as the poles apart," and that the Kinema must work out its own future on lines distinct from the legitimate stage.

While producing is in the hands of old stage producers who openly advertise, when casting, that "only stage actors need apply"—although they must know that it has cost America a mountain of money to prove that they are no more likely to make good on the screen than many another with a "film face"—little progress will be made, and the club will be merely a branch of the Green Room Club.

Until a number of people get together who are agreed that the photoplay is half play and half photoplay, that the play is neither a stage play nor anything like it, and the photoplay is not only of the technical type, so long will advance hang fire, and so long will the public be dissatisfied.

I would suggest, therefore, the formation of the "Kinaesthetic" Club, or, if you will, the "Kappa-theta" Club—something with plenty of Greek in it—and exclusive to the dozens of writers who are continually voicing similar opinions to those expressed above, as well as the tens of dozens of others who do no voicing but a powerful lot of thinking.

Producing firms declare themselves willing, even anxious, to pay for talent, but when half the talent resides in relatives and friends and the other half is talent of the wrong kind, the result can only be poor art and worse business. As the late Prof. Huxley wrote: "It is one of the last lessons one learns from experience, but not the least important, that a heavy tax is levied upon all forms of success; and that failure is one of the commonest disguises assumed by blessings." The present slump will indeed be a blessing—without disguise—if it teaches producing firms that the kinema is both an art and a business and not a machine for paying absurd salaries to a few incompetent—in a screen way—people. The public will not stand for it. So, hail the new Kinaesthetic Club!—M. P. PROUT.

NOTE.—The meeting of the Kinema Club, fixed for next Thursday, has been postponed. An important statement will be made in our next issue.—ED.

CHATS TO CAMERAMEN.

I was wondering if you could not make a feature of "Chats With Cameramen"—to advise cameramen that you would like one of your representatives to call on them and interview them on the pictures they have taken, and their ideas of where or how improvements could be obtained in present circumstances in British studios, etc., etc. Not seeking to advertise myself, I sign myself, "A SUBSCRIBER."

FACTS OR FANCIES?

In the correspondence columns of the Kinematograph Weekly, A. E. Coleby writes on the question of the quality of British Productions. He says:—

There is a very old saying, and a very true one, that lookers-on see most of the game. I have been playing the part of a looker-on for some considerable time, and watching with interest the various moves of the Associations, who, for the first time in their history, have joined themselves together to safeguard the interests of the British Film Industry.

Naturally my leanings—as a director—are towards the manufacturing side, but I hope and trust I have sufficient common-sense to take into consideration the other branches. I know that everybody—in whatever branch of the Trade he may be—is passing through an exceptionally bad period; but I wonder how many realise that the fundamentals of their business depend on the person who pays money to go into their theatres? I am afraid not many.

To get the biggest penny in the quickest way has, apparently, been their sole object in life. Very few have taken into consideration the interest of their own particular audience. They have traded on names, and booked and booked without seeing or knowing what article would be sent them. So long as it had a name it was sufficient.

My experience teaches me that an audience wants more than that. Because a person with a name does one good picture, it does not mean that there is going to be a sequence of good pictures from the same source. The net result of all this is that the audience to whom we look for our bread and butter are quickly becoming dissatisfied with the fare put before them. It resolves itself into this: that, notwithstanding the exceptional climatic labour troubles which have existed in this country and notwithstanding conditions which have prevailed for some considerable period, I am convinced, and it has been proved beyond doubt that wherever a really good picture has been shown the public has found sufficient money to fill the house.

Facts are stubborn things, and this proves my point, that if a census of opinion was taken among picture theatre-goers in general, the answer in the majority of cases would be "I don't go as often as I used to, they've had such rotten pictures lately, and I shan't go again till they have a good one." Now all this tends in the direction for which I, as a director, desire to fight. It has been agreed that production (except in a few instances where contracts have to be carried out) shall cease, at least for some considerable period, and to my utter surprise the organisations concerned are allowing the representatives of the foreign element to have their say in the matter, and to use "soft soap" in the shape of (on the surface) falling in with the idea of non-production. But are they? Will they? I doubt it. While we stop production in this country, foreign competitors (when I say "foreign competitors" I mean all firms outside this country, including those with interests in this country) will go on producing even more than hitherto, and the time will come in the very near future when they will again flood the market at a price against which no British manufacturing company can compete. Indeed, I doubt very much if British manufacturers will be in existence at all, especially when I read the letters being sent to the President of U.S.A. asking him in the interests of our combined countries, to stop the ad valorem duty proposed by America. Why this? when to my knowledge for the last twelve years the legitimate British manufacturer has been able to exist and make good money without earning a copper from the country to which we are now bending the knee.

I wonder how many people at present connected with the Trade remember the futile efforts which were made in the said country some years ago to regain even a sporting chance? But no: they laughed at us, and they will laugh again.

Why do not the "big wigs" of this Industry collect together and leave no stone unturned to create some scheme to prevent the import into this country of anything and everything? I am not fool enough to suggest complete stoppage, but I do suggest that only the best should have a market here, and thus give the British manufacturer a chance of getting good money to do good pictures (for without good money he cannot do them), and thus give a fair field for all, and not, as I have recently seen in a beautiful picture house—complete in every detail, costing hundreds of thousands of pounds—a picture shown which I would stake my reputation was a German production, produced by a German, featuring a German, but what is worse, depicting a most distasteful and I may say indecent side of life.

If we are to have German pictures, let them at least be wholesome and decent. I trust you will agree with me?

Leading the way in the campaign for the improvement of the literary side of British Productions, the next issue of the "Motion Picture Studio" will be a

SPECIAL SCENARISTS NUMBER

New features and special articles for the benefit of Scenarists, and as it will circulate in America and this country all Scenarists should take advertising space.

LATEST DATE FOR EDITORIAL and ADVERTISING COPY, Aug. 17
DON'T BE LEFT BEHIND.

WHAT IT COSTS

by RONALD MAY

Whenever complaint is made as to the quality of British productions the inevitable counter-argument is that there is a lack of finance in British producing firms. And there is much in this argument; but not so much as those who make it think there is.

One of the most expensive films yet made by a British firm is "The Bigamist," and this cost well over £50,000. But I am not absolutely convinced that the results on the screen justify that vast sum. For the point I want to make is that it is not always a question of how much is spent as the manner of the spending.

There are other British films that will be, comparatively, far more successful on which only £5,000 has been spent. It all depends on how the money is spent. In view of these figures let us look at the question of stage finance. Arthur Webb in the Star says that this "all depends on the play." And, so it does.

Some plays have been successfully staged by managers at a cost of only a few pounds; others have exhausted a fortune and then have only drawn a few pounds into the box-office. I believe that a recent production at one of the musical comedy houses cost something like £20,000 to put on and run for a fortnight, and the total receipts probably did not exceed £2,000 during that period. The producers consequently lost roughly £18,000 on the venture.

The weekly expenses of a West End play vary considerably, according to the type of play and the theatre. The salary list of a farce may only run into a matter of £150 a week, but if you multiplied that sum by ten you would generally underestimate what a manager has to pay out every week to the cast of a revue. During recent years one management had to find between £2,000 and £3,000 every Friday to pay their company. One artist, who was only on the stage for ten minutes each performance, received £250, and the principal comedian got twice that figure.

For an average comedy, at an average theatre at an average rent, with an average cast, the total weekly expenses last date for editorial and advertisement copy for the Special Scenarists' Number of the "Motion Picture Studio" would be in the neighbourhood of £1,400 and the average receipts (supposing the play is successful) would be about £2,000. But the £600 is not clear profit. There are author's royalties to be paid, and the cost of production must be written off before the management begins to make money.

WED. AUG. 17

Now, all this is different from film finance. When the Public pays to see a picture it is paying for more than the cost of production—it is paying for the cost of production plus the cost of the renting concern, plus the cost of the exhibitor's establishment which includes exploitation orchestra, etc.

So that it is unfair for the Public, or any ill-informed member of The Trade even, to attempt to saddle the producing concern with the ultimate cost of the film. What I am particularly keen on pointing out is that the cost of making a film minus all the after-expenses does not determine—or should not determine—the ultimate success, or otherwise of the picture. Wisely spent as "good attraction" can be made for £10,000 as for £50,000.

Producing concerns need to overhaul the system of financing productions and to eliminate all waste. Extravaganza in sets or crowds is wrong.

At the same time I want to emphasise the difference between the extravagant and the cheese-paring policy. If we went to get hold of the different markets of the world we must spend the necessary amount of money on making a good selling picture—it is as wrong to spend more than is necessary as to spend less.

Harley Knoles in his letter to the Times, said:—"The British industry has suffered owing to the lack of enterprise on the part of those who hold the purse-strings; and it will always be difficult to compete with American or German films so long as our productions are stinted financially. Let us remember that we cannot enter a Rolls-Royce market with a Ford car."

STUDIO FINANCE

New Companies.

CENTURY ENTERPRISES, LTD.—Private company. Registered July 11. Capital £100 in £1 shares. To carry on the business of manufacturers of and dealers in cinematograph films, etc., in Great Britain and elsewhere. The subscribers (each with one share) are:—H. C. Sturgeon, 10, Little Queen's Road, Teddington, Middlesex, laboratory observer; C. J. Lock, 20, Hanover Square, W.1, secretary. The directors are not named. Solicitor:—W. H. Sanders, 36, Lincoln's Inn Fields, W.C.

FEDERATED FILM ENTERPRISES, LTD.—Private company. Registered July 6. Capital £5,000 in £1 shares. To carry on the business of financiers, manufacturers, renters and exhibitors of, agents for, and dealers in cinematograph and similar pictures, etc. The subscribers (each with one share) are:—E. A. Clifford, Mill House, Poundsbridge, Penshurst, Kent, solicitor; Emily E. M. Sheppard, 44, Selkirk Road, Tooting, S.W.17, clerk. J. H. Taylor is the first permanent director. Remuneration as fixed by the company. Solicitors: Ballantyne, Clifford and Co., Dock House, Billiter Street, E.C. Registered office: 24, Denmark Street, W.C.2.

S. AND T. PICTURES SYNDICATE, LTD. (176,095).—Private Company. Registered August 3. Capital, £6,000 in £50 shares. To acquire from the Safe Deposit and Trust Company, of Baltimore, U.S.A. (as trustees for the exors. of the late G. R. Webb) the exclusive manufacturing and exploiting rights in certain inventions, and to carry on the business of manufacturers, licensees, exhibitors and renters of and dealers in singing and talking machines, cinematograph films and cinematograph machinery and apparatus, etc. The first directors are: G. MacElwee, The Croft, Chatsworth Road, Chiswick, W.4 (director of Associated Paper Mills, Ltd., and the Lombard Industrial Corporation, Ltd.); A. N. Harper, 87, Howard's Lane, Putney, S.W.15. Secretary: G. Moore. Solicitor: G. Howard, 1, Great Winchester Street, E.C. Registered office: 1-2, Great Winchester Street, E.C.2.

Mortgages, Charges and Satisfaction.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, LTD.—Particulars of £25,000 debentures authorised May 20, 1921: whole amount issued: charged on the Company's undertaking and property, present and future, including uncalled capital.

RELEASES

The Hound of the Baskervilles (Stoll).

DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.

STAR: Eille Norwood.

CAST: Hubert Willis, Madame D'Esterre, Rex McDougall, Robert English, Lewis Gilbert, Catina Campbell, Robert Vallis, Fred Raynham, M. Walker.

SCENARIST: Dorothy Westlake.

CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.

His Last Defence (Walker)

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Wilmer.

STARS: Mary Glynn, Dennis Neilson Terry.

CAST: Alfred Bishop, Cyril Raymond, Alfred T. Jones, Harold Anstruther, Howard Cochran, Peggy Surtees, Helen Haye.

TRADE SHOWS

Cherry Ripe (Thompson).

DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.

STARS: Mary Odette, Lionelle Howard.

SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.

TRADE SHOW: Thursday, August 18, at the New Gallery, 11 a.m.

DON'T WORRY

THERE IS NO NEED TO

IF THE COSTUMES,

WIGS,

PROPS, etc.,

For Your PRODUCTION

are SUPPLIED BY

H. & M. Rayne,

115-119, WATERLOO RD., S.E.1

Phone: 7978 CENTRAL.

You cannot do better than by placing your orders with

L. BENJAMIN & CO.

99, Middlesex Street, E.1.

Phone—London Wall 7568.

THE PRESS AGENT AND THE STAR

by BILLIE BRISTOW

The good Press Agent is not a parasite.
The newspapers are the only means by which the public can satisfy a natural and growing curiosity about the lives, personalities, and careers of actors and actresses or the action of a play or film. Without this information the number of Kinemagoers would inevitably fall off, and similarly it is an admitted fact that the circulation of a paper will fall if its film and theatrical news is poor. There must be someone to supply this news.

But it must be news, for the man who fabricates is a fool, and does neither himself nor his client a pennyworth of good.

The Press Agent is the middle man, and he it is who supplies the news about the various stars. The need for news about stage and film personalities is growing, and with it the demand for better publicity. Everyone who has succeeded and has achieved some position in any profession has something about them that appeals to the romantic (and the envy of those less fortunate).

The Press Agent is trained to discover what this something may be. Often incidents in the career of an artiste, of which he or she does not appreciate the value, are invaluable to the Press Agent as details which the public is anxious to hear.

The Kinema and theatre-going public is intensely interested in actors and actresses whose performances hold their attention for a few minutes, and the result in terms of practical economics is brisk business at the Box Office. From the artiste's point of view this is everything. Managers both in film land and theatreland are business men, and they are going to engage artistes who have the capacity to fill their theatres. Naturally, therefore, they give a preference to those whose names are known to the public, and whose talents and personality have been proved.

There may be a few artistes who, by clever publicity have achieved some reputation without possessing talent, but their number is small. Any successful Press Agent will say that it is useless to try to build up a reputation on a foundation of hot air. On the other hand there are many really clever stage artistes who have been playing in the provinces for years, and are still there simply because their names are unknown to manager, producers and agents. This fact has been proved quite recently by two or three actresses whose names leap to mind, who have made instantaneous successes in the West End on their first appearances in London.

A similar thing applies in film-land—if an artiste attracts a public by reason of her personality, and her name becomes known, the manager of the Kinema theatre will want to book more films in which she is playing.

The renter who finds that Miss So-and-So is a big "draw," immediately in forms the producing concern, and so the lady obtains other engagements.

The importance of Provincial publicity cannot be overlooked where the film-player is concerned. The bulk of the Kinema-going public is to be found in the provinces, and it is in the provinces that film favourites are made, and if they have the personality and talent behind their publicity their popularity will never wane. The public is very loyal to its favourites—the picture-house manager knows this—so does the director, but unless the artiste has the goods to deliver to the public, no publicity on earth will make her a star and keep her a star.

STUDIO SPORTS

Gaumont and Ideal met at Boston Manor on Saturday, August 6, in the semi-final of the Kinematograph Sports Association's Cricket Cup Competition. The game resulted in a walk-over for Ideal. Gaumont, batting first, were all out for 10 runs, Barkas taking 7 wickets for 6 runs and Evans 3 for 3.

F. A. Kendrick and H. Wheddon opened the innings for Ideal, and after scoring 13 runs from 15 balls bowled, retired, leaving Ideal victors by 10 wickets.

GAUMONT

Smith, c. Hunter b. Barkas	0
Wicker, b. Barkas	1
Thorogood, b. Barkas	1
Struton, c. Puddephat b. Barkas	2
Girdlestone, b. Evans	0
Bronhead, b. Barkas	0
Jokeley b. Evans	0
Brown, b. Barkas	0
Page, not out	1
Hart, b. Barkas	4
Hunt, b. Evans	0

Extras 1
Total 10

FALL OF WICKETS.

1—0, 2—3, 3—5, 4—5, 5—5, 6—5, 7—5, 8—9, 9—9, 10—10.

BOWLERS' AVERAGE.

	Overs.	Maidens.	Runs.	Wkts.
Barkas	5	3	6	7
Evans	4	3	3	3

IDEAL

H. Wheddon, not out	7
F. A. Kendrick, not out	6

Total no wickets 13

Barkas, Walton, Simpson, Puddephat, Marlborough, Hunter, Evans, Alder and Phillips did not bath.

BOWLERS' AVERAGE.

	Overs.	Maidens.	Runs.	Wkts.
Struton	13	—	7	—
Thorogood	1	—	6	—

KINEMATOGRAPH SPORTS ASSOCIATION

At the last meeting of the committee of this Association the following were added to the list of Vice-Presidents: Colonel K. E. Jameson, J. S. Elias, Major A. P. Holt and S. Harris.

The committee of the swimming section is arranging a gala to take place at the end of September. Among the events will be a 100 yards championship of the Trade (gents) and a similar event for ladies. There will also be four-length relay races for ladies and gents, and a similar race for ladies and gents combined. A number of other events will be added, and full details announced in a few days' time.

MORE ISLINGTON NEWS

Further to the announcement made exclusively in these columns last week with reference to the movements of personnel at Famous-Players Lasky studios, we are able to state the immediate work of the newcomers.

John S. Robertson is making final preparations before leaving England next week with the F.P.B.P. company for France, where some exteriors for "Perpetua" will be filmed at Le Havre in conjunction with the Cirque Pinder. Ann Forrest arrived last week from Los Angeles and will appear in Mr. Robertson's new production in the title rôle. David Powell is cast for the part of the artist Brian. Mr. Robertson will be accompanied by his head cameraman, Roy Overbach, and George Pocknall as second cameraman. George Fitzmaurice is another recent arrival. He will shortly commence production at the Islington Studio with "Three Live Ghosts," with Norman Kelly in one of the leading rôles.

Donald Crisp has returned with his company from location, and is now busy with the interiors for "Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush," which as been adapted by Margaret Turnbull from Ian Maclaren's Scottish classic. In this picture Mr. Crisp has undertaken the dual rôle of director and star, as besides superintending the entire production, he has also undertaken the leading part of Lachlan Campbell. The big set of the picture—the banquetting hall of Drumtochty Castle—will serve next week as a background for a Highland ball-scene. Three hundred people will take part in this scene, and the music will be furnished by twenty regimental pipers of the London Scottish and the Scots Guards.

FILMING IN IRELAND

Ireland seems to be looming up as a production centre, judging from the plans of the Irish Film Company, which plans to do pictures in Ireland with Irish actors. A. V. Feary has been appointed general sales agent for the United States and Canada. It is said that three units are now ready for showing, consisting of a feature, a comedy and a scenic.

KINE CAMERA EXPOSURE METER

7/8

With Instruction Booklet.

Indicates right lens opening for the light.

"Very reliable, could hardly get on without."

"Complete satisfaction, used for testing actinic value of flame arcs."

WATKINS METER Co
HEREFORD.

The Biggest Successes have BENJAMIN COSTUMES

PERSONAL SUPERVISION GUARANTEED in every detail. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

PULSE OF PRODUCTIONS AND WHO

J. Stuart Blackton.

ADDRESS: Bush House, Aldwych.
STUDIOS: Now using Stoll's at
Cricklewood.

FILM: "The Glorious Adventure."

DIRECTOR: J. Stuart Blackton.

STAR: Lady Diana Manners.

SCENARIST: Felix Orman.

CAMERAMAN (Black and white):
Nicholas Mursuraca.

CAMERAMAN (Colour): W. T.
Crespinal.

TYPE: Seven-reel drama

STAGE: Fifth week.

British and Colonial.

ADDRESS: Hoe Street, Waltham-
stow.

FILM: "The Puppet Man."

DIRECTOR: Frank Crane.

STARS: Molly Adair, John Reid.

SCENARIST: Cosmo Gordon Lennox.

CAMERAMAN: I. Roseman.

TYPE: Spectacular Circus drama.

STAGE: Completed.

Broadwest.

ADDRESS: Walthamstow.

FILM: "The Imperfect Lover."

STAR: Violet Hopson and Stewart
Rome.

DIRECTOR: Walter West.

ART DIRECTOR: Thomas Fleet-
wood.

CAMERAMAN: A. G. Frenguelli.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Finish ng.

FILM: "The Candy Man."

STAR: Not cast.

DIRECTOR: Not announced.

SCENARIST: W. G. Clifford

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Scheduled.

Famous Players-Lasky
British Producers.

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.
STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A.
Bell, O.B.E.

FILM: "Dangerous Lies" (Working title "Twice Wed").

DIRECTOR: Paul Powell.

STARS: Mary Glynn, David Powell.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: R. J. Cullen.

SCENARIST: Mary O'Connor.

ART DIRECTOR: Leslie Dawson.

ASST. ART DIRECTOR: N. Gregory
Arnold.

CAMERAMAN: C. McDonnell.

TYPE: Social drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."

DIRECTOR: Donald Crisp.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Claude H.
Mitchell.

STAR: Donald Crisp.

SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.

STAGE: Sixth week.

Gaumont.

ADDRESS: Lime Grove, Shepherd's
Bush.

STUDIO MANAGER: B. H. Brom-
head.

FILM: "Roses in the Dust."

DIRECTOR: Captain Calvert.

STARS: Iris Rowe, Gladys Mason.

CAMERAMAN: Basil W. G. Emmott.

SCENARIST: H. Morgan.

STAGE: Sixth week.

Glen Films.

ADDRESS: 20 Lisle Street, W.C.

STUDIO: "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

FILM "Land of my Fathers."

DIRECTOR: Fred Rains.

STARS: Edith Pearson, John

Stuart.

CAMERAMAN: L. G. Egrot.

STAGE: Nearing Completion.

Hardy Film Co.

ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W.1.

STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isle-
worth.

FILM: "Bluff."

STARS: Marjorie Hume, Lewis
Willoughby.

SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.

CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.

STAGE: Second week.

Granger-Binger.

ADDRESS: 191, Wardour Street, W.
STUDIO: Haarlem, Holland.

FILM: "Bluff."

DIRECTOR: F. A. Richardson.

STARS: Maudie Dunham, Henry
Victor and Percy Standing.

STAGE: Third week.

Harma.

ADDRESS: Limes Grove, Croydon.

FILM: (not titled).

DIRECTOR: Bernard Dudley.

STARS: Marjorie Villis and James Knight.

CAMERAMAN: J. Mackenzie.

TYPE: Comedy drama.

STAGE: Eighth week.

Ideal

ADDRESS: Boreham Woods, Elstree

STUDIO MANAGER: A. Kendrick.

STAGE MANAGER: J. Barnard.

FILM: "Sonia."

STARS: Evelyn Brent, Clive Brook.

DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.

SCENARIST: Denison Clift.

CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.

STAGE: Eighth week.

FILM: "The Rotters."

DIRECTOR: A. V. Bramble.

STAR: Sydney Fairbrother.

STAGE: Scheduled.

FILM: "Married Life."

DIRECTOR: Georges Treville.

STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "Single Life."

DIRECTOR: Edwin J. Collins.

STAGE: Casting.

International Artists Films.

ADDRESS: 52, Shaftesbury Avenue.

STUDIO: B. & C. Studios, Hoe
Street, Walthamstow.

FILM: "The Night Hawk."

DIRECTOR: John Gliddon.

STARS: Malvina Longfellow, Henri de Vries.

SCENARIST: Gerard Ford Buckle.

CAMERAMAN: Will Howse.

STAGE: Fourth week.

Isle of Man Films.

ADDRESS: The Manx Studios, Isle of Man.

FILM: "Flotsam."

DIRECTOR: Edmund Blake.

STAR: Marjorie Battess.

CAMERAMAN: Ernest Melbourne.

STAGE: Nearing Completion.

Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate.

ADDRESS: Riverside Studios, Kew
Bridge.

FILM: "The Adventures of Mr.
Pusher Long."

DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme.

STAR: Dawn Meredith.

TYPE: Comedy.

STAGE: Nearing Completion.

FILM: "M'Lord of the White Road."

DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme.

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome,
Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone:
Kingsbury 120—Arfilodre, Hyde,
London.

ALLIANCE FILM Co., St. Margaret's-on-
Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place,
Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing
2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD.,
Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone:
Ealing 211 and 1582—Barnopho, Ealux.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH
Co., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow,
E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364
and 712.

BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD.,
Thornton House, Thorton Road, Clap-
ham Park.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20.
'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PICTURES, LTD., Tuilerie Street,
Hackney Road, London, E.2. 'Phone:
Dalston 3454.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street,
Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Wal-
thamstow.

CAIRNS FILM Co., Watcombe Hall, Torquay.
'Phone: Torquay 886—Cairnsfilm,
Torquay.

CENTRAL FILM PRODUCING Co., Eel Pie
Island, Twickenham.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRO-
DUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New
North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone:
Dalston 3704.

FREDERICK WHITE, LTD., Weir House,
Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone
Kingston, 1617.

GAUMONT Co., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's
Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolougue, 'Phone
London.

GRANDER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland,
London Office: Granger's, Exclusives,
191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone:
Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams:
Exclugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners
Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012.
Studio: Candlemass Lane, Beacons-
field.

GLEN FILM PRODUCING Co., LTD., 20,
Lisle Street, London, W.C., and "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

HARMA CLARENDON Co., 16, Limes Road,
Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst
Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone:
Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth
Walton.

IDEAL FILM Co., LTD., Boreham Wood,
Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—
Idefilms, Borehamwood.

INTER NATIONAL ARTISTS FILM Co., LTD.,
52, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

ISLE OF MAN FILM Co., The Manx Studios,
Isle of Man.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush
House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Crickle-wood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048
(Studio, Willesden 3293).

KINEMA EXPANSIONS, LTD., Motograph
House, St. Martin's Lane, W.C.

LAMBART FILMS, Carlton House, Regent
Street, London, W.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road
Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MINERVA FILM Co., LTD., 110, Victoria
Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

NEW AGENCY FILM Co., 115a, Ebury
Street, London, S.W.1. 'Phone:
Victoria 6856.

PARKSTONE FILM Co., LTD., Preston Road,
Lytham, Lancs.

PROGRESS FILM Co., The Beach, Shoreham-
by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham
19.

REGULUS FILMS: 48, Carnaby Street
Regent Street, W.1.

SAMUELSON FILM Co., Worton Hall, Isle-worth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow
212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High
Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton
2956.

SEAL PRODUCTIONS, Princes Studio, Kew
Bridge, Brentford. 'Phone: Chiswick 574.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpic, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street,
Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1993—
Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street
Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGNTON PHOTOPAYS, LTD.,
Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & Co., 41-45, Craven
Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone:
Willessden 2862.

WILSONIAN FILM PRODUCING Co., LTD.
Secretary, W. J. Crook, 547, Wandsworth Road, S.W.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

L. BENJAMIN & CO., 99, Middlesex St., 'Phone
Bishopsgate, E.1. London Wall 7568. Kinematograph Costumier.
Naval & Military Outfitter

THE STUDIO

IS WORKING ON THEM

STAR : Dawn Meredith.
TYPE : Costume Play.
STAGE : Scheduled.

Lambart Films.

ADDRESS : Carlton House, Regent Street.
STUDIOS : London Kinema Studio
Tuleries Street, Hackney Road.
FILM : "Romance and Reality."
DIRECTOR : Captain Harry Lambart.
STAR : Cora Goffin.
SCENARIST : Captain Harry Lambart.
CAMERAMAN : C. T. Crapper.
TYPE : Drama.
STAGE : Fifth week.

Master Films.

ADDRESS : Weir House, Teddington.
STUDIO MANAGER : George Wynn.
FILM : "The Haigh Serial."
DIRECTOR : Edward R. Gordon.
ASSIST.-DIRECTOR : George Wynn.
STAR : Ernest Haigh.
SCENARIST : Edward R. Gordon.
CAMERAMAN : Theodore R. Thumwood, Jack Parker.
TYPE : Detective serial.
STAGE : One Episode weekly.

Minerva Films.

ADDRESS : 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1.
FILM : "The Beggar's Syndicate."
DIRECTOR : Adrian Brunel.
STARS : Mary Patterson, Bert Darley, Crispin Hay.
SCENARIST : Adrian Brunel.
SCENARIO-EDITOR : Bernard Carrodus.
CAMERAMAN : Frank Hoffmann.
TYPE : Comedy drama.
STAGE : Finishing.

North British Productions.

ADDRESS : 6, Princes Square, Harrogate.

FILM : "The Lonely Road."
DIRECTOR : Alfred Van Den Bosch
STARS : Robert Fenemore, Gwyneth Roden.
STAGE : Seventh week.

Progress.

ADDRESS : Shorcham.
FILM : "Mayor of Casterbridge."

STUDIO MANAGER : Douglas Payne.
FILM : Grand Guignol series.
DIRECTORS : Fred Paul and Jack Raymond.
CAMERAMAN : Stanley Rodwell.
TYPE : Short melodramas.
STAGE : Producing one a week.

DIRECTOR : Maurice Elvey.
CAMERAMAN : Germain Burger.
STAGE : Fifth week.

FILM : "The Prey of the Dragon."
DIRECTOR : Martin Thornton.
STAR : Victor McLaglen.
CAMERAMAN : Percy Strong.
TYPE : Drama.
STAGE : Cutting and Assembling.

FILM : "The Pointing Finger."
DIRECTOR : George Ridgewell.
STARS : Milton Rosmer, Madge Stuart.
CAMERAMAN : Al Moses.
TYPE : Drama.
STAGE : Finishing.

H. W. Thompson.

ADDRESS : B. & C. Studio, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
FILM : "The Wonderful Year."
DIRECTOR : Kenelm Foss.
STARS : Marie Odette, Lionelle Howard.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR : Grace Rose.
SCENARIST : Kenelm Foss.
EDITOR : John Miller.
CAMERAMAN : Frank Canham.
ASSISTANT CAMERAMAN : Pat Quinn.
TYPE : Light French Drama.
STAGE : Cutting and Assembling.

Welsh Pearson.

ADDRESS : Craven Park, Willesden
FILM : "Squibs."
DIRECTOR : George Pearson.
STARS : Betty Balfour, Fred Groves
SCENARIST : Eliot Stannard.
CAMERAMAN : Emile Lauste.
SCENIC ARTIST : Ernest Jones.
TYPE : Comedy.
STAGE : Cutting and Assembling.

Zodiac.

FILM : "Walter in the Studio."
STAR : Walter Forde.
TYPE : Two-reel Comedy.
STAGE : Fourth week.

All Whose Names are Mentioned

in this feature are requested to acquaint us with all alterations in

"THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO"

In no other way can this be kept
RIGHT UP-TO-DATE

STAR : Fred Groves.
DIRECTOR : Sidney Morgan.
SCENARIST : Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN : Stanley Mumford.
STAGE : Sixth week.

Regulus Films.

ADDRESS : 48, Carnaby Street, Regent Street, W.1.
SECRETARY : J. G. Dickson.
FILM : "Teddy Laughs Last."
DIRECTOR : Milton Elmore.
STARS : Teddy Hayes, Audrey Edwardes.
SCENARIST : James G. Dickson.
CAMERAMAN : E. Coble.
TYPE : Two-reel Comedy.
STAGE : Nearing completion.

Samuelson.

ADDRESS : Warton Hall, Isleworth.
FILM : Title not fixed.
DIRECTOR : Rex Wilson.
STAR : Isabel Jeans.
STAGE : Third week.

Screen Plays.

ADDRESS : Cranmer Court, Clapham S.W.

Seal.

ADDRESS : Prince's Studio, Kew Bridge.
FILM : "Dick's Fairy."
DIRECTOR : Bert Wynn.
STARS : H. Greaves Munsell, Joan Griffith, and Albert Brantford.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR : John Wyndham.
SCENARIST : Eliot Stannard.
CAMERAMAN : L. Protheroe.
TYPE : Drama.
STAGE : Cutting and Assembling.

Sinclair Hill Productions.

ADDRESS : Jay's Agency, Wardour Street, London, W.
FILM : Comedy.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR : S. D. Braham.
TYPE : Straight Comedy.
STAGE : Scheduled.

Stoll.

ADDRESS : Tempie Road, Cricklewood.
STUDIO MANAGER : J. Grossman.
FILM : "The Fruitful Vine."

A RELIABLE INSTALLATION FIRM

There are perhaps few electric installations in which reliability and flexible working are more vital than those in a film producing studio. Among the firms who have an established reputation in this class of work is Ernest F. Moy, Ltd.

This organisation has, of course, a very wide fame amongst exhibitors for the quality of the workmanship which characterises the Moy-Omnia Projector. The accuracy of the work in this machine is of a standard which is calculated to impress all practical men who realise the importance of this characteristic, which is not less vital in the making of the cameras, perforators, tripods, printers and other items in the equipment of a studio.

What is not so widely known is the big work turned out by the company. A good example is afforded by the switch-board installation which has been running for the last few months at the Carnaby Street works of the St. James's and Pall Mall Electric Light Co., Ltd. The work was commenced in 1914, but was, of course, interrupted by the production of war material by the firm.

The installation is in four sections: the main board; a battery and feeder board; a middle-wire board, and a regulating board. The main board controls the power from four motor-converters, two with an output of 1,000 kw. and two of 500 kw. each. The pressure is 220 volts between outers (3-wire system). From this board there are 12 feeders protected by a "shutter" type fuse on each pole. The total length of the main board and the battery-control board, which adjoins it, is about 70 ft., and the height from the floor of the engine room is 9 ft. The panels are of polished black slate mounted on a very substantial steel framework, and the whole of the constructional work and apparatus weighs nearly 49 tons.

Among the chief features of the main board are two double-pole overload circuit breakers, designed to operate at 2,000 amp. These control interconnecting trunk mains linking up the Carnaby Street works with the company's Mason Yard sub-station. On another panel two double-pole busbar-coupling switches are mounted, constructed to carry a maximum current of 4,000 amp. These couple up the three sections into which the busbars are divided when the load is light and higher pressures are not required. All the instruments, of which there is a great number, were manufactured by Ernest F. Moy, Ltd., and are of the moving coil type. The construction of the busbars themselves is of interest. They are built up of four sections of copper 5 in. wide and 1/4 in. thick. Some idea of the amount of copper work in the construction of the main board may be gained from the weight—twelve tons.

The cables, instead of being brought up the back of the board to the various switches are, wherever possible, jointed to drop connections to the bars. Where higher connections have had to be made the cables are connected to copper rods totally enclosed in red fibre tubes, and all small wires such as volt-meter and ammeter shunt leads are protected in drawn-brass tubes, reducing fire-risk to a minimum. The design throughout is the work of Ernest F. Moy, and the installation has a fine record for maintaining balance.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for Kinematograph Productions. Phone—London Wall 7568

MODEL "C" CAMERA

W. VINTEN

Specialist in Cinematograph
Apparatus,

Urbanora House,
89, Wardour St.,
LONDON, W.1.

'Phone Re ent 2702.

The Up-to-date Studio Camera

JUST PUBLISHED.

The PICTUREGOER
PORTFOLIO
of
KINEMA CELEBRITIES

Contains the following:
SIXTEEN MAGNIFICENT PHOTOGRAVURE
PORTRAITS, Size, 10in. x 6½in.

- | | |
|--------------------|----------------------|
| MARY PICKFORD. | PEARL WHITE. |
| NORMA TALMADGE. | LILIAN GISH. |
| CHARLES CHAPLIN. | RICHARD BARTHELMESS. |
| DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS. | WILLIAM FARNUM. |
| NAZIMOVA. | PAULINE FREDERICK. |
| MARY MILES MINTER. | CONSTANCE TALMADGE. |
| WILLIAM S. HART. | THOMAS MEIGHAN. |
| RALPH GRAVES. | JACKIE COOGAN. |

All worth Framing. Price
ONE SHILLING
(Post free 1/2)

On Sale everywhere or direct from
PICTURES LTD.
88, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.
EVERY FILM LOVER MUST HAVE A COPY.

The MOTION PICTURE
Studio

The only weekly journal devoted solely to the interests of all concerned in the Production of British Motion Pictures.

Editorial and Advertisement Offices:
85, LONG ACRE, LONDON, W.C. 2.

'Grams: Southernwood, Rand, London.
Telephone :———— Gerrard 9870.

ADVERTISEMENT RATES

	One insertion	Six inser- tions (per insertion)
Front Cover	£6 10 0	£6 0 0
Back Cover	£6 0 0	£5 15 0
Full page	£5 10 0	£5 7 6
Half page	£3 0 0	£2 17 6
Third page	£2 5 0	£2 2 6
Quarter page	£1 15 0	£1 12 6
Sixth page	£1 5 0	£1 2 6
Eighth page	£1 0 0	18 9
Twelfth page	12 6	11 3
Per inch (single column)	5 0	4 6
(Blockmaking extra)

Professional Cards:

Photo Cards, 1 in deep £3 0 0 per quarter year.
(Inclusive of Blockmaking)
1 in. Cards (without blockmaking) £2 10 0
per quarter year.
Small Cards 17/6 per quarter year

Make certain of securing your copy regularly each week by filling in the Subscription Order Form and post with remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER FORM

TO The Manager,
"MOTION PICTURE STUDIO,"
85, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

Please send "THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO" to me at the following address for months, for which

I enclose remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES :: ::	Name
	Address to which copies are to be sent :

3 Months -	5/-
6 " -	10/-
Yearly -	20/-

The Motion Picture Studio, August 20, 1921.

The MOTION PICTURE Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 11.

Saturday, August 20, 1921.

FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH MOTION
PICTURES

PHYLLIS SHANNAW

Juvenile Lead "CALL OF THE ROAD," etc., etc.

All Coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour Street, LONDON, W.1

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross," Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."

219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Now playing lead in "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" (Ideal). Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.

Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley. Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.

Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds," "The Knight Errant," "Haigh Serial," "Love Maggie."

4, Park Place, St. James, S.W. Regent 4060.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal), "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).

c/o Sidney Jay, 1-1, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

Juvenile Leads: "Her Son," "Great Gay Road," "Lights of Home," "Land of My Fathers." Duane in "Belle of the Gambling Den" (Haigh Serial.)

OFFERS INVITED.

33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelm Foss Production), Latest Release, "With All Her Heart."

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street. Regent 4329.

PHYLLIS SHANNAW,

Juv. Lead "Call of the Road," "The Right to Live," etc.

Will be shortly disengaged.

All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour St., W.1. Phone: Regent 4329.

JOHN EAST. Postie.

"By the Bonnie Briar Bush" (Lasky). 14, Illey Road, Hammersmith, W.6.

ARTISTES

VICTOR McLAGLEN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES.

LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs. NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc.

Carlton House, Kew Green, Kew, Surrey.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath,

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

Phone: Regent 4329

DICK WEBB

Lead GAUMONT,

MASTER PRODUCTIONS, etc.

180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc. HARDY FILM CO.

All coms: c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1.

THIS SPACE TO LET

£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com. 197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph. Batt. 1770 or 21.

CLIVE BROOK INVITES OFFERS. 24, Hyde Park Square, W.2. Padd. 2868.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT, Disengage 1 July 4. Phone: Walthamstow 938.

ARTHUR CLEAVE, 15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6. Phone: Hornsey 1784.

CHARLES CLIFFORD, 38, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.2. Phone: Regent 569.

CRISPIN HAY, c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG, 12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,

Character, Comedy. 114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

ARTISTES

HARDING STEERMAN,

Characters of Distinction, 56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,

24, Cleveland Road, Barnes, S.W.13.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,

Character Parts, 57, Church Street Kensington, W.8.

SCENARISTS

ELIOT STANNARD

Scenarios.

85, Holbein House, Sloan Square, S.W.1.

Tele.: Victoria 497.

COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co., :: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.

7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11

(Phone: Park 2945).

HARRY J. STRUTTON

(Co-winner Sunday Express Scenario Competition).

ORIGINAL SCENARIOS.

Drama: Mystery, Pathos, Psychism, Idealism. 18, ERSKINE ROAD, WALTHAMSTOW, LONDON, E.17.

GERARD FORT BUCKLE

Scenarios.

Phone: Regent 4747.

41, Glasshouse Street, Regent Street, W.1.

THIS SPACE TO LET

£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE, Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references. 62, Foxburne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,

Kinedramatist, Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

IRENE MILLAR,

Novelist, Journalist, Scenarist, 10, Arundel Gardens, W.11, or Bramlins.

CYRIL E. MURRELL,

Scenarist—Comedy, No. 1, Pine Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2.

DIRECTORSBERT HALDANE,14a, Little Ealing Lane,
:: South Ealing ::

'Phone : Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
"The Face at the Window."Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.F. MARTIN THORNTONProducing for Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd.Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of
Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."NORMAN MACDONALD,Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT
GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE
LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and
"CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."Five years producer in America. At Liberty.
Address : 1A, DENBIGH PLACE, VICTORIA.S. L. GLENISTER

Professionally Major Comnenus-Palaologus.

PRODUCER, TECHNICAL & ART DIRECTOR.

"Under the Crescent," "Dumb Girl of Portici,"
"Campbells are Coming," "Where are My Children?"
etc., for UNIVERSAL. "The Arab," for LASKY.
"Less than Dust," for ART-CRAFT, etc., etc. Open
for Engagement. Address: 25, Randolph Crescent,
W. 9. 'Phone: Paddington 3819.GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer

THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.

Address : B. & C. STUDIOS,

Hoe St, Walthamstow, E.17.

THIS SPACE TO LET
£2 10 0 for 13 insertionsADRIAN BRUNEL,Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone : 5280 Paddington).RICHARD GARRICK,Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.ALBERT WARD,Producer—Open to accept engagements.
3, Ranelagh Grove, S.W.1.STUDIO MANAGER*JOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—

B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,

Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone : W'stow 364."

CAMERAMEN. . . .JOHN J. COX44, Barrowgate Road,
:: Chiswick, W.4. ::

'Phone : Chiswick 294.

Cameraman for Mr. Rene Plaissetty,
Stoll Picture Productions.T. R. THUMWOOD

Cameraman—AT LIBERTY.

Latest work : "The Channings," "Hard
Cash," "Stella" and "Miss Charity."

MASTER BUTCHER PRODUCTIONS.

"PEMBROKE," CHEAM COMMON RD.,
WORCESTER PARK.EDWIN DAY

Motion Picture Photographer,

12, Archer Street, Picca-
dilly Circus, London, W.1.

Telephone : Gerrard 780.

Telegrams : "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON

Thelton House, Cambolt

:: Road, Putney Hill. ::

Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN

"GAUMONT'S,"

105, King's Road,
Kingston-on-Thames.FRANK CANHAM

Cameraman—ASTRA FILM CO.

Filming "No. 5, John Street."

Featuring Miss Zena Dare.

Permanent Address : Royal Forest
Hotel, Chingford, Essex.BASIL W. G. EMMOTT

GAUMONT,

:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::

Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT

Expert Cameraman.

"The Better 'Ole," "Her Benny,"
etc., etc.

2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.

'Phone : Streatham 1969.

ALFRED H. MOSES

Photographing George Ridgwell Productions.

Formerly Chief Cameraman for Thanhouser,
Norma Talmadge, British & Colonial, etc.Address care of STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, Cricklewood.THIS SPACE TO LET
£2 10 0 for 13 insertionsCAMERAMEN. . . .*WILLIAM SHENTON

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Private Address :

17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,

Boreham Wood, Herts.

HORACE M. WHEDDON,

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Private Address —

"LYNTON HOUSE,"

BOREHAM WOOD, HERTS.

JAMES E. ROGERS,

Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth.

"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"

"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"

"Last Rose of Summer,"

PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

PHIL ROSS

Cameraman—AT LIBERTY.

Late of BROADWEST, HARMA, VANITY, etc.

19, Mayow Road, Forest Hill,
London, S.E.23.THIS SPACE TO LET
£2 10 0 for 13 insertionsPUBLICITY. . . .*F. J. STANDERWICK,

Photographer.

I am making a speciality of Catering for
Film Artists. 'Phone for appointment—
Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio
—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
W.14.FRANK J. WOOLF

Publicity Representative,

British and Colonial Kinematograph
Company, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone : Walthamstow 364.

EDWARD BAIRD,

Publicity.

172, Goldhurst Terrace, N.W.6.

COSTUMIER. . . .W. CLARKSON,

Costumier and Wigmaker,

41/43, Wardour Street, W. 'Phone : Gerr. 612.

YOUR CAST

YOUR PRODUCER

YOUR STAFF

Telephone: Museum 4038-9

YOUR STUDIO

Bramlins

YOUR LOCATIONS

241, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.C.2

YOUR CAMERA MAN

YOUR MANAGEMENT

YOUR STORY RIGHTS AND SCENARIO

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 11.

Getting the Focus

Telegram—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

August 20, 1921

The Demand for Scenarios!

AN examination of the revealed needs of film producers, given on page 10 of this issue, brings to light some interesting facts. The principal fact, however, is not clear from the paragraphs themselves. It is that producing companies do not in the main want scenarios. What they want is stories in synopsis form. The writing of a scenario, like the writing of a short story, is an art of which few people are able to master the technique. But it is given to many to conceive ideas and plots, and it is these most of all which are needed. Given a good idea expressed in a few hundred words a competent continuity-writer is a better man to write the scenario than the person who wrote the story—unless the story writer also possesses a technical knowledge of scenario writing. On the whole it is far better for the aspiring scenarist to write only a brief synopsis and submit it to a producing company. The writing of a full scenario is a long and difficult task, if it is to be done properly, and it is not worth while expending the time on it unless the story from which it is worked out has been accepted.

Psychology and Pictures.

SOME day there will be a director who will study psychology or have psychologist advisers. That day will see the beginning of a new screen era. It is an amazing thing that directors and their business controllers, desiring to make pictures which will have wide appeal entrench themselves behind the belief that they know what the public wants. When they find that the public will not believe them, they go on still in the same way. The root reason is that they are mentally incapable of realising first that the mass intelligence is higher than their own idea of it, and secondly they are dealing in superficialities instead of in fundamentals. If they were to study psychology—not in the Hampstead Garden suburb sense but in a serious scientific manner—they might become capable of judging with some degree of accuracy not merely what the public wants but what it is certain to understand and appreciate.

* * *

The Story's the Thing.

THERE have been star vogues. There have been director vogues. There have been brand vogues. Some day, maybe, there will be a vogue for stories—real, true-to-life, honest-to-goodness stories with a meaning. Several times organisations in America have announced as a policy that “the story's the thing”—but few of them have kept to their policy. They have found a new

Who Are the “Agents?”

A LITTLE bird—in fact several little birds, and not all female—tells us a curious story. It is to the effect that a number of people are paying agents twenty and twenty-five per cent. to obtain engagements, and that the commission is being split on the inside. It is very difficult, in such matters, to obtain reliable information or to get to the bottom of the business, but if we can obtain verifiable instances of such a practice we shall be very glad to give the parties concerned all the publicity within our power both here and in the Kinematograph Weekly.

* * *

The Need for An Association.

THESE cases of secretly divided commission, if they exist, are matters which could be dealt with adequately by a Film Artists' Association. It is chiefly for the protection of professional artistes from such practices, and for the securing of equitable contracts and working conditions, that such an organisation should exist, though no doubt other advantages, such as the provision for sickness and

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

“Cherry Ripe” (Astra) is too mechanical in story construction to rank high as a serious photoplay; the development is melodramatic, and in much of the acting the same, and realism is sacrificed for the sake of scenes which would be more effective on the stage than on the screen. The redeeming features are the acting of Mary Odette and Lionelle Howard (though the latter is not very well handled by the director) and in the attractive backgrounds. Frank Canham's photography is excellent.

“The Worldlings” (Globe) is one of those films that fail to do justice to British film-land. While possessing good material in the story the production at times suggests paltriness. Otherwise, the general technique is fair, while the characterisation is quite good. The sub-titling is the weakest point—its quality is at the other extreme to its quantity. The director, Eric Harrison, however, has revealed a masterfulness of the dramatic values of most of the important scenes, while J. C. Bee Mason's photography is quite up to average. Ivy Close gives an excellent character study, while Basil Gill's work reveals great intelligence. Olive Sloane is worthy of special mention.

“Ally Sloper's Adventures” (Kinema Expansions) is a series of six two-reel comedies, of which two were shown. They are not noteworthy for their humour, which at times is somewhat childish. To Geoffrey Malins is due much of the credit for what good points these comedies possess; his direction has evidently been very careful and painstaking. Several scenes reflect credit on the ingenuity and skill of Edward Groc, the cameraman. Bob Reed and Howard Bronan are the outstanding types in a very good cast.

star or starred a new director and then the “story” idea has suffered the fate of Hans Breitmann's party! Occasionally—and, unfortunately, infrequently—a British picture has had a real story. But, on the whole, the old fashion, bad in itself, of screening a bad adaptation of a meretricious novel for the sake of its title or its author's name is still being followed. As a rule the film is not very much like the novel, which is rather a good thing, save that it destroys the only vestige of reason why the picture should have been made. One of these days directors in this country are going to interest real writers in the construction of real stories for the screen. Then we shall begin to get real picture-plays instead of merely pictures. And that day will usher in that era of popularity that is to dawn for British films.

old age, could be developed, as was the case with the Variety Artistes Federation. It is not impossible that such an Association could be the outcome of a Kinema Club if and when it is formed.

* * *

Signs of the Times.

CURRENT events in the film world tend to prove that we are on the eve of a period of prosperity for British productions. This fact is outstanding. British studios are going to be brought very much nearer The Public by reason of the shortening of the release period. By anticipating subsequent happenings we could almost write the obituary notice of the attempted “Agreement” between the three sections of the Trade. This will react to the great benefit of British producing concerns. It is up to producing units to get in on this boom.

Do you want me?

GOING up and down Wardour Street, I get ample proof that my diagnosis of the weak points in British film production is the correct one. My views may seem those of an heretic, but they seem to be shared by many people of average common-sense.

Briefly stated, they are these: British productions are likely to remain in the grievous rut into which they have fallen until the scenarist is accorded his correct status. By "scenarist" I do not mean the continuity hack. I mean the man who deliberately chooses the screen instead of the written word as a medium for the expression of his thoughts, and who writes original stories for the screen. As things stand any drivel published in book form will receive the serious consideration of the studios as possible material for a screen play; whilst the original story, written in continuity form with a close perception of screen values, will receive the coldest reception—usually an unqualified refusal.

It is my belief that most of the people who are employed to read scripts are incapable of assessing their real merits. They are hypnotised by the covers of a printed book, written by a real author. As for a story written by a continuity writer, why, they would say, "what can this man know about story-telling? He's not an author!" If it were not too laborious an experiment, I should like to take one of my stories, which has been turned down by most British studios, publish it in book form and then—watch the scramble for film rights!

The adapted novel is always a failure—from the artistic point of view, if not from the commercial—and any scenarist can explain why this is. An adaptation is 5 per cent. of the original author's work and 95 per cent. of the continuity man's creation. The fees are the other way round, the poor continuity man getting about 5 per cent. of the plunder. Now I can get plenty of such commissions, but why should I be content with the pay of a dustman, when I can do the whole job as well as, or better than, the novelist? It is the continuity writer who is the craftsman of the screen play. In an adaptation, the more efficient, the more imaginative the craftsman is, the less resemblance will the screen play bear to the original story. This may sound paradoxical, but it is true; and it proves the utter fatuity of paying big fees to novelists for root-ideas which the efficient scenarist will supply for nothing.

All this is written for a purpose. I haven't taken expensive space for the mere privilege of airing my explosive views. I want to establish contact with some man or organization in the British film business who has the courage—and the cash—to buy my output of original stories. For two years I have been free-lancing, and I have hung on, against heart-breaking odds, because I was sure that the recognition of the scenarist was almost due. But for me it has resolved itself into a race between recognition and a by no means bottomless pocket—and the pocket looks like winning.

I have had fourteen years' film experience, and have closely studied all sides of the business. I have many friends in the London trade (and, thank heaven, a few enemies, to give life a bit of zest). I am sincere and capable—even my enemies won't contend that. I know as much about scenarios as any man in Los Angeles. But I have heaps to learn. I know that we have only scratched the surface of film-story telling possibilities; and I teem with ideas and schemes for disturbing the stagnation of the past seven years.

I possess the two essential qualities of the scenarist—inspiration and powers of organization. Organization makes a film play quickly at a low price; inspiration sells it quickly at a high one. Nearly all film failures can be traced to bad scripts; film plays built upon such faulty foundations are like houses built on sand. There must be a man or a firm who thinks as I do—that the scenario stands in relation to the film as the architect's plans do to the finished building; that the scenario must be built like a watch if the film is to "go."

Will such a man get in touch with me? I am not a cheap man, but neither is my work; and I guarantee to save more than my fees on the first year's programme. And I am confident that if imagination, enthusiasm, ability and common-sense are not at a discount in the British film industry, I shall get an answer.

HARRY HUGHES,

128, Jermyn Street,

London, S.W.1.

Telephone: REGENT 2592.

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

Well, and what do you all think of our special Scenarists' Number? I am not out to blow trumpets; I can confidently await the report of our readers. As I stated last week, the policy of this journal is to give the literary workers of the industry adequate recognition. They are more important than most folk have hitherto thought. They are the corner stone of the edifice, and if they and their work is undervalued the whole fabric is imperilled.

* * *

As this issue goes to Press an informal discussion is being held on the premises with a party of leading members of the various branches of film workers as to the formation of the much-needed Kinema Club. We hope to squeeze in somewhere in this issue the result of these deliberations, but in our next will give full details of the scheme. Meanwhile, will those who are at all interested in the venture communicate with us?

* * *

From Terquay comes the news that the old Cairns Studios have been taken over by British Photoplay Productions, and will be used for interiors for its first production, "Where the Rainbow Ends," which H. Lisle Locque will direct. Mr. Locque is one of the best known of British directors, and I am looking forward to seeing some more of his work. The story is of the Peter Pan type with a Christmassy flavour, and will be ready for public exhibition just before Christmas.

* * *

Three pleasing instances of professional courtesy have come under my notice during the last few days. Hardy Films had scheduled to produce a film based on Rafael Sabatini's book, "The Dream," but offered to change the title as Ideal had a production of the same name. The same firm—Hardy—is working on another Sabatini story, "Bluff," which is also the title of a production on which Granger-Binger is working. But the latter readily offered to change the title of its picture.

* * *

And the third instance concerns Captain Calvert, who was several days looking for a certain type of old house that he required for some scenes in "Roses in the Dust." Having eventually found it, not a great distance from London, he obtained permission to take pictures. But during the course of conversation with the owner, he discovered that J. Stuart Blackton had already used the house for scenes in "The Glorious Adventure," whereupon Calvert informed him that as "Roses in the Dust" would probably be Trade shown before Mr. Blackton's picture, it would not be fair to rob him of the novelty and picturesqueness of these scenes. And Calvert started his search for the right type of house anew. These are the acts of courtesy that make the wheels revolve smoothly.

* * *

Harley Knoles paid a visit to Rotherham, his native town, last week, in connection with the screening of "Carnival." Mr. Knoles, who was introduced to a crowded audience by Ald. G. Gummer, J.P., ex-Mayor of Rotherham, had a great reception. In the course of a brief speech, he alluded to some of the difficulties

ON THE FLOOR With MARTIN THORNTON

Perhaps it is his quiet air of sincerity which enables Martin Thornton to get the best out of his artistes. He believes firmly that photoplay production is a matter of co-operation between all concerned in it. If the film is founded on a book, he asks the artistes first to read the book. Then each is given a script, not to memorise, but to get a general idea of the story and its sequence into his mind.

He does not believe in allowing the artistes to extemporise or to "talk drivell," and always gives them at least the sense of what their conversation is supposed to be. He even believes that, since the right words help to bring the right expression of face, it is best that the dialogue should be actually written in the scenario, though an inexperienced scenarist would be likely to go to too great lengths if he tried this method. On the other hand, inspiration sometimes comes to an actor as well as to a director in the course of the action, and then the scene is retaken with the suggested improvement.

Before a scene is shot, Martin Thornton goes quietly and quickly about adjusting small details in the scene, placing the artistes and putting them through their parts in friendly converse, all with speed but without any sign of flurry. A retake goes as smoothly as a rehearsal or the first taking.

It is characteristic of Martin Thornton's quiet methods (with the conspicuous absence of the megaphone) that he likes working in the quiet hours of the night; and there is illustration of the practice of sympathy and co-operation among all concerned, rather than domination of one over the other, in the fact that all seem to work in harmony, each knowing his part, like the members of an orchestra.

British directors have to overcome, but was optimistic about the possibilities of British films in the future. Unlike many others, he did not under-rate the power of American productions, attributing the great progress of American films to the greater number of kinemas in that country, and the fact that film production was largely at a standstill in this country during the war. Referring to his recent visit to America, he said that our directors must realise that competition with America and parsimony could not go hand in hand.

* * *

My congratulations to F. J. Standerwick, that capable photographer of artistes, who was presented by his wife on Sunday week with a bouncing boy. This "latest masterpiece" turned the scale at 9 lbs. on the memorable occasion, and is still going strong.

* * *

Scenarists, as a general rule, have a high sense of honour, but I must protest against one of their number, whose identity I will take care to camouflage. He wrote me and explained that while scenario editor for a certain firm he came across many stories which, while unsuitable for that firm's requirements, would be excellent material for someone else. So he kept a note of them. Candidly, I do not like the sound of that letter. Perhaps Nemesis will see that he gets punished for stealing another's thunder. Lightning is never far distant from thunder!

* * *

Harold Preston, who is playing "heavy" in "Romance and Reality" for Lambart Films, has discovered the "reality" of his screen "romance." Previous to taking a very dramatic "love" scene with Cora Goffin, one of the electric lights in the studio fell on his head, and almost put him out of business, and that was followed immediately afterwards by a still more stirring incident in a scene with Cora Goffin. The lady was so enthused with her part that Preston received two severe smacks in the face, which resounded throughout the studio, and in the tussle which followed, Preston's face bore four long lines where Miss Goffin's finger-nails tore his flesh. I suggest that Harold takes out a policy immediately "MEGAPHONE." to insure his life.

Where they are and

Adrian Brunel, the scenarist, has now finished directing the production of "The Beggars' Syndicate" for Minerva, for the scenario of which he was responsible.

T. Thomas looks after the stores at Stoll's, Cricklewood.

H. Skinner superintends the printing department at Stoll's Cricklewood studio.

Kinchen Wood, the scenarist, has returned to this country after working for Fox and Universal in America.

Peggie Hathaway is at present starring in the new Minerva production, "The Beggars' Syndicate." She has now been engaged to play the leading part of the daughter in "Married Life" (Ideal).

Olive Sloane, who is starring in "The Crime of Lord Arthur Saville" for Le Grand Production, Paris, has been over in England for a week with the company, taking some scenes around Maidenhead.

Capt. Harry Lambart, Director-General of Productions for Lambart films, is leaving at the end of the week for Paris with his company to take several scenes in his new production "Romance and Reality."

Pauline Johnson, having returned to this country from France, where she has been playing the lead for Le Grand Production, Paris, has been playing opposite Vi Hopson in "The Imperfect Lover." She is now taking a short holiday.

Henry Edwards, the Hepworth director and actor, has recently been on a long sea voyage to recapture some of the vitality he unsparingly sacrificed on the behalf of British screen art, but we are glad to know that he has now returned to town and will immediately start work on a new production, the title of which, for the moment, is not divulged.

Camera Bargains—Largest selection of professional and topical instruments in London, and makers—English, American and Continental. Write stating exact requirements special quotations post free, or call and inspect our stock, Cash or Easy Payment Terms. Apparatus accepted in exchange, Strict approval terms willingly.

THE KINEMATOGRAPH EXCHANGE,
81 Aldersgate Street, E.C.1.

Myrtle Grove is playing in "Caught on the hop" (Golden West).

Harold Preston plays "heavy" in "Romance and Reality" (Lambart).

Marjorie Villis is still working on the leading lady part of Harma's untitled film.

Teddy Arundel has finished playing Moriarty in "General John Regan" for Stoll.

Robert Valis has been playing the part of Sergeant Colgar in Stoll's "General John Regan."

Sinclair Hill secured some fine night scenes on the banks of the Thames last week for "The Experiment" (Stoll).

George K. Arthur is to be starred by Stoll in a series of two-reel comedies. He is now on holiday in Wales.

Harvey Braban has been engaged by Stoll to play the part of Gwylm Rhys in "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills."

Lewis Gilbert has been provided with the part of Davydd Owen in "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills" (Stoll).

Evan-Wyndham is in the cast of "Caught on the hop," a two-reel comedy which Harry Granville is directing for Golden West.

Mary Odette played in fair hair in "Cherry Ripe" for the first time since "The Death of Tintagiles," when she was nine years old.

Kate Nucent is the heroine in "A Romance of Westdale" (Stoll).

H. Wells, assistant to Fred Granville, arrived in London this week.

Alice Crawford is playing a leading part in "The Glorious Adventure" (Blackton).

Maurice Elvey is directing the production of "A Romance of Westdale" for Stoll.

Fred Le Roy Granville expects to arrive in this country in a week's time with Peggy Hyland.

Irene Rooke is to play the part of Mrs. Jackson in Stoll's production of "A Romance of Westdale."

Georges Treville is at work at the Ideal Studios on the preliminaries of "Married Life," which he is to direct.

Maudie Dunham is playing feminine lead in the latest Granger-Binger film, which has the working title of "Bluff."

William Luff is working at the Stoll studios as Charles II. in the Blackton colour-production, "The Glorious Adventure."

Mercy Hatton, having finished with Broadwest on the closing down of the studios, has had an offer to go on the stage, which she is considering.

Milton Rosmer is playing lead in "A Romance of Westdale." This is the first of a series (of four) of Stoll productions in which he has been engaged to play lead.

THE TRINITY

by CAPTAIN

To ask a director the relative importance of a scenarist, director and star in the success of a picture is to place him in a somewhat invidious position, for he must either be false to his own opinion, or risk calling down the Wrath of the Gods. The gods in this case being symbolised by the scenarist and star, for surely it is but human for each one to regard his or her work as of primary importance.

I will, however, endeavour to approach the question with an unbiassed mind; and at the great risk of boring the reader I must first explain what, in my opinion is the duty and responsibility of each. The scenarist, I take it, is the author or adaptor of a story for picturisation, and his responsibility lies in putting on paper his idea of best bringing out pictorially the incidents, characterisation and theme or plot of such story. Having done this to the best of his or her ability, and to the satisfaction of those who decide to accept it, i.e., the people who pay the piper, his responsibility is finished, but his interest should not be.

Now the director steps in and his responsibility lies in transferring the written story to the screen in such a manner as to show pictorially all that has been written. To assist him in the portrayal, as it now becomes, the star is engaged (or should be) by him.

The star's responsibility lies in the portrayal of the leading part by pictorial characterisation, and by his or her art and personality (and not by the number of appearances on the screen) standing out clearly as the hub or axis on which the story revolves. Having done this to the director's satisfaction the responsibility ceases, or should cease.

Now what happens?

All the incidents and situations have been recorded on the film and await assembling in their order or sequence, and the only man who can do this is the one who is responsible for the picturisation, namely, the director. Cutting and assembling is an art in itself, and many a director has spoiled his own as well as the scenarist's and star's work in this last operation.

So now what do we get?

The scenarist has put his idea on paper, a thing of inanimity, the seed for creation but he does not actually create. The director is responsible for the creation, of a living product of an inanimate product, and out of his own imagination,

what they are doing

Gwyneth Roden has finished work in "The Lonely Road" (North British).

Florence Turner anticipates restarting film work in October, possibly at the Gaumont studio.

Madge White is playing for George Ridgewell as feminine lead in "The Eleventh Hour" (Stoll).

John Giddon and the International Artists company is at Brixham getting exteriors for "The Night Hawk."

Hugh Croise will commence directing the production of "Four Men in a Van" for Titan Films immediately.

Cecil Susands and Mary Carnegie are both playing important parts in "Lowland Cinderella" for Progress.

Rafael Sabatini, in addition to being on the directorate of Hardy Films, provides the scenarios and does the casting.

Edward D. Roberts, who used to be with Ideal, is now disengaged, but is starting on his own productions early in the New Year.

Alfred Van Derbosch has finished the direction of "The Lonely Road" for North British Productions, and is now cutting and assembling the negative.

Harley Knoles has finished casting for "The Bohemian Girl" (Alliance) and expects to take the company to the banks of the Danube in search of locations.

Gordon Craig is busy on his part in "Roses in the Dust" (Gaumont).

Johnny Butte is playing an important part in "Four Men in a Van" (Titan).

D. P. Cooper, the photographer of "Call of the Road" and other Davidson successes, is open to undertake photographic work.

F. Manning Hayes, who played the leading part in "Three Men in a Boat" is in the cast of "Four Men in a Van" (Titan).

Pat Tobin, the cameraman who was unjustly imprisoned in Ireland, has now been fixed up on the photographic staff of "Fox News."

Bernard Dudley has been making good progress with the Harma production which he is directing. He is now entering the fifth week of work.

Eric Courtenay has been obliged to resign his position as scenario editor to Regulus Films owing to ill-health. He is being succeeded by Reginald E. Besant, nephew of the late Sir Walter Besant.

Margaret Neilson, now playing in "The Glorious Adventure," began her professional career at a very early age. Trained for opera, she has played leading roles in Gilbert and Sullivan's Opera, subsequently singing in grand opera at Covent Garden. Miss Neilson has an exceptionally beautiful voice and loves the legitimate profession. It was only after some persuasion she decided to temporarily leave opera for the screen.

Denison Clift, who commenced his film career under Cecil B. de Mille, as a scenarist, and is now directing Ideal Productions from his own scenarios, is now on a short holiday. His "Sonia" is now being cut and edited.

Gordon Begg is now playing for Ideal in "Married Life."

Heaton Grey is in the cast of "Love in the Hills" (Harma).

Joan Morgan is finishing "Lowland Cinderella" this week, and goes at once to Scotland to start "Lilac Sunbonnet."

Clive Brook has now decided to give up stage work entirely for screen acting. From his first appearance in "Trent's Last Case," to "Sonia" and "The Experiment," his success has been phenomenal.

Alicia Ramsey, whose screen version of "Rob Roy" Gaumont is producing, is known in the dramatic world as the author of several plays which have helped to enhance the reputation of not a few well-known actors. Her "Eve's Daughter," produced in New York, led directly to Lionel Atwill (who played the leading part) being made a star by David Balasco.

Frankland A. Richardson, who has been producing for Granger-Binger for the past year, is severing his connection with the firm for the time being, owing to the decision to make fewer pictures for the moment. Richardson hails from America, and was with Famous-Lasky in California for over five years. For Hollandia he has made "Kitty Tailleur," "In the Night," "The Black Tulip" and "Bluff." On the eve of his departure he was presented with an inscribed cigarette case by Maurice Binger, managing director of Hollandia. He may be communicated with at the Hollandia Studios, Haarlem, care of Elsie Cohen.

OF TALENT CALVERT

with the scenario as his guide, he has to direct his characters to that end by utilising their personalities and histrionic art and moulding them into the living people that originally existed only on paper.

How often in the finished product do we know how much belongs to the scenarist's imagination and how much to the director's? They therefore appear to be of equal importance. But in reality they are not. Although the line of demarcation is very narrow it is there all the same.

How many experts are there who can truly prophesy the success or otherwise of a picture before the director has finished with it? It is for him to make or mar the entire subject. I have seen this done so frequently that it scarcely needs reiteration.

How often, too, has a big start—I am referring to those who run their own productions—changed the director and suffered histrionically in consequence?

This all points to the fact that the greater responsibility lies with the director, who thus becomes the most important. A bad director can mutilate and ruin the best scenario ever written as well as the work of the greatest star. But a good director can make a passable picture out of a bad scenario, and cause an indifferent star to appear quite clever.

The star not being able to see herself as others see her (until after the production) is absolutely dependent upon the director, who acts or should act as a mirror reflecting her bad points as well as the good.

I was rather surprised to note that the cameraman is not mentioned as one of the important factors of the success of a picture, and therefore I am going to take the liberty of inserting him in what I consider his rightful position.

Before closing this little article I should like to say that the above reasoning is based on the artistic success of a picture which is not always a financial one, and probably those who only think a picture is really successful when it proves financially so will entirely disagree with me when I place the above factors in their relative importance:—

1. Director.
2. Scenarist.
3. Cameraman.
4. Star.

But the very closest co-operation between all concerned is the only sure means of success.

LETTERING SPECIALIST

is open to undertake one or two commissions for special film work
G. T. SHEARMAN, Benck Road Nottingham.

THE SCENARIO MARKET

BRITISH PRODUCING FIRMS AND THEIR REQUIREMENTS

In order to assist directors in their efforts to get the right kind of scenario, and scenarists to supply the demand, we have obtained the following particulars of the requirements of the different British producing units.

AEROFILMS

Not interested in scenarios at the moment.

F.-P. LASKY

Roswell Dague, the scenario editor, says: "If by 'scenario' you mean the technical form in which a story is adapted for the screen (the 'continuity'), then let me say that we do not accept such manuscripts. This purely technical work of adaptation is done for us by our staff writers. If, on the other hand, you mean a screen story, narrated in fiction, dramatic, or extended synopsis form, we do consider such film stories submitted by outside writers. If a writer wishes to submit to us an original story, we prefer to consider it in synopsis, in fiction, or in drama form—but never in the technical, 'continuity' form. This is because only one of our staff writers, familiar with our methods of production, can prepare a 'continuity' in a way to conform to our needs. Material submitted to us at this office will, of course, be returned if rejected."

GAUMONT

The company is prepared to buy scenarios from all sources. It welcomes original stories specially written for the screen. Adaptations from novels or plays are also considered. These stories must be modern in thought, romantic in spirit, with a strong, vital, young love interest, and should have that quality which is generally designated as "punch." Such stories should be capable of making five reels. Their locale should, as far as possible, be laid within the British Isles. They should be written in story form, with, naturally, a feeling of their picture value. They are not required for any particular star, and MSS. should be addressed to "The Scenario Editor, The Gaumont Co., Ltd., 5 & 6, Sherwood Street, Piccadilly Circus, W.1."

GOLDEN WEST

Takes scenarios from outside and these can be originals or adaptations. They should be good, clean two-reel comedies and heavy drama for five-reelers. They should be type-written and ready for the director. Address: Harry Granville, 219, Oxford Street (MSS. returned if unsuitable).

GRANGER-BINGER

Ready to accept anything good from outside, either originals or adaptations—but these must present real human interest and an international appeal. Scenarios need not be written for any particular player, but must be submitted as a full synopsis, with cast, etc. All scripts should be addressed to the Scenario Editor, 191, Wardour Street, W.1., and MSS. will be returned if unsuitable.

HARDY

Rafael Sabatini is writing the scenarios for the first year's output. After that Hardy will be prepared to consider other author's works.

HARMA

Scenarios from outside are accepted. Harma has no speciality, and require stories for five-reelers. These should be written for James Knight, Bernard Dudley, Marjorie Villis, and Constance Worth. Stories should be submitted in synopsis form first. Address: Scenario Editor, 16, Limes Road, Croydon, and rejected MSS. will be returned if accompanied by stamped envelope.

MINERVA

Scenarios are accepted from outside, says Minerva, "providing that they concur with our idea of what a scenario should look like. Many scenarios are not scenarios at all, and in some cases, if we want the story, a fresh scenario is made by our own staff." Originals and adaptations are taken providing the matter is good and Minerva is interested, particularly, in three and five-reel feature comedy dramas. The policy of the scenario department is "story first—star second." Synopsis of story is essential whether accompanied by scenario or not, and should be addressed to the Scenario Editor. All repeated MSS. are returned.

PROGRESS

Outside scenarios will be accepted if they supply the type Sidney Morgan wants. They may be originals or adaptations, and should be stories of character (such as "Lilac Sunbonnet") or true drama (as "Mayor of Casterbridge") and to make five-reelers. Stories for Joan Morgan can always be taken and can be submitted in any form. They should be addressed to Sidney Morgan, who reads every script himself. "This I have done for seven years," he says, "but regret that I have never seen one worth producing, and certainly not one in 500 that has justified the time spent in looking at it. I do not want melodrama or farce. I have laboured this point for years, have told authors hundreds of times not to send me either of these wares, and yet I never receive anything but melodrama or farce. Of my present selection of six stories, only one was suggested by an agent out of at least 500 books submitted, all the others I had to find myself. It seems to me that scenarists' and agents' only ideas of strong situations are murder, seduction, false accusation, traps, lying, villainy of all sorts—everything, in fact, which I wish to avoid."

REGULUS

Hitherto scenarios have been written by James Dickson, of the staff, but scenarios from outside will be considered. Regulus is interested in original stories and adaptations. With the latter there is a preference for burlesques of classic costume plays, such as those by Shakespeare. At present two-reel comedies are being concentrated on, but these must be free from knock-about and bathroom scenes. Scenarios need not be written for any particular star, and preference is given to those written out scene by scene with synopsis and scene plot. Manuscripts should be addressed to the Scenario Editor, Regulus Films, 48, Carnaby Street, Regent Street, and provided a stamped addressed envelope is enclosed, MSS. will be returned if unsuitable.

SCREEN PLAYS

Scenarios from outside are accepted. These may be original stories or adaptations. What are required are short dramatic stories for one reel dramas, and need not be written for any particular player. Stories can be submitted either as synopsis or scenarios and should be addressed to the General Manager at 26, Litchfield Street. Rejected MSS. are returned. Postage should be enclosed.

THOMPSON

Grace Rose, assistant to Kenelm Foss, says that Foss has never been able to find anyone from whose scenario he could work. So he has always made his own. His program for this year and next being quite filled up, he has no vacancies for anyone else's work. "Since we are always working right up to time, we do not appreciate scenarios being sent to us, and it is always more than likely that such scenarios will NOT be returned."

ZODIAC

Outside scenarios accepted and must be original stories, principally composed of "gags" for two-reel comedies—medium slapstick. All films must be written for Walter Ford as the medium, but it is really of very little use submitting scenarios until his style has been seen. They can be complete, just brief synopsis, or a collection of "gags" to fit together. Rejected scenarios will be returned if a stamped envelope is enclosed and should be addressed to A. Culley, 51, Oseney Crescent, N.W.5.

Apply to

DOROTHEA FASSETT

for

FILM RIGHTS OF POPULAR PLAYS AND NOVELS.

5, Henrietta Street,
Covent Garden, W.C.2.

Telephone: REGENT 4989.
U.S.A. Cables: "DORFASS, LONDON."

Represented in America and on the Continent.

FOUNDATIONS OF FILMS

by A FILM REVIEWER

One of the oldest of showmen's catchwords is the phrase which declares that "It's the story that counts." The writer of the following article has had a lengthy experience as a press reviewer of films and he claims that if this catchword is not the whole truth, it is at least a part of the truth and an important part, which the director forgets at his peril—and which he yet forgets daily.

The saying expresses, however crudely, the important fact that no mere mechanical excellence, not even high artistic quality, not even excellent acting, can alone make a screen entertainment. They are valuable just so far as they serve to put over entertainment; they cannot take the place of entertainment and they cannot put over entertainment unless they are properly directed to material with real entertainment value.

What is filmed matters as much and perhaps more than the manner in which it is filmed.

Which brings us to the scenario. Not to "the story" as the old showman declared, please note. One can have a very fine story, very fine technique and very fine acting and still get a rotten screen result. This is just the distinction which a majority of directors seem to be incapable of recollecting, and it is to bring out this distinction and to labour its importance that I have ventured to emphasise the obvious and rather hackneyed truths in the first paragraph.

Most directors realise the importance of story in the sense of plot. They know as well as the exhibitor that "It's the story that counts," and for the most part they pay regard to story value even in buying best sellers.

What they overlook is the gap which yawns between the good story of the book and the good story of the films. Having good enough material in the manuscript and more good material in the director and artistes, they expect the latter to transform the former into good screen entertainment with no more connection than is established by a hastily drafted and unrevised script by a usually criminally underpaid scenarist.

Nine times out of ten they fail, and who can wonder? The present policy is much akin to affecting a hasty introduction between two persons speaking separate languages and expecting them to converse fluently and rapidly with no more aid than an incomplete bilingual dictionary.

For the language of the book and the language of the studio are entirely alien. If the second is to use the material of the first it should be not literally translated, but interpreted by an expert. And it hardly ever is.

Judging films entirely from the finished product and with no theories as to director's methods or bias in favour of any special class of studio worker, I have come to the conclusion that the most glaring faults of the majority of British films are entirely due to the fact that the importance of the scenario is unrealised or under-rated.

In the majority of cases the screen values of the stories used have evidently been quite unexpressed in the scenarios—and this applies to scripts from original stories as well as from books. This explains why versions of books one knows are almost always disappointing, why even "original" films simply shout missed opportunities—and why these bad results are received even from directors of acknowledged talent.

Nine-tenths of British films have had no real author.

The scenarist, whether writing his own stories or simply "adapting," should be the real author and until this fact is acknowledged—financially acknowledged, also—I do not believe we shall ever get British super-pictures.

The reason is easy to understand. The director, particularly in these days of "schedules," wants a scenario to which he can work with absolute fidelity—one which is "the picture in writing." And such scenarios will not be forthcoming for hack prices.

British directors are now very lavish with their money—for furniture. But £1,000 of brains may be a better commercial investment than fifty times that amount of accessories. And I, for one, shall go with much keener expectation to see the film which is announced as "from a £1,000 scenario" than to the biggest of big things, in which £69,472 has been lavished on backgrounds. I wonder if that day will ever dawn?

GOOD SCREEN STORY

What is a good Screen Story?

That is the question!

The tendency of most modern authors is to think in characters and write of psychology. This, no doubt, is very clever and edifying, but hardly suitable material for screening.

On the other hand, some authors think in situations, and write of characters in action. These are the ones to follow for the screen. They are not always the most modern authors; but we are now considering good screen stories.

Some of the old authors have wonderful film stories; they are not even read nowadays. So much the better; they will come as a great surprise, for I should not wonder if readers return to these books; they would find them entertaining.

Costume period stories were present-day stories when they were written; and they can be made present-day stories on the screen. All they require is the present style of dressing to be quite up to the moment in atmosphere.

And in many instances their interest is stronger, their situations more dramatic, their continuity more convincing, and their suspense more breathless.

ROBERT WHITEHOUSE.

DON'T WORRY

THERE IS NO NEED TO

IF THE COSTUMES,

WIGS,

PROPS, etc.,

For Your PRODUCTION

are SUPPLIED BY

H. & M. Rayne,

115-119, WATERLOO RD., S.E.1

Phone: 7978 CENTRAL.

SHACKLETON-ROWETT EXPEDITION.
186/8, ST. STEPHEN'S HOUSE,
VICTORIA EMBANKMENT,
LONDON, S.W.1.

11th Aug., 1921.

Mr. W. Vinten,

Please supply the following to the order of Mr. Bee Mason:
Two Model "M" Tripods, complete with Rotary and Tilting Heads.

(Signed) E. H. SHACKLETON.

Before placing the above order, a tripod on order from another firm was cancelled.

V E R B. S A P.

W. VINTEN,

89-91, Wardour Street, W.1.

Telephone - - Regent 2702

A CHOICE OF TWO WAYS

There are always two ways of doing anything—the right and the wrong way. In the following article the Writer, Patrick L. Mannoc, Scenario-Editor to Broadwest Films, outlines two methods of dealing with the literary aspects of film production. He does not attempt to point a moral or to indicate which is the right and which the wrong way. Our readers can do that.

I.

A producing house, controlled by men with no knowledge of literature, production, or even showmanship, decline to consider original stories at all, and acquire at an inflated figure the rights of a novel which has sold by the hundred thousand, by an author whose name is a household word wherever the English language is mispronounced.

Three months later they call upon a continuity-writer to furnish a complete script within four days.

The scenario is done by a man who could write in half an hour an original story ten times more suitable, and the director, on receiving the script, casts without reference to the original author's character-depiction, keeps his actors in ignorance of the story, and makes violent and devastating alterations when the production is two-thirds completed.

It is then taken out of his hands, and after being ruthlessly cut is titled by the most illiterate person on hand—the Trade show being fixed for three days after the last foot has been shot.

The adverse Press notices are attributed to ignorance and malice, and, expensively boomed, it eventually reaches the kinema-public, not ten per cent. of which ever read the best-selling novel in the world; and those who have done so are unaccountably dissatisfied with the screen version.

II.

A producing house, employing a competent man who is a judge of subjects, buys one on its story value alone.

It may be a novel—but, realising that not one novel in a hundred is really filmable, the house encourages original ideas from the limited number of small authors who by association with and knowledge of the Industry are entitled to attention, and who want a fair but not a monstrous price for their work.

Long before production, a script has been carefully prepared and approved by a trained man, and the director's own ideas are fully thrashed out in order that he may have a finally approved script before he casts.

The principal actors are fully aware of the story development at every stage.

When the last foot has been shot, two or three week's work remain.

The cutting is a matter for collective judgment and the titling involves the aid of the author or script-writer—in any case, of a person with a knowledge and love of the English language.

Upon the intrinsic qualities of this film will its exploitation be based and public appreciation depend.

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES

IX PHYLLIS SHANNAW

Phyllis Shannaw was a musical-comedy and revue girl prior to her screen debut. Her first screen appearance makes rather an interesting story.

She was waiting in Jay's office when J. B. Davidson arrived. He saw in the girl his ideal for the leading female part in "The Call of the Road," and immediately rushed her off in a car to the studios at Walthamstow.

After a screen test she was engaged for the leading part, and one has only to look up some of the newspaper cuttings of "Call of the Road" to see the success she made. After "Call of the Road" she was engaged for twelve months on the Davidson stock company.

Her next rôle was in "The Right to Live," another success, and once more the newspapers acclaimed her as a talented artiste. She is an excellent horsewoman, swimmer and golfer.

ANOTHER "JOHN BULL" STORY

Screenplays has arranged to commence the production immediately of "Lord Kitchener Betrayed," a five-reel picture based on the authentic information in the possession of John Bull, which has been put into film-story form by Norman Ramsay, M.A. Already Percy Nash has been engaged to direct the production, which is to be made for immediate release. Casting is in course of progress, and we shall be able to give fuller particulars next week.

CURTIS BROWN LIMITED

6 Henrietta Street
Covent Garden, W.C.2

3 rue Richelieu
Paris

116 West 39th Street
New York

Representatives in Milan, Berlin, etc.

AGENTS for leading British and Foreign Authors. Unique facilities for making arrangements for the filming of the best known works of fiction and English & American stage successes. Leading film companies in search of material should get in touch giving details of type of story required.

London Film Manager, W. J. O'BRYEN, will be pleased to see representatives of companies in search of material, and assist them in the selection of suitable stories.

Recent Sales include - "TILLY OF BLOOMSBURY," "THE SKIN GAME," "THE TIGER'S CUB," "IF I WERE KING," "ALL ROADS LEAD TO CALVARY," "THE WONDERFUL YEAR," "A MESSAGE FROM MARS," "THE MAGISTRATE," "THE PROFLIGATE," "JUSTICE," "THE CHOICE," "THE PURPLE MASK," "MR. PIM PASSES BY," "WHEN WE WERE TWENTY ONE," "DIANA OF THE CROSSWAYS," "A WOMAN OF NO IMPORTANCE," "BOY WOODBURN," "THE MARRIAGE OF WILLIAM ASHE," "THE HOUSE OF PERIL," "THE STREET OF ADVENTURE," "THE WHITE DOVE," Etc. Etc.

The Biggest Successes have BENJAMIN COSTUMES

PERSONAL SUPERVISION GUARANTEED
in every detail. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

SCRIBES OF THE SCREEN

BRITISH SCENARISTS AND ALL ABOUT THEM AND THEIR WORK

As yet there is not a very great army of scenarists and what scenarists there are do not seek the publicity they deserve. Below will be found some particulars of the few scenarists we have been able to discover.

IRENE MILLER

Miss Miller was taught the art of scenario writing by Captain Will Barker, and was for three years scenario editor at Barker's.

Irene Miller is also the author of the novel "Sekket," that made its first appearance as a serial in one of the Odhams journals, and was then published by John Lane, Ltd.

Miss Miller has had three original screen plays successfully produced by Percy Nash, Bertram Phillips, and Fred Durrant. She has also made adaptations for the Samuelson Film Co., the Progress Film Co., etc.

R. BYRON-WEBBER

This well-known scenarist is a Londoner by birth, and has the scenarios for the following photoplays to his credit:—"Burnt Wings," "Missing the Tide," "The Woman Wins," "The First Men in the Moon," "The Keeper of the Door" (Stoll), "The Barton Mystery" (Stoll), "His First Defence" (Vanity), "Unrest" (Cairns), "Uncle Dick's Darling," and "Rocks of Valpre" (Stoll). R. Byron-Webber is a member of the Press Club, and his private address is 72, Warwick Avenue, W.9.

HELEN BLIZZARD

Born in Manchester, Miss Blizzard came to London and played with Barker, Gaumont, London, Alliance, and Master.

She has adapted the following books for the screen:—"The Key of the World," "Sister Anne," "The Broken Thread," "Perpetua," "The Lord of Latimer Street."

KATE GURNEY

It was so far back as in 1915 that Miss Gurney commenced her screen work. Since that time she has written scenarios for Nordisk, Essany, and Hepworth. She wrote the script of "Solomon's Twins" (Everyman), "The Manxman" (London), "The Gay Lord Quex" (Ideal), "Comradeship," "The Swindler," "Mr. Wu," and "At the Villa Rose," for Stoll. She also art-directed "Sword of Fate" for Gaumont. Address: 8, Moor Street, Charing Cross Road, London, W.C.

BERNARD CARRODUS

Following his education at King's College and the Royal Military Academy, Mr. Carrodus took up the profession of acting. His next venture was as a scenarist, and he is now on the production staff of Minerva Films.

MURIEL ALLEYNE

This lady is the daughter of a mining engineer, and began her career on the stage, playing her first parts in Grand Opera; and later turning her attention to Musical Comedy and Comic Opera, she played the title rôles of La Poupée and the Geisha, afterwards doing a world tour as leading lady in the latter play.

Returning to England she continued her stage career till the Kinema drew her away. After playing screen parts for various firms she determined to write film plays, and sold her first film story a few hours after it was written to Mr. Haldane, who was then directing at Hepworths.

This was followed in quick succession by the sale of "A Bold Venture" and "An Indian Woman's Pluck" both to Hepworth.

"Her Son for His" (Walturdaw), "To Save a Scamp," and "To Save His Idol" (both to Universal), "An Old-World Romance," "The Unfrocked Priest," and "The Scent of a Rose" (all to Barkers), "The Forsaken" and "The Unforeseen" (both to Hepworth), "The Mystery of Lady Clinton" and "Time and the Hour."

Miss Alleyne also adapted Irving's famous play, "The Dead Heart," for Hepworth, and wrote several other film plays, too numerous to mention, for other companies. Miss Alleyne was also assistant scenarist to Monsieur Hugon of Pathé's.

Muriel Alleyne is now collaborating with Christabel Lowndes-Yates, whose work as writer and speaker is well-known to a large circle of people. They are now busy on some very interesting plays of an artistic type, and their work is attracting the attention of some of the leading English and American firms.

EDWARD BAIRD

Born in London, Mr. Baird commenced his screen career in 1916, "The Letters of Eve" (Gaumont) being the first. This was followed by "The Warrior Strain" (Harma), "The Three Kilties" (Gaiety), "The Smart Set" and "The Single Man" (British Lion), "Gamblers All" (Samuelson), "The Face at the Window" (B.A.), "The Headmaster" (Astra), "Appearances" (F.P. Lasky), "The Great Gay Road" (Broadwest). Address:—172, Goldhurst Terrace, West Hampstead.

EDWARD DAGUE

Mr. Dague is American born, but received some of his education in this country and the George Washington University, U.S.A. He has been acting of late as scenario editor at F.P. Lasky's Islington Studio, but previously was on the Lasky scenario staff in America.

FORBES DAWSON

It is 16 years since Mr. Dawson made his first acquaintance with the inside of a studio; he then appeared on the screen for Gaumont; then he went to America, but returned to work for Broadwest. He wrote "Ambition," an original film play for Harold Shaw, and also "The Jackal," a five reeler. He pleads guilty to having adapted several novels but admits a preference for original matter. He can be found, c/o. The Primrose Club, 4, Park Place, St. James, W.

LEWIS GILBERT

Mr. Gilbert is a Parisian by birth, commenced his film work in 1905, and played for nearly five years for the old London Films. Address:—102, Long Acre, W.C.2.

LIONELLE HOWARD

In addition to playing leading parts, Mr. Howard is a scenarist of no mean ability. He was responsible for the scenarios of "The Lie," "A Moment of Darkness," "The Man that Wasn't," and "Things We Want to Know"—all for Hepworth. Address:—38, Lysias Road, Balham.

ELIOT STANNARD

First scenario, "The Bells of Rheims," produced 1914. Remained for over two years on the staff of the B. and C. Film Co. as actor, director and scenarist. Became a freelance scenarist in 1916, and has since adapted for the screen works by John Galsworthy, J. M. Barrie, John Strange Winter, Hall Caine, Robert Hitchens, the Baroness Orczy, Stanley Houghton, William Le Queux, I. Zangwill, F. H. Maltby, Walter Howard, Roy Horniman, Harold Terry, etc. Also a number of original screen plays, and film versions of classics by Dickens, Fielding, Buchanan, Lytton, and Emily Brontë. Latest releases "The Bachelors' Club" and "The Old Country." Author of a number of technical articles on Kinematography, and a member of the kinema sub-committee of The Incorporated Society of Authors.

HARRY HUGHES

First joined Pathé in 1907. He was General Manager of the Kinematograph Trading Company in 1912; Managing Director of Lloyd's Film Agency in 1914; conducted the publicity campaign in connection with "The Birth of a Nation" at the Scala; organised the Publicity Sales Department of Triangle Plays. After demobilisation in 1919, he turned his attention solely to film editing, and it was this work that led him to study the technique of the screen play. The first British Art Film—"The Shadow of Evil"—was an adaptation from his pen; he is also responsible for the adaptation of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," for which Pina Menichelli recently visited London to complete certain scenes.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT

So far back as eleven years ago Mr. Elliott introduced himself to the film world when he played for the old London Films. This was followed by appearances for Hepworth, Clarendon, Cricks and Martin, during which time he thoroughly mastered all the technique of the studio. Then he became a scenarist, and also edited Photo Playwright. He is also the author of How to Become a Film Actor. Since the war he has devoted himself entirely to writing scenarios, his most recent subjects including "Bleak House," "Colonel Newcome," "The Ever Open Door," "Beyond Dreams of Avarice," "The Channings," "Innocent," "A Gentleman of France," etc. Address:—Ashley Warren, Oatlands Chase, Walton-on-Thames.

PEGGY McCALL

It was with Vitagraph in America that Miss McCall first started with film work. She was born in Colorado, and at first went on the speaking stage, but left it for the films. She is now scenario editor at the Stoll Studios, Cricklewood.

KINCHEN WOOD

It was to America that Mr. Wood went to study the motion picture business and to get thoroughly acquainted with the methods of production. He accepted a position on the scenario staff at the Fox Studios in Los Angeles, and from there went to the South Sea Islands to spend some time among the natives, obtaining local colour for some South Sea stories he is now working on.

He also made a complete circuit of the globe with the view of studying the customs of different countries, and familiarising himself with foreign scenes and settings.

ALICIA RAMSEY.

Alicia Ramsey, who has written the version of "Rob Roy" on which Gaumont is at work, has only recently returned home from New York, where she made a name for herself by her original stories written for the screen.

Before going to America, however, Miss Ramsey had attained a reputation as a dramatist, novelist, and short story writer. Several of her plays were produced at West End theatres, while, perhaps, her greatest play, "Byron," which may shortly be seen, was secured by the late Lewis Waller, whose untimely death prevented his appearance in the name part. The writing of picture plays and the continuity for them, however, has

(Continued on page 14)

You cannot do better than by placing your orders with L. BENJAMIN & CO.

99, Middlesex Street, E.1.
Phone—London Wall 7568

MILTON ROSMER*Starring in*

"The Pointing Finger,"
 "A Woman of No Importance,"
 "The Amazing Partnership,"
 "Demos," "The Diamond Necklace,"
 "Belphegor the Mountebank,"
 "The Will," "The Twelve Pound
 Look," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

88, NEWMAN ST., W.1.

Phone - - - - Museum 5145]

HUGH CROISE*Producer.*

Sole Adaptor and Producer
 of
 "THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—
 c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H. MALINS, O.B.E.ProducerLatest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE,"
 "PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
 "SETTLED IN FULL,"
 "ALL THE WINNERS,"
 "WATCHING EYES," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
 26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

BRITAIN'S LOS ANGELES*by* HOTSPUR

Suppose a film company started to build a studio, where would be the best spot in England to erect it?

I was present the other evening when a number of well-known film men were engaged in discussion on the above subject. The argument started as a result of an announcement that a certain new company was building a studio in central London.

The idea was laughed at—what about the fog in winter? According to the scheme this company had a system whereby all air is washed before coming into the studio, so that no matter how foggy it was outside, the air was always clear in the studio.

It was also pointed out that the company will save a great deal of money, on artistes' fares, etc., if the studio was right in the heart of the metropolis—but would the saving compensate for the bad photography which would almost certainly result?

Most of the studios seem to be situated round the low-lying district of Walthamstow, where there is certain to be fog. Why not build a studio at Hampstead, where there is less fog, being, as it is, on high ground?

George Clarke had built one at Beaconsfield. It is quite a long train journey, but all present agreed that it was an excellent spot.

A certain well-known director says that if he builds a studio at all, it will be at Tunbridge Wells—a wonderful spot. Other people swear by Torquay. D. W. Griffith is reputed to have said that Scotland was the ideal place.

To my mind all these suggestions are missing the bull's-eye. After travelling about the country for some weeks past, I am convinced that the site of the British Los Angeles is up among the Chiltern Hills. Light with the right actinic properties is there, and the atmosphere generally is much clearer.

* Our contributor appears to be very certain as to the location of the ideal producing centre. We are not prepared to agree with his choice, having in mind a much better spot. Nor, we feel sure, will he find much support among our readers. Having given "HOTSPUR" space to "stake his claim," we offer the same facilities to those who disagree with him.*

SCRIBES OF THE SCREEN*(Continued from page 13.)*

fascinated Miss Ramsey so much that, for some time, she has been devoting herself to them, almost to the exclusion of every other form of literary composition.

ARTHUR SHIRLEY

Mr. Shirley is a dramatist and scenarist of established repute. The following film stories are to his credit:—"Sixty Years a Queen" (Samuelson), "My Old Dutch" (Ideal), "Going the Pace" (Maurice Tourneur), "Saved from the Sea" (Gaumont), "Woman and Wine" (World), and many others. His address is c/o. the Lyceum Theatre.

CYRIL E. MURRELL

Mr. Murrell, who has been connected with the producing side of the trade since early in 1919 is one of our youngest scenarists, and in this comparatively short length of time quite an appreciable number of his original stories have been produced. He is also engaged by Aerofilms, and is often in the air with a camera for them. Mr. Murrell is preparing scenarios, and has turned his attention to all humorous subjects for the film. He is now busy writing original scenarios for drawing-room comedies, light farcical plays of a "stage" nature, and seaside stories of bathing girls. Several very special 'scripts for a series of two-reel super-comedies are in the hands of one director. Mr. Murrell's address is 1, Pine Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2.

EDITH GUY

Miss Guy is a descendant of one of the Earls of Warwick, and was born at Hurstmonceux. Had never done any literary work (except one or two short stories) until she wrote her drama, "The Checkmats," two years ago.

Since then she has had accepted over two dozen, chiefly comedy and comedy-drama. Address: 32a, Sea Road, Bexhill.

S. H. HERKOMER

Is the eldest son of the late Sir Hubert Herkomer, born at Bushey in 1874, educated at Harrow, and has had a varied career, which has provided experience peculiarly useful to the scenarist. As a boy he acted important parts in the operas and plays produced by his father in his private theatre at Bushey.

He shared in all his father's manifold artistic pursuits, and when, during the last years of his life, Sir Hubert enthusiastically turned his attention to the artistic possibilities of the screen, it was to his son he looked for practical help in giving expression to his ideas. So began Mr. Herkomer's screen career, in 1913: scenarist, director, camera-man, developer, printer, editor; learning the business as he went along.

But the death of Sir Hubert and the outbreak of war brought to a conclusion the career of the Herkomer Film Co., not until some important films had been produced, the last of which was "A Highwayman's Honour." He produced "All the Sad World Needs" for British Actors, and later worked in collaboration with Kenelm Foss for Lucky Cat Films. Recently he has specialized as scenarist and film editor, holding the position of scenario editor to British Actors. While with this firm he was responsible for most of the scenarios, and also in several cases assembled and edited the films produced, including "Burnt In," and "The Shuttle of Life."

Get a good story first:
 Then produce it well:
 —And the glad tidings will spread.

REGENT 2637.

ROMA JUNE BUREAU, LTD.,

ANCASTER HOUSE,

42-43, Cranbourn Street, Leicester Square, W.C.2.

SCREEN-STORY SPECIALISTS.

INSIDE INFORMATION
 WILLINGLY SUPPLIED.
 CONSULTATIONS BY APPOINTMENT.

L. BENJAMIN & CO., 99, Middlesex St., Bishopsgate, E.1.

'Phone
 London Wall
 7568.

Kinematograph Costumier.
 Naval & Military Outfitter.

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

PRODUCTIONS AND WHO IS WORKING ON THEM

J. Stuart Blackton.

ADDRESS: Bush House, Aldwych.
STUDIOS: Now using Stoll's at Cricklewood.

PRODUCTION MANAGER: Challis N. Sanderson.

FILM: "The Glorious Adventure."
DIRECTOR: J. Stuart Blackton.

STAR: Lady Diana Manners.

SCENARIST: Felix Orman.

CAMERAMAN (Black and white): Nicholas Mursuraca.

CAMERAMAN (Colour): W. T. Crespinal.

TYPE: Seven-reel drama

STAGE: Sixth week.

Famous Players-Lasky British Producers.

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.

STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A. Bell, O.B.E.

FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."

DIRECTOR: Donald Crisp.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Claude H. Mitchell.

STAR: Donald Crisp.

SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.

STAGE: Sixth week.

Gaumont.

ADDRESS: Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush.

STUDIO MANAGER: B. H. Bromhead.

FILM: "Roses in the Dust."

DIRECTOR: Captain Calvert.

STARS: Iris Rowe, Gladys Mason.

CAMERAMAN: Basil W. G. Emmott.

SCENARIST: H. Morgan.

STAGE: Seventh week.

Hardy Film Co.

ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W.1.

STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isleworth.

FILM: "Bluff."

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.

STARS: Marjorie Hume, Lewis Willoughby.

SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.

CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.

STAGE: Third week.

Harma.

ADDRESS: Limes Grove, Croydon.

FILM: "Love in the Hills."

DIRECTOR: Bernard Dudley.

STARS: Marjorie Villis and James Knight.

CAMERAMAN: J. Mackenzie.

TYPE: Comedy drama.

STAGE: Fifth week.

Ideal

ADDRESS: Boreham Woods, Elstree

STUDIO MANAGER: A. Kendrick.

STAGE MANAGER: J. Barnard.

FILM: "The Rotters."

DIRECTOR: A. V. Bramble.

STAR: Sydney Fairbrother.

STAGE: Finished.

FILM: "Married Life."

DIRECTOR: Georges Treville.

CAMERAMAN: Geoffrey Barkas.

STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "Single Life."

DIRECTOR: Edwin J. Collins.

STAGE: First week.

International Artists Films.

ADDRESS: 52, Shaftesbury Avenue.

STUDIO: B. & C. Studios, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

FILM: "The Night Hawk."

DIRECTOR: John Gliddon.

STARS: Malvina Longfellow, Henri de Vries.

SCENARIST: Gerard Ford Buckle.

CAMERAMAN: Will Howse.

STAGE: Fifth week.

Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate.

ADDRESS: Riverside Studios, Kew Bridge.

FILM: "The Adventures of Mr. Pusher Long."

DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme.

STAR: Dawn Meredith.

TYPE: Comedy.

STAGE: Nearing Completion.

Lambart Films.

ADDRESS: Carlton House, Regent Street.

STUDIOS: London Kinema Studio

Tuileries Street, Hackney Road.

FILM: "Romance and Reality."

DIRECTOR: Captain Harry Lambart.

STAR: Cora Goffin.

SCENARIST: Captain Harry Lambart.

CAMERAMAN: C. T. Crapper.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Sixth week.

Minerva Films.

ADDRESS: 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1.

FILM: "The Beggar's Syndicate."

DIRECTOR: Adrian Brunel.

STARS: Mary Patterson, Bert Darley, Crispin Hay.

SCENARIST: Adrian Brunel.

SCENARIO-EDITOR: Bernard Carr o-dus.

CAMERAMAN: Frank Hoffmann.

TYPE: Comedy drama.

STAGE: Finishing.

Progress.

ADDRESS: Shoreham.

FILM: "Mayor of Casterbridge."

STAR: Fred Groves.

DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.

SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.

STAGE: Seventh week.

Regulus Films.

ADDRESS: 48, Carnaby Street, Regent Street, W.1.

SECRETARY: J. G. Dickson.

FILM: "Teddy Laughs Last."

DIRECTOR: Milton Elmore.

STARS: Teddy Hayes, Audrey Edwardes.

SCENARIST: James G. Dickson.

CAMERAMAN: E. Coble.

TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.

STAGE: Nearing completion.

Screen Plays.

ADDRESS: Cranmer Court, Clapham S.W.

STUDIO MANAGER: Douglas Payne.

FILM: Grand Guignol series.

DIRECTORS: Fred Paul and Jack Raymond.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Rodwell.

TYPE: Short melodramas.

STAGE: Producing one a week.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Cricklewood.

STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman.

FILM: "A Romance of Westdale."

DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.

STAR: Milton Rosmer.

STAGE: First week.

FILM: "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills."

DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.

STARS: Eille Norwood, Madge Stuart.

CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "The Eleventh Hour."

DIRECTOR: George Ridgwell.

STARS: Dennis Wyndham, Madge White.

CAMERAMAN: Al Moses.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: First week.

FILM: "The Experiment."

DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.

STARS: Evelyn Brent, Clive Brook.

STAGE: Third week.

Zodiac.

FILM: "Walter in the Studio."

STAR: Walter Forde.

TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Arfilodro, Hyde, London.

ALLIANCE FILM Co., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmopho, Ealux.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow, E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD., Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clapham Park.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PHOTOPLAYS, Watcombe Hall, Torquay. 'Phone: Torquay 886—Cairnsfilm, Torquay.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

GAUMONT Co., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolougue, 'Phone London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland., London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exelugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012. Studio: Candlemass Lane, Beaconsfield.

GLEN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD., 20, Lisle Street, London, W.C., and "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

HARMA CLARENDON Co., 16, Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.

IDEAL FILM Co., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Idealfilms, Borehamwood.

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS FILM Co., LTD., 52, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

ISLE OF MAN FILM Co., The Manx Studios, Isle of Man.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Cricklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).

LAMBART FILMS, Carlton House, Regent Street, London, W.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MINERVA FILM Co., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

PROGRESS FILM Co., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

REGULUS FILMS: 48, Carnaby Street, Regent Street, W.1.

SAMUELSON FILM Co., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton 2956.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpie, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1933—Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoc Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGNTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & Co., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.

WILSONIAN FILM PRODUCING Co., LTD. Secretary, W. J. Crook, 547, Wandsworth Road, S.W.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for Kinematograph Productions. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

EVERY STUDIO
WORKER SHOULD HAVE A COPY
OF THE

KINEMATOGRAPH YEAR BOOK

1921 - - - EDITION

A few copies at 5/-
post free are available

Address remittances—

THE MANAGER,
Kinematograph Year Book,
85, Long Acre, London, W.C.2

JUST PUBLISHED.

The

PICTUREGOER PORTFOLIO

of

KINEMA CELEBRITIES

Contains the following:
SIXTEEN MAGNIFICENT PHOTOGRAVURE
PORTRAITS, Size, 10in. x 6½in.

MARY PICKFORD.	PEARL WHITE.
NORMA TALMADGE.	LILIAN GISH.
CHARLES CHAPLIN.	RICHARD BARTHELMESS.
DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS.	WILLIAM FARNUM.
NAZIMOVA.	PAULINE FREDERICK.
MARY MILES MINTER.	CONSTANCE TALMADGE.
WILLIAM S. HART.	THOMAS MEIGHAN.
RALPH GRAVES.	JACKIE COOGAN.

All worth Framing. Price

ONE SHILLING

(Post free 1/2)

On Sale everywhere or direct from

PICTURES LTD.

88, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

EVERY FILM LOVER MUST HAVE A COPY.

The only weekly journal devoted solely to the interests of all concerned in the Production of British Motion Pictures.

Editorial and Advertisement Offices:
85, LONG ACRE, LONDON, W.C.2.

Grams: Southernwood, Rand, London.
Telephone: ———— Gerrard 9870.

ADVERTISEMENT RATES

	One insertion	Six inser- tions (per insertion)
Front Cover	£6 10 0	£6 0 0
Back Cover	£6 0 0	£5 15 0
Full page	£5 10 0	£5 7 6
Half page	£3 0 0	£2 17 6
Third page	£2 5 0	£2 2 6
Quarter page	£1 15 0	£1 12 6
Sixth page	£1 5 0	£1 2 6
Eighth page	£1 0 0	18 9
Twelfth page	12 6	11 3
Per inch (single column)	5 0	4 6
(Blockmaking extra)

Professional Cards:

Photo Cards, 1 in. deep . £3 0 0 per quarter year.
(Inclusive of Blockmaking)
1 in. Cards (without blockmaking) £2 10 0
per quarter year.
Small Cards 17/6 per quarter year

Make certain of securing your copy regularly each week by filling in the Subscription Order Form and post with remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION ORDER FORM

TO The Manager,
"MOTION PICTURE STUDIO,"
85, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

Please send "THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO" to me at the following address for months, for which

I enclose remittance.

SUBSCRIPTION
RATES :: ::
3 Months - 5/-
" - 10/-
Yearly - 20/-

Name

Address to which copies are to be sent :

.....

.....

The Motion Picture Studio, August 27, 1921.

The MOTION PICTURE Studio

*Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.*

Vol. 1.—No. 12.

Saturday, August 27, 1921.

FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH MOTION
PICTURES

DAWN MEREDITH

Starring in "M'LORD O' THE WHITE ROAD."

KENNETH GRAEME FILM SYNDICATE, LTD.

Regency House, Warwick Street, W.1.

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post" "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."
219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.

Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
'Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.

Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds," "The Knight Errant," "Haigh Serial," "Love Maggie."
4, Park Place, St. James, S.W. Regent 4060.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal). "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).
c/o Sidney Jay, 11, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

Juvenile Leads: "Her Son," "Great Gay Road," "Lights of Home," "Land of My Fathers." Duane in "Belle of the Gambling Den" (Haigh Serial.)

OFFERS INVITED.

33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—

"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelm Foss Production). Latest Release, "With All Her Heart."

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street. Regent 4329.

PHYLLIS SHANNAW,

Juv. Lead "Call of the Road," "The Right to Live," etc.

Will be shortly disengaged.
All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour St., W.1.
'Phone: Regent 4329.

JOHN EAST. Postie.

"By the Bonnie Briar Bush" (Lasky).
14, Ifley Road, Hammersmith, W.6.

ARTISTES

HAYFORD HOBBS.

Starring with African Film Productions. Late Juvenile Lead: London Films (three years), Windsor Films (two years), and all leading English Film Companies.
All coms.: Box 4514 Johannesburg, South Africa.

VICTOR McLAGLEN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES.

LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs. NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc.

Carlton House, Kew Green, Kew, Surrey.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

'Phone: Regent 4329

DICK WEBB

Lead GAUMONT,

MASTER PRODUCTIONS, etc.

180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc.
HARDY FILM CO.

All coms.: c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1.

LIONELLE HOWARD.

This year's productions—"The Street of Adventure," "The Wonderful Year," "The Double Event," "Cherry Ripe," "No. 5, John Street." At liberty in two weeks.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

THIS SPACE TO LET
£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.
197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph. Batt. 1770 or 21.

CLIVE BROOK
INVITES OFFERS.
24, Hyde Park Square, W.2. Padd. 2868.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT,
Disengaged July 4. 'Phone: Walthamstow 938.

ARTISTES

ARTHUR CLEAVE,
15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.
'Phone: Hornsey 1784.

CHARLES CLIFFORD,
38, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.2.
'Phone: Regent 569.

CRISPIN HAY,
c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,
12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,

Character, Comedy.
114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

HARDING STEERMAN,
Characters of Distinction,
56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,
24, Cleveland Road,
Barnes, S.W.13.

MARJORIE VILLIS.
Exclusive to Harma Photoplays, Limes Rd., Croydon.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,
Character Parts,
57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

SCENARISTS

ELIOT STANNARD

Scenarios.

85, Holbein House, Sloan Square, S.W.1.

Tele.: Victoria 497.

COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,
:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.
7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11
(Phone: Park 2945).

GERARD FORT BUCKLE

Scenarios.

'Phone: Regent 4747.

41, Glasshouse Street, Regent Street, W.1.

THIS SPACE TO LET
£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,
Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
62, Foxbourne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

SCENARISTS

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,
Kinedramatist,
Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

IRENE MILLAR,
Novelist, Journalist, Scenarist,
10, Arundel Gardens, W. 11, or Bramlins.

CYRIL E. MURRELL,
Scenarist—Comedy,
No. 1, Pine Road, Cricklewood, N.W. 2.

MURIEL ALLEYNE, Screen Playwright
Hepworth, Barker, Universal, Pathé, Walturdaw, Clarendon M.L.B., etc., Windsor Ho., Amersham, Bucks.

THIS SPACE TO LET.
17s. 6d. for 13 insertions.

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,
14a, Little Ealing Lane,
:: South Ealing ::
'Phone : Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,
Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
"The Face at the Window."
Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON
Producing for Stoll Picture Pro-
ductions, Ltd.
Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,
Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT
GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE
LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and
"CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."
Five years producer in America. At Liberty.
Address : 1A, DENBIGH PLACE, VICTORIA.

S. L. GLENISTER
Professionally Major Comnenus-Palæologus.
PRODUCER, TECHNICAL & ART DIRECTOR
"Under the Crescent," "Dumb Girl of Portici,"
"Campbells are Coming," "Where are My Children?"
etc., for UNIVERSAL. "The Arab," for LASKY.
"Less than Dust," for ART-CRAFT, etc., etc. Open
for Engagement. Address: 25, Randolph Crescent,
W. 9. 'Phone: Paddington 3819.

GRACE ROSE
Assistant Producer
THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.
Address : B. & C. STUDIOS,
Hoe St., Walthamstow, E.17.

ADRIAN BRUNEL,
Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone : 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK,
Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

ALBERT WARD,
Producer—Open to accept engagements.
3, Ranelagh Grove, S.W.1.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

JOHN J. COX
44, Barrowgate Road,
:: Chiswick, W.4. ::
'Phone : Chiswick 294.
Cameraman for Mr. Rene Plaissetty,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD
Cameraman—AT LIBERTY.
Latest work : "The Channings," "Hard
Cash," "Stella" and "Miss Charity."
MASTER BUTCHER PRODUCTIONS.
"PEMBROKE," CHEAM COMMON RD,
WORCESTER PARK.

EDWIN DAY
Motion Picture Photographer,
12, Archer Street, Picca-
dilly Circus, London, W.1.
Telephone : Gerrard 780.
Telegrams : "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON
Thelton House, Cambolt
:: Road, Putney Hill. ::
Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN
"GAUMONT'S,"
105, King's Road,
Kingston-on-Thames.

FRANK CANHAM
Cameraman—ASTRA FILM CO.
Filming "No. 5, John Street."
Featuring Miss Zena Dare.
Permanent Address : Royal Forest
Hotel, Chingford, Essex.

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT
GAUMONT,
:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::
Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT
Expert Cameraman.
"The Better 'Ole," "Her Benny,"
etc., etc.
2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.
'Phone : Streatham 1969.

ALFRED H. MOSES
Photographing George Ridgwell Productions.
Formerly Chief Cameraman for Thanhauser,
Norma Talmadge, British & Colonial, etc.
Address care of STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS,
Cricklewood.

PHIL ROSS
Cameraman—AT LIBERTY
Late of BROADWEST, HARMA, VANITY, etc.
19, Mayow Road, Forest Hill,
London, S.E.23.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

WILLIAM SHENTON
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address :
17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,
Boreham Wood, Herts.

HORACE M. WHEDDON,
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address
"LYNTON HOUSE,"
BOREHAM WOOD, HERTS.

JAMES E. ROGERS,
Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth.
"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"
"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"
"Last Rose of Summer,"
PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

PUBLICITY. . . .

F. J. STANDERWICK,
Photographer.
I am making a speciality of Catering for
Film Artists. 'Phone for appointment—
Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio
—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
W.14.

FRANK J. WOOLF
Publicity Representative,
British and Colonial Kinematograph
Company, Hoe Street, Walthamstow,
Telephone : Walthamstow 364.

EDWARD BAIRD,
Publicity.
172, Goldhurst Terrace, N.W.6.

COSTUMIER

W. CLARKSON,
Costumier and Wigmaker,
41/43, Wardour Street, W. 'Phone : Gerr. 612.

THIS SPACE TO LET
17s. 6d. for 13 insertions

STUDIO MANAGER

JOHN A. GEEVES,
Studio Manager—
B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,
Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
Telephone : W'stow 364."

Photo]

[Bertram Park

MISS JOAN MORGAN

ALL COMMS. :

Bramlins

Museum 4038

241, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.C.2.

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 12

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

August 27, 1921

The Kinema Club.

ON Thursday evening—too late for detailed comment in this issue—a meeting of representative film actors, directors, scenarists and studio cameramen was held in the offices of the Motion Picture Studio for the purpose of discussing the ways and means of forming a Kinema Club. As has already been reported, a preliminary meeting was held on the previous Thursday, at which there were present some twelve enthusiasts, and a useful discussion ensued. But, as it was not considered by the meeting itself that it was sufficiently representative, it was adjourned until the following Thursday, invitations being sent out in the meantime to over fifty artistes, directors, scenarists and cameramen. Those who, by reason of being away on location, were unable to attend have written expressing their opinion as to the necessity for such an organisation. In fact, there appears to be unanimity as to this need, and it remains now to translate the opinions into deeds.

Towards a Better Profession.

SUCH a club, if it can be formed, should have a very fair chance of serving as the basis of an organisation to protect the interests of actors, directors, scenarists and cameramen. That there are abuses cannot be denied. Many things at present happen which such an organisation, efficiently conceived and run, could prevent. Contracts could be standardised—for example, it ought not to be possible to engage artistes for a period which can be extended by days and half-days at the producing concern's convenience or pleasure. If a picture is not completed within the period of an artiste's contract, he should be paid at least week by week while he is liable to be called upon to work—if for no better reason than that he is not able in the meantime to accept another contract. Again, the danger that speculative or badly-financed producing concerns may strand artistes or directors in foreign countries could be guarded against if there were in existence a strong organisation, which could insist on proof that a producing concern was financially equal to carrying out the liabilities it incurs where it takes a number of people out of the country.

* * *

Legal Aid.

EVEN before the Kinema Club had grown so far, it would be a fairly simple and inexpensive matter, if the membership were sufficiently large, to make arrangements at small individual cost whereby members could be provided with free legal assistance in any disputes or abuses arising out of engagements. This of the American directors, and vigorous propaganda work is being done in the States by Alfred Lever, Abel Gance, Louis Mercanton and Count di Reval, who have formed themselves into an international committee of protest on behalf of the film Industry in Britain, France and Italy. These four have been in touch with the United States Department of Commerce, and, having presented the argument that such taxes would inevitably lead to retaliation, have been asked to provide figures and other details in support of their contention. But meantime, arising out of questions asked by J. A. Seddon in the House of Commons, it does not appear that there is much hope of retaliation by this country. The Board of Trade is prepared to listen to "any concrete proposals which might come within the province of the Department"—a somewhat vague promise. The best solution is undoubtedly a sufficiently large improvement in British pictures and business methods to make it possible to secure foreign outlets.

* *

Advertising the Industry.

MORE attention is being given at last to the question of general propaganda for pictures by exhibitors.

For a long time a few far-seeing people have been insisting on the need for greater efforts by exhibitors through the local press and for a wider view by the showman of the value of both direct and indirect advertising on a much larger scale than has hitherto been the practice. One result would be that the press generally would develop a greater interest in picture plays and would be less inclined to seize every opportunity of belittling the screen. The effect of wider publicity emanating from exhibitors would be of great advantage to the British artiste by making him far better known than he is to-day. For, to a very large extent, the popularity of the big American stars is based on press propaganda and publicity.

SCREEN VALUES

MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"The Rotters" (Ideal) is a popular stage farce which is rather less successful on the screen, where many of the artificialities of the plot are emphasised. Individual scenes are sometimes amusing and there is some fair comic acting by Sydney Paxton, Sydney Fairbrother, Margery Meadows and Stanley Holloway. The Court scene is the best in the production, which drags in parts and cannot as a whole be regarded as an unqualified success. A. Q. Walton's scenario seems to be adequate in outline and secures a fair continuity, but in detail either the script or the production by A. V. Bramble or both, have been rather lacking in imagination. H. Wheddon's photography is adequate.

"The Puppet Man" (B. and C.) opens with tense drama and holds the attention excellently, but at times the circus scenes fail to keep up to the standard, and it is somewhat of a pity that the "turns" are curtailed. The literary aspect of the production is admirable, and the chief defects can be remedied by judicious cutting. Photographically, the picture is quite good, and the direction is skilful. Hugh Miller is overshadowed by a remarkable performance of the child-player, Marie Belloci, who is a wonderful discovery. The rest of the cast are good.

* * *

The American Tax.

WHILE a great deal of controversy is being aroused in the States over the proposed tax on imported raw stock, little interest appears to be taken in the proposals referring to foreign films. Protests have been made by some

AUTHOR AND DIRECTOR

"The director told me his idea of the relationship between author and director. So far as I can remember his words, he said: 'Your work stops at the studio door. When you have handed in the script of your scenario you have done all that is required of you.'"

In these words, used by E. Temple Thurston in his recent speech to the exhibitors at the C.E.A. Conference, will be found the germs of a very common grievance among film writers. We have invited several gentlemen who are interested in this question to give their views in this and subsequent issues, Edgar Wallace (Author).

Although my experience has been that directors, particularly the men who work with Jeffrey Bernerd, of Stolls—and Bernerd is certainly the most "understanding merchant of films" I have met—are very keen to secure the co-operation of the author, and welcome his suggestions, I am not so sure that the author can give any very material assistance unless he is soaked in the technique of picture-play making.

The author is in very much the same position as a man who has an "idea" for an invention without having the mechanical experience to carry his idea into practice.

He knows the result he wants to get, and, watching the trained mechanic putting together the machine which will produce that result, he is apt to interfere at the wrong moment, offer suggestions which the mechanic knows are altogether impracticable, and to get a little hurt when his views are ignored. To my mind it is very much the best to leave a story in the hands of the scenarist.

What seems to me to be infinitely more important than a good understanding between author and director is a more loyal co-operation between the scenarists and the directors. Though I have been most fortunate in this respect, it is nevertheless a fact that more stories are mangled by bad scenarists than by bad production. Very often this is due to the insistence of the director on his own scenario, and the average director is not a good scenarist. I say this in spite of the fact that the scenario of "The Four Just Men" was brilliantly made by the man who produced it.

It is much easier to get a good director than a good scenarist because the four hundred years old stage has been a school for the one; the other is tackling a new form of literary expression and has only the experience of the past ten years to guide him—or her.

If a scenarist knows his business, then the director who told Temple Thurston that his work stopped at the studio door was absolutely justified. If an author knows enough about the technique of the picture play to produce his own scenario, then the director is also justified. He may not be wise to dispense with the services of the man who knows the story "backwards," but there is certainly a lot to be said for his point of view.

Very often the interference of the author at a critical moment is quite enough to rattle a director to such an extent that he makes a fair film when he might have made an excellent one.

He is working for his climaxes in his own way, very often ignoring the author's method of developing the story in order to get a punch which the writer has missed. Along comes the author with a suggestion which may anticipate and therefore spoil the film climax without in any way improving the story which is being told. I have seen this happen, and I never bother directors, realising that the production of pictures is a nerve-wracking, energy-sapping job.

NEXT WEEK: A Director replies.

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES

X—DAWN MEREDITH

This dainty young artiste, although still very youthful, has a career that goes back well into the past, for it was when she was but five years of age that she first put her feet to the ladder of success, up which she has been ascending with remarkable rapidity ever since.

At that early age she took the first prize in a Beauty Competition, and with this impetus behind her it is a matter of no very great surprise that to-day finds her being starred in a film romance.

After hard study of the science of dramatic technique and equally hard work in the practical exhibition of that science, Dawn was not long in making a great success on the speaking stage, her most recent appearance being at the Adelphi in "High Jinks."

Her chief film appearances have been with the Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate, for which she plays stellar roles. Her most important parts have been in "The War at Walleroo Mansions," "The Mesmeric Portrait" and "The Great Hunger Duel."

She is now playing feminine lead in "M'Lord of the White Road."

CAMERAMEN AT WORK

Quite a number of press photographers are seriously considering taking up cinematography. Things have been pretty bad on Fleet Street of late, and associating with cameramen, as they do, the press photographer finds himself wondering how he would manage with such a job. He has seen the topical cameraman at work. There seems to be even less in it than there is in still work.

Although the two jobs seem very much alike, they are, in reality, very far apart. They are totally different.

For instance, the press photographer arrives at a town to photograph Lord Puff presenting the local Boy Scouts with plum cake. The pressman returns to his office with a photo of the actual ceremony—that is, the presentation of the cake—and there the matter ends. The pressman is satisfied and so is the editor, and bang goes the photograph into the paper.

The topical cameraman is different. Would he dare return to his editor with a few feet of film of the presentation ceremony?

The answer is no—most emphatically no!

He must write up a little scenario in his mind: "Lord So-and-So arrives. He drives through the town. He inspects the Guard of Honour. He presents the local Boy Scouts with plum cake." Then follow a few of the minor incidents, such as a close-up of small scout, complete with cake and large smile.

He takes it back, and his editor is given something to work with; he cuts it, makes it into a little story, and it is included in the Pathological Film News. Meanwhile the cameraman is sent off to the Canary Isles to film the opening of the new picture house.

This is just one instance of the different ways they work. A good picture, from a pressman's point of view, might be useless to a cameraman. Then there is no need to go into the technical details, which prove that still and kine. photography have hardly any connection with each other.

There are many ex-pressmen now in Wardour Street, and if you ask any one of them what they think about it, they will give you some idea of their early struggles.

* * *

The next meeting of the K.C.S. will be held on September 8.

* * *

I saw I. Roseman last week. He is looking well, after his trip to Austria, where he has been filming for B. and C.

* * *

Congratulations to Neal Gemmell, who was married a few days ago. He is the brother of "Jock" Gemmell of Pathé's.

* * *

If the proposed cricket match between Pathé Editorial and Topical Budget Editorial materialises there promises to be some striking scenes.

* * *

A. St. Brown, of Gaumont's has been holiday making on the banks of the Thames.

WHEN YOU SEE—a scene introduced by opening curtains—the climax scene of a love tale fading from a full moon to a romantic crescent—a keyhole, telescope or binocular mask, which presently enlarges to show the whole scene—a group in which first one, then another person, stands out more distinctly than the rest—

You know it was taken by an up-to-date cameraman—he was using which can be fitted to any Camera, and are the only Attachments that will produce these effects.

VINTEN CUT-OFF ATTACHMENTS,

W. VINTEN,

Urbanora House,
89, Wardour St.,
London, W.1.

Telephone—
Regent
2702.

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

After a great rush and a deal of trouble, Hugh E. Wright has reached Torquay to play in a Harma film. It appears that John Payne, of Bramlins, spent nearly all last week trying to get Hugh on the 'phone, and at last located him at Huddersfield, where he was playing at the Theatre Royal. Then Hugh took up the rushing hard business; he got to Torquay just in time for the scene-shooting. He had not been there long before he had trouble with the police. In one of his scenes he is a nigger minstrel, and had just got going when the Inspector asked him for his licence, and a good deal of talky-talk had to be gone through before he was allowed to proceed with his part.

* * *

Repeatedly I am being provided with instances of the urgent need for that Film Artistes' Association. Only a few days ago a lady à la Bond Street, drove up to one of our biggest studios in a most luxurious car. She wanted to do film work. Then she saw the rest of the cast. And, in her best Vere-de-Vere accents, she wanted to know: "Have I got to mix with these horrible creatures?"

* * *

There are limits to even the success of a screen artiste. Clive Brook must take care. I think his swift flight to stardom (done in the course of eighteen months) is phenomenal, and he is hereby congratulated. But that is no excuse for writing novels! And that is what he is guilty of. Before the war he contributed regularly to a number of weekly magazines, and now he has completed a story which he hopes will be filmed. Clive is of opinion that there is a tremendous future for the journalists in this country who write specially for the film. I thank him.

* * *

If this journal can claim to preach any gospel, it is the gospel of optimism. Recently we were emphasising that the alleged slump was not so real as was suggested, and this view is confirmed by Hepworths, which is following the renowned example of Johnny Walker. Hepworth has five new pictures ready for exhibition, and will hold two Trade shows on September, two in October, one in November and one in December. Each of these new films will be released, in accordance with the Hepworth policy, at least four months after date of Trade shows (in some cases less), and all the Hepworth directors are at the moment working on more new productions, which will be ready for exhibition when the other five have been shown. Hepworth has created a record this year by turning out better and more productions than ever in the course of its previous history.

* * *

Sir William Martin, presiding at the Sir Walter Scott Club anniversary gathering in Glasgow, remarked that one could name recent novels produced by highly gifted writers which appealed to the basest part of human nature, and such novels, when picturised, were offensive to all right-minded men and women. Why (he asked) should not Sir Walter Scott be

OUR LETTER LIST.

Letters await the following at the offices of this journal. A stamped addressed envelope should be sent with applications. No charge is made for the use of this service.

Helen Blizzard,
Jack Daring,
Christine Silver,
Daisy Burrell,
Lillian Braithwaite,
Langhorne Burton,

ON THE FLOOR

With GEOFFREY MALINS

Exactly why it is we are at a loss to say, but the fact remains that Geoffrey Malins impresses one when his work in the studio is under observation. There is nothing of the blustering, boisterous methods of the old-time director about him. His instructions are given to his artistes in a voice so low that no one but the artiste can hear; and these instructions, one is forced to conclude, judging by the results, are the quintessence of vivid and graphic expression.

In reviewing the work of Mr. Malins, we do so without allowing the question of his magnetic influence to intrude (although his unquestioned control of the human material in the studio makes this difficult). The first thing of which one is conscious is his quiet air of perfect confidence. There is never a moment's hesitation. He gives one the impression that he knows what it is he wants, and how to get it. And with unerring movement and method he goes straightway and secures the effect he desires.

Between shots Malins is quietly busy (his quiet method of work must be emphasised) arranging for the next scene, and we noticed that this was done in collaboration with Rafael Sabatini, the author, and Germain Burger, the cameraman. Malins regards it as a law never to trespass on the domain of his cameraman; he tells him his idea for the scene, and leaves it to the cameraman to arrange the system of lighting.

From our observations we should be inclined to the opinion that Malins is a specialist in dramas; he is a master hand at extracting the last drop of emotionalism from his artistes.

seen more often on our picture-house programs? The query is quite pertinent. Why have not some of the Waverley novels been adapted for the screen? There is material in plenty waiting for the director who is bold enough to tackle the historical novel, and no author lends himself so readily to film production as Sir Walter Scott.

* * *

It has frequently been pointed out that there is the making of a stirring, romantic and dramatic film in the picturesque adventures of Prince Charlie. The Scott novels (their copyright long since expired)—"Kenilworth," with its tragic ending; "Peveril of the Peak," with its Manx scenery; or "The Lady of the Lake," one of the loveliest scenic idylls in the English language—are all screenable.

* * *

For some time Manchester has had a studio of its own. Pictures have been taken there by the Manchester Producing Company, and now Ocean Photo Plays is making good use of the place for its interiors of "Silence of the Storm," for which the company went to Teneriffe for its outside scenes. We saw the cast hard at work during the past week, and a right merry band it was.

* * *

Captain Calvert, whose passion for correct detail is well known, has again being going through a concentrated course in another profession to get the atmosphere right for a scene in "Roses in the Dust." This scene takes place in an operating room, and Calvert spent an afternoon at one of the hospitals picking up details. Moreover, he has persuaded a surgeon and a sister to go down to the studio to advise on the taking of the scene, in which the sister will actually appear. During his visit to the hospital operating theatre, the surgeon put Calvert under chloroform, to give him some idea of the sensation produced, so that Calvert can impart this information to the player who appears on the operating table in the scene—Gordon Craig.

* * *

Man in his time plays many parts—and so, it would seem, does woman. Zoe Palmer had no sooner finished playing the gaoler's daughter in the "Black Tulip" than she was wanted for the rôle of a vicar's daughter. From the halter to the altar, if I may so put it.

"MEGAPHONE."

Where they are and

Henderson Bland has arrived back in town from location. He has been working for Stoll in "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills."

Ivo Dawson has given his exclusive rights to Norris and Clayton.

Leoner de Cordover is to direct the productions for African Films.

Eddie Earle has been engaged as chief cameraman to African Film Productions.

S. W. Northcote is directing the production of "Silence of the Storm," for Ocean Photoplays, and is using the studios of the Manchester Producing Co.

Alex Fraser and Jerrold Robertshaw are appearing in "The Bonnie Briar Bush," with the Famous Players-Lasky (Norris and Clayton booking).

Robert Michaelis, Clare Greet, Joe Nightingale and Stanley Holloway, who appear in "The Rotters" (Ideal) were booked by Norris and Clayton.

Hayford Hobbs is the star in the latest African Film Production, and his services have been retained to play lead in the second production, which is to be "Sam's Kid." Unfortunately Mr. Hobbs was knocked down by a tram and sustained injuries to his back; he is now convalescent and hopes to be quite fit in time to start on "Sam's Kid."

LETTERING SPECIALIST

is open to undertake one or two commissions for special film work
G. T. SHEARMAN, Bentinck Road, Nottingham.

Marie Francis has been selected by Einar Bruun to play in his present picture.

Leon Britton, late of Goldwyn, is Production Manager in African Film Productions.

Terry Somers is responsible for the sets in "Silence of the Storm" (Ocean Photoplays).

Eliot Stannard, and not Kate Gurney, was responsible for the scenarios of "The Gay Lord Quex."

William J. Elliott wrote the scenario of "General John Regan" (Stoll) and also "The Experiment."

Pauline Johnson will be fixing up in the next few days a contract with a big film company for twelve months.

Florence Turner made a successful personal appearance at Devonport, and has also promised to be present at the big Kinema Carnival at Brighton on August 31.

William J. Elliott was responsible for the scenario and adaptation of "The Hound of the Baskervilles," and not Daisy Westlake, who, we understood from the Stoll Editorial News, had written the scenario.

Joan Morgan, Langhorne Burton, Stewart Rome, Gregory Scott, Milton Rosmer, Clive Brook, Evelyn Brent, Poppy Wyndham, Pauline Peters, Mary Odette and Edna Flugrath have promised to be present at the big Kinema Carnival on August 31.

Lewis Gilbert is playing in Stoll's "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills."

Manlin Valmour is in the cast of "Silence of the Storm" (Ocean).

Fred Morgan has a leading part in Ocean's "Silence of the Storm."

A. B. Imeson has a prominent part in "Silence of the Storm" (Ocean).

Gabrielle Glynn is playing feminine lead in "Silence of the Storm" (Ocean).

Ernest Milborne is cranking for Ocean Photoplays on "Silence of the Storm."

Milton Rosmer is again among the Cumberland Hills; this time with Maurice Elvey in Stoll's "A Romance of Westdale."

F. Manning Hayes is now at work on "Four Men in a Van." This follows appropriately on his work in "Three Men in a Boat," in which Lionelle Howard was starred.

Donald Searle, who has recently terminated a long engagement with Gilbert Miller as stage manager for the St. James's Theatre, has just been engaged by Hugh Croise to play "Buggins" in "Four Men in a Van." He played the part of "Slightly" in "Peter Pan" for many seasons, apart from producing and stage managing the same play in 1919-20. He has had a varied film and stage career, commencing at the age of 10 by playing the "part" of hind legs of a crocodile; he came to the "fore" in record time by playing the front legs later.

A BRITISH

Out of the hurly-burly of the film upheaval one thing stands out: that technical and artistic excellence is an absolute necessity if British films are to compete with success in the world's markets. A very high level of quality has been attained by British directors who have been able to expend large sums of money on equipment, but financial considerations are forcing directors to consider how they can get the best results without the huge expenditure hitherto unavoidable. They are more than ever realising that it is necessary to proceed on scientific lines, and in this connection some novel and interesting ideas are held by J. C. Elvy, A.M.I.E.E., M.I.E.S., on the subject of studios, lighting equipment and research.

I am strongly of opinion, he said to our representative, that the latest equipment, the most up-to-date methods, and the benefit of scientific research are absolutely necessary to the British director who proposes to compete in the world's markets. Many directors have thoroughly realised this in the past, but have found the expense too great. For this reason there are numerous producing companies which have never been able to produce a really satisfactory picture, and in the present circumstances there is practically no chance of them ever doing so.

In this country it is essential that the question of artificial lighting should receive the most serious scientific consideration, and the object should be, as nearly as possible, to reproduce the conditions of "diffused sunlight" by artificial means. It is possible to obtain such conditions in London, and it is my aim to realise this possibility.

It was generally conceded that "The Bigamist," produced by Messrs. George Clark Productions, Ltd., approached the ideal in technical excellence. It is not, however, necessary to travel all the way to Nice to attain that standard and to excel it.

With these ideals in view, a syndicate is now in course of formation for the purpose of building a studio in the heart of London, which will incorporate all the latest ideas, and will be at the disposal of any director who wishes to have the very best in every department.

The proposed studio will have the very latest and most perfect equipment it is possible to obtain. It will have a developing and printing plant of the highest

what they are doing

Jean Cole is in "Silence of the Storm."

Bertram Burleigh has a big part in "How Lord Kitchener was Betrayed."

Harold Forrest has been engaged to play in "Silence of the Storm" for Ocean Photoplays.

Mamie Lister has been provided with a place in the cast of Ocean's "Silence of the Storm."

Jack Mullins is now at Manchester playing in "Silence of the Storm" for Ocean Photoplays.

Colette Brettel has been booked by Fryer and Rodger to play for M. Zillean in his forthcoming Italian production.

Annette Benson has been booked by Bramlin's for a part in "Three Live Ghosts," which George Fitzmaurice is to direct for F. P.-Lasky.

Maurice Elvey is in Keswick with the three artists who practically form the whole of the cast of the Stoll picture, "A Romance of Westdale."

Peggie Hathaway has been fixed for a part in Screenplay's version of the John Bull story, "How Lord Kitchener was Betrayed" (Bramlin's booking).

Anna Q. Nilsson, the famous American star, has arrived in this country to star in the George Fitzmaurice production, "Three Live Ghosts" (F. P.-Lasky).

Stewart Rome was advertised to make a personal appearance at the North Staffs Kinema Carnival, but was prevented at the last moment, much to the disappointment of a crowd of 5,000 people.

Clive Brook is in the lead of "The Experiment" (Stoll).

Dennis Wyndham is male lead in "The Eleventh Hour" (Stoll).

Henry Victor plays juvenile lead in "Bluff" (Granger-Binger).

Gerard Ames is going to be filmed in the screen version of "Raffles."

Lewis Willoughby is playing the leading part in "Bluff" for Hardy Films.

Lionelle Howard terminates his engagement with Thompson this week after playing lead in several of its productions. He is now on the free list.

Frank Lilliput is playing a prominent part in "Silence of the Storm" (Ocean Photoplays).

Lawrence Anderson (son of the late May Anderson) is playing a leading part in "Bluff" (Hardy).

Queenie Thomas is to star in two productions which Bertram Phillips is to direct for British and Oriental.

Dawn Meredith is playing lead in the Kenneth Graeme production, "The Adventures of Mr. Pusher Long."

Zoe Palmer had no sooner finished playing in "Black Tulip" than Granger-Binger re-engaged her for a part in its next production.

Pauline Peters is now in the Highlands, where she is playing the leading part in "The Lilac Bonnet" (Progress).

Carlotta de Felice, the Vitagraph player, is in this country to do film work. Her agents, Norris and Clayton, are in negotiation with a leading firm on her behalf.

Dalton Somers has just fulfilled his first engagement with F. P.-Lasky, playing one of the Elders of the church in "Beside the Bonny Briar Bush" (Donald Crisp production).

Olive Sloane writes from Paris to say that "The Crime of Lord Saville," in which she is starring, will be completed in the course of the next three weeks by Le Grand Productions.

Frank J. Woolf was born in London and educated at City of London School as a schoolmaster for the L.C.C. He taught instead at Clarke's College and Pitman's Schools until he joined the Army in 1915. From 1909 he was a free-lance writer on matters theatrical and cinematographic, contributing continuously to the Era, the Performer, the Kine., and other London entertainment journals. For four years the London representative of the New York Star, he now holds a similar post with the New York Dramatic Mirror. He is now controlling the publicity for B. and C.

Camera Bargains—Largest selection of professional and topical instruments in London, all makers—English, American and Continental. Write stating exact requirements, special quotations post free, or call and inspect our stock, Cash or Easy Payment Terms. Apparatus accepted in exchange, Strict approval terms willingly.

THE KINEMATOGRAPH EXCHANGE,
81 Aldersgate Street, E.C. 1.

STUDIO CITY

grade, and a research department—employing the keenest brains available—that will keep the studio right up-to-date, and will bring all the resources of science to bear on the problem of technical perfection. A stock of furniture and "props" will be on hand that will make practically any interior a simple matter.

It will possess floor space sufficient to enable several directors to work simultaneously, and each director will be so segregated from others that he will not be interrupted by noisy operations near by.

We already have great assets in this country—the freshness and beauty of our countryside and our "diffused sunlit" skies. Combine with these a production studio in the London area, embodying the best features of the greatest American studios, and we shall be in an enviable position as compared with all competitors, despite import duties and other restrictions.

The scattering of studios miles away from the Metropolis to dodge the fog fiend is unnecessary. Make your studio "fog-proof." With the class of building which has been taken over for film production, fog has always been a serious bugbear. Such buildings should never have been contemplated for studio work, not even as a temporary expedient, and should be abandoned even now by those who aim at perfection.

So far from belittling the efforts of the pioneers of the film industry, I am anxious that the business shall not be wrested from them by outside competitors. Every point, therefore, that can make towards perfection should receive the closest study. Too often one sees, through faulty lighting, distorted features, uncanny "sightless eyes," limbs like ex-ray photographs of misshapen bones, and so forth. All this can be remedied provided the fundamental laws of illumination receive their due meed of attention.

These and many other important details are to receive the closest technical supervision at the hands of the studio's band of experts. There is no reason why, with such a scheme in operation—with the accompanying low production costs, British productions should not be able to maintain the highest technical standard, and with the close attention of the director to scenario, story and artistic treatment, they should not secure first place in the race for supremacy.

MILTON ROSMER*Starring in*

"A Romance of Westdale,"
 "The Pointing Finger,"
 "A Woman of No Importance,"
 "The Amazing Partnership,"
 "Demos," "The Diamond Necklace,"
 "Belphegor the Mountebank,"
 "The Will," "The Twelve Pound
 Look," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

88, NEWMAN ST., W.1.

Phone - - - - Museum 5145

HUGH CROISE*Producer.*Sole Adaptor and Producer
of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H. MALINS, O.B.E.ProducerLatest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE,"
 "PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
 "SETTLED IN FULL,"
 "ALL THE WINNERS,"
 "WATCHING EYES,"
 "FLUFF," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
 26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

WHO EDITED IT?

When the spokesman of a party of Fleet Street Editors says of an important Travel Film that "the editing is better than anything of the kind I have seen," it's surely worth asking who did it?

With an eye on that next film of yours, you might like to know that it was

HARRY HUGHES,

Editing, Titling, Continuities.

128, Jermyn Street, S.W.1

Regent 2592.

AVIATION IN FILMS*by F. L. WILLS, Managing Director, Aerofilms Ltd.*

Productions adapted from modern stories and scenarios must in the majority of cases be "before times," at any rate "right up to date," so as not to be "out of date" when released, or during circulation, which might easily be a year or two after the completion of the production. With the continual growth and popularity of aviation it now becomes absolutely necessary for it to take its place in every modern production.

Scenarists should bear this fact in mind, whether they are adapting a so-called "modern" work, in which case it is often necessary to bring the incidents up to date, or composing a modern story.

The man who should watch these points is the director, in whose hands the final decision rests. He should take it upon himself to see that aviation gets its proper place and introduction into all modern dramas, serials and comedies.

In the film stories of the past all kinds of transport have been used, such as motor-cars, special trains, etc., but to-day we must remember that a special train costs £1 per mile, whilst an aeroplane only 1s. 3d. per mile, which is only slightly more than the cost of running a car, and therefore the advantage of the speed obtained by employing aircraft necessitates its introduction.

Apart from all the thrilling aerial incidents that can be invented for the serials and actually carried out by aircraft and recorded by pictures taken from accompanying machines in the air, there is still another use aviation can be put to in connection with the films, and that is the making of Aerial Travel and Interest Series.

The United Kingdom is favoured with a wonderful amount of ground scenery, but it is not all adaptable to aerial cinematography, as unless there are outstanding features, such as large buildings or rugged coast and mountainous country, such films become very uninteresting. Many good aerial films have been produced, and there is still an abundance of suitable subjects to be photographed and filmed, even twice over in varying conditions of summer and winter, but of course the foreigners win again by the unequalled scenic effects to be secured in their countries through the nature of the land.

Thanks to aviation, the air-film takes its place in the commercial work of the trade. Propaganda and business films are becoming more important to the promotion of the world's trade every day. A section of film, taken from the air, of a manufacturer's various works in different parts of the country, whilst the machine is circling them, makes a most interesting prologue to any such film.

It introduces the novel side of film-producing as well as illustrates the enterprise of a firm, and also makes the usual monotonous type of film much more interesting.

The British film manufacturer up to the present is introducing aviation into modern film productions at a very slow speed. He has something to learn from America, which anyone will observe is more advanced, according to the new productions that have arrived in this country during the last two years. Let us hope the British director will not realise this too late to bring his modern productions up to date.

RELATIVE VALUES*by BANNISTER MERWIN*

Is there such a thing as a good scenario? I doubt it.

The only satisfactory scenario is one which is accepted with enthusiasm by the director for whom it has been prepared. If the director is pleased with the script, the scenarist should feel that his work has been accomplished successfully.

It is a rare thing for two or more directors to like the same continuity. There is no real standard of criticism for continuities, aside from such obvious necessities as smoothness of connection. In the absence of a standard, the director's taste, no matter how whimsical, is the ultimate basis of criticism. Ergo, satisfy the director.

Some producing firms have established the system of giving their directors ready-made continuities with instructions to produce them undeviatingly. Result, uninteresting machine-made films.

The best continuity scenario is made by the writer who works in collaboration with the director. One cannot put into a script everything that ought to be shown in the completed film, but if the writer frequently discusses his work with the director while the work is being done, the director is much more likely to absorb the writer's full meaning.

But here we realise the further responsibility that lies upon the writer. He must know "the floor." Unless he understands production he cannot produce a fool-proof continuity.

The satisfactory scenarist must have tact, a clean-cut mental organisation, imagination, originality, and as thorough a knowledge of production as the director himself. Not a small equipment. But, then, the story and continuity are the most important part of the picture.

At the risk of being challenged, I will state the values of a film as follows:—

Story	25 per cent.
Continuity....	15 "
Acting	15 "
Photography..	15 "
Production ...	30 "

Result 100 per cent. production.

You cannot do better than
 by placing your orders with

L. BENJAMIN & CO.99, Middlesex Street, E.1.

Phone—London Wall 7568.

KINEMA ARTISTES' EYES

An interim report has been made by the Governmental Committee appointed to investigate and report on the causes of blindness, including defective vision, sufficient to impair economic efficiency, caused by studio lighting. The report is as follows:—

Sir Anderson Critchett, Bart., honorary ophthalmic surgeon to the Actors' Association, gave evidence as to five patients, one actor and four actresses, who had recently consulted him on account of eye trouble following exposure to the intense light used in studios. The cases reported all occurred in October and November, 1920. The symptoms described were those of conjunctival inflammation, causing pain and photophobia, and in one of the cases there was stated to be some degree of retinitis; in all, the injury was transient, and in the most severe of them recovery was complete by February, 1921.

Alfred Lugg, Secretary to the Actors' Association, gave evidence to the effect that transient attacks of pain and inflammation of the eyes have of late occurred frequently among actors and actresses engaged in film production, and that a number of artistes suffer from bloodshot eyes attributed to the strong lights used. He stated that transient eye injuries from this cause are well known among film actors in America. Other witnesses stated that the attacks of inflammation do not occur immediately, but within a few hours after leaving the studio, the sufferer awaking from sleep the same night with pain and smarting in the eye, lachrymation, photophobia, and a feeling as if the eyes were full of sand. These symptoms yield to simple remedies, and last, at most, a few days.

We regard it as established that, as a result of their occupation, injuries to the eyes of a transient, and in most cases trivial nature, have recently occurred among cinematograph artistes. We have had no evidence that serious or permanent injuries have arisen from this cause.

As regards this country, practically all complaints of which we have heard date from the last three months of 1920, and such injuries as have occurred coincide with the introduction and injudicious use of certain very powerful arc lamps of the searchlight type, largely imported from America.

As to the types of lamp used in cinema studios, we have taken the evidence of Leon Gaster, Honorary Secretary of the Illuminating Engineering Society; Ruthven Murray, M.I.C.E., who has made a special study of the supply of energy to and lighting of cinema studios; Maurice Elvey, chief director, and Paul Berger, chief photographer of Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd.; a deputation from the Incorporated Association of Cinematograph Manufacturers, Ltd.; L. V. Cargill, F.R.C.S., who has made a report to Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., on the alleged danger from the lamps used, and Mr. Lamplough, director of research for Chance Brothers, Ltd.

The evidence of these witnesses is to the effect that—

(1) Injuries to the eyes have occurred in cinema studios from the use of unscreened arc lights

(2) No injuries have occurred from the use of adequately screened arc or mercurial vapour lamps.

(3) The use of unscreened arc lamps in these studios is not necessary.

On this evidence we offer the following observations:—

(1) and (2). Before the use of these exceptionally powerful unscreened arc lights for film production in this country cases of injuries to the eyes from electric lights in studios were, so far as we have been able to learn, unknown; they certainly must have been very rare. Many artistes, directors, photographers and electric lighting operatives have worked for several years in British cinema studios without ever experiencing the least inconvenience to their eyes.

About May, 1920, new patterns of arc lamps of the searchlight type were imported from America, and have since been used in several British studios. In some instances, during the latter months of 1920, the diffusing glass screens with which such lamps are ordinarily provided were not used; such injuries as have been reported to us occurred in these circumstances.

Unscreened arc lamps are, in our opinion, liable to cause injury by reason of the unimpeded access of ultra-violet rays to the eyes. The danger is increased according to the proximity of the eyes to the lights and to the duration of the exposure.

In one studio visited by us goggles were provided for the artistes as a form of protection, but they did not appear to be generally worn, nor, indeed, did their use during the actual production of films appear to be practicable.

In certain types of arc lamp commonly used in cinema studios, the cores of the carbons emit irritating vapours composed of suspended particles and products of combustion. Danger might arise from this source, but it is unlikely to be serious unless the lamps were very close to the artistes.

It is possible that danger might arise from the artistes looking directly at the lights, even if these were properly screened, owing to the intensity of the luminous rays. Permanent damage to sight has been caused, for example, by viewing eclipses of the sun with the naked or inadequately protected eyes. There is no evidence that any such injury has been caused in cinema studios, and we are of opinion that suitably enclosed and screened arc lights are not likely to be dangerous apart from culpable temerity on the part of the artistes.

(3) The evidence of electric light experts and photographers is to the effect that not only is the use of unscreened arc lights unnecessary for the purpose of film production, but that better photographic results can be obtained when filters are used. The screens ordinarily used are of spun glass, which diminishes the glare, and cuts off the greater part of the dangerous ultra-violet rays.

The Incorporated Association of Cinematograph Manufacturers, Ltd., an association which comprises practically all the film-producing firms in this country, is so much impressed by the evidence of danger to the eyes from unscreened arc lights that it has given its assurance to the Minister of Health that: "... in no case will any member of the Incorporated Association of Cinematograph Manufacturers, Ltd., from now onwards, and has been the case for some weeks past, permit any open-arc lights to be used in their studios for general illumination without glass filters, and the Association is willing to be responsible for its members in that respect, undertaking to notify to the Ministry any studio among its members unwilling to abide by this condition."

In consideration of the fact that the directors and photographic experts have definitely stated in evidence that such unscreened arc lights are not necessary for film production, and that the Incorporated Association of Cinematograph Manufacturers, Ltd., has given the above quoted assurance, we are of opinion that their undertaking should be accepted, and that further action is unnecessary for the present.

At the same time we realise that the industry is in a state of development. Research is required to determine what types of lamp are best adapted to the purposes of film production.

The Historical Film must be accurately dressed.

We Stock Civil and Military costumes of all known periods. :: ::

"The Call of the Road," and "The Old Curiosity Shop," with their wealth of costume, detail and characteristics of their times were dressed by us.

Write to-day stating your requirements.

H. & M. RAYNE,
115-119, Waterloo Road,
S.E.1.

WEST END BRANCH: 15, Rupert Street.

TYPING—'Phone Regent 4747

"SPEEDAC" STENOGRAPHIC BUREAU

41, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.1.

Usual terms. Typing all classes: Authors' MS., Film Scenarios a speciality under expert supervision. Write, 'phone or call for quotation.

Proprietor—P. F. Buckle—Dictation Room.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

1 "Eertel" 3.1 lens, 3 200-ft. film boxes (metal), back focussing, 2 speeds, film register, complete in leather case, with tripod, brand new, £30.

1 "Moy" Leiss Tessar 3.5 lens, 4 film boxes, view finder, "fade out," complete in leather case, with heavy tripod, £75.

Repairs to all Cameras and Projectors.

SALTER (Estd. 1896), 13, Featherstone Buildings, London, W.C.1.

KINE CAMERA EXPOSURE METER

7/8

With Instruction Booklet.

Indicates right lens opening for the light.

"Very reliable, could hardly get on without."

"Complete satisfaction, used for testing actinic value of flame arcs."

WATKINS METER Co
HEREFORD.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for Kinematograph Productions. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

PRODUCTIONS AND WHO IS WORKING ON THEM

J. Stuart Blackton.

ADDRESS: Bush House, Melbourne Place, W.C.2.

STUDIOS: Now using Stoll's at Cricklewood.

FILM: "The Glorious Adventure."

DIRECTOR: J. Stuart Blackton.

STUDIO MANAGER: Challis N. Sanderson.

STAR: Lady Diana Manners.

SCENARIST: Felix Orman.

CAMERAMAN (Black and white): Nicholas Mursuraca.

CAMERAMAN (Colour): W. T. Crespinel.

TYPE: Ten-reel drama.

STAGE: Seventh week.

Broadway Productions.

ADDRESS: West Nile Street, Glasgow.

STUDIO: The Broadway Rooms.

FILM: "2.—0" (Two—Nothing).

DIRECTOR: Victor W. Rowe.

STAR: Jock McPhail.

SCENARIST: Victor W. Rowe.

TYPE: Two Reel Scottish Domestic Comedy.

STAGE: Casting.

Famous Players-Lasky

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington. STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A. Bell, O.B.E.

FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."

DIRECTOR: Donald Crisp.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Claude H. Mitchell.

STAR: Donald Crisp.

SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.

STAGE: Seventh week.

Gaumont.

ADDRESS: Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush.

STUDIO MANAGER: B. H. Bromhead.

FILM: "Roses in the Dust."

DIRECTOR: Captain Calvert.

STARS: Iris Rowe, Gladys Mason.

CAMERAMAN: Basil W. G. Emmott.

SCENARIST: H. Morgan.

STAGE: Eighth week.

Hardy.

ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W.1.

STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isleworth.

FILM: "Bluff."

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.

STARS: Marjorie Hume, Lewis Willoughby.

SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.

CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.

STAGE: Fourth week.

Harma.

ADDRESS: Limes Grove, Croydon.

FILM: "Love in the Hills."

DIRECTOR: Bernard Dudley.

STARS: Marjorie Villis and James Knight.

CAMERAMAN: J. Mackenzie.

TYPE: Comedy drama.

STAGE: Sixth week.

I eal.

ADDRESS: Borcham Woods, Elstree

STUDIO MANAGER: A. Kendrick.

STAGE MANAGER: J. Barnard.

FILM: "Married Life."

DIRECTOR: Georges Treville.

CAMERAMAN: Geoffrey Barkas.

STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "Single Life."

DIRECTOR: Edwin J. Collins.

STAGE: First week.

FILM: "Pickwick Papers."

DIRECTOR: Thomas Bentley.

STAGE: Casting.

International Artists Films.

ADDRESS: 52, Shaftesbury Avenue.

STUDIO: B. & C. Studios, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

FILM: "The Night Hawk."

DIRECTOR: John Gliddon.

STARS: Malvina Longfellow, Henri de Vries.

SCENARIST: Gerard Ford Buckle.

CAMERAMAN: Will Howse.

STAGE: Sixth week.

Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate.

ADDRESS: Riverside Studios, Kew Bridge.

FILM: "The Adventures of Mr. Pusher Long."

DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme.

STAR: Dawn Meredith.

TYPE: Comedy.

STAGE: Nearing Completion.

Lambart Films.

ADDRESS: Carlton House, Regent Street.

STUDIOS: London Kinema Studio, Tuileries Street, Hackney Road.

FILM: "Romance and Reality."

DIRECTOR: Captain Harry Lambart.

STAR: Cora Goffin.

SCENARIST: Captain Harry Lambart.

CAMERAMAN: C. T. Crapper.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Seventh week.

Progress.

ADDRESS: Shoreham.

FILM: "Mayor of Casterbridge."

STAR: Fred Groves.

DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.

SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.

STAGE: Eighth week.

Regulus Films.

ADDRESS: 48, Carnaby Street, Regent Street, W.1.

SECRETARY: J. G. Dickson.

FILM: "Teddy Laughs Last."

DIRECTOR: Milton Elmore.

STARS: Teddy Hayes, Audrey Edwardes.

SCENARIST: James G. Dickson.

CAMERAMAN: E. Coble.

TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Screen Plays.

ADDRESS: Cranmer Court, Clapham S.W.

STUDIO MANAGER: Douglas Payne.

FILM: Grand Guignol series.

DIRECTORS: Fred Paul and Jack Raymond.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Rodwell.

TYPE: Short melodramas.

STAGE: Producing one a week.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Cricklewood.

STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman.

FILM: "A Romance of Westdale."

DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.

STAR: Milton Rosmer.

STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills."

DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.

STARS: Eille Norwood, Madge Stuart.

CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "The Eleventh Hour."

DIRECTOR: George Ridgwell.

STARS: Dennis Wyndham, Madge White.

CAMERAMAN: Al Moses.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "The Experiment."

DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.

STARS: Evelyn Brent, Clive Brook.

SCENARIST: William J. Elliott.

STAGE: Fourth week.

Zodiac.

FILM: "Walter in the Studio."

STAR: Walter Forde.

TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Arlidro, Hyde, London.

ALLIANCE FILM Co., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmopho, Ealux.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH Co., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow, E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD., Thornton House, Thorton Road, Clapham Park.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PHOTOPLAYS, Watcombe Hall, Torquay. 'Phone: Torquay 886—Calmsfilm, Torquay.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

GAUMONT Co., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolougue, 'Phone London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland., London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exclugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012. Studio: Candlemass Lane, Beaconsfield.

GLEN FILM PRODUCING Co., LTD., 20, Lisle Street, London, W.C., and "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

HARMA CLARENDON Co., 16, Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.

IDEAL FILM Co., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Idealfilms, Borehamwood.

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS FILM Co., LTD., 52, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

ISLE OF MAN FILM Co., The Manx Studios, Isle of Man.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Cricklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).

LAMBERT FILMS, Carlton House, Regent Street, London, W.

MASTER FILMS, West House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MINERVA FILM Co., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

PROGRESS FILM Co., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

REGULUS FILMS: 48, Carnaby Street, Regent Street, W.1.

SAMUELSON FILM Co., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton 2956.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpic, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1903—Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMPSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGNTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & Co., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.

WILSONIAN FILM PRODUCING Co., LTD. Secretary, W. J. Crook, 547, Wandsworth Road, S.W.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

The MOTION PICTURE

Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 13.

Saturday, Sept. 3, 1921. FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH MOTION
PICTURES

V I C T O R
M^C L A G L E N

Boxer, Swimmer, Horseman,
Fencer and Strong Man.

Leads in "The Call of the Road," "Corinthian Jack," "Prey of the Dragon." Now playing in J. Stuart Blackton's production: "The Glorious Adventure." Finishing September 20. Free for Offers. Address: National Sporting Club.

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."

219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.

Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.

'Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.

Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds," "The Knight Errant," "Haigh Serial," "Love Maggie."

4, Park Place, St. James, S.W. Regent 4060.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal). "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).

c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

Juvenile Leads: "Her Son," "Great Gay Road," "Lights of Home," "Land of My Fathers," Duane in "Belle of the Gambling Den" (Haigh Serial.)

OFFERS INVITED.

33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelm Foss Production). Latest Release, "With All Her Heart."

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, Regent 4329.

PHYLLIS SHANNAW,

Juv. Lead "Call of the Road," "The Right to Live," etc.

Will be shortly disengaged.

All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour St., W.1. 'Phone: Regent 4329.

JOHN EAST. Postie.

Hepworths. Tele: Hammermith 1138
14, Ifley Road, Hammersmith, W.6

ARTISTES

HAYFORD HOBBS.

Starring with African Film Productions. Late Juvenile Lead: London Films (three years), Windsor Films (two years), and all leading English Film Companies.

All comms.: Box 4514 Johannesburg, South Africa.

VICTOR McLAGLEN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES.

LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs. NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc.

Carlton House, Kew Green, Kew, Surrey.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

'Phone: Regent 4329

DICK WEBB

(Juvenile)

GAUMONT, MASTERS, FAMOUS PLAYERS

LASKY, BRITISH PRODUCERS.

180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc. HARDY FILM CO.

All coms.: c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1.

LIONELLE HOWARD.

This year's productions—"The Street of Adventure," "The Wonderful Year," "The Double Event," "Cherry Ripe," "No. 5, John Street." At liberty in two weeks.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

THIS SPACE TO LET

£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.
197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph. Batt. 1770 or 21.

CLIVE BROOK
INVITES OFFERS.
24, Hyde Park Square, W.2. Padd. 2868.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT,
Disengaged July 4. 'Phone: Walthamstow 938.

ARTISTES

ARTHUR CLEAVE,

15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.
'Phone: Hornsey 1784.

CHARLES CLIFFORD,

33, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.2.
'Phone: Regent 569.

CRISPIN HAY,

c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,

12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,

Character, Comedy.
114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

HARDING STEERMAN,

Characters of Distinction,
56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,

24, Cleveland Road,
Barnes, S.W.13.

MARJORIE VILLIS.

Exclusive to Harna Photoplays, Limes Rd., Croydon.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,

Character Parts.
57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

SCENARISTS

ELIOT STANNARD

Scenarios.

85, Holbein House, Sloan Square, S.W.1.

Tele.: Victoria 497.

COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,
:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.

7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11

('Phone: Park 2945).

GERARD FORT BUCKLE

Scenarios.

'Phone: Regent 4747.

41, Glasshouse Street, Regent Street, W.1.

THIS SPACE TO LET

£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,
Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
62, Foxburne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

SCENARISTS

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,
Kinedramatist,
Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

IRENE MILLAR,
Novelist, Journalist, Scenarist,
10, Arundel Gardens, W. 11, or Bramlins.

CYRIL E. MURRELL,
Scenarist—Comedy,
No. 1, Pine Road, Cricklewood, N.W. 2.

MURIEL ALLEYNE, Screen Playwright
Heworth, Barker, Universal, Pathé, Walturdaw, Clarendon M.L.B., etc., Windsor Ho., Amersham, Bucks.

HELEN & THOMAS BLIZZARD
Original Story and Continuity Writers
Address M.I. STUDIO.

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,
14a, Little Ealing Lane,
:: South Ealing ::
'Phone : Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,
Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
"The Face at the Window."
Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON
Producing for Stoll Picture Pro-
ductions, Ltd.
Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,
Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT
GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE
LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and
"CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."
Five years producer in America. At Liberty.
Address: 20, COLVILLE TERRACE, BAYSWATER,
W. 11.

S. L. GLENISTER
Professionally Major Comnenus-Palæologus.
PRODUCER, TECHNICAL & ART DIRECTOR.
"Under the Crescent," "Dumb Girl of Portici,"
"Campbells are Coming," "Where are My Children?"
etc., for UNIVERSAL. "The Arab," for LASKY.
"Less than Dust" for ART-CRAFT, etc., etc. Open
for Engagement. Address: 25, Randolph Crescent,
W. 9. 'Phone: Paddington 3819.

GRACE ROSE
Assistant Producer
THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.
Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,
Hoe St, Walthamstow, E. 17.

ADRIAN BRUNEL,
Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W. 9 ('Phone : 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK,
Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

ALBERT WARD,
Producer—Open to accept engagements.
3, Ranelagh Grove, S.W. 1.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

JOHN J. COX
44, Barrowgate Road,
:: Chiswick, W. 4. ::
'Phone : Chiswick 294.
Cameraman for Mr. Rene Plaissetty,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD
Cameraman—AT LIBERTY.
Latest work : "The Channings," "Hard
Cash," "Stella" and "Miss Charity."
MASTER BUTCHER PRODUCTIONS.
"PEMBROKE," CHEAM COMMON RD,
WORCESTER PARK.

EDWIN DAY
Motion Picture Photographer,
12, Archer Street, Picca-
dilly Circus, London, W. 1.
Telephone : Gerrard 780.
Telegrams : "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON
Thelton House, Cambolt
:: Road, Putney Hill. ::
Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN
"GAUMONT'S,"
105, King's Road,
Kingston-on-Thames.

FRANK CANHAM
Cameraman—ASTRA FILM CO.
Filming "No. 5, John Street."
Featuring Miss Zena Dare.
Permanent Address : Royal Forest
Hotel, Chingford, Essex.

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT
GAUMONT,
:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::
Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT
Expert Cameraman.
"The Better 'Ole," "Her Benny,"
etc., etc.
2b, Streatham Place, S.W. 2.
'Phone : Streatham 1969.

ALFRED H. MOSES
Photographing George Ridgwell Productions.
Formerly Chief Cameraman for Thanhauser,
Norma Talmadge, British & Colonial, etc.
Address care of STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS,
Cricklewood.

PHIL ROSS
Cameraman—AT LIBERTY.
Late of BROADWEST, HARMA, VANITY, etc.
19, Mayow Road, Forest Hill,
London, S.E. 23.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

WILLIAM SHENTON
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address :
17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,
Boreham Wood, Herts.

HORACE M. WHEDDON,
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address -
"LYNTON HOUSE,"
BOREHAM WOOD, HERTS.

JAMES E. ROGERS,
Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth.
"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"
"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"
"Last Rose of Summer,"
PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

PUBLICITY. . . .

F. J. STANDERWICK,
Photographer.
I am making a speciality of Catering for
Film Artists. 'Phone for appointment—
Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio
—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
W. 14.

FRANK J. WOOLF
Publicity Representative,
British and Colonial Kinematograph
Company, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
Telephone : Walthamstow 364.

EDWARD BAIRD,
Publicity.
172, Goldhurst Terrace, N.W. 6.

COSTUMIER

W. CLARKSON,
Costumier and Wigmaker,
41/43, Wardour Street, W. 'Phone : Gerr. 612.

THIS SPACE TO LET
17s. 6d. for 13 insertions

STUDIO MANAGER

JOHN A. GEEVES,
Studio Manager—
B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,
Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
Telephone : W'stow 364."

The Biggest Successes have BENJAMIN COSTUMES

PERSONAL SUPERVISION GUARANTEED
in every detail. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

Photo]

[Arbuthnot

MISS ANNETTE BENSON

ALL COMMS.:

Bramlins

Museum 4058.

241, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.C.2.

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 13

Getting the Focus

Telegram—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

Sept. 3, 1921

What the Future Holds.

THAT the British film industry has now reached a crucial stage in its existence is self-evident. And it is with no mystic sense of the prophetic that we state that the future of this industry is dependent, in a very real sense, on the actions of the present. The world (including America) is satiated with the typical American film. And it is the country that can provide the films that do not slavishly conform to the accepted American standard that will obtain the supremacy which is now the Americans'. It is quite conceivable that America itself will be again that supreme producing country; for the Americans are cute enough to know just when to stop giving the Public what it has had enough of. On the other hand, there is every reason to believe that it will be British productions that will dominate the screens of the world. And we, for our part, have full confidence that this will be the case. But it all depends on the present moment. We must readjust our sense of values. And in so doing the first thing that will be scrapped will be our inherent conservatism and our narrow localised patriotism; we must recognise that there are countries other than the British Isles. It is hopeless to attempt to capture the world-market with films that have an England-Only appeal. Such a limited appeal will get an equally limited measure of success. For this reason we are anxious to see British directors studying the preferences and prejudices of the Public of the various countries of the world. And in estimating these tastes they will be in a position to make films that will have an appeal that oversteps the frontiers of the British Isles.

New Zealand's Demands.

IT will be discovered that the reason that certain British productions have penetrated, successfully, foreign markets is that they did not have a circumscribed appeal. All the markets of the world are eagerly waiting for that class of film that will appeal to its Public. And if in the end the German or the French or the American films capture these markets it will only be because they have not been made with the vision rivetted, wholly and solely, on the country of origin. In our Overseas Dominions there is an articulate demand for British pictures. Only a few weeks ago the Film Renters Association of New Zealand conferred with the Minister of Internal affairs (W. Downie Stewart) on this matter. E. J. Righton, one of the renters said that the public response to the British made films had been disappointing to the pictures demanded. The deputation said that more British films are being shown there now than before the war and the upshot of the conference is that it is not unlikely that there will be a preferential tariff in favour of British films. This policy—if it comes to pass—is very generous; charitably generous in fact. But it does not adequately relieve the situation. It may have the every opposite effect.

* * *

Benefits of Competition.

TO give British films a bias in their favour may be putting a mild handicap on competitors, but it does not follow that this will be to the ultimate benefit of the British film. The reverse may be the case. For there is a positive rather than a negative aspect in competition. Opposition is a constructive force. It inevitably involves an ever-upward tendency in quality.

* *

Entertainment Values.

BRITISH producing concerns must face the fact that there is only one key to the door that opens up the markets of the world: intrinsic value in the goods offered. And as the goods in question are films, the key to the situation is their real entertainment value. No amount of preferential tariffs will ensure for the dull uninteresting picture a rich reward. Even a picturesque film may be destitute of real entertainment value. Directors and producing firms hold the future of the British industry in their hands. If they will make photoplays instead of films—pictures that are entertainments instead of being five thousand feet of celluloid—then nothing can prevent the abdication of the American film in favour of the British.

* * *

Defeat is Inexcusable.

IF we allow some other country to obtain this supremacy no one will be able, with any degree of honesty, to provide excuses that will hold water. We have the brains in this country.

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"The Street of Adventure" (Astra) is a screen setting by Kenelm Foss of Philip Gibbs' well-known novel of Fleet Street life. Its chief appeal will be to Londoners, for, with two small exceptions, the whole of the incidents take place in and about newspaperland. The old "Cheshire Cheese" with the flash back to Dr. Johnson's day is a happy idea, but only one of the touches employed to get the atmosphere. Lionelle Howard as Frank Luttrell is best in his cub stage, but throughout conveys the suggestion of sentiment and even ingenuousness which are characteristic of the young reporter in the book, although conspicuously lacking in most pressmen's real life. Irene Rooke and Margot Drake give fine portrayals of the parts of two women journalists, and exhibitor. It was stated that 83 per cent. of the films shown in France and 93 per cent. of those shown in England were of American manufacture. About 50 per cent. of the British output was reaching New Zealand but that did not represent 50 per cent. of the films shown in these islands.

H. V. Tollemache is very successful as the poseur, Codrington. A most interesting screen debutante is Peggy Bayfield, who has a really powerful part, and one regrets not to see fuller use made of her dramatic power and of the highly-charged atmosphere when she is found in the hero's chambers. Frank Canham's photography is satisfactory without being striking. Those members of the public who have a vivid recollection of the novel will probably disapprove of the way in which the end is twisted to afford a conventional happy ending. The original tells very feelingly of the vain struggle to secure that financial backing which would keep the paper going, but Foss, in the interests of what he considers the average kinema-goer's taste, has changed all that.

* * *

A Preferential Tariff?

THESE film renters said that they were willing to take British films if they were suitable, but "there was not a sufficient supply of suitable films to meet the demand." That is an important statement in view of the fact that only one or two of the New Zealand renters are American agencies while the great majority are open traders and that these had repeatedly made representations to British manufacturers as to the kind of

PROOF POSITIVE

The enviable reputation for excellence.
The innumerable unsolicited testimonials.
The technical experts comprising our personnel.

PROVE POSITIF LTD.

The Safest Proposition for you.

Send your exposed Film to POSITIF Ltd., and by so doing you will be assured of a Perfect Negative.

Let POSITIF Ltd. print your Show Copy

It will be the most brilliant you have seen.

POSITIF LTD.

TOTTENHAM CHAMBERS,

4, Oxford Street,
LONDON, W.1.

Telephone :
MUSEUM 4752.

Telegrams :
"POSIFILCO, OX, LONDON,"

Laboratories and Works :
99, CHARLOTTE STREET,
LONDON. W.1.

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

Who'd be a director these days?

And who'd be the Clerk of the Weather? This legendary gentleman has a thankless task so far as the Stoll directors are concerned. There's Sinclair Hill praying for heavy rain after dark for one of his scenes and Martin Thornton waiting patiently (or impatiently) at the foot of Snowdon for the rain to give over so that he can get his exteriors. As Pearkes Withers would say, Snowdon is now being rained on.

* * *

Sunlight arcs were used on the moors near Oxshott for the filming of "Frailty" to suggest moonlight. After working for some hours in these bright rays, the artistes all suffered from night blindness when the lights were switched off. They floundered about the moors on the way back to the stations, and tripped over shrubs and stepped into ditches with painful consistency. Those who work continually in the powerful rays of Sunlight arcs become quite sunburnt. I wonder what is the opinion of the artistes as to the physical effect of studio lighting?

* * *

Mercy Hatton is contemplating a merry holiday on the Continent in a few weeks' time. At the moment, however, she is busy stitching away at her flat in Cricklewood, making many little garments for the starving kiddies in Russia. Whenever there is any trouble at hand, or any charity which requires assistance, Mercy is always one of the first to volunteer her services. She has been very busy film-making all this year, and the autumn will very probably see her rehearsing for a new theatrical production. Incidentally, I think, she has been aptly christened.

* * *

Than making pictures in a popular seaside resort at the height of the summer season I can think of no more difficult job on earth. At almost every turn holiday-makers, with nothing particular to do, and plenty of time in which to do it, are encountered in battalions, and anything doing in the way of free entertainment furnishes an enormous "draw." Einar J. Bruun, who is directing "The Corner Man" for Harma at Torquay, has made this discovery at the cost of several feet of film. Desiring to "shoot" scenes on the sands, crowds of visitors, in various stages of dress and undress, persisted in "coming in," with the result that several unrehearsed incidents got into the film. But Mr. Bruun smartly out-manoeuvred the crowd on the second day. Rigging up a "dummy" camera, he sent one of his company to take imaginary "shots" of two of his artistes and a numberless host of would-be screen "stars" at one spot on the beach, while a few hundred yards away A. G. Frenguelli was simultaneously and unhampered getting on with the real stuff!

* * *

In Loew's Weekly (an American theatrical paper) I read that "The efforts which foreign directors, and particularly the English, have made to equal America in the quality of picture productions have been handicapped considerably by one thing—the lack of stars. They have plenty of good actors and actresses,

OUR LETTER LIST.

Letters await the following at the offices of this journal. A stamped addressed envelope should be sent with applications. No charge is made for the use of this service.

Helen Blizzard,	Lillian Braithwaite,
Jack Daring,	Langhorne Burton,
Christine Silver,	Teddy Hayes,
Daisy Burrell,	Victor McLaglen,

ON THE FLOOR

With PERCY NASH

Percy Nash at work is certainly an interesting sight. Standing well in the background, he quietly gives his instructions as the characters walk hither and thither in front of the camera.

He is not exactly a hustler, but is more inclined to go in for quality rather than quantity. Before each shot is taken he walks on to the floor and gives each one of the artistes his instructions and takes great pains to drive the idea of the thing home to him.

He never seems to tire, he works away, and by the end of the day he seems as fresh as at the beginning.

Percy Nash does not believe in bullying his artistes, he thinks that directors who work by shouting at the leading lady only get bad acting and bad pictures.

His favourite picture he produced in Rome a few months ago. He is now back in England directing "The Betrayal" of Lord Kitchener.

who play their parts unusually well on the screen, but this isn't enough alone to make a star in the accepted sense of the word. With the single exception of Pola Negri, Europe has been unable to produce one player who the public will pay to see, either there or here, while American stars are all the rage in every country in the world where pictures are shown. England's problem is a big one. There Norma Talmadge, Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin draw as they do here. No English star attracts a shilling to the box-office."

* * *

Now I want this to go back to America as my cool and calculated opinion: that the writer of the above has lost grip of himself and his pen. Or else someone has been pulling his pedal extremities. I can assure him that we possess in this country native stars who are (in exhibitorial lingo) good box-office attractions. There are exhibitors here who make it a policy to screen British pictures to the exclusion of American, and they are not losing one penny. If America is unwise enough to live in the fool's paradise created by writers like the above it is welcome so to do. The awakening is inevitable.

* * *

I do not think that the filming of real street scenes at night is a worn-out development in British film production, although one or two companies have filmed real interior night scenes in hotels and, on one occasion, even on a tube railway platform. The experiment of Hardy in obtaining these scenes at Kilburn and the Cadogan Hotel, Chelsea, is therefore interesting me considerably. Should it be successful, its promoters are confident that they will have secured some of the most remarkable lighting effects ever seen upon the screen.

* * *

Now that natural colour-photography is within the realm of practical politics, I can see possible disadvantages. For instance, suppose and artiste, while in the middle of a scene, hears or sees something in the studio (not an unheard-of occurrence) that causes her to blush, will that ultra-truthful camera register the signs of her confusion? "MEGAPHONE."

Where they are and —————

Nick Dean is in the cast of "The Night Hawk" (International Artists).

Mary Odette is now working on her part in "No. 5, John Street" (Thompson).

John Gliddon (International Artists) is back in London with his "Night Hawk" Company.

Dawn Meredith has been engaged for the part of Lady Gloria in "M' Lord of the White Road" (Kenneth Graeme).

Milton Elmore has left the staff of Regulus Films, for which he has been directing the production of "Teddy Laughs Last."

Kenneth Friese-Greene, son of the late pioneer in cinematography, is now on the free list, and open to fill vacancy as cameraman.

Marion Ferris, who starred in "The Right Element" and "Bonnie Mary," was married to G. H. Turner on Saturday, August 20.

Kenneth Graeme has completed "The Adventures of Mr. Pusher Long," and is making preparation for the production of "M' Lord of the White Road."

Ivor Novello has returned to the stage, his name being associated with two new musical shows, which will be produced at the Adelphi and the Prince of Wales's in October.

Margot Drake is adding to her laurels by her work as Simonetta, the leading part in "Carnival," in Matheson Lang's first touring company. Her latest screen appearance is in "The Street of Adventure."

Queenie Thomas is to star in a group of films to be directed by Bertram Phillips, for British and Oriental Films.

Barbara Everest is now resting after her work in an important part in "The Bigamist" (George Clark).

Sir Harry Lauder may soon be seen at work in a studio.

Martin Thornton's next Stoll production is "The Lamp in the Desert."

Hugh Croise is to direct the production of "Four Men in a Van," for Direct and not for Titan.

Tony Fraser has been engaged by Stoll to figure as a Waziri spy in "The Lamp in the Desert."

Germain G. Burger is cranking on "Bluff" for Hardy, on the board of directors of which he has a seat.

George Ridgewell has now finished "The Eleventh Hour" for Stoll, and is about to start work on "The Lost Leader."

Constance Collier is on holiday at Banff, where the Committee of the Banffshire Horticultural Society persuaded her to open its annual show.

Gerald McCarthy has returned to London from Holland, where he has completed his part of Cornelius Van Baerle in "The Black Tulip" (Granger-Binger).

Hilda Bayley is now appearing in the leading part in "Out to Win" at the Shaftesbury Theatre. As soon as that contract expires she may return to the screen.

Robert English has been engaged by Stoll to play the name-part in "The Lost Leader." His last part was that of Sir Theodore Cannynge in "The Truthful Vine."

LETTERING SPECIALIST

is open to undertake one or two commissions for special film work
G. T. SHEARMAN, Bentinck Road, Nottingham.

Phillip Simmons is in "The Experiment" (Stoll).

Valia Venitskaya is playing the heroine part in Stoll's "A Romance of Westdale."

Dennis Wyndham plays Jeff Ironside in "The Experiment" (Stoll).

George Roberts is under contract with Union Films Liverpool) as scenario editor.

C. H. Croker King is playing the part of Phil in Stoll's "The Experiment."

Beatrice Chester is in the cast of "The Experiment" (Stoll).

Paul Burger is chief cameraman and photographic manager at Stoll's Cricklewood studios.

Elizabeth Brandt, who is travelling in Sweden as the representative of International Artists, has undergone a successful operation on her right eye.

IMPROVING— IN THE by ARTHUR

It is now recognised as an axiom by intelligent employers in all classes of business that the better the treatment of the employee, the better the result in the quantity and quality of the work performed.

I would assert further that this principle applies with much greater force than usual to those who are engaged in any form of creative work, as distinguished from mechanical routine. My own experience, which, I think, tallies with that of most of my colleagues who act for the screen, is that, other things being equal, I work twice as well in those studios where a comfortable and friendly business spirit prevails, as contrasted with an atmosphere of aloofness, distrust, and muddle.

The best firms recognise that courtesy and decency are also good business. After all, actors are human beings exploited largely for their personalities, which should therefore be given every chance. I am glad to say that most of the leading studios in this country are now conducted under conditions vastly superior to those of ten or even five years ago. I can assure those responsible that we who remember the early days very much appreciate the many improvements.

There is often room for a little more consideration, however, and perhaps some standardisation. For instance, the actors' meal-hour is not easy to regulate; yet in one important studio everybody ceases work at a fixed lunch-time; and this is not a dark studio either, where this is easier to arrange. Cannot this lead be followed? How infinitely preferable to the haphazard hanging about,

what they are doing

A. J. Hitchcock designs the art titles for the F. P. Lasky Studios, Islington.

Al Moses is cranking for George Ridgewell in the Stoll production, "The Eleventh Hour."

Benedict James is responsible for the scenario (original) of Granger-Binger's "Bluff."

Lennox Pawle and Gerrald Lawrence, who are appearing in Stuart Blackton's picture, were booked by Norris and Clayton.

Henderson Bland, who has just returned from Wales, where he has been taking a leading part in "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills" (Stoll), will shortly be seen on the "legitimate" stage, and in his own play, entitled "When Friends Fall Out," which was successfully produced at Brighton last June. In addition to his many film successes, he is well-known as a poet of no mean order, and has further added to his laurels as actor, poet and playwright.

CONDITIONS STUDIOS WALCOTT and the hastily snatched indifferent meal which too often is the rule!

Dressing-room accommodation, ventilation and heating in some of the lesser studios still leave much to be desired. Another legitimate complaint is keeping artistes waiting for their money long after they have finished. I know of managers and others who positively find a joy in keeping actors waiting hours unnecessarily.

"Calls" which are made as the result of an assistant's carelessness and then cancelled are indefensible; they often mean the loss of a real day's work in return for expenses.

There is one little innovation I should like to see adopted by certain directors which would cost absolutely nothing, yet would be valued by many of us more than more tangible improvements. I mean an occasional word of thanks or approval to the actor. This means so much more than anybody but the actor realises. Even criticism is better than silence and obliviousness. There is so much in studio life which is unavoidably dreary and monotonous, that a little word now and again is the best safeguard against apathy and discontent.

And now let me say candidly that the worst enemy of improved conditions is a certain type of artiste. He turns up late consistently because he is not always wanted on the floor at once; he leaves nothing as he finds it; he monopolises lunch-tables at the expense of those who are wanted immediately after lunch; and, generally, by abusing his privileges, makes the whole profession suffer for his shortcomings. The actor must realise that he, as well as the director, has his responsibilities.

Cecil Hepworth has plans in hand for the production of two new films at the Walton on Thames studio.

Lewis Dayton and Forrester Harvey have recently been engaged by Bramlins to play for the Progress Films, and are at present on location in Scotland.

Clare Greet has been booked by Bramlins to play a leading part for Famous Players-Lasky, under the direction of George Fitzmaurice, in "Three Live Ghosts."

Captain Harry Lambart, of Lambart Films, has just returned from Paris with his company, having successfully pulled off some stirring episodes in his production "Romance and Reality," which takes place in the streets of Paris.

Victor W. Rowe is in Glasgow arranging to produce several two-reel Scotch domestic comedies from the pen of Chas. H. Milligan, the well-known Scotch author. Victor Rowe, who has been born and bred to this class of work, having commenced at the old Gaiety Theatre under the late John Hollingshead, served under the late D'Oyley Carte, Sir Augustus Harris and Charles Morton at the Palace Theatre. Leaving the Palace he entered the kinema industry, and, besides owning several dramatic theatres, he produced some very successful films for Walturdaw. His production of "The British Bulldog Saving the Colours" broke all records for the number of copies sold during the open market period. His first production in Glasgow is entitled "2-0," or "Football Daft," a Scotch domestic comedy, and it is Mr. Rowe's intention whilst in Scotland to produce two-reel comedies dealing with the domestic life of that country.

Camera Bargains—Largest selection of professional and topical instruments in London, all makers—English, American and Continental. Write stating exact requirements special quotations post free, or call and inspect our stock, Cash or Easy Payment Terms. Apparatus accepted in exchange, Strict, approval terms willingly.

THE KINEMATOGRAPH EXCHANGE,
81 Aldersgate Street, E.C.1.

Ida Lambert is in "The Corner Man."

Albert Ward, the director, is on the free list.

Maudie Dunham is the star in "Bluff" (Granger-Binger).

Sydney Folker is working for Harna in "The Corner Man."

Hugh E. Wright is starring for Harna in "The Corner Man."

A. G. Frenguelli is cranking for Harna on "The Corner Man."

Percy Standing has been playing the part of the father to Maudie Dunham in Granger-Binger's "Bluff."

Bernard Dudley has finished the direction of Harna's "Love in the Hills," which he is now editing.

Eric Barclay has been provided with an important part in "The Corner Man" (Harna), which Einar Bruun is directing.

Duncan McRae, the director of Alliance and Ideal fame, is now on the free list. He can be communicated with c.o. this office.

Henry Victor has returned to London from Haarlem, where he has been working for Granger-Binger as juvenile lead in "Bluff."

Captain Calvert is finishing "Roses in the Dust" (Gaumont), and is proceeding to cut and assemble the negative ready for the trade show on September 22.

Henry Vibar, having finished in the production of "Mr. Justice Raffles," for Cecil Hepworth, has been engaged by Henry Edwards for a leading part in his next picture.

Thomas Bentley is now at work at the Ideal Studios on the preparations of filming "Pickwick Papers."

FIGHTING IN FILMS

by REX DAVIS

"Will you give us your views on Fight Films?" With pleasure I will; but it gives me furiously to think that I should be paid the compliment of being asked—when one realises that every fighting fellow in the fistic firmament has featured in fight films—forgive the alliteration—from the man-destroying Dempsey, and Carpentier, right the way down to Wilde, the wee Welsh Wizard; and as the Americans would say, and then some. I can only conclude you want the views of an actor that fights—as distinct from a fighter who acts.

REX DAVIS.

I well recollect, of course, before the heavy-weight battle of all nations, taking a little boxing scenario, and going with my boxing partner to try and get rid of it—the management that ultimately took it said it didn't think the public would ever care for a boxing match on the screen.

The first real fight film of importance in which I was associated was "The House of Temperley," and looking back it is with pride one remembers the team work in this film—the co-operation of all concerned, and I have often thought of the kind help I received from Charlie Mitchell, the last of the knuckle fighters, and his anxiety to keep me correct in old knuckle-fighting data—poor Dick Burge, too, was so helpful, and encouraging. Alas! both these grand old battlers have answered the last call of "Time."

After "The House of Temperley," the boxing film vogue began. From the four corners of the earth they came—and "the cry is still they come." About that time I remember Freddie Welsh showing me, with great surprise and glee, a wad of bank notes he had received for his picture rights of a fight.

I believe Bombardier Wells was the first mitt artist to become film artist, and one could well believe, if he had had screen experience, with his highly-strung temperament he would have developed into an excellent "artiste." Screen experience in these days when the "type" is asked for! Perhaps experience may be a superfluous commodity. It makes one think of the housemaid who having given dis-satisfaction, her mistress returned the compliment by giving her notice, and in expediting her departure said, "You will find it hard to get employment without a reference," to which the housemaid retorted, "Garn! if all else fails, I'll go on the pictures."

I would always disagree with the director in producing a fight who would say "go right in and mix it—make a fight of it and we'll shoot." That, to my way of thinking, results in a maximum of danger with a minimum of effect. It can only halve the result—and double the risk. I feel sure every screen fight should have all the appearance of unpremeditation, but at the same time the assurance of complete and mutual understanding must be there.

It goes without saying, in all screen fights the result is a foregone conclusion—therefore it resolves itself into a matter of how—and when. So the intelligent anticipation of the public must be gradually tuned up till the big moment of the fight is subtly telegraphed to them—and these see with eye-lashes, so to speak, the advent of the real punch that makes the fake fight so much more real looking than the real fight.

I know this sounds paradoxical; but in seeing a film of a real fight, one realises this. Suddenly one notices one of the boxers sag at the knees, or suddenly go down, without one knowing why—or seeing where, when and how he was hit. That's where I humbly submit the actor that boxes should score—the consideration of the place—and position—the angle—the relation to the situation above all the eye to the dramatic effect—that is what I think go to the successful working capital of a screen scrap; for I speak as one having authority when I say the hardest punches are those that are never noticed or are cut out altogether!

Sir Conan Doyle once said to me in speaking of boxing, "It's a man's game and takes a game man to play it." Perhaps our friends of the fancy will allow those engaged in fake fighting films to take a little of that flattering unction to their souls; for be it a ring-fight, or an all in rough house scrap to those that say: "Oh! there's nothing to it—all fake." I would answer very feelingly, "He jests at scars that never felt a wound."

TO KINEMA ARTISTES

This journal has been launched solely in the interests of all who are concerned in the production of British films. Its success hitherto is due to the support accorded by certain sections of studio workers, but to develop the plans we have in mind for it we must secure the support of every film artiste. Become a regular subscriber—five shillings is the cost of a quarter's subscription.

SUBTLETIES
AND SLEDGEHAMMERS

Last week a super turned up at the F.P. Lasky Studios with a certificate from her doctor "that I can't act." But why trouble the doctor so unnecessarily?

What the film industry wants in the Press are critics who have not sworn to reduce the temperature of enthusiasm to zero.

We are told by a leading exhibitor that "the Americans are bent on capturing the British film market." Then we must catch 'em bending, that's all.

Is it better to beat the other fellow's record or to beat your own?

"Ladies, as film pupils, are very apt, to say the least," says a "fan" paper. We have always found them apt to say the most.

Remember, the Israelites would never have reached the Promised Land if, when they crossed the Red Sea, they had stopped to fish.

"After this slump the British film industry will have a great difficulty in settling down," remarks a trade paper. And a greater difficulty in settling up.

It is better to listen and to learn than to talk and get tangled.

"At the conclusion of the showing of a German picture in America," says a daily paper, "there were mingled cheers and boos." It is not only German pictures that have an association of ideas with booze.

It is the old hen that lays the egg—but the cock does the crowing.

Now that the Lord Chancellor has forbidden a theatrical manager to christen his play "Mecca," we fear to refer to 85, Long Acre as the Mecca of the Film Trade. (But it is. —ED.)

Laugh, and the world laughs with you.
Grouse, and the world laughs at you.

Wonders will never cease. Up to the time of going to press Mr. Justice Darling has not asked: "And who is this Florence Turner?"

The true friend to the British director is frank—flattery is acceptable to fools.

In the Musical Mail a writer is asking when some British film star will compose a song. Well, to be brutally candid, no one has got much to make a song about.

A certain film actor who used to boast that his little wife was "a sweet, pensive girl" is now living apart from her. Did the pensive girl become expensive?

One of our "penny popular periodicals" says that "film actors are romantic and usually marry at first sight." Some of the actors' wives we know suggest that if their husbands had looked twice they'd be single yet.

One British film producing company announces that its chief director is to make a film "with six stars." Directors, other than "chiefs" are content with Three Star.

"Marriage is a lottery," remarked a he-star to us the other day. And we notice that he's sharing his ticket with one or two leading ladies.

PLEASURE AND BUSINESS

The path of the screen actor is not always laid in pleasant places, but those members of the International Artists' Company who were down in Torquay filming the "The Night Hawk" have little to complain of.

Last year, Alan Butler, Governing Director of the Company, acquired the Admiralty motor launch No. 209, a trim vessel of 48 tons, 440 h.p. and capable of 15 knots. Picking her up at Southampton en route for Torquay, Mr. Butler brought her into the harbour there, after four days' rough weather in the Channel, and placed her at the disposal of the company as an extra means of transport. The other Sunday he invited them to join him on a picnic run to sunny Salcombe.

On board were Mr. Butler, Walter d'Eyncourt, John Gliddon (director of productions), Malvina Longfellow, Mary Brough, Nadja Ostrovska, Sydney Seaward, Francis Innys, Edward Sorley, Frank Gray, Alec Hunter, N. Dean, Fred Cremlin, and Will Howse, Camera-man.

A large crowd, armed with cameras, on the jetty watched the Sylvia leave the outer harbour. An overcast sky and a choppy sea were not in the scheme of things, but they made—at first—no difference to the high spirits of the guests.

After passing Start Point, the wind freshened, and the Sylvia opened out to 15 knots. Dropping anchor in Salcombe, the company settled down to lunch, provided with that kindly forethought which Mr. Butler has shown to the artistes at all times.

A swimming match was the next important incident. There were six competitors, and they set out the fifty yards to a neighbouring yacht, round it, and back to the launch, in capital style. Mr. Butler, who is a strong swimmer, was an easy winner, with Will Howse second.

Frank Gray, who probably because of his imposing height, weight and girth (he is stated to be the tallest man on the British screen) was entrusted with many duties on board, thanked Mr. Butler on behalf of the company for his kindness, in an aptly-phrased little speech.

The Sylvia, by the way, has recently been painted black—she was previously white—in readiness for her part as the police-boat which, in Eden Philpotts' story "The Haven," the book of the picture, detects "The Night Hawk" fishing in prohibited waters. Her powerful searchlight will be used in this incident. In spite of the fickle weather, much progress has been made, and John Gliddon appears to be satisfied with the taking so far. The company's mobile lighting equipment is a new wonder for the countryside.

LINES OF PROGRESS

by BARON HARTLEY

It is a generally recognised fact that the film industry is still quite young and that vast developments await us. One can adumbrate some of the lines on which we may progress; for instance, the oft mooted educational film is yet to be put on a firm basis.

I think we are waiting for a safe film base before it becomes a proposition in which the capitalist would interest himself. Then we can imagine every school throughout the country with its projector in the classroom, each publisher of text books issuing films applicable to them, films made on similar lines to those produced by the Army Kinematograph Training Branch, when I had charge of this department, straight photography combined with explanatory animated diagrams.

Geography, nature study and history immediately suggest themselves as amenable to film treatment, mechanics, chemistry and even mathematics could be dealt with with a little ingenuity. Of course educational films have been produced, but what is bound to come is a great and definitely organised service, a sine qua non of which is proper projection equipment in every school, so that the demand will justify the capital expenditure on the film library.

Another development which the trade is witnessing now with somewhat mixed opinions is the advertising film. Some of these are of a spoof nature; that is to say, the story does not let-on until the end that it is an advertisement. I would prefer to let people know that the film is an advertisement straight away, because they may resent being "had."

As a medium for publicity, the film must be acknowledged as paramount. There can be no getting away from it, and this is one of the arguments against it put forward by its enemies, together with the stock phrase that "People pay to see the pictures and not advertisements." Cannot the same thing be said about the Press? And so far as I am aware, no exception is taken to advertisements in the papers; indeed, the advertisement pages contain a very great deal of interest and profitable study.

Akin to the advertising film is the salesman's film, which he carries round to his prospect's office in a portable projector to give a demonstration of goods which are of too bulky a nature to carry in a sample bag, or to tell the story of how his goods are manufactured.

All eyes in the Kinematograph world have been focussed on the amusement side of the trade. Occasionally a few glances have strayed to other sides, but only casually comparatively.

For the sake of the men and women to be, for the sake of vast crowds of industrial workers looking for the coming return of the old prosperity of the country, let us see that the film is used to its fullest extent in schools and in business, not at some time in the dim future, but now.

It is not in my province to discuss technical possibilities, such as colour and the combination of sound and picture. This is for such experts as Colin Bennett, who writes on such subjects so ably week by week in the Kinematograph Weekly. I am convinced that they will come eventually. Stereoscopic kinematography is, of course, out of the question without special apparatus for each member of the audience to separate right and left eye images.

BARON HARTLEY.

DEATH OF P. COOPER HEWITT.

We regret to announce the death in Paris, on August 25, of Peter Cooper Hewitt, the son of A. S. Hewitt, a former Mayor of New York and Member of Congress, and grandson of Peter Cooper, a well-known philanthropist, who founded the "Cooper Union," the scene of many historic meetings in New York.

Peter Cooper Hewitt inherited a very large fortune from both his parents, but in spite of the many advantages which his wealth gave him in the social set of which he was a distinguished member, he devoted himself to scientific research, in which field he achieved an international reputation.

Although he is perhaps best known in Europe in connection with the development of the application of Mercury Vapour apparatus, viz., the Cooper Hewitt Lamp and the Mercury Arc Rectifier for the conversion of alternating to direct current and for the manufacture and sale of which he founded in collaboration with George Westinghouse the Cooper Hewitt Electric Company of New York and the Hewitt Electric Company of London yet he was a contributor to scientific discovery in a diversity of fields, from wireless telegraphy and telephoning to a special process for the electrical welding of steel.

In 1903 the degree of Honorary Doctor of Science was conferred on him by Columbia University.

Mr. Cooper died at the American Hospital at Neuilly, Paris, from pneumonia, following an operation for intestinal trouble.

AUTHOR AND DIRECTOR

"The director told me his idea of the relationship between author and director. So far as I can remember his words, he said: 'Your work stops at the studio door. When you have handed in the script of your scenario you have done all that is required of you.'"—

E. TEMPLE THURSTON.

Wilfred Noy (Director).

Provided the author knows the technique of making a picture, I should welcome his co-operation from its inception until the last scene is shot. On the other hand, if he does not, it may be better to say good-bye to him after the scenario has been thoroughly agreed between you and proceed alone with the actual making.

It is quite likely that he will not follow your ideas, or understand your methods, and will hamper you with impossible suggestions, also queries, which take time to explain, act as an irritant and check the flow of ideas. In short, I think that the author is more often than not better advised to leave the producing entirely to the director, unless he has himself as good a knowledge of his medium.

Gerald de Beaurepaire (Scenarist).

I heartily agree with all that E. Temple Thurston said about the relationship between author and director. The director is quite right, if when the author has carefully gone over the scenario with him, he (the director) intends to follow the continuity faithfully. If the director does not intend to follow the scenario faithfully, he has no right to pass it for production. If he thinks he can do better than the author, then it is up to the director to prepare his own script.

If a director, having at first accepted a scenario, finds in the course of production that an improvement might be effected somewhere, then let him consult the author about it, and act upon the final opinion of the author, whether negative or affirmative, for the author knows the story better.

It all depends upon whether the director thoroughly understands his script, and as it is very likely that, in the course of production, he may find himself at sea, he will do well to keep in close touch with the author and act unfailingly on the author's opinion as far as the story is concerned. A director should understand how to set and how to light his sets, etc. Let the director fully comprehend that the author is responsible for the story, and the director must follow the author.

I think that most of our really successful directors are following this plan; and since it is a curious fact that, however well a scenario may read and produce, it may fail, and however unsatisfactorily it may sometimes read, and even seem to produce, yet it may succeed in the eyes of the public, who are the final judges, the soundest plan is to find the best author or continuity expert possible and pay him a decent fee!

NEXT WEEK: JUSTIN HUNTLY MCCARTHY

New Series.

MY PROUDEST PRODUCTION

No. I.—By Denison Clift.

The picture of which I am the most proud I have not made yet.

(And probably never will.)

Its title will probably be "Love and Millions."

(Exhibitors tell me that love and millions are all their audiences care about.)

There will be any number of "great" scenes. By "great" scenes I do not mean those moments of spiritual struggle between two souls at grips, but "great" scenes—scenes with thousands upon thousands of extra people running around loose, tremendous cabaret scenes, mobs, burning buildings, automobiles dashing off dizzy cliffs, cowboys shooting up a town, red revolution surging through thronged streets.

(Such things, I am told, "make pictures.")

And there must be gowns on beautiful women—costly, bewitching Paris creations.

(The feminine element, I am told, care only to feast its eyes upon Lucille and Paquin.)

And of wickedness there must be full measure: naughtiness and sex and mirrored bedrooms.

(The rustics of the countryside are crazy to see what goes on in the big cities.)

And when this picture is finished it will bring me a fortune. It cannot miss.

(Every exhibitor is ready to book it for a run.)

No. II.—by PERCY NASH.

FULLY EQUIPPED STUDIO TO LET OWN LIGHTING PLANT. LARGE STOCK OF SCENERY.

The Studio can be Hired for long or short periods, with or without the following Accessories:

CAMERAS—2 Debie, 1 Moy, 1 Pathe.

PRINTING—2 Williamson Printers.

PERFORATING—3 Moy Perforators.

PROJECTION THEATRE and Full Size Machine.

DARK ROOMS, DRYING ROOM, CUTTING ROOM,

CARPENTER'S SHOP, etc., all fully equipped.

For Terms and Appointment to View, apply

THE MANAGER,

BRITISH ACTORS' FILM COMPANY,

MELBOURNE ROAD, BUSHEY, HERTS.

JUST PUBLISHED.

The PICTUREGOER PORTFOLIO of KINEMA CELEBRITIES

Contains the following:

SIXTEEN MAGNIFICENT PHOTOGRAVURE
PORTRAITS, Size, 10in. x 6½in.

MARY PICKFORD.	PEARL WHITE.
NORMA TALMADGE.	LILIAN GISH.
CHARLES CHAPLIN.	RICHARD BARTHELMESS.
DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS.	WILLIAM FARNUM.
NAZIMOVA.	PAULINE FREDERICK.
MARY MILES MINTER.	CONSTANCE TALMADGE.
WILLIAM S. HART.	THOMAS MEIGHAN.
RALPH GRAVES.	JACKIE COOGAN.

All worth Framing. Price

ONE SHILLING

(Post free 1/2)

On Sale everywhere or direct from

PICTURES LTD.

88, Long Acre, London, W.C.2.

EVERY FILM LOVER MUST HAVE A COPY.

W. VINTEN

Cameras—Tripods—Printers—
Measurers—Developing Plant.

Urbanora House,
89, Wardour St. W.1
Telephone: Regent 2702.

Repairs to all Apparatus.
Fade-out fitted to any Camera.

ON OUR BLACK LIST

There are numerous instances that come under our notice that do not redound to the credit of the film industry. These we make a note of for our own personal information. We assure our readers that we are keeping our eye on the folk whose identity is carefully hidden in the following paragraphs.

The studio manager who intends to introduce a system of half-pay for artistes who are "called" but who do not go on the floor.

* * *

A certain "producing company" that is really a fee-snatching agency for screen-struck fools.

* * *

Two casting directors who are acting as agents' agents.

* * *

A certain scenario editor who "steals the thunder" from MSS. submitted by scenarists and uses it for his own scenarios.

* * *

The director who accepted a large sum of money from a gentleman to whom he gave a big part in his production.

* * *

The director who is splitting commission on artistes' salaries with a certain agent.

* * *

A casting director who penalises girl artistes if they refuse to fall in with suggestions and are not strictly in the continuity.

* * *

An artiste who is dishonouring his contract with a certain director.

* * *

Three directors who are meditating the establishment of a bogus school of kinema actors.

* * *

A bunch of bogus schools which we propose to expose in a subsequent issue.

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES XI.—VICTOR McLAGLEN

Eighteen years ago the subject of our front cover photograph fought his first fight, and since then he has fought his way through life, into the film world and to the pinnacle of success. All his life Victor McLaglen has been an athlete; he has made a keen study of the science of physical culture.

Victor is not an actor-boxer, but a boxer-actor. His study of the art of fisticuffs plus his histrionic abilities, he claims, have secured for him his success on the films and will continue to do so in the future.

He was the first to fight Jack Johnson after that boxer had won the world's championship from Tommy Burns. He also ran a school of physical culture in Washington for some years, giving instruction in boxing, wrestling and fencing (for the last named he holds several medals).

In the very earliest days of the war he joined up. He was in South Africa at the time, so he travelled back to this country and enlisted in 4/10 Middlesex, and was soon appointed Assistant Provost Marshal. It was as A.P.M. that he organised boxing tournaments in Bagdad.

It is interesting to note that he is one of eight brothers, all of whom served in the Army, seven of whom held commissions and none of whom is under 6ft. 3 in. in height.

Victor McLaglen has travelled extensively, having visited 23 countries in the world and becoming thoroughly acquainted with foreign life and customs. His great hope for the future is that some firm will recognise the wonderful screenable facilities of Bagdad and go out there to film a photoplay and that he may be included in the cast.

His first film appearance was in "The Call of the Road," when his work received general praise. His latest part is an exceptionally good one in the Blackton production, "The Glorious Adventure." In this, by the way, great demands are made on his physical strength, for in one scene he lifts up Gerald Lawrence and throws him over his head over a wall—and Gerald weighs 15 stone!

Victor McLaglen keeps himself in good fettle by a vigorous course of exercise. Every morning he practices training, taking long walks and "laying-into" the punching bag. He speaks very highly of Stuart Blackton, whose producing methods he admires greatly, and pays tribute to Mrs. Blackton, whose function at the studios is to "oil the wheels" by the "personal touch."

His varied career in the past (he has been all things, including a prospector for silver in the far north of America) appears to be finding its culmination in screen work, for Mr. McLaglen expresses his determination to remain a film actor permanently.

MEN BEHIND THE CAMERA

V. Theodore R. Thumwood assures us, despite the fact that he has no very clear recollection of the event, that he made his appearance on the stage of life in 1891. It was in 1905 that he took to kinematography. This was with the Clarendon Film Co., with which he completed seven years' service in 1912, during which time he secured much valuable knowledge of the art. On leaving Clarendon T.R.T. he went to J. H. Martin, and for three years concentrated on the photographic work in connection with trick-comedy films. In 1916 he joined the Army and served with the Royal Engineers until the Armistice. For some time now he has been with Master Films, and has cranked on "The Channings," "Hard Cash," and "The Haigh Serial." His private address is "Pembroke," Cheam Common Road, Worcester Park.

F. BRODRICK, Ltd.

Manufacturers of XL
Accessories.

TANKS for testing, developing, fixing, and washing.

WINDING FRAMES, film winders and drums.

WORKS fitting specialists.

EXPEDITIONS equipped.

50, High St.,
W.C. 2.
(Tottenham
Court Rd.
Tube.)

YOUR CORNER

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A BOUQUET.

I congratulate you on having published the best journal for those connected with film studios.—Alec Alexander, Jun.

AND ANOTHER.

I think your little paper fills a long-felt want, and I have pleasure in wishing the venture the success that it deserves.—Edward D. Roberts.

AND ANOTHER

I have just read your very excellent journal, The Motion Picture Studio, and hasten to congratulate you upon supplying the general public with a paper that it has wanted for years, and I feel sure that you will attain the great success that you so richly deserve by supplying this much-needed want.—HAYFORD HOBBS.

A DENIAL

My attention has been drawn to a paragraph in the August 20 issue of The Motion Picture Studio, in which it is stated that the old Cairns studios at Torquay have been taken over by a company calling itself the British Photoplay Productions.

I must tell you at once that there is no

TYPING—'Phone Regent 4747

"SPEEDAC" STENOGRAPHIC BUREAU

41, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.1.

Usual terms. Typing all classes: Authors' MS., Film Scenarios a speciality under expert supervision. Write, 'phone or call for quotation.

Proprietor—P. F. Buckle—Dictation Room.

MILTON ROSMER

Starring in

"A Romance of Westdale,"

"The Pointing Finger,"

"A Woman of No Importance,"

"The Amazing Partnership,"

"Demos," "The Diamond Necklace,"

"Belphegor the Mountebank,"

"The Will," "The Twelve Pound Look," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

88, NEWMAN ST., W.1.

Phone - - - - Museum 5145

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

foundation whatever for such a statement, and the publication of it is calculated to prejudice the arrangements being made by myself and my colleagues. No negotiations whatever have taken place between the British Photoplay Productions and myself. I am personally responsible for the letting of the Watcombe Hall studios, and I have certainly not given permission to any official of the company to rent the studios—or even to view them.

It is significant that such an announcement should appear at a time when British Photoplay Productions are appealing to the public for capital, and it is doubly essential, therefore, that there should be no misapprehension. At the moment the studios at Watcombe are actually to let—but they are nevertheless still the Cairns' studios.—F. DALLAS CAIRNS.

With regard to the "synopsis only" policy referred to in your Scenario Number, it was only to be expected that directors would take this wrong turning, but I was surprised to find editorial support of the policy. The subject is too deep to enter thoroughly here, but perhaps you will allow me to briefly outline my views.

This policy is not only detrimental to the art, but is illogical. Is there much difference between adapting a book (admittedly an impracticable process) and adapting a synopsis? There may be useless material in a novel—although nowadays authors certainly write with an eye to screen "rights"—but that disadvantage is more than balanced by a wealth of atmosphere and characterisation not to be found in a synopsis. Not that I am defending adaption: I only conclude that to adapt a bare plot is almost as foolish.

Our greatest literary genius was not Shakespeare the plot writer (as a matter of fact, he did not write them), but Shakespeare the scenarist. Where would he have been if only the synopsis of a play had been required? And where would have been authors (now famous) if publishing houses had kept "a staff to do the writing part"? It is not a matter of technique. The expression of drama in a series of pictures, and written down in that same order, is material enough for any scenario; studio terms are mere additions for the convenience of practical workers, and have no direct bearing on the photoplay itself. Is an author expected to supply instructions for the printing and binding of his book?

There are only perhaps half a dozen film writers in the world able to express themselves as subtly as can book writers. And there will never be more unless all people so inclined are allowed to flood the market with scenarios, to think and think only in a coherent series of scenes, until out of the mass is sifted the genius, as gold is sifted from the earth.—ERIC E. PARIS.

KINEMA CLUB

FORMING

Rapid progress is being made with the preliminaries of the formation of the Kinema Club. Last Thursday at a representative meeting of artistes, directors, scenarists and cameramen the following committee was elected by ballot: Eille Norwood, Rex Davis, Sydney Paxton, Arthur Walcott, Bertram Burleigh, Duncan Ma'Cræ, George Ridgewell, Fred Paul, Adrian Brunel, Bannister Merwin, G. Woods-Taylor and another Cameraman, and two members of the Press.

A meeting of this committee was held at the editorial offices of The Motion Picture Studio on Monday last, when the questions of the name and character of the Club were fully discussed as well as the qualifications for membership.

The course of events is as follows: This committee, which is temporary and advisory, is to thresh out the details of the scheme and drew up a full and concrete plan for the formation of the Club. This plan is then to be laid before a General Meeting of all artistes, directors, scenarists and cameramen for approval. This General Meeting will then appoint a management committee and the necessary sub-committees required.

In the meantime we have been asked to invite readers to submit suggested names for the Club and any other suggestions that they may wish to make for the helpful guidance of the Advisory Committee. Should any reader know of suitable Club premises he is asked to communicate with the Hon. Secretary, c.o. this office.

The General Meeting must be a huge success, and must be as large in numbers as in enthusiasm. As it is desired to notify all who are interested we print on this page a formal request that should be torn or cut out, signed and posted to the Hon. Secretary, c.o. this office, so that invitations can be posted. The form gives space for the reader to introduce the name of any other member of the profession who is interested, but there is no reason why only one such name should be sent.

I desire to be advised of the date of the GENERAL MEETING of the KINEMA CLUB.

Name.....

Address.....

Will you also send notice of the Meeting to

Name.....

Address.....

Who, I think, will be glad to attend.

DO YOU KNOW?

Why A. J. Hitchcock, the F. P.-Lasky title writer, hates "rags and boots"?

* * *

The exact word that Geoffrey Malins said when the wasp stung him? And—

* * *

If it is the first time he has been "stung"?

* * *

If Bernard Dudley is not doing exceedingly well as a director?

* * *

What Harold Preston said when the studio lighting set fell on him at midnight? And—

* * *

If it was his subsequent remarks that turned the Cooper-Hewitts blue?

* * *

Whether International Artistes ought not to be congratulated on its smart publicity stunts in Devon?

* * *

The name of the producing concern that will picturise "Rob Roy"? And—

* * *

If there is any reason why both Gaumont and Titan should not do it?

* * *

Who has made Mercy Hatton an offer to go on the stage? And—

* * *

Whether it is not a fact that if she accepts it will mean a real loss to the films?

* * *

If the circumstances that led to Victor McLaglen being in the Blackton cast does not justify him claiming that his face is his fortune?

* * *

That the safest way to get the MOTION PICTURE STUDIO regularly is by signing the subscription form?

* * *

Why Stewart Rome failed to turn up at the North Staffs Kinema Carnival?

* * *

That the plans for the formation of that Kinema Club are now well in hand, and—

* * *

That all that is necessary now is to ascertain the measure of support it will receive?

* * *

Who stole Evelyn Brent's satin slippers from the Bray Hotel?

* * *

If a new Scottish producing company is soon to start? and—

* * *

Whether Sir Harry Lauder is to be the chairman of the company? and—

* * *

If he has still got his eye on "Hunky Dory"?

* * *

Why Malvina Longfellow asked Frank Gray not to stand too near her on the boat?

If Maurice Tourneur is to come to this country to film "Lorna Doone"; and—

* * *

How many more "Lorna Doones" there are to be?

* * *

The name of the studio that now gives artistes half-pay if they come on the floor wearing make-up but are not required to work after all?

* * *

How Milton Rosmer enjoys mountaineering?

* * *

If John Gliddon succeeded in finding "the ugliest man in Devon"?

* * *

How Madge White enjoyed her horse-back ride in "The Eleventh Hour"?

* * *

How Francis Innys is progressing as a water-whistling soloist?

STUDIO SPORTS

The return cricket match between Hepworth and a team from its London offices was played at Walton-on-Thames last Saturday, August 27. The match resulted in a win for the visitors.

Prior to the game a visit was paid to the Oatlands Lodge Estate. During the match itself tea was served on the ground by several of the ladies from the Hepworth Studios, and before the return journey commenced H. Stephens, as captain of the visiting team, expressed thanks for the splendid reception which had been given to his party. Henry Edwards (looking fit and bronzed after his recent tour abroad) and Gwynne Herbert were very interested spectators of the game.

LONDON OFFICES.

T. Kimberley, b Parmenter	24
B. Leeson, lbw, E. Andrews	0
A. Herbert, b E. Andrews	0
H. Stephens, c and b Parmenter	7
W. Gray, c Parmenter, b T. Nightingale	5
—, Richardson, st Lean	20
R. Atherton, b Lean	3
G. Turner, b Lean	3
W. Dillestone, c Revis, b Nightingale	1
P. Kimberley, c Dewhurst, b Lean	1
J. Cleveley, not out...	0
Extras	7

71

HEPWORTH.

A. Parmenter, c and b Herbert	1
G. Dewhurst, c Leeson, b Herbert	5
E. Andrews, b Leeson	0
T. Nightingale, not out	19
G. Lean, st Richardson, b Herbert	13
P. Nightingale, b Herbert...	0
H. Andrews, b Herbert	14
L. Revis, b Herbert...	2
L. Nightingale, b Herbert	0
F. Woodley, run out,	0
L. Gilbey, b Herbert	0
Extras	2

56

It's the Detail that counts—when

COSTUMING FILM PLAYS

We claim to be Accurate in Detail.

© © ©

The Wise Producer
leaves it to us.

H. & M. RAYNE,
115-119, Waterloo Rd.,
LONDON, S.E.1.

WEST END
BRANCH: 15, Rupert Street

GEOFFREY H. MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE,"
"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
"SETTLED IN FULL,"
"ALL THE WINNERS,"
"WATCHING EYES,"
"BLUFF," etc

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

WHO EDITED IT?

When the spokesman of a party of Fleet Street Editors says of an important Travel Fi'm that "the editing is better than anything of the kind I have seen," it's surely worth asking who did it?

With an eye on that next film of yours, you might like to know that it was

HARRY HUGHES,

Editing, Titling, Continuities.

128, Jermyn Street, S.W.1
Regent 2592.

You cannot do better than by placing your orders with L. BENJAMIN & CO.

99, Middlesex Street, E.1.
'Phone—London Wall 7568

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

PRODUCTIONS AND WHO IS WORKING ON THEM

J. Stuart Blackton.

ADDRESS: Bush House, Melbourne Place, W.C.2.

STUDIOS: Now using Stoll's at Cricklewood.

FILM: "The Glorious Adventure."

DIRECTOR: J. Stuart Blackton.

STUDIO MANAGER: Challis N. Sanderson.

STAR: Lady Diana Manners.

SCENARIST: Felix Orman.

CAMERAMAN (Black and white): Nicholas Mursuraca.

CAMERAMAN (Colour): W. T. Crespinel.

TYPE: Ten-reel drama.

STAGE: Eighth week.

Broadway Productions.

ADDRESS: West Nile Street, Glasgow.

STUDIO: The Broadway Rooms.

FILM: "2.—0" (Two—Nothing).

DIRECTOR: Victor W. Rowe.

STAR: Jock McPhail.

SCENARIST: Victor W. Rowe.

TYPE: Two Reel Scottish Domestic Comedy.

STAGE: First week.

Famous Players-Lasky

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.

STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A. Bell, O.B.E.

FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."

DIRECTOR: Donald Crisp.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Claude H. Mitchell.

STAR: Donald Crisp.

SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.

STAGE: Eighth week.

Gaumont.

ADDRESS: Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush.

STUDIO MANAGER: B. H. Bromhead.

FILM: "Roses in the Dust."

DIRECTOR: Captain Calvert.

STARS: Iris Rowe, Gladys Mason.

CAMERAMAN: Basil W. G. Emmott.

SCENARIST: H. Morgan.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Hardy.

ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W.1.

STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isleworth.

FILM: "Bluff."

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.

STARS: Marjorie Hume, Lewis Willoughby.

SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.

CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.

STAGE: Fifth week.

Harma.

ADDRESS: Limes Grove, Croydon.

FILM: "Love in the Hills."

DIRECTOR: Bernard Dudley.

STARS: Marjorie Villis and James Knight.

CAMERAMAN: J. Maekenzie.

TYPE: Comedy drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling

Ideal.

ADDRESS: Boreham Woods, Elstree

STUDIO MANAGER: A. Kendrick.

STAGE MANAGER: J. Barnard.

FILM: "Married Life."

DIRECTOR: Georges Treville.

CAMERAMAN: Geoffrey Barkas.

STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "Single Life."

DIRECTOR: Edwin J. Collins.

STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "Pickwick Papers."

DIRECTOR: Thomas Bentley.

STAGE: Casting.

International Artists Films.

ADDRESS: 52, Shaftesbury Avenue.

STUDIO: B. & C. Studios, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

FILM: "The Night Hawk."

DIRECTOR: John Gliddon.

STARS: Malvina Longfellow, Henri de Vries.

SCENARIST: Gerard Ford Buckle.

CAMERAMAN: Will Howse.

STAGE: Seventh week.

Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate.

ADDRESS: Riverside Studios, Kew Bridge.

FILM: "The Adventures of Mr. Pusher Long."

DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme.

STAR: Dawn Meredith.

TYPE: Comedy.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: M'Lord of the White Road.

DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme.

STAR: Dawn Meredith.

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Aerofilm, Hyde, London.

ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmopho, Ealux.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow, E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD., Thornton House, Thorton Road, Clapham Park.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PHOTOPLAYS, Watecombe Hall, Torquay. 'Phone: Torquay 886—Cairnsfilm, Torquay.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolougue, 'Phone London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland., London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exelugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012.

STUDIO: Candlemass Lane, Beaconsfield.

GLEN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD., 20, Lisle Street, London, W.C., and "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16, Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.

IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Idefilms, Borehamwood.

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS FILM CO., LTD., 52, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

ISLE OF MAN FILM CO., The Manx Studios, Isle of Man.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Cricklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).

LAMBART FILMS, Carlton House, Regent Street, London, W.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MINERVA FILM CO., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

REGULUS FILMS: 48, Carnaby Street, Regent Street, W.1.

SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton 2356.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpic, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1933—Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMPSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGNTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & CO., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.

WILSONIAN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD. Secretary, W. J. Crook, 547, Wands-worth Road, S.W.

Lambart Films.

ADDRESS: Carlton House, Regent Street.

STUDIOS: London Kinema Studio, Tuileries Street, Hackney Road.

FILM: "Romance and Reality."

DIRECTOR: Captain Harry Lambart.

STAR: Cora Goffin.

SCENARIST: Captain Harry Lambart.

CAMERAMAN: C. T. Crapper.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Eighth week.

Progress.

ADDRESS: Shoreham.

FILM: "Mayor of Casterbridge."

STAR: Fred Groves.

DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.

SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.

STAGE: Finishing.

Regulus Films.

ADDRESS: 48, Carnaby Street, Regent Street, W.1.

SECRETARY: J. G. Dickson.

FILM: "Teddy Laughs Last."

DIRECTOR: Milton Elmore.

STARS: Teddy Hayes, Audrey Edwardes.

SCENARIST: James G. Dickson.

CAMERAMAN: E. Coble.

TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Screen Plays.

ADDRESS: Cranmer Court, Clapham S.W.

STUDIO MANAGER: Douglas Payne.

FILM: Grand Guignol series.

DIRECTORS: Fred Paul and Jack Raymond.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Rodwell.

TYPE: Short melodramas.

STAGE: Producing one a week.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Cricklewood.

STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman.

FILM: "A Romance of Westdale."

DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.

STAR: Milton Rosmer.

STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "The Lamp in the Desert."

DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.

CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "The Eleventh Hour."

DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.

STARS: Dennis Wyndham, Madge White.

CAMERAMAN: Al Moses.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "A Lost Leader."

DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.

STAR: Robert English.

STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "The Experiment."

DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.

STARS: Evelyn Brent, Clive Brook.

SCENARIST: William J. Elliott.

STAGE: Fifth week.

Zodiac.

FILM: "Walter in the Studio."

STAR: Walter Forde.

TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

The MOTION PICTURE

Studio

Registered at the G.P.O. 1
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 14.

Saturday, September 10, 1921.

FOURPENCE

FLORA LE BRETON

Light Comedy and Character. Lead "La Poupee." Just completed principal comedy part in J. Stuart Blackton's production, "The Glorious Adventure," with Lady Diana Manners. Disengaged. 34, Nevern Sq., Earl's Court, S.W.5.

'PHONE: WESTERN 1936.

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."

219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.

Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
'Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.

Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds," "The Knight Errant," "Haigh Serial," "Love Maggie."

4, Park Place, St. James, S.W. Regent 4060.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal). "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).

c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

Juvenile Leads: "Her Son," "Great Gay Road," "Lights of Home," "Land of My Fathers." Duane in "Belle of the Gambling Den" (Haigh Serial.)

OFFERS INVITED.

33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelm Foss Production). Latest Release, "With All Her Heart."

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, Regent 4329.

PHYLLIS SHANNAW,

Juv. Lead "Call of the Road," "The Right to Live," etc.

Will be shortly disengaged. All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour St., W.1. 'Phone: Regent 4329.

JOHN EAST.

Character Comedy. Tele: Hammer-mit 14. Ifley Road, Hammersmith, W.6.

ARTISTES

HAYFORD HOBBS.

Starring with African Film Productions. Late Juvenile Lead: London Films (three years), Windsor Films (two years), and all leading English Film Companies.

All comms: Box 4514 Johannesburg, South Africa.

VICTOR McLAGLEN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES.

LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs. NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc.

Carlton House, Kew Green, Kew, Surrey.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House,"

"Wuthering Heights," etc.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

'Phone: Regent 4329

DICK WEBB

(Juvenile)

GAUMONT, MASTERS, FAMOUS PLAYERS

LASKY, BRITISH PRODUCERS.

180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc. HARDY FILM CO.

All coms: c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1.

LIONELLE HOWARD.

AT LIBERTY.

"Three Men in a Boat," "The Street of Adventure," "The Wonderful Year," etc.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

ADELINE HAYDEN COFFIN.

Sympathetic Mother, Grande Dames.

Character Parts, "Mrs. Gatty," in "Christie Johnstone" (Broadwest), "Margaret Howe" in "Beside the Bonny Briar Bush" (Lasky).

55, Campden St., Kensington, W.8. Tel.: Park 3623.

GORDON BEGG,

Char. Straight, Com. 197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph.: Battersea 21.

CLIVE BROOK

INVITES OFFERS.

24, Hyde Park Square, W.2. Padd. 2868.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT,

Disengaged July 4. 'Phone: Walthamstow 938.

ARTISTES

ARTHUR CLEAVE,

15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.

'Phone: Hornsey 1784.

CHARLES CLIFFORD,

38, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.2.

'Phone: Regent 569.

CRISPIN HAY,

c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,

12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,

Character Actor. Offers invited

114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

HARDING STEERMAN,

Characters of Distinction,

56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,

24, Cleveland Road,

Barnes, S.W. 13.

MARJORIE VILLIS.

Exclusive to Harma Photoplays, Limes Rd., Croydon.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,

Character Parts,

57, Church Street Kensington, W.8.

SCENARISTS

ELIOT STANNARD

Scenarios.

85, Holbein House, Sloan Square, S.W.1.

Tele.: Victoria 497.

COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,
:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON.

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.

7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11

'(Phone: Park 2945).

GERARD FORT BUCKLE

Scenarios.

'Phone: Regent 4747.

41, Glasshouse Street, Regent Street, W.1.

THIS SPACE TO LET

£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,

Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.

62, Foxbourne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 14.

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

Sept. 10, 1921

Filial Affection.

FOLLOWING our remarks in the last issue we now learn from our Australian Correspondent that the House of Representatives has passed a resolution the effect of which is that duty on imported films should be British preferential one penny per lineal foot, Intermediate threepence per foot, general tariff threepence per foot. The chief effect of this will be that British films are given a bias in their favour and American films will find a three-to-one handicap. This, of course, is gratifying but is only the to-be-expected action of the son in favour of the mother. But even filial affection will not solve a problem the only solution of which is based on the law of the survival of the fittest. We make no apology for reiterating the contention that it is merit that tells in the competitive system.

Merit.

THERE still remains open to British directors the opportunity to seize the chief markets of the world by the sheer force of superior merit. A correspondent writes from Montreal and says: "Some of the best British-made films have appeared in the Dominion during the past six months and I feel confident in stating that British-made films are growing with demand. I have noticed several letters to the editors of local newspapers asking for information apropos British film artistes, which is a healthy sign." This letter is typical of scores that we receive from readers in the Dominions, all of which go to prove that there is a real and articulate request for films from the Home Country so long as their only virtue is not the country of their origin. If there is any personal qualification that we can lay claim to it is that we have a perfectly robust belief in the possibilities of British producing concerns. In this country there are picturesque locations, there are talented artistes, there are the cleverest cameramen in the world, there are gifted directors, there are clever scenarists and there is the money. The sooner all these factors are introduced to each other the sooner will the day of supremacy of British films dawn.

* * *

Extended Usefulness.

ELSEWHERE in this issue "Megaphone" refers to the generous tribute paid by America's studio magazine Camera to the MOTION PICTURE STUDIO as a means of bringing British artistes to the eyes and the knowledge of the American film people. We have now been in existence for fourteen weeks and in that short space of time the MOTION PICTURE STUDIO has established itself on the pedestal that was waiting for it. The past has convinced us that the British said: "I shall be glad when more artistes' cards are in your pages as these save me a great deal of trouble when I am casting." Artistes, therefore, will find that these cards are their perpetual representatives in the offices of the directors, and the more cards there are the more will directors refer to this feature. Artistes must attend to the publicity side of their work more. H. P. Evans, writing from Canada, says: "I confess I am greatly disappointed with the shyness of the British artistes in advertising themselves; if they want to win out here they must let Canada know more about themselves; in short, beat the Yankees at their own Game." We pass this good advice on to artistes without comment beyond asking them to refer it with the remarks of Camera respecting the "location of the missing."

* * *

Three-Reelers Wanted.

THOSE who carefully watch the trend of events have come to the conclusion that a new standard of films is required. In America only about one per cent. of the cinemas screen two five-reelers on each program; in this country the practice is far more general.

And now there is evidence of a change in the demands of the public, so that it is safe to predict that spectators will soon refuse to sit through two five-reelers. Thus is presented the opportunity to the enterprising director to anticipate the public demand by making three-reel dramas that, with the five-reel feature, would go to make up the ideal program. And we are forced to confess en passant that there are not many five-reelers that would not be improved by being brought within the span of three thousand feet.

* * *

ON behalf of all engaged in British productions we extend a very hearty welcome to Charlie Chaplin on his return to his native land. We all recognise him as a Prince of Artistes and are proud of him as a product of our country.

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"Wild Heather" (Hepworth) adapted from the stage play by Dorothy Brandon, is chiefly a picture contrasting three brothers, a "gentleman's gentleman" out of work, a flirtatious and awkward shop assistant, and a typical strong and proud mechanic. The great attraction is the amusing situation brought about by these three strapping men inheriting a beautiful and refined little stepmother. What chiefly makes the situation great is the fine acting of all concerned, G. H. Mulcaster, Hugh Clifton, George Dewhurst, and Chrissie White. There is no doubt that Chrissie White's art has developed in a wonderful way lately. She is now among the world's great screen artistes. The well-chosen cast includes such long standing Hepworth favourites as Gera'd Ames and Gwynne Herbert, while Marion Dyer, James Carew, James Annand and Eileen Dennes all do good work. Critical people could find many little faults in the plot; but there is plenty of humour and the sentiment is thoroughly true and healthy. Cecil M. Hepworth's production is the work of a true screen artist.

"The Black Tulip" (Granger-Binger) is an unusually interesting study. At first sight a picture of Dutch politics of the 17th century, which is the background of the story, would not suggest a strong appeal to the average British patron, but the dramatic and romantic masterpiece of Alexandre Dumas would have a powerful interest in whatever setting. And the treatment of the theme, with the tulip fields of Haarlem in full flower, the graceful old-world costumes, the gripping tragedy of the fall of the De Witts is exceptionally good.

film industry has welcomed the MOTION PICTURE STUDIO as its own official organ, and now we are contemplating ways and means for developing the paper and extending its scope and usefulness. To this end we draw readers' attention to the fundamental fact that the more support they give this journal the greater are our possibilities for increased usefulness. It is intended to make the MOTION PICTURE STUDIO not only a journal of interest but a ready reference book and directory at the disposal of directors and artistes. This is a natural effect of an action that can be performed only by artistes.

* * *

Helping Casting Directors.

THE advertisement pages for the display of artistes cards and photographs are to become the casting chart for the directors, many of whom have

SCENARISTS

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,
Kinedramatist,
Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

I R E N E M I L L E R,
Novelist, Journalist, Scenarist,
10, Arundel Gardens, W. 11, or Bramlins.

CYRIL E. MURRELL,
Scenarist—Comedy,
Address: C/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO

MURIEL ALLEYNE, Screen Playwright.
Plays sold to Pathé, Hepworth, Barker, M.L.B., Clarendon Universal, etc., Windsor Ho! Amersham, Bucks.

HELEN & THOMAS BLIZZARD
Original Story and Continuity Writers
Address M.P. STUDIO.

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,
14a, Little Ealing Lane,
:: South Ealing ::
'Phone: Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,
Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
"The Face at the Window."
Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON
Producing for Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd.
Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,
Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and "CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."
Five years producer in America. At Liberty.
Address: 20, COLVILLE TERRACE, BAYSWATER, W.11.

S. L. GLENISTER
Professionally Major Comnenus-Palæologus.
PRODUCER, TECHNICAL & ART DIRECTOR.
"Under the Crescent," "Dumb Girl of Portici,"
"Campbells are Coming," "Where are My Children?"
etc., for UNIVERSAL. "The Arab," for LASKY.
"Less than Dust," for ART-CRAFT, etc., etc. Open for Engagement. Address: 25, Randolph Crescent, W. 9. 'Phone: Paddington 3819.

GRACE ROSE
Assistant Producer
THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.
Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,
Hoe St, Walthamstow, E.17.

ADRIAN BRUNEL,
Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone: 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK,
Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

ALBERT WARD,
Producer—Open to accept engagements,
3, Ranelagh Grove, S.W.1.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

JOHN J. COX
44, Barrowgate Road,
:: Chiswick, W.4. ::
'Phone: Chiswick 294.
Cameraman for Maurice Elvey,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD
Cameraman—AT LIBERTY.
Latest work: "The Channings," "Hard Cash," "Stella" and "Miss Charity."
MASTER BUTCHER PRODUCTIONS.
"PEMBROKE," CHEAM COMMON RD.,
WORCESTER PARK.

EDWIN DAY
Motion Picture Photographer,
12, Archer Street, Piccadilly Circus, London, W.1.
Telephone: Gerrard 780.
Telegrams: "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON
Thelton House, Cambolt
:: Road, Putney Hill. ::
Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN
"GAUMONT'S,"
105, King's Road,
Kingston-on-Thames.

FRANK CANHAM
Motion Picture Photographer.
Address: ROYAL FOREST HOTEL,
CHINGFORD, ESSEX.

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT
GAUMONT,
:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::
Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT
EXPERT CAMERAMAN.
Welsh Pearson, Diamond Super Films,
Ideal, Broadwest, Grangers, etc.
Dark Rooms and Offices:
2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.
'Phone: Streatham 1969.

ALFRED H. MOSES
Photographing George Ridgwell Productions.
Formerly Chief Cameraman for Thanhauser,
Norma Talmadge, British & Colonial, etc.
Address care of STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS,
Cricklewood.

PHIL ROSS
Cameraman—AT LIBERTY.
Late of BROADWEST, HARMA, VANITY, etc.
19, Mayow Road, Forest Hill,
London, S.E.23.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

WILLIAM SHENTON
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address:
17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,
Boreham Wood, Herts.

HORACE M. WHEDDON,
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address -
"LYNTON HOUSE,"
BOREHAM WOOD, HERTS.

JAMES E. ROGERS,
Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth.
"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"
"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"
"Last Rose of Summer,"
PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

PUBLICITY. . . .

F. J. STANDERWICK,
Photographer.
I am making a speciality of Catering for
Film Artists. 'Phone for appointment—
Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio
—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
W.14.

FRANK J. WOOLF
Publicity Representative,
British and Colonial Kinematograph
Company, Hoe Street, Walthamstow,
Telephone: Walthamstow 364.

EDWARD BAIRD,
Publicity.
172, Goldhurst Terrace, N.W.6.

COSTUMIER

W. CLARKSON,
Costumier and Wigmaker,
41/43, Wardour Street, W. 'Phone: Gerr. 612.

THIS SPACE TO LET
17s. 6d. for 13 insertions

STUDIO MANAGER

JOHN A. GEEVES,
Studio Manager—
B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,
Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
Telephone: W'stow 364."

The Biggest Successes have BENJAMIN COSTUMES

PERSONAL SUPERVISION GUARANTEED
in every detail. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

It will interest those artistes who are in the A.A. to know that the result of the ballot on the question of federating with other theatrical trades unions resulted in the principle of federation being thrown over. Only a small proportion of the members had voted, the ballot papers returned totalling 774 out of a membership of some thousands. The voting was as follows:—In favour of federation, 119; against, 568. F. B. Gray and several other members spoke in support of federation with Labour, and hoped that it would not be long before the members changed their mind on this point.

One thing that Kenelm Foss has done is to get all Fleet Street talking by his "Street of Adventure" (which should not be confused with the Street of Ad-Venture, which is, of course, Wardour Street). Even the Times devotes a whole leading article to the matter. 'Tis true that Kenelm's idea of a journalist (as shown in this film) is somewhat of a caricature, but that does not excuse the waste of so many pots of good Swan ink. So the Times tries to ridicule the cinematograph itself. Mildly, I admit, but none-the-less surely.

"But the public," it says, "may be given credit for not taking such scenes too much in earnest. . . . The cinematograph, for all its technical excellence, cannot really be a complete substitute for a play or novel. It has to rely for its effect too exclusively on a single sense, that of sight; conversation, which is the life of the drama, has no place in it. . . . Kinematography is largely a process, well enough in its way if it faithfully records a historical scene." But then, who takes the Times seriously?

A hearty welcome back to Zena Dare, the musical comedy star of not so long ago, who has been persuaded to come out of retirement and take a photoplay engagement. Her marriage to the second son of Viscount Esher was a social event in 1911. She will be seen as Tilda, the strapping flower-girl heroine of "No. 5, John Street," which is now being directed by Kenelm Foss.

Repeatedly the Trade papers in America are making eulogistic references to the MOTION PICTURE

STUDIO, and the latest to hand is a lengthy leading article in Camera! the American studio paper. It starts: "Ordinarily statistics for statistics' sake absolutely fail to appeal to our imagination, but occasionally they are downright enlightening. The compilation below, for which we are indebted to London's MOTION PICTURE STUDIO, is of such value. It tells us what England is doing in the production line; it also locates some of our missing friends. We feel that the various interests attached to each consideration justify the space we expend

OUR LETTER LIST.

Letters await the following at the offices of this journal. A stamped addressed envelope should be sent with applications. No charge is made for the use of this service.

Jack Daring,
Christine Silver,
Daisy Burrell,
Lillian Braithwaite,
Langhorne Burton,
Clive Brook,
Henry Edwards,
Teddy Hayes,
Victor MacLagan.
Kenneth Friese Green.

ON THE FLOOR With ALBERT WARD

With a long and varied experience of the legitimate stage, and imbued with all the best traditions of drama, it is not surprising that Albert Ward should find as much success with the shadows of the screen as he did with the substance of the stage.

His knowledge of acting often prompts him to show the artiste "how it should be done," and many are the juveniles who wished the leading lady could be as responsive, and the leading lady wished the director was the juvenile, after Albert Ward has shown them how.

He contrives—very successfully, too—to hold the scales between the man above him and the man under him; and, if at times he seems over-earnest with his artistes, it is but the outcome of a desire for success, and he is a strong enough director to speak generously after to those that have worked for him.

He believes more in the team work than the individual effort, and he prefers a well-balanced cast to a single-star film. A worker through and through, he looks for reciprocity from all concerned in the production, neither asking for nor expecting more than he personally is prepared to do. He is conscientious to a degree. Before directing a big light film he was seen at the Lewis-Basham fight.

Combination, co-operation, and "all pull together," and a good working capital of tact, are some of the predominant characteristics that go to the picture directorate of Albert Ward.

upon it." Then follows our "Pulse of the Studio" information written up very fully for the benefit of the American market.

Incidentally, I would draw attention to the significance of this to our readers, and especially our advertisers. The American film people say that the MOTION PICTURE STUDIO "locates some of our missing friends." Those who wish to keep under the eye of the American producing units can only do so adequately by means of this journal, which is widely circulated in the American studios.

At a "Gymghatta" (which is a port-manteau word, composed of the most salient syllables of the words Regatta and Gymkhana), to be held on the Thames at Shepperton, on September 17, one of the events is a stage versus screen race, in which George Barrett and George Mozart will race William J. Elliott, the well-known scenarist, and W. Saunders (Stoll's). The Gymghatta will commence at 2 p.m., and a large attendance is expected. Full particulars, list of events and prices of admission to lawn, etc., may be obtained from the Hon. Treasurer, Malcolm Rafferty, Esq., King's Head Hotel, Shepperton, Middlesex.

It is rather belated, I fear, to welcome Dennis Wyndham back to the screen, but rather than "never" I do it "late." He is now with Stoll playing for films after a year's further experience of the stage. In recounting the parts he has played during the last twelve months, Wyndham says he thinks he has created a record. "I have been associated with seven theatrical failures in twelve months," he laughs; "the longest run was three weeks, the shortest three nights."

Margaret Shelley, who has been playing the part of Winnie Chigston in "The Rotters" for Ideal, and also for J. Stuart Blackton in "The Glorious Adventure," is shortly going abroad to play. She has done some very good work on the stage in the West End, notably as the Irish girl in "The Very Idea," and in "The Betrothal," also in "The Misleading Lady." The beautiful old house and grounds photographed in "The Rotters" is Miss Shelley's own property, which she "MEGAPHONE," kindly lent to Ideal.

Where they are and

Paul Burger is chief cameraman and head of Stoll's photographic department at the Cricklewood Studios.

Bannister Merwin is about to start work on a production.

Johnny Butt plays 'Troddeles' in "Four Men in a Van" (Direct).

Percy Nash is now busy on "How Kitchener was Betrayed," the John Bull story.

Harley Knowles has nearly completed casting for "The Bohemian Girl" (Alliance).

Arthur Walcott is on the free list now that Broadwest is closed. Letters care of this office will find him.

Hugh Croise wrote the continuity of "Four Men in a Van" for Direct, and will direct the production.

Rex Davis has been booked by George Pearson to play an important part in the next Welsh-Pearson production.

Aubrey Smith has been cast for the very strong part of "The Chief of the Gypsies," in "The Bohemian Girl" (Alliance).

Denison Clift is very busily engaged preparing the continuity of his next Ideal production, "The Old Wives' Tale," which he will commence to direct on September 22.

Frank Woolf, the well-known publicity expert, has returned to London from a holiday, and is now open to accept commissions to conduct artistes' (and others) publicity. Letters care of this office will find him.

TITLING SPECIALIST

is open to undertake one or two commissions for special film work
G. T. SHEARMAN, Bentinck Road, Nottingham.

Langhorne Burton was one of the film stars at the Brighton Kinema Carnival.

Sidney Morgan is directing the production of "The Lilac Sunbonnet" (Progress).

William Shenton will be responsible for the photographic work on "The Old Wives' Tale" (Ideal).

John Robertson is back from France, and is directing the production of "Perpetua" (F. P.-Lasky).

Pauline Peters has returned to London from Scotland, where she has been acting in scenes for "The Lilac Sunbonnet" for Progress.

Joan Morgan was one of the film stars to make a personal appearance at the Brighton Kinema Carnival. She is now starring in "The Lilac Sunbonnet" for Progress.

Dick Webb has just returned to London from France, where he has been working on exteriors for F. P.-Lasky. He has had a busy time following a series of scenes in "Perpetua."

H. Lisle Lucoque is directing the production of "Where the Rainbow Ends," a British Photoplay production which Fleet Photoplays expect to be ready for trade-showing in November, and for release a month later.

Walter Forde has now completed his group of comedies, which will be Trade shown shortly.

Donald Searle plays Buggins in "Four Men in a Van."

Ion Swinley is in the cast of "How Kitchener was Betrayed" (Screenplay).

Frank Granger is cranking for the Hugh Croise production "Four Men in a Van" (Direct).

Fred Paul, Screenplay's director, is playing the part of Lord Kitchener in "How Kitchener was Betrayed," which Percy Nash is directing. Fred's resemblance to "K. of K." is familiar; he played the name part in "The Life of Lord Kitchener."

Peggie Hathaway is in the cast of Screenplays' "How Kitchener was Betrayed."

Wallace Boscoe has been engaged by Screenplays for "How Kitchener was Betrayed," the John Bull story.

Ethel Callanan has been booked for a part in the film version of the John Bull story, "How Kitchener was Betrayed" (Screenplays).

Winifred Evans, who is in the cast of "Paddy, the Next Best Thing" at the Savoy, has been engaged for an important part in "How Kitchener was Betrayed" (Screenplays).

QUALIFIED—

VERSUS

by HARRY

The status of the scenarist will be assured when the men on the business side of the industry realise that in his work lies the only hope of getting production costs down to a reasonable figure—and a figure which can be estimated with some hope of accuracy in advance of production. The economies which the most efficient director can hope to achieve during production are negligible; the economies which a scenarist can effect before production are incalculable.

In my capacity of film editor, I have frequently cut out over a thousand feet in a five-reel story, eliminating whole scenes which cost hundreds of pounds to stage. Thus, one-fifth of the money and work put into such a film is thrown into the gutter. How much greater economy could be effected if it were planned in advance!

The mental make-up of the scenarist must of necessity be different from his brother the novelist. He must possess creative power (imagination), but he must also have considerable organising powers. He must be a business man as well as an artist. The possession of this double qualification is not so rare as most people think. A real organiser—not a card index expert—is necessarily imaginative; he cannot be one without the other.

The work of the scenarist must be governed by local circumstances; for instance, he must not call for railway collisions and wrecks at sea if his studio is working on a narrow margin.

Uneasily conscious that his story is too slender to bear analysis, the average film maker will camouflage it with expensive sets, gorgeous clothes and breakneck "stunts," ignoring the fact that all these things have been done before—done to the point when they have become tedious to cinema audiences, who are no longer impressed by

— what they are doing

Henderson Bland was one of the artistes representing Stoll at the Brighton Kinema Carnival.

Maudie Dunham recently concluded her two-year contract with Samuelson, and is now a free-lance.

Manning Haynes plays "The Would-be-Witty Wilkes" in Direct's new production, "Four Men in a Van."

Bertram Burleigh has been engaged to play a leading part for Screenplay's film version of the John Bull story, "How Kitchener was Betrayed."

—SCENARISTS NOVELISTS HUGHES

lavish treatment of a poor story. They want a good story, simply told; that—and nothing more.

Given a good story, the scope of the scenarist in the matter of economical production is limitless. If it is an original one, of his own creation, he is not hampered as he always is when adapting a novel, when, to placate the author, he is obliged to include scenes which were better omitted. Expensive sets can be dispensed with by finding alternative (and equally logical) backgrounds for his action; and tedious or obvious action can be implied, rather than shown, by sub-title. Hundreds of pounds might have been saved on any British production which you care to think of, if only the scenario had been carefully worked out, revised and re-revised, before a foot of film was used.

Three solid months of hard work are none too long for the writing of a scenario. Let us assume that the cost of such a careful piece of work is £250 (£1,000 a year is reasonable minimum for a capable scenarist). Is it not worth while paying that figure for a script which not only tells a story, but tells it with a minimum of expense; which concentrates its action in the fewest number of sets consistent with a dignified standard of production; which foresees the separate problems of the casting director, the electrician, the cameraman and the director; which keeps in mind the costs of special wardrobes, properties, distant locations and "stunts"? And yet all this can be done without conveying, to eventual audiences, any suggestion of the existence of a policy of economy in the studio which turned it out.

Is this work within the power of the novelist to achieve? Of course it is not; so let the British film maker put back his novels on the library shelf and encourage, in his own interests, the work of the scenarist—the story-teller of the screen.

Sydney Paxton has been playing in Ideal's "Single Life."

L. Egrot, the cameraman, is back in Paris again for a time.

Gerald McCarthy has been playing in "Married Life" for Ideal.

Jose Bronks is playing for Thomas Bentley in "Pickwick Papers" (Ideal).

Zoe Palmer is still under contract to play leading roles for Granger-Binger.

Frank Goldsmith is playing in "How Kitchener was Betrayed" for Screenplays.

Jean Millar has been playing as star for the London Press Exchange Film Service in "Bristol."

Dorothy Drake is playing for Master Film with Fred Dyer, the ex-middleweight champion of the world (Norris and Clayton booking).

Elizabeth Arkell, who understudied Sybil Thorndike in "Three Old Women," at the Little Theatre, is playing with Master Films (Norris and Clayton booking).

Clive Brook, who has recently finished playing the leading part in "Sonia," is now snatching a few days' holiday on the East Coast. This is the first rest from filming Brook has had since he commenced his screen career eighteen months ago.

A. E. Coleby has joined the Stoll directorial staff at the Cricklewood Studios.

J. Edwards-Barber is in "Love in the Hills."

Roy Byford, who is playing for F. P. Lasky, was booked by Norris and Clayton.

Victor McLaglen wishes all his communications to be sent c/o Norris and Clayton.

Roy Byford, who is playing for F. P. Lasky in "The Hills" (Harma).

Constance Worth has been playing an important part in Harma's "Love in the Hills."

T. Sloan is busy at the Islington Studios (F. P. Lasky) as assistant to Major Bell.

Harley Knoles is away on location search and completing final arrangements for "The Bohemian Girl" (Alliance).

John Mackenzie is responsible for the photography in "Love in the Hills," which Bernard Dudley has directed for Harma.

Gertrude McCoy writes from Johannesburg to say that she is having a busy time in South Africa, where she is starring for South African Productions.

Margaret Hope has this week signed a contract with Stoll to play the part of Virginia La Monte in "Half a Truth," which Sinclair Hill is to direct. This follows her work in "Ally Soper's Half Holiday."

Sinclair Hill's next production for Stoll is "Half a Truth," from Rita's novel.

Frank Houser is chief electrician at Stoll's Cricklewood studios, and has devised an ingenious arrangement for filming rain scenes.

Madge White had a nasty spill while doing a riding scene in "The Eleventh Hour" (Stoll) at Henley.

Malvinia Longfellow is back in London from Locatun, in South Devon, where she has been playing Lydia in "The Night Hawk" (International Artistes).

Artistes, directors and others are warned that October 8 and October 22 are the only dates that front pages of this journal are vacant for some time. The two earliest applications secure them at our usual rates.

Camera Bargains—Largest selection of professional and topical instruments in London, all makers—English, American and Continental. Write stating exact requirements special quotations post free, or call and inspect our stock, Cash or Easy Payment Terms. Apparatus accepted in exchange, Strict approval terms willingly.

THE KINEMATOGRAPH EXCHANGE,
81 Aldersgate Street, E.C.1,

WHY SCREEN ARTISTES NEED A FEDERATION

by JACK JARMAN

It seems to me that to write on this subject is to invite a certain amount of captious criticism. But that is a natural corollary. In the last few years, the Film business in England has grown to enormous proportions, the chief reason being attributable to the fact that British pictures, having attained a standard of perfection equal to that of American productions, there is a greater demand for them to-day by a big patriotic public, which is simply aching to oust the foreign element from this very promising industry of ours. In consequence of which many men and women who have lost their pre-war (or war-time) jobs have had to turn to a new walk in life, and film acting with its endless possibilities has appealed to them as being the most fascinating.

JACK JARMAN

Then there is a big proportion of men who at the outbreak of war were mere boys with no vocation, who are trying their hands or rather their brains at the acting side of this business, and have been found to possess a remarkable temperament, and ability to become big artistes.

However this may be, I am convinced there is, or will be in the near future, room for all. What business or profession, then, has more need of a Federation? It is a regrettable fact that on the producing side we seem to be a lot of stragglers—not an organised body with a strong foundation.

Anything savouring of a union as we to-day know the word is distasteful, for it may imply endless dissension, disquietude, and even strikes, whereas a Federation will create equanimity, equability, and therefore, strength.

We do not have to look far to see the success of such an organisation. Take, for example, the V.A.F. I believe without it the majority of music-hall artistes would feel to a great extent like a ship without a rudder. In America where Kinema artistes had, I believe, a Federation for years—without it, possibly their second largest industry may not have been films—who knows?

In Germany they have a Federation which embraces all factions of the industry. I am much afraid this would not be a success in this country, for various reasons, the majority of which will be apparent to many! But on this point I dare not commit myself, and in any event it would take up a whole issue of The Motion Picture Studio to discuss.

I am speaking then only of the producing side when I say we want a Federation. How advantageous, for instance, to have a "headquarters" in town, where one might be 'phoned, wired for or written to, when not at home; for the secretary or responsible persons would always be acquainted with the whereabouts of artistes. Directors then who wished for the services of any particular artiste need only 'phone to the Federation and get whom they required; or in the event of the artiste being away on location or holiday—well, the Federation will be able to supply the necessary information. Even agents are unable to do this.

It is really surprising how little opportunity there is of being brought into direct contact with one's fellow artistes and, of course, the establishment of a Federation would eliminate this disadvantage.

An old Regimental Sergeant Major of my acquaintance, whom I have every reason to remember, used to say, "A harmy without discipline and horder haint no harmy at all, but a misguided and an 'opeless mob." I am unable to differentiate between that army of soldiers and our army of film-actors.

New Series.

MY PROUDEST PRODUCTION

No. II.—By Percy Nash

The picture of which I am most proud is "Temporal Power" (Marie Corelli), which was produced by me in Rome and rented in England by the London Independent Film Company.

My reasons are as follows:—

The settings were superintended by artistes.

The furniture was chosen by artistes.

All the characters were played by artistes.

I was not asked to accommodate a "lady friend" of the management.

Every detail was attended to by competent individuals.

The finances were supplied by people (they were not British) who did not ask me what the picture was going to cost.

The word "footage" was never mentioned. All that was required of me was to make a good picture, and under these conditions I claim that I succeeded.

NEXT WEEK, No. III. by G. Treville.

MAKING COMEDIES

by DALTON SOMERS

The producing of comedy pictures in this country has been an undoubted failure, but the reason is not difficult to find, one word solves the question—money. Comedy should cost twice as much to produce as drama; the amount allowed to produce a comedy, as a rule, should not be enough to pay the artistes who are capable of playing comedy before the camera. But while we have Messrs. Sweater, Cheapener, Summatfornt, and the cut-it-down studio manager, we shall never get British comedies.

Up to now the production of comedy pictures is an unknown business in this country; some blame the directors, but that is hardly fair. No one can make bricks without the needful straw, and to get comedy there are other things wanted beside money, and the next article is the exponent of comedy, the real live comedian, and he is rarely to be found among the cheap and nasty inexperienced studio hangers-on.

An actor has to serve many years on the stage before he can be called a comedian, and by the same token a kinema actor must have the same schooling before he can be expected to make a screen audience laugh. Is it likely that a capable comedian is going to hang around studios, to beg for work? There is plenty for him on the stage if he be any good, and with the others you can't get comedy pictures. When a comedian has a vacation he tries to fill it in by working for the pictures, but it is only a fill-in, he is back to the stage directly the opportunity serves.

Let some enterprising firm start a stock company and keep its comedians working week after week, and then see. What the directors do not know of comedy the actors will soon teach them.

There are very few authors who can write comedy for the stage, and fewer still who can write it for the mime. Most of the successful comedy on the stage is from the brain of the comedian who presents it, and so it will have to be for the screen.

I have in mind a firm which started with a fair amount of money behind it, and started three directors, each of them to direct drama and comedy (mistake number one—the man who can do both has not come to town yet). The firm engaged a second-hand clothes dealer who, off the floor, was very droll; he had had a little stage, or rather amateur-stage, experience, the rest of the company were freaks, types and beginners of all sorts.

The poor directors were expected to instill comedy into this crowd, with the usual result, although the directors were most capable men, one of them a comedian and stage director of many years standing and experience; but you can't inject theatrical brains or sense of humour, and the same applies to kinema work, the directors tried and failed. So did the company—not enough money!

I contend that actors and good, sound, experienced comedians are as necessary to produce comedy pictures as the director, who also must be an experienced comedian and know every trick of the craft.

It is a mistake to think that stage actors are no good for the screen. It is the other way about, the screen is no good for the actor. The stage is week in and week out, but the studio is week in and two months out.

To make English comedy, the director must, of course, be English bred and born and have made a careful study of English humour. What is the use of American, German or French wit to the Britisher?

DO YOU KNOW?

If Eille Norwood is contemplating the possibility of even more extensive film work in the very near future? And—

Whether it will involve even more disguises than his Sherlock Holmes parts?

If Rex Davis continued his training in Paris? And—

Whether the fact that he is still hard at training is indicative of the character of his part in George Pearson's production?

The name of the next North British production?

If it is not good news that Edward D. Roberts intends to start his own productions?

That to ensure obtaining an invitation to the Kinema Club meeting you must send in the form found in this issue? And—

That the Club is going to be one of the best equipped and most useful of such institutions?

AUTHOR AND DIRECTOR

"The director told me his idea of the relationship between author and director. So far as I can remember his words, he said: 'Your work stops at the studio door. When you have handed in the script of your scenario you have done all that is required of you.'"—E. TEMPLE THURSTON.

Justin Huntly McCarthy (Novelist)

The director who told Mr. Temple Thurston that the author's work "stops at the studio door" made—or rather brayed—a remark that was even more flagrant for its folly than its impudence. Writers should unite against the grotesque assumption that their voice is to be silent concerning the treatment of their work by a new and still unsettled method of representation when they have never suffered it to be silent with regard to other and older methods of representation. The authors of plays, the authors of novels, must see to it that their interest in their own creations does not stop at the studio door.

William J. Elliott (Scenarist)

The type of director indicated by Mr. Thurston is, alas, all too common. Putting his inflated ideas of his own importance far before the artistic welfare of the work he is directing, and so obsessed by the notion that if he allows the author or the scenarist to have any say at all in the production once the scenario is completed his own position will be imperilled (in some myterious way), he consistently botches production after production through what one can only describe as sheer ignorance.

To him, and to him only, is due the constantly recurring phrase in review of English productions—"good photography, capable acting, but poor story—and continuity"—for which the unfortunate scenarist gets the blame.

The production of an artistically (and therefore commercially) successful film is simply and solely a matter of unselfish team work on the part of all concerned in its production. The author of the original novel or play (presuming it to be an adaptation) should be consulted by the scenarist, and should assist (in a consulting capacity) in the preparation of the scenario. The scenarist should be "on the floor" during the whole of the production, with a brief not to interfere with the actual producing, but to look after the continuity, and see that it is not interfered with by cutting or interpolation during the actual "taking," and should afterwards be present while the negative is being cut.

Also, he should be allowed to select his own locations and write his scenes to them, instead of the usual practice of first writing scenes, and then endeavouring to find locations for them—which often means alterations to the script in order to make the action fit.

RELIC OF CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S EARLY DAYS

Just now, with all the claims (well-founded and otherwise) of all sorts of people to acquaintance with Charlie Chaplin it is of exceptional interest to hear of one really authenticated instance. Before he entered film work John Payne, of Bramlins, wrote, produced and acted in music hall sketches under the professional name of John M. Castle, and the above is a reproduction of a program at the old Royal Canterbury music hall for Monday, December 6, 1909, in which the two chief items are "Uncle's Socks," with John M. Castle in the lead, and Fred Karno's "Football Match," in which were Will Poluski, Gilbert Childs and—Charlie Chaplin! At the end of his turn John Payne offered Charlie the lead in his next sketch, but Charlie refused, giving as his reason his intention to go to America.

Coughs, Colds, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS.

103, LOWELL MARSH, S.E. 5, Leather Lane, HOLBORN, E.C. 156, NEWINGTON BUTTS, S.E. 128, LAMBETH WALK.

Where you can spend a pleasant evening and hear the finest Electric Piano and Gramophone in England in the Saloon Bar, which is known as the Best in South London.

plates, 2s. Half-price given for all books returned. Catalogue Gratis and Post Free. LOOMES, WESTMINSTER BRIDGE ROAD, (NEXT DOOR TO THIS HALL.)

Monday, Dec. 6th, 1909, and during the week.
Doors Open 7.30. Commence 7.45.

1. OVERTURE... "Tancredi" ... Rossini. Musical Director ... A. W. LEGGETT
2. LES PANDOS, Speciality Act.
3. HENRIQUETTE MAUDE, in her Dramatic Scene, "LASCA."
4. ARTHUR AISTON, Comedian.
5. THE ARNTES, America's Coloured Vocalists and Expert Dancers.
6. JESSIE BERG, Violinist.
7. TED WAITE, Comedian.
8. GRACIE GRAHAME, London's Original Comedienne.
9. HARRY NORTON & JOHN M. CASTLE, in a New and Original Farceical Comedy Act, "UNCLE'S SOCKS"
Mr. Samuel D. Jenkins ... JOHN M. CASTLE
Mrs. Jenkins ... Miss ADA DUMVILLE
Milly ... Miss NANCY HARDING
Jim Oiley, Taxi No. 2,000. HARRY NORTON
Scene ... Mr. JENKIN'S FLAT.
10. JACK LORIMER, Scotch Comedian.
11. ANNIE PURCELL, the Favourite Comedienne.
12. SAM MAYO, "Standstill" Comedian.

Manager—Mr. ERNEST LEPARD

PROGRAMME - 1d.
Subject to alteration.

In accordance with L.C.C. requirements

- (a) The public may leave at the end of the performance by all exit doors, and such doors at that time must be open.
- (b) All gangways, passages, staircases must be kept entirely free from chairs or any other obstruction
- (c) Persons must not be permitted to stand or sit in any of the intersecting gangways, and if standing be permitted in the gangways at the side and rear of the seating, sufficient space must be left for persons to pass easily to and fro.
- (d) The safety Curtain must be lowered about the middle of the performance to ensure its being in proper working order.

GRAND CONCERT
Every Sunday Evening
At 7.30.

INTERVAL.

13. SELECTION... "The Beauty of Bath... Haines.
14. THE LEONARDS, in Original Creation, "AN INTERVIEW."
15. GROGIE, the Character Cove from the Country.
16. DORA LYRIC, the Ideal Populariser of Chorus Songs.
17. LITTLE GANTY, the Little Lump of Fun.
18. FRED KARNO'S Colossal Production, THE FOOTBALL MATCH
The Cup-Tie Final. Written by FRED KARNO. Music by J. H. Cleve. A Struggle for Supremacy between Midnight Wanderers v. Middleton Pie-Cans
The Cast includes the following Professional Footballers:—
GEO. HARPER (Birmingham), HARRY HARPER (Birmingham), JACK WEAT (Birmingham), JACK FITCHETT (Fulham), BILLY WRAGG (late of Brighton and Notts Forest), W. MILSON (Millwall), JACK JOHNSON (Derby), JOE CLARK (the Hibernians).
In addition to Will Poluski, Junr., R. J. HAMER, FRED ONZELLA, Gilbert Childs, Misses MARY YOUNG and JESSIE GREY, FRED NEWHAM and Charlie Chaplin.
Scene 1 ... Training Quarters at "The Bull."
Scene 2 ... Exterior of the Football Ground.
Scene 3 ... The Football Field.
Manager for Fred Karno, T. Ellis Buxton.
19. RUFFELL'S BIOSCOPE

THE HACKNEY FURNISHING CO., LIMITED.

Parties Furnishing should visit their West-End Premises, situated in the Finest Position in London.
103, 103a, OXFORD STREET, W. 25, 26, 27, GT. CHAPEL STREET (Adjoining).

Three Minutes from Tottenham Court Road

Regent Street.

London

Luncheons, Teas & Light Refreshments at Popular Prices.

Stanstead Bread Co., Ltd.,

MILTON ROSMER*Starring in*

"A Romance of Westdale,"
 "The Pointing Finger,"
 "A Woman of No Importance,"
 "The Amazing Partnership,"
 "Demos," "The Diamond Necklace,"
 "Belphegor the Mountebank,"
 "The Will," "The Twelve Pound
 Look," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

88, NEWMAN ST., W.1.

Phone - - - - Museum 5145

HUGH CROISE*Producer.*Sole Adaptor and Producer
of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address--

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H. MALINS, O.B.E.ProducerLatest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE,"
 "PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
 "SETTLED IN FULL,"
 "ALL THE WINNERS,"
 "WATCHING EYES,"
 "BLUFF," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
 26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

KINE CAMERA EXPOSURE METER7/8With Instruction
Booklet.Indicates right lens
opening for the light."Very reliable,
could hardly get on without.""Complete satisfaction, used for testing actinic value
of flame arcs."WATKINS METER Co
HEREFORD.FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES*XII.—FLORA LE BRETON

At the age of 16 Flora Le Breton started her career by taking up Mabel Russell's part (at a few days' notice) in "London Pride," at Wyndham's Theatre, with Gerald du Maurier—a coster play. At this time she had just left the Academy of Dramatic Art, where she took the Scholarship and also the Silver Medal.

After that she acted on the West End stage in various musical plays. These included the parts of the comedy flapper in "Flora," at the Prince of Wales; "The Very Good Lady," in which she scored a success as Little Mariha; in "The Officers' Mess," at St. Martins; and a series of comedy parts in the popular revue "Bran Pie," at the Prince of Wales.

Then followed a tour through Canada in "The Maid of the Mountains," opposite Fred Wright, and on her return toured the London music-halls with Jack Esmond (son of H. V.) in "Eliza Comes to Stay." It was while on the boat en route from America that J. Stuart Blackton met her, and immediately engaged her for the comedy part in "The Glorious Adventure," in which she has been playing for the past five weeks.

Incidentally, we might add that she achieved fame on the screen for her work in the title rôle of "La Poupée," which was recently shown to the Trade.

It is pleasing to know that she has no desire to qualify as "The Second Mary Pickford," or "The Second Anybody Else." She has already become fixed in popularity as "The First Flora Le Breton."

KINEMA CLUB

Further meetings of the Formation Committee have been held, and the full scheme will be ready for submitting to a mass meeting of all artistes, directors, scenarists and cameramen, which is being convened in the immediate future. In the meantime, a Panel of Patrons (ten in number) is to be formed, and ladies and gentlemen who are interested in the British film industry are being invited to become patrons, as it will be necessary to have financial backing to the extent of £1,000 before the club can be launched. We do not doubt for one moment but what there are ten public-spirited ladies and gentlemen who will consent to become patrons of the club. It is essential that the hon. secretary is provided with the names of all who are desirous of attending the mass meeting, and to this end we again publish the invitation form, which readers are requested to sign, cut out and send along to him, care of these offices.

I desire to be advised of the date of the GENERAL MEETING of the KINEMA CLUB.

Name.....

Address.....

Will you also send notice of the Meeting to

Name.....

Address.....

Who, I think, will be glad to attend.

YOUR CORNERLETTERS TO THE EDITOR*The Club to the Rescue.

As an artiste, may I congratulate you on your efforts towards a Kinema Club that will be a very necessary help to us all.

Your MOTION PICTURE STUDIO is the only paper I have come across that tells the truth and points out the numerous unfairnesses and lack of talent, etc., we have to put up with in the Trade at the moment. One gets so tired of the directors' friends being "starred" almost before they are screened and of reading all the paid-for publicity they get. This the public takes in, and as a result looks for something wonderful from the production, which generally gets a bad slating in the decent papers and helps to decide the people not to go to theatres where British pictures are being shown.

It is all so heart-breaking for the few of us who are willing to work with all our power and energy to add our mite to the film Industry's progress, so the fact that a club is being formed to help work things out a bit is absolutely wonderful and gives one a whole lot of new enthusiasm.—IRENE CRAVEN

Artists to Assist Charity.

I notice in THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO a paragraph to the effect that a carnival was held at Brighton, and that many well-known English film stars were in attendance in aid of the local hospital, and another paragraph to the effect that another carnival was recently held in the Midlands.

While quite appreciating the need of the above hospitals, I think that the majority of the London hospitals are in the same position of being without funds, and I think—a view that is shared by many interested in the kinema—that if such an event could be held in London it would be well patronised by everyone. There are numerous places in and around London where it could be held, and with a small charge for admission, the sale of autographed photographs, etc., would bring a good sum of money in for any hospital concerned.

I would be glad if you would use the medium of your paper to see how the kinema world holds with the idea. Should such an idea materialise, I should only be too pleased to give my services in any direction that they might be required.—HU. FORSTER.

"The Lilac Sunbonnet."

In THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO you had a photo of Pauline Peters, announcing her as playing the lead in "A Lilac Sunbonnet." The artistes in the picture are Joan Morgan (lead), supported by Arthur Lennard, Lewis Dayton, Pauline Peters, Kate Phillips, Charles Levey, Nell Emerald, Forrester Harvey and Warwick Ward.—SIDNEY MORGAN

You cannot do better than by placing your orders with L. BENJAMIN & CO. 99, Middlesex Street, E.1.
 'Phone—London Wall 7568

GENERALITIES OF SUCCESSFUL PRODUCTION

Coming to this country with lengthy experience as the director of fourteen American features, George A. Beranger, a D. W. Griffith graduate, is able to write with authority on the ethics of successful film producing. We commend his views to all our readers.

No. I.

Of the elements that constitute a combined artistic and financial achievement in the making of a motion-picture play, were one to write a treatise on the subject, there would probably be about ninety-five, each demanding earnest consideration. All of these assimilated into the subconsciousness by practical experience, together with an enthusiastic regard for and practice of the potentialities that are the psychology of a great success, would, upon due opportunity, make the director an emancipator of his art from the struggles that now encompass it, and would turn on the steam towards making the industry of motion-picture production the sound and unprecedentedly remunerative business it has the undeniable possibilities of being.

Apart from one's personal tricks of trade, there are numerous generalities to speak upon, which should be precepts with everyone connected with motion-picture production; business-sense and the knowledge and closer observance of elemental technicalities cover them all.

In the first place brains far more than money make good pictures. Money cannot buy the things in any good picture that "get under your skin." "Over the Hill," produced for a "fig," literally, but teeming with substance, is an illustration of this claim. The picture ran a whole year in New York.

Lavishness, unwarranted, fails miserably in its mistaken potency, yet thrills when warranted. Simplicity, hand in hand with sincerity and the height of effort in common artistry, will ever reign supreme in achieving results; but coupled with the misuse of, or obvious incapacity for, these, presents squalor and nothingness, yet only a shade worse than any example of unwarranted lavish expense. The audience does not go to the motion-picture theatre to see, but to "feel." Of course, what they do see must harmonise with the elements that make them "feel"; but it is not seeing that keeps the spectator glued to his seat, it is feeling the portent of the forces presented him.

The director without the qualification of judicial economy or the capacity for ingenuity that makes him enthusiastic in its practice, is a weak pillar in the business structure, for it must never be forgotten and will soon be fully realised, that motion-picture production is a serious business, and the sooner the matter of judicial economy becomes ingrained, the better for us all. It is far from meant that a director should be restrained in effecting what would be a genuine potentiality in his picture, or that elements structural to the theme or forcefulness should be denied opportunity, but rather that a co-operative and sympathetic mutual broadness of vision and close good judgment should exist between the director and executive.

Of the common generalities: 1, the vehicle; 2, matériel; 3, personnel; 4, photography and technique; 5, peculiar elements of appeal.

Regarding the story, the fact will ever remain, "The play's the thing"; but, no matter how wonderful the "play," there are evils galore to make it rank and awry during the course of its translation into celluloid: Colourless presentation; slighting of opportunities afforded; obviousness of development; disregard and ignorance of the tricks of tempo; and lack of knowledge of the structural essentials. The great aim to "keep the spectator in his seat from start to finish" by the mute forcefulness of the command in what moves before him must be the basis of all our convictions and every move.

Bearing in mind that, after all, the things that make the "greatness" in a picture are not bought, the matter of "matériel" (equipment, settings and the like), is one which with practically all directors is the point of greatest concern financially. For a setting to be appropriate there are matters of greater import than expense, and, as it happens, each is an arbiter of economy; these are necessity, simplicity, thematic synchronisation and the appealing means of illusion by suggestion. For an object to invite attention we all know that surrounding profusion detracts from it; and likewise observance of the laws of composition, depth and perspective encourage economy more so than do expense.

CONCLUDING ARTICLE NEXT WEEK.

THE A.A. AND FILMS

That the film industry has thrown the whole of the theatrical business out of joint as far as the artiste was concerned, was the statement made by J. Grey at a meeting of the Actors' Association held on Tuesday. The statement rose out of a discussion on the possibility of enforcing a closed shop principle in theatrical ventures, and it was said by many members that the films were responsible for the influx of a large number of young people into the profession.

Mr. Grey said that the films were developing the "type" idea of acting, which was a bad one, and gave an instance of a young lady who had been engaged to play a part in a film production, although she admitted she had never had any previous experience. She had been engaged because she was the type that was required.

Another speaker, Mr. Terriss, said that he had recently been introduced to a film director with the object of securing an engagement on the films. When he was asked what he had done, he gave details of his stage experience, and was stopped by the director, who told him to try and forget he had ever been on the stage and they might be able to do some business with him.

Further discussion arose on the question of a cinema crowd call, and a member said many actors had waited for hours before they were told that the call was postponed. He had heard that this particular firm had done this kind of thing regularly, and that the whole business was a fraud. It was done to blind the authorities and to make them think that the firm was running an agency. He heard that these films were always postponed and eventually cancelled, and he stigmatised it as "a wicked business." Could not the Actors' Association do something in the matter? he asked.

TYPING—'Phone Regent 4747

"SPEEDAC" STENOGRAPHIC BUREAU

41, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.1.

Usual terms. Typing all classes: Authors' MS., Film Scenarios a speciality under expert supervision. Write, 'phone or call for quotation.

Proprietor—P. F. Buckle—Dictation Room.

The Historical Film must be accurately dressed.

• • •

We Stock Civil and Military costumes of all known periods. :: ::

• • •

"The Call of the Road," and "The Old Curiosity Shop," with their wealth of costume, detail and characteristics of their times were dressed by us.

• • •

Write to-day stating your requirements.

H. & M. RAYNE,
115-119, Waterloo Road,
S.E.1.

WEST END BRANCH: 15, Rupert Street.

THE BRAINS OF PRODUCERS CAMERAMEN AND ARTISTS ARE NO GOOD

if the negative is badly developed and the printing badly handled. Therefore send your work to a firm that understands. 15 years' experience behind every foot—sent out—

VICKERS FILMCRAFT Ltd.

Laboratories—Paragon Works,
229 ACTON LANE, W.4.

West End Offices

89 SHAFTESBURY AVENUE.

Telephones—GERRARD 4045 and
CHISWICK 132.

Vickers Filmcraft for continuity of quality.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for Kinematograph Productions. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

PRODUCTIONS AND WHO IS WORKING ON THEM

J. Stuart Blackton.

ADDRESS: Bush House, Melbourne Place, W.C.2.

STUDIOS: Now using Stoll's at Cricklewood.

FILM: "The Glorious Adventure."

DIRECTOR: J. Stuart Blackton.

STUDIO MANAGER: Challis N. Sanderson.

STAR: Lady Diana Manners.

SCENARIST: Felix Orman.

CAMERAMAN (Black and white): Nicholas Mursuraca.

CAMERAMAN (Colour): W. T. Crispinel.

TYPE: Ten-reel drama.

STAGE: Ninth week.

British Photoplay Productions.

ADDRESS: 28, Devon Chambers, Fleet Street, Torquay.

FILM: "Where the Rainbow Ends."

DIRECTOR: H. Lisle Lucoque.

STAR: West End Cast.

TYPE: Five-reel drama.

STAGE: Commencing.

Broadway Productions.

ADDRESS: West Nile Street, Glasgow.

STUDIO: (pro tem.) 132, West Nile Street.

FILM: "Football Daft."

DIRECTOR: Victor W. Rowe.

STAR: Jimmy Brough.

SCENARIST: Jas. H. Miligan.

TYPE: Two Reel Scottish Domestic Comedy.

STAGE: First week.

Direct Film Traders.

STUDIO: Ebury St., Victoria, S.W.

FILM: "Four Men in a Van."

DIRECTOR: Hugh Croise.

STAR: Johnny Butt.

SCENARIST: Hugh Croise.

TYPE: Feature Comedy.

STAGE: First week.

Famous Players-Lasky

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.

STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A. Bell, O.B.E.

FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."

DIRECTOR: Donald Crisp.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Claude H. Mitchell.

STAR: Donald Crisp.

SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.

STAGE: Ninth Week.

Hardy.

ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W.1.

STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isleworth.

FILM: "Bluff."

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.

STARS: Marjorie Hume, Lewis Willoughby.

SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.

CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.

STAGE: Sixth week.

Harma.

ADDRESS: Limes Grove, Croydon.

FILM: "Love in the Hills."

DIRECTOR: Bernard Dudley.

STARS: Marjorie Villis and James Knight.

CAMERAMAN: J. Mackenzie.

TYPE: Comedy drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling

Ideal.

ADDRESS: Boreham Woods, Elstree

STUDIO MANAGER: A. Kendrick.

STAGE MANAGER: J. Barnard.

FILM: "Married Life."

DIRECTOR: Georges Treville.

CAMERAMAN: Geoffrey Barkas.

STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: "Single Life."

DIRECTOR: Edwin J. Collins.

STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "Pickwick Papers."

DIRECTOR: Thomas Bentley.

STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "The Old Wives' Tale."

DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.

SCENARIST: Dennison Clift.

CAMERAMAN: William Shenton.

STAGE: Preparing continuity.

International Artists Films.

ADDRESS: 52, Shaftesbury Avenue.

STUDIO: B. & C. Studios, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

FILM: "The Night Hawk."

DIRECTOR: John Gliddon.

STARS: Malvina Longfellow, Henri de Vries.

SCENARIST: Gerald Ford Buckle.

CAMERAMAN: Will Howse.

STAGE: Seventh week.

Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate.

ADDRESS: Riverside Studios, Kew Bridge.

FILM: M'Lord of the White Road.

DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme.

STAR: Dawn Meredith.

SCENARIST: Gerald Ford Buckle.

Lambart Films.

ADDRESS: Carlton House, Regent Street.

STUDIOS: London Kinema Studio, Tuileries Street, Hackney Road.

FILM: "Romance and Reality."

DIRECTOR: Captain Harry Lambart.

STAR: Cora Goffin.

CAMERAMAN: C. T. Crapper.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Cutting and assembling.

Progress.

ADDRESS: Shoreham.

FILM: "Mayor of Casterbridge."

STAR: Fred Groves.

DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.

SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.

STAGE: Finishing.

Screen Plays.

ADDRESS: Cranmer Court, Clapham S.W.

STUDIO MANAGER: Douglas Payne.

FILM: Grand Guignol series.

DIRECTORS: Fred Paul and Jack Raymond.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Rodwell.

TYPE: Short melodramas.

STAGE: Producing one a week.

Sterling Films.

ADDRESS: 26, Dean Street, W.1.

FILM: "The Exclusive Model."

DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.

STAR: Molly Adair.

SCENARIST: Cyril E. Murrell.

CAMERAMAN: Edward Groc.

TYPE: Two-reel comedy.

STAGE: Casting.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Cricklewood

STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman.

FILM: "A Romance of Westdale."

DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.

STAR: Milton Rosmer.

STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: "The Lamp in the Desert."

DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.

CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "The Eleventh Hour."

DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.

STARS: Dennis Wyndham, Madge White.

CAMERAMAN: Al Moses.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: "A Lost Leader."

DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.

STAR: Robert English.

STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "The Experiment."

DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.

STARS: Evelyn Brent, Clive Brook.

SCENARIST: William J. Elliott.

STAGE: Sixth week.

Zodiac.

FILM: "Walter in the Studio."

STAR: Walter Forde.

TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Arfilodro, Hyde, London.

ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barnopho, Ealing.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow, E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD., Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clapham Park.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PHOTOPLAYS, Devon Chambers, 28 Fleet Street, Torquay.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolougue, 'Phone London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Harlem, Holland, London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exelugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012. Studio: Candlemass Lane, Beaconsfield.

GLEN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD., 20, Lisle Street, London, W.C., and "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16, Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.

IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Idealms, Borehamwood.

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS FILM CO., LTD., 52, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

ISLE OF MAN FILM CO., The Manx Studios, Isle of Man.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Cricklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).

LAMBART FILMS, Carlton House, Regent Street, London, W. 'Phone: Gerr. 4040.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MINERVA FILM CO., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

REGULUS FILMS: 48, Carnaby Street, Regent Street, W.1.

SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton 2566.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpie, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1933—Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMPSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGNTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & CO., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2362.

WILSONIAN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD. Secretary, W. J. Crook, 547, Wandsworth Road, S.W.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

The MOTION PICTURE

Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 15.

Saturday, September 17, 1921.

FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH MOTION
PICTURES

LIONELLE HOWARD

Leads in "A Wonderful
Year," "Street of Adventure," and other
Thompson - Astra
:: :: Productions. :: ::

All coms., c/o. SIDNEY JAY,
181, Wardour Street, W.1.
'Phone : Regent 4329.

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross," Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."
219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.

Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
'Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.
Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Sonia," "The Knight Errant," "Deimos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds."

Address—27, Eccleston Sq., S.W.1 Victoria 2968.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal). "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).
c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

Juvenile Leads: "Her Son," "Great Gay Road," "Lights of Home," "Land of My Fathers." Duane in "Belle of the Gambling Den" (Haigh Serial.)

OFFERS INVITED.

33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelm Foss Production). Latest Release, "With All Her Heart."

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, Regent 4329.

PHYLLIS SHANNAW,

Juv. Lead "Call of the Road," "The Right to Live," etc.

Will be shortly disengaged.
All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour St., W.1.
'Phone: Regent 4329.

JOHN EAST.

Character Comedy. Tele: Hammer with 1133.
14, Ilflev Road, Hamme rsmith, W.6.

ARTISTES

FLORA LE BRETON

34, NEVERN SQUARE, EARL'S COURT, S.W.5.

Phone: Western 1936,

See

Photo

Next Week.

HAYFORD HOBBS.

Starring with African Film Productions. Late Juvenile Lead: London Films (three years), Windsor Films (two years), and all leading English Film Companies.

All coms.: Box 4514 Johannesburg, South Africa.

ENA BEAUMONT.

Leads in "The Greater Love," "The Golden Web," "All the Winners," "Patricia Brent, Spinster," "Our Girls and Their Physique," "Settled in Full," "Watching Eyes," etc.

All coms c/o A. Fraser, 26, Charing Cross Road, W.C.2

SYDNEY WOOD,

Juv. Leads in "The War or Strain," "Her Peony," "Ever Open Doo," "Bars of Iron," "The Flame," "The Will," "Double Event," "David and Jonathan," etc.

Address—The Laurels Beverley Road, Anerley, S.E.
'Phone: Chancery 7080-7081.

MILES MANDER,

Light, Heavy and Juv. Leads. Modern, aristocratic. Extensive wardrobe. All-round ath etc. Now playing Marquis Sallust in "Half a Truth" (Stoll). Di engaged Oct. 1, 1921.

Address, 3, Clifford St., W.1.
'Phone: Regent 1327.

VICTOR McLAGLAN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES. LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs. NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc.

Carlton House, Kew Green, Kew, Surrey.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,

15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.

'Phone: Hornsey 1784.

ARTISTES

MILTON ROSMER

Starring

STOLL AND IDEAL FILMS.

Phone - - - - Museum 5145.
83, NEWMAN STREET, W.1.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House,"

"Wuthering Heights," etc.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

'Phone: Regent 4329

DICK WEBB

(Juvenile)

GAUMONT, MASTERS, FAMOUS PLAYERS

LASKY, BRITISH PRODUCERS.

180, Elmhurst Mansions,
Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc.
HARDY FILM CO.

All coms: c/o Sidney Jay,
181, Wardour Street, W.1.

LIONELLE HOWARD.

Three years HEPWORTH STOCK CO.

One year KENELM FOSS PRODUCTIONS

Latest Release "The Channings."

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

ADELINE HAYDEN COFFIN.

Sympathetic Mother, Grande Dames.

Character Parts, "Mrs. Gatty," in "Christie Johnstone" (Broadwest), "Margaret Howe" in "Beside the Bonny Briar Bush" (Lasky).
55, Campden St., Kensington, W.8.
Tel.: Park 3623.

CLIVE BROOK

24, Hyde Park Square, W.

Padd. 2868.

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com
197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph.: Battersea 21.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT,
Disengaged July 4. 'Phone: Walthamstow 938.

CHARLES CLIFFORD,
38, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.2.
'Phone: Regent 569.

CRISPIN HAY,
c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,
12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,
Character Actor. Offers invited.
114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

HARDING STEERMAN,
Characters of Distinction,
56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,
24, Cleveland Road,
Barnes, S.W. 13.

Editorial and Advertisement
Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 15

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

Sept. 17, 1921

Asking for It.

USUALLY this page is devoted to the expression of our own views on current topics, but this week the floor is held by a well-known writer whose name we are for the moment keeping to ourselves. The views he expresses are strong—but on the whole we agree with them. Artistes, directors, et hoc genus omne, will have their own opinions, and it is in the hope of spurring them to express them that we print the following.

* * *

What is Wrong?

THE kinema is no longer a novelty. This is a trite saying, but it is none the less a true one. It is no less true that kinema patrons are developing a distressing shyness when invited to swell the box-office returns. Most true of all is the fact that, wide as the appeal of the kinema is, it is still to all intents and purposes confined to those who from the beginning have constituted the main bulk of the audiences. The more intellectual sections of the public are not becoming more tolerant towards the screen, but less so. The combination of these three facts constitutes a very serious problem for the Trade. Who is to blame? Is it director or exhibitor? Or is it the kinema itself that is wrong? Various panaceas are put forward from time to time. Perhaps the most popular at the moment is: Advertisement. "Boost your films," say the Wise Men, "and watch the crowds roll up!" Moreover another popular slogan lately has been "Fewer and better pictures." Better pictures? Certainly. Fewer pictures? Not if at the same time these pictures really are better. In that case we want, not fewer, but more, many more.

* * *

Is it the Public?

WHAT is the matter with the public, then? It is simple; it feels it is being fooled all the time, and it is beginning to resent it. The so-called "highbrows" could not be deceived for long: they tried it and quit early. The rest are just beginning to wake up. If the public had a single voice with which to express thoughts and feelings at present somewhat vague and ill-defined, they would turn round to directors and exhibitors and say something like this: You have kept telling us that the film is a new form of art, and we are beginning to realise that after all it is nothing but an industry. You have kept assuring us that all your films are "stupendous," "supers," "masterpieces of screen art," and we have seen for ourselves that 99 out of every 100 are machine-made and crude, devoid of artistry and interest. You have persistently fooled your public, and now we are beginning to find you out. That is all." The "highbrows" would real difficulty is that brains cost money and that first-rate brains expect, quite properly, to receive big money. And until the Trade, in every department, assimilates this simple business proposition, it will languish, stagnate, and finally cease to count. The utter lack of imagination displayed is astounding. Big salaries will be paid to directors, studios will be equipped regardless (more or less) of expense—but there it ends. After that the constant cry is "Economise!" Apparently the general policy from this point onwards is to get a scenario written somehow, (fancy regarding it as a matter for congratulation, as happened not so long ago, that a complete six reel scenario was rushed together in well under 24 hours!) hurry together a group of actors (leave the casting largely to Providence), shoot the scenes at the rate of thirty a day, assemble the film anyhow, get the office boy to title it, and then hope to goodness that someone will buy it and the public will like it! Now this is all wrong, because the film is a new form of art. But in order for it to fulfil its destiny two things are needful—courage in experimenting, in breaking with tradition and trying out new paths, and a sane point of view with regard to what is extravagance and what is legitimate investment.

* * *

Better Scenarios.

ELABORATE settings, stupendous sets, all the trappings and decorations that too often pass for "technique" are sheer wilful extravagance if the basis of the film—the scenario—has been scamped. Spend £500 on securing a scenario that is a real story and not a few hints on film production, and more real value has been obtained than by the expenditure of twenty times that amount on building a set that would make even Griffith turn green with envy. As a matter of fact it would be cheap at twice that figure. We hear a great deal about "film technique," and most of it is the sheerest nonsense: for as a matter-of-fact no one has yet evolved any.

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"The Temporary Lady" (Minerva) is clean and pleasing comedy and is a welcome get-away from the crudities of slapstick. It can also boast quite an interesting story (Mill Wadham's scenario) with novel situations which, thanks to the careful direction, have been well developed. Photography is at times faulty, unfortunately, but the cast is of high merit. Miles Mander is a perfect male lead while Annette Benson's work in the name part is a polished performance. Arthur Claremont and Eileen Munro are the other two in the cast that are worthy of special mention.

"Miss Charity" (Master) has the merits of being well acted and excellently photographed, with beautiful scenery. Marjorie Meadows acts with admirable artistry, while Dick Webb evidences considerable histrionic ability. Jimmie Read and Joan Lockton are also good.

"The Croxley Master" (B.E.F.) is an excellent boxing picture which will be improved by judicious cutting. Acting and photography are quite up to par and Dick Webb as the star is worthy of mention.

"Her Greater Gift" (Globe) has its strongest point in the excellent artistry of the two leads, Lewis Willoughby and Margot Drake, while the photography is of a high quality.

"Land of My Fathers" (Glen) is noteworthy for artistic camera work and the choice screen craft of John Stuart and Fred Rains, the latter submitting a flawless performance, while George Leyton is beyond reproach as Lord Beulah. But L. G. Egrot scores the greatest triumph by his superb photography.

put it quite differently, but they would express a home truth none the less. They would simply turn round and say: "The film Industry is in danger of failing as an art, and therefore it is in serious danger of foundering as an Industry." This is solid truth. As an industry its only saleable commodity is entertainment value. Nowadays entertainment value spells Art. If the kinema Industry cannot produce Art it cannot sell its wares, for it has nothing anyone wants.

* * *

Is it a Solution?

WHAT is the solution then? It lies in one word—BRAINS. There is a widespread impression in this country that the kinema Industry is the only one that does not need brains; the truth is rather that it needs BRAINS more than any other industry in the land. The

ARTISTES

MARJORIE VILLIS.
Exclusive to Harma Photoplays, Limes Rd., Croydon.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,
Character Parts,
57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

SCENARISTS

ELIOT STANNARD
Scenarios.
85, Holbein House, Sloan
Square, S.W.1.
Tele. : Victoria 497.

COLDEN LORE,
Scenario Editor,
The Samuelson Film Co.,
:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,
Novelist and Photo-Playwright.
STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,
Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,
Scenario Writer.
Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.
7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11
(Phone : Park 2945).

GERARD FORT BUCKLE
Scenarios.
'Phone : Regent 4747.

41, Glasshouse Street, Regent
Street, W.1.

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,
Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
62, Foxburne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,
Kinedramatist,
Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

IRENE MILLER,
Novelist, Journalist, Scenarist,
10, Arundel Gardens, W. 11, or Bramlins.

CYRIL E. MURRELL,
Scenarist—Comedy,
Address : C/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO

MURIEL ALLEYNE. Screen Playwright.
Plays sold to Pathé, Hepworth, Barker, M.L.B., Clarendon Universal, etc., Windsor Ho! Amersham, Bucks.

HELEN & THOMAS BIZZARD
Original Story and Continuity Writers
Address M.P. STUDIO.

STUDIO MANAGER

JOHN A. GEEVES,
Studio Manager—
B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,
Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
Telephone : W'stow 364."

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,
14a, Little Ealing Lane,
:: South Ealing ::
'Phone : Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,
Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
"The Face at the Window."
Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON
Producing for Stoll Picture Pro-
ductions, Ltd.
Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,
Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT
GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE
LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and
"CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."
Five years producer in America. At Liberty.
Address: 20, COLVILLE TERRACE, BAYSWATER,
W.11.

S. L. GLENISTER
Professionally Major Comnenus-Palæologus.
PRODUCER, TECHNICAL & ART DIRECTOR.
"Under the Crescent," "Dumb Girl of Portici,"
"Campbells are Coming," "Where are My Children?"
etc., for UNIVERSAL. "The Arab," for LASKY.
"Less than Dust," for ART-CRAFT, etc., etc. Open
for Engagement. Address: 25, Randolph Crescent,
W. 9. 'Phone : Paddington 3819.

GRACE ROSE
Assistant Producer
THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.
Address : B. & C. STUDIOS,
Hoe St, Walthamstow, E.17.

ADRIAN BRUNEL,
Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone : 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK,
Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

ALBERT WARD,
Producer—Open to accept engagements.
3, Ranelagh Grove, S.W.1.

PUBLICITY

F. J. STANDERWICK,
Photographer.
I am making a speciality of Catering for
Film Artists. 'Phone for appointment—
Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio
—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
W.14.

FRANK J. WOOLF
Publicity Representative,
British and Colonial Kinematograph
Company, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
Telephone : Walthamstow 364.

PRODUCERS

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer
of
"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—
c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H.
MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions :
"THE GREATER LOVE."
"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
"SETTLED IN FULL,"
"ALL THE WINNERS,"
"WATCHING EYES,"
"BLUFF," etc.

All coms. : c/o A. FRASER,
26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2
FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

Negative Developing and Printing is an Art.
We look upon it as such. Our work will tell you so. We know that Producers and Cameramen require a firm that will specialise for THEM. This is our object. Send it to Vickers and rest assured.

VICKERS FILMCRAFT Ltd.

Laboratories—Paragon Works :
229, ACTON LANE, W.4.

West End Offices :
89, SHAFTESBURY AVENUE.
Telephones—GERRARD 4045 and
CHISWICK 132.

Vickers Filmcraft for continuity of quality.

The Biggest Successes have BENJAMIN COSTUMES

PERSONAL SUPERVISION GUARANTEED
in every detail. 'Phone—London Wall 7568.

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

Henry Arthur Jones, who, I suppose, has no reason to complain of his association with the film world, has been writing in the daily Press on the curious by-result of the war that a group of American film stars are to-day the best-known figures in England; but he hastens to point out that the reason to some extent is that "English film directors were cruelly disadvantaged by the war, and have scarcely yet recovered from its disabilities and restrictions."

* * *

Then he goes on to pay tribute to our directors, who have shown us "most interesting and conscientious work." At the same time, "our English firms seem at present to lack the dashing, devouring enterprise of the American directors." But I am not absolutely convinced that we are much the poorer for the absence of the enterprise that Henry Arthur Jones so aptly calls "devouring."

* * *

When he turns to the question of acting he begins to get really interesting. He truly remarks that "film acting, as distinguished from play acting, has not yet reached a high general level in England. For the most part our film actors are still on the stage rather than in the film. We have our accomplished and attractive English film actresses, whom I here salute and felicitate. But English actresses do not seem to take so naturally and incisively to the technique of the film." There seems quite a good percentage of truth in these criticisms, although I fully expect to find my readers rushing in the arena to cross pens with the novelist.

* * *

"The Lilac Sunbonnet" sounds a peaceful enough title for the latest Progress film, but Pauline Peters, who has just returned from Loch Katrine, where she has been playing in scenes for this, says that actions speak louder than titles. Her trip was a series of adventures. On the first day she lost her way on the moors. Then, one evening when work was finished, she and another actress playing in the film took a boat out on the Loch. They explored a backwater and suddenly found that they had entered the rapids. The boat whirled round and round, and both Pauline and her friend were drenched with water. They shouted for help, but no one heard them, and eventually they decided they could not escape being drowned. Luckily, however, a huge tree branch came rushing down stream, caught their frail craft and drove it stern on into the muddy bank. On the morning of their departure the car caught fire and they just escaped being badly burned!

* * *

One of the biggest sets yet staged in this country I saw at the F. P.-Lasky studio last week in the Drumtochty Castle banquetting scene in "Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush." Twenty pipers attached to the Scots Guards and the London Scottish stationed at Victoria Barracks, Windsor, provided the dance music. Asked whether he had ever done picture-work before, the gallant pipe-major modestly admitted that he and his men had "done a wee bit" in the official picture of the "Battle of the Somme," but this was his first "star" picture. And this particular scene was excellently acted,

OUR LETTER LIST.

Letters await the following at the offices of this journal. A stamped addressed envelope should be sent with applications. No charge is made for the use of this service.

Jack Daring,	Henry Edwards
Christine Silver,	Teddy Hayes,
Daisy Burrell,	Victor McLaglen
Lillian Braithwaite,	Kenneth Friese Green.
Langhorne Burton.

ON THE FLOOR

With E. J. COLLINS

Edwin Collins is one of the pioneer directors, coming into the profession when it was in long clothes! He directed pictures with Crick and Martin long, long before such a word as "super" was ever known in connection with films.

Collins' first success was a boxing picture—about the first boxing picture screened in this country, called "A Sporting Chance." Since then much traffic has passed up Wardour Street.

Edwin Collins, an actor primarily, is very temperamental, and undergoes much mental wear and tear in his conscientious endeavour to get the best out of the artistes, the staff and—the weather!

He literally pours himself out over a production, during which time his horizon is bounded only by the work in hand. His artistic nature is easily affected by the ups and downs of a director's life, but with him the film is the thing, and the physical and mental output is only one of the necessary means with the end in view.

Unsparring about himself, he looks for the same from everyone else in the production by the artiste or artisan.

because the "players" (in two senses) were being absolutely (if rigidly) natural.

* * *

British productions are capturing the world's markets, as we have said they would. At the luncheon following the Press show of Ideal's "Battle of Jutland" film it was announced that the rights had been sold for five countries, including U.S.A.; and now I am informed by Mr. Welsh that the Welsh-Pearson film, "Squibs," has been sold for all the world with the exception of U.S.A. "The Puppet Man," which B. and C. has just finished, has been fortunate enough to get into the hands of F.B.O., which leading firm of renters, is very judicious in its selection of features. There is every appearance of a big pro-British tendency in the world's film markets.

* * *

According to the Indian Film Gazette J. Stuart Blackton has advanced the interesting theory that "people who are descended from aristocratic stock, such as Lady Diana Manners, whom he is introducing on to the screen, are born film artistes. Whilst developing their personalities and talents in the social world, they are fostering the very attributes which make for success in film acting." I am very much tempted to comment on this, but will refrain, except to suggest that in future a super-super production can quite easily be made by using an all-star cast—chosen from Debretts!

* * *

Eugene Brieux, the famous French dramatist, is of the opinion that the function of the kinema is to augment the theatrical stage. It "should show us that which the author, owing to the limitations of the stage, cannot show us." With which statement I thoroughly agree, but I do not like the notion of using the kinema to help the stage out. He adds that one day the film genius will come along and cause the film to soar to its zenith, but that genius must possess, he says, one quality: "He must never have been to a theatre." M. Brieux also says that what is retarding the development of the kinema is that "the theatre came first." I wonder what he really means? "MEGAPHONE."

Where they are and —————

Joan Lockton has now finished playing female leads in "The Haigh Serial," which Edward R. Gordon has been directing at Masters.

Nadine Marsh is in the cast of Temple Comedies.

Joe Bamberger is directing the production of Walter Forde Comedies.

Mary Odette is starring in "All Roads Lead to Calvary" for Thompson.

C. Hargreaves Mansell is playing for Seal in "Jessica's First Prayer."

Kenelm Foss is directing the production of "All Roads Lead to Calvary" (Thompson).

Frank Arlton is playing Tracey Tupman in "Pickwick Papers" for Ideal (Fryer and Rodger booking).

Frank Dane is playing St. George of England in "Where the Rainbow Ends," for British Photoplays.

Gareth Hughes has been named as a possible for the title rôle in "Peter Pan," which John Robertson is to direct for F.-P. Lasky.

Colette Brettel has been booked by Fryer and Rodger to star in an Italian production by Armenian Films, and she is now in Milan.

Isabel Jeans (daughter-in-law of the Bishop of Birmingham) has just finished playing the vamp part in "Romance and Reality" (Lambart).

Norah Swinburne has been booked by Fryer and Rodger to play lead in the Famous Animal Pictures for Haekenbach. She has proceeded to Dresden for this engagement.

Bertram Burleigh is leading man in "All Roads Lead to Calvary" (Thompson).

Phyllis Le Grand is leading lady in Temple Comedies.

H. G. Poulton has an important part in Temple Comedies.

Horace Corbin is playing for Ideal in "Pickwick Papers."

Harold Bastick is chief cameraman for the Walter Forde Comedies.

John Parker is chief cameraman to Kenelm Foss on Thompson Productions.

Hugh Higson has been booked by Fryer and Rodger for "Pickwick Papers" (Ideal).

Alice Crawford has now completed her contract with J. Stuart Blackton after a successful engagement.

John Zicchinis is playing Joe, the famous fat boy in "Pickwick Papers," which Tom Bentley is directing for Ideal (Fryer and Rodger booking).

A. Bromley Davenport has been engaged to play lead in the series of three reel comedies, which Bannister Merwin is to direct for Temple Productions.

Fred Le Roy Granville writes us from Arizona to say that he is making a picture with Peggy Hyland in the U.S.A. called "The Old Santa Fé Trail," and sends greetings to old friends in this country.

Phillip Brain, who was assistant cameraman to G. Pauli at Broadwest's studio for fourteen months, has just successfully passed the final examination in photography by the City and Guilds of London Institute. He was in the Army for four years, and has only been engaged in professional photography since the war. In 1920 he passed the elementary examination, and also secured the bronze medal. In passing the final examination he is also awarded the silver medal.

Minna Grey is in "All Roads Lead to Calvary."

John Miller is film editor to Thompson Productions.

Eileen Moore is now at Elstree playing for Ideal in "Pickwick Papers."

Grace Rose is assisting Kenelm Foss in the production of "All Roads Lead to Calvary."

Bramlins provided the full cast for "Love at the Wheel," which has just been finished at the Master Studio.

Edward R. Gordon is this week directing the 14th episode of the Haigh serial, entitled "The Case of a Packing Case."

PUTTING— ON THE

There is a decided dearth of good comedies. This is a world-shortage, and America is as badly off as any other country. So that England has an equal chance with U.S.A. in this matter. Walter Forde, who has been starring in a group of British comedies, writes on this subject.

We first start by writing the plot and a regular script and everything. When we are about half through the picture we generally re-write the plot and throw away the script!

The plot starts off with a thread of a story, just enough story to build gags into, and as we do not rely upon tricks or big effects to get my particular brand of humour over with our public, we must work out clever gags in sequences.

At last the story is whipped into shape, the sets built and the cast assembled. Believe me, the actors have to know their business to play semi-slapstick burlesque characters. Most of them are former Fred Karno boys, and they have had a thorough schooling through years of touring; they have got to be funny without trying to be funny. When we start shooting the trouble begins. It generally happens that the one particular gag we all thought so funny in the script is a wash-out when we come to play it. We take gag by gag, scene by scene, and get through a grilling day's work with many interruptions, through being forced to change make-up and re-make up again, powder my hands, etc.

As I do not use a moustache or anything of that sort on my face, it requires constant care to keep a smooth make-up under the hot glare of the studio lights, especially during "close-ups," when, of course, every little detail shows.

The next morning the entire cast, together with the director and cameraman are called into the projection-room to see the "takes" of the previous day, and sometimes it is heartbreaking to see the results on the screen. We took 22,000 feet to get 4,000 feet in our first two comedies.

TITLING SPECIALIST

Expert in handwritten work.

English or American Style.

G. T. SHEARMAN, Bentinck Road, Nottingham

what they are doing

Fred Morgan has been provided with a part in "Pickwick Papers" for Ideal.

Eille Norwood has joined the Hardy Company, and is playing lead in "The Recoil."

Lawrence Anderson has been booked by Sidney Jay to play in "The Recoil" for Hardy.

Lewis Willoughby has been engaged through Sidney Jay to play lead in "The Lamp of the Desert," which Martin Thornton is making for Stoll.

Harry B. Parkinson has just finished directing one of the episodes of the Haigh serial, entitled "Lost, Stolen or Strayed," and is directing the last episode, "The Man Who Came Back."

HUMOUR FILMS

All this takes time and money, but I have yet to see a good comedy turned out in a week. We can't do it, and we need to shoot this footage to get decent results. I think the failure of most British pictures is that they cannot afford to re-take the scenes, and they pass many a scene that could be improved upon by a re-take.

Then comes the final inspection of the finished film, when we discover that we have at least a thousand feet more than we need, and then we start re-cutting, and that's where everybody is sure that their own particular pet gag or "very best acting scene" is cut out and cast into the cutting bin to be forever forgotten.

After we have cut everything we can all agree on, we try out the film on the directors of the company and their friends. Again we cut, re-write and change a few titles to make the story a bit clearer, and then we call in an outside film editor, who knows nothing at all about the film or story, and we pay him a fee for criticising the entire production from beginning to end. He often suggests certain changes that call for a re-take. These are done, a new print made, both for here and America, then we are in the hands of the press viewers, as it is upon their comments that we must stand or fall.

It takes us five weeks to make a two-reeler, and about three weeks more to get it ready for its final showing, and in our spare time we work on future plots. Work is the beginning, end and middle of the whole business.

I read with interest in this journal a few weeks ago, that one English director hypnotised his artistes and various animals appearing in his film production. I wished my director, Joe Bamberger, could do that as we spent two days trying to make a horse nod his head to say "Yes" when making "Walter's Winning Ways," and it only runs three feet on the screen!

Wm. Mathews is in the cast of "Pickwick Papers" (Ideal).

Geoffrey Malins will direct the new Hardy film, "The Recoil."

Mary Dibley has just completed a part for Stoll in "The Fruitful Vine."

Anne Esmond has secured, through Jay's Agency, a leading part in "The Recoil."

Charles Clifford is playing in "Pickwick Papers" for Ideal, and was booked by Fryer and Rodger.

Clive Brook has just returned to town from holiday. This is his first holiday since being demobilised in 1919.

Joan Griffiths plays Jessica in "Jessica's First Prayer," which is being made for the Seal Productions. Sidney Jay is responsible for the booking.

Fryer and Rodger has been responsible for introducing most of the cast of Ideal's "Pickwick Papers," and has now been commissioned to cast the star and other parts in a French production.

Evelyn Brent was recalled by wire from Bournemouth, where she was holiday making, and left London immediately for Holland, where she is to star in "The Silver Lining" for Granger-Binger. (Sid Jay booking.)

Margery Meadow's latest feature is "Miss Charity," just presented to the Trade by Butcher's. She hails from America, and her first engagement was in New York, with Cosmo Hamilton's "Scandal," after which she was engaged for "The Dangerous Age." She then went to Los Angeles and played in pictures for Metro, Anita Stewart and Louis B. Mayer Companies, and finally came to England, playing with Owen Nares in "The Charm School." It was during the run of this play that Edwin J. Collins booked her for "Miss Charity."

George Dewhurst is still engaged at Hepworth's studios on scenario work, in addition to appearing in the cast of Hepworth productions.

Ralph Foster appears in "The Recoil" (Jay's booking).

Dawson Millward has a prominent part in "The Recoil" (Hardy).

Peter Coleman will play in Seal's "Jessica's First Prayer."

Margaret Hope has been secured by Sidney Jay to appear in Sinclair Hill's next Stoll production.

Phyllis Titmuss makes her first screen appearance in "The Recoil." Sidney Jay has secured her services for Hardy.

Bert Wynne is taking his entire company to Shanklin, Isle of Wight, where he will direct "Jessica's First Prayer" for Seal.

Percy Standing will appear in Sinclair Hill's next Stoll production. Mr. Standing's engagement was negotiated by Jay's Agency.

Beatrix Templeton leaves for the Isle of Wight on Monday, with the rest of the Seal company. She has been engaged to appear in "Jessica's First Prayer" by Sidney Jay.

Sidney Jay has had working this week Sidney Paxton, Kathleen Vaughan, Ernest Thesiger, Gerald McCarthy, Clive Brook, Arthur Cleave, Lewis Willoughby, Percy Standing, Margaret Hope, Dorothy Fane, Evelyn Brent, Zoe Palmer, Dawson Millward, Phyllis Titmuss, Mary Odette, Minna Grey, Campbell Gullan, Cyril Raymond.

Camera Bargains—Largest selection of professional and topical instruments in London, all makers—English, American and Continental. Write stating exact requirements special quotations post free, or call and inspect our stock, Cash or Easy Payment Terms. Apparatus accepted in exchange, Strict approval terms willingly.

THE KINEMATOGRAPH EXCHANGE,
81 Aldersgate Street, E.C.1.

ARTISTRY IN LIGHTING

by M. P. PROUT

THE object of photographic lighting is to arrange our sources of illumination (primary, secondary and tertiary, etc.) in such a way that the modelling of the features, figures, furniture and backgrounds is brought out clearly, pleasingly and faithfully.

What one considers a sufficiency another may not, and a loss of modelling which one will not tolerate another will not miss or even detect.

I witness a great number of films—having attended over 300 Trade shows within the year—and I assert that I have never seen any dark studio work where the front lighting has not been sufficiently over-sufficient to seriously affect the modelling. Moreover, I receive reports on the photography of every film Trade shown which I cannot attend, and they tell the same tale.

Read this report of a recent film from one of the big producing concerns in America: "The star's face suffers continually. Not once has it any modelling, and often no detail is observable whatsoever." This "star" is the brightest in the American firmament. Shall we say 10,000 dollars for the star with perhaps 1,000 dollars to some bungling electrician or pseudo-photographer to render all her work of little avail?

The present system of lighting sets was evolved (or tumbled upon) by electricians or illuminating experts, with perhaps some photographers (amateur or professional), but they could not have had any serious knowledge of the principles of photographic lighting.

It remains, in my opinion and in principle—notwithstanding its actinic strength—a glorified species of visual illumination, and I make the bold, but perfectly sincere, statement that, though the best of it can, by immaculate technical work, be made just possible, it cannot, contravening as it does most of the principles of photographic lighting, be good.

This system has been followed without any serious alteration in principle, but with sheep-like fidelity in every dark studio in England and America.

Take for example a middle-class room by day and by night. I take it that what we are desirous of imitating are the best forms of natural and artificial lighting. Now the best lighted middle-class room I ever struck was in very fact lighted—why not?—by a skylight. The light in it was so good that it was hired by a celebrated portrait painter.

The best form of artificial illumination is what is known as "indirect." It is too expensive (especially with the cost of living "up" fourpence a bottle) to be much adopted, but it is the best. Now if these two "bests" be photographed it will be difficult to say which is which.

And why should there be any difference?

Should we not endeavour in lighting our rooms to copy as far as possible the light by which, through all the ages, our canons of art have been formed, the light by which those old seers, the authors of "Genesis," were able to see that some "were fair"—and some dark, doubtless—the same as now?

The whole thing is made clearer when we come to consider the function of spot-lights. These lights are used in extenuation of a faulty system—a system which involves the use of so much front and low angle light (from floor stands) and so close to the figures that its illumination (in accordance with the law of inverse squares) falls off so rapidly that the resulting flatness produces (in addition to an unpleasing lack or perversion of modelling) what, for want of a better word, we will call a very un-stereoscopic effect.

Hence our halo-maker—or "makers," for I have counted as many as eight in use, following, with tolerable accuracy, the movements of various artistes—the air above their heads resembling the search-light effects of war-time nights—an effect, by the way, that I have never noticed in "natural lighting." Spot-lights do ameliorate this un-stereoscopic effect, though that they effect any improvement in other respects can, I think, only be the opinion of a small minority.

New Series.MY PROUDEST PRODUCTION
III.—GEORGES TREVILLE

The film of which I am most proud is "Chrysalis," a film written and directed by me some years ago, under conditions which would seem impossible to-day. It is because of these very difficulties, of the lack of the wherewithal, and of the absence of a well-equipped studio, that I am proud of "Chrysalis," for the result was successful far beyond my expectations.

The scenes were laid partly in Morocco and partly on the coast of Normandy and the scenario provided a fire on board a yacht, a shipwreck, episodes in the wilds of Africa, a miraculous catch of fish, and scenes of society life in France!

Nowadays such a film could not be produced for less than £50,000—the sum at my disposal was about 50,000 francs! This was in the bad old days of cheap film production.

The scenes in the African desert were taken in the wonderful sand dunes of the South of France, the oases were manufactured out of artificial palms, cactus and fig trees turned out by an excellent firm in Paris, and no one could have guessed they were not the genuine article.

The scenes of the stampede on the ship were taken on board the yacht of an English friend cruising in our waters, and the burning of the ship, most realistically achieved, was the sacrifice of a diminutive replica of the actual ship beautifully made by a Parisian sculptor, who charged me 250 francs 45 centimes for that work of art!

And no one could have guessed the ship on fire was a mere toy.

The cast was almost entirely composed of pals of mine, who consented to act for my film on very special terms, and the play was arranged and directed in nine weeks—the duration of my summer holiday!

SUBTLETIES
AND SLEDGEHAMMERS

In a recently shown British film a girl elopes in her father's clothes, and the subtitle was, "She runs away in her father's suit." Would it have been better for the sub-title to have read, "Flees in father's pants."?

* * *

Poverty is better than debt. It is better to go without something than to go without sleep over something.

* * *

One titled gentleman in the producing business (identity thus revealed) received a 500,000-word synopsis from an embryo-scenarist and returned it with a note saying, "I lost no time in reading it." Now, what did he mean?

* * *

Arguments do not convince—co-operation is the thing that is needed in film production. Argument is an evidence of antagonism; the mule nature in man. And mules kick, whereas horses pull together.

* * *

There is quite a miniature battle in progress at one studio where the studio manager forbids smoking while the juvenile lead persists in sucking his briar. Perhaps it will end in a draw.

* * *

Producing films is a risky business financially. Sometimes men will find themselves flat on their backs. But if they are wise they will find that in that position they are looking up.

* * *

The Chief Constable and everyone else at Brixham is flying into print in the local papers to marvel at the decrease in crime in the locality. But why marvel—has not the International Artists' influence been at work?

* * *

FOR THE TRADE.

When the clouds are dark and leaky,
And your courage dank and streaky,

When the world looks like a note that's overdue,
When your business takes to shrinking,
And your courage takes to sinking,
Remember that the fight is up to you.

* * *

Jumping from one job to another and another for a bit more pay proves nothing more than that you are a jumper.

* * *

When an unnamed assistant-director complained to his chief about his treatment at the hands of the firm, the chief said: "Don't nurse your troubles—go home and nurse the baby." But what's the difference?

* * *

There are heaps of In-a-Hurry-to-Die folk in the film business. Too much elbow lifting, lard on the liver, fat round the heart and money-mania are clipping the edges off the lives of many men.

* * *

We can never usually believe census figures. But when we go to any casting director's office we are forced to believe the reports about surplus women.

* * *

Coming back from France recently Rex Davis had a bad Channel crossing and was soon heaving. If the captain had had a heart he would have ordered the ship to heave too.

* * *

Producing units need to remember that the man on the treadmill discovered that activity is not always progress.

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES XIII.—LIONELLE HOWARD

It is well over ten years ago when the subject of our front cover this week made his screen debut, so that he can claim to be one of the veterans of the British screen.

His first screen appearance in 1911 was in "Old St. Paul's" for Clarendon, and this was followed by "Southern Blood" and "Secret Life" for the same company. Then came a long run of successes in succession, seventeen well-known British features that have all had excellent runs, including such as "The Forest on the Hill" for Hepworth, and "Aunt Rachel" (just released) for Samuelson.

His most recent pictures are "Three Men in a Boat" (Artistic), "The Chancellings" (Masters), and a series of five-reel features which Kenelm Foss has directed for Thompson-Astra. These are "The Bachelor Husband," "The Headmaster," "The Street of Adventure," "Cherry Ripe" and "The Wonderful Year." His total number of screen appearances is now in the region of the century mark, and the parts are as varied in character, including "bad man," heroes and juvenile leads.

Lionelle Howard graduated on the stage with Charles Frohman, playing lead and principal parts in a whole string of comedies, etc., and eventually drifted into the stock company, playing at the Hippodrome and the Coliseum.

EINAR J. BRUUNS AFFAIRS

On September 13 this debtor (against whom a receiving order was made on a cross petition in June last) attended before Registrar Hope at the London Bankruptcy Court for public examination on accounts showing unsecured liabilities £1,681 9s. and assets nil.

In reply to W. P. Bowyer, the Official Receiver, the debtor stated that he came to this country from Sweden in August, 1919, and up to April last had been in the employment of various film companies as a director, his earnings latterly averaging £1,500. He attributed his insolvency to extravagance in living. Between August, 1919, and June, 1921, he earned about £2,800, and his household and personal expenditure for the same period was £4,481.

The following are creditors:—Anderson and Sheppard, £150; J. Allen, £81; Baxter and Salem, £300; Broadwest Films, Ltd., £100; Bluebird Motor, Ltd., £10; Bradburys, Ltd., £25; Castle Hotel, Ltd., £60; D. Curet, £10; —. Debie, £50; —. Delir, £75; Daimler Hire Co., £61; W. Dewsbury, £37; G. Fredrickson, £200; M. Elvey, £100; Humphrey Bros., £130; Mrs. N. Ritchie, £90; Turnham and Co., £50; Vineyard Motor Co., £40; Wilson and Gill, £10.

Partly secured creditor: Savoy Hotel, Ltd. (secured £60), £150.

TYPING—'Phone Regent 4747

"SPEEDAC" STENOGRAPHIC BUREAU
41, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.1.

Usual terms. Typing all classes: Authors' MS., Film Scenarios a speciality under expert supervision. Write, 'phone or call for quotation.

Proprietor—P. F. Buckle—Dictation Room.

GENERALITIES OF SUCCESSFUL PRODUCTION

Coming to this country with lengthy experience as the director of fourteen American features, George A. Beranger a D. W. Griffith graduate, is able to write with authority on the ethics of successful film producing. We commend his views to all our readers.

No. II.

The prime object of all theatricals is that of illusion. To create illusion we must convince, and to convince we must be sincere and observant of the laws of credence.

The matter of cast, the players and how they dress their parts, is half the battle. The characters must have clean-cut and decisive representations. It is all tommy-rot to imagine for a moment that an unsuited player can render himself suited by some mythic claim of extraordinary protean skill. Even when we portray squalor, we must paint it as would a great artist, in colouring that fascinates yet is neither gaudy nor overdone.

Both the male and female members of the cast must be attractive in physique and personality, and, however humble or otherwise, your heroine must be according to the particular character in hand, there should be no one else in the world quite like her in the matter of that physical and personal attractiveness.

Where the audience will in the majority forgive a little weak acting, few or none will forgive unattractiveness, unless, of course, the part specially calls for it. The prime demands of art, beauty and attractiveness, apply as much in motive to squalor as they do to luxury; and those who might unthinkingly contend that there can be no beauty in squalor are far removed indeed from any fine conception of art.

Again, clothes, apart from the matter of being appropriate to the character represented, must blend with the particular personality of the player to fine limits; and, particularly in the case of your heroine, always suggest immaculate sweetness. Where a like personality, either male or female, is cast to represent a character, the fact of the personality of the character being represented by a like personality will do wonders towards creating perfect illusion, for there is in such a case no energy on the part of the player in that respect to chance being obvious, and a great obstacle removed from the way of getting over his or her business in a manner that will readily and forcibly convince.

Photography can make or break the result of all the effort expended upon a production. Lighting is just as essential to the work as is a director's conception of the potentialities of his picture. It can turn a discrepancy in material into an advantage, it is a powerful medium towards a perfect thematic synchronisation, and a knowledge of its tricks allows of beautifying the ungainly, their ignorance making ungainly what is beautiful.

The system of "long-shot, medium-long-shot, three-quarter, close-up and insert" all have a relation with distinctive advantages lost when administered unsympathetically one way just as much as the other.

There is, perhaps, no sane person in the business whose very first concern does not embrace the peculiar points of appeal in the story in hand. A child will enthuse over an extraordinary small detail in a story, as will many grown-ups, and this fact while the foundation of a principle of skill saving many an otherwise colourless production, must be guarded against lest it blind one to the real emptiness of the story. There are really few stories worth while at all that do not present some possibilities for potentiality, and it is for us to recognise these possibilities and adjudge whether or not they warrant the story being made into a motion-picture play.

NEGLECTING OUR SCENERY

Gibson Gowland, the actor who played the part of Silent Sepp in Stroheim's "Blind Husbands," is the latest arrival in this country from America. Unlike so many of our visitors here at present, he is an Englishman, and talks without the American accent.

It has always been my ambition, Gowland told a Motion Picture Studio representative, to appear in pictures in this country. I believe that there is a great future for the producing side of the business in these isles. The advantages this country possesses over all the others is very obvious. Why these advantages have not yet been made use of is beyond me. The stock phrase is the English climate, but you have good weather for six or nine months out of the year, and when the bad weather comes on, what is wrong going to the South of France?

So far as I can see, the English director goes about in fear and trembling of travel. In America (now note this carefully, because it has a lot to do with the excellent quality of the films being turned out by the States) a director thinks nothing of going, say, a thousand-mile journey for his exterior scenes.

In "Blind Husbands" everyone remarked on the wonderfully realistic scenes in the Alps. Some people refuse to believe that these scenes were actually taken in California. Yet such is the case. The location was discovered by Stroheim, 150 miles from Universal City, where the studio is located. The location had never before been used on a film. We had to take all our baggage to a little town near the mountain, and then we had to have an army of men down from Universal City to cut a trail four miles long through the wood at the foot of the mountain, or Pinnacle, as we called it. Every day we had to climb to the top of the Pinnacle, and by the time we got up there we only had an hour to 'shoot' in before starting for the base again.

I give you this merely to illustrate what can be done if a little trouble is taken. Not that one hundred and fifty miles is regarded as a long distance for a company to go for exteriors.

Why don't the English directors make a point of getting away from Hackney and Stepney when they want exterior scenes? Look at the scenery you have quite close to you. France, Germany, Italy, Algiers, or even Egypt. Why can't these places be used? They may be considered far off, but the English director, in order to make successful pictures, should get all idea of distance out of his head. Besides, he can go to Algiers, or wherever his exteriors are laid, during the months that it is too foggy to film in England.

I am going to make pictures here, of which you will hear more anon, and you can take it from me that I will see to it that the wonderful scenery which hedges us on all sides will be made use of.

CAMERAMEN AT WORK

The Historical Film must be accurately dressed.

⊙ ⊙ ⊙
We Stock Civil and
Military costumes of all known periods. :: ::

⊙ ⊙ ⊙
"The Call of the Road,"
and "The Old Curiosity
Shop," with their wealth
of costume, detail and characteristics of their times were dressed by us.

⊙ ⊙ ⊙
Write to-day stating your requirements.

H. & M. RAYNE,
115-119, Waterloo Road,
S.E.1.

WEST END
BRANCH: 15, Rupert Street.

George Woods-Taylor writes:—One of our members mentioned to me the terrific speed at which most of the films are run at numerous shows. As he truly says, "What on earth is the use of one perfecting himself in even a correct turning when the showman ruins the animation by running at nearly double speed?"

Recently, in a first-class London house, we saw a film through (of which we happened to know the exact length). The time worked out at 28 pictures per second; we checked the time through a second time, with the same result.

Might I suggest that a sub-title be included with, or after, the "Main," giving the time the reel should take to show. The patrons of the picture palaces would soon get into the habit of timing the films, and would only patronise those shows which ran to time.

The meetings of the Kine-Cameramen's Society will in future take place once a week. The next meeting is September 23.

I met an American director, who is staying in London at present. He wanted to know why we did not use the famous London fogs to better advantage. "In America," he told me, "we have almost as much fog as you get here in London, but we use it to better advantage than you do. Have any of the English cameramen ever tried to get effects with fog? You can get some very beautiful shots in a fog if you go about it in the right way. You can get a nice effect if you turn your camera round to face the sun, then get your reflectors at the back of the camera and play them on the artistes. The result is wonderful. The trees in the background look like etchings, and the whole picture looks far more beautiful than the effects obtained with the ordinary out-of-focus or 'fuzzy' picture. The fog can be used to advantage in other ways, such as night scenes, etc."

George Woods-Taylor has been busy with the ultra-rapid camera, doing some work for Pathé.

A report has come to hand that "Jimmy" Taylor, of Gaumont's, has married.

MEN BEHIND THE CAMERA

VI. Emile Louis Lauste is a Parisian by birth, but was educated in the U.S.A. He was apprenticed to magic lantern and arc lamp work at J. B. Colt and Company, in New York, and joined American Mutoscope and Biograph Syndicate in New York in 1896, and travelled in 22 countries. Had been with Gaumont as topical and studio cameraman till the war, when he joined the French Army and won the Croix de Guerre in 1918. He has been chief cameraman to Welsh-Pearson for some time, responsible for the photography in "Garry-owen," "The Old Curiosity Shop," "Mary-Find-The-Gold" and "Squibs." He is an enthusiastic laboratory worker.

C A M E R A M E N

JOHN J. COX
44, Barrowgate Road,
:: Chiswick, W.4. ::
Phone: Chiswick 294.
Cameraman for Maurice Elvey,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD
Cameraman.
AT LIBERTY for First-Class Productions.
1920 Debie Outfit.
All Coms: 4, PERCIVAL PARADE,
WORCESTER PARK.

EDWIN DAY
Motion Picture Photographer,
12, Archer Street, Piccadilly Circus, London, W.1.
Telephone: Gerrard 780.
Telegrams: "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON
Thelton House, Cambolt
:: Road, Putney Hill. ::
Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN
"GAUMONT'S,"
105, King's Road,
Kingston-on-Thames.

C A M E R A M E N

FRANK CANHAM
Motion Picture Photographer.
Address: ROYAL FOREST HOTEL,
CHINGFORD, ESSEX.

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT
GAUMONT,
:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::
Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT
EXPERT CAMERAMAN.
Welsh Pearson, Diamond Super Films,
Ideal, Broadwest, Grangers, etc.
Dark Rooms and Offices:
2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.
Phone: Streatham 1969.

ALFRED H. MOSES
Photographing George Ridgwell Productions.
Formerly Chief Cameraman for Thanhouser,
Norma Talmadge, British & Colonial, etc.
Address care of STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS,
Cricklewood.

PHIL ROSS
Cameraman—AT LIBERTY
Late of BROADWEST, HARMA, VANITY, etc.
19, Mayow Road, Forest Hill,
London, S.E.23.

C A M E R A M E N

WILLIAM SHENTON
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address:
17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,
Boreham Wood, Herts.

HORACE M. WHEDDON,
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address
"LYNTON HOUSE,"
BOREHAM WOOD, HERTS.

JAMES E. ROGERS,
Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth.
"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"
"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"
"Last Rose of Summer,"
PRIDE OF THE FANCY, etc.

JACK H. ROSS,
Having just returned from a vacation in
South Africa, is now AT LIBERTY.
"Good consistent Photography is essential to Production," therefore get in touch with me.
Formerly with A.B. (America), Alliance,
Master, Samuelson Studios.
Wire or write, c/o Motion Picture Studio.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES,
UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for
Kinematograph Productions. Phone—London Wall 7568

YOUR CORNER

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Invasion of the Studio.

As the drowning man clutches at a straw, so hundreds of people are clutching at kinema work. But it is a delusion and a snare. In this country there is not a tenth of the necessary work for those who have spent their lives on the stage, and adopted the movies for a living, it is a lucky and much wanted man or woman who gets 52 days work in a year.

My greatest friend has been through the business, having directed over 20 films and played in over 100, has not averaged 52 days' work yearly in the last nine years, and he is a great actor and a much-wanted type.

I hope this will serve as a warning to the proposed ex-officer agency, and also to the ambitious screen-struck, titled, and other amateurs, who not only deprive legitimate artistes of their daily bread, but ruin pictures by the glorification of their vanity and inability. It is no Eldorado even for the experienced, and without experience 99 out of every 100 are no good whatever.—FORTY YEARS AN ACTOR AND DIRECTOR.

One of Many Such.

Permit us to say that we find the MOTION PICTURE STUDIO both useful and interesting.—FLEET PHOTOPLAYS, LTD.

Waited for Years.

I congratulate you on the usefulness of your paper to all studio collaborators. It is the organ we have been waiting for for years without knowing under what shape it should come out, and one can predict that it will be the official paper of the Kinema Club, when formed—which, I hope, will be soon.—L. G. EGROT.

Tuition Required.

As a premium-paying student I am desirous of learning all about film-acting and producing in England. I shall remain ever so grateful to you if you would put me in touch with some company or artiste who would not mind helping an Indian. Anticipating the pleasure of enlisting your sympathy.—W. N. W.

(Letters sent care of this office will be forwarded.)

Sun-Light Arcs.

We have read the paragraph on Sun-Light Arc Lamps in your issue of September 3 with interest, and feel sure it will be agreed that if any source of bright light near which persons were working on a dark night be suddenly switched off that it would cause temporary night blindness, which is of very short duration and not harmful, but the last three lines of your paragraph are apt to convey that the use of sun-light arc lamps is harmful to the artistes. This is not so if the lamps are properly used with diffusing glasses, which are always supplied. We can only repeat what has been said on many occasions; that is, we believe that every lamp specially designed in America for studio use is fitted with a diffusing screen, and no injury ensues if these are used.—DUNCAN WATSON AND CO. (Sole European agents for the Sun-Light Arc Lamps).

A Weighty Subject.

I read in the "Front Cover Biography" of your last issue that Gerald Lawrence weighs 15 stone. Now, it is very friendly and courteous of you to allude to me; and, believe me, I deeply appreciate it, but I do not weigh 15 stone—not even 14 stone—and I shall be glad if you will correct the impression you have created that I am on the way to be a rival to the fat man at Barnum's.—GERALD LAWRENCE.

STUDIO SPORTS

IDEAL v. REST OF TRADE.

After winning the Kinematograph Weekly Challenge Cup by beating the Pathé men—the cup-holders—by 228 runs against 56, Ideal challenged the rest of the Trade, with the following result:—

IDEAL.
H. Wheddon, b Hindmarsh.....	12
F. A. Kendrick, b Hindmarsh.....	28
A. Walton, b Golding.....	1
G. Barkas, b Golding.....	7
A. Simpson, c Ham b Golding.....	15
F. Hunter, b Hindmarsh.....	17
N. Phillips, b Golding.....	0
V. Alder, b Golding.....	13
C. Marlborough, b Hindmarsh.....	8
A. Puddephat, b Hindmarsh.....	14
E. Evans, not out.....	13
Extras.....	12
Total.....	140

Fall of wickets:—

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
38	43	47	61	68	84	86	107	107	140

Bowling:—

	Overs.	Mdns.	Runs.	Wkts.
Hindmarsh ...	18	3	81	5
Golding	18	6	47	5

REST OF TRADE.

S. Gunn, b Evans.....	0
J. Fisher, b Evans.....	0
P. Golding, b Evans.....	4
F. Smith, c Walton b Puddephat.....	25
H. Howman, b B. W. Evans.....	4
J. Cracker, b Evans.....	0
P. Hindmarsh, b Evans.....	15
C. Tokeley, b Evans.....	0
R. Fisher, not out.....	5
B. Ham, c Barkas b Puddephat.....	7
C. Kelly, b Puddephat.....	0
Extras.....	2
Total.....	62

Fall of wickets:—

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
0	5	14	22	24	47	47	53	61	62

Bowling:—

	Overs.	Mdns.	Runs.	Wkts.
Evans	16	8	19	7
Barkas	10	3	21	0
Kendrick	2	0	11	0
Phillips	2	1	5	0
Puddephat	3	1	4	3

All that is required, now that Ideal has beaten the Rest of the Trade, is to challenge the Rest of the World.

* * *

Will organisers of all social events run in connection with the British producing industry kindly advise us of the approach of such, so that they may be recorded in the studio's own journal?

The reign of King Cricket is practically at an end, and he is shortly to abdicate in favour of Football. Will sports secretaries kindly forward to this office news of the formation of football teams, and also future fixtures, which will be announced in these columns free of all charge.

* * *

Geoffrey Benstead, the film artiste, has offered to challenge any person to a billiards match, the proceeds to go in aid of any institution to be selected. Details of the match will be arranged when the challenge is accepted. Will those who are prepared to accept communicate with the Sports Editor?

WALTURDAW v. HEPWORTH.

Walturdaw's cricket team entertained visitors from the Hepworth studios at its Sudbury ground last Saturday afternoon. A very exciting game resulted in a win for the visitors by three runs. A. H. Nye secured 26 runs for Hepworth, and Mr. Harris 22 runs for Walturdaw. The total scores were:—

Hepworth	71
Walturdaw	68

George Dewhurst was an enthusiastic cricketer for the visitors.

CENSORS' CERTIFICATES

The following films have been submitted to, and passed by, the British Board of Film Censors, during the month of August, for exhibition in the British Isles, and have been passed as marked—"U" are passed for universal exhibition; "A" recommended more especially for adult audiences:—

"The Black Tulip" (Granger-Binger), "U"; "The Bigamist" (George Clark), "A"; "Demos" (Ideal), "A"; "The Fruitful Vine" (Stoll), "A"; "The Hound of the Baskervilles" (Stoll), "A"; "Wild Heather" (Hepworth), "U."

KINEMA CLUB NEWS

Preparations are proceeding apace for the inauguration of the Club, and it is expected that this event will take place well before Christmas. The Formation Committee is approaching various ladies and gentlemen who are known to be keenly interested in the advancement of the British Film Industry, with the object of forming the panel of ten patrons, as it will be necessary to obtain financial backing to the extent of £1,000 before the Club is launched. It is important that the Committee has the names of all who desire to be invited to the Mass Meeting that will be held for the purpose of explaining all about the Club, and for that reason we again print the form on this page, which should be filled in and posted to the Hon. Secretary, 85, Long Acre.

I desire to be advised of the date of the GENERAL MEETING of the KINEMA CLUB.

Name.....

Address.....

Will you also send notice of the Meeting to

Name

Address.....

Who, I think, will be glad to attend.

You cannot do better than
by placing your orders with

L. BENJAMIN & CO.

99, Middlesex Street, E.1

'Phone—London Wall 7568

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Productions and Who is Working on Them

J. Stuart Blackton.

ADDRESS: Bush House, Melbourne Place, W.C.2.

STUDIOS: Now using Stoll's at Cricklewood.

FILM: "The Glorious Adventure."

DIRECTOR: J. Stuart Blackton.

STUDIO MANAGER: Challis N. Sanderson.

STAR: Lady Diana Manners.

SCENARIST: Felix Orman.

CAMERAMAN (Black and white): Nicholas Mursuraca.

CAMERAMAN (Colour): W. T. Crespinel.

TYPE: Ten-reel drama.

STAGE: Finishing.

British Photoplay Productions.

ADDRESS: 28, Devon Chambers, Fleet Street, Torquay.

FILM: "Where the Rainbow Ends."

DIRECTOR: H. Lisle Lucoque.

STAR: West End Cast.

TYPE: Five-reel drama.

STAGE: First week.

Broadway Productions.

ADDRESS: West Nile Street, Glasgow.

STUDIO: (pro tem.) 132, West Nile Street.

FILM: "Football Daft."

DIRECTOR: Victor W. Rowe.

STAR: Jimmy Brough.

SCENARIST: Jas. H. Miligan.

TYPE: Two Reel Scottish Domestic Comedy.

STAGE: Second week.

Direct Film Traders.

STUDIO: Ebury St., Victoria, S.W.

FILM: "Four Men in a Van."

DIRECTOR: Hugh Croise.

STAR: Johnny Butt.

ENARIST: Hugh Croise.

TYPE: Feature Comedy.

STAGE: Commencing.

Famous Players-Lasky

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.

STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A. Bell, O.B.E.

FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."

DIRECTOR: Donald Crisp.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Claude H. Mitchell.

STAR: Donald Crisp.

SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.

STAGE: Tenth week.

Hardy.

ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W.1.

STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isleworth.

FILM: "Recoil."

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.

STARS: Eille Norwood.

SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.

CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.

STAGE: First week.

Harma.

ADDRESS: Limes Grove, Croydon.

FILM: "Love in the Hills."

DIRECTOR: Bernard Dudley.

STARS: Marjorie Villis and James Knight.

CAMERAMAN: J. Mackenzie.

TYPE: Comedy drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling

Ideal.

ADDRESS: Boreham Woods, Elstree

STUDIO MANAGER: F. A. Kendrick.

STAGE MANAGER: F. G. Knott.

FILM: "Pickwick Papers."

DIRECTOR: Thomas Bentley.

CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.

STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "The Old Wives' Tale."

DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.

SCENARIST: Denison Clift.

CAMERAMAN: Geoffrey Barkas.

STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "Shirley."

DIRECTOR: A. V. Bramble.

CAMERAMAN: H. W. Whadden.

STAGE: First week.

International Artists Films.

ADDRESS: 52, Shaftesbury Avenue.

STUDIO: B. & C. Studios, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

FILM: "The Night Hawk."

DIRECTOR: John Gliddon.

STARS: Malvina Longfellow, Henri de Vries.

SCENARIST: Gerald Fort Buckle.

CAMERAMAN: Will Howse.

STAGE: Nearing Completion.

Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate.

ADDRESS: Riverside Studios, Kew Bridge.

FILM: "M'Lord of the White Road."

DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme

STAR: Dawn Meredith.

SCENARIST: Gerald Fort Buckle.

Lambart Films.

ADDRESS: Carlton House, Regent Street.

STUDIOS: London Kinema Studio, Tuileries Street, Hackney Road.

FILM: "Romance and Reality."

DIRECTOR: Captain Harry Lambart.

STAR: Cora Goffin.

CAMERAMAN: C. T. Crapper.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Cutting and assembling.

Progress.

ADDRESS: Shoreham.

FILM: "The Lilae Sunbonnet."

STAR: Joan Morgan.

DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.

SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.

STAGE: Third week.

Screen Plays.

ADDRESS: Cranmer Court, Clapham S.W.

STUDIO MANAGER: Douglas Payne.

FILM: Grand Guignol series.

DIRECTORS: Fred Paul and Jack Raymond.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Rodwell.

TYPE: Short melodramas.

STAGE: Producing one a week.

FILM: "How Kitchener Was Betrayed."

STAR: Fred Paul.

DIRECTOR: Percy Nash.

SCENARIST: Norman Ramsay, M.A.

TYPE: John Bull story picturised.

STAGE: Second week.

Sea.

ADDRESS: Princes Studio, Kew.

FILM: "Jessica's First Prayer."

STAR: C. Hargreave Mansell.

DIRECTOR: Bert Wynne.

STAGE: Commencing.

Sterling Films.

ADDRESS: 26, Dean Street, W.1.

FILM: "The Exclusive Model."

DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.

STAR: Molly Adair.

SCENARIST: Cyril E. Murrell.

CAMERAMAN: Edward Groe.

TYPE: Two-reel comedy.

STAGE: Casting.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Cricklewood

STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman.

FILM: "A Romance of Westdale."

DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.

STAR: Milton Rosmer.

STAGE: Fifth week.

FILM: "The Lamp in the Desert."

DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.

CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "The Eleventh Hour."

DIRECTOR: George Ridgwell.

STARS: Dennis Wyndham, Madge White.

CAMERAMAN: Al Moses.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Fifth week.

FILM: "A Lost Leader."

DIRECTOR: George Ridgwell.

STAR: Robert English.

STAGE: Casting.

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Arfilodre, Hyde, London.

ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barnophio, Ealux.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow, E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD., Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clapham Park.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PHOTOPLAYS, Devon Chambers, 28 Fleet Street, Torquay.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolougue, 'Phone London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland, London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exelugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012. Studio: Candlemass Lane, Beaconsfield.

GLEN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD., 20, Lisle Street, London, W.C., and "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16, Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.

IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Ideiflms, Borehamwood.

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS FILM CO., LTD., 52, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

ISLE OF MAN FILM CO., The Manx Studios, Isle of Man.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Cricklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).

LAMBART FILMS, Carlton House, Regent Street, London, W. 'Phone: Gerr. 4040.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MINERVA FILM CO., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

REGULUS FILMS: 48, Caria y Street, Regent Street, W.1.

SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton 2156.

SEAL PRODUCTIONS.—Prince's Studio, Kew

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpic, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1933—Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGNTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & CO., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

The
MOTION PICTURE Studio

Registered at the
G.P.O. as a Newspaper
VOLI. NO 16.
SEPT 24 1921.

4^D

"THE NIGHT-HAWK"

A John Gliddon Production
for

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS FILM CO LTD
(Alan S Butler - Governing Director)

Malvina Longfellow as "Lydia Major"

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."

219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.

Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
'Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.

Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Sonia," "The Knight Errant," "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds."

Address—27 Eccleston Sq., S.W.1. Victoria 2968.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal). "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).
c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

Juvenile Leads: "Her Son," "Great Gay Road," "Lights of Home," "Land of My Fathers." Duane in "Belle of the Gambling Den" (Haigh Serial.)

OFFERS INVITED.

33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—

"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelm Foss Production). Latest Release, "With All Her Heart."

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street. Regent 4325.

PHYLLIS SHANNAW.

Juv. Lead "Call of the Road," "The Right to Live," etc.

Will be shortly disengaged. All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour St., W.1. 'Phone: Regent 4329.

JOHN EAST.

Character Comedy. Tele: Hammersmith 1138. 14, Ilfley Road, Hammersmith, W.6.

ARTISTES

FLORA LE BRETON

34, NEVERN SQUARE, EARL'S COURT, S.W.5.

Phone: Western 1936.

HAYFORD HOBBS.

Starring with African Film Productions. Late Juvenile Lead: London Films (three years), Windsor Films (two years), and all leading English Film Companies.

All coms.: Box 4514 Johannesburg, South Africa.

ENA BEAUMONT.

Leads in "The Greater Love," "The Golden Web," "All the Winners," "Patric a Brent Spinster," "Our Girls and Their Physique," "Settled in Full," "Watching Eyes," etc. All coms.: c/o A. Fraser, 26, Charing Cross Road, W.C.2.

SYDNEY WOOD,

Juv. Leads in "The Warrior Strain," "Her Feeny," "Ever Open Door," "Bars of Iron," "The Flame," "The Will," "Double Event," "David and Jonathan," etc. Address—The Laurels, Beverley Road, Anerley, S.E.

'Phone: Chancery 7080-7081.

MILES MANDER,

Light, Heavy and Juv. Leads. Modern, aristocratic. Extensive wardrobe. All-round athlete. Now playing Marquis Sallust in "Half a Truth" (Stoll). Disengaged Oct. 1, 1921.

Address, 3 Clifford St., W.1. Phone: Regent 1327.

SYBIL GRAY

Latest Films "Carnival" (Alliance), "Corinthian Jack" (Masters), "Haigh of the Yard" (White). All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour Street. Regent 4329.

VICTOR McLAGLAN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,

15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.

'Phone: Hornsey 1784.

ARTISTES

MILTON ROSMER

Starring

STOLL AND IDEAL FILMS.

Phone - - - - Museum 5145. 88, NEWMAN STREET. W.1.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

'Phone: Regent 4329

DICK WEBB

(Juvenile)

GAUMONT, MASTERS, FAMOUS PLAYERS

LASKY, BRITISH PRODUCERS.

180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc. HARDY FILM CO.

All coms.: c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1.

LIONELLE HOWARD.

Three years HEPWORTH STOCK CO.

One year KENELM FOSS PRODUCTIONS

Latest Release "The Channings."

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

ADELINE HAYDEN COFFIN.

Sympathetic Mother, Grande Dames.

Character Parts, "Mrs. Gatty," in "Christie Johnstone" (Broadwest), "Margaret Howe" in "Beside the Bonny Briar Bush" (Lasky). 55, Campden St., Kensington, W.8. Tel.: Park 3623.

CLIVE BROOK

24, Hyde Park Square, W.

Padd. 2868.

FARMER SKEIN,

At Liberty for LEADS or HEAVIES.

LATE LEADS with GAUMONT, Messrs. NOY, BENTLEY, CALVERT, etc.

Carlton House, Kew Green, Kew, Surrey.

POLLIE EMERY.

"Peach" in "The Case of Lady Camber" (Broadwest), "Auntie" in "Nothing Else Matters" (Welsh Pearson), "Madam Tourterelle" in "Perpetua" (Famous Players-Lasky British Productions).

7, KENYON MANSIONS, QUEEN'S CLUB GARDENS.

HARDING STEERMAN,

Characters of Distinction, 56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,

24, Cleveland Road, Barnes, S.W.13.

ARTISTES

MARJORIE VILLIS.
Exclusive to Harma Photoplays, Limes Rd., Croydon.

ARTHUR WALCOTT.
Character Parts,
57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.
197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph.: Battersea 21.

EDWARD C. BRIGHT.
Disengaged July 4. 'Phone: Walthamstow 938.

CHARLES CLIFFORD,
38, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.2.
'Phone: Regent 569'.

CRISPIN HAY,
c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,
12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,
Character Actor. Offers invited.
114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

SCENARISTS

ELIOT STANNARD
Scenarios.
85, Holbein House, Sloan
Square, S.W.1.
Tele.: Victoria 497.

COLDEN LORE,
Scenario Editor,
The Samuelson Film Co.,
:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,
Novelist and Photo-Playwright.
STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,
Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,
Scenario Writer.
Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.
7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11
(Phone: Park 2945).

GERARD FORT BUCKLE
Scenarios.
'Phone: Regent 4747.
41, Glasshouse Street, Regent
Street, W.1.

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,
Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
62, Foxbourne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,
Kinedramatist,
Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

IRENE MILLER,
Novelist, Journalist, Scenarist,
10, Arundel Gardens, W. 11, or Bramlins.

CYRIL E. MURRELL,
Scenarist—Comedy,
Address: c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO

SCENARISTS

MURIEL ALLEYNE. Screen Playwright
Plays sold to Pathé, Hepworth, Barker, M.L.B., Clarendon Universal, etc. Windsor Ho! Amersham, Bucks.

HELEN & THOMAS BLIZZARD
Original Story and Continuity Writers
Address M.P. STUDIO.

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,
14a, Little Ealing Lane,
:: South Ealing ::
'Phone: Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,
Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
"The Face at the Window."
Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON
Producing for Stoll Picture Pro-
ductions, Ltd.
Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,
Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT
GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE
LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and
"CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."
Five years producer in America. At Liberty.
Address: 20, COLVILLE TERRACE, BAYSWATER,
W.11.

S. L. GLENISTER
Professionally Major Comnenus-Palæologus.
PRODUCER, TECHNICAL & ART DIRECTOR
"Under the Crescent," "Dumb Girl of Portici,"
"Campbells are Coming," "Where are My Children?"
etc., for UNIVERSAL. "The Arab," for LASKY.
"Less than Dust," for ART-CRAFT, etc., etc. Open
for Engagement. Address: 25, Randolph Crescent,
W. 9. 'Phone: Paddington 3819.

GRACE ROSE
Assistant Producer
THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.
Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,
Hoe St., Walthamstow, E.17.

ADRIAN BRUNEL,
Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone: 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK,
Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

ALBERT WARD,
Producer—Open to accept engagements.
3, Ranelagh Grove, S.W.1.

STUDIO MANAGER

JOHN A. GEEVES,
Studio Manager—
B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,
Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
Telephone: W'stow 364."

DIRECTORS

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer
of
"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—
c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H. MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions:
"THE GREATER LOVE."
"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
"SETTLED IN FULL,"
"ALL THE WINNERS,"
"WATCHING EYES,"
"BLUFF," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2
FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

PUBLICITY

F. J. STANDERWICK,
Photographer.
I am making a speciality of Catering for
Film Artists. 'Phone for appointment—
Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio
—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
W.14.

FRANK J. WOOLF
Publicity Representative,
British and Colonial Kinematograph
Company, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
Telephone: Walthamstow 364.

KINE CAMERA EXPOSURE METER

7/8

With Instruction
Booklet.

Indicates right lens
opening for the light.

"Very reliable,
could hardly get on without."

"Complete satisfaction used for testing actinic value
of flame arcs."

WATKINS METER Co
HEREFORD.

The Biggest Successes have BENJAMIN COSTUMES

PERSONAL SUPERVISION GUARANTEED
in every detail. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

SUNLIGHT ARC EQUIPMENT.

❖ ❖ ❖

Mobile lighting equipments for illuminating interior or exterior locations up to 150 H.P. for hire.

Either Sunlight Lamps, Broadsides or Spot Lamps can be supplied.

❖ ❖ ❖

DUNCAN WATSON & CO.,
SPECIALISTS IN MODERN STUDIO LIGHTING,
62, Berners Street, London, W.1.

Telephone: MUSEUM 2860 (3 lines). Telegrams: KATHODE, LONDON.

Editorial and Advertisement
Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 16

Getting the Focus

Telegram—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

Sept. 24, 1921

Scenarists' Complaints.

IS there something peculiarly wrong with the postal service when it is entrusted with film scenarios, or is there a deeper reason why scripts are "lost" with so much frequency? Complaints from scenarists on this score are not an unusual feature of our mail-bag. Within the last few days, we have been asked for advice by several writers who have submitted synopses or scenarios, the delivery of which have subsequently been denied. In one case, the author mentions the names of two producing concerns—neither of which are now working—to whom he has delivered scenarios, and from whom he can now neither get satisfaction nor script. Two of the scenarists are in the same dilemma; they hesitate to submit the same material to other companies until they know what has happened to their missing scripts. One of the victims appears to be under the impression that if the story were accepted by a director, and someone else in possession of the missing manuscript used it, there would be complications.

The Simplicity of Copyright.

IT is possible that there might be, but they would not affect the author or the director who had legitimately acquired the scenario. For copyright is—and has been for some time—a simple matter, though many writers seem quite hazy about the position. Briefly, anything written becomes at once the copyright of the author, and subsequent publication is not a necessary factor. A story, synopsis, scenario—in fact, anything written, is copyright immediately it is written. Now the most amateur author would not submit a scenario without retaining a copy, and—unless the story is machine made convention—there should not be overwhelming difficulty in proving authorship if someone used the scenario or made a colourable imitation of it. There is, in any case, no reason why an author, whose script has been "lost in the post" or is being sat on by a derelict producing concern, should not send a copy of it to another director.

* * *

Coming to Judgment.

ON another page will be found an article containing some violent opinions expressed by an Italian artiste. He attacks directors, artistes, and everyone alike connected with British productions. The casting is wrong, the acting is bad, the directors are incompetent, and the stories are non-existent, appears to be the sum total of this gentleman's observations. What, however, is wrong is that the British picture-makers are suffering from too many advisers and instructors, and too little financial assistance. And in the case of supers sufficient to form a real crowd would cost too much. This and similar curiously short-sighted expedients are, however, not unknown, and in this one respect the diatribes of our Italian contributor have some reason.

* * *

Quaint Casting.

THIS contributor's ideas as to how casting should be done are not a little amusing. First he says our directors have no idea of casting, then that they must not allow studio managers to interfere with them, and finally that the casting should be done mutually by the director, author, and studio manager. We are very much of opinion that such a system would not result in anything being cast, because the opinions of the three would in most cases be irreconcilable. The director and the author might agree, but the studio manager would probably consider cost first. The suggestion that casts should be advertised for is not practicable, unless studios were to engage a staff to deal with the letters and photographs. Even then they would probably want another staff to deal with callers, aspirants and cranks.

No—whatever may be wrong with British production our contributor's suggestions do not offer any solution.

* * *

The Root of the Problem.

WHILE we have often reiterated that the foundation of the film is the story, yet there is a factor which really determines the quality of the story, and that is—money! Unfortunately there has been a great deal of good money wasted in British productions, and the result is a hesitation on the part of financiers to invest capital in British films. This is deplorable and is at the root of many of the defects in our productions; much of the justified criticisms levelled by the Press at British pictures is due to the fact that our directors often have to work under the heavy handicap of looking at every penny before they spend it. But there are evidences of more new capital coming into the industry.

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"The Penniless Millionaire" (Broadwest) is film melodrama relieved by Stewart Rome's artistry. The technical aspects of the production are in the main disappointing, and the work of the cast, with the exception of the star, below the average. Photography fairly good.

"Tilly of Bloomsbury" (Samuelson) is a good general attraction due to the amusing situations and clever sub-titling. Continuity is rather weak, but acting is on a high level. Edna Best is excellent in the name part, while Tom Reynolds gives a performance where facial expression counts considerably. Rex Wilson's direction is highly commendable, and the photography well up to standard.

"Vi of Smith's Alley" (Broadwest) is one of the week's best, thanks to the perfect artistry of Amy Verity and the skill of the photographer. Violet Hopson does not convince, but on Amy Verity's work is the stamp of high quality. Walter West has directed the production with obvious care, and the result is a fitting reward. Charles Barrett's story is not unduly original, but the continuity is quite good. Sydney Folker is excellent as Bill Saunders, and George Foley sustains the role of the father with great insight and histrionic ability. The scenic settings are picture que, and all the scenes have been very skilfully photographed.

the critic under review, we cannot help pointing out that all the defects with which he discredits British films, are rampant in productions of his own country, only more so. The point he makes about the interference of the studio manager with the director's requirements, however, is open to more serious consideration. Unfortunately the studio manager in some cases is responsible to a narrow-minded and impoverished executive for the production of five-reel "supers" at the cost of two-reel comedies (which, by the way, is what frequently results from the attempt to save money). But reasonable economy and the ludicrous cheese-paring which goes on in some studios, are two very different matters, and while it is reasonable to prevent a director from being violently extravagant, it is not reasonable to expect him to direct crowd scenes with six people, because

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

THE Ideal Company commenced work on "Shirley" a few days ago and Keighley is being made the headquarters of the company while in Yorkshire, and the scenes will be laid in the Spen and the Worth Valleys. The original of Fieldhead was Oakwell Hall, Birstall, in the Spen Valley, and permission has been given to use the building for filming purposes.

OUR LETTER LIST.

Letters await the following at the offices of this journal. A stamped addressed envelope should be sent with applications. No charge is made for the use of this service.

Jack Daring,	Henry Edwards
Christine Silver,	Teddy Hayes,
Daisy Burrell,	George Foley,
Langhorne Burton,	Kenneth Friese Green,
Langhorne Burton.	Esme Kavanagh,
Irene Miller,	Gibson Gowland,

GEOFFREY MALINS informs me that in connection with "The Recoil," his new production for Hardy, upon which he started work on Wednesday last, he has secured the use of a splendid Tudor Castle in Sussex, surrounded by 500 acres of beautiful scenery. There will be a regular Sussex atmosphere in the production, for many of the exterior scenes will be done in the vicinity of Horsham. He has also secured for one of his principal interior scenes a real old Tudor fireplace. Mr. Malins has designed all his own interior sets for the production, and some of them are very elaborate. The story has been adapted by Rafael Sabatini from his well-known novel, "The Dream."

* * *

OWEN NARES was in Edinburgh last week with "The Charm School," and in an interview with a representative of the Edinburgh Evening News, said that he had had a good many offers to go to America on the pictures, but he would not like to give up stage work—just yet, at all events. Asked for an expression of his views as to the relative position of screen work and stage-acting he said emphatically that there was absolutely no comparison. "One is a trick," he said, "that can be picked up, the other——" And then his manager interfered: "Say the one is art and the other is opportunity," an observation in which Mr. Nares smilingly acquiesced.

* * *

TO describe kinema acting as a "trick" is, most of us will agree, to cast a slur on an honourable profession and on a side of Mr. Nares' art which has done as much for his popularity as his stage work. It is ungrateful to say the least. If it is "a trick" it is a trick whose secret is hard to find, and which not one actor or actress in fifty, however great his or her talent in the spoken drama may be, can acquire. Mr. Nares should take a broader view of things and be at least fair if he cannot be generous.

* * *

CHATTING to A. Bromley Davonport last week on the subject of comedy work I was interested to hear him say that comedy, on stage or screen, is probably the most difficult form of the art of acting. "How often, on the stage, has an actor queered his own laugh by the slightest variation in inflection—a tiny alteration of movement or gesture! And on the screen it is just the same and almost

ON THE FLOOR

With THOMAS BENTLEY.

Careful attention to detail, with, apparently, "an infinite capacity for taking pains," is what first strikes an observer of Thomas Bentley's methods of direction.

Thomas Bentley has a full and cheerful confidence in his own power. "An artiste," he says, "should be a perfect piece of clay. The director does the moulding. The successful film is that which is the work of one man. A director may be compared with a painter, who would hardly like to be told by the purchaser of the picture that he ought to put in such and such details. I present the scene to the artiste as I conceive it, and try to get out of the artiste as much as I can of my conception of that scene. But there are no rules of production which are not broken every day; because every subject involves different treatment."

Tom Bentley is an actor, and he explains a scene to his artistes by action as well as words. Occasionally a scene (such as Samuel Weller's fight) is quite unrehearsed; but a crowd is generally rehearsed quite half a dozen times. Consequently very few retakes are necessary.

Before the scene is shot the director examines every detail and takes a glance at the whole effect in the view-finder. In spite of this minute attentiveness, and in spite of the fact that some artistes have to rush off for matinees, there is no evidence of fuss or flurry, patience being almost as conspicuous a characteristic of the directors as his enthusiasm and exacting care.

the flicker of an eyelash may either build up or destroy the effect." With which, I think, all who have done comedy work will agree.

* * *

LAST week I was one of the few journalists who accompanied Charlie Chaplin on his visit to the Stoll theatre to see "Kipps," and when the picture was finished he confided to me his high opinion of the

I have just had the pleasure of reading for the first time your very interesting magazine, and am quite convinced that it fills a much-needed want. Even in this country, we have nothing to approach it. I wish you the heartiest success in the near future, which I am sure you will fully obtain. Your editorials under the marking of "Getting the Focus," are extremely illuminating. I shall always look forward with great pleasure to my weekly reading of "Motion Picture Studio."—TOM TERRISS, Director, Cosmopolitan Productions, New York.

screen work of George K. Arthur. "His screen appearance is pleasing and his acting possesses real quality." And praise from Chaplin is praise indeed. But poor George K., who sat next to me during the run of the picture, was in a hopeless state of nerves all through. And no wonder!

* * *

JUST as we go to press news comes of the application made on Wednesday to Mr. Justice Swift for the appointment of a receiver and manager in a debenture holder's action: Powell v. Broadwest Films, Limited. Counsel for the plaintiff said the company was represented in court and submitted to the appointment. Counsel for the company said he could not resist the appointment, and he would also submit to judgment in the action. Counsel for plaintiff said since the writ was issued it had been ascertained that the plaintiff, who held the debenture—a single debenture for £10,000—had parted with part of his interest in it, and there were now, therefore, other holders of same debenture. He (counsel) asked for leave to amend the writ by stating that the plaintiff sued on behalf of himself and all other holders. His lordship gave leave and appointed a receiver and manager, and also gave the usual judgment in a debenture "MEGAPHONE." holder's action.

International Artists'
Film Co. Ltd. present

"THE NIGHT HAWK"

from the famous sea-story "THE HAVEN"
by EDEN PHILLPOTTS

A JOHN GLIDDEN PRODUCTION with

MALVINA LONGFELLOW
& HENRI de VRIES

The natural backgrounds of Glorious Devon have been used to the fullest advantage in the construction of this story of Brixham fisher folk.

"The Mark of Merit."

A p behin S c r Policy and

The founding of the International Artists' Film Company marked a serious effort to contribute to the British film Industry pictures which would rank among the best ever manufactured in this country.

* * *

A thorough investigation of the conditions of the home trade, its potential scope, and a study of foreign markets were the first essentials. These, and a happy combination of circumstances of a financial nature, provided the scaffolding for a structure which, if soundness of policy and absolute sincerity count for anything, has come to stay.

* * *

Primary credit for the inauguration of the International Artists' Company belongs to Alan S. Butler, its Governing Director. A far-seeing business man with extensive interests in South Wales but withal a keen student of kinema affairs, he expressed his conviction that, with the right policy, program and personnel, the demand for British pictures could be met with absolute success. And this in spite of the prejudices which had been created against film enterprises by certain gentlemen whose celluloid excursions were remarkable for their brevity. Alan S. Butler backed his judgment, with the result that the International Artists' Film Company started on its way, a sturdy organisation with a clearly defined policy, and not lacking in "sinews." The importance of this latter consideration will not be overlooked in view of the criticism so often levelled at British films that they look "cheap." "The Night Hawk" does not come under that category.

* * *

A point of interest, instancing the practical nature of Mr. Butler's co-operation, is his technical knowledge of the essentials to cinematography—electricity, photography and lighting. In this connection, he is regarded as one of the most able electrical authorities in this country. His sporting achievements are well known, one of his most recent being the winning of a trophy in the Aerial Derby, piloting his own Bristol tourer.

e e p d the e e n. —Progress

Associated with him is Walter d'Eyncourt, son of the distinguished magistrate. These two date their acquaintance from Eton days, followed by a period at Sandhurst. Forsaking an Army career in the Coldstream Guards, Mr. d'Eyncourt, who, like his colleague, had made a close study of the "picture business," decided to devote his energies to the interests of British films.

* * *

John Gliddon, the director of productions, needs no introduction to the Trade. He has taken up the producing reins wholeheartedly and with the utmost confidence and support of his colleagues. John Gliddon is out to make the premiere of the International Artists a worthy event, but he is the type of man who is very frugal with adjectives—especially when they apply in advance to his own productions. That the quality of his work "must be good because the advertisements speak so well of it" can not be charged to his account. Indeed, what publicity has gone forth has merely conveyed bare facts, without embroidery of any sort. That is a point of policy which will be rigidly adhered to.

* * *

Working in close co-operation with John Gliddon is Will Howse, the cameraman. With fifteen years of practical experience to his credit, having graduated through all the stages of that side of the business, Will Howse may be depended upon to give a good account of himself. And this he has done. Some of the most novel lighting effects have been introduced into "The Night Hawk" by the aid of the company's mobile lighting equipment—the only one of its kind in this country—and Will Howse has taken full advantage of these exceptional facilities.

* * *

The International Artists has evolved a businesslike policy which will appeal to exhibitors, and they intend to give the exhibitors what they want. And since the progress of the manufacturer is bound up with that of the exhibitor, the best guarantee of success is —CO-OPERATION.

- 1.—Sam Brokenshire and Tumbledown Dick.
- 2.—Lydia in plaintive mood.
- 3.—The arrest of Sam Brokenshire.
- 4.—A homely scene.
- 5.—Setting off for "The Radiance."
- 6.—Titus Peach, the sailmaker.
- 7.—Lydia asks her father's forgiveness.
- 8.—William Gilbert tells the tale.

8

11

13

9

14

12

15

10

- 9.—Aunt Emma.
10.—Deborah bids Ned good-bye.
11.—John Major turns his daughter away.
12.—Honeywill, the farmer.
13.—Tumbledown Dick has a musical soul.
14.—Ned and Deborah exchange confidences.
15.—Ned realises his ambition.
16.—John Major talks seriously to his mate.

16

Henri de Vries as "John Major," Owner and Skipper of "The Radiance."

"The NIGHT HAWK"

— in the making —

Produced by JOHN GLIDDON

Scenario GERALD FORT BUCKLE

Photography WILL HOWSE

THE CAST

John Major, Master of The Radiance HENRI DE VRIES

Lydia Major, his daughter MALVINA LONGFELLOW

Ned Major, his son FRANCIS INNYS

Sam Brokenshire, Master of The Night Hawk
..... SYDNEY SEAWARD

Aunt Emma MARY BROUGH

Titus Peach, a sailmaker FRED CREMLIN

Tumbledown Dick, a philosopher EDWARD SORLEY

Honeywill, a farmer ALEC HUNTER

Deborah Honeywill NADJA OSTROVSKA

Mrs. Honeywill MAY PRICE

Mr. Memory, a fish salesman WILLIAM MATTHEWS

Mr. Munday, an Inn-keeper ROY BYFORD

William Gilbert, mate of The Radiance..... CALEB PORTER

A Crabber FRANK GRAY

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS'

ADAPTED from one of the most famous stories of the sea that has ever been written—"The Haven," by Eden Philpotts—all the exterior scenes in "The Night Hawk" were taken on the actual locations described by the author. The fine old fishing village of Brixham, with its famous fleet of trawlers, played a prominent part in the picture, and the night incidents in Start Bay, so graphically pictured in the book, were actually photographed there at night.

Throughout the production John Gliddon has aimed at the utmost realism. Not only does the theme lend itself admirably to realistic treatment, but the novel lighting effects introduced by the aid of the company's mobile lighting equipment—the only one of its kind in England—provide an additional important feature.

As to these effects the report of a representative of the Western Morning News might prove interesting. He writes in that journal as follows:—

"If day work be exacting, night work must be doubly so, but this company is determined to have the real thing. Therefore the departure of 'The Night Hawk' upon one of her mysterious errands was 'shot' at 3 a.m., and Brixham harbour was as bright as day. It was accomplished by means of five sunlight arcs—known as 'suns'—each of about a million candle-power. The electricity was made on the quay by a generating set installed in a lorry. There were also Kleigle broadsides for close-up work. This was the first time a night scene on such a scale had been attempted in England. As the little boat rowed away to 'The Night Hawk,' lying in the harbour, the scene was one which will not easily be forgotten. Every rope and spar and the flag at the masthead of every trawler were thrown into strong relief by the dazzling white beams. The spectacle was truly magnificent."

"The Night Hawk" has a cast of exceptional brilliance. The two leads have an international reputation as artistes of outstanding ability, and it may be stated now that their work in the picture is in keeping with this high standard. Malvina Longfellow has been the heroine of a hundred pictures which have won fame, and she declares that in "The Night Hawk" she feels that she has done the finest work in her career. She plays the part of 'Lydia Major,' a simple, womanly woman actuated by motives of love.

Henri de Vries is the celebrated character actor who, of all his triumphs, will perhaps best be remembered for his remarkable work in "A Case of Arson," in which he played five distinct characters out of seven.

Mary Brough, Sydney Seaward, Nadja Ostrovska, Edward Sorley, Caleb Porter, Francis Innys, Alec Hunter, Roy Byford, Fred Cræmlin, May Price and Frank Gray complete this coterie of talent—material which the director has moulded into a gripping screen epic.

The presence of such a distinguished company in South Devon, where Eden Philpotts resides, created something of a sensation, voluminous evidence of which is to be found in the columns of the local press. "The Haven," on which "The Night Hawk" is based, is one of Devon's own stories, and crowds of residents and visitors flocked to the locations to "watch the filming." As might have been expected, among the inquiries which have been received at the offices of the company, many have come from South Devon asking when the picture will be shown there. The making of the picture has created a big demand for the book.

PREMIERE

Of the director, John Gliddon, who was ably assisted by Walter d'Eyncourt and Cyril Stanborough, the Western Morning News says:—

“A director must be a patient man, but Mr. Gliddon is a veritable Job. Some of the difficulties that faced him would have sent most people into hysterics, but he never grew angry, and the voice that came from the megaphone was never sarcastic. The visitors were his worst trouble. By some means folk had learned of the project, and the little village [of Brixham] was filled by a curious crowd which only with difficulty was kept out of the picture. But patience prevailed.”

The interior scenes were taken at the B. & C. studios at Walthamstow, and among the many incidents “shot” there was the sanguinary encounter between the skipper of The Night Hawk and the two fishermen whose crab preserves have been poached upon. Sydney Seaward, who plays the part, is a tall, muscular fellow—and he was once a cowboy. These facts, and the desire of John Gliddon for realism, evidently caused Sydney to forget that he was merely acting a part, and in consequence he laid about him so manfully that one of his two adversaries was completely “knocked out.” Seaward had become so imbued with the spirit of the part, that he did not hear the director’s “Stop, man, for Heaven’s sake.” The incident finished quite happily, however, and the scene was resumed as if nothing had happened, thanks to the sportsmanlike attitude of the “victim.” But John Gliddon secured what he called the fight of his life.

On another occasion the wonderful ability of Malvina Longfellow as an emotional actress was eloquently portrayed. Those who have read “The Haven” will remember that ‘Sam Brokenshire,’ skipper of The Night Hawk, is arrested for fishing in prohibited waters, and is sent to prison. The grief of ‘Lydia,’ his wife, is terrible, and Malvina Longfellow characterised the part with the utmost poignancy. When ‘Sam’ was being taken away, large tears welled up in Malvina’s eyes; she clung to him in a frenzy of weeping, and when the officers shook her off, collapsed inertly on the floor of the studio—a graphic picture of abject despair. No finer emotional acting could possibly be conceived; the realism of it all was reflected in the faces of the people in the studio, where hardly a dry eye could be seen.

Gerald Fort Buckle, who wrote the scenario for “The Night Hawk,” was once a seafaring man himself, having in his earlier years embarked in a sailing vessel from Antwerp to America to seek his fortunes there.

So that only the very best should appear in the finished product, as much as ten miles of negative were taken, from which the picture has been cut into six parts. Special music is being prepared for the Trade show, the date of which will be announced later.

Lydia finds her soul mate

- 1.—Reconciliation.
- 2.—The Little Cripple.
- 3.—Ned Major takes to the Sea.
- 4.—Master and Mate.
- 5.—Tumbledown Dick spins a yarn.
- 6.—Ned confesses his love for Deborah.
- 7.—Thinking of the past.
- 8.—Ned takes tea with the Honeywills.

"THE NIGHT HAWK" at Brixham

THE photographs reproduced on this page show work in progress at Brixham, the home of the famous trawling fleet which played a prominent part in the picture.

The arrival in the old fishing village of the International Artists' lorries, conveying the company's mobile lighting equipment, made history for the Brixham folk, and it was with much difficulty that the scene of the day's work could be reached on account of the assembled crowd. "Supers" were there for the asking, and on one occasion 90 of them—real Brixham natives—were enrolled for an imposing scene.

Each day the players made the journey to Brixham either by one of the company's cars or on board the Sylvia, a 48-ton launch owned by Alan Butler, governing director, which he had placed at the disposal of the artistes. The quaint little fishmarket was the scene of recent location. There, under a shallow roof which kept off the rain but not the crowd, "Sam Brokenshire" (Sydney Seaward) auctioned a fine catch of plaice, while a couple of sunlight arcs purred merrily on either hand. The "Crown and Anchor" and the "Commercial Inn" proved a secondary attraction to the old sea-dogs of Brixham; they brought their knee-boots and sou'westers with them to bid anything up to "fifteen pun" for the trawl, and to watch "Tumbledown Dick" (Edward Sorley) in eloquent make-up as he sat brooding over his troubles.

The appearance of the two leading characters—Henry de Vries, as the old skipper of the Radiance, and Malvina Longfellow, as "Lydia" in love with "Sam"—added to the excitement of the crowd; they surged around, and the combined efforts of John Gliddon (with megaphone), Cyril Stanborough (his assistant), Will Howse (the cameraman), and a stalwart policeman were hardly sufficient to secure "a floor."

Frank Gray, who plays the part of "the chief of the crabbers" in Start Bay, stands up to 6 feet 4 inches, and weighs 17 stone. He is the tallest man on the British screen. Alec Hunter, who is responsible for the role of "Honeywill," the farmer, is the veteran Scottish actor who will be particularly remembered for his work in "Bunty." He has played in nearly a hundred films.

The whole period on location "went with a swing," thanks to the co-operation of Mr. Butler, who, with headquarters on board the Sylvia, personally assisted in the arrangements made. Indeed, it will be found that the spirit in which all the players performed their duties will be reflected in the picture itself.

All enquiries to:-
INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS' FILM CO. LTD.
(Alan S. Butler)
(Governing Director)
52, SHAFTESBURY AVENUE,
LONDON · W.1.
Telephones :- Gerrard 6338 and 6339.
Telegrams :- Inarfilco - Phone - London

THE NIGHT HAWK.

Production.

A FEW moments' conversation with John Gliddon who directed "The Night Hawk," the premiere of the International Artists' Film Company, is sufficient to impress one with his undoubted sincerity. Young—he has something of the pioneer in his composition; the determination to create. Imaginative—he would be an iconoclast if pictures had no commercial significance. He is the type of man who knows what he wants and gets it, without pose or perspiration! Malvina Longfellow has said of him: "He is temperamental and sensitive to a degree, and these elements, combined with a previous experience as a screen actor, enable him to convey what he wants to the artiste with the greatest lucidity. With such a faculty his artistes must always yield him every ounce of what they are capable."

Photography . . .

THOSE who have been privileged to be present at a "run through" of "The Night Hawk" will tell you that the picture holds some agreeable surprises in the matter of photography. The cameraman is Will H. Howse, whose practical experience in the craft started fifteen years ago. He was then darkroom assistant at Butchers, and afterwards, by way of printing, developing, titling, etc., he became assistant cameraman for the same firm, being responsible for a series of travel films through India, Ceylon, China, and Scandinavia. On his return, as official cinematographer, from the Webster expedition to the Arctic, he went to Paul Kimberley, and with Ernest Palmer, made "Ivanhoe." The war intervened, and on August 5, 1914, he enlisted in the R.H.A., served in France for three years, and after being wounded twice, was transferred to the R.A.F. as photographer. In this capacity, he photographed Zebrugge immediately after the biggest raid. On his discharge he went to Harma and took "The Sands of Time" with Frank Canham, "The Man Who Forgot," "Land of Mystery," "Through Stormy Waters," etc. Billy Howse has a reputation for his thorough knowledge of lighting, and some novel effects are promised in the picture. It has also been stated that nobody has ever seen him flurried while at work—a rich asset when, even in the most trying circumstances, only the very best is good enough. John Gliddon sums him up thus briefly: "He is more than the man who turns the handle." He is an artist.

Where they are and —————

V. A. Alder has charge of the dark-room at Boreham Wood.

B. Evans is chief scenic artist at F.P.-Lasky studio.

J. S. Morgan is chief engineer at F.P.-Lasky studio.

Cyril Chadwick has a part in "Three Live Ghosts" (F.P.-Lasky).

Edmund Golding is among the American artistes in "Three Live Ghosts" (F.P.-Lasky).

M. Morris is assisting Elsie Codd in the publicity department of the F.P.-Lasky Islington studio.

A. Q. Walton has charge of Ideal's scenario department, and was responsible for the scenario of "Shirley."

H. Bruce Woolfe is now making a series of scientific films for British Instructional Films in a portion of the Boreham Wood Studios hired from Ideal.

Claire Greet, of "The Wrong Number" at the Duke of York's, has a part in "Three Live Ghosts" being directed at F.P.-Lasky studio by George Fitzmaurice.

Irene Tripod, who played the dispenser's wife in "The Wonderful Year," has been re-engaged by Kenelm Foss to play an important part in one of his later productions.

Donald Crisp, who has just completed the direction of "Beside the Bonny Briar Bush" at F.P.-Lasky's Islington studios, is returning to America, sailing on September 24.

Elizabeth Brandt, the Swedish actress, who appeared in the leading feminine rôle in John Gliddon's first two comedies, is at the moment in Scandinavia, where she is acting as International Artists' business representative.

Teddy O'Neil has just finished playing a character part in "General John Regan" for Stoll.

G. T. M. Burkett is floor secretary at the Catford Studios.

Maurice Edmonds is stage manager for Bannister Merwin.

I. Rosenthal is doing camera work at the F.P.-Lasky studio.

Colonel English is playing lead in "The Lost Leader" for Stoll.

Norman Kerry has arrived in London to play for F.P.-Lasky at Islington.

Florence Wood has been playing Mme. Lamballe in "Perpetua" (F.P.-Lasky).

Owen Nares has refused another offer to go to America; he means to keep to the stage.

Joe Nightingale has been engaged by Ideal to play the Rev. Matthew Helston in "Shirley."

A. G. Poulton has been engaged by Bannister Merwin to play important parts in Temple Comedies.

Henry Vibart has finished a three-week engagement with Hepworth. He has been playing in Henry Edwards' production.

Florence Nelson has finished playing for Harma in "Love in the Hills" and is now playing under Bannister Merwin in Temple Comedies.

Frank Stanmore was to have played in "No. 5, John Street," but at the eleventh hour he received an offer to go to France with F.P.-Lasky, which he was able to accept through the kindness and courtesy of Kenelm Foss.

William Shenton is doing camera work for Ideal.

L. Dawson is art director at the F.P.-Lasky Islington studio.

Miles Mander is with Stoll, playing heavy in "Half a Truth."

Mrs. Smith manages the Boreham Wood Studio canteen for Ideal.

Dick Webb is one of the English artistes in "Perpetua" (F.P.-Lasky).

Geoffrey Malins is to direct the second Sabatini film for Hardy, "The Recoil."

Lillian Walker, one of the English artistes in "Perpetua" (F.P.-Lasky), should not be confused with her American namesake.

HINTS FOR—

by CECIL B.

Reasons by the score are assigned by the neophyte scenarists for the existence of their efforts. Manuscripts are submitted almost daily with an appended note explaining the how and the why of this particular story's existence.

Perhaps the most frequently-quoted reasons given by the budding scenarist for his or her literary output is that the story in question is founded on a personal experience.

If this statement is true in the individual case, it is almost sufficient to doom the story without a hearing. No individual experience is sufficiently broad and comprehensive to serve as the basis for a scenario.

Personal experience may be woven into a story; it may furnish the starting-point or the climax, but in general any one man's experience, great as it may be in isolated instances, is insufficient for the elaboration necessary in a successful stage or screen play. A truly successful drama must be many-sided; it must be the complex result of many experiences.

Another person, hardly less frequently-quoted, says that the story is particularly timely, or that, because of its timeliness it lends itself to special advertising and exploitation. "Because this matter is very much in the public eye just now," is the explanation attached to many manuscripts. This will never assist the struggling writer to find favour with any director who is seeking stories of real merit, irrespective of their timeliness.

Historical tragedies or plots which make use of fictitious kingdoms seldom find favour, and may be safely avoided by would-be scenarists. And yet a large percentage of the scenarios submitted are of this type. If the student-writer would take the trouble to follow the current productions issued by any of the established directors, he or she would speedily learn what general divisions of subject-matter are under the ban.

TITLING SPECIALIST

Expert in handwritten work.
English or American Style.

G. T. SHEARMAN, Bentinck Road, Nottingham

what they are doing

Elizabeth Irving has the part of Caroline in "Shirley" (Ideal).

A. E. Simpson is stage manager at the Ideal Studios at Boreham Wood.

James Sloan is assistant manager at the F.P.-Lasky Islington studio.

Dorothy Fane is leading lady for George Ridgewell in "The Lost Leader" (Stoll).

Margaret Turnbull, who adapted Ian Maclaren's "Beside the Bonny Briar Bush" for F.P.-Lasky, is sailing for America on September 24.

Eille Norwood is to again play the detective in fifteen more episodes of "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" for Stoll. These will be two-reelers and will be followed by a five-reeler, "The Sign of Four."

Adrian Brunel is busily engaged in the preliminaries for possible further Minerva Comedies.

—SCENARISTS

DE MILLE.

Few scenarists in the making seem to realise that scenario-writing is a fine art which must be acquired. Many of them seem to feel that they are writers by virtue of a special gift; that they are, in other words, born scenarists.

Scenarists are made and not born. Of course, native intelligence, education, and mental capability are necessary. But the technique of scenario construction is acquired and not inherited.

The people who submit a manuscript with the hope that it will succeed because of the innate merit of the writer, would not attempt to play a violin without studying music. Yet they attempt the far more difficult task of scenario-writing without any preparation.

Plot seems to be the objective which every would-be scenarist seeks to achieve. The one idea of many inexperienced writers is to cram their story so full of plot that it is bound to succeed.

Contrary to public opinion, photoplays do not succeed because of intricate plots. To-day theme is far more important. If the writer has a theme of real merit, his story will find a market. Plot, in the usual sense of the word, is being relegated to the background. Character-delineation, founded on a theme of value is the thing which the successful photoplay of the future must have. But, above all things, the story must have theme.

To sum up these negative hints to beginners: Don't write scenarios because you have had an experience which seems to you sufficiently unusual to make a successful screen-play; don't write historical tragedies or plots laid in mythical principalities; don't write because you think you are a born writer; don't write without studying the methods of the veterans; and don't write with plot as the sole reason. Learn the mechanics of the art, select a theme of real merit, and develop it, and the characters which make it live.

F. Mills is head property man at the F.P.-Lasky studio.

Mabel Terry Lewis plays Mrs. Prior for Ideal in "Shirley."

A. Moss is head carpenter at the Islington F.P.-Lasky studio.

Harold Bastick is now chief cameraman for Temple Productions.

Geoffrey Barkas is on the photographic staff of the Ideal Studio.

F. E. Knott is art director for Ideal at the Boreham Wood Studios.

Roy Byford is playing Mons. Lamballe for F.P.-Lasky in "Perpetua."

Johnny Butt and Manning Haynes are on location with "Directs."

Lilly Iris makes her first screen appearance in "The Lost Leader" for Stoll.

L. Phister has charge of the catering for the F.P.-Lasky artistes and studio staff.

Marcelle de St. Martin is in charge of the ladies' wardrobe at the F.P.-Lasky studio.

Horace M. Whaddon is one of the Ideal cameramen and is now working on "Shirley."

Frank Granger is getting some wonderful exterior shots in "Four Men in a Van" (Direct).

A. V. Bramble is directing the production of "Shirley" for Ideal and has been on location in Yorkshire.

Camera Bargains—Largest selection of professional and topical instruments in London, all makers—English, American and Continental. Write stating exact requirements special quotations post free, or call and inspect our stock, Cash or Easy Payment Terms. Apparatus accepted in exchange, Strict approval terms willingly.

THE KINEMATOGRAPH EXCHANGE,
81 Aldersgate Street, E.C.1.

Harold Shaw is back in London.

A. Barringer is engineer at the Ideal Studio.

A. Miller is cameraman at the studio of F.P.-Lasky.

Florence Wood has a part in "Perpetua" (F.P.-Lasky).

Ann Forrest is the star in "Perpetua" (F.P.-Lasky).

Collatta Breesa is playing the name part in Ideal's "Shirley."

Fred Errol is location manager for the F.P.-Lasky studio.

David Powell has a leading part in "Perpetua" (F.P.-Lasky).

Hugh Croise is directing "Four Men in a Van" for Direct.

Anna O. Nilsson is starring in "Three Live Ghosts" (F.P.-Lasky).

John Milner fills a rôle in "Three Live Ghosts" (F.P.-Lasky).

L. Green attends to the still camera work at the Islington studio of F.P.-Lasky.

Clive Brook is back again with Ideal and has the important part of Robert Moore in "Shirley."

George Ridgewell is very busy at Cricklewood, where he has just finished "The Eleventh Hour," and is in the thick of directing "The Lost Leader." This is to be followed by fifteen two-reel Sherlock Holmes episodes and a five-reeler, "The Sign of Four." He has directed five five-reelers in eight months.

James Knight has just returned to town from Wales, where he has been on location for Harma. He has been playing one of the leads in "Love in the Hills," which Bernard Dudley has directed.

The Historical Film must be accurately dressed.

We Stock Civil and Military costumes of all
known periods. :: ::

"The Call of the Road,"
and "The Old Curiosity
Shop," with their wealth
of costume, detail and
characteristics of their
times were dressed by us.

Write to-day stating
your requirements.

H. & M. RAYNE,
115-119, Waterloo Road,
S.E.1.

WEST END
BRANCH: 15, Rupert Street.

Vickers Filmcraft LTD.

To Producers and Cameramen especially

Experience counts for everything
That's why we can do your Developing and Printing to satisfy you

A Trial Order will at once convince you

We are equipped with the most modern and up-to-date Printing Plant with a department for all classes of trick films and cartoons

VICKERS FILMCRAFT LIMITED,
89, SHAFTESBURY AVENUE, W.1.

Laboratories :

PARAGON WORKS, 29, ACTON LANE, W.4

Always-on-Time

Phones: GE 4045 and
CHISWICK 132

IMPROVING BRITISH FILMS

Possessing over twenty years' histrionic experience, playing leads in Italian and other European film productions, the writer of the following article, Maresco Maresino, is now in this country.

The majority of the present directors are nothing more nor less than scampers, having not the slightest idea of reading and understanding a scenario, nor the slightest idea of casting.

The director must for all abandon his "God-Almighty" feeling nor be so conceited as to think himself an "Everything-knowing man," nor look upon his artistes as copying machines, or think to know the idea of the author better than the author himself. What he must do is to try to possess that power or gift (whatever you wish to call it) to put heart and soul in his artistes, to have a great dose of Auto-suggestion.

The director must not allow his manager to interfere with his work, nor be dictated to as to cutting and joining his film, or be dictated to as to what cheap furniture to use, what friends of the manager, or titled or influential people to engage as artistes, or as how many scenes to do in a day.

The author must refuse his script if co-operation with director is not allowed.
He must claim the right of having something to say about the casting and staging of his original ideas. Of course, he may not interfere with the technical part of the business, this to be left to director and cameraman.

The manager must for all trust his director, especially if working with the author, and must not be allowed to curtail him or them. Of course, he has the right to say what the costs of the film can be.

And the artistes, meaning the trained, experienced professionals, they should fight for their rights not to sell their individualities, not to work with outsiders and black-legs. And when manager, director and author will only remember that the direct benefit for the artistes is the success of the film, they cannot do anything else than to stand by them, to protect them, and to protect the industry from becoming a harbour of refuge. A pretty-faced girl, a personal friend, a titled or influential person, a good bluffer, a well-dressed man, a type, never mind
if he is butcher, baker or greengrocer, without the slightest idea of acting are the pests of the trade.

In a special Trade paper (and THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO is the only one suitable) should be advertised the wanted types and characters in a coming production. Applicants should have to send in full particulars, at least six photographs in plain and different character parts, enclosing a stamped and addressed envelope for the return of the photographs. On top of envelope and paper should be the part for which

MARESCO MARESINO

he or she thinks him or herself suitable, this will enable easy assorting of applications.

Manager, director and author should choose (in combination and not by one or two of them only) five or six out of the applicants for every part and interview the chosen personally.

Do not think a West End actor far more superior to others. I know West End actors who do not even know how to put a beard on, how to walk on the stage, who on the screen are worse than some blacklegs. The majority of these West End actors had luck, and no more.

Do not forget the newspapers' critics.
If they are real art lovers, let them finish the foolish, laughable way of booming some, and let them find space for every actor or actress, even in the smallest part. And let their criticisms not be killing, but edifying, telling the bad, weak points, but also the good ones,
and to remember that many small parts, when given the opportunity will beat many of the present boomed leads.

Finish the breeding of artistes, they are not rabbits, they are not bred or made but only born, gifted with the talents.
But that does not mean to be able to be at the top without training. The most gifted man wants training wants schooling starting from the bottom of the ladder.
Britain has, I am sorry to say, very few real good actors, but a lot well talented.

PUBLICITY FOR ARTISTES

As advertised elsewhere Constance Bromley is arranging to present artistes at kinemas where their films are being shown, and she should know something of how this is done, for she was Publicity Chief at the Trans-Atlantic Film Company when Eddie Polo visited London and made numerous personal appearances. Artistes have been denied exploitation (except in a few instances) in a shameful manner, and until directors and renters can see a little further than their noses it will continue to be so. Anyhow, Miss Bromley shows originality and enterprise, and her efforts deserve to meet with success.

You cannot do better than by placing your orders with L. BENJAMIN & CO. 99, Middlesex Street, E.

Phone—London Wall 7568

TO LEADING INTERNATIONAL AND BRITISH FILM STARS

Increase your Popularity with Kinema Audiences by PERSONAL APPEARANCES.

BECOME SOMETHING MORE THAN A SHADOW—BECOME A PERSONALITY.

ALL ARRANGEMENTS ORGANISED AND CONDUCTED BY AN EXPERIENCED PUBLICIST.

Note.—In most cases Managers pay Fees and Expenses for personal appearances coinciding with release of Film.

London and Suburbs Only—Commencing Next Month.

Late of

His Majesty's Theatre, S.W.

Sir Frank Benson's Companies.

Sir Chas. Wyndham's Companies.

Mr. Chas. Frohman's Companies.

and

Etc. etc.

Film Publicity for Trans-Atlantic Film Co.

British Films Syndicate.

Granger's Exclusives, Ltd.

and

Nazimova in India, Burma and Ceylon.

SEND PARTICULARS OF FILMS AND RELEASE DATES TO

Miss CONSTANCE BROMLEY,

5, THAYER STREET,

MANCHESTER SQUARE, W.1.

STUDIO PUBLICITY UNDERTAKEN.

PUBLICITY FOR ARTISTES, etc., etc.

ARTISTES KNOWN TO [ME] PLEASE COMMUNICATE ADDRESSES.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

JOHN J. COX

44, Barrowgate Road,

:: Chiswick, W.4. ::

'Phone: Chiswick 294.

Cameraman for Maurice Elvey,

Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD

Cameraman.

AT LIBERTY for First-Class Productions.

1920 Debrie Outfit.

All Coms: 4, PERCIVAL PARADE,

WORCESTER PARK.

EDWIN DAY

Motion Picture Photographer,

12, Archer Street, Picca-

dilly Circus, London, W.1.

Telephone: Gerrard 780.

Telegrams: "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON

Thelton House, Cambolt

:: Road, Putney Hill. ::

Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN

"GAUMONT'S,"

105, King's Road,

Kingston-on-Thames.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

FRANK CANHAM

Motion Picture Photographer.

Address: ROYAL FOREST HOTEL,

CHINGFORD, ESSEX.

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT

GAUMONT,

:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::

Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT

EXPERT CAMERAMAN.

Welsh Pearson, Diamond Super Films,

Ideal, Broadwest, Grangers, etc.

Dark Rooms and Offices:

2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.

'Phone: Streatham 1969.

ALFRED H. MOSES

Photographing George Ridgwell Productions.

Formerly Chief Cameraman for Thanhauser,

Norma Talmadge, British & Colonial, etc.

Address care of STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS,

Cricklewood.

PHIL ROSS

Cameraman—AT LIBERTY.

Late of BROADWEST, HARMA, VANITY, etc.

19, Mayow Road, Forest Hill,

London, S.E.23.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

WILLIAM SHENTON

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Private Address:

17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,

Boreham Wood, Herts.

HORACE M. WHEDDON,

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Private Address

"LYNTON HOUSE,"

BOREHAM WOOD, HERTS.

JAMES E. ROGERS,

Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth

"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel

"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"

"Last Rose of Summer,"

PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

JACK H. ROSS,

Having just returned from a vacation in

South Africa, is now AT LIBERTY.

"Good consistent Photography is essential to Production," therefore get in touch with me.

(Still has the Wanderlust.) Best wishes to Frank Crane and others who wrote.

Wire or write, c/o Motion Picture Studio

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES,
UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for
Kinematograph Productions. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Productions and Who is Working on Them

British Photoplay Productions.
ADDRESS: 28, Devon Chambers,
Fleet Street, Torquay.
FILM: "Where the Rainbow Ends."
DIRECTOR: H. Lisle Lucoque.
STAR: West End Cast.
TYPE: Five-reel drama.
STAGE: Second week.

Broadway Productions.
ADDRESS: West Nile Street, Glasgow.
STUDIO: (pro tem.) 132, West Nile Street.
FILM: "Football Daft."
DIRECTOR: Victor W. Rowe.
STAR: Jimmy Brough.
SCENARIST: Victor W. Rowe.
TYPE: Two Reel Scottish Domestic Comedy.
STAGE: Third week.

Direct Film Traders.
STUDIO: Ebury St., Victoria, S.W.
FILM: "Four Men in a Van."
DIRECTOR: Hugh Croise.
STAR: Johnny Butt.
SCENARIST: Hugh Croise.
CAMERAMAN: Frank Granger.
TYPE: Feature Comedy.
STAGE: Third week.

Famous Players-Lasky
ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.
STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A.
Bell, O.B.E.
FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."
DIRECTOR: Donald Crisp.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Claude H.
Mitchell.
STAR: Donald Crisp.
SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.
STAGE: Eleventh week.

FILM: "Three Live Ghosts."
DIRECTOR: George Fitzmaurice.
STAR: Anna Q. Nilsson.
STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "Perpetua."
DIRECTOR: John Robertson.
STAR: Ann Forrest.
STAGE: Third week.

Hardy.
ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W.1.
STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isle-
worth.

FILM: "The Recoil."
DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.
STARS: Eille Norwood.
SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.
CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.
STAGE: Second week.

Ideal.
ADDRESS: Boreham Woods, Elstree
STUDIO MANAGER: F. A. Kendrick.
STAGE MANAGER: F. G. Knott.
FILM: "Pickwick Papers."
DIRECTOR: Thomas Bentley.
STAR: Fred Valpe.
CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.
STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "The Old Wives' Tale."
DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.
SCENARIST: Denison Clift.
CAMERAMAN: Geoffrey Barkas.
STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "Shirley."
DIRECTOR: A. V. Bramble.
STAR: Collatta Breese.
CAMERAMAN: H. W. Whadden.
STAGE: First week.

Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate.
ADDRESS: Riverside Studios, Kew
Bridge.
FILM: "M'Lord of the White Road."
DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme
STAR: Dawn Meredith.
SCENARIST: Gerald Fort Buckle.
Progress.
ADDRESS: Shoreham.
FILM: "The Lilac Sunbonnet."
STAR: Joan Morgan.
DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
STAGE: Fourth week.

Screen Plays.
ADDRESS: Cranmer Court, Clapham
S.W.
STUDIO MANAGER: Douglas Payne.
FILM: Grand Guignol series.
DIRECTORS: Fred Paul and Jack
Raymond.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Rodwell.
TYPE: Short melodramas.
STAGE: Producing one a week.
FILM: "How Kitchener Was Betrayed."
STAR: Fred Paul.
DIRECTOR: Percy Nash.

SCENARIST: Norman Ramsay,
M.A.
TYPE: John Bull story picturised.
STAGE: Third week.

Seal.
ADDRESS: Princes Studio, Kew.
FILM: "Jessica's First Prayer."
STAR: C. Hargreave Mansell.
DIRECTOR: Bert Wynne.
STAGE: First week.

Sterling Photoplays.
ADDRESS: 26, Dean Street, W.1.
FILM: "The Exclusive Model."
DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.
STAR: Molly Adair.
SCENARIST: Cyril E. Murrell.
CAMERAMAN: Edward Groc.
TYPE: Two-reel comedy.
STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "Dutch Courage."
DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.
STAR: Dorothy Peters.
SCENARIST: Alec McKee.
TYPE: Two Reel Comedy.
STAGE: Casting.

Stoll.
ADDRESS: Temple Road, Crickle-
wood.

STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman.
FILM: "A Romance of Westdale."
DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.
STAR: Milton Rosmer.
STAGE: Sixth week.
FILM: "The Lamp in the Desert."
DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.
CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Nearing Completion.

FILM: "A Lost Leader."
DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.
CAMERAMAN: Alfred Moscs.
STAR: Robert English.
STAGE: First week.

FILM: Half a Truth.
DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.
STARS: Margaret Hope, Irene
Rook, Percy Standing.
CAMERAMAN: Adolph Burger.
STAGE: Second week.
FILM: "Froggy's Little Brother."
DIRECTOR: A. E. Coleby.
STAGE: Schedule.

Thompson Productions.
ADDRESS: B & C Studios, Wal-
thamstow.
FILM: "All Roads Lead to Calvary."

DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.
STARS: Mary Odette, Bertram
Burleigh, Minna Gray.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Grace
Rose.
SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.
EDITOR: John Miller.
CAMERAMAN: John Parker.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: First week.

Temple Producing.
ADDRESS: Catford Studios, S. E.
MANAGER: Maurice Edmonds.
FILM: "Horace."
DIRECTOR: Bannister Merwin.
STARS: A. Bromley Davenport,
Phyllis Le Grande, H. G. Poulton.
SCENARIST: Bannister Merwin.
CAMERAMAN: Harold Bastick.
TYPE: Three Reel Comedy.
STAGE: Nearing Completion.

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome,
Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone:
Kingsbury 120—Arfilodro, Hyde,
London.
ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-
Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.
B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place,
Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing
2048.
BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD.,
Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone:
Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmopho, Balux.
BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH
CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow,
E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364
and 712.
BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD.,
Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clap-
ham Park.
BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20.
'Phone: Finchley 1297.
BRITISH PHOTOPAYS, Devon Chambers,
28 Fleet Street, Torquay.
BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street,
Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Wal-
thamstow.
FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRO-
DUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New
North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone:
Dalston 3704.
GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's
Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolougue, 'Phone
London.
GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland,
London Office: Granger's, Exclusives,
191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone:
Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams:
Exchugrang, London.
GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners
Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012.
Studio: Candlemass Lane, Beacons-
field.
GLEN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD., 20,
Lisle Street, London, W.C., and "Bel-
grave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.
HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16 Limes Road,
Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and
2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst
Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone:
Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth
Walton.
IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood,
Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—
Ideal Films, Borehamwood.
INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS FILM CO., LTD.,
52 Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.
ISLE OF MAN FILM CO., The Manx Studios,
Isle of Man.
J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush
House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Crickle-wood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048
(Studio, Willesden 3293).
LAMBART FILMS, Carlton House, Regent
Street, London, W. 'Phone: Gerr. 4040.
MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road,
Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.
MINERVA FILM CO., LTD., 110, Victoria
Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.
PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shoreham-
by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham
19.
REGULUS FILMS: 48, Carnaby Street,
Regent Street, W.1.
SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isle-worth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow
212.
SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High
Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton
2956.
SEAL PRODUCTIONS.—Prince's Studio,
Kew
STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpie, Crickle, London.
SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street,
Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1933—
Success Films, Liverpool.
THOMPSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street
Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Wal-
thamstow 364 and 712.
TORQUAY & PAIGTON PHOTOPAYS, LTD.,
Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.
WELSH, PEARSON & CO., 41-45, Craven
Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone:
Willessden 2362.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

The Motion Picture Studio, October 1, 1921.

The MOTION PICTURE Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 17.

Saturday, October 1, 1921.

FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH MOTION
PICTURES

ADELQUI MILLAR

Author and leading Artiste
of “LAUGHTER AND TEARS”

Address :

Granger-Binger Super-Productions,
Hollandia Filmfabriek, Haarlem,
Holland.

London Address :

c/o. SID JAY, 181, Wardour Street.

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."
219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.

Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.

Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Sonia," "The Knight Errant," "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds."

Address—27 Eccleston Sq., S.W.1. Victoria 2968.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal), "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).

c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

Juvenile Leads: "Her Son," "Great Gay Road," "Lights of Home," "Land of My Fathers." Duane in "Belle of the Gambling Den" (Haigh Serial.)

OFFERS INVITED.

33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelm Foss Production), Latest Release, "With All Her Heart."

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street. Regent 4329.

PHYLLIS SHANNAW,

Juv. Lead "Call of the Road," "The Right to Live," etc.

Will be shortly disengaged. All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour St., W.1. Phone: Regent 4329.

JOHN EAST.

Character Comedy. Tele: Hammersmith 1138. 14, Ifley Road, Hammersmith, W.6.

ARTISTES

FLORA LE BRETON

34, NEVERN SQUARE, EARL'S COURT, S.W.5.

Phone: Western 1936,

HAYFORD HOBBS.

Starring with African Film Productions. Late Juvenile Lead: London Films (three years), Windsor Films (two years), and all leading English Film Companies. All coms.: Box 4514 Johannesburg, South Africa.

ENA BEAUMONT.

Leads in "The Greater Love," "The Golden Web," "All the Winners," "Patricia Brent, Spinster," "Our Girls and Their Physique," "Settled in Full," "Watching Eyes," etc. All coms.: c/o A. Fraser, 26, Charing Cross Road, W.C.2.

SYDNEY WOOD,

Juv. Leads in "The Warrior Strain," "Her Beauty," "Ever Open Door," "Bars of Iron," "The Flame," "The Will," "Double Event," "David and Jonathan," etc. Address—The Laurels, Beverley Road, Anerley, S.E.

Phone: Chancery 7080-7081.

MILES MANDER,

Light, Heavy and Juv. Leads. Modern, aristocratic. Extensive wardrobe. All-round athlete. Now playing Marquis Sallust in "Half a Truth" (Stoll). Disengaged Oct. 1, 1921.

Address, 3 Clifford St., W.1. Phone: Regent 1327.

SYBIL GRAY

Latest Films "Carnival" (Alliance), "Corinthian Jack" (Masters), "Haigh of the Yard" (White). All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour Street. Regent 4329.

IRENÉE CRAVEN

LEADS.

Dignified, social sporting characters.

Three years experience.

Address—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

WALTER FORDE

Comedian.

ZODIAC FILMS, LTD..

All coms.:—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

SEE PHOTO NEXT WEEK

ARTHUR CLEAVE,

15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6. Phone: Hornsey 1784.

ARTISTES

MILTON ROSMER

Starring

STOLL AND IDEAL FILMS.

Phone - - - - Museum 5145. 88, NEWMAN STREET, W.1.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

Phone: Regent 4329

DICK WEBB

(Juvenile)

GAUMONT, MASTERS, FAMOUS PLAYERS-

LASKY, BRITISH PRODUCERS.

180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc. HARDY FILM CO.

All coms.: c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1.

LIONELLE HOWARD.

Three years HEPWORTH STOCK CO.

One year KENELM FOSS PRODUCTIONS

Latest Release "The Channings."

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

ADELINE HAYDEN COFFIN.

Sympathetic Mother, Grande Dames.

Character Parts, "Mrs. Gatty," in "Christie Johnstone" (Broadwest), "Margaret Howe" in "Beside the Bonny Briar Bush" (Lasky). 55, Campden St., Kensington, W.8.

Tel.: Park 3623.

CLIVE BROOK

24, Hyde Park Square, W.

Padd. 2868.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

POLLIE EMERY.

"Peach" in "The Case of Lady Camber" (Broadwest), "Aunty" in "Nothing Else Matters" (Welsh Pearson), "Madam Tourterelle" in "Perpetua" (Famous Players-Lasky British Productions).

7, KENYON MANSIONS, QUEEN'S CLUB GARDENS.

HARDING STEERMAN,

Characters of Distinction,

56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,

24, Cleveland Road Barnes, S.W.13.

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 17

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

Oct. 1, 1921

Technique and Ideals.

IT is not altogether usual for points to arise in speeches at public dinners which deserve serious discussion, but there were several remarks made by certain speakers at the recent Stoll dinner which are exceptions. The first is a declaration by Maurice Elvey that one of the essentials of film-plays is sincerity. This quality, in our opinion, is frequently one of the dominating traits of the British film, and it is at the same time less and less apparent in the American. It is not, perhaps, untrue to say that the American film has become so technically perfect that it has ceased to be human. Now the British picture, whatever are its own special deficiencies, is usually sincere, in spite of the limitations often imposed by story and facilities. And it is this belief in what they are doing which is saving our directors and artistes from becoming mere manufacturers of technically perfect but emotionally—dead pictures. Guy Newall crystallised this thought when he said that American pictures were becoming so technically perfect that they had lost their soul. Such loss is an inevitable result of an absolute concentration on technical perfection, and nowhere can this be realised better than by reviewing the political and economic history of Germany during the last ten years.

An Author's View.

THE same point was emphasised by A. E. W. Mason, who commented on the distortion of stories and the over-emphasis of non-essentials which the craze for technical perfection in the studio had produced in American pictures. He illustrated his remark by suggesting that if a storm were being filmed everything would be concentrated on the production of a perfect storm in the studio, but the real interest—the relationship of the characters to each other, and to the incident, would be relegated to the background. This is very often to be seen in big productions, when all the energies are directed towards an effect or a series of effects, which are the outcome of studio craftsmanship. This, perhaps, is the solution—that picture making is in a very real danger of becoming so perfect and exact a craft that it will fail to become an Art.

The Artistes' Position.

A GREAT deal of this danger can be obviated by film players if they can persist in believing in their work, and in "feeling" their parts. If they can always forget that they are Mr. This and Miss That, and only remember that they are the character when they are playing it, a good deal of sincerity will remain, in spite stories of American films are based on one or other of four well-worn plots. But the American conception of story is certainly not the best by any means. In fact, if the persistent revulsion of feeling among the public against American films was analysed, it would be found that it is due to the same mental process that accounts for the decline in popularity of a certain authoress whose twelve best sellers are merely eleven re-shuffled versions of her first plot.

Legendary Ideas.

LET our directors have the courage to refuse to "ape the Americans" in this matter of plots. Because the Americans have asserted that the public will not accept costume plays is no reason for the British director to refrain from making them. And because the stereotyped American plot has always found its basic origin in the marriage of the poor heroine to the multi-millionaire, does not justify British directors in building their photo-plays on the same basis. There is a legend that the working class (which is the kinema's best patron) does not want working class stories. Like most legends, this has its origin in ancient mythology. Last week, for instance, Broadwest showed "Vi of Smith's Alley," an essentially working-class story, in which the poor heroine did not marry the millionaire, but married the lowly workman. And there can be no question as to the success of this film. As a matter of actual fact, there are two classes of kine-goers: those who require the unadulterated fiction of mill-girl-marrying-the-duke, while the huge majority has a preference for reality, as is seen in the phenomenal run of the type of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." If directors will cease to fashion their conception of the public's taste on the American models but begin to allow their own ideas to develop then the day that Chaplin anticipates will dawn, and "just as Swedish pictures are a class to themselves so British pictures will become a separate class."

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"Dangerous Lies" (F.P. Lasky) is the best that Islington has yet offered. It possesses an interesting and well-developed story and a good cast. Photographically perfect, thanks to C. McDonnell, "Dangerous Lies" has also been capably directed by Paul Powell, while the studio settings and exteriors have been well selected and staged. Mary Glynn gives a good performance in the stellar role with David Powell playing opposite in his usually brilliant manner. Harry Ham stands out from the rest of an adequate cast for his study of the part of the secretary.

"Ships That Pass in The Night" (B.E.F.) is disappointing owing, chiefly, to mediocre direction. Continuity is good, but assembling is faulty, while no one in the cast calls for special mention. Photography is fair.

"Sonia" (Ideal) is the week's best, thanks to the director and an excellent cast. Denison Clift's work, both as adapter and director, has contributed very considerably to the success of the production, while Wm. Shenton's photography is of a very high standard. Evelyn Brent adds to her laurels in the name part, while Clive Brook's polished performance as David is beyond reproach. Olaf Hytten's heavy work is quite convincing; he evidences real dramatic powers of acting.

"Walter Forde Comedies" (Zodiac) will do much to contradict the rumour that this country cannot make film comedies. They create unforced laughter, and that is the function of a comedy. Walter Forde reveals himself as a screen comedian of true worth, possessing individuality and an artistic sense which are not always the possession of the funny men of the screen.

of the coldness of the technical perfection of the studio-craft. It is, beyond doubt, the fact that the bigger Swedish directors and artistes have a profound belief in their work that enables them to produce pictures which, in spite of the frequent heaviness of the subject, are above the level of other countries.

Chaplin's Good Advice.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S strictures on British films may or may not be deserved—that they will be disputed the state of our correspondence readily proves. But we welcome one of his statements: "I really do not think that British directors should ape the Americans. You should work on your own plan, and allow your own ideas to develop." Now that is fundamentally correct with regard not only to our ideas of production, but to our stories. Practically ninety per cent. of the

ARTISTES

VICTOR McLAGLAN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman,
Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road"
and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

MARJORIE VILLIS.

Exclusive to Harma Photoplays, Limes Rd., Croydon.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,Character Parts,
57, Church Street Kensington, W.8.GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com, 197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph.: Battersea 21.CHARLES CLIFFORD,38, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.2.
Phone: Regent 569.CRISPIN HAY,

c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,

12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,Character Actor. Offers invited
114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

SCENARISTS

ELIOT STANNARD

Scenarios.

85, Holbein House, Sloane
Square, S.W.1.

Tele.: Victoria 497.

COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,
:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.

7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11
(Phone: Park 2945).GERARD FORT BUCKLE

Scenarios.

Phone: Regent 4747.

41, Glasshouse Street, Regent
Street, W.1.GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
62, Foxburne Road, Balham, S.W.17.WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,Kinedramatist, Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

SCENARISTS

IRENE MILLER,Novelist, Journalist, Scenarist,
10, Arundel Gardens, W. 11, or Bramlins.CYRIL E. MURRELL,Scenarist—Comedy.
Address: c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIOMURIEL ALLEYNE, Screen PlaywrightPlays 11 to Pathé, Hepworth, Barker M.L.B., Clarendon Universal, etc., Windsor Ho! Amersham, Bucks.HELEN & THOMAS B IZZARDOriginal Story and Continuity Writers
Address M.I. STUDIO.

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,14a, Little Ealing Lane,
:: South Ealing ::

Phone: Gerrard 3880.

WILFRED NOY,Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
"The Face at the Window."Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.F. MARTIN THORNTONProducing for Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd.Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of
Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."NORMAN MACDONALD,Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT
GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE
LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and
"CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."Five years producer in America. At Liberty.
Address: 20, COLVILLE TERRACE, BAYSWATER,
W.11.S. L. GLENISTER

Professionally Major Commenus-Palæologus.

PRODUCER, TECHNICAL & ART DIRECTOR.

"Under the Crescent," "Dumb Girl of Portici,"
"Campbells are Coming," "Where are My Children?"
etc., for UNIVERSAL. "The Arab," for LASKY.
"Less than Dust," for ART-CRAFT, etc., etc. Open
for Engagement. Address: 25, Randolph Crescent,
W. 9. Phone: Paddington 3819.GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer

THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.

Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,
Hoe St., Walthamstow, E.17.ADRIAN BRUNEL,Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 (Phone: 5280 Paddington).RICHARD GARRICK,Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.ALBERT WARD,Producer—Open to accept engagements.
3, Ranelagh Grove, S.W.1.THIS SPACE TO LET
17s. 6d. for 13 insertions

DIRECTORS

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer
of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H.
MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE,"
"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
"SETTLED IN FULL,"
"ALL THE WINNERS,"
"WATCHING EYES,"
"BLUFF," etc.All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

PUBLICITY

F. J. STANDERWICK,
Photographer.I am making a speciality of Catering for
Film Artists. Phone for appointment—
Western 1363. Hammersmith 1363. Studio
—9, Charleville Road, West Kensington,
W.14.FRANK J. WOOLF

Publicity Representative,

British and Colonial Kinematograph
Company, Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
Telephone: Walthamstow 364.

STUDIO MANAGER

JOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—

B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,
Hoe Street, Walthamstow.
Telephone: W'stow 364."THIS SPACE TO LET
£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

Last week I said "Good-bye" to

Donald Crisp as he left London for the Aquitania, on which he is returning to America after eight months in this country. Don's fellow-traveller was Sir Harry Lauder, who, I understand, is becoming increasingly interested in picture-making both from an artistic and a financial point of view. By the way, it is not generally known that Donald Crisp acted as bodyguard to Chaplin during his rough-and-tumble London experiences. He was "Battling Burrows" again, in fact.

At an early hour on Monday morning last, two gentlemen representatives of an Italian film company called at Stewart Rome's home at Richmond. Rome was still in the land of dreams, but dressed hurriedly and met his callers. The two gentlemen explained they had travelled from Paris to fetch him to play in a new Italian film, as he had severed his connection with Broadwest's. An hour later Stewart Rome was chasing round London for a passport, and left on Tuesday night for Paris en route for Turin, where the greater part of the film will be made. This is the first occasion on which Rome has played for any but a British film company; it is also the first occasion on which he has played in film scenes to be made outside the United Kingdom.

I cannot forbear to quote from the Financial Mail the following choice editorial comment on Charlie Chaplin:—"We can copy his methods of business; we can so regulate our dealings that they enrich us whilst impoverishing none; that those who have helped us to make a fortune remain our friends and rejoice at our prosperity. And I venture to say that if Charlie Chaplin had been a company promoter or a pork butcher, he would not have deviated one hair's-breadth from the straight and narrow path which he has trodden all through life." I refrain from making obvious comments.

The same writer explains his point to his own satisfaction in this way: "... He is able to assert that not one penny of his fortune has been earned except in a manner that has impoverished no one, that has, indeed, been freely and willingly poured into his lap without one single regret from those who have provided it. Surely there can be no more enviable position than that Charles Chaplin, who in this respect alone has shown that, without trickery, without double-dealing, without taking advantage of one's neighbour, one may make a fortune in a legitimate way, and still leave those who contributed to it one's willing debtors." I have a great admiration for Chaplin, but am forced to say that the same claim as is found in this second paragraph can be made on behalf of our British film players.

The National Council of Women has been deliberating at its annual conference on the question of film licences, and Isabel Beresford of the A.A. has seconded a resolution that the Home Secretary should "introduce legislation without delay for the licensing of all persons who, for the purpose of private gain, employ any person to perform in any theatre, music-hall, circus, or other place of public amusement, or to take part as an actor or performer in the preparation of a film for the purpose of a cinematograph."

Another part of the resolution urges the Government "to promote legislation with the object of preventing any young person under the age of eighteen from singing, playing, or performing for profit in any theatre, music-hall, cinema, or other place of entertainment unless the young person has been previously licensed by a local authority, under the same conditions as to supervision, lodgings, dressing-rooms, and earnings as are provided for under the Prevention of Cruelty to Children Act, 1904, as amended by Section 13, Sub-section 2, of the Education Act, 1918."

While there is much to be said for licensing those firms that employ film players, I am not disposed to agree with the second suggestion of licensing the players under eighteen. This is far too bureaucratic, as well as failing adequately to deal with the problem that the Council wishes to tackle. I am of the opinion that the Kinema Club will be the solution to this problem.

Ann Forrest, the pretty Danish film actress, recently spent one of her free afternoons since her arrival in England in running down to Chalfonts, where John Milton lived in 1665, at the time when London itself was visited by the Great Plague.

Let me draw my readers' attention to the announcement, on another page, of the general meeting that is to be held on October 16, when the much-needed club will be launched. I can easily see that this club will not only cultivate the fraternal spirit among artistes, directors and others, but will be the headquarters of all those who have the best interests of British films at heart as well as improving the status of artistes. This club will at once ensure the competent artiste getting proper recognition, and will be the means of ridding the studios of be-titled snobs, "gifted amateurs," and the persistent screen-struck, who conspire to lower the level of British screencraft and make it increasingly difficult for the competent artistes to secure appointments. If it does nothing more than this the club will justify its existence.

Congratulations to both Madge Stuart and Maurice Elvey on their engagement, which was officially announced at the "MEGAPHONE," Stoll dinner last Tuesday.

ON THE FLOOR

With BANNISTER MERWIN

With splendid experience in this country and America it is, possibly, only natural to expect to find that Bannister Merwin has an old-wise idea of film directing. To find an excitable megaphone-munching director in this country is rare nowadays, and in this respect Bannister Merwin is not the exception.

His strong point on the floor is that he is so essentially democratic. He refuses to agree that a director should control his players in just the same way that a performer controls marionettes. He does not believe that players are merely puppets in the director's hands.

His method in handling artistes is to give them his idea of the scene and rehearse them over it. If they cannot get just the effect he desires he gives them the opportunity to go off the floor and rehearse it between themselves until they are satisfied.

This democratic spirit pervades the studio, so that the staff and all concerned in the production seem to comprise a happy family party.

So far as his technical staff is concerned, here again the same spirit is manifested. He consults his cameraman and electrician before shooting any scene, and is prepared to accept their suggestions.

Where they are and —

Templer Powell is playing heavy in "The Experiment" (Stoll).

Judd Green is to play Jerry in "Class and No Class" (Gaumont).

Hubert Woodward is playing Sam Weller in "Pickwick Papers" (Ideal).

Geoffrey Malins is directing the production of "The Recoil" for Hardy.

Olive Sloane has been playing in "Lord Arthur Savile's Crime" (Film Le Grand).

Flora Le Breton has finished her comedy rôle in Blackton's "The Glorious Adventure."

Mary Dibley is now on location with the Hepworth Company in scenes in "The Bargain."

Cecil Morton York has just finished playing the Dean in "Lord Arthur Savile's Crime" (Film Le Grand).

Suzanne Morris has completed her work as Mrs. Haigh in "The Haigh Serial" (Masters).

Sinclair Hill has accomplished the filming of a motor-ride scene after dark and in the rain for Stoll's "The Experiment."

Will Kellino has just commenced the direction of a new "Westminster" production for Gaumont. This is to be called "Class and No Class."

Frank Dane has been cast for St. George of England in "Where the Rainbow Ends," which H. Lisle Lucoque is directing for British Photoplays.

Gerald Ames, in playing in a Hepworth picture, broke one of his ribs in a fight scene. Gerry has been laid up for several days, but has made good recovery.

Evelyn Brent was in London last week. She crossed from Holland, where she is playing in "The Silver Lining," to be present at the Trade show of "Sonia."

Robert English, who played Sir Theodore Cannyne in Stoll's "The Fruitful Vine," has been cast for the lead in "The Lost Leader," which George Ridgewell is to direct, but unfortunately has been on the sick list, and so the production has been held up.

Lionelle Howard has just finished playing the leading male part opposite Zena Dare in "No. 5, John Street," for Thompson.

Cecil du Gue is in the cast of "Class and No Class" (Gaumont).

Lawrence Anderson plays the villain in Hardy's "The Recoil."

Sydney Folker is playing an important part in Harma's "The Corner Man."

Cyril Chadwick is playing a leading part in "Three Live Ghosts" for F.P.-Lasky.

William Veats, the photographic expert, who has been on the free list for some time past, has now been fixed up.

Ivor Novello has just signed a contract with Harley Knowles to play a leading part in "The Bohemian Girl" (Alliance).

Bannister Merwin has finished his first Temple production, "Horace," and is starting the second, which will be "Some Truth."

Charles Cullum, in addition to playing at night at the Princes Theatre in "The Knave of Diamonds," is playing lead in "The Man Who Came Back," for Masters.

Einar J. Bruun is away.

Ida Lambert is playing female lead in "The Corner Man" for Harma.

Frank Fowell is responsible for the story of "The Corner Man" (Harma).

Captain Harry Lambart is busy editing his picture "Romance and Reality."

Lewis Willoughby has the hero part in "The Lamp in the Desert" (Stoll).

A. E. Coleby's first Stoll production is to be "Froggy's Little Brother," for which casting is proceeding.

L. G. Egrot, whose photographic work was such a feature of "Land of My Fathers," is disengaged for the moment.

Peggy Hathaway has been playing The Girl for Screenplays' version of the John Bull story, "How Kitchener was Betrayed."

Gladys Jennings is playing Stella Denvers, the heroine in "The Lamp in the Desert," which Martin Thornton is directing for Stoll.

Chrissie White paid an unexpected visit to Birmingham last week to be present at a Trade show of "The Amazing Quest of Mr. Bliss."

JUST — by MALVINA

A sincere expression of opinion from an artiste just back from location is what I would like to set down here. I feel that, as one who may claim to have some measure of experience in picture-making afield, a little word of appreciation of a recent adventure may not come amiss.

I have just returned from South Devon, where I was engaged to play Lydia in Eden Philpott's wonderful sea story, "The Haven"—called the "Night Hawk" for screen purposes. International Artists is responsible for this production, and to it I am indebted for the session of filming which, on account of able organisation and a palpable thoughtfulness, became a pleasure.

I have no ulterior motive when I speak thus frankly, for I have memories of other locations which yielded anything but pleasure; and although it may be a somewhat novel departure, is it not due to the director that the artiste should say "I thank you"—if she can say so truthfully?

John Gliddon, the director, gave one the feeling that one could not do enough for him. He impressed me as being a man of great imagination and acute sensitiveness. He knows what he wants and has the gift of conveying his conception of a scene with the utmost lucidity. Especially does he seem to have an understanding of emotion in acting, his sympathetic treatment of such parts making the work of the artiste ever so much easier.

Briefly, if I may say so, I think John Gliddon has a great future.

MAURICE P. THOMPSON, RALPH FORKE and HORACE WALPOLE, a trio of juvenile talent which A. E. COLEBY used in "Fifth Form at St. Dominics."

what they are doing

Lewis Gilbert is in "The Lamp in the Desert" (Stoll).

A Harding Steerman is playing in "The Corner Man" (Harma).

Phyllis Titmuss is playing lead in Hardy's "The Recoil" opposite Eille Norwood.

Marie Ault has been engaged to play Liza Ann in Gaumont's "Class and No Class."

Gus Platts, the boxer, has accepted an engagement to appear in a sporting film with other well-known boxers.

Henry Vibart has been engaged by Harley Knoles for a leading part in his next Alliance production, "The Bohemian Girl."

Elizabeth Brandt, of International Artists, is back in London from Sweden and has made the Hotel Cecil her headquarters.

Eille Norwood, who is to star in fifteen more Sherlock Holmes episodes for Stoll, is now playing lead in "The Recoil" (Hardy).

Pauline Johnson has been provided with the leading part of Nancy in the latest Gaumont production, "Class and No Class."

Gladys Mason (who in private life is the wife of Cecil Humphrey) is playing Mrs. Ralston in "The Lamp in the Desert," which Martin Thornton is directing for Stoll at Cricklewood.

BACK LONGFELLOW.

These considerations are of importance when it is realised that the aim of the artiste is to submerge his or her personality in that of the character being portrayed—an objective which can only be attained if the director is enough of an artiste, as well as a student of human nature, to handle his cast the proper way.

This applies particularly in this country. In America parts are so often written for and around certain stars; but here the actor must be prepared to adapt himself to anything that may come along. In "The Night Hawk," for instance, I played the part of an everyday human woman, a sweet and simple character with love as the principal emotion; but previously I have played practically every type of part, from gipsy girl to milady. I loved the part of Lydia, and I think I have done some of my best work in this picture. If, later on, "the people who matter" think so, the director must share the praise.

I should like to add a word about Alan Butler, Governing Director of the Company. Representing, I suppose, "the business end of things," Mr. Butler's co-operation was splendid. Genial host that he is, he placed his launch at the disposal of the company, and on a certain memorable Sunday he skippered a picnic cruise to Salcombe, which everybody enjoyed.

Mr. Butler and his colleague, Mr. d'Eyncourt, told me that they were all out for the betterment of British films, and if sincerity of purpose counts for anything, they have made an excellent start.

Miles Mander is busy at the Stoll studio playing Marquis Sallust in "Half a Truth."

Teddy Arundell plays Major Ralston in Stoll's "The Lamp in the Desert."

Henry Edwards made a personal appearance at the Birmingham Trade show of "The Amazing Quest of Mr. Bliss."

Irene Tripod sustained an injury to her ribs as a result of an accident last week, and has been confined to her room.

Artistes are requested to note that the Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate has removed to 1, 3 and 5 Cecil Court, Charing Cross Road, W.C.2.

Betty Doyle, whose latest release is "Little Dorrit," has been engaged for an important part in "Class and No Class," which Will Kellino is to direct for Gaumont.

Eliot Stannard and E. A. Baughan, the dramatic critic of the Daily News, collaborated on the scenario of "Pickwick Papers," which Tom Bentley is directing for Ideal.

MAJOR CHARLES H. BELL, demonstrates the gentle art of making tea to the new arrivals at Famous-Lasky's Studio. Left to right: NORMAN KERRY, TOM GERAGHTY (production manager) MAJOR BELL, GEORGE FITZMAURICE, CYRIL CHADWICK.

Lyonel Watts is in "Mr. Justice Raffles."

Tom Coventry is in "Class and No Class."

David Hawthorne is to play the nobleman in "Class and No Class" (Gaumont).

Mavis Clare is in "A Lowland Cinderella."

Kate Phillips has finished playing in "A Lowland Cinderella" for Progress.

Blanche McIntosh is responsible for the scenario of "Mr. Justice Raffles" (Hepworth).

Victor W. Rowe is directing the production of "Football Daft" for Broadway. New studios have been secured at Thornliebank, just outside Glasgow.

Peggy Paterson has just finished playing an important part in "Mr. Justice Raffles," the latest Hepworth production.

Nell Emerald has been playing an important part in "A Lowland Cinderella," which Sidney Morgan has finished directing for Progress.

Gaston Quirèbet has collaborated with Cecil Hepworth and Gerald Ames in the direction of the latest Hepworth production, "Mr. Justice Raffles," which is now ready for Trade showing.

Arthur H. Rook has returned to Davidson Studios as successor to A. E. Coleby. He is collaborating with I. B. Davidson on an original sporting drama, and in addition to directing the production will play a principal part.

Fay Compton, now playing in "Quality Street" at the Haymarket, has been cast for a leading part in "The Old Wives' Tales" (Ideal). She is also to star in "The House of Peril," which Kenelm Foss is to direct for Thompson.

Olaf Hytten has, during the past six months, appeared as a discontented strike leader, a family solicitor, a young 'Varsity student, a deep-dyed but suave villain, an American millionaire, the brutal villain of "Sonia," and the plausible rogue in "The Missioner." Villain parts predominate, but each one has introduced a different type of rogue.

WHAT I TELL ASPIRANTS

by MARY ODETTE

Every day I get a whole budget of letters from people who are dying to get on the screen, to say nothing of my friends and my friends' friends, and the people who stop me in the street. In fact, I do not think I have met one person who is not perfectly convinced he or she can become a full-blown film star.

I get letters from people living as far away as Cheshire and Somerset, and even from abroad, asking me to get them on the screen. How can they stand a chance when so many living on the spot—in London—fail? And even if they come to London, how are they going to live in between times, supposing that they are lucky enough to obtain a few days' work here and there.

This is a point of view I am daily putting in front of young girls and men. It is a side of film life they do not come across in the fan papers and general press, when reading the gilded accounts that are published about the enormous earnings of this or that film star.

The public does not seem to apply the same logic to films as to other things. Because a few stars, after years of hard work and study, are able to claim their reward, I do not know why the public should imagine—as it undoubtedly does—that one can make a fortune by just walking into a film studio.

Again, there is quite a large portion of the public that does not seem to appreciate the fact that any special training or talent is required of a film artiste. People who have failed at everything else think they can become film artistes. Here is one of many examples: "Dear Mary Odette,—My son is an engineer, but has been out of a job for some time. I thought you could help him to get on the films." An attitude of mind that is not particularly flattering.

This craze for encouraging and thrusting inexperienced newcomers into important parts is lowering the profession down to the level of unskilled labour. The standard of film acting in England is at present very low. What can one expect when the procedure of so many producing firms is to put a pretty girl without the first knowledge of film technique into a part? Then instead of giving her a second chance with the minute experience it is possible to gain in one picture, they take a newcomer. It is not fair to the girl in question, and it is not fair to our art.

That this system has occasionally been justified by the discovery of natural talent I admit; but the general effect must obviously be cheapening. How can one expect the standard of acting in England to stand up against the American which is led by stars who have years of work and experience and study behind them? I have made a record of twenty-four films inside four years, and the more I learn the more I realise how much I have yet to learn in the great and difficult art of film acting. Of course, we are told the producing firms are always on the look out for fresh talent, but in the face of the enormous number of really talented small part-artistes already in our midst who cannot get sufficient work to make a living, I am rather inclined to think it is cheapness that the producing firms are out for, and in this world one never really obtain a shillings-worth of anything for twopence.

It was the exploitation of amateurs, and especially rich amateurs, in conjunction with disillusioning the public by letting them see too much behind the scenes that ruined the stage. If we are not very careful, the same thing is going to happen to the films.

CHAPLIN ON OUR FILMS

Charlie Chaplin, interviewed by a representative of the Motion Picture Journal on the subject of British pictures, said, apart from "Kipps," which is the only British picture he has seen while in this country, the British films he has seen have always revealed one particular weakness. "You have splendid actors and excellent stories, but your technical side seems under-developed. The lighting usually strikes me as being very poor. You see, in America, we think nothing of spending whole days merely studying the effect of the lighting systems, changing and experimenting until the desired effect is obtained, long before the players come on the floor. But your pictures always suggest to me—I may be wrong, but this is the impression—that you just shout 'lights' and shoot.

"Your laboratory work is usually of inferior quality. Developing, printing and toning all seem defective, and if this is improved I think you will have made your greatest step forward. No one has observed more readily and more gladly than I that British productions have made enormous strides and are overcoming the great set-back that the war gave. I appreciate the fact that American productions did not experience this handicap so keenly as you, and I think your productions are instances of how obstacles are overcome. But I am also convinced that they are going to become even better and bigger. I can only record my humble opinion when I say that if these technical points are observed there will be a great improvement.

"I really do not think British productions should ape the Americans. You should work on your own plan and allow your own ideas of producing to grow and develop. Just as the Swedish pictures are a class of film entertainment to themselves, so should British pictures become a separate class. Nor do I think it necessary for you to wait until you can produce pictures on the elaborate plan that the Americans do. Start in a small way and grow in size as you grow in experience."

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES

XIV.—ADELQUI MILLAR

A man of brilliant attainments in many spheres, ten years before the footlights and the screen have not succeeded in killing Adelqui Millar's enthusiasm, which is one of the most attractive things about him.

Bred of a Southern race, Adelqui has all the personal charm and subtle fascination of his ancestry, and his presence denotes strength, both bodily and mental. He is grave or gay as occasion demands, with perhaps a greater penchant for the latter than the former. A fine profile, dark curly hair, and eyes that are in turn mystic, laughing or sad—a personality with an irresistible magnetism.

Born some thirty years ago in Concepcion, Chile, of a Chilean father and an Italian mother, his early youth was spent as a cowboy on his father's farm. At 16 he left the place of his birth to spend three years in Italy, studying literature. A stage tour through Central America and California was his first theatrical experience, and in 1910, when America was just beginning to go ahead with motion pictures, Adelqui made his screen debut.

The Victoria was one of the popular American companies of those days to which he was attached, but it has long since been merged with one of the newer organisations. Vitagraph was also one of his old loves. When the rage for sleuth dramas was at its height he played the role of detective "more times than I care to remember."

As the industry advanced he realised that he would be left behind if he did not keep pace with its evolution, so he went into training for every conceivable kind of sport, for swimming, driving, diving, boxing, etc.

In between film work he had been appearing on the stage and had begun to write plays with some success. He is still doing this, and one of his biggest stage successes, entitled "Carnival Tragique," he has now adapted for the screen, and it is the subject of the next Granger-Binger film, the title being "Laughter and Tears," in which he plays lead.

After some years of American studio life he returned to Italy, and there, he says, "the first part of my life's ambition was achieved. Many of the Pasquali and Gloria productions in which I appeared were seen in England, and had it not been for the war I would have been better known to you now, for I was on the point of signing a British contract when communication between England and the Continent was stopped."

In 1916, when Italy entered the war, the Italian film work was practically at a standstill, and he returned to Holland, where for the past five years he has lived and worked.

He played lead in many of the Anglo-Hollandia productions, including "The Coronet of Shame," and is now being seen in "Joy" and "Fate's Plaything." His further two Hollandia subjects, "John Heriot's Wife" and "As God Made Her," in which he played opposite Mary Odette, and the first Granger-Binger film "The Little Hour of Peter Wells," with Heather Thatcher, will also shortly be seen in England. "The Other Person" has been Trade shown, and in this Adelqui Millar played the difficult part of The Spirit.

Mr. HERBERT MAULE,
Riding Master.

PUTNEY RIDING ESTABLISHMENT.

1a, Cam'alt Road, Putney Hill, S.W.15.

Horses supplied to film companies: riding lessons given. Terms moderate.

Phone: PUTNEY, 1984.

TITLING
SPECIALISTExpert in handwritten work.
English or American Style.

G. T. SHEARMAN, Bentinck Road, Nottingham.

SUBTLETIES AND SLEDGEHAMMERS

"Tom Bentley started life as a music-hall artiste," says a contemporary. Which is a great advantage over his comrade-directors who started life as mere infants in arms.

* * *

It is enthusiasm which enables a man to be perfectly sure of a lot of things he is mistaken about.

* * *

A writer in the Kine says: "A camera in Russia costs a thousand roubles; but who knows the value of a rouble?" We do. The value of a rouble is the thousandth part of a camera.

* * *

A synonym is a word that is easier to spell than its equivalent.

* * *

A screen aspirant, when asked at the Ideal studio what he could do, said he was "mad on wireless." In which case he should be sent to Mar-Coni Hatch.

* * *

"All's fair in love and war," but, according to the average American film, in love the fighting doesn't begin until the engagement is over.

* * *

A producing company is being formed with the object of going out to make a film in the Holy Land. Thus does history repeat itself—stars at Bethlehem again.

* * *

It is becoming increasingly difficult to keep pace with the fluctuations in the popularity of British directors. We writers are often at a loss to know whether to refer to a director as "distinguished" or "extinguished."

* * *

APT SAYINGS OF GREAT MEN:—"Produce, produce; if it be the merest iota of a production—produce it."—Carlyle.

* * *

A medical writer in a Sunday paper is urging the people to drink soup instead of coffee. We were at a studio restaurant where the job was to tell the difference.

* * *

A small thing is a small thing, of course. And faithfulness in a small thing is a great thing, of course. It is this faithfulness that changes the mite into mighty.

* * *

"The number of my motoring parts in films runs into three figures," claims a well-known British artiste. And his car has done ditto?

* * *

Knowledge without practice is like a glass eye—only for show.

* * *

Someone has suggested the formation of a Council of Five for the British film industry. But how are we to be sure that it would be any improvement on the present State of Sixes and Sevens?

* * *

The philosophy of many American stars:—To have more than one wife is polygamy; to have only one is monotony.

* * *

"Perhaps men and women really did spring from monkeys," said Bannister Merwin over the lunch table at the Catford studios last week. Well, if they did, we think woman sprang the further.

MY WAY OUT

by "VIEWER"

As a fairly successful business man and one who has taken more than the mere patron's interest in the kinema for many years, I think I am competent to pass some slight estimation of its possible future.

There may and may not be a future for the kinema. Few realise that it is even now on the threshold of a great change and none of us know what the new epoch will be. In the last ten years not only has the public taste completely changed, but the whole business of production has been revolutionised.

To my mind, the great blunder has been made in mistaking the kinema for another branch or a successor of the old type of entertainment syndicate or business. It is nothing of the kind if you carefully consider it.

Nine out of ten people do not think of the kinema as anything more than a frivolity, and it is never, at least in England, made "an event," as are the plays and operas. As a frivolity, a stop-gap, or a novelty, the public will choose to keep it going in an ænemic way, but this is not the goal that directors dreamed of, and those producing companies that are over-capitalised are now realising their danger.

One thing is certain: the kinema cannot stay where it is, and how far the public sympathy lies with any efforts that may be contemplated to take a big leap forward is unsoundable.

One can remember music-hall performances that were leisurely and not too varied, then the speeding up set in, until now it is nothing more than a howling row of five-minute performances nightly. This is what is coming to the pictures, as anyone can see. You can give the public too much and too little. Either way means disaster. The too much is generally scratchy and poor, and the too little, if good even, has cost too much to produce.

My way out would be to keep on as at present and cut expenses.

Put all English firms into a clearing house to be sold in blocks of, say, ten.

Shut the door against all aspirants who do not have to depend upon their acting for a living. Film acting can never be a profession except to a very few. For every actor of a film play which may be shown thousands of times there is usually no more than a few hours' work. On the stage he would have to act every time over again. Naturally, directors cannot retain actors in idleness, and yet thousands of aspirants fail to realise this. There is a stupid idea abroad that films are being acted and cranked all day long in all the studios, and I think something ought to be done by directors to disabuse the public mind of this. Personally, I believe in the employment of artistes who can support themselves irrespective of their earnings as film actors.

More than this, I should continually find fresh faces. For instance, everyone knows that in a W. S. Hart film it is Mr. Hart who is going to do all that really matters, even if he is down and under. Hence the interest in that particular picture is usually dormant except for certain points of the story.

Another mistake is filming famous books. I have never seen a success in this direction yet. Every one of us forms our own mental pictures of how it all happened when we read a book, and we like to retain these pictures and touch them up as we re-read the book. Then in comes the film with its iconoclastic frame-up, and you go home and burn the novel.

If books are to be filmed, then remould the characters and, above all, give it a new title. Treat it as an original.

Many directors, if not all, know the importance of right atmosphere, but it would astonish them if they knew that from a patron's point of view they rarely achieve it. Nearly every film in its "interior" scenes reeks with canvas and cardboard, and its crowd scenes are hopeless, particularly in close-ups. Thirty men, each with something to do, could make a far more thrilling and realistic mob than your "thousand" in cheap chintz and with wooden knives.

Finally, I should like to summarise my remarks under these headings: Don't give the public too much; get away from the studio as much as possible; cut out crowds, acrobats, famous novels and aspirants; cut out travelling expenses.

It is quite possible to produce a really first-class Western drama in England if one took pains to find the lay-outs.

STOLL'S STRIDES

Last Thursday, at the Cricklewood Studios, the first ordinary general meeting of shareholders of the Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., was held, when the directors submitted the balance-sheet as at June 30, 1921, and the profit and loss account to that date.

The profit and loss account shows a net profit of £35,858 8s. 8d., and after deducting the dividend paid on the Preference shares up to March 31 last, there remains a balance of £29,321 9s. 8d., which the directors propose to carry forward.

Sir Oswald Stoll and W. S. Gordon Michie, chairman and secretary respectively of the company, pointed out that "the purchase of the property at Cricklewood sanctioned at the statutory meeting held on June 16, 1920, was duly carried out, and the building has been converted into a perfectly equipped studio for the production of first-class pictures. A portion of the studio was ready for picture production in August, 1920, but the work of adapting and equipping was not completed until February of this year. The Company has, therefore, not yet had the advantage of a full year's work. The film printing works, which will be capable of executing the whole of this company's printing, and also of doing a large business in film printing for outside firms, is on the point of completion.

"The first release date of any picture by the Company was January 31, 1921. A release date means the first date on which money is receivable by the company in respect of the public exhibition of a picture; hence the actual returns to the company did not begin until more than seven months after the formation of the company. This position limited the returns from both the home and foreign markets during the period covered by the accounts. The returns from some of the foreign markets were further restricted by adverse rates of exchange, because it was not politic to part with valuable exhibition rights at prices which, although high in foreign currency, are very low in English money."

TYPING—'Phone Regent 4747

"SPEEDAC" STENOGRAPHIC BUREAU
41, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.1.

Usual terms. Typing all classes: Authors' MS., Film Scenarios a speciality under expert supervision. Write, 'phone or call for quotation.

Proprietor—P. F. Buckle—Dictation Room.

The Historical Film must be accurately dressed.

We Stock Civil and Military costumes of all
known periods. :: ::

"The Call of the Road,"
and "The Old Curiosity
Shop," with their wealth
of costume, detail and
characteristics of their
times were dressed by us.

Write to-day stating
your requirements.

H. & M. RAYNE,
115-119, Waterloo Road,
S.E.1.

WEST END
BRANCH: 15, Rupert Street.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN says :

"THE LABORATORY WORK OF BRITISH STUDIOS is sometimes of inferior quality, developing, printing and toning all seem defective." We agree with him! Producers are for ever complaining that they cannot get printers to take the interest in their work which is so essential.
In the first place, printers must have experience. Personal supervision must be behind every particle of their work. We specialise for producers and claim that 15 years experience is behind every foot of printing we send out.

VICKERS FILMCRAFT
LTD.

89, SHAFTESBURY AVENUE, W.1.

Laboratories :

PARAGON WORKS, 29, ACTON LANE, W.4.

ALWAYS-ON-TIME

'Phones: GEF RARD 4045 and
CHISWICK 132

STUDIO SPORTS

Benstead's Challenge Accepted.

Geoffrey Benstead has recently challenged all comers in the film industry to a billiards tournament, the proceeds to go in aid of some deserving institution. W. H. Robbins, of the Biocolour House at 5, Little Newport Street, has accepted the challenge and suggests 500 up. We are fixing an interview with the contestants in order to arrange details, which will be announced in a later issue.

A Challenge from Germany.

Victor McLaglen, the boxer-actor, who is just completing his part of Bullfinch in the J. Stuart Blackton production "The Glorious Adventure," has received a challenge from Germany. The sender of the challenge is the champion heavyweight boxer of Germany, who expresses a desire to meet McLaglen in the ring at an early date. McLaglen is refusing the offer, however, as he is busy with film work and cannot at the present moment make any arrangements for future engagements in the ring. "I have almost given up boxing as a profession," says McLaglen, "for film work—and anyway, my late sparring partner, Harry Drake, knocked out the German heavyweight champion, so I am not so keen about the match as if he had not been beaten by an Englishman."

Ideal v. Manchester.

As a result of the challenge given by the Manchester Kinema Sports Association to play the winners of the Kine. Cup, a match was played at Boreham Wood on September 25, when the Ideal eleven gained an easy victory. The scores were:—Ideal, 92 (Walton, 23; Simpson, 19); M.K.S.A., 32 (Harrison, 16). Bowling for Ideal, Evans took 7 wickets for 12, and Barkas 3 for 18.

KINEMA CLUB

After weeks of careful consideration of the various aspects of the problem of forming a Club for the artistic side of British film production, the Formation Committee has drawn up a group of excellent recommendations, which will be placed before the mass meeting of directors, artistes, scenarists and cameramen, which has now been fixed for Sunday, October 16, at 3 p.m. These recommendations we hope to print in full in our next issue.

It must be understood that the secret of the success of the Club will be its exclusiveness. It is our hope that to place on one's professional card, "Member of the Kinema Club" will be a testimony to the artistic ability, recognised professional reputation and general social status of the member. The Club has to be more than merely a centre for social intercourse; membership of it must be the hall-mark of all that is for the best in British films. It is for this reason that we welcome the suggestion of the Formation Committee not to lay down hard and fast rules by which all applications for membership should be generally judged, but that each application should be considered by a strict and impartial Qualifications Committee on its individual merits.

It is expected to obtain the support of all the leading personalities in the British film industry, and the elaborateness or otherwise of the Club will be determined by the number of persons desiring to become members at the mass meeting. This meeting will be the inauguration of the Club, and it is necessary that all who are eligible for membership should be present. All who are desirous of receiving an invitation to the meeting are requested to sign the form to be found on this page and post it to the Hon. Secretary, Kinema Club, 85, Long Acre.

I desire to be advised of the date of the GENERAL MEETING of the KINEMA CLUB.

Name.....

Address.....

Will you also send notice of the Meeting to

Name.....

Address.....

Who, I think, will be glad to attend.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES,
UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for
Kinematograph Productions. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

INCONGRUITIES

Careful attention to the details in film production spells success. Here are a few slight errors we have observed in recent releases.

In "The Call of the Road," during the prize-fight scene, a coach is seen containing some men in old-time dress watching the fight. But there are also a couple in modern tweed lounge suits there.

* * *

The solicitor in "The Skin Game" is seen to hand his client a document duly signed, and witnessed, but not stamped. This makes it valueless, because before the client receives it it should go to the Stamping Department, Somerset House, and receive a duty stamp.

* * *

Mrs. Standish, when conversing with her sister in "The Barton Mystery," is wearing a walking dress. She goes to the window to watch her husband's departure, and her dress suddenly changes to an evening gown. Turning to resume her conversation, she is once more attired in the walking costume

* * *

Seth Langton (played by A. E. Coleby), in "The Way of the World," is supposed to purchase a daily paper in order to back a horse, and a close-up of it reveals the issue dated March 12, 1914. Six or seven years later (according to the story) he is seen once more to buy a paper. It is the same issue again!

* * *

In "Won by a Head," Lawton and Phyllis are standing outside the house of her trainer when a telegram is handed to them from Detective Bell. When it is open, it is seen to be in Detective Bell's own handwriting.

K.C.S. MEETINGS RE-OPEN

The reopening of the meetings of the Kine-Cameramen's Society will result in the members coming closer in touch with each other again. During the winter there will be a meeting every week and as there will be plenty of business to discuss, the meetings should be well attended. Geo. Woods-Taylor, the Society's secretary, announced at the meeting of Friday last that he would be leaving on the Renown, with the Prince of Wales, in about a fortnight's time, and, therefore, he would have to relinquish his duties as secretary for at least ten months. He was anxious to see a new secretary elected before he left.

The President put it to the meeting that a letter of condolence be sent to the wife of Charles L. Le Goanziori, a member of the Society, who was killed in New York City, while engaged in taking films. He was in the employ of Pathé Frères, and that company had made arrangements for his body to be conveyed to Paris. He met his death as a result of a motor lorry mounting the pavement, from which he was taking pictures. He leaves a widow and a young child.

The meetings are once again being held at Patmac's, in Wardour Street, instead of at 99, Wardour Street, as has been the custom for some time.

Two members reported very favourably on the proposed Kinema Club, which is practically an accomplished fact now. One member spoke on the proposal that the Club should only admit studio cameramen. He explained that this was only a suggestion put forward by one of the members of the temporary committee and that the committee was only there to decide the lines on which the club would be run, and had no power until the proposals were passed at the general meeting. He had pointed out to the committee that such a proposal would result in splitting the Kine-

Cameramen's Society into two camps—Topical and Studiomen, and that the Society could not have anything to do with the club if such were the conditions. He regarded the idea as very impracticable for a cameraman was in the studio to-day and on topical work to-morrow. The Society regarded it as a compliment that the committee of the Kinema Club had agreed that members of the Cameramen's Society could become members of the Kinema Club. The K.C.S. rules which allowed cameramen to join the Society were very strict, and if a man could get into the Cameramen's Society he was fully qualified for joining the Kinema Club.

FOR PHOTOGRAPHIC PURPOSES

Vickers Film Craft, Ltd., under the personal supervision of J. F. Vickers and B. H. Highams, both well known to the Trade during the last twelve years, has opened premises that are particularly spacious at Acton, where directors can get their negatives quickly and efficiently developed and printed. There is also a private negative room at the disposal of cameramen for artistic titling and other photographic purposes.

TO KINEMA ARTISTES

This journal has been launched solely in the interests of all who are concerned in the production of British films. Its success hitherto is due to the support accorded by certain sections of studio workers, but to develop the plans we have in mind for it we must secure the support of every film artiste. Become a regular subscriber—five shillings is the cost of a quarter's subscription.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

JOHN J. COX

44, Barrowgate Road,

:: Chiswick, W.4. ::

'Phone: Chiswick 294.

Cameraman for Maurice Elvey,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD

Cameraman.

AT LIBERTY for First-Class Productions.
1920 Debie Outfit.All Coms: 4, PERCIVAL PARADE,
WORCESTER PARK.

EDWIN DAY

Motion Picture Photographer,

12, Archer Street, Piccadilly Circus, London, W.1.

Telephone: Gerrard 780.

Telegrams: "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON

Thelton House, Cambolt

:: Road, Putney Hill. ::

Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN

"GAUMONT'S,"

105, King's Road,
Kingston-on-Thames.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

FRANK CANHAM

Motion Picture Photographer.

Address: Crystal Palace Hotel,

Upper Norwood, S.E.19.

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT

GAUMONT,

:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::

Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT

EXPERT CAMERAMAN.

"The Better 'Ole" etc., "Her Benny" etc.,
"Land of My Fathers."

Offices and Dark Rooms:

2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.

'Phone: Streatham 2986.

ALFRED H. MOSES

Photographing George Ridgwell Productions.

Formerly Chief Cameraman for Thanhauser,
Norma Talmadge, British & Colonial, etc.Address care of STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS,
Cricklewood.

PHIL ROSS

Cameraman—AT LIBERTY

Late of BROADWEST, HARMA, VANITY, etc.

19, Mayow Road, Forest Hill,
London, S.E.23.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

WILLIAM SHENTON

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Private Address:

17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,

Boreham Wood, Herts.

HORACE M. WHEDDON,

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Private Address

"LYNTON HOUSE,"

BOREHAM WOOD, HERTS.

JAMES E. ROGERS,

Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth

"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"

"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"

"Last Rose of Summer,"

PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

JACK H. ROSS,

LATEST FILMS:

"Wife Whom God Forgot" (Alliance).

"Love and the Whirlwind" (Alliance).

"Haigh Serial" (Astra).

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

All coms. to:—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Productions and Who is Working on Them

British Photoplay Productions.
ADDRESS: 28, Devon Chambers,
Fleet Street, Torquay.
FILM: "Where the Rainbow Ends."
DIRECTOR: H. Lisle Lucoque.
STAR: West End Cast.
TYPE: Five-reel drama.
STAGE: Third week.

Broadway Productions.
ADDRESS: West Nile Street, Glasgow.
STUDIO: Thornliebank, Glasgow
FILM: "Football Daft."
DIRECTOR: Victor W. Rowe.
STAR: Jimmy Brough.
SCENARIST: Victor W. Rowe.
TYPE: Two Reel Scottish Domestic Comedy.
STAGE: Fourth week.

Direct Film Traders.
STUDIO: Ebury St., Victoria, S.W.
FILM: "Four Men in a Van."
DIRECTOR: Hugh Croise.
STAR: Johnny Butt.
SCENARIST: Hugh Croise.
CAMERAMAN: Frank Granger.
TYPE: Feature Comedy.
STAGE: Fourth week.

Famous Players-Lasky
ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.
STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A.
Bell, O.B.E.
FILM: "Bonnie Briar Bush."
DIRECTOR: Donald Crisp.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Claude H.
Mitchell.
STAR: Donald Crisp.
SCENARIST: Margaret Turnbull.
STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: "Three Live Ghosts."
DIRECTOR: George Fitzmaurice.
STAR: Anna Q. Nilsson.
STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "Perpetua."
DIRECTOR: John Robertson.
STAR: Ann Forrest.
STAGE: Third week.

Gaumont
ADDRESS: 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, W. 12.
FILM: "Class and No Class."
DIRECTOR: Will Kellino.
STAR: Pauline Johnson.
STAGE: First week.

Hardy.
ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W.1.
STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isle-
worth.
FILM: "The Recoil."
DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.
STARS: Eille Norwood.
SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.
CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.
STAGE: Finishing.

Harma
ADDRESS: 16, Limes Road, Croydon.
FILM: "The Corner Man."
DIRECTOR: Einar J. Bruun.
STAR: Hugh E. Wright.
SCENARIST: Frank Fowell.
STAGE: Third week.

Ideal.
ADDRESS: Boreham Woods, Elstree
STUDIO MANAGER: F. A. Kendrick.
STAGE MANAGER: F. G. Knott.
FILM: "Pickwick Papers."
DIRECTOR: Thomas Bentley.
STAR: Fred Valpe.
CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.
STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "The Old Wives' Tale."

DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.
SCENARIST: Denison Clift.
CAMERAMAN: Geoffrey Barkas.
STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "Shirley."
DIRECTOR: A. V. Bramble.
STAR: Collatta Breese.
CAMERAMAN: H. W. Whadden.
STAGE: Second week.

Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate.
ADDRESS: Riverside Studios, Kew
Bridge.
FILM: "M'Lord of the White Road."
DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme
STAR: Dawn Meredith.
SCENARIST: Gerald Fort Buckle.

Progress

FILM: "The Lilac Sunbonnet."
STAR: Joan Morgan.
DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
STAGE: Fifth week.

Screen Plays.
ADDRESS: Cranmer Court, Clapham
S.W.
STUDIO MANAGER: Douglas Payne.
FILM: Grand Guignol series.
DIRECTORS: Fred Paul and Jack
Raymond.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Rodwell.
TYPE: Short melodramas.
STAGE: Producing one a week.

FILM: "How Kitchener Was Betrayed."

STAR: Fred Paul.
DIRECTOR: Percy Nash.
SCENARIST: Norman Ramsay,
M.A.
TYPE: John Bull story picturised.
STAGE: Nearing completion.

Seal.

ADDRESS: Princes Studio, Kew.
FILM: "Jessica's First Prayer."
STAR: C. Hargreave Mansell.
DIRECTOR: Bert Wynne.
STAGE: Second week.

Sterling Photoplays.

ADDRESS: 26, Dean Street, W.1.
FILM: "The Exclusive Model."
DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.
STAR: Molly Adair.
SCENARIST: Cyril E. Murrell.
CAMERAMAN: Edward Groc.
TYPE: Two-reel comedy.
STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: "Dutch Courage."
DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.
STAR: Dorothy Peters.
SCENARIST: Alec McKee.
TYPE: Two Reel Comedy.
STAGE: First week.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Crickle-
wood.
STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman.
FILM: "A Romance of Westdale."
DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.
STAR: Milton Rosmer.
STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: "The Lamp in the Desert."
DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.
CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Nearing Completion.

FILM: "A Lost Leader."
DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.
CAMERAMAN: Alfred Moses.
STAR: Robert English.
STAGE: Second week.

FILM: Half a Truth.
DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.
STARS: Margaret Hope, Irene
Rook, Percy Standing.
CAMERAMAN: Adolph Burger.
STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "Froggy's Little Brother"
DIRECTOR: A. E. Coleby.
STAGE: Casting.

Thompson Productions.

ADDRESS: B & C Studios, Wal-
thamstow.
FILM: "All Roads Lead to Calvary."

DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.
STARS: Mary Odette, Bertram
Burleigh, Minna Gray.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Grace
Rose.

SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.
EDITOR: John Miller.
CAMERAMAN: John Parker.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Second week.

Temple Producing.

ADDRESS: Catford Studios, S. E.
MANAGER: Maurice Edmonds.
FILM: "Some Truth."
DIRECTOR: Bannister Merwin.
STAR: A. Bromley Davenport.
SCENARIST: Bannister Merwin.
CAMERAMAN: Harold Bastick.
TYPE: Three Reel Comedy.
STAGE: Casting

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome,
Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone:
Kingsbury 120—Arlodro, Hyde,
London.

ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-
Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place,
Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing
2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD.,
Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone:
Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmopho, Ealux.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH
CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow,
E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364
and 712.

BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD.,
Thornton House, Thorton Road, Clap-
ham Park.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20.
'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PHOTOPLAYS, Devon Chambers,
28 Fleet Street, Torquay.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street,
Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Wal-
thamstow.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRO-DUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New
North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone:
Dalston 3704.

GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's
Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prologue, 'Phone
London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland,
London Office: Granger's, Exclusives,
191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone:
Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams:
Exclugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners
Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012.
Studio: Candlemass Lane, Beacons-
field.

GLEN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD., 20,
Lisle Street, London, W.C., and "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16 Limes Road,
Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and
2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst
Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone:
Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth
Walton.

IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood,
Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—
Idefilms, Borchamwood.

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS FILM CO., LTD.,
52 Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

ISLE OF MAN FILM CO., The Manx Studios,
Isle of Man.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush
House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Crickle-wood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048
(Studio, Willesden 3293).

LAMBART FILMS, Carlton House, Regent
Street, London, W. 'Phone: Gerr. 4040.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road
Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MINERVA FILM CO., LTD., 110, Victoria
Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shorchamby-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shorcham
19.

REGULUS FILMS: 48, Carnaby Street,
Regent Street, W.1.

SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isle-worth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow
212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High
Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton
2956.

SEAL PRODUCTIONS.—Prince's Studio,
Kew

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willes-
den 3293—Stollpic, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street,
Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1933—
Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoc Street
Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Wal-
thamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGINTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD.,
Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & CO., 41-45, Craven
Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone:
Willesden 2862.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON
21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

The MOTION PICTURE

Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 18.

Saturday, October 8, 1921.

FOURPENCE

THE PRESS ON DAVID O'RANE IN "SONIA."

"TIMES." 26.9.21.

" . . . There have been few better things in British pictures than Mr. Clive Brook's performance as David O'Rane, the youth who rises from nothing to a fortune and then sacrifices everything, including his eyesight, for the sake of the country which he loves. In the closing scenes, wherein the broken man feels that the world is against him until Sonia brings him comfort, Mr. Brook gives a really beautiful performance which in one stride puts him among the best of our film actors"

"DAILY NEWS." 23.9.21.

" . . . but the real credit lies with Clive Brook who plays the part of David O'Rane. It is a wonderful performance."

"DAILY TELEGRAPH." 29.9.21.

"The most notable thing about it seemed to me to be the performance of Mr. Clive Brook as the masterful hero."

"KINEMATOGRAPH WEEKLY." 29.9.21

"Clive Brook's acting together with his powerful personality will prove a great source of attraction . . . His acting at the end, when he is blind, constitutes the finest moment in the whole film."

"EVENING NEWS." 24.9.21.

" . . . Probably doing better work at the moment in British productions than any others."

"FILMS." 24.9.21.

"We can heartily congratulate Clive Brook on the artistry and force with which he completely dominates the play."

CLIVE BROOK

"DAILY MAIL." 26.9.21.

"Fine British acting . . . excellent . . . very convincing."

"CINEMA." 29.9.21.

"The character that stands out most clearly on the screen, as in the book, is that of David O'Rane. Clive Brook who takes the part dominates the play from beginning to end. He has managed to create a type that will infallibly leave a deep impression on all who see it."

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."
219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.

Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
'Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.

Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Sonia," "The Knight Errant," "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds."

Address—27 Eccleston Sq., S.W.1. Victoria 2968.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal), "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).

c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

Juvenile Leads: "Her Son," "Great Gay Road," "Lights of Home," "Land of My Fathers." Duane in "Belle of the Gambling Den" (Haigh Serial.)

OFFERS INVITED.

33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelm Foss Production), "John Herriott's Wife" and "The Breed of the Treshams"

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street. Regent 4329.

PHYLLIS SHANNAW.

Juv. Lead "Call of the Road," "The Right to Live," etc.

Will be shortly disengaged. All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour St., W.1. 'Phone: Regent 4329.

JOHN EAST.

Character Comedy. Tele: Hammersmith 1138, 14, Illey Road, Hammersmith, W.6.

ARTISTES

FLORA LE BRETON

34, NEVERN SQUARE, EARL'S COURT, S.W.5.

Phone: Western 1936,

HAYFORD HOBBS.

Starring with African Film Productions. Late Juvenile Lead: London Films (three years), Windsor Films (two years), and all leading English Film Companies. All comms: Box 4514 Johannesburg, South Africa.

ENA BEAUMONT.

Leads in "The Greater Love," "The Golden Web," "All the Winners," "Patricia Brent, Spinster," "Our Girls and Their Physique," "Settled in Full," "Watching Eyes," etc. All coms c/o A. Fraser, 26, Charing Cross Road, W.C.2.

SYDNEY WOOD,

Juv. Leads in "The Warrior Strain," "Her Penny," "Ever Open Door," "Bars of Iron," "The Flame," "The Will," "Double Event," "David and Jonathan," etc. Address—The Laurels, Beverley Road, Anerley, S.E.

'Phone: Chancery 7080-7081.

MILES MANDER,

Light, Heavy and Juv. Leads. Modern, aristocratic. Extensive wardrobe. All-round athlete. Now playing Marquis Sallust in "Half a Truth" (Stoll). Disengaged Oct. 15, 1921.

Address, 3, Clifford St., W.1. Phone: Regent 1327.

SYBIL GRAY

Latest Films "Carnival" (Alliance), "Corinthian Jack" (Masters), "Haigh of the Yard" (White). All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour Street. Regent 4329.

IRENÉE CRAVEN

LEADS.

Dignified, social sporting characters.

Three years experience.

Address—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

WALTER FORDE

Comedian.

ZODIAC FILMS, LTD.

All coms.:—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,

15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6. 'Phone: Hornsey 1784.

ARTISTES

MILTON ROSMER

Starring

STOLL AND IDEAL FILMS.

Phone - - - - Museum 5145.
88, NEWMAN STREET. W.1.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

'Phone: Regent 4329

DICK WEBB

(Juvenile)

GAUMONT, MASTERS, FAMOUS PLAYERS-

LASKY, BRITISH PRODUCERS.

180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc. STOLL FILM CO.

All coms: c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1.

LIONELLE HOWARD.

AT LIBERTY.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

ADELINE HAYDEN COFFIN.

Sympathetic Mother, Grande Dames.

Character Parts, "Mrs. Gatty," in "Christie Johnstone" (Broadwest), "Margaret Howe" in "Beside the Bonny Briar Bush" (Lasky).

55, Campden St., Kensington, W.8. Tel.: Park 3623.

CLIVE BROOK

24, Hyde Park Square, W.

Padd. 2868.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

POLLIE EMERY.

"Peach" in "The Case of Lady Camber" (Broadwest), "Auntie" in "Nothing Else Matters" (Welsh Pearson), "Madam Tourterelle" in "Perpetua" (Famous Players-Lasky British Productions).

7, KENYON MANSIONS, QUEEN'S CLUB GARDENS.

HARDING STEERMAN,

Characters of Distinction,

56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,

24, Cleveland Road Barnes, S.W. 13.

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 18

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

Oct. 8, 1921

The Censorship Danger.

THERE is an increasing tendency to demand State censorship of the screen. And it is not confined to this country. Like all other questions which are taken up by extremists, the need for severely restricting the scope of the photoplay is grotesquely exaggerated. The reformers' attitude that the screen should be emasculated so that it is fit for children is as ridiculous as would be a similar demand on literature, the drama, or art. Unfortunately, though going to violent extremes, the reformers have some ground for their complaints. To a large extent the making of pictures has been, especially in America, in the hands of men with little culture and misguided imaginations. It has also suffered from the cosmopolitan commercialist whose mind cannot get beyond sensation and violence—who believes that these are the things the public wants because they are the only things which he himself can appreciate. Thus in the cruder types of films—and this applies more especially to American films—there is a continual repetition of physical violence, viciousness and lust. In the more pretentious pictures the tendency has been towards subtle suggestion and sensuous display.

* * *

Better Men and Better Films.

THAT these films exist gives the reformers an excuse for their agitation. So do "bathing girl" comedies in which the bathing girl is only introduced in order to give the film a sex appeal. But the existence of such films does not furnish a reason for a rigid censorship that would regard the photoplay from the standpoint of the needs of children any more than a salacious play or a pornographic book would justify the imposition of such a censorship on the drama and literature. The film producing industry is capable of putting its own house in order. Better men—in the sense of being more educated and more artistic—are being attracted to the photoplay; and the more of them that come in, the harder will it be for the purveyors of sensation and salacity to continue their bad work. But the imposition of a censorship—especially a censorship controlled by bureaucrats, disappointed women and people who are under the delusion that their mission in life is to regulate the lives of others—would be fatal to the development and growth of a screen art. To make a comparison with a similar form of censorship on literature, it would produce—or rather allow—nothing but "Sandford and Mertons," "Danesbury Houses" and Sunday-school tracts.

better pictures. It is better pictures and more of them. There can never be too many good pictures, either for the Trade or for the exhibitor. The greater the number of good films and the smaller the number of bad ones, the larger will be the expansion in the size of the public interested in kinema-going. Such expansion is good for the director and the artiste. They can do their part to bring it about by concentrating on the production of better pictures and still better and more of them. Let America reduce her output. To make up her programs she will have to take in the best from the rest of the world. Already she is doing so. French, Swedish and German pictures are getting on to the screens of the United States in increasing numbers. It is our business to see that our pictures are good enough to get their share of this market

* * *

The Club.

SUNDAY, October 16, will witness the inauguration of the much-needed Club for those engaged in the artistic side of British film production. And with the advent of the Club the profession will vest itself with a new and necessary dignity. No longer should the film artiste be regarded as the Cinderella of the theatrical profession; membership of the Club will provide the artiste with the same status that membership of the Green Room Club does the theatrical actor and of the Savage the literary folk. That there will be misgivings among many is a sure fact, but we are confident that these will be found to be groundless when the Qualification Committee comes to exert a strong and stern supervision of the individual merits of individual applicants. There have been futile attempts in the past to form a Club, but never has the suggestion obtained the influential backing that this proposal has. Providing the necessary financial support is forthcoming—there should be a flourishing centre of social intercourse by Christmas. And we welcome its advent because its effect will be to close up the ranks.

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"The Fruitful Vine" (Stoll) is one of Stoll's best. It possesses technique of a high order, while the story has been turned into a scenario with credit to all concerned. Interior sets are lavishly magnificent while the picture also possesses good scenic value. To Maurice Elvey great praise is due for beating the Americans at their own game: elaborate productions; while his cameraman's work beats the average American photography. The cast has been well chosen but the members are more than types—they are artistes. Mdlle. Valya's performance is a triumph of histrionic art and Fred Raynham also contributes highly to the general success of the production, but Irene Rooke fails to make the best of her opportunities.

"Love at the Wheel" (Masters) is quite good pictorial entertainment despite certain defects that it possesses. Clare Greet's work is the best piece of charac-terisation in the picture but Pauline Johnson's opportunities for displaying her talents are reduced to a minimum. Poor direction is responsible for much that is faulty in the production but not the motor racing scenes at Brooklands, and photography is never poor.

"Laughter and Tears" (Granger-Binger) provides a vehicle for Evelyn Brent to score another personal triumph. Her artistry is superb. She is a screen genius. The direction of the production has not been handled with the maximum amount of intelligent care and photography is not all it might be. In fact the technical properties of the production are much weaker than the artistic, for the chief characters are well cast. Adelqui Millar in addition to being the author plays lead and submits a good dramatic performance. Bert Darley, too, is really convincing and suggestive of greater possibilities.

A Film Shortage?

A NUMBER of people, including many exhibitors, hold the opinion that next year there will be a shortage of films, resulting in great competition, to the damage of the small exhibitor. This opinion is based chiefly on the fact that America has curtailed her output, which at present is less than 40 per cent. of what it was a year back. Why this should postulate a shortage of films it is difficult to understand, for the real reason for the falling off in production is that America has been making far too many ordinary—and often mediocre—pictures. If she is now making fewer and better pictures, it is not from any ethical belief; it is a necessity which is purely commercial. And while there is plenty of room for better pictures, it is surely a mistake to aim at fewer. What is wanted is not fewer and

ARTISTES

VICTOR McLAGLAN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman,
Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road"
and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

MARJORIE VILLIS.

Exclusive to Harma Photoplays, Limes Rd., Croydon.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,

Character Parts.

57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.

197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph.: Battersea 21.

CHARLES CLIFFORD,

38, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.2.

'Phone: Regent 569'.

CRISPIN HAY,

c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,

12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,

Character Actor. Offers invited.

114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

SCENARISTS

ELIOT STANNARD

Scenarios.

85, Holbein House, Sloane
Square, S.W.1.

Tele.: Victoria 497.

COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,

:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.

7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11

('Phone: Park 2945).

GERARD FORT BUCKLE

Scenarios.

'Phone: Regent 4747.

41, Glasshouse Street, Regent
Street, W.1.

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,

Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.

62, Foxbourne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,

Kinedramatist.

Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

SCENARISTS

IRENE MILLER,

Novelist, Journalist, Scenarist,
10, Arundel Gardens, W. 11, or Bramlins.

CYRIL E. MURRELL,

Scenarist—Comedy.

Address: C/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

MURIEL ALLEYNE, Screen Playwright

Plays sold to Pathé, Hepworth, Barker, M.L.B., Clarendon Universal, etc., Windsor Ho! Amersham, Bucks.

HELEN & THOMAS BLIZZARD

Original Story and Continuity Writers.

Address M.P. STUDIO.

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,

Producing Comedies

BARKERS STUDIOS, EALING.

'Phone No.: Ealing 211.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord,"

"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"

"The Face at the Window."

Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON

Producing for Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd.Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,

Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT
GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE
LOUDWATER MYSTERY" and
"CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."

Five years producer in America. At Liberty.

Address: 20, COLVILLE TERRACE, BAYSWATER,
W.11.

GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer

THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.

Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,

Hoe St., Walthamstow, E.17.

ADRIAN BRUNEL,

Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone: 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK,

Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
29, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

ALBERT WARD,

Producer—Open to accept engagements,
3, Ranelagh Grove, S.W.1.

STUDIO MANAGER

JOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—

B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,

Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone: W'stow 364."

DIRECTORS

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer
of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H.
MALINS, O.B.E.

Producer

Latest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE,"

"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"

"SETTLED IN FULL,"

"ALL THE WINNERS,"

"WATCHING EYES,"

"BLUFF," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,

26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

PUBLICITY

FRANK J. WOOLF

Publicity Representative,

British and Colonial Kinematograph
Company, Hoe Street, Walthamstow,

Telephone: Walthamstow 364.

THIS SPACE TO LET

£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

KINE CAMERA
EXPOSURE METER

7/8

With Instruction
Booklet.Indicates right lens
opening for the light."Very reliable,
could hardly get on without.""Complete satisfaction used for testing actinic value
of flame arcs."WATKINS METER CO.
HEREFORD.

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

The latest news of the state of affairs of Broadwest is that C. Comins, 50, Cannon Street, E.C., has been appointed as receiver and manager by order of Court dated September 21, and under powers contained in debenture dated August 2, 1917.

City men on their way to business the other morning rubbed their eyes and then stared almost incredulously at an aristocratic looking gentleman, immaculately dressed, wheeling a baby carriage across the busy thoroughfare in front of the Royal Exchange, and, at the same time, dragging a reluctant lamb by a piece of rope. Near this unrehearsed scene was the camera-man busily turning the crank of his machine. The aristocratic gentleman was Cyril Chadwick as Spooky in the new George Fitzmaurice production of "Three Live Ghosts." Afterwards it was found that the scene had been somewhat spoiled by a baker's van which crossed the line of vision at the psychological moment, and there was nothing for it but to take the scene all over again. Cyril Chadwick, his baby carriage, and his lamb were whirled by motor car from the Islington studios to the Royal Exchange, and once again he crossed the busy thoroughfare with a burly policeman this time holding up the traffic, and hundreds of people watching the quaint scene.

I learn from Bert Haldane that he has been approached by a new company, now forming with big capital, to go to Ireland and direct the production of Irish pictures. The engagement offered him for two years. Does this mean that everything in Ireland is peaceful now?

Last week I referred to the resolutions of the National Council of Women of Great Britain held at Sheffield, the Countess of Selborne presiding. The resolution urged the Home Secretary to introduce legislation for the licensing of all persons who for the purpose of private gain employ people to perform in a cinematograph film. Cecile Matheson, in proposing this, said if they were successful in getting legislation on those lines they would do something desired by the A.A. and all the film directors. What was required was protection against unscrupulous cinema schools and theatrical agencies usually run by

Mr. Bogus. Methods adopted in many cases amounted to a peculiarly cruel method of fraud, and the opportunities of practising this would be nullified by licensing. She described many instances of how young people had fallen victims to the fraudulent manager.

Isabel Beresford, of the A.A., who seconded, made a strong appeal. "I ask you to stop this awful thing, this pandering to lust and dealing in women's souls, leaving them stranded with temptations all round them that frequently mean ruin, body and soul." The resolution was carried.

A further resolution, which prohibited the engagement of any young person under the age of 18 in the theatre or on the films, was lost. It was pointed out that actresses and actors, both for the stage and screen, had to begin their training at an early age, and there were other technical difficulties that could hardly

OUR LETTER LIST.

Letters await the following at the offices of this journal. A stamped addressed envelope should be sent with applications. No charge is made for the use of this service.

Esme Kavanagh.
Faith Bevan.
Irenée Craven.

ON THE FLOOR

With JOHN S. ROBERTSON

Easy confidence in himself and his work, which is typically American, combined with a real modesty, which is not quite so typical, is what first strikes an observer of John S. Robertson's directing methods.

This true modesty, implying a knowledge that he does not know everything, is evidenced in the fact that, being advised by a famous British novelist to see some of the Swedish screen masterpieces, John S. Robertson fully intends to follow the advice.

"There is no cut and dried method of making a film," he says; "I may make one picture one way and another film another way. I think the artistes ought to have a good general idea of the story before starting to work. Then there may be discussions as to the interpretation of the different characters and scenes as the production proceeds."

Perhaps the most obvious distinction between the methods of John S. Robertson and that of the typical British director is that, among the minute details about which he seems to take thought before the scene is shot are those of lighting.

The actual management of the light is, of course, the affair of the cameraman, and it is carried out by an efficient corps of electricians, but the American director seems to take a general supervision of the lighting effect to an extent which is not common among British directors.

be overcome. This result does not surprise me, for last week I said that the suggestion was "far too bureaucratic as well as failing to deal with the problem that the Council wishes to tackle." With the appeal of Madame Beresford I strongly agree.

Jacques Wessel, Director of Foreign Sales for the Hollandia Film Company, Haarlem, Holland, is leaving for the States with five of the Granger-Binger productions. A fluent linguist, he is a popular personality in most of the film centres of the European capitals, and has travelled extensively even further afield. Recently he joined the foreign sales department of the Hollandia Film Company, and immediately fixed up for the distribution of the productions of this concern throughout the world (excluding England and America) by Pathé. These pictures include "The Black Tulip" and "Laughter and Tears." These productions are, of course, handled in England by Granger's, and America is now the only country not covered. This fact, Mr. Wessel hopes soon to remedy, however, and he will take the good wishes of a cosmopolitan circle of friends with him on his trip to the U.S.A.

Sid Jay, the energetic agent of Wardour Street, is continually negotiating engagements for other people, but I am now interested to know that he is able to announce his own engagement to be married. Congratulations to both!

That favourite opera "The Bohemian Girl," is being directed for the screen, and a wonderful array of stage stars has been engaged to interpret the interesting story including Gladys Cooper, Ellen Terry, Constance Collier, C. Aubrey Smith, Ivor Novello, and Henry Vibart. Harley Knoles is directing the screening for Alliance Corporation at St. Margaret's. Later the company will travel to the banks of the river Danube for some of the scenes.

Kenelm Foss, who is now busily engaged on the production of a film version of "All Roads Lead to Calvary," is of the opinion that the introduction of youth in motion pictures is essential. During the past few months he has selected stories nearly all of which demand youthful players as the leading "MEGAPHONE" characters.

Where they are and

ARTISTES should read the details of the Kinema Club, on Page 8, and send for invitations to the meeting, on Sunday, October 16, at 2.45 p.m., in the Court Picture Theatre.

Clive Brook is playing the star part in "Shirley" for Ideal.

Charles Levey is in the cast of "A Lowland Cinderella" (Progress).

Cyril Chadwick plays Spoofy in "Three Live Ghosts" (F.P.-Lasky).

Eric Barclay has returned from Paris, where he played a part in a French film.

Adeline Hayden Coffin is playing an appropriate part in "The Corner Man" for Harma.

Nell Emerald has finished her part in the latest Progress production, "A Lowland Cinderella."

Elinor J. Bruun has been working on interiors at the Harma studios for "The Corner Man."

Cecil Susands is the male juvenile lead in the new comedy "Eliza's Romeo" (Rising Sun).

Cora Goffin is leading lady for Lambert Films and is finishing her first Lambert production, "Romance and Reality."

Will Kellino is working hard on "Class and No Class" for Gaumont, and is turning an average of about 700 feet a day.

Betty Farquhar is playing the juvenile lead in a series of comedy pictures now being directed by Bert Haldane for Rising Sun.

Joan Morgan has now finished work in the star part in "A Lowland Cinderella," which Sidney Morgan has finished directing for Progress.

Cyril Percival has just completed work in his seventh consecutive production for Stoll. This completes his contract with the company.

John Gliddon is cutting and assembling "The Night Hawk," and expects the Trade show of this International Artists' premiere in a short time.

Louie Freear is playing Eliza in "Eliza's Romeo," a new series of two-reel comedies for a new British producing firm named Rising Sun Productions.

Geoffrey Malins has now finished the direction of the Hardy production "The Recoil," and has already cast for his third, which will be "The Scourge."

Elizabeth Irving is playing one of the leads in "Shirley" (Ideal).

George Foley has finished work on "A Lowland Cinderella" for Progress.

Eric Bray is Jim Blunders in "Where the Rainbow Ends" (British Photoplays).

Amy Venity has been booked by Sid Jay for a leading part in "Who is the Boss" for Albert Brovett.

W. Courtney Rowden is directing the production of a series of one-reel subjects at the Master Studios.

Denison Clift is now in his second week of work on "The Old Wives' Tale," which he is directing for Ideal.

Malcolm Tod's latest engagement is for F.P.-Lasky. He has been playing brother to the star in "Three Live Ghosts."

Bernard Dudley was out taking scenes on the North Sea last week for "Love in the Hills," which he is directing for Harma.

Roger Livesey has an important part in "Where the Rainbow Ends," which H. Lisle Locoque is directing for British Photoplays.

Bert Haldane is finishing "Eliza's Romeo," the first of a group of two-reel comedies which he is directing for Rising Sun Productions at Barker's Studio.

SCENARISTS should read the details of the Kinema Club, on Page 8, and send for invitations to the meeting, on Sunday, October 16, at 2.45 p.m., in the Court Picture Theatre.

Joe Nightingale plays an important part in "Shirley" (Ideal).

Francis Wetherell has been playing for Progress in "A Lowland Cinderella."

Babs Farren is in the cast of "Where the Rainbow Ends" (British Photoplays).

Fay Compton has been booked to play for Kenelm Foss in Thompson Productions.

—DO YOU—

If Walter West will be inactive very long? and—

Why he was after the Kew Bridge Studios?

The names of the three persons interested in British productions who were bidding for the Kew Studios?

In what British production will Florence Turner soon be starring.

Is it merely an Old Wives' Tale, that she will soon be co-starring at Boreham Wood?

The name of the leading male artiste who has been offered an American engagement for 12 weeks at £1,000 per week?

The name of the company that went on location without a camera?

Why George Pearson mistook Rex Davis for the railway porter?

BRIDGING THE GAP

by EMILE

In the relation between cameraman and chief of laboratory there seems to exist a very big gap. This gap should not exist. They should fraternise and so become well acquainted with one another—in their ways and means for obtaining results.

I take it the chief of laboratory is a practical man and knows his work from A to Z. I also assume the cameraman is well versed in the art of light and shade. They both hold very responsible positions, and both are responsible to the director for giving him what he desires or aims at.

The first essential, then, is for the cameraman to expose a given length of film on a set fully lit, as well as a length of exterior, according to method used—judgment or exposure meter. These negatives should be cut in half—the one half kept for future use, the other half, with working instructions, given to the chief of laboratory, who should have them developed to what he considers correct intensity.

Notes should be taken in writing in a book specially kept for the purpose of exact composition of developing bath, the temperature of said developer when film was immersed, the actual time film was in bath (by aid of a dark-room clock), and when this film has been fixed, washed and dried should be noted. A consultation should take place between the cameraman and chief of laboratory then and there. Without fear or prejudice they should criticise the negative from every possible point of view till each is confident that his particular work has brought the absolute required result.

But if the cameraman fears that the best has not been obtained, then he must weigh up the pros and cons from his point of view: Should he give more or less exposure? Has the negative the finesse of detail he expected? Was it under-exposed and too hard? Was it over-exposed and too flat? Was it correctly exposed in his opinion and over- or under-developed? If either, then he still has part of the exposed film to experiment with, which he should have developed to his taste and judgment by standing near the developing-man, or carry out the test himself.

If he is satisfied that at last he has achieved his purpose in obtaining the quality he regards as correct, then he should consult the chief of laboratory, who, in his turn, must weigh up the pros and cons of the negative before him, bearing always in his mind two facts: (a) Will it enable him to pull a print to the satisfaction of his employers? (b) Will the trade printer be able or willing to do likewise? If any doubt

TITLING SPECIALIST

Expert in handwritten work.

English or American Style.

G. T. SHEARMAN, Bentinck Road, Nottingham.

what they are doing

George Bishop is playing for British Photoplays in "Where the Rainbow Ends."

Lilian Hall Davies is playing an important part for Thompson in "The Wonderful Story" (Sid Jay booking).

Harold Deacon plays St. George in the British Photoplays production "Where the Rainbow Ends."

— KNOW? —

How many stage stars refused an engagement, through Syd. Jay, at £200 a week? and—

* * *

If the title of the film frightened them?

* * *

Whether Kenelm Foss will offer more in future? or—

* * *

Will he engage screen actresses who have not yet reached the stellar regions?

* * *

Whether Olaf Hylten is the cosmopolitan his name suggests him to be? and—

* * *

If his next screen appearance, as his first, will be with Florence Turner?

* * *

How Clive Brook enjoyed himself at Billy's Club the other evening?

* * *

What the coffee-stall keeper at Hyde Park Corner thought of the party of film stars, including Stewart Rome and Pauline Peters, as customers?

Walter Gay is in "Where the Rainbow Ends."

Ernest Wallace is playing in B. Haldane's production.

Nelson Watts Philips is working at Barker's Studios.

L. G. Egrot is turning for Albert Brovett on "Who is the Boss?"

Florence Nelson is now playing in the new Welsh Pearson production.

Zena Dane has finished playing lead in "No. 5 John Street" for Thompson.

Albert Brovett is directing the production of "Who is the Boss?" at the Hackney Studios.

Ruth Maitland has a leading part in "Where the Rainbow Ends" (British Photoplays).

Olaf Hytten has been booked by Sid Jay to play heavy in "The Wonderful Story" for Thompson.

Muriel Pointer is playing Betty Blunders in "Where the Rainbow Ends" (British Photoplays).

Kenelm Foss went to France last week to get "local colour" for his next Thompson production, "The House of Peril."

Fred Glover is playing a leading part as Joseph Flint in "Where the Rainbow Ends" for British Photoplays.

CAMERAMEN should read the details of the Kinema Club, on Page 8, and send for invitations to the meeting, on Sunday, October 16, at 2.45 p.m., in the Court Picture Theatre.

DIRECTORS should read the details of the Kinema Club, on Page 8, and send for invitations to the meeting, on Sunday, October 16, at 2.45 p.m., in the Court Picture Theatre.

Ellen Terry is to play Buda in "The Bohemian Girl" for Alliance.

Julie Kean is playing in "All Roads Lead to Calvary" for Thompson.

Jimmy Brough is playing for Broadway productions in "Football Daft."

C. Aubrey Smith is to play Devilshoof in "The Bohemian Girl" (Alliance).

Muriel Gregory plays an important role in "Sweet Genevieve" for Masters.

Phyllis Shannaw is playing lead for Arthur Rooke in his Davidson production.

B. Cave Chinn plays in "Where the Rainbow Ends" for British Photoplays.

Ivor Novello's part in "The Bohemian Girl" is to be that of Thaddeus, the hero.

D. R. Overall-Hatswell has been playing lead in "Sweet Genevieve," a one-reeler for Master.

Vesta Sylva plays Will-o'-the-Wisp in "Where the Rainbow Ends" (British Photoplays).

Kathleen Vaughan, is playing an important part in "Pickwick Papers" for Ideal.

Lorna Rathbone is at Hoe Street, playing for Thompson in "All Roads Lead to Calvary."

Audrey Stafford plays Matilda Flint in the British Photoplays production "Where the Rainbow Ends."

Victor McLaglan has returned to the studio again after a week's holiday. He is to play for Davidson.

Gladys Cooper has been engaged by Harley Knoles to play Arline, the heroine, in "The Bohemian Girl" (Alliance).

Constance Collier returns to the screen in "The Bohemian Girl" (Alliance), in which she will play the Queen of the Gypsies.

Gertrude McCoy has been playing for South African Productions in Johannesburg, but expects soon to be returning to this country.

Bert Wynne is back from the Isle of Wight, where he has been securing exteriors for "Jessica's First Prayer" (Seal), and is now working on interiors at Kew.

Frank Canham has been ordered a complete rest by his doctor and he is under a specialist for his nerves. This explains why he is not working on the present Thompson productions.

IN THE LABORATORY

LAUSTE

exists, then the chief of laboratory must point out these facts to the cameraman, who, I feel sure, in conjunction with the able assistance of the director, will smooth the dark-room work to conform with the quality expected from them, yet keeping the director's ideal aim in view.

This can easily be adjusted between cameraman and chief of laboratory, as being both interested in the art—they both depend upon the screen for their handicraft.

Here is a concrete case where union of method and opinion will certainly tend to improvements in quality. All that remains is for each to work using the same formula—in exposure and development—and one will soon observe the vast improvement gained.

Now, it is up to the chief of laboratory to carry out an equally conclusive test with each scene—in making the positive—by running off a printing test. This method settles for once and always the best printing light and best developing factor or time, a careful record being kept on cards specially printed for the purpose, and kept religiously with the negative to which they belong.

Naturally, the effect desired is solely controlled by the subject in hand. Some scenes may require a strong exposure and short development, while others may require a weak light and long development to make it more plucky, while probably the whole five or six reels may go through on the same light or very nearly so. Now, assuming the above has been carried out to the satisfaction of all concerned, think of the vast improvement that can be obtained by firms having several directors working. By installing unit dark-rooms, fully equipped and staffed for each director, where all his negatives could be developed, printed and toned, or tinted, as he desires, on the lines above suggested, all the dark-rooms being under the control of chief of laboratory, each cameraman and director could work in an atmosphere of independence, knowing full well that the staff is not worried about having to turn out thousands of feet of release stuff while the master copy of a new production is being done in between, without regard to the director's ideals.

The dark-rooms should preferably be situated near the studio, so that as soon as a scene is finished, or several, they can be sent for development, and quality ascertained before the set is struck or artistes discharged. The slight extra cost of this system would be small compared with the results which would be obtainable.

TYPING—'Phone Regent 4747

"SPEEDAC" STENOGRAPHIC BUREAU
41, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.1.

Usual terms. Typing all classes: Authors' MS., Film Scenarios a speciality under expert supervision. Write, 'phone or call for quotation.

Proprietor—P. F. Buckle—Dictation Room.

BASIS OF THE KINEMA CLUB

The Formation Committee has now completed its recommendations for the formation of the proposed Kinema Club, and these are given below. They will be considered and discussed by a general meeting of all directors, artistes, scenarists and cameramen, which will be held in the Court Picture Theatre, at the corner of Tottenham Court Road and New Oxford Street, on Sunday, October 16, at 2.45 p.m. prompt.

Name of Club.—The following names have been suggested:—Shadow Club, Lotus Club, Kinema Club, Anima Club, Focus Club, Iris Club, Pan Club, Kinema Art Club.

Object.—The primary object of the Club is to cultivate the fraternal spirit among those engaged in the artistic side of British film production. It is further suggested that sub-committees be formed for the furtherance of sports and the provision of legal and medical assistance if required.

Membership.—Restricted to directors, artistes, scenarists and cameramen.

(a) Ladies to be admitted to membership on the understanding that distinct and separate quarters are provided for them with a main room for general (mixed) intercourse and refreshment.

(b) Bona-fide kinema journalists to be admitted as Associate Members, but to have no voting power.

Constitution.—To be on the basis of the constitution of such clubs as the Garrick, Savage and Green Room.

Qualifications of Membership.—(All applications for membership have to pass the Qualification Committee).

(a) ARTISTES.—All recognised screen actors and actresses to be eligible for admission. Each application will be rigorously judged on the merits of the individual by the Qualification Committee, the ruling policy of which will be to make the Club as exclusive as possible, and to prevent undesirables, either amateurs, supers or screen-struck, getting in.

(b) DIRECTORS.—Directors who have been responsible for the direction of at least six productions; Assistant Directors and recognised Art Directors with twelve consecutive months' experience as such shall be eligible, subject to, passing the Qualification Committee.

(c) SCENARISTS.—All Scenarists who have had at least five scenarios accepted within the three previous years and all Scenario Editors who have held such position for more than six months to be eligible, subject to passing the Qualification Committee.

(d) CAMERAMEN.—Any Cameraman with a minimum of two consecutive years' experience as a Kine-Cameraman (studio or topical) shall be eligible, subject to passing the Qualification Committee.

Subscriptions.—Those joining within one month of the inauguration of the Club be admitted to full membership on payment of an annual subscription of Three Guineas, and such members shall be admitted free of entrance fee. Those elected after that period shall be admitted on payment of an entrance fee (to be determined later) and a yearly subscription (to be determined later).

Members may be admitted to Life Membership on payment of Twenty Guineas.

Associate Members, on payment of One Guinea per annum, free of entrance fee.

Finance.—To inaugurate the Club on the best possible lines it is necessary to start off with a fund of £1,000, this to be secured either by Vice Presidents' subscriptions, twenty Life Members or 300 ordinary members.

General Meeting.—All are urged to be present at the meeting on October 16 (see above) to discuss these recommendations and assist in the inauguration of the Club.

Signed.—Eille Norwood, Rex Davis, Sydney Paxton, Bertram Burleigh, Arthur Walcott, George Ridgewell, Duncan McRae, Fred Paul, William J. Elliott, Adrian Brunel, George Woods-Taylor, Alfred H. Moses, Frank A. Tilley.

FILM SLANDER CASE

In the King's Bench Division, on Wednesday last, before Mr. Justice Rowlatt, a slander action was heard in which parties in the film industry were concerned, the plaintiff being Simon Dupaic Abrahams, of 1, Alexandra Mansions, West Hampstead, who had been employed as travelling manager and cashier to the Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., and he sued Wm. L. Folkard, 4, Regent Street, W. (known as Maurice Elvey), of the Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Temple Road, Cricklewood, for damages for an alleged slander uttered on November 20, 1920. The defence was a denial of utterance of the words alleged.

Mr. Heddon, in opening the case, said that damages were claimed for alleged slander. Plaintiff was the travelling manager and cashier of the Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., and the words complained of were said to have been uttered to persons who were still employees of that company, and who had been subpoenaed to give evidence. These people were Paul Berger, the photographic manager of the company, Joseph Grossman, the studio manager, and Jeffrey Bernard, the managing director.

The plaintiff was appointed travelling manager and cashier in respect of a tour in France for the purpose of making a film, "A Gentleman of France." The defendant, Mr. Folkard, who was known as Maurice Elvey, was directing the production, and plaintiff and defendant were in the touring party, and they went to Aurrillac.

There was trouble between the plaintiff and the defendant from the beginning, the arrangements that the plaintiff made for the party were constantly interfered with by the defendant and a lot of dissension resulted.

Mr. Justice Rowlatt: Could you not make a film of "A Gentleman of France" without going to France?

Counsel: That I do not know; but I think it was necessary to get a suitable place where the light was good, the scenery suitable, and there was the necessary "local colour."

Counsel proceeded to add that Mr. Abrahams experienced much difficulty by reason of the upsetting of the arrangements made. When they got to Aurrillac the defendant said the place was quite unsuitable, and at greatly increased expense the party went to Nice, where there were alleged to be joy-rides to Monte Carlo, etc., and plaintiff (it was alleged) was asked to pay unnecessary expenditure out of the assets of the company.

The party returned on November 18, and on November 20 there was a meeting at the studio at Surbiton, at which the affairs of the tour were reviewed. In the course of that meeting a communication was made to the plaintiff by Mr. Grossman and Mr. Berger, and as the result of that the plaintiff consulted his solicitors. The plaintiff's complaint was that the defendant used the words: "He (meaning plaintiff) has been receiving illicit commissions and wilfully wasting the firm's money."

The plaintiff was dismissed from the firm's employment, and he now claimed damages.

Simon Abrahams, in his evidence, said he was demobilised from the Army in May, 1919, and he entered the employment of the Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., in December, 1919.

Joseph Grossman gave evidence that he was the studio manager in the service of the Stoll Company, and was now present on subpoena from both parties. At the meeting in question there was a general discussion with regard to the tour, the finances were gone into, and it transpired in the discussion that Mr. Elvey had had brought to his notice by one of his assistants that a certain amount of commission had been returned by a French firm. The commission was supposed to have been returned by one of the French firms from whom horses had been hired, and the matter had originated by Mr. Elvey saying it was a French custom to return commissions. They did not look upon that in France as a corrupt practice. The name of the plaintiff was not mentioned in connection with this commission business, and no mention was made of any irregularity on the part of the plaintiff.

Mr. Berger was next called, and he deposed that the defendant first raised the question of the commission, and made a remark about Mr. Abrahams not being capable enough for the job. Mr. Elvey was asked if he suggested that plaintiff was dishonest, and he said "No." Witness said that the discussion about money matters did not concern him, and he did not interest himself much. He remembered Mr. Elvey saying they could have saved money on commissions, and that he believed commissions had been returned, but he did not say to whom.

Jeffrey Bernard, managing director of the Stoll Picture Company said the conversation about the commission was started by Mr. Elvey. In a general discussion about the tour witness made bitter complaints of the expenses incurred, and Mr. Elvey said he remembered occasions when Mr. Beverley, an assistant, had been offered the return of commissions by French firms, mentioning that that was quite a usual thing in France. Leading out of that, witness put a leading question to Mr. Elvey to the effect, "You don't suggest Mr. Abrahams is dishonest?" To this Mr. Elvey replied that Mr. Abrahams was too much of a fool to be dishonest.

Peggy McCall, the scenario editor, was also called, and at the close of the plaintiff's case Mr. Justice Rowlatt said no slander had been proved. Judgment was entered for the defendant with costs.

Fill in this Form and post it to the Hon. Secretary, c/o this Office.

I desire to be present at the GENERAL MEETING of the KINEMA CLUB.

Name.....

Address.....

Will you also send notice of the Meeting to

Name.....

Address.....

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES

XV.—CLIVE BROOK

After five years' fighting Clive Brook took up a stage career in August 1918. He played two tours with "Fair and Warmer" and then accepted a years' contract with Reandean.

Under this management he played lead in "Over Sunday," at St. Martin's Theatre (his second part on the professional stage) and in "Just Like Judy." He also created leads in two provincial productions for Reandean.

He subsequently played lead with Iris Hoey in the sketch "Hurbury Pearls," at the Coliseum, and the principal provincial halls. He was featured in his first film, "Trent's Last Case," in July 1920, and since then has temporarily relinquished a career on the stage, of the most exceptional promise, to play in "Her Penalty," "Kissing Cup's Race," "Loudwater Mystery," "Daniel Deronda," "Sportsman's Wife," "Christie Johnston," "Sonia," "The Experiment," and "Shirley."

He has been connected with films for only fourteen months.

SCREEN COMEDIANS

by MILTON ELMORE

Are Stage Comedians Natural Screen Comedians? In my opinion, they are not; for, whereas the stage comedians have the assistance of dialogue and music for their interpretations of the characters enacted, the screen comedians have no such aid, and must rely upon the chances afforded by the scenario and their mimetic powers.

There are instances of comedians showing great versatility and adaptability both on the stage and before the camera; but in these cases the comedians have been not merely comedians for either the stage or screen, but earnest students of both branches of art. They have learned that the exaggerations of facial expression which have scored to the anticipatory guffaws on the stage convey very little on the screen where the action must be quickened to save the audience from boredom. Similarly, the light comedian minus witty dialogue and mannerisms is the hopeless inanition of what should otherwise be a frank impersonation of character.

The best screen comedian is he who by his mimetic powers can convey to his admirers by so little as a single gesture the ideas or thoughts which would be conveyed by dialogue spoken from the stage.

I have met comedians, with not much stage experience, who seemed to me to be born artistes, and after giving them the chance of exhibiting their abilities in the studio have found them to surpass the trained and schooled variety. The passive and impressive qualities which should be the great assets of screen comedians are seldom found in those that have migrated from the stage. Those that are not hampered by theatrical traditions as a rule seem to be most suited for the parts allotted.

YOUR CORNER LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

WHOSE FAULT?

On perusing the pages of your very excellent weekly dated September 17, I noticed therein an article written by a gentleman named M. P. Prout, whose work I have yet to see on the screen. I hope this gentleman is aware that the "loss of moulding" in an artiste's face might just possibly be the very splendid work of the present-day printing establishments.—BASIL W. G. EMMOTT.

BAR DUD FILMS

Have you noted the public disfavour with which many imported productions, so-called "comedies" especially, have been viewed lately? Similar stuff on the speaking stage would, I am convinced, quickly "get the bird," but the silver sheet has no feeling.

It is a great pity, but many good pictures are ruined by a senseless, plotless, what I would term "get-rich-quick" production, and, although this sounds revolutionary, it is about time they were outed.

What criticism does the above-mentioned rubbish get from the British public before it is foisted on it? I have noticed myself how these films are received, and I have no hesitation in saying that with the slightest stimulus the public will boycott them. It is evident that the directors responsible are not out to keep picture making a fine art, and that is why I used the phrase "get rich quick." We criticise our own work harshly enough, and yet we allow the market to become glutted with films that bore one to tears.

I would like to see a system evolved whereby the general public would be enabled to show their favour or disfavour of a certain type of film. At the present time they are handicapped for reasons which you will quickly see yourself. If your valuable paper could do anything in the matter the effects would be far reaching both for British films and British picturegoers.—H. C. NEWTON.

A CONTRADICTION

In your issue of September 24 it is stated by International Artists Films that Will Howse photographed "The Man who Forgot" for Harma. I, myself, was entirely responsible for the photography in that production, with the slight exceptions of a retake of one scene after I left Harma, and a few titles and stills.—PHIL ROSS.

PUBLIC AT FAULT

As one who has a great deal of interest in the production of British films, I most emphatically protest against various daily papers publishing in their columns articles entitled "What is the matter with English films," etc., and thence following a discourse on the failings of the British film director in general.

I wish to state in my humble estimation that the fault with our films lies not with the director, but with the British public. We are all well aware of the public prejudice against a well-known boxer at the present time, and a similar campaign is going on against British films. The public not only very gingerly supports the films for the most part, but are continually grumbling on the lack of English Mary Pickfords, etc.

At one of the best cinemas in London, a week ago, two extra big films were being shown, one a picturisation of one of Dickens's works, produced by an English company, and the other an American one. Despite the fact that even to the crudest of minds, that in the case of the American film, the plot or rather what was meant to be one had been built around the heroine—in view of her past successes—the public generally was enamoured with it, while in the case of the English film, which was far superior in every detail, it was received with silence except by a few who could appreciate it. One self-possessed critic of the films declared in a loud voice to those about him that he had never heard of the English film company, and it was therefore no good, and that I fear is synonymous with the opinion of the general British public; because a film had been produced by Englishmen it is no good. If we were in Germany I might understand this, but in England, never.

In conclusion, I wish to say that with the public's support behind him, the English director would be the best in the world, and it will be a red letter day when they realise that England CAN produce some good films.—HU FORSTER.

THE CLUB

Is a Kinema Club advisable? Most certainly, but for heaven's sake do only allow as members the real professionals—the experienced—and do not accept Jane, John and Jack only for the sake of collecting fees.

Let a member pay a small fixed fee for the year; let the engagement go through the Kinema Club, and let every engaged artiste pay to the club 3 or 4 per cent. of his weekly salary. The MOTION PICTURE STUDIO should be supplied free of charge to every member, the cost to be paid by the club. Take care that to be a member of the club means superiority—an introduction in social life.

Would not that be the most secure way to get a sound trade? This would kill the breeding of artistes like rabbits.—MARESCO MARISINI.

THE FREE-LANCE WRITER

I like your paper, and I am very pleased that you are making a point of putting forth the case of the Free Lance Writer, for there will never be any really great films until the Original Screen Play Writer is properly acknowledged and properly paid.

All the work I have sold in the past—original work, with full scenarios—has been produced as I wrote it, and, save in the case of one, where the director put some of his own stuff in, have met with success and favourable notices in the Press. (Strange to say, the bits he put in had nothing to do with the plot and were the ones that were commented upon unfavourably, which was most annoying to me, as I never wrote them.)

I also note with interest "The Scenario Market and What Producing Firms Require." Some are hopeful and some are not; the nots are the firms which seem to want to buy a story for a few pounds, place it in the hands of the firm's hack writer, or for the purpose of the director to write up the film for some special star, and so on, and the story has to take its chance and possibly be nothing like the author's theme.

I shall also be interested to hear more about the formation of a much-needed Kinema Club, and would like details of the scheme.—MURIEL ALLEYNE.

Mr. HERBERT MAULE,
Riding Master.
PUTNEY RIDING ESTABLISHMENT,
1a, Cambalt Road, Putney Hill, S.W.15.
Horses supplied to film companies: riding lessons given. Terms moderate.
Phone: PUTNEY, 1984.

The Historical Film must be accurately dressed.

⊙ ⊙ ⊙
We Stock Civil and
Military costumes of all
known periods. :: ::

⊙ ⊙ ⊙
"The Call of the Road"
and "The Old Curiosity
Shop," with their wealth
of costume, detail and
characteristics of their times, were dressed by us.

⊙ ⊙ ⊙
Write to-day stating your requirements.

H. & M. RAYNE,
115-119, Waterloo Road,
S.E.1.

WEST END
BRANCH: 15, Rupert Street.

QUALITY PRINTS.

VICKERS FILMCRAFT
LTD.

89, SHAFTESBURY AVENUE, W.1.

Laboratories :

PARAGON WORKS, 229, ACTON LANE, W.4.

ALWAYS-ON-TIME

Phones: GEFARD 4045 and
CHISWICK 132

MARY ODETTE AND SCREEN ASPIRANTS

In our last issue we published an article from the pen of Mary Odette on the question of Aspirants for the Screen, and some of her conclusions are contested by M. P. Prout in the following reply:—

I do not like the spirit at the back of Mary Odette's article. There is more latent screen acting talent outside the film business than in it. It would be a serious thing for British film production if it were not so. The difficulties in the way of any outsider, though endowed with all the qualities that go to the making of a super screen actor, are, unless they have influence, practically insuperable.

It may be quite natural for Miss Odette to wish to make a tight little trade union of screen acting—the film trade consists virtually of a series of such unions—but she ought to realise that other people only ask for the facilities, opportunities, or influence which determined her first appearance on the screen.

The business in which I have been engaged since before Miss Odette was born constitutes a veritable mill in which the few that are suitable, photographically and histrionically, to become screen actors are easily sifted from the tens of thousands who would be useless. Only a small proportion of that few are "aspirants." Casting is confined to those inside for two reasons: it saves trouble, and the other method necessitates a quality of judgment not within the calibre of many directors.

Screen acting differs from stage acting in that those who have ability or talent in that direction usually display it clearly the first time they are given an opportunity. The principal exceptions I have noticed are recruits from the legitimate stage where improvement consists in unlearning their legitimate "stageyness," which takes effort and time. I could name very glaring instances of both cases.

I have taken particular interest in Mary Odette, and if she is not above taking a hint from one who has been a student of film technique since she was an infant in arms, the question whether she improves on her earliest performances will depend (apart from increasing maturity) not on the number of films she acts in (and from each of which she may "learn" something), but on the competency of the directors into whose hands she allows herself to fall.

The recognition of latent film acting talent is an art in itself, and the director who possesses it will find it not only commercially profitable but artistically elevating—inexpensive but in no sense "cheap." And anything that elevates film art—and the untapped sources of it are greater and more numerous in this country than any other—should not be excluded by any species of trade-unionism.

K.C.S. MEETINGS

The second meeting of the winter session was held at Patmae's on Friday last, when some very important business was negotiated. The election of the members and a new secretary was one of the most important items.

The President suggested that Kenneth Gordon, a very energetic member of the society, should be elected as secretary during the absence of Geo. Woods Taylor in India.

Mr. Gordon, in reply, said that he thought that perhaps some other member would accept the post.

It was pointed out by various members the advantages that would accrue from electing Mr. Gordon as secretary, and after some persuasion he ultimately agreed to accept the post. In thanking the members for electing him, he modestly mentioned that while he did not think he could work harder than Mr. Woods-Taylor had done, he would do all within his power to be a worthy successor of Mr. Taylor's.

During the evening a toast was drunk to George Woods-Taylor, who in his reply stated that he would only like to see the success of the society. The one great trouble at present was in getting members to turn up. He hoped to see this trouble overcome.

It was suggested that when the Kinema Club came into existence, the solution of getting members to turn up at the meetings would be solved. All were agreed upon one point, that was that there was not sufficient enticement being offered to bring the members along. The Club would solve this difficulty, for there the members could meet and discuss subjects any hour of the day.

On Friday, October 13, arrangements have been made for members to give a ten minutes lecture on "The Failures and Successes of a Topical Cameraman," and this should certainly prove a very interesting and amusing discussion.

It is requested that members note that the inauguration meeting of the proposed club is fixed for Sunday, October 16, at 2.45 p.m. All members of the K.C.S. are invited, and will be able to gain admission to this meeting by virtue of membership of the society. At this meeting the recommendations of the Formation Committee will be submitted (see page 8), which will be composed of all directors, artists, cameramen and scenarists, and applications for admission to membership accepted.

FILMING THE ARCTIC

At a meeting of the Executive Council of the British Society of Engineers, on September 23, at Sheffield, it was decided to commence preliminary preparations for the Arctic expedition by airship, proposed in 1919 by Capt. C. Frobisher, Secretary of the Society. The airship will be of the S.S. type, commonly known as the "Blimp," which will be specially adapted for a flight of 1,300 miles, which will be the distance from Spitzbergen to the North Pole and back. The route will primarily be from London to Christiania (first base), from thence to North Cape (second base), from thence to Bear Isle (relay base), and finally to Spitzbergen (the base of the Expedition). It is estimated that 50,000 feet of kinematograph films will be taken during the Expedition. Preparations will be commenced from March to July, 1922, and the Expedition will be carried out during July, August and September, during which time the sea around Spitzbergen will be open for maritime navigation.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for Kinematograph Productions. Phone—London Wall 7568

CAMERAMEN AT WORK

I hear that there are complaints about the laboratory work just now. It was the subject of a very heated argument at one of the after-the-meeting talks the other Friday night. One member was anxious to have the laboratories use distilled water. The cost of procuring the water, he claimed, was quite small, compared with the results that would be obtained.

* * *

Congratulations to the new Secretary—Kenneth Gordon. Everyone knows that the work of the Secretary is not light, and anyone who takes up such a position must certainly be out for the good of the Society.

* * *

George Woods-Taylor will be starting on his long journey to India shortly after these lines appear in print. He is the second member to go away in the last few weeks. "Bee" Mason is on his way to the South on the Quest, Mr. Taylor will leave on the Kaiserin on October 14. He is taking with him a colour camera and a black and white, which his firm, Cinechrome, is supplying.

* * *

Mr. Moses is always first in helping brother members. The vote of thanks that the meeting accorded him when he bought a camera specially to present to an unemployed member of the Society, who thought he could make some money if he had a camera, was well deserved. I know Mr. Moses will not be pleased to see this in print, but such things deserve, at the very least, a mention.

* * *

An interesting discussion took place at the last meeting of the cameramen regarding the small attendances at meetings. True, it is only the second meeting of the winter season, but the lack of members was very noticeable.

Is it that the members forget the meetings? This was suggested, and to remedy such a state of affairs the secretary was asked to send a weekly letter to all members, asking them to be present. Such a thing would entail a great deal of unnecessary work and expense; surely it is not essential to try such means.

* * *

Examinations for admittance to qualified membership, Associate-Fellowship and Fellowship of the British Society of Engineers, 147, West Street, Sheffield, will be held during the months of October, November and December upon electrical engineering, cinematograph installations, cinematograph operating, etc. Prospectus and particulars will be sent free on request. Candidates wishing to save expense of travelling to Sheffield must submit the name and address of some responsible person who is willing to act as examiner for the candidate and on behalf of the Society.

* * *

Kenneth R. L. Gordon started in the Gaumont dark rooms. He was responsible for the filming of the Delhi Durbar and the Balkan War in 1912. Served in the war 1914 to 1919. Was official photographer to the North Russian Relief Force, 1919-20. His latest productions are "North of the Dogger Bank," "The Law Divine," with Masters, and "Film Pie." He is now with Pathé's, and is the new Secretary of the Kine Cameramen's Society. Hobbies: Photography. Recreations: Boxing and riding.

Address: 34, Fulham Park Gardens, Fulham, London, S.W.6.

* * *

G. Albert Smith, of Brighton, the well known inventor of the "Kinemacolor" process of cinematography in natural colours, has received the signal honour of an invitation to join the Prince of Wales' party on his Indian tour. Mr. Smith, with a party of assistants, will take cinematograph pictures in natural colours of the gorgeous ceremonies prepared for the Prince throughout his tour. The pictures will be taken by the Cinechrome process, which is a great improvement on "Kinemacolor." For some years now Mr. Smith has been working with ceaseless energy on the task of perfecting his new process, and he has achieved some remarkable results. When the Prince of Wales visited Brighton in February last to unveil the Chattri, the memorial to the Indian soldiers erected on the Downs, Mr. Smith accomplished the unique feat of recording in natural colours this picturesque and impressive ceremony.

* * *

"B. T. W." writes:—"A recent issue stated that it was reported that Jimmy Taylor, of Gaumont's, was married. As usual with your information, the report was correct, and we all wish him every success in double harness. The history of the romance is known to very few. Jimmy met his wife a little over twelve months ago; and, whilst engaged 'turning the handle' in Nottingham, the production was held up while 'Jimmy' put a trunk call through to his lady love, proposed, was accepted, and the result is as reported." "TRIPOD."

CAMERAMEN. . . .

JOHN J. COX
44, Barrowgate Road,
:: Chiswick, W.4. ::
'Phone: Chiswick 294.
Cameraman for Maurice Elvey,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD
Cameraman.
AT LIBERTY for First-Class Productions.
1920 Debrie Outfit.
All Coms: 4, PERCIVAL PARADE,
WORCESTER PARK.

EDWIN DAY
Motion Picture Photographer,
12, Archer Street, Piccadilly Circus, London, W.1.
Telephone: Gerrard 780.
Telegrams: "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON
Thelton House, Cambolt
:: Road, Putney Hill. ::
Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN
"GAUMONT'S,"
105, King's Road,
Kingston-on-Thames.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

FRANK CANHAM
Motion Picture Photographer.
Address: Crystal Palace Hotel,
Upper Norwood, S.E.19.

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT
GAUMONT,
:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::
Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT
EXPERT CAMERAMAN.
"The Better 'Ole" etc., "Her Benny" etc.,
"Land of My Fathers."
Offices and Dark Rooms:
2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.
'Phone: Streatham 2986.

ALFRED H. MOSES
Photographing George Ridgwell Productions.
Formerly Chief Cameraman for Thanhauser,
Norma Talmadge, British & Colonial, etc.
Address care of STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS,
Cricklewood.

PHIL ROSS
Cameraman—AT LIBERTY
Late of BROADWEST, HARMA, VANITY, etc.
19, Mayow Road, Forest Hill,
London, S.E.23.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

WILLIAM SHENTON
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address:
17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,
Boreham Wood, Herts.

HORACE M. WHEDDON,
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address
"LYNTON HOUSE,"
BOREHAM WOOD, HERTS.

JAMES E. ROGERS,
Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth
"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"
"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"
"Last Rose of Summer,"
PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

JACK H. ROSS,
LATEST FILMS:
"Wife Whom God Forgot" (Alliance).
"Love and the Whirlwind" (Alliance).
"Haigh Serial" (Astra).
FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.
All coms. to:—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Productions and Who is Working on Them

British Photoplay Productions.
ADDRESS: Devon Chambers, 28,
Fleet Street, Torquay.

FILM: "Where the Rainbow Ends."
DIRECTOR: H. Lisle Lueoque.
CAMERAMAN: I. Roseman.
STAR: West End Cast.
TYPE: Five-reel drama.
STAGE: Fourth week.

Broadway Productions.
ADDRESS: West Nile Street, Glasgow.

STUDIO: Thornliebank, Glasgow
FILM: "Football Daft."
DIRECTOR: Victor W. Rowe.
STAR: Jimmy Brough.
TYPE: Two Reel Scottish Domestic Comedy.

STAGE: Finishing.

Davidsons.

STUDIO: Lea Bridge Road, Leyton.
FILM: Not Titled.
DIRECTOR: Arthur Rooke.
STARS: Phyllis Shanhaw, Victor
McLagan.

CAMERAMAN: Leslie Eveleigh.
SCENARIST: Arthur Rooke.

STAGE: Commencing.

Direct Film Traders.

STUDIO: Ebury St., Victoria, S.W.
FILM: "Four Men in a Van."
DIRECTOR: Hugh Croise.
STAR: Johnny Butt.
SCENARIST: Hugh Croise.
CAMERAMAN: Frank Granger.
TYPE: Feature Comedy.
STAGE: Fifth week.

Famous Players-Lasky

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.
STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A.
Bell, O.B.E.

FILM: "Three Live Ghosts."
DIRECTOR: George Fitzmaurice.
STAR: Anna Q. Nilsson.
STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "Perpetua."
DIRECTOR: John Robertson.
STAR: Ann Forrest.
STAGE: Fourth week.

Gaumont

ADDRESS: 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, W. 12.

FILM: "Class and No Class."
DIRECTOR: Will Kellino.
STAR: Pauline Johnson.
STAGE: Second week.

Hardy.

ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W.1.
STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isle-
worth.

FILM: "The Recoil."
DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.
STARS: Eille Norwood.
SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.
CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.
STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: "The Seurge."
DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.
SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.
CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.
STAGE: Casting.

Harma

ADDRESS: 16, Limes Road, Croydon.
FILM: "The Corner Man."
DIRECTOR: Einar J. Bruun.
STAR: Hugh E. Wright and Ida
Lambert.

SCENARIST: Frank Fowell.
CAMERAMAN: A. G. Frangueli.
TYPE: Comedy Drama.
STAGE: Seventh week.

Ideal.

ADDRESS: Boreham Woods, Elstree

STUDIO MANAGER: F. A. Kendrick.
STAGE MANAGER: F. G. Knott.

FILM: "Piekwick Papers."
DIRECTOR: Thomas Bentley.
STAR: Fred Valpe.
CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.
STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: "The Old Wives' Tale."
DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.
SCENARIST: Denison Clift.
CAMERAMAN: Geoffrey Barkas.
STAGE: Commencing.

FILM: "Shirley."

DIRECTOR: A. V. Bramble.
STAR: Clive Brook.

CAMERAMAN: H. W. Whadden.
STAGE: Third week.

Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate.
ADDRESS: Riverside Studios, Kew
Bridge.

FILM: "M'Lord of the White Road."
DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme
STAR: Dawn Meredith.
SCENARIST: Gerald Fort Buckle.

Progress

FILM: "The Lilae Sunbonnet."
STAR: Joan Morgan.
DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
STAGE: Sixth week.

Sea.

ADDRESS: Prinees Studio, Kew.
FILM: "Jessica's First Prayer."
STAR: C. Hargreave Mansell.
DIRECTOR: Bert Wynne.
STAGE: Third week.

Sterling Photoplays.

ADDRESS: 26, Dean Street, W.1.
FILM: "The Exclusive Model."
DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.
STAR: Molly Adair.
SCENARIST: Cyril E. Murrell.
CAMERAMAN: Edward Groe.
TYPE: Two-reel comedy.
STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: "Dutch Courage."
DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.
STAR: Dorothy Peters.
SCENARIST: Alec McKee.
TYPE: Two Reel Comedy.
STAGE: Second week.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Crickle-
wood.

STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman
FILM: "A Romance of Westdale."
DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.
STAR: Milton Rosmer.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling

FILM: "The Lamp in the Desert."
DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.
CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Nearing Completion.

FILM: "A Lost Leader."
DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.
CAMERAMAN: Alfred Moses.
STAR: Robert English.
STAGE: Third week.

FILM: Half a Truth.
DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.
STARS: Margaret Hope, Irene
Rook, Percy Standing.
CAMERAMAN: Adolph Burger.
STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: "Froggy's Little Brother"
DIRECTOR: A. E. Coleby.
STAGE: First week.

Thompson Productions.

ADDRESS: B & C Studios, Wal-
thamstow.
FILM: "All Roads Lead to Calvary."

DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.
STARS: Mary Odette, Bertram
Barleigh, Minna Gray.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Grace
Rose.

SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.
EDITOR: John Miller.
CAMERAMAN: John Parker.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Third week.

Temple Productions.

ADDRESS: Catford Studios, S. E.
MANAGER: Maurice Edmonds.
FILM: "Some Truth."
DIRECTOR: Bannister Merwin.
STAR: A. Bromley Davenport.
SCENARIST: Bannister Merwin.
CAMERAMAN: Harold Bastick.
TYPE: Three Reel Comedy.
STAGE: Commencing.

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome,
Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone:
Kingsbury 120—Artifodro, Hyde,
London.

ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-
Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.
B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place,
Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing
2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD.,
Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone:
Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmopho, Ealux.
BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH
CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow,
E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364
and 712.

BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD.,
Thornton House, Thorton Road, Clap-
ham Park.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20.
'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PHOTOPLAYS, Devon Chambers,
28 Fleet Street, Torquay.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street,
Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Wal-
thamstow.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRO-
DUCEES, LTD., Poole Street, New
North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone:
Dalston 3704.

GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shephard's
Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolougue, 'Phone
London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland.,
London Office: Granger's, Exclusives,
191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone:
Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams:
Exelugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners
Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012.
Studio: Caudlemass Lane, Beaconsfield.

GLEN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD., 20,
Lisle Street, London, W.C., and "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16 Limes Road,
Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and
2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst
Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone:
Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth
Walton.

IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood,
Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—
Idealms, Borehamwood.

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS-FILM CO., LTD.,
52 Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

ISLE OF MAN FILM CO., The Manx Studios,
Isle of Man.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush
House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Crickle-wood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048
(Studio, Willesden 3293).

LAMBART FILMS, Carlton House, Regent
Street, London, W. 'Phone: Gerr. 4040.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road
Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MINERVA FILM CO., LTD., 110, Victoria
Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shoreham-
by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham
19.

REGULUS FILMS: 48, Carnaby Street,
Regent Street, W.1.

SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isle-worth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow
212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High
Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton
2456.

SEAL PRODUCTIONS.—Prinees' Studio,
Kew

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willes-
den 3293—Stollpic, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street,
Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1933—
Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMPSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street
Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Wal-
thamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGNTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD.,
Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & Co., 41-45, Craven
Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone:
Willessden 2862.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON
21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

The MOTION PICTURE

Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 18.

Saturday, October 8, 1921.

FOURPENCE

THE PRESS ON DAVID O'RANE IN "SONIA."

"TIMES." 26.9.21.

" . . . There have been few better things in British pictures than Mr. Clive Brook's performance as David O'Rane, the youth who rises from nothing to a fortune and then sacrifices everything, including his eyesight, for the sake of the country which he loves. In the closing scenes, wherein the broken man feels that the world is against him until Sonia brings him comfort, Mr. Brook gives a really beautiful performance which in one stride puts him among the best of our film actors"

"DAILY NEWS." 23.9.21.

" . . . but the real credit lies with Clive Brook who plays the part of David O'Rane. It is a wonderful performance."

"DAILY TELEGRAPH." 29.9.21.

"The most notable thing about it seemed to me to be the performance of Mr. Clive Brook as the masterful hero."

"KINEMATOGRAPH WEEKLY." 29.9.21

"Clive Brook's acting together with his powerful personality will prove a great source of attraction . . . His acting at the end, when he is blind, constitutes the finest moment in the whole film."

"EVENING NEWS." 24.9.21.

" . . . Probably doing better work at the moment in British productions than any others."

"FILMS." 24.9.21.

"We can heartily congratulate Clive Brook on the artistry and force with which he completely dominates the play."

CLIVE BROOK

"DAILY MAIL." 26.9.21.

"Fine British acting . . . excellent . . . very convincing."

"CINEMA." 29.9.21.

"The character that stands out most clearly on the screen, as in the book, is that of David O'Rane. Clive Brook who takes the part dominates the play from beginning to end. He has managed to create a type that will infallibly leave a deep impression on all who see it."

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."
219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.

Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.

Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Sonia," "The Knight Errant," "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds."

Address—27 Eccleston Sq., S.W.1. Victoria 2968.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile / Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal), "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).

c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

Juvenile Leads: "Her Son," "Great Gay Road," "Lights of Home," "Land of My Fathers." Duane in "Belle of the Gambling Den" (Haigh Serial.)

OFFERS INVITED.

33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelm Foss Production), "John Herriott's Wife" and "The Breed of the Treshams"

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street. Regent 4329.

PHYLLIS SHANNAW.

Juv. Lead "Call of the Road," "The Right to Live," etc.

Will be shortly disengaged. All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour St., W.1. Phone: Regent 4329.

JOHN EAST.

Character Comedy. Tele: Hammersmith 1138. 14, Ilfley Road, Hammersmith, W.6.

ARTISTES

FLORA LE BRETON

34, NEVERN SQUARE, EARL'S COURT, S.W.5.

Phone: Western 1936,

HAYFORD HOBBS.

Starring with African Film Productions. Late Juvenile Lead: London Films (three years), Windsor Films (two years), and all leading English Film Companies. All coms.: Box 4514 Johannesburg, South Africa.

ENA BEAUMONT.

Leads in "The Greater Love," "The Golden Web," "All the Winners," "Patricia Brent, Spinster," "Our Girls and Their Physique," "Settled in Full," "Watching Eyes," etc. All coms.: c/o A. Fraser, 26, Charing Cross Road, W.C.2.

SYDNEY WOOD,

Juv. Leads in "The Warrior Strain," "Her Benny," "Ever Open Door," "Bars of Iron," "The Flame," "The Will," "Double Event," "David and Jonathan," etc. Address—The Laurels Beverley Road, Anerley, S.E.

Phone: Chancery 7080-7081.

MILES MANDER,

Light, Heavy and Juv. Leads. Modern, aristocratic. Extensive wardrobe. All-round athlete. Now playing Marquis Sallust in "Half a Truth" (Stoll). Disengaged Oct. 15, 1921.

Address, 3, Clifford St., W.1. Phone: Regent 1327.

SYBIL GRAY

Latest Films "Carnival" (Alliance), "Corinthian Jack" (Masters), "Haigh of the Yard" (White). All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour Street. Regent 4329.

IRENÉE CRAVEN

LEADS.

Dignified, social sporting characters.

Three years experience. Address—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

WALTER FORDE

Comedian.

ZODIAC FILMS, LTD.

All coms.:—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,

15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.

Phone: Hornsey 1784.

ARTISTES

MILTON ROSMER

Starring

STOLL AND IDEAL FILMS.

Phone - - - - Museum 5145.
88, NEWMAN STREET. W.1.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

Phone: Regent 4329

DICK WEBB

(Juvenile)

GAUMONT, MASTERS, FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY, BRITISH PRODUCERS.

180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc. STOLL FILM CO.

All coms.: c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1.

LIONELLE HOWARD.

AT LIBERTY.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

ADELINE HAYDEN COFFIN.

Sympathetic Mother, Grande Dames.

Character Parts, "Mrs. Gatty," in "Christie Johnstone" (Broadwest), "Margaret Howe" in "Beside the Bonny Briar Bush" (Lasky). 55, Campden St., Kensington, W.8.

Tel.: Park 3623.

CLIVE BROOK

24, Hyde Park Square, W.

Padd. 2868.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

POLLIE EMERY.

"Peach" in "The Case of Lady Camber" (Broadwest), "Auntie" in "Nothing Else Matters" (Welsh Pearson), "Madam Tourterelle" in "Perpetua" (Famous Players-Lasky British Productions).

7, KENYON MANSIONS, QUEEN'S CLUB GARDENS.

HARDING STEERMAN,

Characters of Distinction,

56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,

24, Cleveland Road Barnes, S.W.13.

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 18

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London:
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

Oct. 8, 1921

The Censorship Danger.

THERE is an increasing tendency to demand State censorship of the screen. And it is not confined to this country. Like all other questions which are taken up by extremists, the need for severely restricting the scope of the photoplay is grotesquely exaggerated. The reformers' attitude that the screen should be emasculated so that it is fit for children is as ridiculous as would be a similar demand on literature, the drama, or art. Unfortunately, though going to violent extremes, the reformers have some ground for their complaints. To a large extent the making of pictures has been, especially in America, in the hands of men with little culture and misguided imaginations. It has also suffered from the cosmopolitan commercialist whose mind cannot get beyond sensation and violence—who believes that these are the things the public wants because they are the only things which he himself can appreciate. Thus in the cruder types of films—and this applies more especially to American films—there is a continual repetition of physical violence, viciousness and lust. In the more pretentious pictures the tendency has been towards subtle suggestion and sensuous display.

* * *

Better Men and Better Films.

THAT these films exist gives the reformers an excuse for their agitation. So do "bathing girl" comedies in which the bathing girl is only introduced in order to give the film a sex appeal. But the existence of such films does not furnish a reason for a rigid censorship that would regard the photoplay from the standpoint of the needs of children any more than a salacious play or a pornographic book would justify the imposition of such a censorship on the drama and literature. The film producing Industry is capable of putting its own house in order. Better men—in the sense of being more educated and more artistic—are being attracted to the photoplay; and the more of them that come in, the harder will it be for the purveyors of sensation and salacity to continue their bad work. But the imposition of a censorship—especially a censorship controlled by bureaucrats, disappointed women and people who are under the delusion that their mission in life is to regulate the lives of others—would be fatal to the development and growth of a screen art. To make a comparison with a similar form of censorship on literature, it would produce—or rather allow—nothing but "Sandford and Mertons," "Danesbury Houses" and Sunday-school tracts.

better pictures. It is better pictures and more of them. There can never be too many good pictures, either for the Trade or for the exhibitor. The greater the number of good films and the smaller the number of bad ones, the larger will be the expansion in the size of the public interested in kinema-going. Such expansion is good for the director and the artiste. They can do their part to bring it about by concentrating on the production of better pictures and still better and more of them. Let America reduce her output. To make up her programs she will have to take in the best from the rest of the world. Already she is doing so. French, Swedish and German pictures are getting on to the screens of the United States in increasing numbers. It is our business to see that our pictures are good enough to get their share of this market

* * *

The Club.

SUNDAY, October 16, will witness the inauguration of the much-needed Club for those engaged in the artistic side of British film production. And with the advent of the Club the profession will vest itself with a new and necessary dignity. No longer should the film artiste be regarded as the Cinderella of the theatrical profession; membership of the Club will provide the artiste with the same status that membership of the Green Room Club does the theatrical actor and of the Savage the literary folk. That there will be misgivings among many is a sure fact, but we are confident that these will be found to be groundless when the Qualification Committee comes to exert a strong and stern supervision of the individual merits of individual applicants. There have been futile attempts in the past to form a Club, but never has the suggestion obtained the influential backing that this proposal has. Providing the necessary financial support is forthcoming—there should be a flourishing centre of social intercourse by Christmas. And we welcome its advent because its effect will be to close up the ranks.

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"The Fruitful Vine" (Stoll) is one of Stoll's best. It possesses technique of a high order, while the story has been turned into a scenario with credit to all concerned. Interior sets are lavishly magnificent while the picture also possesses good scenic value. To Maurice Elvey great praise is due for beating the Americans at their own game: elaborate productions; while his cameraman's work beats the average American photography. The cast has been well chosen but the members are more than types—they are artistes. Mdlle. Valya's performance is a triumph of histrionic art and Fred Raynham also contributes highly to the general success of the production, but Irene Rooke fails to make the best of her opportunities.

"Love at the Wheel" (Masters) is quite good pictorial entertainment despite certain defects that it possesses. Clare Greet's work is the best piece of charac-terisation in the picture but Pauline Johnson's opportunities for displaying her talents are reduced to a minimum. Poor direction is responsible for much that is faulty in the production but not the motor racing scenes at Brooklands, and photography is never poor.

"Laughter and Tears" (Granger-Binger) provides a vehicle for Evelyn Brent to score another personal triumph. Her artistry is superb. She is a screen genius. The direction of the production has not been handled with the maximum amount of intelligent care and photography is not all it might be. In fact the technical properties of the production are much weaker than the artistic, for the chief characters are well cast. Adelqui Millar in addition to being the author plays lead and submits a good dramatic performance. Bert Darley, too, is really convincing and suggestive of greater possibilities.

A Film Shortage?

A NUMBER of people, including many exhibitors, hold the opinion that next year there will be a shortage of films, resulting in great competition, to the damage of the small exhibitor. This opinion is based chiefly on the fact that America has curtailed her output, which at present is less than 40 per cent. of what it was a year back. Why this should postulate a shortage of films it is difficult to understand, for the real reason for the falling off in production is that America has been making far too many ordinary—and often mediocre—pictures. If she is now making fewer and better pictures, it is not from any ethical belief; it is a necessity which is purely commercial. And while there is plenty of room for better pictures, it is surely a mistake to aim at fewer. What is wanted is not fewer and

ARTISTES

VICTOR McLAGLAN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman,
Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road"
and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

MARJORIE VILLIS.

Exclusive to Harma Photoplays, Limes Rd., Croydon.

ARTHUR WALCOTT.

Character Parts.
57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.

197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph.: Battersea 21.

CHARLES CLIFFORD,

38, Charing Cross Mansions, W.C.2.
'Phone: Regent 569'.

CRISPIN HAY,

c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,

12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,

Character Actor. Offers invited.
114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

SCENARISTS

ELIOT STANNARD

Scenarios.

85, Holbein House, Sloane
Square, S.W.1.

Tele.: Victoria 497.

COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,
:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.

7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11

('Phone: Park 2945).

GERARD FORT BUCKLE

Scenarios.

'Phone: Regent 4747.

41, Glasshouse Street, Regent
Street, W.1.

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,

Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
62, Foxbourne Road, Balfour, S.W.17.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,

Kinedramatist,
Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

SCENARISTS

IRENE MILLER,

Novelist, Journalist, Scenarist,
10, Arundel Gardens, W. 11, or Bramlins.

CYRIL E. MURRELL,

Scenarist—Comedy.

Address: C/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

MURIEL ALLEYNE, Screen Playwright

Plays sold to Pathé, Hepworth, Barker M.L.B., Clarendon Universal, etc., Windsor Ho! Amersham, Bucks.

HELEN & THOMAS BLIZZARD

Original Story and Continuity Writers.

Address M.F. STUDIO.

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,

Producing Comedies

BARKERS STUDIOS, EALING.

'Phone No.: Ealing 211.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord,"

"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"

"The Face at the Window."

Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON

Producing for Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd.Latest Productions:—"Bars of Iron,"
"Belonging," "Frailty," "River of Stars," "Prey of the Dragon."

NORMAN MACDONALD,

Adapter and Producer of "THE GREAT
GAY ROAD," also producer for "THE
LOUD WATER MYSTERY" and
"CHRISTIE JOHNSTONE."

Five years producer in America. At Liberty.

Address: 20, COLVILLE TERRACE, BAYSWATER,
W.11.

GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer

THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.

Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,

Hoe St., Walthamstow, E.17.

ADRIAN BRUNEL,

Producer and Scenario-Writer.

19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone: 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK,

Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
29, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

ALBERT WARD,

Producer—Open to accept engagements.
3, Ranelagh Grove, S.W.1.

STUDIO MANAGER

JOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—

B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,

Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone: W'stow 364."

DIRECTORS

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer
of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H.
MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE."

"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"

"SETTLED IN FULL,"

"ALL THE WINNERS,"

"WATCHING EYES,"

"BLUFF," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

PUBLICITY

FRANK J. WOOLF

Publicity Representative,

British and Colonial Kinematograph
Company, Hoe Street, Walthamstow,

Telephone: Walthamstow 364.

THIS SPACE TO LET

£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

KINE CAMERA
EXPOSURE METER

7/8

With Instruction
Booklet.Indicates right lens
opening for the light."Very reliable,
could hardly get on without.""Complete satisfaction used for testing actinic value
of flame arcs."WATKINS METER CO.
HEREFORD.

The Biggest Successes have BENJAMIN COSTUMES

PERSONAL SUPERVISION GUARANTEED
in every detail. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

The latest news of the state of affairs of Broadwest is that C. Comins, 50, Cannon Street, E.C., has been appointed as receiver and manager by order of Court dated September 21, and under powers contained in debenture dated August 2, 1917.

City men on their way to business the other morning rubbed their eyes and then stared almost incredulously at an aristocratic looking gentleman, immaculately dressed, wheeling a baby carriage across the busy thoroughfare in front of the Royal Exchange, and, at the same time, dragging a reluctant lamb by a piece of rope. Near this unrehearsed scene was the camera-man busily turning the crank of his machine. The aristocratic gentleman was Cyril Chadwick as Spoofy in the new George Fitzmaurice production of "Three Live Ghosts." Afterwards it was found that the scene had been somewhat spoiled by a baker's van which crossed the line of vision at the psychological moment, and there was nothing for it but to take the scene all over again. Cyril Chadwick, his baby carriage, and his lamb were whirled by motor car from the Islington studios to the Royal Exchange, and once again he crossed the busy thoroughfare with a burly policeman this time holding up the traffic, and hundreds of people watching the quaint scene.

I learn from Bert Haldane that he has been approached by a new company, now forming with big capital, to go to Ireland and direct the production of Irish pictures. The engagement offered him for two years. Does this mean that everything in Ireland is peaceful now?

Last week I referred to the resolutions of the National Council of Women of Great Britain held at Sheffield, the Countess of Selborne presiding. The resolution urged the Home Secretary to introduce legislation for the licensing of all persons who for the purpose of private gain employ people to perform in a cinematograph film. Cecile Matheson, in proposing this, said if they were successful in getting legislation on those lines they would do something desired by the A.A. and all the film directors. What was required was protection against unscrupulous cinema schools and theatrical agencies usually run by

Mr. Bogus. Methods adopted in many cases amounted to a peculiarly cruel method of fraud, and the opportunities of practising this would be nullified by licensing. She described many instances of how young people had fallen victims to the fraudulent manager.

Isabel Beresford, of the A.A., who seconded, made a strong appeal. "I ask you to stop this awful thing, this pandering to lust and dealing in women's souls, leaving them stranded with temptations all round them that frequently mean ruin, body and soul." The resolution was carried.

A further resolution, which prohibited the engagement of any young person under the age of 18 in the theatre or on the films, was lost. It was pointed out that actresses and actors, both for the stage and screen, had to begin their training at an early age, and there were other technical difficulties that could hardly

OUR LETTER LIST.

Letters await the following at the offices of this journal. A stamped addressed envelope should be sent with applications. No charge is made for the use of this service.

Esme Kavanagh.
Faith Bevan.
Irene Craven.

ON THE FLOOR With JOHN S. ROBERTSON

Easy confidence in himself and his work, which is typically American, combined with a real modesty, which is not quite so typical, is what strikes an observer of John S. Robertson's directing methods.

This true modesty, implying a knowledge that he does not know everything, is evidenced in the fact that, being advised by a famous British novelist to see some of the Swedish screen masterpieces, John S. Robertson fully intends to follow the advice.

"There is no cut and dried method of making a film," he says; "I may make one picture one way and another film another way. I think the artistes ought to have a good general idea of the story before starting to work. Then there may be discussions as to the interpretation of the different characters and scenes as the production proceeds."

Perhaps the most obvious distinction between the methods of John S. Robertson and that of the typical British director is that, among the minute details about which he seems to take thought before the scene is shot are those of lighting.

The actual management of the light is, of course, the affair of the cameraman, and it is carried out by an efficient corps of electricians, but the American director seems to take a general supervision of the lighting effect to an extent which is not common among British directors.

be overcome. This result does not surprise me, for last week I said that the suggestion was "far too bureaucratic as well as failing to deal with the problem that the Council wishes to tackle." With the appeal of Madame Beresford I strongly agree.

Jacques Wessel, Director of Foreign Sales for the Hollandia Film Company, Haarlem, Holland, is leaving for the States with five of the Granger-Binger productions. A fluent linguist, he is a popular personality in most of the film centres of the European capitals, and has travelled extensively even further afield. Recently he joined the foreign sales department of the Hollandia Film Company, and immediately fixed up for the distribution of the productions of this concern throughout the world (excluding England and America) by Pathé. These pictures include "The Black Tulip" and "Laughter and Tears." These productions are, of course, handled in England by Granger's, and America is now the only country not covered. This fact, Mr. Wessel hopes soon to remedy, however, and he will take the good wishes of a cosmopolitan circle of friends with him on his trip to the U.S.A.

Sid Jay, the energetic agent of Wardour Street, is continually negotiating engagements for other people, but I am now interested to know that he is able to announce his own engagement to be married. Congratulations to both!

That favourite opera "The Bohemian Girl," is being directed for the screen, and a wonderful array of stage stars has been engaged to interpret the interesting story including Gladys Cooper, Ellen Terry, Constance Collier, C. Aubrey Smith, Ivor Novello, and Henry Vibart. Harley Knoles is directing the screening for Alliance Corporation at St. Margaret's. Later the company will travel to the banks of the river Danube for some of the scenes.

Kenelm Foss, who is now busily engaged on the production of a film version of "All Roads Lead to Calvary," is of the opinion that the introduction of youth in motion pictures is essential. During the past few months he has selected stories nearly all of which demand youthful players as the leading "MEGAPHONE" characters.

Where they are and

ARTISTES should read the details of the Kinema Club, on Page 8, and send for invitations to the meeting, on Sunday, October 16, at 2.45 p.m., in the Court Picture Theatre.

Clive Brook is playing the star part in "Shirley" for Ideal.

Charles Levey is in the cast of "A Lowland Cinderella" (Progress).

Cyril Chadwick plays Spoofy in "Three Live Ghosts" (F.P.-Lasky).

Eric Barclay has returned from Paris, where he played a part in a French film.

Adeline Hayden Coffin is playing an appropriate part in "The Corner Man" for Harma.

Nell Emerald has finished her part in the latest Progress production, "A Lowland Cinderella."

Elinor J. Bruun has been working on interiors at the Harma studios for "The Corner Man."

Cecil Susands is the male juvenile lead in the new comedy "Eliza's Romeo" (Rising Sun).

Cora Coffin is leading lady for Lambert Films and is finishing her first Lambert production, "Romance and Reality."

Will Kellino is working hard on "Class and No Class" for Gaumont, and is turning an average of about 700 feet a day.

Betty Farquhar is playing the juvenile lead in a series of comedy pictures now being directed by Bert Haldane for Rising Sun.

Joan Morgan has now finished work in the star part in "A Lowland Cinderella," which Sidney Morgan has finished directing for Progress.

Cyril Percival has just completed work in his seventh consecutive production for Stoll. This completes his contract with the company.

John Gliddon is cutting and assembling "The Night Hawk," and expects the Trade show of this International Artists' premiere in a short time.

Louie Freear is playing Eliza in "Eliza's Romeo," a new series of two-reel comedies for a new British producing firm named Rising Sun Productions.

Geoffrey Malins has now finished the direction of the Hardy production "The Recoil," and has already cast for his third, which will be "The Scourge."

Elizabeth Irving is playing one of the leads in "Shirley" (Ideal).

George Foley has finished work on "A Lowland Cinderella" for Progress.

Eric Bray is Jim Blunders in "Where the Rainbow Ends" (British Photoplays).

Amy Venity has been booked by Sid Jay for a leading part in "Who is the Boss" for Albert Brovett.

W. Courtney Rowden is directing the production of a series of one-reel subjects at the Master Studios.

Denison Clift is now in his second week of work on "The Old Wives' Tale," which he is directing for Ideal.

Malcolm Tod's latest engagement is for F.P.-Lasky. He has been playing brother to the star in "Three Live Ghosts."

Bernard Dudley was out taking scenes on the North Sea last week for "Love in the Hills," which he is directing for Harma.

Roger Livesey has an important part in "Where the Rainbow Ends," which H. Lisle Locoque is directing for British Photoplays.

Bert Haldane is finishing "Eliza's Romeo," the first of a group of two-reel comedies which he is directing for Rising Sun Productions at Barker's Studio.

SCENARISTS should read the details of the Kinema Club, on Page 8, and send for invitations to the meeting, on Sunday, October 16, at 2.45 p.m., in the Court Picture Theatre.

Joe Nightingale plays an important part in "Shirley" (Ideal).

Francis Wetherell has been playing for Progress in "A Lowland Cinderella."

Babs Farren is in the cast of "Where the Rainbow Ends" (British Photoplays).

Fay Compton has been booked to play for Kenelm Foss in Thompson Productions.

—DO YOU—

If Walter West will be inactive very long? and—

* * *

Why he was after the Kew Bridge Studios?

* * *

The names of the three persons interested in British productions who were bidding for the Kew Studios?

* * *

In what British production will Florence Turner soon be starring.

* * *

Is it merely an Old Wives' Tale, that she will soon be co-starring at Boreham Wood?

* * *

The name of the leading male artiste who has been offered an American engagement for 12 weeks at £1,000 per week?

* * *

The name of the company that went on location without a camera?

* * *

Why George Pearson mistook Rex Davis for the railway porter?

BRIDGING THE GAP

by EMILE

In the relation between cameraman and chief of laboratory there seems to exist a very big gap. This gap should not exist. They should fraternise and so become well acquainted with one another—in their ways and means for obtaining results.

I take it the chief of laboratory is a practical man and knows his work from A to Z. I also assume the cameraman is well versed in the art of light and shade. They both hold very responsible positions, and both are responsible to the director for giving him what he desires or aims at.

The first essential, then, is for the cameraman to expose a given length of film on a set fully lit, as well as a length of exterior, according to method used—judgment or exposure meter. These negatives should be cut in half—the one half kept for future use, the other half, with working instructions, given to the chief of laboratory, who should have them developed to what he considers correct intensity.

Notes should be taken in writing in a book specially kept for the purpose of exact composition of developing bath, the temperature of said developer when film was immersed, the actual time film was in bath (by aid of a dark-room clock), and when this film has been fixed, washed and dried should be noted. A consultation should take place between the cameraman and chief of laboratory then and there. Without fear or prejudice they should criticise the negative from every possible point of view till each is confident that his particular work has brought the absolute required result.

But if the cameraman fears that the best has not been obtained, then he must weigh up the pros and cons from his point of view: Should he give more or less exposure? Has the negative the finesse of detail he expected? Was it under-exposed and too hard? Was it over-exposed and too flat? Was it correctly exposed in his opinion and over- or under-developed? If either, then he still has part of the exposed film to experiment with, which he should have developed to his taste and judgment by standing near the developing-man, or carry out the test himself.

If he is satisfied that at last he has achieved his purpose in obtaining the quality he regards as correct, then he should consult the chief of laboratory, who, in his turn, must weigh up the pros and cons of the negative before him, bearing always in his mind two facts: (a) Will it enable him to pull a print to the satisfaction of his employers? (b) Will the trade printer be able or willing to do likewise? If any doubt

TITLING SPECIALIST

Expert in handwritten work.
English or American Style.

G. T. SHEARMAN, Bentinck Road, Nottingham.

— what they are doing

George Bishop is playing for British Photoplays in "Where the Rainbow Ends."

Lilian Hall Davies is playing an important part for Thompson in "The Wonderful Story" (Sid Jay booking).

Harold Deacon plays St. George in the British Photoplays production "Where the Rainbow Ends."

— KNOW? —

How many stage stars refused an engagement, through Syd. Jay, at £200 a week? and—

* * *

If the title of the film frightened them?

* * *

Whether Kenelm Foss will offer more in future? or—

* * *

Will he engage screen actresses who have not yet reached the stellar regions?

* * *

Whether Olaf Hytten is the cosmopolitan his name suggests him to be? and—

* * *

If his next screen appearance, as his first, will be with Florence Turner?

* * *

How Clive Brook enjoyed himself at Billy's Club the other evening?

* * *

What the coffee-stall keeper at Hyde Park Corner thought of the party of film stars, including Stewart Rome and Pauline Peters, as customers?

Walter Gay is in "Where the Rainbow Ends."

Ernest Wallace is playing in B. Haldane's production.

Nelson Watts Philips is working at Barker's Studios.

L. G. Egrot is turning for Albert Brovett on "Who is the Boss?"

Florence Nelson is now playing in the new Welsh Pearson production.

Zena Dane has finished playing lead in "No. 5 John Street" for Thompson.

Albert Brovett is directing the production of "Who is the Boss?" at the Hackney Studios.

Ruth Maitland has a leading part in "Where the Rainbow Ends" (British Photoplays).

Olaf Hytten has been booked by Sid Jay to play heavy in "The Wonderful Story" for Thompson.

Muriel Pointer is playing Betty Blunders in "Where the Rainbow Ends" (British Photoplays).

Kenelm Foss went to France last week to get "local colour" for his next Thompson production, "The House of Peril."

Fred Glover is playing a leading part as Joseph Flint in "Where the Rainbow Ends" for British Photoplays.

CAMERAMEN should read the details of the Kinema Club, on Page 8, and send for invitations to the meeting, on Sunday, October 16, at 2.45 p.m., in the Court Picture Theatre.

DIRECTORS should read the details of the Kinema Club, on Page 8, and send for invitations to the meeting, on Sunday, October 16, at 2.45 p.m., in the Court Picture Theatre.

Ellen Terry is to play Buda in "The Bohemian Girl" for Alliance.

Julie Kean is playing in "All Roads Lead to Calvary" for Thompson.

Jimmy Brough is playing for Broadway productions in "Football Daft."

C. Aubrey Smith is to play Devilshoof in "The Bohemian Girl" (Alliance).

Muriel Gregory plays an important role in "Sweet Genevieve" for Masters.

Phyllis Shannaw is playing lead for Arthur Rooke in his Davidson production.

B. Cave Chinn plays in "Where the Rainbow Ends" for British Photoplays.

Ivor Novello's part in "The Bohemian Girl" is to be that of Thaddeus, the hero.

D. R. Overall-Hatswell has been playing lead in "Sweet Genevieve," a one-reeler for Master.

Vesta Sylva plays Will-o'-the-Wisp in "Where the Rainbow Ends" (British Photoplays).

Kathleen Vaughan, is playing an important part in "Pickwick Papers" for Ideal.

Lorna Rathbone is at Hoe Street, playing for Thompson in "All Roads Lead to Calvary."

Audrey Stafford plays Matilda Flint in the British Photoplays production "Where the Rainbow Ends."

Victor McLaglan has returned to the studio again after a week's holiday. He is to play for Davidson.

Gladys Cooper has been engaged by Harley Knoles to play Arline, the heroine, in "The Bohemian Girl" (Alliance).

Constance Collier returns to the screen in "The Bohemian Girl" (Alliance), in which she will play the Queen of the Gypsies.

Gertrude McCoy has been playing for South African Productions in Johannesburg, but expects soon to be returning to this country.

Bert Wynne is back from the Isle of Wight, where he has been securing exteriors for "Jessica's First Prayer" (Seal), and is now working on interiors at Kew.

Frank Canham has been ordered a complete rest by his doctor and he is under a specialist for his nerves. This explains why he is not working on the present Thompson productions.

— IN THE LABORATORY

LAUSTE

exists, then the chief of laboratory must point out these facts to the cameraman, who, I feel sure, in conjunction with the able assistance of the director, will smooth the dark-room work to conform with the quality expected from them, yet keeping the director's ideal aim in view.

This can easily be adjusted between cameraman and chief of laboratory, as being both interested in the art—they both depend upon the screen for their handicraft.

Here is a concrete case where union of method and opinion will certainly tend to improvements in quality. All that remains is for each to work using the same formula—in exposure and development—and one will soon observe the vast improvement gained.

Now, it is up to the chief of laboratory to carry out an equally conclusive test with each scene—in making the positive—by running off a printing test. This method settles for once and always the best printing light and best developing factor or time, a careful record being kept on cards specially printed for the purpose, and kept religiously with the negative to which they belong.

Naturally, the effect desired is solely controlled by the subject in hand. Some scenes may require a strong exposure and short development, while others may require a weak light and long development to make it more plucky, while probably the whole five or six reels may go through on the same light or very nearly so. Now, assuming the above has been carried out to the satisfaction of all concerned, think of the vast improvement that can be obtained by firms having several directors working. By installing unit dark-rooms, fully equipped and staffed for each director, where all his negatives could be developed, printed and toned, or tinted, as he desires, on the lines above suggested, all the dark-rooms being under the control of chief of laboratory, each cameraman and director could work in an atmosphere of independence, knowing full well that the staff is not worried about having to turn out thousands of feet of release stuff while the master copy of a new production is being done in between, without regard to the director's ideals.

The dark-rooms should preferably be situated near the studio, so that as soon as a scene is finished, or several, they can be sent for development, and quality ascertained before the set is struck or artistes discharged. The slight extra cost of this system would be small compared with the results which would be obtainable.

TYPING—'Phone Regent 4747

"SPEEDAC" STENOGRAPHIC BUREAU

41, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.1.

Usual terms. Typing all classes: Authors' MS., Film Scenarios a speciality under expert supervision. Write, 'phone or call for quotation.

Proprietor—P. F. Buckle—Dictation Room.

BASIS OF THE KINEMA CLUB

The Formation Committee has now completed its recommendations for the formation of the proposed Kinema Club, and these are given below. They will be considered and discussed by a general meeting of all directors, artistes, scenarists and cameramen, which will be held in the Court Picture Theatre, at the corner of Tottenham Court Road and New Oxford Street, on Sunday, October 16, at 2.45 p.m. prompt.

Name of Club.—The following names have been suggested:—Shadow Club, Lotus Club, Kinema Club, Anima Club, Focus Club, Iris Club, Pan Club, Kinema Art Club.

Object.—The primary object of the Club is to cultivate the fraternal spirit among those engaged in the artistic side of British film production. It is further suggested that sub-committees be formed for the furtherance of sports and the provision of legal and medical assistance if required.

Membership.—Restricted to directors, artistes, scenarists and cameramen.

(a) Ladies to be admitted to membership on the understanding that distinct and separate quarters are provided for them with a main room for general (mixed) intercourse and refreshment.

(b) Bona-fide kinema journalists to be admitted as Associate Members, but to have no voting power.

Constitution.—To be on the basis of the constitution of such clubs as the Garrick, Savage and Green Room.

Qualifications of Membership.—(All applications for membership have to pass the Qualification Committee).

(a) ARTISTES.—All recognised screen actors and actresses to be eligible for admission. Each application will be rigorously judged on the merits of the individual by the Qualification Committee, the ruling policy of which will be to make the Club as exclusive as possible, and to prevent undesirables, either amateurs, supers or screen-struck, getting in.

(b) DIRECTORS.—Directors who have been responsible for the direction of at least six productions; Assistant Directors and recognised Art Directors with twelve consecutive months' experience as such shall be eligible, subject to passing the Qualification Committee.

(c) SCENARISTS.—All Scenarists who have had at least five scenarios accepted within the three previous years and all Scenario Editors who have held such position for more than six months to be eligible, subject to passing the Qualification Committee.

(d) CAMERAMEN.—Any Cameraman with a minimum of two consecutive years' experience as a Kine-Cameraman (studio or topical) shall be eligible, subject to passing the Qualification Committee.

Subscriptions.—Those joining within one month of the inauguration of the Club be admitted to full membership on payment of an annual subscription of Three Guineas, and such members shall be admitted free of entrance fee. Those elected after that period shall be admitted on payment of an entrance fee (to be determined later) and a yearly subscription (to be determined later).

Members may be admitted to Life Membership on payment of Twenty Guineas.

Associate Members, on payment of One Guinea per annum, free of entrance fee.

Finance.—To inaugurate the Club on the best possible lines it is necessary to start off with a fund of £1,000, this to be secured either by Vice Presidents' subscriptions, twenty Life Members or 300 ordinary members.

General Meeting.—All are urged to be present at the meeting on October 16 (see above) to discuss these recommendations and assist in the inauguration of the Club.

Signed.—Eille Norwood, Rex Davis, Sydney Paxton, Bertram Burleigh, Arthur Walcott, George Ridgewell, Duncan McRae, Fred Paul, William J. Elliott, Adrian Brunel, George Woods-Taylor, Alfred H. Moses, Frank A. Tilley.

FILM SLANDER CASE

In the King's Bench Division, on Wednesday last, before Mr. Justice Rowlatt, a slander action was heard in which parties in the film industry were concerned, the plaintiff being Simon Dupaic Abrahams, of 1, Alexandra Mansions, West Hampstead, who had been employed as travelling manager and cashier to the Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., and he sued Wm. L. Folkard, 4, Regent Street, W. (known as Maurice Elvey), of the Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Temple Road, Cricklewood, for damages for an alleged slander uttered on November 20, 1920. The defence was a denial of utterance of the words alleged.

Mr. Heddon, in opening the case, said that damages were claimed for alleged slander. Plaintiff was the travelling manager and cashier of the Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., and the words complained of were said to have been uttered to persons who were still employees of that company, and who had been subpoenaed to give evidence. These people were Paul Berger, the photographic manager of the company, Joseph Grossman, the studio manager, and Jeffrey Bernard, the managing director.

The plaintiff was appointed travelling manager and cashier in respect of a tour in France for the purpose of making a film, "A Gentleman of France." The defendant, Mr. Folkard, who was known as Maurice Elvey, was directing the production, and plaintiff and defendant were in the touring party, and they went to Aurrillac.

There was trouble between the plaintiff and the defendant from the beginning, the arrangements that the plaintiff made for the party were constantly interfered with by the defendant and a lot of dissension resulted.

Mr. Justice Rowlatt: Could you not make a film of "A Gentleman of France" without going to France?

Counsel: That I do not know; but I think it was necessary to get a suitable place where the light was good, the scenery suitable, and there was the necessary "local colour."

Counsel proceeded to add that Mr. Abrahams experienced much difficulty by reason of the upsetting of the arrangements made. When they got to Aurrillac the defendant said the place was quite unsuitable, and at greatly increased expense the party went to Nice, where there were alleged to be joy-rides to Monte Carlo, etc., and plaintiff (it was alleged) was asked to pay unnecessary expenditure out of the assets of the company.

The party returned on November 18, and on November 20 there was a meeting at the studio at Surbiton, at which the affairs of the tour were reviewed. In the course of that meeting a communication was made to the plaintiff by Mr. Grossman and Mr. Berger, and as the result of that the plaintiff consulted his solicitors. The plaintiff's complaint was that the defendant used the words: "He (meaning plaintiff) has been receiving illicit commissions and wilfully wasting the firm's money."

The plaintiff was dismissed from the firm's employment, and he now claimed damages.

Simon Abrahams, in his evidence, said he was demobilised from the Army in May, 1919, and he entered the employment of the Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., in December, 1919.

Joseph Grossman gave evidence that he was the studio manager in the service of the Stoll Company, and was now present on subpoena from both parties. At the meeting in question there was a general discussion with regard to the tour, the finances were gone into, and it transpired in the discussion that Mr. Elvey had had brought to his notice by one of his assistants that a certain amount of commission had been returned by a French firm. The commission was supposed to have been returned by one of the French firms from whom horses had been hired, and the matter had originated by Mr. Elvey saying it was a French custom to return commissions. They did not look upon that in France as a corrupt practice. The name of the plaintiff was not mentioned in connection with this commission business, and no mention was made of any irregularity on the part of the plaintiff.

Mr. Berger was next called, and he deposed that the defendant first raised the question of the commission, and made a remark about Mr. Abrahams not being capable enough for the job. Mr. Elvey was asked if he suggested that plaintiff was dishonest, and he said "No." Witness said that the discussion about money matters did not concern him, and he did not interest himself much. He remembered Mr. Elvey saying they could have saved money on commissions, and that he believed commissions had been returned, but he did not say to whom.

Jeffrey Bernard, managing director of the Stoll Picture Company said the conversation about the commission was started by Mr. Elvey. In a general discussion about the tour witness made bitter complaints of the expenses incurred, and Mr. Elvey said he remembered occasions when Mr. Beverley, an assistant, had been offered the return of commissions by French firms, mentioning that that was quite a usual thing in France. Leading out of that, witness put a leading question to Mr. Elvey to the effect, "You don't suggest Mr. Abrahams is dishonest?" To this Mr. Elvey replied that Mr. Abrahams was too much of a fool to be dishonest.

Peggy McCall, the scenario editor, was also called, and at the close of the plaintiff's case Mr. Justice Rowlatt said no slander had been proved. Judgment was entered for the defendant with costs.

Fill in this Form and post it to the Hon. Secretary, c/o this Office.

I desire to be present at the GENERAL MEETING of the KINEMA CLUB.

Name.....

Address.....

Will you also send notice of the Meeting to

Name.....

Address.....

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES

XV.—CLIVE BROOK

After five years' fighting Clive Brook took up a stage career in August 1918. He played two tours with "Fair and Warmer" and then accepted a years' contract with Reandean.

Under this management he played lead in "Over Sunday," at St. Martin's Theatre (his second part on the professional stage) and in "Just Like Judy." He also created leads in two provincial productions for Reandean.

He subsequently played lead with Iris Hoey in the sketch "Hurbury Pearls," at the Coliseum, and the principal provincial halls. He was featured in his first film, "Trent's Last Case," in July 1920, and since then has temporarily relinquished a career on the stage, of the most exceptional promise, to play in "Her Penalty," "Kissing Cup's Race," "Loudwater Mystery," "Daniel Deronda," "Sportsman's Wife," "Christie Johnston," "Sonia," "The Experiment," and "Shirley."

He has been connected with films for only fourteen months.

SCREEN COMEDIANS

by MILTON ELMORE

Are Stage Comedians Natural Screen Comedians? In my opinion, they are not; for, whereas the stage comedians have the assistance of dialogue and music for their interpretations of the characters enacted, the screen comedians have no such aid, and must rely upon the chances afforded by the scenario and their mimetic powers.

There are instances of comedians showing great versatility and adaptability both on the stage and before the camera; but in these cases the comedians have been not merely comedians for either the stage or screen, but earnest students of both branches of art. They have learned that the exaggerations of facial expression which have scored to the anticipatory guffaws on the stage convey very little on the screen where the action must be quickened to save the audience from boredom. Similarly, the light comedian minus witty dialogue and mannerisms is the hopeless inanition of what should otherwise be a frank impersonation of character.

The best screen comedian is he who by his mimetic powers can convey to his admirers by so little as a single gesture the ideas or thoughts which would be conveyed by dialogue spoken from the stage.

I have met comedians, with not much stage experience, who seemed to me to be born artistes, and after giving them the chance of exhibiting their abilities in the studio have found them to surpass the trained and schooled variety. The passive and impressive qualities which should be the great assets of screen comedians are seldom found in those that have migrated from the stage. Those that are not hampered by theatrical traditions as a rule seem to be most suited for the parts allotted.

YOUR CORNER LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

WHOSE FAULT?

On perusing the pages of your very excellent weekly dated September 17, I noticed therein an article written by a gentleman named M. P. Prout, whose work I have yet to see on the screen. I hope this gentleman is aware that the "loss of moulding" in an artiste's face might just possibly be the very splendid work of the present-day printing establishments.—BASIL W. G. EMMOTT.

BAR DUD FILMS

Have you noted the public disfavour with which many imported productions, so-called "comedies" especially, have been viewed lately? Similar stuff on the speaking stage would, I am convinced, quickly "get the bird," but the silver sheet has no feeling.

It is a great pity, but many good pictures are ruined by a senseless, plotless, what I would term "get-rich-quick" production, and, although this sounds revolutionary, it is about time they were outed.

What criticism does the above-mentioned rubbish get from the British public before it is foisted on it? I have noticed myself how these films are received, and I have no hesitation in saying that with the slightest stimulus the public will boycott them. It is evident that the directors responsible are not out to keep picture making a fine art, and that is why I used the phrase "get rich quick." We criticise our own work harshly enough, and yet we allow the market to become glutted with films that bore one to tears.

I would like to see a system evolved whereby the general public would be enabled to show their favour or disfavour of a certain type of film. At the present time they are handicapped for reasons which you will quickly see yourself. If your valuable paper could do anything in the matter the effects would be far reaching both for British films and British picturegoers.—H. C. NEWTON.

A CONTRADICTION

In your issue of September 24 it is stated by International Artists Films that Will Howse photographed "The Man who Forgot" for Harma. I, myself, was entirely responsible for the photography in that production, with the slight exceptions of a retake of one scene after I left Harma, and a few titles and stills.—PHIL ROSS.

PUBLIC AT FAULT

As one who has a great deal of interest in the production of British films, I most emphatically protest against various daily papers publishing in their columns articles entitled "What is the matter with English films," etc., and thence following a discourse on the failings of the British film director in general.

I wish to state in my humble estimation that the fault with our films lies not with the director, but with the British public. We are all well aware of the public prejudice against a well-known boxer at the present time, and a similar campaign is going on against British films. The public not only very gingerly supports the films for the most part, but are continually grumbling on the lack of English, Mary Pickfords, etc.

At one of the best cinemas in London, a week ago, two extra big films were being shown, one a picturisation of one of Dickens's works, produced by an English company, and the other an American one. Despite the fact that even to the crudest of minds, that in the case of the American film, the plot or rather what was meant to be one had been built around the heroine—in view of her past successes—the public generally was enamoured with it, while in the case of the English film, which was far superior in every detail, it was received with silence except by a few who could appreciate it. One self-possessed critic of the films declared in a loud voice to those about him that he had never heard of the English film company, and it was therefore no good, and that I fear is synonymous with the opinion of the general British public; because a film had been produced by Englishmen it is no good. If we were in Germany I might understand this, but in England, never.

In conclusion, I wish to say that with the public's support behind him, the English director would be the best in the world, and it will be a red letter day when they realise that England CAN produce some good films.—HU FORSTER.

THE CLUB

Is a Kinema Club advisable? Most certainly, but for heaven's sake do only allow as members the real professionals—the experienced—and do not accept Jane, John and Jack only for the sake of collecting fees.

Let a member pay a small fixed fee for the year; let the engagement go through the Kinema Club, and let every engaged artiste pay to the club 3 or 4 per cent. of his weekly salary. The MOTION PICTURE STUDIO should be supplied free of charge to every member, the cost to be paid by the club. Take care that to be a member of the club means superiority—an introduction in social life.

Would not that be the most secure way to get a sound trade? This would kill the breeding of artistes like rabbits.—MARESCO MARISINI.

THE FREE-LANCE WRITER

I like your paper, and I am very pleased that you are making a point of putting forth the case of the Free Lance Writer, for there will never be any really great films until the Original Screen Play Writer is properly acknowledged and properly paid.

All the work I have sold in the past—original work, with full scenarios—has been produced as I wrote it, and, save in the case of one, where the director put some of his own stuff in, have met with success and favourable notices in the Press. (Strange to say, the bits he put in had nothing to do with the plot and were the ones that were commented upon unfavourably, which was most annoying to me, as I never wrote them.)

I also note with interest "The Scenario Market and What Producing Firms Require." Some are hopeful and some are not; the nols are the firms which seem to want to buy a story for a few pounds, place it in the hands of the firm's hack writer, or for the purpose of the director to write up the film for some special star, and so on, and the story has to take its chance and possibly be nothing like the author's theme.

I shall also be interested to hear more about the formation of a much-needed Kinema Club, and would like details of the scheme.—MURIEL ALLEYNE.

Mr. HERBERT MAULE,
Riding Master.
PUTNEY RIDING ESTABLISHMENT.
1a, Cambalt Road, Putney Hill, S.W.15.

Horses supplied to film companies: riding lessons given. Terms moderate.
Phone: PUTNEY, 1984.

The Historical Film must be accurately dressed.

• • •

We Stock Civil and
Military costumes of all known periods. :: ::

• • •

"The Call of the Road"
and "The Old Curiosity
Shop," with their wealth
of costume, detail and
characteristics of their times, were dressed by us.

• • •

Write to-day stating your requirements.

H. & M. RAYNE,
115-119, Waterloo Road,
S.E.1.

WEST END
BRANCH: 15, Rupert Street.

QUALITY PRINTS.

VICKERS FILMCRAFT
LTD.

89, SHAFTESBURY AVENUE, W.1.

Laboratories :

PARAGON WORKS, 229, ACTON LANE, W.4.

ALWAYS ON-TIME

'Phones: GERRARD 4045 and
CHISWICK 132

MARY ODETTE AND SCREEN ASPIRANTS

*In our last issue we published an article from the pen of Mary Odette on the question of Aspirants for the Screen, and some of her conclusions are contested by M. P.
Proust in the following reply:—*

I do not like the spirit at the back of Mary Odette's article. There is more latent screen acting talent outside the film business than in it. It would be a serious thing for British film production if it were not so. The difficulties in the way of any outsider, though endowed with all the qualities that go to the making of a super screen actor, are, unless they have influence, practically insuperable.

It may be quite natural for Miss Odette to wish to make a tight little trade union of screen acting—the film trade consists virtually of a series of such unions—but she ought to realise that other people only ask for the facilities, opportunities, or influence which determined her first appearance on the screen.

The business in which I have been engaged since before Miss Odette was born constitutes a veritable mill in which the few that are suitable, photographically and histrionically, to become screen actors are easily sifted from the tens of thousands who would be useless.
Only a small proportion of that few are "aspirants." Casting is confined to those inside for two reasons: it saves trouble, and the other method necessitates a quality of judgment not within the calibre of many directors.

Screen acting differs from stage acting in that those who have ability or talent in that direction usually display it clearly the first time they are given an opportunity. The principal exceptions
I have noticed are recruits from the legitimate stage where improvement consists in unlearning their legitimate "stageyness," which takes effort and time. I could name very glaring instances of both cases.

I have taken particular interest in Mary Odette, and if she is not above taking a hint from one who has been a student of film technique since she was an infant in arms, the question whether she improves on her earliest performances will depend (apart from increasing maturity) not on the number of films she acts in (and from each of which she may "learn" something), but on the competency of the directors into whose hands she allows herself to fall.

The recognition of latent film acting talent is an art in itself, and the director who possesses it will find it not only commercially profitable but artistically elevating—inexpensive but in no sense
"cheap." And anything that elevates film art—and the untapped sources of it are greater and more numerous in this country than any other—should not be excluded by any species of trade-unionism.

K.C.S. MEETINGS

The second meeting of the winter session was held at Patmac's on Friday last, when some very important business was negotiated. The election of the members and a new secretary was one of the most important items.

The President suggested that Kenneth Gordon, a very energetic member of the society, should be elected as secretary during the absence of Geo. Woods Taylor in India.

Mr. Gordon, in reply, said that he thought that perhaps some other member would accept the post.

It was pointed out by various members the advantages that would accrue from electing Mr. Gordon as secretary, and after some persuasion he ultimately agreed to accept the post. In thanking the members for electing him, he modestly mentioned that while he did not think he could work harder than Mr. Woods-Taylor had done, he would do all within his power to be a worthy successor of Mr. Taylor's.

During the evening a toast was drunk to George Woods-Taylor, who in his reply stated that he would only like to see the success of the society. The one great trouble at present was in getting members to turn up. He hoped to see this trouble overcome.

It was suggested that when the Kinema Club came into existence, the solution of getting members to turn up at the meetings would be solved. All were agreed upon one point, that was that there was not sufficient enticement being offered to bring the members along. The Club would solve this difficulty, for there the members could meet and discuss subjects any hour of the day.

On Friday, October 13, arrangements have been made for members to give a ten minutes lecture on "The Failures and Successes of a Topical Cameraman," and this should certainly prove a very interesting and amusing discussion.

It is requested that members note that the inauguration meeting of the proposed club is fixed for Sunday, October 16, at 2.45 p.m. All members of the K.C.S. are invited, and will be able to gain admission to this meeting by virtue of membership of the society. At this meeting the recommendations of the Formation Committee will be submitted (see page 8), which will be composed of all directors, artistes, cameramen and scenarists, and applications for admission to membership accepted.

FILMING THE ARCTIC

At a meeting of the Executive Council of the British Society of Engineers, on September 23, at Sheffield, it was decided to commence preliminary preparations for the Arctic expedition by airship, proposed in 1919 by Capt. C. Frobisher, Secretary of the Society. The airship will be of the S.S. type, commonly known as the "Blimp," which will be specially adapted for a flight of 1,300 miles, which will be the distance from Spitzbergen to the North Pole and back. The route will primarily be from London to Christiana (first base), from thence to North
Cape (second base), from thence to Bear Isle (relay base), and finally to Spitzbergen (the base of the Expedition). It is estimated that 50,000 feet of kinematograph films will be taken during the Expedition. Preparations will be commenced from March to July, 1922, and the Expedition will be carried out during July, August and September, during which time the sea around Spitzbergen will be open for maritime navigation.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES,
UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for
Kinematograph Productions. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

CAMERAMEN AT WORK

I hear that there are complaints about the laboratory work just now. It was the subject of a very heated argument at one of the after-the-meeting talks the other Friday night. One member was anxious to have the laboratories use distilled water. The cost of procuring the water, he claimed, was quite small, compared with the results that would be obtained.

Congratulations to the new Secretary—Kenneth Gordon. Everyone knows that the work of the Secretary is not light, and anyone who takes up such a position must certainly be out for the good of the Society.

George Woods-Taylor will be starting on his long journey to India shortly after these lines appear in print. He is the second member to go away in the last few weeks. "Bee" Mason is on his way to the South on the Quest, Mr. Taylor will leave on the Kaiserin on October 14. He is taking with him a colour camera and a black and white, which his firm, Cinechrome, is supplying.

Mr. Moses is always first in helping brother members. The vote of thanks that the meeting accorded him when he bought a camera specially to present to an unemployed member of the Society, who thought he could make some money if he had a camera, was well deserved. I know Mr. Moses will not be pleased to see this in print, but such things deserve, at the very least, a mention.

An interesting discussion took place at the last meeting of the cameramen regarding the small attendances at meetings. True, it is only the second meeting of the winter season, but the lack of members was very noticeable.

Is it that the members forget the meetings? This was suggested, and to remedy such a state of affairs the secretary was asked to send a weekly letter to all members, asking them to be present. Such a thing would entail a great deal of unnecessary work and expense; surely it is not essential to try such means.

Examinations for admittance to qualified membership, Associate-Fellowship and Fellowship of the British Society of Engineers, 147, West Street, Sheffield, will be held during the months of October, November and December upon electrical engineering, cinematograph installations, cinematograph operating, etc. Prospectus and particulars will be sent free on request. Candidates wishing to save expense of travelling to Sheffield must submit the name and address of some responsible person who is willing to act as examiner for the candidate and on behalf of the Society.

Kenneth R. L. Gordon started in the Gaumont dark rooms. He was responsible for the filming of the Delhi Durbar and the Balkan War in 1912. Served in the war 1914 to 1919. Was official photographer to the North Russian Relief Force, 1919-20. His latest productions are "North of the Dogger Bank," "The Law Divine," with Masters, and "Film Pie." He is now with Pathé's, and is the new Secretary of the Kine Cameramen's Society. Hobbies: Photography. Recreations: Boxing and riding.

Address: 34, Fulham Park Gardens, Fulham, London, S.W.6.

G. Albert Smith, of Brighton, the well known inventor of the "Kinemacolor" process of cinematography in natural colours, has received the signal honour of an invitation to join the Prince of Wales' party on his Indian tour. Mr. Smith, with a party of assistants, will take cinematograph pictures in natural colours of the gorgeous ceremonies prepared for the Prince throughout his tour. The pictures will be taken by the Cinechrome process, which is a great improvement on "Kinemacolor." For some years now Mr. Smith has been working with ceaseless energy on the task of perfecting his new process, and he has achieved some remarkable results. When the Prince of Wales visited Brighton in February last to unveil the Chattri, the memorial to the Indian soldiers erected on the Downs, Mr. Smith accomplished the unique feat of recording in natural colours this picturesque and impressive ceremony.

"B. T. W." writes:—"A recent issue stated that it was reported that Jimmy Taylor, of Gaumont's, was married. As usual with your information, the report was correct, and we all wish him every success in double harness. The history of the romance is known to very few. Jimmy met his wife a little over twelve months ago; and, whilst engaged 'turning the handle' in Nottingham, the production was held up while 'Jimmy' put a trunk call through to his lady love, proposed, was accepted, and the result is as reported." "TRIPOD."

CAMERAMEN. . . .

JOHN J. COX
44, Barrowgate Road,
:: Chiswick, W.4. ::
'Phone: Chiswick 294.
Cameraman for Maurice Elvey,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD
Cameraman.
AT LIBERTY for First-Class Productions.
1920 Debie Outfit.
All Coms: 4, PERCIVAL PARADE,
WORCESTER PARK.

EDWIN DAY
Motion Picture Photographer,
12, Archer Street, Piccadilly Circus, London, W.1.
Telephone: Gerrard 780.
Telegrams: "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON
Thelton House, Cambolt
:: Road, Putney Hill. ::
Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN
"GAUMONT'S,"
105, King's Road,
Kingston-on-Thames.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

FRANK CANHAM
Motion Picture Photographer.
Address: Crystal Palace Hotel,
Upper Norwood, S.E.19.

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT
GAUMONT,
:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::
Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT
EXPERT CAMERAMAN.
"The Better 'Ole" etc., "Her Benny" etc.,
"Land of My Fathers."
Offices and Dark Rooms:
2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.
'Phone: Streatham 2986.

ALFRED H. MOSES
Photographing George Ridgwell Productions.
Formerly Chief Cameraman for Thanhauser,
Norma Talmadge, British & Colonial, etc.
Address care of STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS,
Cricklewood.

PHIL ROSS
Cameraman—AT LIBERTY
Late of BROADWEST, HARMA, VANITY, etc.
19, Mayow Road, Forest Hill,
London, S.E.23.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

WILLIAM SHENTON
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address:
17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,
Boreham Wood, Herts.

HORACE M. WHEDDON,
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address
"LYNTON HOUSE,"
BOREHAM WOOD, HERTS.

JAMES E. ROGERS,
Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth
"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel
"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"
"Last Rose of Summer,"
PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

JACK H. ROSS,
LATEST FILMS:
"Wife Whom God Forgot" (Alliance).
"Love and the Whirlwind" (Alliance).
"Haigh Serial" (Astra).
FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.
All coms. to:—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Productions and Who is Working on Them

British Photoplay Productions.
ADDRESS: Devon Chambers, 28,
Fleet Street, Torquay.

FILM: "Where the Rainbow Ends."
DIRECTOR: H. Lisle Lueoque.
CAMERAMAN: I. Roseman.
STAR: West End Cast.
TYPE: Five-reel drama.
STAGE: Fourth week.

Broadway Productions.
ADDRESS: West Nile Street, Glasgow.

STUDIO: Thornliebank, Glasgow
FILM: "Football Daft."
DIRECTOR: Victor W. Rowe.
STAR: Jimmy Brough.
TYPE: Two Reel Scottish Domestic Comedy.

STAGE: Finishing.

Davidsons.

STUDIO: Lea Bridge Road, Leyton.
FILM: Not Titled.
DIRECTOR: Arthur Rooke.
STARS: Phyllis Shannaw, Victor
McLagan.

CAMERAMAN: Leslie Eveleigh.

SCENARIST: Arthur Rooke.

STAGE: Commencing.

Direct Film Traders.

STUDIO: Ebury St., Victoria, S.W.

FILM: "Four Men in a Van."

DIRECTOR: Hugh Croise.

STAR: Johnny Butt.

SCENARIST: Hugh Croise.

CAMERAMAN: Frank Granger.

TYPE: Feature Comedy.

STAGE: Fifth week.

Famous Players-Lasky

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.

STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A.
Bell, O.B.E.

FILM: "Three Live Ghosts."

DIRECTOR: George Fitzmaurice.

STAR: Anna Q. Nilsson.

STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "Perpetua."

DIRECTOR: John Robertson.

STAR: Ann Forrest.

STAGE: Fourth week.

Gaumont

ADDRESS: 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, W. 12.

FILM: "Class and No Class."

DIRECTOR: Will Kellino.

STAR: Pauline Johnson.

STAGE: Second week.

Hardy.

ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W.1.

STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isle-
worth.

FILM: "The Recoil."

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.

STARS: Eille Norwood.

SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.

CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.

STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: "The Scourge."

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.

SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.

CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.

STAGE: Casting.

Harma

ADDRESS: 16, Limes Road, Croydon.

FILM: "The Corner Man."

DIRECTOR: Einar J. Bruun.

STAR: Hugh E. Wright and Ida

Lambert.

SCENARIST: Frank Fowell.

CAMERAMAN: A. G. Franguelli.

TYPE: Comedy Drama.

STAGE: Seventh week.

Ideal.

ADDRESS: Boreham Woods, Elstree.

STUDIO MANAGER: F. A. Kendrick.

STAGE MANAGER: F. G. Knott.

FILM: "Piekwiek Papers."

DIRECTOR: Thomas Bentley.

STAR: Fred Valpe.

CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.

STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: "The Old Wives' Tale."

DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.

SCENARIST: Denison Clift.

CAMERAMAN: Geoffrey Barkas.

STAGE: Commencing.

FILM: "Shirley."

DIRECTOR: A. V. Bramble.

STAR: Clive Brook.

CAMERAMAN: H. W. Whadden.

STAGE: Third week.

Kenneth Graeme Film Syndicate.

ADDRESS: Riverside Studios, Kew
Bridge.

FILM: "M'Lord of the White Road."

DIRECTOR: Kenneth Graeme.

STAR: Dawn Meredith.

SCENARIST: Gerald Fort Buckle.

Progress

FILM: "The Lilae Sunbonnet."

STAR: Joan Morgan.

DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.

SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.

CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.

STAGE: Sixth week.

Seal.

ADDRESS: Prinees Studio, Kew.

FILM: "Jessica's First Prayer."

STAR: C. Hargreave Mansell.

DIRECTOR: Bert Wynne.

STAGE: Third week.

Sterling Photoplays.

ADDRESS: 26, Dean Street, W.1.

FILM: "The Exclusive Model."

DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.

STAR: Molly Adair.

SCENARIST: Cyril E. Murrell.

CAMERAMAN: Edward Groe.

TYPE: Two-reel comedy.

STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: "Dutch Courage."

DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.

STAR: Dorothy Peters.

SCENARIST: Alec McKee.

TYPE: Two Reel Comedy.

STAGE: Second week.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Crickle-
wood.

STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman

FILM: "A Romance of Westdale."

DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.

STAR: Milton Rosmer.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "The Lamp in the Desert."

DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.

CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Nearing Completion.

FILM: "A Lost Leader."

DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.

CAMERAMAN: Alfred Moses.

STAR: Robert English.

STAGE: Third week.

FILM: Half a Truth.

DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.

STARS: Margaret Hope, Irene

Rook, Percy Standing.

CAMERAMAN: Adolph Burger.

STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: "Froggy's Little Brother"

DIRECTOR: A. E. Coleby.

STAGE: First week.

Thompson Productions.

ADDRESS: B & C Studios, Wal-
thamstow.

FILM: "All Roads Lead to Calvary."

DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.

STARS: Mary Odette, Bertram

Burleigh, Minna Gray.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Grace

Rose.

SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.

EDITOR: John Miller.

CAMERAMAN: John Parker.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Third week.

Temple Productions.

ADDRESS: Catford Studios, S. E.

MANAGER: Maurice Edmonds.

FILM: "Some Truth."

DIRECTOR: Bannister Merwin.

STAR: A. Bromley Davenport.

SCENARIST: Bannister Merwin.

CAMERAMAN: Harold Bastick.

TYPE: Three Reel Comedy.

STAGE: Commencing.

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome,
Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone:
Kingsbury 120—Arlidre, Hyde,
London.

ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-
Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place,
Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing
2018.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD.,
Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone:
Ealing 211 and 1582—Barnopho, Ealux.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH
CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow,
E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364
and 712.

BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD.,
Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clap-
ham Park.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20.
'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PHOTOPAYS, Devon Chambers,
28 Fleet Street, Torquay.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street,
Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Wal-
thamstow.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRO-
DUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New
North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone:
Dalston 2704.

GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's
Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolouge, 'Phone
London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Harlem, Holland.,
London Office: Granger's, Exclusives,
191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone:
Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams:
Exelugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners
Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012.
Studio: Candelmas Lane, Beacons-
field.

GLEN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD., 20,
Lisle Street, London, W.C., and "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16 Limes Road,
Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and
2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst
Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone:
Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth
Walton.

IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood,
Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—
Ideal Films, Borehamwood.

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS FILM CO., LTD.,
52 Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

ISLE OF MAN FILM CO., The Manx Studios,
Isle of Man.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush
House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Crickle-wood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048
(Studio, Willesden 3293).

LAMBERT FILMS, Carlton House, Regent
Street, London, W. 'Phone: Gerr. 4040.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road
Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MINERVA FILM CO., LTD., 110, Victoria
Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shoreham-
by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham
19.

REGULUS FILMS: 48, Carnaby Street,
Regent Street, W.1.

SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isle-worth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow
212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High
Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton
2956.

SEAL PRODUCTIONS.—Prinees Studio,
Kew

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willes-
den 3293—Stollpie, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street,
Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1903—
Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street
Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Wal-
thamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGNTON PHOTOPAYS, LTD.,
Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & CO., 41-45, Craven
Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone:
Willessden 2862.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON
21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

The MOTION PICTURE

Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 19.

Saturday, October 15, 1921.

FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH MOTION
PICTURES

The LEW CODY
of the
BRITISH SCREEN

"A Perfect Male Lead"—vide Press

At Present Playing
MARQUIS
OF SALLUST

in
"HALF-A-TRUTH"
(Stoll)

3, CLIFFORD STREET, BOND STREET, W. 1.
'Phone: REGENT 1327.

MILES MANDER

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."

219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.

Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
'Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.

Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Sonia," "The Knight Errant," "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds."

Address—27 Eccleston Sq., S.W.1. Victoria 2968.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal). "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).

c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

Juvenile Leads: "Her Son," "Great Gay Road," "Lights of Home," "Land of My Fathers." Duane in "Belle of the Gambling Den" (Haigh Serial.)

OFFERS INVITED.

33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelin Foss Production), "John Herriott's Wife" and "The Breed of the Treshams"

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street. Regent 4329.

PHYLLIS SHANNAW,

Juv. Lead "Call of the Road," "The Right to Live," etc.

Will be shortly disengaged. All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour St., W.1. 'Phone: Regent 4329.

JOHN EAST.

Character Comedy. Tele: Hammersmith 1133, 14, Hilly Road, Hammersmith, W.6.

ARTISTES

FLORA LE BRETON

34, NEVERN SQUARE, EARL'S COURT, S.W.5.

Phone: Western 1936,

HAYFORD HOBBS.

Starring with African Film Productions. Late Juvenile Lead: London Films (three years), Windsor Films (two years), and all leading English Film Companies.

All coms.: Box 4514 Johannesburg, South Africa.

ENA BEAUMONT.

Leads in "The Greater Love," "The Golden Web," "All the Winners," "Patricia Brent, Spinster," "Our Girl's and Their Physique," "Settled in Full," "Watching Eyes," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. Fraser, 26, Charing Cross Road, W.C.2.

SYDNEY WOOD,

Juv. Leads in "The Warrior Strain," "Her Benny," "Ever Open Door," "Bars of Iron," "The Flame," "The Will," "Double Event," "David and Jonathan," etc.

Address—The Laurels Beverley Road, Anerley, S.E.

'Phone: Chancery 7080-7081.

MILES MANDER,

Light, Heavy and Juv. Leads. Modern, aristocratic. Extensive wardrobe. All-round athlete. Now playing Marquis Sallust in "Half a Truth" (Stoll). Disengaged Oct. 15, 1921.

Address, 3 Clifford St., W.1. 'Phone: Regent 1327.

SYBIL GRAY

Latest Films—Lead in "Missing Jewels" (Haigh Serial), White Gipsy Girl in "Corinthian Jack," Masters, Alliance Films, Ideal and Famous Players-Lasky, etc.

Address—Castle House, Hampton, Middlesex. Telephone—Molesey 89.

IRENÉE CRAVEN

LEADS.

Dignified, social sporting characters.

Three years experience.

Address—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

WALTER FORDE

Comedian.

ZODIAC FILMS, LTD.

All coms.:—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,

15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.

'Phone: Hornsey 1784.

ARTISTES

MILTON ROSMER'S

forthcoming releases.

"GENERAL JOHN REGAN" (Stoll)

"ROMANCE OF WESTDALE" "

"THE POINTING FINGER" "

"WOMAN OF NO IMPORTANCE" (Ideal)

'Phone - - - - - Langham 2243.

16, WEYMOUTH ST. W.1.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House,"

"Wuthering Heights," etc.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

'Phone: Regent 4329

DICK WEBB

(Juvenile)

GAUMONT, MASTERS, FAMOUS PLAYERS-

LASKY, BRITISH PRODUCERS.

180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc. STOLL FILM CO.

All coms.: c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1.

LIONELLE HOWARD.

AT LIBERTY.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

ADELINE HAYDEN COFFIN.

Sympathetic Mother, Grande Dames.

Character Parts, "Mrs. Gatty," in "Christie Johnstone" (Broadwest), "Margaret Howe" in "Beside the Bonny Briar Bush" (Lasky).

55, Campden St., Kensington, W.8.

Tel.: Park 3623.

CLIVE BROOK

24, Hyde Park Square, W.

Padd. 2868.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

POLLIE EMERY.

DISENGAGED.

"Peach" in "The Case of Lady Camber" (Broadwest), "Auntie" in "Nothing Else Matters" (Welsh Pearson), "Madam Tourterelle" in "Perpetua" (Famous Players-Lasky British Productions).

7, KENYON MANSIONS, QUEEN'S CLUB GARDENS.

HARDING STEERMAN,

Characters of Distinction,

56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,

24, Cleveland Road

Barnes, S.W. 13.

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
85, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 19

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

Oct. 15, 1921

The Patron's View.

WORKING in the studio, one does not always see the wood for trees, and it is useful to get an entirely detached view now and then. If this view is that of the picture theatre patron, it is especially useful, and we have received some notes which may be of benefit to everyone engaged in the production of pictures. Our correspondent says that the days when people would walk into a kinema on the off-chance of seeing a film to their liking appear to be gone for good, and he opines that this is a very good thing. "The majority of patrons do not read the Trade papers, and, consequently, do not know the theme, plot, or location of a particular film. A mere high sounding title is no longer sufficient to extract the price of admission. A large well shown poster is, I suppose, the best business getting method in existence at the moment, and if I might offer advice to exhibitors as to bill showing, it would be: 'Keep down the posters of indoor scenes as much as possible.' There is nothing bores the public so much as six reels of indoor stuff, and I know from experience the value of scenic background in any picture.

There cannot be any doubt that American directors who persist in sending over films with the now very familiar backgrounds, are slipping backward in the race for business.

* * *

British Directors.

I WOULD urge our own directors to continue their praiseworthy efforts and give the public films taken in our own glorious beauty spots. The kinema after all has a priceless asset in being able to roam the whole country to present reality to the eyes of the public, yet some directors still persist in making a fetish of artificial settings and claim great credit because they were done in 'the studio.' I think it is quite clear, therefore, that the ordinary picturegoer does not get a fair chance to know anything about the nature of the films showing in his district, and the only permanent solution is to utilise to the full the enormous power of the daily and weekly newspapers.

Newspapers and Trade Shows.

THE present brief description of Trade shows in the daily papers has no beneficial effect, as by the time the film is released the remembrance has passed. But who is going to bear the brunt of the advertising? Not the director. When he has disposed of his film to the renter, he turns his thoughts to fresh fields to conquer. Not the exhibitor. Possibly he is only showing the particular film for three days, and again he may be drawing attention to a particular film to the benefit of his competitors. No, it is to the renter chiefly to show more initiative in this respect. After all, it is his property, and the exhibitors are to some extent only and women—engaged in production have a personal interest in doing their very best. The sensational serial is in many places already hardly tolerated, and its doom seems only a matter of time. The American triangle film with wonderful boudoirs is frankly yawned at, but strange to say reasonable slapstick comedies, are and apparently always will be, welcomed. A good clean plot, with scenes of Devon, Cornwall, Scotland, and English villages as backgrounds—that is what the people like. Something of the freshness of the country, with those wonderful touches of real life as they know it.

* * *

Advice to Exhibitors.

NOW just a few words before I settle down to a winter's amusement. When I pay my money I like to be told if it is 'standing only.' I like the torch to show me to my seat without treading on everybody, pushing down a row without a vacant seat, or stumbling down some stairs. Could you have a plan in the vestibule showing the prices and position of the seats? Let us see where our money will take us. Don't rush the program through.

Turn up the lights after the big picture, so that we can sort ourselves out, and see where our friends were packed away when we came in. It also gives friends an opportunity to obtain seats together for the remainder of the performance. Keep that musical interval; everybody likes it."

You are Invited.

AT the eleventh hour we desire to emphasise the importance of the presence of all who are eligible at the meeting that is being held to-morrow (Sunday) in the Court Picture Playhouse. For years the British film industry has been labouring under the disadvantage of having no central meeting place for social and general purposes and the inauguration of the Club on Sunday will remove this disadvantage. This meeting will sound the keynote to the future of the Club and for this reason we urge every artiste, director, scenarist and cameraman to be present and to apply for membership.

SCREEN VALUES MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"Roses in the Dust" (Gaumont) possesses an interesting story which has been well screened, thanks to Captain Calvert's skilful direction and the excellent work of a very clever cast. Dramatic values have been well sustained and the motor smash scene is a thrill of the highest merit. The scenes of the Henley Regatta is a triumph for Basil Emmott, whose photographic work is beyond reproach; in several instances it is of superlative quality. Continuity at the first is a trifle faulty and one of the scenes on the houseboat should be cut.

"Mr. Justice Raffles" (Hepworth) should be one of the biggest successes of the British screen. It has a pleasing story and has been well directed, despite the fact that there appears to have been three fingers in the directorial pie. Henry Vibart's characterisation of the elderly man is a perfect piece of artistry and the rest of the cast, including Gerald Ames and James Carew, are quite good. The cameraman is to be highly complimented on the excellence of his work, which is of a high order throughout.

"Christie Johnstone" (Broadwest) does not find its strong point in its story which is of the thin unreal kind that are fairly general with "period" stories. However, the production is saved by the human material—artists, director and technical staff have conspired to make this a pleasing film. Stewart Rome is up to his usual standard while Gertude McCoy submits a performance evidencing artistic restraint and sympathetic insight into the character that cannot fail to add to her already well-established popularity. Norman McDona'd's direction bears signs of great research into the facts of the period and infinite attention to detail, the result of which is to make the production one that is perfect in this respect at least.

his agents. The renter knows exactly where and when a film is being shown all over the country, and can always use space to his own advantage as well as the exhibitor's. It is only another form of publicity. To put it gently, I think some of the really beautiful and attractive designs and advertisements which adorn the Trade papers are being thrown away. Exhibitors as a class are practical hard headed business men, and do not book pictures without a good idea of their merit (or should not do so), but the same illustration in a local paper with the name of the house showing the picture might have wonderful results. Possible renters and exhibitors could come to terms as to the cost, as most kinemas have a bald unattractive advertisement already in local papers.

* * *

What They Want.

WITH regard to productions, the general picturegoer is critical, but tolerant. He knows that all men—

ARTISTESVICTOR McLAGLAN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman,
Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road"
and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

GREGORY SCOTT,2, KENYON MANSIONS,
WEST KENSINGTON,
W.MARJORIE VILLIS.

Exclusive to Harma Photoplays, Limes Rd., Croydon.

ARTHUR WALCOTT.Character Parts,
57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.
197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph.: Battersea 21.CRISPIN HAY,

c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,

12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,Character Actor. Offers invited.
114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.SCENARISTS*ELIOT STANNARD

Scenarios.

85, Holbein House, Sloane
Square, S.W.1.

Tele.: Victoria 497.

COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,
:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.

7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11

('Phone: Park 2945).

GERARD FORT BUCKLE

Scenarios.

'Phone: Regent 4747.

41, Glasshouse Street, Regent
Street, W.1.SCENARISTS*GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
62, Foxbourne Road, Balham, S.W.17.WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,Kinedramatist, Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.IRENE MILLER,Novelist, Journalist, Scenarist,
10, Arundel Gardens, W. 11, or Bramlins.CYRIL E. MURRELL,Scenarist—Comedy,
Address: c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.MURIEL ALLEYNE.Screen Playwright.
Plays sold to Pathé, Hepworth, Barker, M.L.B., Clarendon, Universal, etc. Windsor Ho! Amersham, Bucks.HELEN & THOMAS BLIZZARDOriginal Story and Continuity Writers.
Address M.P. STUDIO.DIRECTORS*BERT HALDANE,

Producing Comedies

BARKERS STUDIOS, EALING.

'Phone No.: Ealing 211.

WILFRED NOY,Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
"The Face at the Window."Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.F. MARTIN THORNTONAddress—84, LEESIDE CRESCENT,
GOLDERS GREEN, N.W.11.Latest Productions — "BELONGING,"
"FRAILTY," "PREY OF THE
DRAGON," "GWYNETH OF THE
WELSH HILLS," "LAMP IN THE DESERT."GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer

THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.

Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,
Hoe St., Walthamstow, E.17.ADRIAN BRUNEL,Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone: 5280 Paddington).RICHARD GARRICK,Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.ALBERT WARD,Producer—Open to accept engagements.
3, Ranelagh Grove, S.W.1.STUDIO MANAGER*JOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—

B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,

Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone: W'stow 364."

DIRECTORSHUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer
of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H. MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE,"
"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
"SETTLED IN FULL,"
"ALL THE WINNERS,"
"WATCHING EYES,"
"BLUFF," etc.All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

PUBLICITYFRANK J. WOOLFPublicity Representative,
British and Colonial Kinematograph
Company, Hoe Street, Walthamstow,
Telephone: Walthamstow 364.

THIS SPACE TO LET

£2 10 0 for 13 insertions

FILMA PUBLICATIONS announce that the yearly directory"LA TOUT CINEMA" for 1922 will shortly be published.

Edited with the greatest care this important work will contain information on the Kinematograph Industry throughout the world.Producers, Directors, Artistes, Scenarists and Cameramen are requested to send biographical details for insertion, free of charge, to

EDITIONS FILMA,

3, BOULEVARD DES CAPUCINES, PARIS

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

A five-reeler founded on fact:—
Artiste with small part takes the director out to dinner: More prominent part in next picture: Takes studio manager out to dinner: Studio manager impressed with artiste's histrionic (or gas-tronomic) abilities: Artiste is starred in next production. . . . MORAL: The short cut to stardom is via the Trocadero!

* * *
A. E. Coleby, the latest to join Stolls, is now at work on "Froggy's Little Brother." One day last week, a baby was brought to the studio, and pending its "call" for a scene, the infant was provided with a cosy little nest in the well of a sewing-machine in the wardrobe, which is very close to Mr. Coleby's room. Here, for some time, the baby slept peacefully; but it awakened bad-tempered and yelled lustily. Mr. Coleby stood the din for some time; then, thoroughly distracted, he dashed out into the corridor and indignantly demanded of Joe Grossman, the studio manager, "What wretched kid is it that keeps kicking up that horrible row?" Joe, with a broad grin, promptly responded, "Froggy's little brother, of course!"

* * *
In an Indian newspaper which Emile Laust sends me I notice that tenders are invited from firms in India for the exclusive rights of producing the official film of the Prince of Wales' Indian tour. What I am particularly pleased to notice is that full facilities for work will be provided, and what I am particularly displeased to note is that the successful firm "must employ a first-class English or American expert." I consider that someone ought to tell Sir John Wood, the Government official who signed the advertisement, that there is no need to employ American experts on such a job. English cinematographers are fit to rank, at least equal, with Americans for efficient work. I wonder what George Woods-Taylor thinks about it all, now that he has been appointed official cinematographer to the Indian Government.

* * *
The cast in "Class and No Class" is working beautifully with the solitary exception of the parrot, who, in spite of a long association with the theatrical profession, has refused to take kindly to film work, and has made a point of violently attacking Will Kellino at every conceivable opportunity.

The parrot is quite well known to members of the profession, being the property of Dave Carter, and an inhabitant of the Vaudeville Club. His wild habits are so well known at the club that when Kellino asked Dave if he could borrow the parrot for a week, he was informed that the staff at the Vaudeville Club would be very glad if he kept it for a month! However Kellino is putting the parrot through his scenes in the quickest possible time, so as to get back to the normal atmosphere of peace and quietness in the studio. The parrot has certainly disgraced himself by comparison with the little rough-haired terrier which has a conspicuous part in the play, and is most beautifully behaved.

* * *
I see that Gerry Ames has been delivering himself of his views on British film acting to the Evening Standard in reply to M. Hervie. "One would be loth to suggest that the attacks upon British films repre-

OUR LETTER LIST.

Letters await the following at the offices of this journal. A stamped addressed envelope should be sent with applications. No charge is made for the use of this service.

Esme Kavanagh.	Barbara Everest,
Faith Bevan.	Walter Forde,
Irenée Craven.	Maud Cressall,
Daisy Burrell,	Elizabeth Brandt,
Winifred Sadler,	Beatrice Chester,

ON THE FLOOR With BERT WYNNE,

Describe him as one of our most cheerful directors—and that's Bert Wynne.

All day long he wanders around with a smile on his face, joky and chatty with everyone. There is none of the aloofness about him that some directors seem to think necessary. He does not believe that he is "the greatest thing that ever breathed"—he is just Bert Wynne. And he gets far better results from only being himself than he would if he started bawling and bullying his artistes.

Not that the artistes try to take advantage of his cheeriness. The reverse is the case.

He likes to rehearse his "shots" until they are perfect. Time after time he goes through a scene, taking care to see that everyone on the set knows exactly what to do.

If from repetition of the scene the artistes start to get mechanical, he will send them away to rest, and then have another try later. By this means he has very little trouble when the call "Lights" comes, for each artiste is well acquainted with everything that takes place in the shot by the time the camera has started whirring.

His cheerful relations with the artistes make him a very popular man, not only with the artistes, but with the whole studio staff. Each man or woman who works for him does the very best possible—it is always their ambition to please him, and by this means alone he makes his films.

sent anything in the nature of deliberate propaganda; but it is really a pity that the British film is not allowed to get along upon its intrinsic merit, whatever it may be. At any rate, there is no need for us to pursue a policy of belittling our own craftsmanship. I would go further, however, and say that the British director has really every occasion for pride in the quality of work that has been turned out here in recent years."

* * *
And he makes some further observations which can be construed into an answer to the notorious Chaplin criticisms when he says:—"So far as actual photographic knowledge, skill, and appliances are concerned, there is nothing in the matter of expert knowledge that the Americans know of which we are ignorant, and similarly all the lighting and other appliances accessible to them are accessible to producers here; while the same amount of care and energy is expended in our films as in America." With all of which I heartily agree, and would add that our proportion of inferior films is no greater than America's—we are inclined to forget that whereas we see all British films, only a few of the American products reach this country. There is a lot of American junk that we see: there is much more that we do not see.

* * *
Am delighted to learn from Felix Orman, Blackton's literary director, that he has recovered from his recent operation. He is now back in town.

* * *
I very much regret to hear that Cecil Humphreys is temporarily relinquishing film work to return to the stage and is to play for Oscar Asche in "Cairo" at His Majesty's. I sincerely hope that his absence from the studio will not be too prolonged.

* * *
After spending several days on location in Paris, Stewart Rome has travelled on to Turin, where he is now busily engaged on interior scenes for his new film, "The Predicament of J. K. Hogan." It took the party three hours to pass the customs at the Italian frontier, but this is only one of the difficulties Rome has encountered. He cannot speak Italian, and none of the cast or company could speak English. An interpreter has now been installed, however, and Stewart pursues his adventurous career without a hitch.

"MEGAPHONE."

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT, Kinedramatist

HAVING JUST COMPLETED A TWELVE MONTHS CONTRACT TO WRITE EXCLUSIVELY FOR STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, IS NOW AT LIBERTY TO CONSIDER COMMISSIONS OR OFFERS.

QUALIFICATIONS :

15 years experience as Actor and Journalist.

10 years world-travelling, using carefully trained powers of observation and psychology throughout.

11 years PRACTICAL STUDIO EXPERIENCE as ACTOR, PRODUCER and SCENARIST.

RECENT RECORD (1920-21) :

Includes adaptations of : "BLEAK HOUSE," "Beyond the Dreams of Avarice," "COLONEL NEWCOMBE," "The Ever Open Door," "The Channings," "A Gentleman of France," "Innocent," "THE SHERLOCK HOLMES" SERIES (14 2-reel Episodes) and "THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES," "A Lost Leader," "The Place of Honour," "The Shadowy Third," and "GENERAL JOHN REGAN," etc., etc., etc.

(Also author of "How to Become a Film Actor" and many articles in Trade and Lay Press. Lately Editor of "The Photo Playwright" and Screen Correspondent to "The New Commonwealth.")

SOME OPINIONS :

"... your manuscript of 'General John Regan.' I like it very much, and feel I shall make an excellent picture out of the story" HAROLD SHAW.

"I was absolutely delighted with your scenario of 'The Copper Beeches,' and assure you I think you have done wonders with a difficult subject."—MAURICE ELVEY.

GEORGE A. BIRMINGHAM (Canon Hannay) having read Wm. J. Elliott's adaptation of his novel and play "GENERAL JOHN REGAN," writes:—

"... I think it's an extraordinarily clever piece of work. The writer evidently worked much more on the novel than he did on the play, and has introduced some touches of his own which make me regret I didn't think of them . . ."

From the "THE BIOSCOPE" review of "BLEAK HOUSE" "Mr. Elliott has done his work with skill, and one is grateful to him not only for what he has preserved, but for what he has omitted."

"THE DAILY EXPRESS" reviewing "INNOCENT" say : "A poem in pictures . . . a photoplay of refinement and merit . . . !"

"THE KINE. WEEKLY" Reviewer says of "THE PLACE OF HONOUR" : "William J. Elliott's continuity is clear, straightforward and telling."

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT has a few really good ORIGINAL STORIES which he will be pleased to submit to anyone interested.

Wm. J. ELLIOTT, "Ashley Warren," Oatlands Chase, Walton-on-Thames.

LAZY FILM ARTISTES!

Andrew Soutar's Sweeping Refutation of French Director's Unfair Criticism

Recently René Hervil, the French director, stayed some time in this country obtaining "local colour" for his next production, and on his return to France said: "All the English actors are terrible lazybones. When one enters a studio one finds no installation, no desire for work, no lighting arrangements, no ateliers." We intended to reply, on behalf of the industry of which the Motion Picture Studio is the mouthpiece, but instead reprint extracts from an excellent article that Andrew Soutar, the novelist, who has had several of his books filmed, had in the Sunday Chronicle.

Mr. Soutar says:—I am going to defend the British film actor. He has not his equal in the world, although I cannot say as much for the women in this country who figure as heroines on the screen.

As far back as the early development of the film play, the Americans did not hesitate to declare that the British actor had a finer presence and a finer conception of his art than any other actor in the world. That is why certain British actors, whom I could name, are earning as much as five hundred pounds a week in New Jersey and Los Angeles.

When I refer to British actors I do not necessarily mean actors who had first achieved success on the ordinary, or speaking stage, as it is called. Some of the best film actors in the world were hopeless when it came to speaking a line.

My own experience is that the actor who has mouthed his words for years is not particularly brilliant when asked to rely on pantomime for his effects. He is too "stagey," too conscious of a narrow environment. He lacks initiative, and seems always to be listening for the voice of the prompter.

But take men like Stewart Rome, Gregory Scott, Frederick Groves (a perfect leading man for somebody one of these days, if only he is properly directed and given scope), Crauford Kent, Norman Trevor, and Conway and Godfrey Tearle—you will not find better men for the screen. Unlike the American "stars," they never lose their sense of dignity; they are steadily lifting the picture play above the criticism of the biased and jaundiced.

As for being lazy, I have known some of these actors work in the open or the studio from six in the morning till six at night, and then go to the theatre and play an exacting part in a stage play.

I wish I could write so hopefully of British actresses. The British actor has seen at least the possibilities of art in the picture play. The British actress has looked at it in the same frame of mind with which she looks at her mirror in her dressing-room. Vanity sits on her shoulder.

I should say that Monsieur Hervil has had the misfortune to meet only the flotsam and jetsam that is to be found around the doors of most studios all over the world. They style themselves actors, but a little inquiry will show that they are merely drifters from the dance halls and night clubs—young men whose only legacy from their parents are good looks and a mass of patent-leather hair. They lounge about the agencies and the studios, and if they don't get an engagement in the "crowd" they attract a little attention to themselves by decrying the industry as a whole.

There isn't a country in the world, not even excepting America, that has such opportunities as England. We have incurred the contempt of the foreign markets. Why? Because the right people have not yet come into the business with their money and their sense of art.

America began in the same way—with the huckstering Jews, who could not read the titles on the manuscripts they bought; pushers of fruit barrows and ice cream vendors; scenarists, whose literary studies began and ended with backwood thugs, and vampires with rolling hips and no morals. The British industry began with, and still retains, many who could not read the alphabet, and as imaginative as a sardine in a tin can. These people are passing.

The new force is asserting itself, but it has to wade through a sea of mud in order to lay the foundation stones of an honest, straightforward industry.

The hole-and-corner film company that inveigles fools into speculating in a rotten concern, the fraudulent film agencies that take exorbitant fees from the vain and fulfil none of their promises—these have to be exterminated before the industry in this country can hope to take a stride forward.

There is hope for the industry. We have good light in certain parts of Scotland. There are some studios on the South Coast where they are actually working with daylight—there is no artificial light of any description. And yet, when developed, there is no trace of that bugbear, static; static is a cloud which the eye of the camera picks up, although the human eye sees nothing but glorious atmosphere.

My opinion is that when that right company takes up the film industry in this country, America—yes, the whole world—will bid for the great film. It must be a super-Griffith film.

When the real people take up the industry in this country and understand that the director is an artist, and is not to be hampered in his art by a parsimonious Jew leaning over his shoulder and reminding him that so many feet of film have been exposed, we shall produce a picture that will sell to America for something like £100,000.

We have the actors; we can find the Pickfords; we have the scenery. Give us the money.

I may say that any company starting with a capital of £100,000, and understanding its business, will invade the American market with its first picture. And where that picture goes others must follow.

KINEMA CLUB.

To-morrow, at 2.45, in the Court Picture Playhouse, at the corner of Tottenham Court Road, the Club will be officially inaugurated. Colonel A. C. Bromhead, managing director of Gaumont's and President of the Incorporated Association of Kinematograph Manufacturers, will preside. All artistes, directors, assistant directors, art directors, scenarists, scenario editors and cameramen are hereby invited, and applications for membership of the Club will be accepted at this meeting. The full scheme of the Club appeared in our last issue, and reprints of this will be distributed at the meeting. The meeting will commence sharp to time, and it is requested that only essential discussion be indulged in, as the building has to be vacated by five o'clock. At this meeting, also, particulars of excellently furnished Club premises will be announced.

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES

XVI.—MILES MANDER

Born in Staffordshire, and originally destined business career, Miles Mander's thoughts turned early farther afield, and on leaving McGill University, Montreal, he joined a musical comedy company and toured the U.S.A.

Thereafter he travelled extensively all over the world, being at various times sheep-farmer in New Zealand, picture theatre proprietor in Canada, taxi-driver in Australia, financier, motor agent and boxing promoter, in which sphere he was eventually successful in matching the famous negroes, Jack Johnson and Sam Langford, which great attraction was nullified by the outbreak of war.

At another period he studied music in Dresden and Berlin, and was war correspondent during the Turco-Italian war in Tripoli. Mr. Mander has written various short stories for magazines, as well as film scenarios and various poems.

He is an expert motor racer, having driven in many big continental road races, and was one of the first devotees on Brooklyn's track. All the motor racing which was such an exciting feature of the latest Master production, "Love at the Wheel," was done by him in true Wallace Reid fashion.

Mr. Mander is a pioneer aviator, having made the first historic flight ever made at Brooklands and Hendon, and he also possesses the Royal Aero Club's certificate as a balloonist.

He served during war from August 1914 to April 1919, and is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, Royal Colonial Institute, and an Associate Fellow of the Royal Aeronautical Society.

First posed before the Kine. Camera in 1916 while on sick leave, in crowd work and, liking the experiment, adopted it as a serious profession after the war, rapidly gaining the position of some eminence which he now holds. Amongst the many notable successes he has appeared in may be mentioned "Place of Honour," "The Rank Outsider," "Sherlock Holmes," "Scandal in Bohemia," "Speed," "The Temporary Lady," etc. He is now engaged on the part of the Marquis of Sallust in "Half a Truth" for Sinclair Hill, a part for which he would appear to be cut out.

He has been rightly called the "Lew Cody of the British Screen," as he has specialised with conspicuous success in this light-heavy, male vamp type of part, although he has also played juvenile leads with equal ability.

He is essentially aristocratic in appearance; is, in fact, considered one of the best-dressed artistes in the profession, and possesses what is still more important, the knowledge of how to wear his clothes. He is keenly interested in all branches of the trade, and hopes shortly to go over to the United States to get further insight into the business. His features bear a suggestion of good-natured cynicism, which gets right over the screen, and which is so rarely found.

FULL REPORT OF THE CLUB MEETING IN NEXT ISSUE.

Where they are and —————

A. St. A. Brown is turning for Gaumont on "Class and No Class."

George Bishop is playing Dragon King in "Where the Rainbow Ends."

Frank Dane has been playing the part of "St. George" (British Photoplays).

A. F. Frenguelli is touring for Einar J. Brunn on his Harma production "The Corner Man."

Maurice Elvey has finished "A Romance of Westdale" (Stoll), and is casting for "The Passionate Friends."

Kenelm Foss' next production is "The House of Peril," which will be made under the title "The Chink in the Armour."

Josephine Lovett, the wife of John Robertson, has completed the scenario of "Peter Pan," which her husband is to direct for F.P.-Lasky.

Cyril Smith, in addition to playing a part in Gaumont's "Class and No Class," is acting as assistant to Will Kellino, who is directing the production.

Alma Taylor and Cecil Hepworth are en route for America, where they intend to visit New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Vancouver and Montreal.

James Knight has had a tempting offer to play juvenile lead for a well-known producing firm, but his contract with Harma precluded him accepting it.

H. Lisle Locoque has completed his Torquay shots for the British Photoplay Productions' first picture, "Where the Rainbow Ends," and has now taken the company to Surrey.

Billie Bristow, the publicity expert and late of Broadwest, is still acting commissioner to undertake personal and Press publicity for artistes and directors. Broadwest Building, in Wardour Street, is her headquarters.

David Hawthorne has an important part in "Class and No Class" (Gaumont).

Frank Granger is cameraman to Hugh Croise on "Four Men in a Van" (Direct).

Percy Standing is with Stoll in a leading part in "Half a Truth."

Molly Adair is working on "The Exclusive Model" for Sterling.

Alec McKee is responsible for the scenario of "Dutch Courage" (Sterling).

Leslie Eveleigh is in charge of the photographic work on the present Davidson production.

Walter West has bought the Princes Studios at Kew Bridge, and for the moment has let them to Seal.

Jack Andrews is busy at the Ebury Street Studios directing the production of "Vanity Fair," a weekly pictorial.

Cyril E. Murrell is responsible for the scenario of "The Exclusive Model," the first Sterling production just completed.

Fred Raynham has been engaged by Maurice Elvey to play an important part in his next Stoll production, "The Passionate Friends."

Marjorie Villis is resting at her riverside bungalow at Wraysbury, after having completed a very strenuous part in "Love in the Hills."

Edward Groc is in charge of the camera work in "The Exclusive Model" and "Dutch Courage," which Georges Dunstall is directing for Sterling.

C. Hargreave Mansell is back at Kew Bridge from the Isle of Wight, where he has been acting in exterior scenes for Seal's "Jessica's First Prayer."

George Woods Taylor sailed for India on October 14 by the Kaiserin to take the official kinematograph record of the Prince of Wales' Tour there for the Indian Government.

—EXPLOITING—

Over two months ago we referred to the agency that was then being formed "to provide work in the studios for ex-officers and their wives." At that time, Captain Norris Irven, who presided, said: "We hope to obtain a membership of 2,000 people, and we shall charge 5 per cent. on earnings for the jobs we find for them."

Referring to this statement, "Megaphone" said: "With all the sympathy in the world, I find myself unable to agree with this movement. Just as the building trade workers refused to allow 'dilutees,' so ought studio workers. I would like to tell Captain Irven that there is not enough work in studioland for the present population of that land—immigrants thereto will make matters worse for all concerned."

The events of the past two months do not justify any alteration in the view expressed by "Megaphone." There are still hundreds of workless artistes with experience. The daily Press last week published photographs of a queue of such that formed outside the B. and C. studios. And the bogus cinema schools are flinging dozens of ignorant screen-struck fools on the already glutted market.

The agency referred to above has now issued its rules. It has christened itself "The Services Cinema Society," and its object is "To assist ex-Service men and women to obtain work in connection with the film and kinema trades, and to assist them with their work therein." It is intended to enlist as members "all men and women who have served with any of H.M. Forces, or in any Government Department or munition factory, or who participated in any form of war-work during the Great War."

And then, as if this was not sufficient to include everybody (for who did not "participate in any form of war-work during the Great War"?), the Society will include as full members "any member of the family of a person qualified for membership by war service."

So that it can be safely assumed that the so-called "Services Cinema Society" is not for the exclusive benefit of ex-officers, as at first announced, but for anybody and everybody who is screen-struck.

It simply amounts to this: on the strength of pleading the cause of the distressed ex-Servicemen, this Society will endeavour to Milton Rosmer has been engaged to play lead in "The Passionate Friends" (Stoll).

TITLING SPECIALIST

Expert in handwritten work.

English or American Style.

G. T. SHEARMAN, Bentinck Road, Nottingham

what they are doing

Norman Whitten is one of the directors of the "Vanity Fair Pictoria".

Artistes are invited to note that Fleet Photoplays (British Photoplay Productions) has removed to Castle Circus, Torquay.

W. Courtney Rowden is directing the production of single-reel subjects for Master, and is casting continually.

Bernard Dudley has completed his direction of the Harma production, "Love in the Hills," which is now ready for Trade showing.

K. B. Hartley has organised a new Irish producing company, The McConnell-Hartley Film Advertising Service, which will make use of Irish and cross-Channel artistes.

William J. Elliott, the scenarist, having completed a twelve-months' contract to write exclusively for Stoll, is now at liberty.

L. G. Egrot is chief cameraman for the Graham-Wilcox company, now working at the B. and C. Studios on "The Wonderful Year."

Mary Odette, whose latest release is "The Breed of the Treshams," wishes it known that all communications and enquiries should be addressed to her sole agent, Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1.

George H. Beranger, the well-known American director and Griffith graduate, has joined Ideal's directorial staff and will direct the production of "Sinister Street."

Edward R. Gordon, having finished "The Haigh Serial" for Masters, is engaged on the preliminaries of some two-reelers at the same studios.

Evelyn Brent is starring in "The Silver Lining" (Granger-Binger). This is a circus story in which she plays opposite Adelqui Millar. She has had to refuse another from F. P. Lasky owing to this contract.

Stewart Rome will be leaving Italy within the next two weeks to play for Thompson Productions.

Walter Forde is continuing his series of Walter Forde comedies.

Cyril Percival has been specially engaged to play with Victor McLaglan in the new Davidson production.

Ian Beverley is assistant to Maurice Elvey at Stoll's.

Mlle. Valia is in the lead in "The Passionate Friends" (Stoll).

Martin Thornton is completing "The Lamp in the Desert" for Stoll.

Victor McLaglan is playing lead opposite Phyllis Shannaw in a new Davidson production directed by Arthur Rooke.

Lilian Hall Davis and Olaf Hytten are playing with Graham Wilcox Productions, not Thompson Productions, as stated last week.

Isobel Jeans is playing the vamp part in "Romance and Reality" for Lambart. She is the daughter-in-law of Dr. Wakefield, the Bishop of Birmingham.

Bert Darley has been engaged for an indefinite period to play leading juvenile roles for Milo Films. He has just returned to London after a lengthy tour all over the country for Milo.

Einar Bruun had a very fine setting in "The Corner Man" this week. It represented a West End fashion salon with mannequins supplied by a well-known London and Parisian firm. Ida Lambert was the leading mannequin, and Eric Barclay took part in the scene.

Cora Goffin, who plays lead in "Romance and Reality" for Lambart Films, is a migrant from the stage. She created something of a sensation by producing her own ballet at the Palladium—at the age of 10. She afterwards played in the title roles in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" at the Playhouse; Alice, in "Alice in Wonderland," at the Comedy, and in "Sweet Lavender" on tour.

—PATRIOTISM?—

introduce into studioland any and every one who is screen-struck badly enough to part with £5 as entrance fee and five shillings annual subscription, to say nothing of Captain Irven's statement that "we shall charge 5 per cent. on earnings from the jobs we find for them."

The personnel of the "Services Cinema Society" comprises the names of twelve gentlemen who each claim to have served in the late war. Until we have made further enquiries we cannot say good or ill in respect of eleven of them, but one is the head of a school of kinema acting.

As yet the "Services Cinema Society" does not appear to have any actual functioning existence. Captain Irven says: "I am going to start a Service Cinema Society, and I am going to make it a success." So it is all in the future—it all depends on the number of screen-struck folk who are willing to part with the necessary Five Guineas.

The gallant Captain says: "I ask for Club rooms, employment advice, and information bureaux, and a comprehensive wardrobe to be maintained by the co-operation of members and the help of friends." He also invites donations—"The Society shall be entitled to receive any donation, either to assist its general objects or for any specific purpose, and the Council may organise any schemes for collecting money or which is expected to raise money for the Society."

So that prospective members are invited to pay five guineas, find the club rooms, provide the "employment advice and information bureaux," contribute to the "comprehensive wardrobe" and donate towards the Society's "general objects or for any specific purpose," to say nothing of taking round the hat generally.

And in return they are not even guaranteed a guinea job!

We will return to this subject in a subsequent edition, but take this opportunity of pointing out a few elementary facts: Film studios are overcrowded with well trained and experienced artistes: Film work demands more than the training of any "Cinema Training Centre," or even the qualification of being a member of a family another member of which worked in a munition factory: Every half-fledged specimen of the screen-struck fraternity increases the difficulty of professional artistes (most of whom served loyally and actively in the war) in securing engagements.

TYPING—'Phone Regent 4747

"SPEEDAC" STENOGRAPHIC BUREAU
41, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.1.

Usual terms. Typing all classes: Authors' MS., Film Scenarios a speciality under expert supervision. Write, 'phone or call for quotation.

Proprietor—P. F. Buckle—Dictation Room.

Malvina Longfellow has now finished her work on "The Night Hawke," which is being cut and edited.

ROUND STUDIOLAND

There has not been such a bad slump in the producing end of the business as among the exhibitors, and a tour round the studios has revealed signs of increased activities. New companies are being formed, fresh capital being invested, new productions being cast, and the old-established producing units working at top pressure.

F.P. Lasky.

John Robertson is on the closing stages in "Perpetua," in which Ann Forrest is the star, while George Fitzmaurice is in finishing "Three Live Ghosts." During the next few days two new stories will be decided on, and casting will then proceed.

Stoll.

Five companies are at work. Maurice Elvey is cutting and titling "A Romance of Westdale," and also working out the details of the cast for his next production, which is to be based on H. G. Wells' "The Passionate Friends." Milton Rosmer, Mlle. Valia and Fred Raynham have been engaged for the leads, and other parts have yet to be cast.

George Ridgewell is working hard on "A Lost Leader" and on the preliminaries of the new series of Sherlock Holmes episodes. Eille Norwood will play the detective in these, but other parts have yet to be cast.

Martin Thornton is finishing off "The Lamp in the Desert," and his next production is not yet announced.

Sinclair Hill has not a great deal more to do in "Half a Truth," while A. E. Coleby is experiencing some difficulty in casting—with the help of Billy Saunders, the casting director—all the parts for his "Froggy's Little Brother."

Davidson.

After some weeks of inactivity, work has started again at the Lea Bridge studios, this time with Arthur Rooke as the director. He has now finished casting, and actual work on the floor is proceeding.

Gaumont.

Captain Calvert is doing no actual floor work at the moment, but Will Kellino is in the thick of "Class and No Class." It is possible that Calvert will be getting busy again shortly.

Hardy.

There is great activity at Worton Hall, Isleworth, where, in order to obtain the necessary scenic effects for Hardy's forthcoming production, "The Scourge," a special 16th Century street is being constructed. This is no ordinary canvas property street, but a real wood construction with genuine tiles, glass in the windows, bolts on the doors, etc. It is to be over a hundred yards in length when completed, and so should admit of several fine old-time street scenes being taken. Great attention is being paid to the historical details, and to ensure architectural accuracy, experts have been consulted. Sam Hardy informs us that ex-Servicemen are being exclusively employed on the work. William Stack is to play lead in "The Scourge," and Geoffrey Malins is directing the production of this concurrently with supervising the cutting and assembling of "The Recoil."

Harma.

Bernard Dudley is now finishing the cutting and assembling of "Love in the Hills," and Einar J. Bruun holds the floor with "The Corner Man," which is nearing completion.

Ideal.

Four companies are at work. Denison Clift is now in his third week on "The Old Wives' Tale," and Tom Bentley in his fourth on "Pickwick Papers," while A. V. Bramble is on location with "Shirley."

A new director has been secured—George Beranger, the D. W. Griffith graduate. He is to direct "Sinister Street," for which he is now casting.

Thompson and Graham-Wilcox.

Two distinct companies are working at Hoe Street. Kenelm Foss is busy with "All Roads Lead to Calvary" for H. W. Thompson, while a new company—Graham-Wilcox—is to be responsible for "The Wonderful Story."

Owing to the fact that there is already an American film called "The House of Peril," Kenelm Foss has altered the title of his next Thompson production from "The House of Peril" to "The Chink in the Armour."

Variorum.

Jack Andrews and Norman Whitten are working at Ebury Street on the "Vanity Fair Pictorial."

Edward R. Gordon is getting ready for directing some two-reelers, and W. Courtney Rowden is directing one-reelers at the Master studios. Casting is being done continuously.

Guy Newall is casting for his next George Clark production.

Rising Sun Productions is a new concern using Barker's studio. Bert Haldane is directing two-reel comedies for it.

Albert Brovett is directing comedies at the Tuilerie Street studios, at Hackney, for Albert Brovett Productions in which Amy Verity is to star.

Seal is now completing interiors for "Jessica's First Prayer" at the Kew Bridge studios.

Artistic is casting for its next production. Address, 93-95, Wardour Street.

GETTING THE NEWS

Bert Wynne, H. W. Millward and D. Davies studying all the news in Studioland's Official Organ.

WITTY AND SKITTY

The Saings of People who Matter and People who do not Matter.

"I will endeavour to make my position and attitude perfectly clear."—Lord Beaverbrook.

"The cameraman should have much more to recommend him than a supple wrist."—Captain Lambart.

"Films are the world's Esperanto. With or without captions a well-made film is capable of telling its story to every nation under the sun."—Lionel Phillips.

"In a fairly wide and lengthy experience of film production this is the first time I have ventured to answer any of my critics."—Kenelm Foss.

"There is rarely any proof that particular pictures are assets rather than liabilities."—Sir Oswald Stoll.

"The 'sameness' in screen stories is reducing audiences. . . . Where is the director who will give us romance?"—"Sports Echo."

"British directors are seeking no favours. They desire that the best films in the world should be shown in this country, but they also desire that British films should be shown in all countries of the world."—J. Brooke Wilkinson (Board of Film Censors).

"My work, they tell me, has improved."—Maurice Elvey.

"The film is in its infancy."—Sir Harry Lauder.

"A great deal of prejudice exists in the minds of some people in favour of American as against British pictures, but the American picture of to-day is not what it was."—Guy Newall.

"My hope never soared beyond the narrow environment of the theatre. I never dreamed in my wildest moments of the vastly wider publicity of the screen."—Eille Norwood.

"Sir Oswald Stoll is an ideal chief, and has given me the best advice a man could give."—Jeffrey Bernerd.

"The films that are being produced to-day are benefiting from the efforts of the old London Film Company in the early days."—A. E. Newbould, M.P.

"The English kinema star who is getting fifty pounds a week is fortunate."—Arthur Applin.

"In addition to having a crude, though wholesome, morality, the screen has much of the exuberance of youth."—A. E. Newbould, M.P.

FOR HIRING COSTUMES

W. H. Thornton, of H. and M. Rayne, who has been managing the hire department of its Waterloo Road branch, will next week go to its new premises at 15, Rupert Street, where he will be acting in the same capacity but with much greater scope. The new premises are just off Shaftesbury Avenue.

FULL REPORT OF THE CLUB MEETING IN NEXT ISSUE.

SUBTLETIES AND SLEDGEHAMMERS

The old idea that film artistes lead a gay life should be dead by now. The only bit of fast-living they see is when a night-life café set is used in a production.

Values are ever changing. An oil painting, according to the daily Press, was sold last week for £5,000. The public will pay more for stills than for moving pictures, evidently.

Directors are hard to please. They make an artiste do all the things he can't do. Then they're satisfied.

EILLE NORWOOD'S POETIC OUTBURST.

"Lies Skerlock Holmes beneath the soil,
He still remains disarmed, destroyed;
But thanks to Stoll and Conan Doyle,
He still remains in celluloid."

LUCK is ever waiting for something to turn up.

LABOUR will turn something up.

Talking about a recent film of a non-descript class, a charlady got her titles rather mixed. "Yes, mum," she said, "there's a big keryou outside the kinema to-day; they've got the Vicar of Wakeford there."

At the Stoll studios the other day it was discovered that the water tanks had run dry. Now, who is the teetotaler on the Stoll staff who practises this form of hoarding?

PERVERTED PROVERBS:—"Many call at the studios, but few are chosen."

We were at lunch at a certain studio last week where the pièce de resistance was sausage. And very "bready" sausage at that. But the poor butcher had succeeded in making both ends meat.

At the same studio, by the way, we were left wondering which was the more difficult to secure—a bit of butter or a butt of bitter.

From a Trade paper: "At times the trouble in the film industry seems to be all over." And at other times it seems to be all over the industry.

If you are content to live on hope you'll soon die of mal-nutrition.

In Sunday's paper was an account of the case of a man at Peterborough who had just cut his wisdom tooth at the age of 91. So that there is still hope for the film censors.

APT SAYINGS OF GREAT MEN: "Act well your part; there all the honour lies."—Pope.

Some studio managers are so mean that if they killed two birds with one stone they'd want the stone back.

Below you will find our idea of what should be said of the Arbuckle case by all in the film industry from now until it is settled:—

PLAYERS OR PUPPETS?

There are two schools of directors: one believes in giving the artiste full play, and the other believes that the artiste should surrender his personality and screen-genius to the director, who would then put the artiste through the scenes in exactly the same way that a performer pulls the strings to the marionettes. Bertram Burleigh gives his views on this subject.

Certainly the actor or actress depends to a very great extent on the director; but I feel that the player should be a puppet in the hands of the character he is playing, rather than leave everything to the director.

In order to interpret a part—no matter how small—successfully, the actor must sink his own personality in that of the character he is creating for the screen. During the time he is in the studio it is essential that he forgets himself, and feels that he is not Dick, Tom or Harry as So-and-So, but that he is actually So-and-So.

And it is in helping a player to become a certain character that the director assists or hinders. A good director can create such an atmosphere around his artistes, can impress the story and characters so indelibly on the players' minds, that they become, for the time being, the actual characters in the story living again.

The reason why some directors fail in obtaining the response which they require from the players is, I think, because they do not take sufficient pains to create atmosphere and to help the artistes to grip the parts.

On the other hand, the reason why some artistes make far bigger successes when working under some directors, whilst they are failures under others, is because the artiste and director are not in sympathy. Perhaps the director does not understand the artiste, or vice versa; then, no matter how long a time is spent over the film, the acting will never be a success while director and artiste are working at cross purposes.

Great films are made when leading players and directors get together, read and re-read the characters, and the artistes are assisted into their parts by the director—the man who guides the characters through their screen lives.

The artistes playing in a film are like a team of horses harnessed and waiting to be attached to the coach (the story). The director holds the reins; but so long as the harness is not attached to the coach, the reins may be pulled this way and that, yet no progress will be made. As soon as the straps are hitched to the coach, however, there is a tightening of the reins; the response from the team is instantaneous, and the coach is launched on a successful run.

YOUR CORNER LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"VANITY FAIR."

We would like to point out that "Vanity Fair" is and has been producing solely here (at the Ebury Street Studio) since August 4. "Vanity Fair" is the new weekly pictorial, which undoubtedly you have already seen advertised in the Trade papers. Our distributors will be Walturdaw, and the two directors for this item are Jack Andrews and Norman Whitten.—VANITY FAIR PICTURES, LTD.

BRAMLINS.

There seems to be some misapprehension as regards the relationship between Bramlins Film Agency and Bramlins Industrial Films, Ltd. The two concerns are entirely separate.

It is true that I was one of the promoters of the Industrial Company, and as "Bramlins" has become a name known and recognised in the film trade, the directors of the Industrial Company have, with my consent and licence, been allowed to use the registered name of "Bramlins."

I would also like to add that Bramlins Industrial Films, Ltd., will not produce dramatic motion pictures. The objects of the company are concerned with commercial films only, the films not necessarily being intended for screening in the public halls or theatres.

I am personally still in control of and managing Bramlins Film Agency—the Industrial Company has a different personnel.—JOHN PAYNE.

A REPLY AND AN INVITATION.

Basil Emmott asks whether I, in my experience, have mistaken bad printing for bad lighting. The answer is, in the phraseology of those incomprehensible mammals, the politicians, "in the negative."

But, apart from the fact that I have examined the actual negatives and witnessed the actual lighting, many films are shown in which the exteriors are good and the interiors bad, and even Trade printers do not put experienced men on the exteriors with instructions to leave the machine to a boy as soon as the interior sections start.

Why does not Basil Emmott give readers of the Motion Picture Studio the benefit of some of his knowledge? What does he think of Barden lamps? Does he think there is anything wrong with the present systems of artificial lighting?

He can rely on me, for one, to be thoroughly interested, and not to judge his remarks in the light of what his experience has been, but what it has taught him, and not to resent what I cannot refute.—M. P. PRINT.

MARY ODETTE REPLIES

I was very interested in Mr. Prout's reply to my article, and I quite appreciate his point of view, although it is quite contrary to my own small experience of filming.

But I must say it is not quite fair of Mr. Prout to put a personal construction on my article, as he apparently does, when he speaks of "it being quite natural for Mary Odette to wish to make a tight little trade union of film acting." Perhaps the fault may be mine, nevertheless Mr. Prout has quite missed my point, and I assure him that my article was written in a purely impersonal manner, and that "the spirit at the back of the article," which he so dislikes, exists only in his imagination.—MARY ODETTE.

Mr. HERBERT MAULE, Riding Master.

PUTNEY RIDING ESTABLISHMENT,

1a, Cam'el Road, Putney Hill, S.W.15.

Horses supplied to film companies: riding lessons given. Terms moderate.

Phone: PUTNEY, 1984.

CAMERA TESTS

by ALBERT WARD

If it is a test to discover how an individual photographs, then it is a real test, inasmuch as it is the object of the director to discover the photographic value of an individual face from different angles, because it is well known to every experienced director and photographer that no matter how beautiful a woman may be there are certain poses in which she will lose the indefinable charm of her personality, just as at certain angles her particular line of beauty may be lost.

But if the meaning is: are camera tests a real test of the individual's histrionic ability for the films I am inclined to say, except in a few isolated cases, that they are not.

Man is an emotional animal of degree, and to illustrate this let us take, for example, an audience at a theatre or cinema. Every emotion, every scrap of dramatic action will find a responsive chord in every member of the audience—to a degree—according to their individual temperaments. Those most affected by this simulated emotion will feel themselves quite capable of expressing exactly the same emotion under exactly the same conditions, quite forgetting that their ability to do so is wholly governed by the degree of dramatic instinct with which they are endowed.

Can we expect to find in the trembling embryo who faces the ordeal of camera and arcs an artiste in any way capable of being entrusted with anything of a part? There are, no doubt, a few geniuses about, but it would take too long for any producing firm to take tests to find them. Then, it may be queried, how are we to fill the ranks as in the course of time our present artistes drop out? The only solution seems to be a reputable school conducted by an experienced man who, discovering a pupil with marked ability, should have no difficulty in getting a camera test with a director—and then we might say that camera tests are REAL tests.

BUMBLE & BEADLE

by WALTER FORDE

I notice an article in the daily papers of October 4th wherein it states a director was arrested and fined for allowing an artiste appearing in a film production to dress in a London police constable's uniform.

Surely if such a character can appear on the stage of any leading theatre during the acting of a play, it should be possible for a film director to be permitted a similar privilege?

Do his Majesty's judges know that over one million pounds per annum are sent to America and other countries outside England in payment of cinematograph films? After five years of war English directors are getting into their stride and are attempting to capture the world's film markets, so surely we who are making pictures here in London will not be penalised by this additional hardship, as under this ruling it will be impossible for any film director to take an exterior scene wherein a police-constable appears.

On the other hand, in Los Angeles, California, members of the regular police department are allowed by the police authorities to appear in uniform and make extra money in their off-hours by acting in films. This is one reason why American characters who appear as policeman in the American films always look real.

England, heretofore known as the land of personal liberty, is rapidly becoming more under the heel of petty officials than was Germany before the days of the war.

This is a question that calls for vigorous action on the part of the Manufacturers' Association, and I trust that the trade papers which represent our great industry will vigorously join in protest against this foolish restriction, and that the matter may be brought before Parliament, and arrangements made so that permits can be granted to responsible directors, who, at some future date, may absolutely need an exterior scene wherein a police officer in uniform appears.

SCENARIO WRITING.

by ELIOT STANNARD

Writing in the Author, Eliot Stannard draws the attention of authors to the fact that it is the habit of publishers and agents to offer the film rights of books in a way that is highly detrimental to the author. He says that while scenario editor to a British producing firm "as many as twelve works at once came from an agent or publisher. They were tied together like firewood and had apparently been chosen without the smallest consideration of their suitability or of the type of work produced by the firm. Each novel was accompanied by a typed synopsis which was obviously the work of a totally incompetent person. These synopses showed neither an appreciation of the author's work nor the slightest knowledge of film requirements, but merely succeeded in reducing the author's plot to the baldest and crudest summary. Such synopses, instead of arousing the scenario editor's interest, succeed merely in giving him a totally false impression of the works submitted,

"The author can do away with the incompetent synopsis writer once and for all by writing the synopsis of his own work; he can insist that his agent or publisher shall submit his work separately or in company with other novels from his own pen, and he can ensure his works only going to suitable firms by insisting that no work be sent to any firm without his approval and sanction. . . .

"Film manufacturers select their subjects well ahead, in order that there may be no breakdown in their output, and it may be taken as a general rule that they are obtaining the kinema rights of works which they do not intend to produce for at least six months. The author should therefore take into consideration the period of the year in which his story must be produced and prevent his agent from submitting

"Owing to climatic conditions it is safe to assume that the manufacturer produces during the winter months stories that can be told almost entirely in interior sets, or stories the exteriors of which are placed in the South of France, Italy, Egypt or Morocco.

Scenes of the Fire of London in Blackton's "The Glorious Adventure."

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for Kinematograph Productions. 'Phone—London Wall 7568

A FACTORY OF ART

The Ramifications of a Modern British Film Studio

There is always a special interest—fascination even—about anything in the experimental stage, and the most up-to-date motion picture studios in this country are certainly in that stage.

It is not many years ago when a British studio was simply a large greenhouse or the odd corner of a building mainly used for a totally different purpose. To-day the Stoll studio at Cricklewood is already more like a small city than a greenhouse, but a city in which, in spite of the fine organisation under the management of Joe Grossman, the habits and customs have not yet become rigid or merely mechanical, as they would be, for instance, in a merely industrial factory of a similar magnitude. Films in this country are not yet turned out like sausages.

Printing and Developing Department.

As a matter of fact, although the building has been in use as a studio for more than a year, some of the subsidiary departments are not yet completed. Until recently, for instance, films have been sent for developing and printing from Cricklewood to the Stoll studio at Surbiton; but now a start is being made of completing the whole process on the premises.

When the negative has been developed, given its cold and acid bath, wound from the developing frame on to the wooden drums, with a diameter of about eight feet on which it is whirled round in the drying room heated by electric radiators, it is generally examined by the director as well as the cameraman before it is passed for printing.

There are also dry-cleaning machines, made by Debie, in which the film is brushed by an endless band of miniature chamois leather dusters.

There is quite a large theatre with a silver Lawrence screen for a rough run off, and a well fitted titling room. There is also a large and well equipped still department.

Wardrobe Department.

It is interesting to note that the people in charge of the many and very varied departments, while they are all business people carrying out their duties, almost all seem to be sufficiently fresh at the work to be still enjoying the novelty of working in a huge art factory.

Especially is this the case with W. Vinall Bennett. He enjoys his present job of managing the wardrobe department; but he is a born showman, and what he seems to enjoy most is displaying to visitors the clothes and wigs which have become incorporated into film history owing to their associations. Some of the property actually belongs to national history, such as the early fashion in khaki hats, those actually worn in the Boer war.

Then there are the clothes in which the hero of "The Tidal Wave" was nearly drowned, the bald head worn by the Fakir in "The Place of Honour," and old wigs with vegetable net partings, the art of making which seems to have passed. "We can fit up 350 soldiers in khaki in three hours," says the wardrobe master, "and 250 convicts in 24 hours."

W. Vinall Bennett was at one time in stage management, and has worked with Martin Harvey and Herbert Tree. As a boy he worked for C. H. Fox, the perruquier, and he served his apprenticeship with Clarkson, in Wardour Street.

Equally enthusiastic, but in a different way, is Miss Stevens about the ladies' wardrobe. She is proud of the beauty of the dresses, some of them trimmed with real priceless old lace and the property jewelry, and the neatness and handiness of the dressing-rooms with their plentiful looking glasses.

Property Rooms.

In the large property rooms, situated under the "deck" floor, anything, it is said (except personal attire), can be obtained, from a toothpick to a pickaxe, from a jack-in-the-box to an old master.

Everything which goes out is marked with the number of the set in which it is to be used, everything is catalogued and checked out and checked in, so that anything can be traced. The whole place looks like a glorified old curiosity shop.

Model Department.

In the modelling department Madge Stuart's head, in papier mache, was on the stove drying. This was fixed to a body and tumbled over a cliff in "Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills."

There was, too, a large statue of General John Regan, which is light enough to lift with one hand. The process involves the making first of a clay model, then a plaster mould, into which the wet paper is fitted.

Carpenter's Shop.

Three-ply is the great resource in studio scenery. Even Newgate Jail (in "The Glorious Adventure") was made of it!

The carpenter's shop, then, with a floor space of about 60 feet by 40, is as important as any department. The scenery work here is under the direction of J. Merton, the art director, who is responsible for the sets from the time the scenario is handed to him to the time the scene is shot. This is a big responsibility, considering that a huge banqueting scene may be taken next to a jail, with a church and a gambling den on another floor, all at the same time. But the heaviness of it does not seem to weigh on Mr. Merton's spirits.

Directorial Offices.

All the five directors (Maurice Elvey, Sinclair Hill, George Ridgwell, F. Martin Thornton and A. E. Coleby) have their own offices with their own cutting rooms, etc.

Like the treasures they really are, the finished films are stacked in vaults, five of them with ten shelves each and teak doors, two being for negatives and the others for prints.

Stores and Electrical Department.

There is always a special interest—fascination stores department, where new machinery, accessories, etc., are received under the superintendence of H. Thomas, is an important essential for the proper working of the studio.

Under the "deck" floor a new generator of 130 kilowatts is being installed. The electrical equipment includes twenty banks of Cooper-Hewitt mercury vapour lamps (used chiefly for special effects), three Sunlight arcs (one of which with the mirror has a three million candle power), twenty Wohl broadsides, sixteen Wohl duplex top-lights, fifteen Wohl tilts, thirteen Kleigl spot-lights and twelve semi-indirect Wohl top-lights. For one scene nine or ten broadsides, a Sunlight, an indirect and a spot-light may be used at once.

Dressing Rooms and Floors.

There are whole galleries of dressing rooms, suggesting ship's cabins, well-equipped with looking glasses, basins, etc.

Most interesting of all are the three "floors," the largest (that which was used for "The Glorious Adventure") being 400 feet by 70 feet.

The Canteen.

Lastly, there is the most popular department of all—the canteen. It is really something more than that, for it contains a refreshment-room for stars and heads of departments, 20 feet by 20; another for small part artistes and supers, 27½ feet by 20; and a staff messroom, 45½ feet by 20. This restaurant is managed by Mrs. Crewdson, who is very proud (and rightly so) of her wonderfully equipped kitchen, 40½ feet by 15, in which all the cookery is by electricity. Sometimes hundreds of extra meals have to be prepared at very short notice. A good lunch can be obtained for 1s. 3d.; breakfast can be obtained at 9 o'clock, and up till 10 supper is served to artistes who work by night.

Daily Pay.

Of all the enthusiasts of the Cricklewood studio there is none more enthusiastic than Brigadier-General W. B. Hulks, part of whose duty it is to hand out the cash to the artistes engaged by the day. He is also an admirable guide to this rather bewildering film city, or art factory, which covers an area of 27,993 feet, and which still seems flushed with pleasure at its own daring in being converted from an aeroplane factory to artistic use.

COLONEL A. C. BROMHEAD

Colonel A. C. Bromhead, C.B.E., managing director of Gaumont Co., Ltd., who is to preside over the inaugural meeting of the club on Sunday. Colonel Bromhead served with the Queen's 24th London Regiment during the war and was appointed to take charge of the special propaganda mission to Russia and also to the Italian Front. He is now president of the Incorporated Association of Kinematograph Manufacturers.

SIR OSWALD STOLL

FULL REPORT OF THE CLUB MEETING IN NEXT ISSUE.

The Historical Film must be accurately dressed.

◎ ◎ ◎
We Stock Civil and Military costumes of all known periods. :: ::

◎ ◎ ◎
"The Call of the Road" and "The Old Curiosity Shop," with their wealth of costume, detail and characteristics of their times, were dressed by us.

◎ ◎ ◎
Write to-day stating your requirements.

H. & M. RAYNE,
115-119, Waterloo Road,
S.E.1.

WEST END BRANCH: 15, Rupert Street.

BLOWING

their own trumpet, some people regard as essential to their success, but shrewd require something more solid! They want good value for money. We supply good quality laboratory work, and with a trial will let that speak for itself.

BUSINESS MEN

VICKERS FILMCRAFT LTD.

89, SHAFTESBURY AVENUE, W.1.

Laboratories :

PARAGON WORKS, 29, ACTON LANE, W.4.

ALWAYS-ON-TIME

'Phones: GERARD 4045 and
CHISWICK 132

MUSIC AS AN AID

"Some of them can't act unless they have music; some can't act with it; and some can't act either way."

That's what a veteran director said recently when he was questioned regarding the use of music while film players are working before the camera. Most companies nowadays use some sort of music to provide "atmosphere" and help out the players. We give below the experiences of an American director and a British artiste.

AN AMERICAN DIRECTOR

George Melford, the Paramount director, is strong for jazz music while the action in his pictures is being filmed. Hansen, a sort of studio minstrel, and his guitar are regular attaches of the Melford company.

What does the music do? George Melford says that it keys the players up and makes them sad or happy, as desired.

The film actor has not the inspiration afforded by an expectant audience and the lights and orchestra of a theatre. He works among a lot of people who are as blasé as he is. There is the click of the camera to take away from him (if he lets his mind dwell upon it for a moment)

T O - M O R R O W

SUNDAY, October 16, at 2.45, in the

COURT PICTURE PLAYHOUSE

(Corner of Tottenham Court Road)

A General Meeting for the Inauguration of

THE KINEMA CLUB

will be held

COLONEL A. C. BROMHEAD

will preside

All Artistes, Directors, Assistant Directors, Scenarists, Scenario Editors and Cameramen

ARE INVITED

the illusion of reality in what he is doing. The "set" is usually just a spot in a big, open stage, separated from other "sets" by flimsy canvas partitions. The scene he is enacting is one out of the middle or at the beginning or end of a picture.

And against all this handicap, the film player must be sad or funny, win a wife or get shot, and do it all convincingly and naturally.

As a matter of fact, screen acting is a harder job than stage acting. Any fair-minded person who has done both will endorse this. Screen acting is not such a task when there is a big, luxurious set and a large crowd in the action and everybody's excited and keyed up for the scene.

But when there is just the plain little corner of a room and two people doing an important, highly emotional scene, and possibly carpenters pounding nearby, then there is a real testing of acting ability. The musical accompaniment in this case, claims George Melford, is a tremendous aid.

A BRITISH ARTISTE'S VIEW

There have been many discussions on this subject. Some say music is a great aid to acting, others that they could not do any work at all in the studio where there was an orchestra.

Not very long ago I heard quite a well-known actress say that music "simply gets on my nerves, and just upsets everything," and that she would rather hear and see all going on in the studio—noise of carpenters, the babble of voices, the most inartistic sounds—than a note of music, even for the most pathetic scenes.

Then, again, after just a few bars of Tosst's "Good-bye," I have heard an artiste, who up to the moment when the pianist started to play was unable to work herself up to the point of crying, after a few bars was absolutely sobbing.

Music is a terrific help to me when working in the studio; for instance, with drama, an appropriate melody played, creates an atmosphere which seems to make me forget I am acting; then one's mind is so concentrated on one's actions that the situation follows instinctively.

For emotional scenes especially a violin will draw the deepest feelings to the surface. I remember a little while back I was sitting reading in the studio waiting for my call. At the other end of the floor there was a violinist playing "Valse Triste" by Sibelius to assist the action in a particular scene then in progress, and although I was intently interested in my book, I discovered the tears dropping down upon the pages quite unconsciously.

It is only natural that people who are inspired by music will get an infinitely better result when aided by a perfect orchestra than when they have to work up their action in cold blood. With the music they merely follow up the inspiration.—ENA BEAUMONT.

STOLL v. GEO CLARK.

There was an occasion nearly three years ago when a judge of the High Court, in an emergency, was pursued to a golf course and there granted an interim injunction on a certain matter. This event had a striking parallel on Wednesday evening, when Mr. Justice Rigby Swift, the Vacation Judge, was followed to Cannon Street railway station and here acceded to the request of W. Cleveland Cleveland-Stevens, a well-known Chancery barrister, for an interim injunction against the Stoll Film Company. His lordship had already taken his seat in the train, and the proceedings, therefore, were brief.

Mr. Cleveland-Stevens stated that he asked for an injunction on behalf of the George Clark Productions Company to restrain the Stoll Film Company in respect to proceedings in connection with "The Bigamist," at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, for one week.

The film had cost the applicant company £50,000, and its licence to Stoll provided that anyone showing it was not to cut or alter the "main leads" of the film, and not to advertise or show it except under the names of the George Clark Co. and the author, etc.

On Monday this week, when it was shown at Manchester, counsel told the judge, some 200 ft. of the early part of the film was cut off, apparently by the Gaiety Theatre people, who had a general licence from Stoll, and the film appeared without any of the names of the author, director, photographers, designers, etc.

They also put on a prologue written by a Mr. Blattner, and all over the town it was advertised that "Sir Oswald Stoll produced 'The Bigamist,'" whereas the George Clark Productions should have been advertised. Therefore, said counsel, the whole of the credit of this great production, which belonged to the applicant company, was transferred to the Stoll Company.

Mr. Justice Rigby Swift granted the interim injunction asked for.

FULL REPORT OF THE CLUB MEETING IN NEXT ISSUE.

CAMERAMEN AT WORK

Of course, the chief item of interest for the moment is the inaugural meeting of the much-needed Club, which takes place to-morrow in the Court Picture Playhouse at 2.45 sharp, Colonel Bromhead (Gaumont) presiding. All kine. cameramen are urged to be present, and to hand in their names as applicants for membership. I learn that premises have been offered which will be converted into cosy, well-furnished club quarters, with facilities for refreshment, etc., and which should be available for occupation before the end of the year. The K.C.S. is strongly supporting the club, and it only remains for those cameramen outside the Society to follow suit for the profession of Kine-Photography to obtain that status that is its due.

There are still many misguided people in the business who regard the Kine. Cameramen's Society as a band of fire-eaters who meet on Friday nights to hatch their dastardly plots for the extinction of the film Trade! Where this idea originated I cannot say, but it is hardly necessary to point out that the idea is absolutely wrong. As a matter of fact, the Kine. Cameramen's Society has done a great deal to advance the cameraman's knowledge, and, incidentally, to advance the standard of the British motion picture. Almost every week the members meet and are instructed by experts on the use of the very latest cinematograph apparatus. The Society is composed of most of the leading cameramen in the Trade. The secretary knows the various members' specialities, and is able to supply directors with cameramen to suit all requirements. Some of the members are specialists in various kinds of work. The Society is composed of topical and studio men, and every member has to pass a very strict examination before being allowed to become a member.

Among the "specialists" in the Society may be numbered A. Kingston, who at the moment is busy on talking pictures. What he does not know about talking pictures, nobody knows!

Alfred H. Moses is perhaps one of the best informed men in England on every phase of cinematography.

"Bee" Mason, who is now on the Quest, is famed for his scientific work with the camera.

Henry Sanders is, of course, the editor of Pathé Gazette, and can, therefore, claim some knowledge of Topical work; and there are many more names, which I cannot recall at the moment, all specialists in different phases of cinematography.

The advantage of the members meeting together and exchanging ideas should now be obvious, and a member of the K.C.S. can be depended on to turn out good work. Directors are advised to get in touch with Secretary Kenneth Gordon, who will advise as to suitable men.

The new Secretary intends to make the members turn up at meetings, by arranging many more lectures than has hitherto been the case. Last week an interesting discussion took place on "The Successes and Failures of a Topical Cameraman."

Alfred Moses will give a lecture and practical demonstration on dye-toning on Friday next, and A. Kingston hopes to be able in a short time to give a demonstration of the new sound photography, on which he has been working for many months.

It is interesting to note that all the official photographers on the Prince of Wales's Indian tour are members of the K.C.S.

Basil W. G. Emmott's photography in "Roses in the Dust" has come in for some very good notices from the critics who were present at the Trade show.

Stanley Rodwell has joined Pathé. He has been working with Screen Plays on the Grand Guignol subjects for the last few months.

I. Roseman, who has just returned from filming in Austria, is now in Torquay with Lisle Locoque. He is working on "Where the Rainbow Ends."

Leslie Eveleigh is busy down at Davidson's studio, where he is working with Arthur Rooke.

"TRIPOD."

CAMERAMEN. . . .

JOHN J. COX
44, Barrowgate Road,
:: Chiswick, W.4. ::
'Phone: Chiswick 294.
Cameraman for Maurice Elvey,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD
Cameraman.
AT LIBERTY for First-Class Productions.
1920 Debie Outfit.
All Coms: 4, PERCIVAL PARADE,
WORCESTER PARK.

EDWIN DAY
Motion Picture Photographer,
12, Archer Street, Piccadilly Circus, London, W.1.
Telephone: Gerrard 780.
Telegrams: "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON
Thelton House, Cambolt
:: Road, Putney Hill. ::
Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN
"GAUMONT'S,"
105, King's Road,
Kingston-on-Thames.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

FRANK CANHAM
Motion Picture Photographer.
SPA HOTEL MARINE PARADE,
BRIGHTON

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT
GAUMONT,
:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::
Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT
EXPERT CAMERAMAN.
"The Better 'Ole" etc., "Her Benny" etc.,
"Land of My Fathers."
Offices and Dark Rooms:
2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.
'Phone: Streatham 2966.

ALFRED H. MOSES
Photographing George Ridgwell Productions.
Formerly Chief Cameraman for Thanhouser,
Norma Talmadge, British & Colonial, etc.
Address care of STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS,
Cricklewood.

PHIL ROSS
Cameraman—AT LIBERTY
Late of BROADWEST, HARMA, VANITY, etc.
19, Mayow Road, Forest Hill,
London, S.E.23.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

WILLIAM SHENTON
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address:
17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,
Boreham Wood, Herts.

HORACE M. WHEDDON,
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address
"LYNTON HOUSE,"
BOREHAM WOOD, HERTS.

JAMES E. ROGERS,
Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth
"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"
"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"
"Last Rose of Summer,"
PRIDE OF THE FANCY, etc.

JACK H. ROSS,
AT LIBERTY.
"By some unknown means he has secured the largest close up of a carefully lighted human face we have ever seen."—Kine Weekly.
WHAT I DO TO-DAY OTHERS TRY TO-MORROW.
All coms. c/o Motion Picture Studio.

You cannot do better than
by placing your orders with

L. BENJAMIN & CO.

99, Middlesex Street, E.
'Phone—London Wall 7568

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Productions and Who is Working on Them

British Photoplay Productions.
ADDRESS: Devon Chambers, 28, Fleet Street, Torquay.
FILM: "Where the Rainbow Ends."
DIRECTOR: H. Lisle Lucoque.
CAMERAMAN: I. Roseman.
STAR: West End Cast.
TYPE: Five-reel drama.
STAGE: Fifth week.

Davidsons.
STUDIO: Lea Bridge Road, Leyton.
FILM: Not Titled.
DIRECTOR: Arthur Rooke.
STARS: Phyllis Shannaw, Victor McLaglan.
CAMERAMAN: Leslie Eveleigh.
SCENARIST: Arthur Rooke.
STAGE: First week.

Direct Film Traders.
ADDRESS: 87, Wardour Street, W.
FILM: "Four Men in a Van."
DIRECTOR: Hugh Croise.
STAR: Johnny Butt.
SCENARIST: Hugh Croise.
CAMERAMAN: Frank Granger.
TYPE: Feature Comedy.
STAGE: Sixth week.

Famous Players-Lasky
ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.
STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A. Bell, O.B.E.
FILM: "Three Live Ghosts."
DIRECTOR: George Fitzmaurice.
STAR: Anna Q. Nilsson.
STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: "Perpetua."
DIRECTOR: John Robertson.
STAR: Ann Forrest.
STAGE: Fifth week.

Gaumont
ADDRESS: 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, W. 12.
FILM: "Class and No Class."
DIRECTOR: Will Kellino.
STAR: Pauline Johnson.
STAGE: Third week.

Graham-Wilcox Productions.
ADDRESS: 89-91, Wardour Street.
FILM: "The Wonderful Story."
STAGE: Casting.

Hardy.
ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W. 1.
STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isle worth.
FILM: "The Recoil."
DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.
STARS: Eille Norwood.
SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.
CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "The Scourge."
DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.
SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.
CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger
STAGE: First week.

Harma
ADDRESS: 16, Limes Road, Croydon.
FILM: "The Corner Man."
DIRECTOR: Einar J. Bruun.
STAR: Hugh E. Wright and Ida Lambert.
SCENARIST: Frank Fowell.
CAMERAMAN: A. G. Franguelli.
TYPE: Comedy Drama.
STAGE: Eighth week.

Ideal.
ADDRESS: Boreham Woods, Elstree
STUDIO MANAGER: F. A. Kendrick.
STAGE MANAGER: F. G. Knott.

FILM: "Pickwick Papers."
DIRECTOR: Thomas Bentley.
STAR: Fred Valpe.
CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.
STAGE: Fifth week.

FILM: "The Old Wives' Tale."
DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.
SCENARIST: Denison Clift.
CAMERAMAN: Geoffrey Barkas.
STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "Shirley."
DIRECTOR: A. V. Bramble.
STAR: Clive Brook.

CAMERAMAN: H. W. Whadden.
STAGE: Fourth week.

Progress
FILM: "The Lilac Sunbonnet."
STAR: Joan Morgan.
DIRECTOR: Sidney Morgan.
SCENARIST: Sidney Morgan.
CAMERAMAN: Stanley Mumford.
STAGE: Seventh week.

Rising Sun Productions.
STUDIO: Barker's, Ealing.
FILM: "Eliza's Romeo."
DIRECTOR: Bert Haldane.
STAR: Louie Freear.
TYPE: Comedy.
STAGE: First week.

Seal.

ADDRESS: Princes Studio, Kew.
FILM: "Jessica's First Prayer."
STAR: C. Hargreave Mansell.
DIRECTOR: Bert Wynne.
STAGE: Fourth week.

Sterling Photoplays.
ADDRESS: 26, Dean Street, W. 1.
FILM: "Dutch Courage."
DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.
STAR: Dorothy Peters.
SCENARIST: Alec McKee.
TYPE: Two Reel Comedy.
STAGE: Third week.

Stoll.
ADDRESS: Temple Road, Crickle wood.

STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman
FILM: "A Romance of Westdale."
DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.
STAR: Milton Rosmer.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling

FILM: "The Passionate Friend."
DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.
STARS: Milton Rosmer, Mdlle. Valia and Fred Raynham.
STAGE: Casting.

FILM: "The Lamp in the Desert."
DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.
CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: "A Lost Leader."
DIRECTOR: George Ridgwell.
CAMERAMAN: Alfred Moses.
STAR: Robert English.
SCENARIST: William J. Elliot.
STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: Sherlock Holmes Episodes.
DIRECTOR: George Ridgwell.
CAMERAMAN: Alfred H. Moses.
STAR: Eille Norwood.
STAGE: Casting.

FILM: Half a Truth.
DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.
STARS: Margaret Hope, Irene Rook, Percy Standing.
CAMERAMAN: Adolph Burger.
STAGE: Fifth week.

FILM: "Froggy's Little Brother"
DIRECTOR: A. E. Coleby.
STAGE: First week.

Thompson Productions.
ADDRESS: B & C Studios, Walthamstow.
FILM: "All Roads Lead to Calvary."
DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.
STARS: Mary Odette, Bertram Burleigh, Minna Gray.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Grace Rose.

SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.
EDITOR: John Miller.
CAMERAMAN: John Parker.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "The Chink in the Armour."
DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Schedule.

Temple Productions.
ADDRESS: Catford Studios, S. E.
MANAGER: Maurice Edmonds.
FILM: "Some Truth."
DIRECTOR: Bannister Merwin.
STAR: A. Bromley Davenport
SCENARIST: Bannister Merwin.
CAMERAMAN: Harold Bastick.
TYPE: Three Reel Comedy.
STAGE: Second week.

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Arfilodro, Hyde, London.

ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.
B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmopho, Ealux.
BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow, E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD., Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clapham Park.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PHOTOPAYS, Devon Chambers, 28 Fleet Street, Torquay.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolongue, 'Phone London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland, London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exclugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012. Studio: Candlemass Lane, Beaconsfield.

GLEN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD., 20, Lisle Street, London, W.C., and "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16 Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.

IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Idealms, Borehamwood.

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS FILM CO., LTD., 52 Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

ISLE OF MAN FILM CO., The Manx Studios, Isle of Man.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Cricklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).

LAMBART FILMS, Carlton House, Regent Street, London, W. 'Phone: Gerr. 4040.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MINERVA FILM CO., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

REGULUS FILMS: 48, Carnaby Street, Regent Street, W.1.

SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton 2956.

SEAL PRODUCTIONS.—Prince's Studio, Kew

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpic, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1903—Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGNTON PHOTOPAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & CO., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

The MOTION PICTURE

Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 20.

Saturday, October 22, 1921.

FOURPENCE

To Theatrical, Film, Carnival
Producers, and all interested.

H. VAL JACKSON

("THE ALABAMA COON")

Proprietor of "THE SIGN OF FOUR."

Theatrical Stores : 7, DERBY ROAD, NOTTINGHAM.

Begs to notify the above that he has now OPENED A BRANCH at 18, GERRARD ST., LEICESTER SQUARE,
LONDON, W.1.

(Lately carried on by the late "MARCO BASALDELLA" at that Address), and will in consequence be able to give personal attention to London Customers.

COSTUMES, WIGS, PROPERTIES, etc., FOR PANTOS, FILMS, CARNIVALS AND FANCY DRESS BALLS. SALE OR HIRE. STAMP FOR LIST.

Cinema Attendants and Band Uniforms made to order.

LOWEST PRICES.

CASH TRADE ONLY.

ORIGINAL DESIGNS WORKED OUT.

Importer of Egyptian Crystal-Gazing Balls.

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."

219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.

Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.

Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Sonia," "The Knight Errant," "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds."

Address—27 Eccleston Sq., S.W.1. Victoria 2968.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal), "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).

c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

Juvenile Leads: "Her Son," "Great Gay Road," "Lights of Home," "Land of My Fathers," "Duan" in "Belle of the Gambling Den" (Haigh Serial.)

OFFERS INVITED.

33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelm Foss Production), "John Herriott's Wife" and "The Breed of the Treshams"

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, Regent 4329.

PHYLLIS SHANNAW.

Juv. Lead "Call of the Road," "The Right to Live," etc.

Will be shortly disengaged. All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour St., W.1. Phone: Regent 4329.

JOHN EAST.

Character Comedy. Tele: Hammersmith 1133.
14, Ifley Road, Hammersmith, W.6.

ARTISTES

FLORA LE BRETON

34, NEVERN SQUARE, EARL'S COURT, S.W.5.

Phone: Western 1936,

HAYFORD HOBBS.

Starring with African Film Productions. Late Juvenile Lead: London Films (three years), Windsor Films (two years), and all leading English Film Companies. All coms.: B x 4514 Johannesburg, South Africa.

ENA BEAUMONT

Leads in "The Greater Love," "The Golden Web," "All the Winners," "Patricia Brent Spinster," "Our Girls and Their Physique," "Settled in Full," "Watching Eyes," etc. All coms c/o A. Fraser, 26, Charing Cross Road, W.C.2.

SYDNEY WOOD,

Juv. Leads in "The Warrior Strain," "Her Benny," "Ever Open Door," "Bars of Iron," "The Flame," "The Will," "Double Event," "David and Jonathan," etc. Address The Laurels Beverley Road, Anerley, S.E.

Phone: Chancery 7080-7081.

MILES MANDER,

Light, Heavy and Juv. Leads. Modern, aristocratic. Extensive wardrobe. All-round athlete. Now playing Marquis Sallust in "Half a Truth" (Stoll). Disengaged Oct. 15, 1921.

Address, 3 Clifford St., W.1. Phone: Regent 1327.

SYBIL GRAY

Latest Films—Lead in "Missing Jewels" (Haigh Serial), "White Gipsy Girl" in "Corinthian Jack," Masters, Alliance Films, Ideal and Famous Players-Lasky, etc. Address—Castle House, Hampton, Middlesex. Telephone—Molesey 89.

IRENÉE CRAVEN

LEADS.

Dignified, social sporting characters.

Three years experience.

Address—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

WALTER FORDE

Comedian.

ZODIAC FILMS, LTD.

All coms.:—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,

15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.

Phone: Hornsey 1784.

ARTISTES

TONY FRASER

LEADS.

Specialities:—Oriental and Near Eastern Parts

Just finished with Stoll. "Broken Road," "Four Features," "The Lamp of the Desert."

Address—18 Leinster Sq., W.2. Phone—Park 4765.

C. TILSON-CHOWNE

LEADS.

Stoll, Broadwest, Alliance, Screen Plays, Samuelson, Masters, etc.

Address:—21, Westbourne Street, W.2. Phone: Paddington 641.

VICTOR McLAGLAN.

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

Phone: Regent 4329

DICK WEBB

(Juvenile)

GAUMONT, MASTERS, FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY, BRITISH PRODUCERS.

180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc. STOLL FILM CO.

All coms.: c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1.

LIONELLE HOWARD.

AT LIBERTY.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

ADELINE HAYDEN COFFIN.

Sympathetic Mother, Grande Dames.

Character Parts, "Mrs. Gatty," in "Christie Johnstone" (Broadwest), "Margaret Howe" in "Beside the Bonny Briar Bush" (Lasky). 55, Campden St., Kensington, W.8.

Tel.: Park 3623.

CLIVE BROOK

24, Hyde Park Square, W. Padd. 2868.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
92, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 20

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

Oct. 22, 1921

Sunday's Meeting.

THE success of the meeting held on Sunday, October 16, at the Court Picture Theatre, Tottenham Court Road, was a gratifying augury for the future. It is so easy to get people to approve of a movement and so difficult to get them to devote any time to it. But the large attendance—for there were well over two hundred present—demonstrates that there are a number of people who are ready to give more than lip service towards the formation of a worth-while club for all those associated with the artistic side of British production. It is not, perhaps, realised how much time has been devoted and how much laborious work has been accomplished by the original committee.

To place even the outline scheme before Sunday's meeting has involved weeks of discussion and investigation. But we have at least the satisfaction of knowing that if—as seems reasonably hopeful—the Club now materialises, it will be the first actual Kinema Club in the Capital. Attempts have before been made by the commercial side to form a Film Club, but they have not matured, and we can profit by their failure, if only in realising what we have to avoid.

* * *

Strong Support Needed.

It will be necessary to enlist the sympathy and support of the whole of the Film Industry—producers, renters and exhibitors alike, and there is little doubt that this support will be forthcoming. Anything which is calculated to encourage and improve the production of British pictures merits the support of the whole Industry, and we have little doubt that the other sections will realise this, especially when the first general meeting and the then large list of members gives evidence of the serious existence of the Club.

* * *

The Help of the Press.

THANKS are already due to the Press—particularly the Trade and the professional papers—for the help that they have given by the publication of reports and announcements. One or two of the daily papers have also been generous in this respect, although much must not be expected in that quarter, as it is a matter which is outside their scope. It is, at the moment, of great interest to reproduce the editorial comment of the Kinematograph Weekly concerning the Club and its big meeting. In its current issue the Kine says:—

* * *

"The First London Film Club."

"NO one, after Sunday last, can assert that the artistic side of the British film industry is negligible or unduly subordinate to the business department. A gathering of two hundred persons, to discuss the formation of a club, would be in itself a remarkable thing in a Trade like dedicate an institution with premises and an organisation of its own. Everyone in London Trade circles will wish them success, and, we hope, let envy spur them to an equally successful effort."

* * *

Further Service.

WITH our next issue, we are devoting considerable space to criticism of and discussion on the technical points arising out of new British productions. The space on this page which has hitherto been given to the reviewing of new films has now been allotted to Club notices, and much more space than previously will now be given in another part of the paper to the latest pictures from British studios. The criticism will be frank and to the point, and, we hope, informative and helpful. There is, it must be realised, nothing to be gained from gratuitously patting each other on the back, and though none of us likes to have faults pointed out, it is of salutary service if the criticism is fair, competent and taken in the right spirit. That it will be fair and competent is our endeavour, and that it will be taken in the right spirit is our hope. It has been suggested by Chaplin that our pictures are faulty in the technical department, and while not admitting that his criticism is absolutely justified, we intend, in our "Measuring up the week's product" to pay special attention to the continuity, lighting, photographing and direction of the photoplays as well as the quality of histrionic ability displayed.

* * *

Signs of Progress.

THERE are unmistakable signs that British productions are getting a big place in the sun. Masters' films are going well in the Antipodes, and in a chat with Alfred Lever (Stoll's general manager) we learn that the Sherlock Holmes series have been sold to an American corporation and by the time these words appear in print they will be on the American screen. And this is only the beginning of a big forward move.

Kinema Club Notices

FOLLOWING last Sunday's meeting the Temporary Committee met last Tuesday and elected five ladies to the Committee. This full Committee is meeting again next Tuesday, October 25, at 8 p.m. in these offices to consider the applications for membership.

¶ These successful applications will be Foundation Members at the reduced subscription fee and also free of entrance fee. Subsequent members will not obtain these advantages. It is, therefore, important that the application form on page 6 should be filled in and posted to the Hon. Secretary at once.

* This space has been placed at the disposal of the * * Club Committee for announcements each week.

this, in which, in London, at least, projects of a non-commercial character have a habit of remaining in the clouds. But the company on Sunday was the more remarkable because composed entirely of those connected with the production side of the business. The workers in the, at present, smallest section of the business have shown the way to the much larger number engaged in renting and exhibiting in London. In the provinces the several Kinema Exchanges already in existence show that the business men of the industry are not lacking in the co-operative spirit, and if London Traders have any self-respect they will not let the further example of the artistes, directors, cameramen and scenario writers go unheeded. The success of the latter's move seems assured; they will probably, in a short time, have the first real Film Club in London—using that term to in-

ARTISTES

MILTON ROSMER'S

forthcoming releases.
 "GENERAL JOHN REGAN" (Stoll)
 "ROMANCE OF WESTDALE" "
 "THE POINTING FINGER"
 "WOMAN OF NO IMPORTANCE" (Ideal)
 'Phone - - - - - Langham 2243.
 16, WEYMOUTH ST., W.1.

GREGORY SCOTT,

2, KENYON MANSIONS,
 WEST KENSINGTON,
 W.

POLLIE EMERY.

DISENGAGED.
 "Peach" in "The Case of Lady Camber"
 (Broadwest), "Auntie" in "Nothing Else
 Matters" (Welsh Pearson), "Madam Tour-
 terelle" in "Perpetua" (Famous Players-
 Lasky British Productions).
 7, KENYON MANSIONS, QUEEN'S
 CLUB GARDENS.

HARDING STEERMAN,

Characters of Distinction,
 56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,

24, Cleveland Road
 Barnes, S.W.13.

MARJORIE VILLIS.

Exclusive to Harma Photoplays, Limes Rd., Croydon.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,

Character Parts,
 57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.
 197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph.: Battersea 21.

CRISPIN HAY,
 c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,
 12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,

Character Actor. Offers invited.
 114, Anyand Park Road, Twickenham.

SCENARISTS

ELIOT STANNARD

Scenarios.

85, Holbein House, Sloane
 Square, S.W.1.
 Tele.: Victoria 497.

COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,
 :: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

SCENARISTS

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.
 7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11
 ('Phone: Park 2945).

GERARD FORT BUCKLE

Scenarios.

'Phone: Regent 4747.

41, Glasshouse Street, Regent
 Street, W.1.

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,

Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
 62, Foxburne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT,

Kinedramatist,
 Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

IRENE MILLER,

Novelist, Journalist, Scenarist,
 10, Arundel Gardens, W.11, or Bramlins.

CYRIL E. MURRELL,

Scenarist—Comedy,
 Address: C/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

MURIEL ALLEYNE, Screen Playwright.

Plays sold to Pathé, Hepworth, Barker, M.L.B., Clarendon Universal, etc., Windsor Ho! Amersham, Bucks.

HELEN & THOMAS BLIZZARD

Original Story and Continuity Writers.
 Address M.P. STUDIO.

THIS SPACE TO LET.

17s. 6d. for 13 insertions.

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,

Producing Comedies

BARKERS STUDIOS, EALING.

'Phone No.: Ealing 211.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
 "Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
 "The Face at the Window."

Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
 Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON

Address—84, LEESIDE CRESCENT,
 GOLDERS GREEN, N.W.11.

Latest Productions — "BELONGING."
 "FRAILTY," "PREY OF THE
 DRAGON," "GWYNETH OF THE
 WELSH HILLS," "LAMP IN THE DESERT."

GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer

THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.

Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,

Hoe St., Walthamstow, E.17.

THIS SPACE TO LET

17s. 6d. for 13 insertions

DIRECTORS

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer
 of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H. MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE."
 "PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
 "SETTLED IN FULL,"
 "ALL THE WINNERS,"
 "WATCHING EYES,"
 "BLUFF," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
 26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

ADRIAN BRUNEL,

Producer and Scenario-Writer,
 19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone: 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK,

Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
 39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

ALBERT WARD,

Producer—Open to accept engagements.
 3, Ranelagh Grove, S.W.1.

PUBLICITY

FRANK J. WOOLF

PUBLICITY EXPERT.

Representing British and American Theatrical and Kinema Journals.

Open to accept Commissions,
 Artists' Personal Publicity Conducted Extensive
 Campaigns arranged.

Address: C/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO,
 or Telephone: Walthamstow 364.

STUDIO MANAGER

JOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—

B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,

Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone: W'stow 364."

THIS SPACE TO LET

17s. 6d. for 13 insertions.

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

It is almost dangerous, these days, to dine with Bertram Burleigh as I did the other evening, for he has revealed the deep dark secret of his innermost life—he is a conjurer. At the dinner I was kept wondering whether I would find that the wine was not in the glass when I went to drink it! Glasses, cigarettes, lighted matches, spoons and forks disappeared with lightning rapidity, and when after dinner the guests were asked to play cards—well, they nearly all refused, after seeing the tricks Burleigh performed with the pack. During his recent visit to New York, Burleigh was made a member of the Society of American Magicians.

* * *

To celebrate the release of the first English film in which she has appeared, Margery Meadows, who plays the part of the flapper in "The Rotters," gave a quaint tea party recently. She called it a "Rotter's" tea party, and all the guests were asked to represent the character in fiction or history whom they considered the biggest "rotter." The prize was won by a gentleman who represented Armageddon, but that was because no one came camouflaged as a Press critic!

* * *

Usually it is difficult to persuade members of the British aristocracy to grant moving picture companies the loan of their houses for "shots." However, a remarkably fine mansion exterior has been secured in "Greenlands," the beautiful property of Viscount Hambleden, near Henley-on-Thames, for J. S. Robertson's production, "Perpetua." With its white coloured frontage and velvety stretches of wide green pastures stretching down to the river's edge, "Greenlands" well deserves its reputation as the finest show place in the district.

* * *

Nobody will have to complain of the stories being "dry" which are now in the course of production at F. P.-Lasky's studio. A little cosy French café, with a tiny bar and an attractive row of bottles, occupies a corner of the stage for use in a scene, and No. 2 stage has been assigned to the interior of a big East End London "pub" of the more blatant variety. It was originally intended to have a real licensed house for this purpose, but the studio authorities encountered so many difficulties in the way of police regulations and restrictions of drinking hours, that it was soon considered most expedient to convert part of their own premises into a temporary bar. To this end the studio authorities acquired the entire equipment and accessories of a once prosperous "pub" of the typical Whitechapel order. So now the invasion of Islington by American stars is explained.

* * *

Henry Edwards, Chrissie White and Mary Dibley paid a visit to Exeter last week, and Henry Edwards, who is a Somerset man, confessed to a Press man that he was very fond of Devonshire cream and that he had gained two pounds in weight since being "down Devon way." The party has been touring the West Country taking scenes. Some years ago Mr. Edwards was playing in "Robin Hood" at the Theatre Royal, Exeter, at the same time as Charlie Chaplin was in "Mumming Birds" at the Exeter Hippodrome.

* * *

I am sorry to hear that Evelyn Brent has been the victim of a severe chill. Whilst working in scenes for her new film, "The Silver Lining,"

Miss Brent was obliged to work a great deal in the open air. She contracted a cold, but refused to stop work, until she became so seriously ill that a doctor had to be called to the studio. She returned to her hotel and was unable to work for over a week. The filming was held up, but Miss Brent has now recovered and hopes to fly back to London this week.

* * *

The final scenes in "The Corner Man," which Einar Bruun has directed for Harma, were taken during the week-end. The most important included a garden fête at night, for which the charming grounds at Albury House, Surbiton Hill, were placed at the disposal of the director. The many guests were all in fancy dress, and some very effective shots were secured. The grounds were gorgeously illuminated with hundreds of Chinese and other lanterns; there was a big display of fireworks; there was an orchestra on a specially constructed band-stand, indeed, everything was carried out on a most elaborate scale.

* * *

Sam Hardy must be feeling very pleased with himself at the successful result of the Hardy Film Company's first picture, "Bluff," for it is certainly a good commencement to be able to sell the world's rights so quickly and to such a prominent firm as Gaumont. "Bluff" was completed in less than five weeks. No pains were spared to ensure the accuracy of those all-important details which make or mar a picture, and by launching out into entirely new methods of producing the company took a very courageous step, the results of which have been shown to be fully justified.

* * *

Sam Hardy tells me that he has fixed William Stack to play the lead in "The Scourge," the new Hardy picture. Mr. Stack has had a very extensive experience of dramatic acting, for among his many engagements is included that of leading man at Covent Garden Opera House with Martin Harvey in "The Only Way." He has been associated with the revival of Shakespearean plays at the Old Vic, where he played the lead for a period of two years and built up a great reputation for his able interpretation of the better-known rôles. "MEGAPHONE."

ON THE FLOOR

With GEORGE PEARSON

After the last Welsh-Pearson production Geo. Pearson was acclaimed by a great portion of the press as "the Griffiths of Great Britain," and there are many competent authorities who will say that it is by no means an exaggerated opinion; for each production by him is hall-marked in every scene with the stamp of the master director.

In the studio Geo. Pearson, applying his great knowledge, patience and tact, gets the very utmost out of his artistes. Always restrained, and master of himself and the situation, he inculcates everyone concerned with the zest and enthusiasm for the work to be done.

He has a curious but attractive method, generally on one knee directing quietly—a light, deft touch here—a strain of music there—a "thank you"—an "if you please"; and he has something in the box that matters—considerate, clever, courteous and conscientious are the alliterative kinema characteristics of Geo. P.

Sailors will tell of what they call a "happy ship"—a chummy ship. To the artiste that is what the Welsh-Pearson studio is. If a stranger strayed in he might think it was a well directed drawing room.

British productions owe much to Geo. Pearson—but not the least of his many achievements is a son at Oxford—and another just out of the cradle.

KINEMA CLUB LAUNCHED

COLONEL BROMHEAD PRESIDES OVER ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING

At last something concrete has been done, and the Kinema Club, which, for many weeks has been merely a name, is now assuming more solid proportions.

The inaugural meeting of the club was held last Sunday at the Court Theatre, Tottenham Court Road, and was most enthusiastic and productive, being attended by nearly 300 people, with Col. Bromhead in the chair.

In his opening remarks, Col. Bromhead stated that he wished to explain to the meeting that his presence in the chair was not as an originator of the scheme, but merely as a well-wisher. He had had a long experience in the film Trade, starting in 1897. He claimed that he was responsible for the first productions to be made in this country and that his company had built what was still the largest specially built studio in this country.

He was always pleased to see a really good British production, because he regarded every good British film as an asset to the whole country, in the same way he believed that a bad British production was bad for every company working in the country.

He rejoiced to hear of the inception of the Kinema Club and he believed that every director, artiste, scenarist and cameraman was anxious for such a club. It would form a bond of union between all connected with the production of good British pictures and he sincerely hoped to see them all work together, hand in hand. The Club, he believed, would keep the amateur and the screenstruck out of the business and would eliminate the unworthy.

The Hon. Secretary stated that there had been a generally expressed desire for a club. A temporary committee had been elected, to frame the rules and objects of the club, and these were to be put before the meeting that afternoon. During the weeks the temporary committee had been in existence, it had been working very hard, and he suggested that the present committee should remain in office until another general meeting was called, when a permanent standing committee could be elected.

On the subject of membership, the secretary thought it better to have a club which only contained three hundred well-established people, than to form a club composed of a thousand nondescripts: "the strength of the club would be its exclusiveness."

Fred Paul proposed and Alfred Moses seconded that the provisions as to membership should be:—

"Restricted to directors, artistes, scenarists and cameramen.

"Ladies to be admitted to membership on the understanding that distinct and separate quarters are provided for them with a main room for general (mixed) intercourse and refreshment.

"Bona-fide kinema journalists to be admitted as Associate Members, but to have no voting power."

On the question as to the character of the Club, some discussion arose as to whether ladies should be admitted, according to the Committee's recommendations or not, and Adrian Brunel proposed that it should be a mixed club. This was seconded by George Ridgewell and carried unanimously.

It was also proposed that five ladies should be elected on the committee. Amongst the names proposed were: Mrs. Hayden Coffin, Dorothy Fane, Kate Gurney, Florence Turner, Mary Brough, Thelma Murray, Mary Odette, Mrs. David Christie Murray, Amy Verity and Betty Balfour. Out of these names the committee will select five ladies as members of the committee.

The qualifications of membership was then discussed. This, it was agreed, must be left in the hands of the Qualification Committee.

In answer to a query as to what a recognised artiste was, George Ridgewell said that this very point had caused the committee a great deal of trouble. He thought that it should be left in the hands of the committee to decide whether applicants were "recognised" artistes. It was therefore agreed that applications for membership have to pass the Qualification Committee.

All recognised screen actors and actresses to be eligible for admission. Each application will be rigorously judged on the merits of the individual by the Qualification Committee, the ruling policy of which will be to make the Club as exclusive as possible, and to prevent undesirables, either amateurs, supers or screenstruck, getting in.

Directors who have been responsible for the direction of at least six productions; Assistant Directors and recognised Art Directors with twelve consecutive months' experience as such shall be eligible, subject to passing the Qualification Committee.

All Scenarists who have at least five scenarios accepted within the three previous years and all Scenario Editors who have held such position for more than six months to be eligible, subject to passing the Qualification Committee.

Any Cameraman with a minimum of two consecutive years' experience as a Kine-Cameraman (studio or topical) shall be eligible, subject to passing the Qualification Committee.

The rates of subscription was keenly discussed and despite a feeling among some that the fee should be five guineas, it was finally decided that the recommendations of the Committee should be adopted, viz.:—

"Those joining within one month of the inauguration of the Club be admitted to full membership on payment of an annual subscription of Three Guineas, and such members shall be admitted free of entrance fee. Those elected after that period shall be admitted on payment of an entrance fee (to be determined later) and a yearly subscription (to be determined later).

"Members may be permitted to Life Membership on payment of Twenty Guineas.

"Associate Members, on payment of One Guinea per annum, free of entrance fee."

The name of the club has not yet been definitely decided, but applicants sending in forms for membership should write a suitable name for the club on their form. Some of the names suggested are:—

Shadow Club, Lotus Club, Kinema Club, Anima Club, Focus Club, Iris Club, Pan Club, Kinmea Art Club.

Maurice Elvey wrote expressing enthusiastic support of the scheme and enclosed a cheque for £20 "to be used in any way that the Committee of the Club may consider desirable." This donation was received with great enthusiasm and was immediately followed with similar offers as follows:—

Colonel A. C. Bromhead, £21; Gaumonts, £21.

George Ridgewell, £21; John Gliddon, on behalf of International Artists' Films, £21.

Sidney Morgan, £21; Arthur Shirley, £21.

Maurice Elvey, £20; Kinematograph Weekly, £10 10s.

Motion Picture Studios, £10 10s.; Will Kellino, £5 5s.

Ivo Dawson, £5 5s.; Flora Le Breton, £5 5s.

John Gliddon suggested that all other British producing concerns should be invited to contribute to the initial £1,000 which is required in order to secure the premises. This Subscription List is still open.

In conclusion, Col. Bromhead said that he hoped the club would be a huge success. He wanted to see everything possible done to further the progress of art in pictures.

Those desiring to contribute to the Fund or to obtain particulars of the Club and enrolment forms can do so by getting in touch with the Hon. Secretary, 92, Long Acre, W.C.2 (Phone, Gerrard, 9870).

Application Form for Membership of the Kinema Club.

I am desirous of becoming a member of the Kinema Club and undertake to pay the agreed subscription (free of entrance fee if paid on or before Dec. 1, 1921) subject to election.

Name.....

Address.....

Qualifications.....

To be filled in and posted to the Hon. Secretary, 92, Long Acre, W.C.2, before Tuesday next, October 25.

ACTORS AND AMATEURS

by KENELM FOSS

An article in last week's MOTION PICTURE STUDIO raised the question with regard to the engaging by film directors of real policemen, when a policeman is required for a film scene. Naturally, it seems only fair to give the disengaged actor a chance to play a policeman if a small part man is required—but in my experience, it is absolutely impossible to make an actor look like a policeman, and if (I emphasise if) I had my choice I would engage the real policeman.

A similar question arises if a director desires to film a company of soldiers. In order to make a number of actors look like real soldiers, it would mean that weeks would be spent in selecting the right men, uniforms would have to be altered, and the men would have to go through a short course of training—that is, if the director desires his scene to be convincing.

The public finds fault where the critic (taking into consideration all the circumstances) would overlook them. The theatre audience demands that every character shall be convincing, true to type.

When casting a play the sincere director visualises the characters, and then selects the actors or actresses best suited, temperamentally and physically, to those parts. To my mind, the stock company is a mistake, unless stories specially written for the particular artistes are available. In filming novels, however, it is impossible to use a stock company—each new character is so widely different in every respect, that the stock company to fill these numerous rôles would have to be enormous.

During the past twelve months, I have utilised no less than twenty-five well-known stars in my films—not two of them resemble each other in any way whatsoever—because I knew that none of the book characters were similar. Book lovers form their own vision of the characters as they read the books—and it is certain that no two characters as seen in their minds' eye are similar. Therefore it is up to the director to give his audiences, who are also book lovers, variety.

Can anyone imagine Nan Phillips in "All Roads Lead to Calvary" played by the same actress as the heroine of "The House of Peril," but it is quite possible that this would have been the case had the film versions been made by a firm which possessed a stock company.

One of the secrets of the successful film is in the casting of the characters—and it is essential that the artistes should be selected on account of their resemblance to the characters they are about to create, as well as for their histrionic abilities, rather than for their names alone.

A real policeman looks like a policeman, no matter how much he is disguised! But it takes more than a uniform to make him convincing.

"CASTLES IN SPAIN" ACTION

Last Tuesday, in the King's Bench Division, Mr. Justice Coleridge had before him an action by H. Lisle Lucoque, of Bath, against the Gaumont Co., Ltd., to recover money alleged to be payable to the plaintiff. A screen story entitled "Castles in Spain," in which it was suggested that Aubrey Smith and Lilian Braithwaite should take the leading parts, figured in the contract.

Plaintiff sought to recover £4,597 under an agreement for the direction of a film from a scenario based on the novel of Ruby Ayres, or alternatively for damages for breach of contract and money paid for a Trade show of the film.

The main defence was that the cost of the film was not to exceed £4,000, and further, that it was to be a first-class film, and it was suggested that this was not, and that plaintiff agreed to look to the profits on the film for payment.

Counsel said the story opened with a Maypole dance on a village green in an English village, and this pleased the defendants. The story was that a bachelor had built two castles in Spain which had crumpled, and a third was built and that also fell, and as his lover, the heroine, in the end, loved and married his nephew.

On Wednesday Mr. Justice Coleridge resumed the hearing of the action.

Plaintiff, in his evidence, said that in negotiations with Col. Bromhead, managing director of defendants, that gentleman suggested to him that they wanted to get better British pictures for competition with the American ones. Witness had made such films as "King Solomon's Mines," "Allan Quartermaine" and "Lorna Doone."

The expert of defendants thought Miss Ayre's novel a sweet and fascinating story. Witness, however, formed the opinion that the story was not strong dramatically. It was more of a Dickens' story.

Witness said he suggested Aubrey Smith as the Builder of Castles and Lilian Braithwaite as Miss Cherry. Witness said Mr. Smith's salary was £90 a week, and he told defendants that that was his money. Miss Braithwaite required £50, and Capt. Eton Grey, who played the villain, got £20. The leading juvenile got £25 a week.

The Builder of Castles lived in a village, and was looked after by his housekeeper, who in the book was referred to as a lady of birth. A May Day scene was introduced to bring together the Builder of Castles and Miss Cherry.

When witness was asked to describe a cabaret, his Lordship observed: "To build up dramatically or morally?"

Witness: Morally.

Witness added that in the cabaret scene the villain made his first appearance. A pretty girl winked at him, and the two afterwards left the dancing-hall. Some of the scenes were at Virginia Water, as there were suitable ruins there, and at Bedford and a village on the Great Western Railway, where Aubrey Smith lived, Margaret Morris's dancers performed the Maypole dance, and she was paid £106.

Witness said he never agreed to a maximum cost for the film. When Col. Bromhead suggested that there might be a loss, witness never agreed to bear any part. A loss on films was not uncommon. He was associated with John Taylor in the direction of the film, but Mr. Taylor afterwards assigned his rights to plaintiff. £697 of the claim was for advertising the film.

Cross-examined by Mr. Hogg, counsel for defendants: Witness denied that he said "Castles in Spain" would cost £3,000 or £3,500, and Col. Bromhead never put a limit of £4,000 cost on the film.

Witness was questioned about the charge of £9 a week for a dog and said that included the man with it. The charge afterwards increased slightly.

Mr. Hogg: Like motor-cars, the more they are used the dearer they get.

Witness said eight guineas was paid for a cat, but it was in the play all the way through.

The hearing was adjourned.

YOUR LETTER BOX

For the benefit of those engaged in British studios we are elaborating "Our Letter List," which has appeared in recent issues on the "High Lights" page.

In future we shall reserve space for the publication of the names of people to whom letters have been addressed, care this office, and for this service we shall make no charge whatever.

Artistes and others for whom letters are waiting can obtain them either by calling or sending an addressed envelope. Letters for the following are waiting at this office:—

George Foley, Faith Bevan, Esme Kavanagh, Winifred Sadler, Elizabeth Atterbury, Daisy Burrell, Barbara Everest, Walter Forde (two letters), Maud Cressall, Elizabeth Brandt, Beatrice Chester, M. P. Prout, Marion Dyer, Ethel Callanan.

CENSOR DECISIONS

The undermentioned films have been submitted to the British Board of Film Censors and passed during the month ending September 30. "U" indicates that the film has been passed for universal exhibition; "A" for adult audiences.

"The Fifth Form at St. Dominic's" (Davidson), 6,886 ft. "U."

"Love at the Wheel" (Master), 5,000 ft. "U."

"Miss Charity" (Master), 6,000 ft. "U."

"Mr. Justice Raffles" (Hepworth), 5,810 ft. "U."

"The Prey of the Dragon" (Stoll), 5,300 ft. "A."

"Squibs" (Welsh-Pearson), 5,527 ft. "U."

"Pansy" (Hepworth), 5,570 ft. "U."

"Tilly of Bloomsbury" (Samuelson), 5,200 ft. "U."

Where they are and

Percy Anthony is in "Topsy Turvy."

Gwyneth Roden plays female lead in "The Lonely Road" (North British).

Georges Dunstall is director of productions for Sterling Photoplays.

A. Harding Steerman has been playing in "The Corner Man" for Harma.

Robert Gordon Craig is to play Geoffrey in "Topsy Turvy" for Bertram Phillips.

Alfred H. Moses is chief cameraman to George Ridgewell on the Sherlock Holmes series.

Martin Thornton is taking his final scenes in the studio for "The Lamp in the Desert" (Stoll).

Einar G. Bruun is back at the Harma Studio, where he is working on "The Corner Man."

Robert Fenemore has completed his dual rôle in "The Lonely Road" for North British Productions.

Harley Knoles is now active on the floor at the Alliance studio, working on scenes in "The Bohemian Girl."

George Fitzmaurice is cutting and assembling "Three Live Ghosts" (F.P.-Lasky) and casting for "The Man from Home."

Bertram Phillips has completed his arrangements for recommencing production. His next picture will be "Topsy Turvy."

Cyril Percival, who is playing for Arthur Rooke at the Davidson Studio was slightly injured last week, but has now recovered.

Alfred Vandenbosch, the Belgian director, is now cutting and assembling "The Lonely Road," which he has directed for North British.

Edward R. Gordon is now working at the script of a five-reeler which he is to direct under the title of "Repentance." He will shortly be casting.

Clive Brook is back in London from Keighley, where he has been on location for "Shirley" (Ideal), and was present at the Kinema Club meeting last Sunday.

Olaf Hytten will play Jimmy in the new Graham-Wilcox production, "The Wonderful Story." This is the first time that he has played other than "bad-man" rôles for the screen.

John S. Robertson, having finished "Perpetua" for F.P.-Lasky, is now directing the production of "Love's Boomerang," exteriors of which will be secured in Spain during the winter months.

Henry Victor is in "The Old Wives' Tale."

Chrissie White has been in Devon on location for Hepworth.

Patricia Francis is in the cast of "The Corner Man" (Harma).

Nina Oldfield has a part in "Topsy Turvy" (Bertram Phillips).

Fay Compton is one of the leads in "The Old Wives' Tale" (Ideal).

William J. Elliott, having completed the adaptation and scenario of "The Shadowy Third," has finished his contract to write exclusively for Stoll. He has done over sixty reels for Stoll in the last twelve months.

Joe Nightingale has a part in "Shirley" (Ideal).

Jack Cameron is playing lead in Sterling Photoplays' later productions.

George Calliga, who played the young gipsy in "Cherry Ripe," is now on the free list.

Elliott Dexter has arrived in this country from America and is to play for F.P.-Lasky at Islington.

L. G. Egrot has been turning on a comedy for Albert Brouett, and is now with Graham-Wilcox as chief cameraman on "The Wonderful Story."

Kate Carew has been engaged to play in "Sinister Street," the new Ideal production, which George A. Beranger is directing (Fryer and Roger booking).

Adelqui Millar is co-directing "Circus Jim," the new Granger-Binger production, with B. E. Doxat-Pratt, and is also playing male lead. It is his own story.

Tony Fraser has just finished the Waziri spy part in "The Lamp in the Desert" for Stoll. He also acted as technical adviser to Martin Thornton on Indian costumes and sets for the production.

Georges Treville is to direct productions for a new company, "Treville Pictures Ltd.," which has been formed with a capital of £50,000. Hadon Cave is managing director, and studios have been obtained.

John Kelt is in "The Old Wives' Tale."

Marie Munro is playing female lead for Sterling.

Mabel Terry Lewis is playing for Ideal in "Shirley."

Madge Tree has just completed work in a new Progress film.

Mary Brough is playing in "The Old Wives' Tale" (Ideal).

Mary Dibley is in Devon on location for "The Bargain" (Hepworth).

Bernard Vaughan is in the cast of "Topsy Turvy" (Bertram Phillips).

Marjorie Day has fixed up with Ideal to play in "Sinister Street" (Fryer and Rodger booking).

William Van Der Veer, a prominent Dutch stage actor, plays the circus proprietor in "Circus Jim."

A. V. Bramble has returned to Elstree from Yorkshire, where he has been on location for "Shirley."

Jack H. Ross, the cameraman, is at the moment on the free list. Letters c/o this office will find him.

Florence Turner signalises her return to the British screen by playing lead in Ideal's "The Old Wives' Tale."

Denison Clift is now in the thick of his work at the Ideal Studios, where he is directing "The Old Wives' Tale."

Norman Page makes a welcome reappearance in the studio by playing an important part in Ideal's "The Old Wives' Tale."

Mrs. Hayden Coffin has been engaged by Bertram Phillips to play Lady Stanford in his forthcoming production, "Topsy Turvy."

Eileen Moore plays an important rôle in George A. Beranger's first production for Ideal, "Sinister Street" (Fryer and Roger booking).

Mary Dibley has returned to town from Wales, where she has been playing in exteriors for Hepworth in "The Bargain." Her part is that of the authoress in "Simple Simon."

Peter Dear, the boy who appeared in "The Fruitful Vine," has been playing for Will Kellino in "Class and No Class" at the Gaumont Studio and is now working for Maurice Elvey in "The Passionate Friends" (Stoll).

Norman and Jack Doxat-Pratt, the small sons of B. E. Doxat-Pratt, are both playing in "Circus Jim," and have made good friends with the dog, the parrot and the monkey also appearing in this story of circus life.

Sydney Folker is with Harma as art director, and designed and carried out the settings for "The Corner Man," as well as playing the juvenile character part. He also acted as art director to International Artists in "The Night Hawk."

TITLING SPECIALIST

Expert in handwritten work.

English or American Style.

G. T. SHEARMAN, Bentinck Road, Nottingham

what they are doing

Cynthia Murturgh is to play for Artistic.

Harry Drake is playing in the new Davidson film.

Ada Palmer is in the cast of the latest Artistic production.

Dorothy Cummings is appearing in a new F.P.-Lasky picture.

A. B. Imeson will play in "The House of Peril" for Kenelm Foss.

John Barrymore is over in England shooting scenes for a new production.

Edward Groc is in charge of the photographic work for Sterling Photoplays.

C. Tilson Chowne has just finished with Stoll, and is disengaged at the moment.

Sir Simeon Stuart has been engaged for an important part in Hardy's "The Scourge."

Douglas Munro has been engaged to play for Arthur Rooke in his Davidson production.

Roy Travers has been booked for "The House of Peril," which Kenelm Foss is to direct.

William Stack has been engaged by Sid Jay to play in "The Scourge," the new Hardy film.

Dennis Wyndham has just completed the part of Jeff Ironside in "The Eleventh Hour" (Stoll).

Frank Granger is responsible for the photographic work on Artistic's new series of one-reel features.

Nico de Jong, who has played in many of the Granger-Binger productions, will be seen in "Circus Jim."

Amy Verity will be seen in a leading rôle in George A. Beranger's Ideal production (Fryer and Roger booking).

Frank Miller is the author of "Topsy Turvy," which is to be the story of the next Bertram Phillips production.

W. A. (Billy) Bowman is assistant director to A. Parker, who is directing John Barrymore, the American actor of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" fame.

Billie Bristow, the publicity expert, whose photo we printed on this page last week, is open to accept commissions to conduct artistes' personal publicity.

Kenelm Foss completed his "All Roads Lead to Calvary" last week, and is now preparing the scenario and settings for his next, which will be "The House of Peril."

Bertram Burleigh is finishing his last scenes for Kenelm Foss in "All Roads Lead to Calvary" (Thompson), in which he has been playing Bob Phillips, a Labour M.P.

Hubert Woodward, who was hurt while playing Sam Weller in "Pickwick Papers," has now recovered. Sam Weller is his first screen part, and he has already received other flattering offers.

Guy Graham is in "The Scourge."

Ruby de Remer has arrived in England.

A. Parker is directing John Barrymore in his new production.

Anna Q. Nilsson plays lead in the latest F.P.-Lasky production.

Cecil Cameron has been provided with a good part in Hardy's "The Scourge."

Queenie Thomas has returned to active studio work, and is to play the star part in "Topsy Turvy" for Bertram Phillips.

Victor McLaglan is to appear in the ring again in his new part with Davidson.

Kathleen Vaughan is playing Arabella Ann in "Pickwick Papers," which Tom Bentley is directing for Ideal.

DO YOU KNOW?

That Guy Newall sails for New York with "The Bigamist" next Wednesday? and—

* * *

If there is any deeper significance in his trip?

* * *

Who will play "Peter Pan" for F.P.-Lasky? and—

* * *

If it will be an immigrant from the American studio?

* * *

Whether Henry Edwards intends to make a film without sub-titles? and—

* * *

If he will succeed—or if he ought to?

* * *

What is the nature of the obstructionist element in the way of Screen Plays' "Kitchener" film? and—

* * *

If the intervention is legitimate or unwarrantable?

* * *

The name of the London jazz-drummer who is going to make a film? and—

* * *

If he has bought a S.H. camera, 2,000 feet of negative and rented a room for the purpose?

Charles Ashton is with Artistic.

Ernest Hendrie is to play lead for Artistic.

Johnny Butt has been booked by Artistic.

F. Manning Haynes is to direct one-reelers for Artistic.

Fotheringham Lyons is playing in "The Scourge" (Hardy).

Humberstone Wright is playing for Hardy in "The Scourge."

Geoffrey Malins has commenced the direction of "The Scourge" for Hardy.

Polly Emery has been engaged by Artistic to play lead in its one-reel features.

Julia Mackay is playing one of the two female parts in "The Scourge" (Hardy).

Harding Steerman has been re-engaged by Hardy for the new production, "The Scourge."

Betty Doyle is finishing her part as second lead for Will Kellino in "Class and No Class" (Gaumont).

A. Button is responsible for the scenario of "The Aspirants," which Georges Dunstall is directing for Sterling.

Hugh Croise has finished "Four Men in a Van" for Direct, and is engaged on the preliminaries of another production.

Henry Edwards paid a visit to Exeter last week with his Hepworth company, securing exteriors for his latest production.

Lydia Hayward is responsible for the scenario of the one-reeler that Artistic is to make from W. W. Jacobs' book.

Booth Conway (uncle to Godfrey Tearle) has been engaged to play an important part in "Topsy Turvy" (Bertram Phillips).

Molly Adair has been engaged by George Beranger to play Sylvia Scarlett in "Sinister Street," which he is directing for Ideal.

Fay Compton has been engaged for "The House of Peril." She will play the part that Emily Brooks played in the original stage play.

Beatrice Anderson has been offered an important part in "The Scourge," which Geoffrey Malins is directing for Hardy at Worton Hall Studios.

Joan Morgan signed a contract with Stoll this week to play lead in "The Truants," and commences work on Monday. She goes to Thompson on November 28 to co-star with Stewart Rome.

TYPING—'Phone Regent 4747

"SPEEDAC" STENOGRAPHIC BUREAU
41, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.1.

Usual terms. Typing all classes: Authors' MS., Film Scenarios a speciality under expert supervision. Write, 'phone or call for quotation.

Proprietor—P. F. Buckle—Dictation Room.

FIGHTING THE FOG

CLEVER DEVICE FOR WASHING THE AIR AT F.P.-LASKY STUDIO

THERE can hardly have been a more interesting instance of necessity stimulating inventive faculties than that which has during the last six or seven months brought forth the fog-condensing apparatus at the Islington studios of the Famous Players Lasky British Producers.

When this company determined to produce in England, the difficulties of climate seem to have been only partly realised.

While Donald Crisp was working on "Appearances" in the autumn of 1920, the abnormal fogs probably caused the company a loss of about £11,000. This was in spite of the use of condenser pipes and the sealing up of the building 24 hours before starting work.

Major Charles H. Bell, the general manager, therefore called in the assistance of W. E. Riley, who for twenty years has been chief architect to the London County Council, and is responsible for large ventilating installations, such as that of the Underground. Later S. L. Groom, of the Carrier Engineering Company, submitted a practical tender for a Carrier humidifier.

For six or seven months Messrs. Riley, Groom and Bell have been working during the day and planning and cogitating far into the night over this problem. The final result, after three separate attempts, now is, according to Major Bell: "We have a system and plant which has solved the question of continuous photographic production in England—a plant which automatically answers to a variation in temperature of one degree. There is not a day on which we shall not be able to make pictures. In fact, the thicker the fog the better we shall like it.

"At the same time the plant maintains a given temperature and a certain percentage of humidity, namely, 8 degrees of outside wet bulb temperature.

"Automatic control is the most notable characteristic of the apparatus, it being so sensitive that on the lighting of the arc lamps the raising of the temperature one or two degrees is instantly registered. The plant is designed to circulate three and a half million cubic feet of washed pure atmosphere per hour, the air being drawn from outside or re-circulated from inside as required.

"First the air is brought into a large mixing chamber and meets with a series of obstructions designed to break up any pockets in the atmosphere which might tend to uneven distribution. It then comes up against a series of 180 sprays, thus becoming saturated. Next there is a second set, with eliminator plates, and then a second bank of eliminators, which are washed by a sheet of water at very high pressure in such a way that any particle of foreign matter, made to adhere to the plates by a series of obstructions, is washed down into the main in the base of the humidifier.

"A second series of 164 sprays then come into contact with the air, these being fed by a circulating pump at a pressure of 60 lbs. This secondary washing ensures that, before the final elimination, no particles of atmosphere shall be permitted to pass this point without being thoroughly saturated.

"Then the air passes through a further series of eliminators before reaching the main heating battery.

"At this point the atmosphere is in complete saturation, without any particles of moisture being held in suspension.

"Low pressure boilers in the basement supply steam for the series of heating banks, this being controlled in a similar way to the atmosphere, so that only the correct percentage of steam is admitted to the banks to give the temperature required, which is indicated on the thermostatic boards on the studio stage.

Passing the main battery the air is distributed by a large centrifugal fan, which displaces a volume of three and a half million feet per hour and forces it into the studio at certain intervals along the walls at a pressure low enough to ensure there being no raising of dust, there being fifteen main outlets in each studio.

"Perhaps the greatest point in the control of atmosphere for photographic purposes is the being able to vary it according to the conditions in the studio, which change every minute of the day. For instance, when the arc lamps are brought into use not only is intense heat given off but also an enormous amount of carbon vapour, which has to be dealt with by a process of washing. Otherwise it would photograph, to the detriment of the picture.

"In itself the plant is sufficiently controlled by automatic gear so that the lighting of even three or four Kleig lights changes over the plant to meet the altered conditions."

Here Major Bell had the motor (35 h.p.) put to work and demonstrated the air-washing and circulation. He further explained:—

"To a great extent the volume of air to go into the studio is regulated by a thermostat dewpoint control fitted in the humidifier. Should it start to rain, the thermostat would automatically close the outside control to the proportion required to maintain the same humidity as at present."

Once again Major Bell gave a demonstration—this time at the main control board—a wonderfully complicated structure wonderfully simple to work. This communicated, as by magic, with the damper which regulated the proportion of the outside and inside air to be circulated.

"A thermostat control," he continued, "is also fitted on the studio board, which acts on a main 4-inch steam valve and is set for whatever temperature is required, automatically closing the main steam valve when such temperature has been reached."

There has been added difficulty in carrying the large galvanised iron air-ducts into the studios owing to the solid structure of the walls (the building having been formerly used for a generating station), in some parts three feet thick.

"On a foggy day, would the doors have to be kept tightly shut?" Major Bell was asked.

"Not at all," he replied. "Owing to the air-pressure in the studio being rather greater than that outside (that is owing to the creation of a plenum) the tendency always is for the draught to be outwards."

One more improvement will, Major Bell considers, be necessary before next summer, the installation of a small refrigerating plant. "You cannot get a dewpoint lower than the water temperature," he points out.

Control Board of the Anti-Fog Device

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for Kinematograph Productions. Phone—London W'all 7568

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Being the Sayings of People who Matter and of some who do not Matter.

"The only book carried by a passenger was 'The Lunatic at Large.' He asked me if I had read it. I said I'd heard of it."—HENRY EDWARDS.

* * *

"... I questioned the child and learned that she had been terrified by a facial close-up."—GEORGE HUGHES.

* * *

"The Kinema director, dominated always by commerce, grabs the film rights and there you are."—F. RUPERT CREW.

* * *

"I hope... that the artistic and the delightfully romantic side of screen craft will be preserved."—LADY EMILY LUTYENS.

* * *

"As I sat, sick and giddy, I wondered how many others were echoing my fervent prayer: 'Heaven save us from another "All-Hepworth" program.'"—CECIL M. HEPWORTH.

* * *

"If a film is bad, the director knows it and should not object to other people expressing his own real opinion."—GUY NEWALL.

* * *

"Until film directors find strong support from the banks, this wonderful industry will be handicapped."—ARRIGO BOCHI.

* * *

"Sir Oswald Stoll—and if ever I mention that name I do so with great reverence."—JEFFREY BERNERD.

* * *

"Twenty Guineas?—Too Little!"—MARESCO MARISINI.

* * *

"Working with watertight compartments may be one way to produce a picture, but it isn't the way to produce a good picture."—ALFRED H. MOSES.

* * *

"The few bits you have added (to my novel 'General John Regan'), are bits that I sincerely wish I had written myself."—"GEORGE A. BIRMINGHAM" to William J. Elliott.

* * *

"I used to hate the idea of film acting."—C. TILSON CHOWNE.

* * *

"The successful actress does not act."—SYDNEY FAIRBROTHER.

* * *

"Londoners are not yet used to the motion-picture camera."—KENELM FOSS.

* * *

"It is always a pleasure to an artiste to find his work the subject of intellectual observation."—REX DAVIS.

Mr. HERBERT MAULE,

Riding Master,

PUTNEY RIDING ESTABLISHMENT,

Horses supplied to film companies: riding lessons given. Terms moderate.

'Phone PUTNEY 1984.

STUDIO

New Companies.

B.R. LTD. (177,045).—Private company. Registered September 30. Capital, £1,050 in 1,000 preferred shares of £1 each and 1,000 deferred shares of 1s. each. To carry on the business of theatre, opera house, music hall, cinematograph theatre and exhibition proprietors and agents, etc., in the United Kingdom or elsewhere. The subscribers (each with one preference share) are: Daisy V. Turner, 5A, Morgan Mansions, Holloway, N.7, private secretary; A. L. Dunning, Bankside, Chesham, Bucks, secretary. The first directors are to be appointed by the subscribers. Qualification £1. Remuneration £100 each per annum (chairman £150), free of income tax. Solicitors, Amery Parkes and Co., 18, Fleet Street, E.C.

BRITISH PRODUCTIONS, LTD. (177,067).—Private company. Registered October 1. Capital, £10,000 in £1 shares. To carry on the business of theatre proprietors and managers, producers of operas, stage and cinematograph and moving picture plays, and musical and dramatic performances and entertainments, etc. The subscribers (each with one share) are: H. Brooks, 2, Paper Buildings, Temple, E.C.4, solicitor; W. R. Semhen, 2, Paper Buildings, Temple, E.C.4, solicitor. The subscribers are to appoint the first directors. Registered office: 9, King's Bench Walk, Temple, E.C.4.

PHOENIX FILM CO., LTD.—Private company. Registered September 26. Capital, £2,000 in £1 shares. To carry on business as film producers, picture hall proprietors, etc. The subscribers (each with one share) are: J. Hubbard Clarke, J.P., B. C. Gibbs, G. Horan, R. Morrison, E. S. Hicks. The first directors are: J. H. Clarke, J.P., B. C. Gibbs, G. Horan, R. Morrison, and E. S. Hicks. Secretary: B. C. Gibbs (pro tem). Registered office: 174A, Gt. Brunswick Street, Dublin.

SYDNEY BLOW AND ARTHUR BARUGH, LTD.—Private company. Registered September 22. Capital, £6,300, in 6,000 ordinary shares of £1 each and 6,000 deferred shares of 1s. To carry on the business of plays and dramatic works, proprietors of dramatic cinematograph theatres or music halls, restaurant proprietors, licensed victuallers, vendors of wines, spirits and tobacco, etc. The subscribers (each with 500 ordinary shares) are: Sydney Blow, Arthur T. Barugh. Table "A" mainly applies. Solicitor and secretary: (pro tem) J. Moverley Sharp. Registered office: 75-7, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

SONOFILMS, LTD.—Private company. Registered September 20. Capital, £2,075, in 2,000 preferred shares of £1 each, and 1,400 founders' shares of 1s. each. To adopt an agreement with H. E. Hartley, and to acquire and turn to account world's patent rights and subsequent improvements therein for synchronising cinematograph films with gramophones or other sound producing instruments. The first directors are: A. N. Smith, T. Morris, H. E. Hartley. Qualification 100 shares. Registered office: 30, Gerard Street, W.1.

LINCOLN STUDIO, LTD. (177,074).—Private company. Registered October 1. Capital, £1,000 in £1 shares. To acquire the business carried on at 148 and 149, Holborn Bars, E.C., as "Isograph and Rudds Camera Service," and to carry on the business of artists, designers, photographers, advertisement agents and writers, art exhibitors, art gallery and exhibition proprietors, cinematographers, etc. The first directors are: S. P. Dobbs, 8, Shaftesbury Avenue, New Barnet, artist; Mrs. R. Dobbs, 8, Shaftesbury Avenue, New Barnet; A. R. Crouch, Redcot, 1, Rutland Road, Wanstead, Essex, artist. Registered office: 148 and 149, Holborn, E.C.

(Others on page 14.)

FINANCE

Mortgages, Charges and Satisfaction

BRITISH AND COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD.—Debenture dated September 15, 1921, to secure £1,000, charged on the company's undertaking and property, present and future, including uncalled capital. Holder: J. B. Lennard, 17, Eldon Street, E.C.

Bankruptcies.

ERNEST ST. JOHN BORHAM, 82, The Drive, Fulham Road, S.W.

Last week creditors interested in the recent failure of the above debtor met at the London Bankruptcy Court.

W. P. Bowyer, the Official Receiver, presided and reported that the debtor, who describes himself as a railway official, early in 1920 joined two others in a film producing concern entitled the Touchstone Films Company. They commenced business at 813, Fulham Road, and each had an equal interest in the business. The debtor, in addition to his one-third share, was also to receive an allowance for services rendered in his governing capacity. They traded together till last May, when his partners left and he had not seen them since. Up to then the business had paid its way, and when his partners left there were practically no liabilities. He had since run the business on his own account, and his present position was due to the cost of entertaining in connection with the film company and to the debtor having lived beyond his means. He estimated his liabilities at £700 or £800, and he expected his assets, which consisted of his interest in an advertising film entitled "The Man Who Wouldn't But Did," to produce £800.

Resolutions were passed for Bankruptcy and the appointment of F. S. Salaman, 192, Buckler Street, as trustee.

LATEST CLUB NEWS

Last Tuesday evening the Temporary Committee met at 85, Long Acre, under the chairmanship of Frank A. Tilley, and received H. Parker, who laid before the committee certain proposals relating to club premises which he had to offer. The Chairman and the Hon. Secretary were deputed to visit the premises, and report to the committee at its next meeting.

The names of the following ladies were put up for election as members of the committee:—Mrs. Hayden Coffin, Dorothy Fane, Florence Turner, Kate Gurney, Mary Brough, Mrs. D. Christie Murray, Thelma Murray, Mary Odette, Betty Balfour, Amy Verity, Sydney Fairbrother, and Madge Stuart.

It was decided to invite British producing firms and others to subscribe to the Fund that was opened on Sunday. Frank A. Tilley (editor of the Kinematograph Weekly) was appointed as temporary trustee.

The next meeting of the committee will be held at 92, Long Acre, on Tuesday next, October 25, at 8 p.m., when the applications for membership will be considered, and, if successful in passing the Qualifications Committee's tests, will be elected to membership. These successful applicants will be the foundation members, and their annual subscription will be only three guineas, as well as being free of entrance fee. Those who are elected subsequently will not obtain the benefit of these concessions.

We are asked to direct attention to the Application Form in this issue, and urge all who are desirous of joining the club to post it to the Hon. Secretary at once so that the applications can be considered at Tuesday's meeting. This is important.

BRITISH ART FILMS' AFFAIRS

BRITISH ART FILMS, LTD. (Princes Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford).—In pursuance of the provisions of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, a meeting of the creditors of the above was held recently at the offices of the liquidator, Guildhall Chambers, London, E.C.

The statement of affairs presented showed liabilities of £10,161 17s. 8d., of which £1,509 9s. 8d. was due to preferential creditors, the balance of £8,652 8s. being due to the trade and other unsecured creditors. The assets were estimated to realise £1,996 15s. 3d., or a deficiency so far as the creditors were concerned of £8,165 2s. 5d. The assets comprised cash in hand, 10s. 8d.; equity in lease, £889 4s. 7d.; films, £1,000; and unpaid calls, £107.

It appeared that there was also a fully secured creditor for £500, who held a bill of exchange for a similar amount.

The lease was in process of sale for £1,000, but the solicitors claimed a lien in respect of costs to the extent of £110 10s. 5d. With reference to the films, "Glad Eye" was valued at £1,500. It was estimated that there were expenses for £500, leaving an equity valued at £1,000. The company was also said to have an interest in the future bookings of "Shadow of Evil," and also an interest in the rights of production of Sax Rohmer's "Sins of Severac Bablon," but no value was placed in the statement of affairs at the moment. It was expected, however, that the interests in these films would produce something substantial.

The liabilities included trade creditors claims of something like £2,230, while over £6,000 was due to the directors. The company was formed in October, 1919, with a nominal capital of £30,000, divided into 100,000 shares of 1s. each, and 25,000 preference shares of £1 each. The company was formed to acquire the lease of the premises at Kew Bridge, and the vendors were paid £3,750 by the issue of fully paid shares. The issued capital of the company was £22,725, of which £107 was unpaid. There had been issued 17,757 shares of £1 each, and 99,360 shares of 1s. each.

It was further stated that some time ago an attempt was made to carry through a scheme for securing the creditors claims by the issue of debentures. The matter, however, fell through, and creditors issued execution, and a substantial portion of the assets was seized and sold by the Sheriff for a sum of £400 to £500.

No resolution was passed by the creditors, and therefore the voluntary liquidation of the company will be continued with the liquidator appointed by the shareholders.

The following are creditors:—Brentford Gas Co. (£15), Brentford Electric Supply Co. (£399), Brentford Timber Co. (£104), E. W. Burgess (£6), British Oak Insurance Co. (W. W. Powell) (£35), Chromatic Film Printers, Ltd. (£301), W. G. Clarke (£24), Electrical Maintenance Co. (£18), Empire Printing and Publishing Co. (£8), Financier and Bullionist (£50), Federated Employers' Insurance Association (£44), Girdlestone and Co. (£310), General Electric Co. (£50), A. J. Hill, Vellacott and Co. (£78), Kay Film Printing Co. (£7), John Line and Sons (£148), Lockiner and Bamberger (£110), Mercie et Cie. (£27), New System Private Telephone Co. (£171), Pullinger and Wade (£8), W. G. Spiers (£6), Robert Somerville (£250), Watkins and Harding (£27), T. G. Weston (£8), Directors' Fees (£257), A. Bocchi (£2,201), J. Reardon (£2,360), Chas. Reeves (£1,227), salaries and wages of staff in excess of preferential (£375).

PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Continued from Back Page.

Thompson Productions.

ADDRESS: B & C Studios, Walthamstow.

FILM: "All Roads Lead to Calvary."

DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.

STARS: Mary Odette, Bertram Burleigh.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Graee Rose.

SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.

EDITOR: John Miller.

CAMERAMAN: John Parker. TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "The Chink in the Armour."

DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss. TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Casting.

Temple Productions.

ADDRESS: Catford Studios, S. E.

MANAGER: Maurice Edmonds.

FILM: "Some Truth."

DIRECTOR: Bannister Merwin.

STAR: A. Bromley Davenport.

SCENARIST: Bannister Merwin.

CAMERAMAN: Harold Bastiek.

TYPE: Three Reel Comedy.

STAGE: Third week.

SCREEN - SPORT

by VICTOR McLAGIAN

We are a sports-loving nation—we are known throughout the world as a land of sportsmen—let us, therefore, have as many sports as possible introduced on the screen, but please let those who direct and act in these films know something of sports.

Recently I have seen several sporting dramas dealing with boxing and racing—in none of these films could the actors box or ride well, and it was very obvious that the director knew little of the games by the technical errors which crept in here and there.

Maybe that the average picturegoing public does not know sufficient of the technical side of these sports to notice the mistakes in a film of this description. However, a thing worth doing at all is worth doing well—and to do it well does not take much more time and trouble.

There is something very attractive about the sporting film—both from the actors' and the public's point of view. To my mind the sporting film in a Kinema program is like a breath of country air to the city worker. Not only is it a complete change from the domestic or society drama, but if the story is a good, clean one, the sporting film can be both refreshing and uplifting.

Too long have sports been foolishly regarded as a happy hunting-ground for crooks and wasters—it is in the majority of cases a fallacy, founded on lightly-spoken rumours. But there is no smoke without fire, and there is the possibility that English sports may lose all their attraction by becoming purely and simply commercial propositions.

This must not be—the whole spirit of sport is lost immediately it becomes a profession and nothing more. There is no better way of preserving the real sporting spirit than through the medium of the screen. The audience at a football match is small in comparison with the crowds that can be reached through the picture theatre—and therefore the sporting film can be an influence for good or bad.

DONALD CRISP'S LAST BRITISH LOCATION

Centre: Donald Crisp with Al. Kaufman (right), Gen. Manager of European Productions for F.P.-L., and Robert E. MacAlarney, F.P.-L. British Producers, Ltd.

Seated: Mary Glynne, in the costume of Flora Campbell, with Margaret Turnbull, scenarist (left).

SUBTLETIES AND SLEDGEHAMMERS

A British producing firm which intended to produce "Cash On Delivery," has now postponed it. It often happens thus in these hard times.

* * *

In the story of a film that is being directed in this country a woman has to cut down a tree. We suppose that the male lead has to sing "For she's a jolly good feller"?

* * *

Live within your income—you cannot live without it.

* * *

One screen aspirant told the casting director that she had worked in a munition factory. And so, we take it, had got tired of handling small screws.

* * *

After the Kinema Club meeting last Sunday some one confided to us that "film artistes were seething in the studios." Or, in other words, beginning to see things.

* * *

You rise, not on the plan of pushing others out but on the idea of pulling others up.

* * *

Speaking of the late war, Rex Davis says that "Germany discovered that a retiring disposition was not incompatible with sound strategy." Will some of the flapper-aspirants that besiege our studios inwardly digest this, please?

* * *

One of our larger studios had an advert. in the Press last week for two all-round handy men. But they can't be found in these days of light rations and tight belts.

* * *

PERVERTED PROVERBS: "Fools dash in where agents fear to tread."

* * *

Dare we congratulate one or two well-known figures in the producing business on "giving themselves heirs"?

* * *

At the Glasgow Trade show last week "The Imperfect Lover" was announced, but was displaced by "The Greatest Love." Evidently the greater includes the less.

* * *

Over the door of a certain studio manager's office is a horse shoe. Is this for luck in view of the fact that it cannot make both ends meet?

* * *

Nonsense is neither capable of being contradicted, nor can it be answered. Therefore it is neither true nor false.

* * *

At the Lasky studios at Islington there is an epidemic of gum-chewing. Is this a chivalrous attempt to make the American members of the staff feel at home?

* * *

Old Moore predicts the end of the world to take place in 3128 A.D. We must ask J. Stuart Blackton to hasten the Trade show of his colour film so that two such important events do not clash.

* * *

One could tolerate the queues of screen-struck outside the B. and C. studios if there were any ex-queues.

HOW THE AGENT FEELS

by SIDNEY JAY

I do not think there are many people in the Trade, who regard the work of a kinema agent as easy. If any do exist, let me proceed to disillusion them.

In the first place, the kinema agent does not have any set hours of business. If a call comes through at a late hour for a certain type to be at the studio the following morning, the agent must settle down to work and by means of messenger boys, telegrams and telephones, find the man or woman required.

It is a strange thing that artistes are never to be found when they are wanted. When Mr. Snooks is in the office a call never comes through for a butler, but whenever Mr. Snooks leaves the office, I have three or four directors ringing up for him to play a butler part—he is nowhere to be found then.

Some artistes are lucky, they arrive at the office just as a crowd scene is being cast; others arrive just after it has been cast, and then they want to argue that I had their address and should have phoned them, even although I was only given half an hour to cast the crowd.

It is hardly a pleasant job to be continually refusing people work. I cast many people each day, but there are just as many turned away as useless and I cannot make jobs for them.

Some artistes are no trouble at all, others insist on running up to me in the street, when I am busily engaged in conversation with a director, maybe, and asking if there is anything doing. Artistes of this stamp have evidently got together to conspire to make my life a perfect misery!

Many a time I have turned away from a theatre, where I intended to spend the evening, simply because I saw Jerry Blank standing in the vestibule and because I knew what a treat was in store for me if he fixed himself with me for the evening!

Although the work of a kinema agent has its sad side, like everything else, there is always a bright side as well. Casting cats, dogs, horses, Punch and Judy shows, circuses, etc., provide quite a lot of amusement and quite as much anxiety. Directors ring up for all kinds of things, and so far, I think, I can boast that I have not yet been unable to supply them with whatever it was they wanted, whether it be a studio or a circus, a performing dog or a race-horse.

Personally, I always try to do all I can for all the artistes on my books, but I cannot do the impossible. I look forward to the day when every artiste will be able to find work. Next time I tell you that there is nothing doing, remember that I have no reason for telling you a lie—I benefit to a certain extent, if I can fix you a job, so if there is one going I would fix you as well as anyone else, providing you are the correct type.

PRODUCING IN IRELAND

Discussing the future of film production in Ireland, a writer in the Irish Times says:—"It used to be said of British directors that their films could never rival the American product. The climate was alleged to be unsuitable; there was too little sunshine and too much rain."

The British firms could not alter the climate, but they altered their methods of production, with the result that, after persistent efforts, their pictures are now entering into serious rivalry with the American creations.

What has been done in a few years in Great Britain can surely be accomplished in Ireland. Surely all the national qualities needed for production are here in abundance—picturesque settings, historic associations, and a host of capable and earnest artistes.

What is needed most is a band of experts, fortified by adequate capital, to organise the technical side of the industry. Very little is, in fact, known in Ireland about this phase of Kinematography. The adaptation, scenario writing, setting, staging, acting, and photography of a motion picture provide a very interesting industry, which is capable of great development in Ireland.

There have been spasmodic attempts to produce films in Ireland, but no motion pictures really worthy of Irish national life have been secured. This certainly, in face of all circumstances, seems extraordinary, especially in view of the great influence exercised by Irishmen and Irish traditions and ideals on the English-speaking world.

There is a great market awaiting Irish motion pictures taken from the vast wealth of Irish literature and history, yet no attempt is being made to meet it. That popular fallacy about the climate seems to be the main obstacle to producing in Ireland, as it was until recently in England.

Those who have experience of the art of production declare that splendid pictures can be secured in that country.

"Photography," according to one expert, "can be just as perfect in Killarney as in California. There is a great industry awaiting development here, and it only requires enterprise and employment of the proper technical men to send Irish motion pictures all over the world."

KINE CAMERA EXPOSURE METER

7/8

With Instruction Booklet.

Indicates right lens opening for the light

"Very reliable, could hardly get on without."

"Complete satisfaction used for testing actinic value of flame arcs."

WATKINS METER Co.
HEREFORD.

The Historical Film must be accurately dressed.

We Stock Civil and Military costumes of all known periods. :: ::

"The Call of the Road" and "The Old Curiosity Shop," with their wealth of costume, detail and characteristics of their times, were dressed by us.

Write to-day stating your requirements.

H. & M. RAYNE,
115-119, Waterloo Road,
S.E.1.

WEST END BRANCH: 15, Rupert Street.

In the same manner that the cut and distinction of a suit made in

SAVILE ROW

has over that of ordinary tailors so can our

QUALITY PRINTS

be distinguished from that of ordinary film printers.

VICKERS FILMCRAFT LTD.

89, SHAFTESBURY AVENUE, W.1.

Laboratories :

PARAGON WORKS, 229, ACTON LANE, W.4.

ALWAYS-ON-TIME

'Phones: GERRARD 4045 and
CHISWICK 132

CAMERAMEN AT WORK

A new camera device, which Bert Cann, an American cameraman, is employing, has attracted some attention in the States. The new invention is in the form of an automatic iris. Under the old system of a hand-propelled iris, the cameraman had to turn the crank with one hand and operate the iris with the other. The new automatic iris attached to the camera is operated by a tiny button, and gives a smoothness and clarity not held by the old method, besides lightening the task and concentration of the cinematographer.

Speaking of new inventions reminds me of a conversation I had with a well-known director the other day. "It is funny," he remarked, "that English cameramen never seem to introduce all these little effects on to the screen that we see in American pictures." Personally, I do not see anything funny in it. I regard it as sad. It is not the cameraman's fault, however; the fault lies with the English producing companies. The matter has already been brought up at the K.C.S. meetings. If English cameramen were given more opportunities for experimenting, we might have some effects such as the American pictures contain. If the company set aside a certain sum of money for the cameraman to use in getting new effects into his picture, I feel sure that it would pay well in the long run. As it is, the cameraman has to shoot pictures in rain, fog, sunshine and everything—it saves money!

There was quite a number of cameramen present at last Sunday's Kinema Club meeting. A suggestion was brought forward, that topical cameramen should be excluded from the Club, but the suggestion was put forward by one person only, and there was no one in the hall who received it favourably.

The lecture on the failures and successes of topical cameramen did not materialise after all. Unfortunately, the lecture coincided with the big fight at the Albert Hall, and all the topical men were up there.

Last night Alfred Moses gave a lecture on dye toning at the K.C.S. meeting.

L. G. Egrot is doing the camera work of "The Wonderful Story."

Ross G. Fisher, writing in the International Camera Trade Review, points out the importance of cameramen being allowed to study the script. Before attempting to photograph a production, the script should be carefully studied and the type of the story should determine the kind of photography. All photographic effects should be worked out beforehand. Soft focus effects should not be used indiscriminately with clear scenes. If a soft focus close-up is needed, the logical thing is to prepare the eye for it by using the same kind of photography in the preceding long and medium shots. Then the close-up comes without a jar.

Another effective use of soft focus is to apply it to an actor when moving away from the centre of action, thus keeping the attention on the remaining individual who is to proceed with the action.—"TRIPOD."

YOUR CORNER

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Questioner Questioned

M. P. Prout asks what I think of the Barden white flame arc. In my experience I have always found they give a much crisper image than any Westminsters. The reason, being only a cameraman, I am afraid is beyond me.

Do I think there is anything wrong with the present systems of artificial lighting? While not at the perfect stage, they are "good enough," but, Mr. Prout, there is much to be learned in the arrangement of lamps.

Believing that to see much is to learn much. I make it my business to attend picture shows at least three times a week, and my observations force me to enquire if Mr. Prout saw anything wrong in the lighting of "The Virgin of Stamboul," "Two Minutes to Go," or "The Right to Love," all of which I saw during the last week or so.—BASIL W. EMMOTT.

DRESSING THE CAST

Extract from the publicity material issued by a certain British producing company:—"To provide costumes approximate to the London of the 16th century for nearly 1,000 people is one of the difficulties with which the Blank Film Company will have to contend during the production of its forthcoming picture."

But difficulties like this are removed when L. Benjamin and Co. is consulted.

East is East and West is West, and for years Benjamin has been the recognised theatrical costumiers of the East, but in all probability, before many months, it will also have to be recognised among the West End costumiers, for it is under the impression that many directors, who know full well they could get their requirements from the firm, leave them as a last resource because it is slightly "out of the way." Benjamin has a bigger stock on hand to-day than at any previous time, and business is still on the increase. One recent order was for 150 Dickensian costumes to be supplied in two days, and Benjamin kept to its motto: "We never disappoint."

NEW COMPANIES

(Continued from page 11.)

CLAUDE B. YEARSLEY PLAYS, LTD. (177,226).—Private company. Registered October 12. Capital £10,000 in £1 shares (7,000 preference). To carry on the business of producers of musical or other plays and dramatic works, proprietors of dramatic or cinematograph theatres or music halls, etc. The subscribers (each with one preference share) are:—C. B. Yearsley, Strand Theatre, W.C., theatrical manager; C. Gosling, 37, Bury Street, St. James', S.W.1, gent. Claude B. Yearsley is life governing or managing director. Registered office: 75-7, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.

BIOSCOPE FILM SUPPLY CO. (1921), LTD. (177,196).—Private Company. Registered October 10. Capital £500 in £1 shares. To carry on the business of manufacturers of cinematograph and other films, distributors, theatre furnishers, etc. The permanent directors are: F. J. McIntock, 20, Delves, Biggleswade, Beds. (managing director); E. E. Facey, 42, Coombe Road, Sydenham, S.E. Registered office: 135, Wardour Street, W.1.

SAM HARDY.

THE HARDY FILM CO., LTD.

RAFAEL SABATINI.

SAM HARDY BEGS TO ANNOUNCE THAT THE :: WORLD'S RIGHTS OF HIS FIRST PICTURE ::

“BLUFF”

By RAFAEL SABATINI,

Produced under the Direction of GEOFFREY H. MALINS, O.B.E., Photography by GERMAIN BURGER,

HAVE BEEN ACQUIRED BY

The GAUMONT COMPANY, Ltd.,

6, DENMAN STREET, LONDON, W.1.

TRADE SHOWS WILL BE ANNOUNCED SHORTLY.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

JOHN J. COX

44, Barrowgate Road,

:: Chiswick, W.4. ::

'Phone : Chiswick 294.

Cameraman for Maurice Elvey,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD

Cameraman.

AT LIBERTY for First-Class Productions.

1920 Debie Outfit.

All Coms : 4, PERCIVAL PARADE,
WORCESTER PARK.

EDWIN DAY

Motion Picture Photographer,

12, Archer Street, Picca-
dilly Circus, London, W.1.

Telephone : Gerrard 780.

Telegrams : "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON

Thelton House, Cambolt

:: Road, Putney Hill. ::

Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN

"GAUMONT'S,"

105, King's Road,
Kingston-on-Thames.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

FRANK CANHAM

Motion Picture Photographer.

SPA HOTEL MARINE PARADE,
BRIGHTON.

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT

GAUMONT,

:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::

Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT

EXPERT CAMERAMAN.

"The Better 'Ole" etc., "Her Benny" etc.,
"Land of My Fathers."

Offices and Dark Rooms :

2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.

'Phone : Streatham 2966.

ALFRED H. MOSES

Photographing George Ridgwell Productions.

Formerly Chief Cameraman for Thanhauser,
Norma Talmadge, British & Colonial, etc.

Address care of STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS,
Cricklewood.

PHIL ROSS

Cameraman—AT LIBERTY.

Late of BROADWEST, HARMA, VANITY, etc.

19, Mayow Road, Forest Hill,
London, S.E.23.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

WILLIAM SHENTON

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Private Address :

17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,

Boreham Wood, Herts.

HORACE M. WHEDDON,

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Private Address

"LYNTON HOUSE,"

BOREHAM WOOD, HERTS.

JAMES E. ROGERS,

Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth.

"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"

"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"

"Last Rose of Summer,"

PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

JACK H. ROSS,

AT LIBERTY.

"By some unknown means he has secured the largest close up of a carefully lighted human face we have ever seen."—Kine Weekly.

WHAT I DO TO-DAY OTHERS TRY TO-MORROW.
Caledonian Hotel, Harpur St., London, W.C.

You cannot do better than
by placing your orders with

L. BENJAMIN & CO.

99, Middlesex Street, E.

'Phone—London Wall 7568

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Productions and Who is Working on Them

British Photoplay Productions.
ADDRESS: Devon Chambers, 28, Fleet Street, Torquay.
FILM: "Where the Rainbow Ends."
DIRECTOR: H. Lisle Lucoque.
CAMERAMAN: I. Roseman.
STAR: West End Cast.
TYPE: Five-reel drama.
STAGE: Sixth week.

Davidsons.

STUDIO: Lea Bridge Road, Leyton.
FILM: Not Titled.
DIRECTOR: Arthur Rooke.
STARS: Phyllis Shannaw, Victor McLaglan.
CAMERAMAN: Leslie Eveleigh.
SCENARIST: Arthur Rooke.
STAGE: Second week.

Direct Film Traders.

ADDRESS: 87, Wardour Street, W.
FILM: "Four Men in a Van."
DIRECTOR: Hugh Croise.
STAR: Johnny Butt.
SCENARIST: Hugh Croise.
CAMERAMAN: Frank Granger.
TYPE: Feature Comedy.
STAGE: Finished.

Famous Players-Lasky

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.
STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A. Bell, O.B.E.
FILM: "The Man from Home."
DIRECTOR: George Fitzmaurice.
STAGE: First week.

FILM: "Love's Boomerang."
DIRECTOR: John Robertson.
STAGE: First week.

Gaumont

ADDRESS: 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, W. 12.
FILM: "Class and No Class."
DIRECTOR: Will Kellino.
STAR: Pauline Johnson.
STAGE: Fourth week.

Graham-Wilcox Productions.

ADDRESS: 89-91, Wardour Street.
FILM: "The Wonderful Story."
STAGE: Casting.

Hardy.

ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W. 1.
STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isleworth.

FILM: "The Recoil."
DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.
STARS: Eille Norwood.
SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.
CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "The Scourge."
DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.
SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.
CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.
STAGE: Second week.

Harma

ADDRESS: 16, Limes Road, Croydon.
FILM: "The Corner Man."
DIRECTOR: Einar J. Bruun.
STAR: Hugh E. Wright and Ida Lambert.

SCENARIST: Frank Fowell.
CAMERAMAN: A. G. Franguelli.
TYPE: Comedy Drama.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Ideal.

ADDRESS: Boreham Woods, Elstree
STUDIO MANAGER: F. A. Kendrick.
STAGE MANAGER: F. G. Knott.
FILM: "Pickwick Papers."
DIRECTOR: Thomas Bentley.

STAR: Fred Valpé.
CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.
STAGE: Sixth week.

FILM: "The Old Wives' Tale."
DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.
SCENARIST: Denison Clift.
CAMERAMAN: Geoffrey Barkas.
STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: "Shirley."
DIRECTOR: A. V. Bramble.
STAR: Clive Brook.
CAMERAMAN: H. W. Whadden.
STAGE: Fifth week.

FILM: "Sinister Street."
DIRECTOR: George Beranger.
STAGE: Casting.

Kelstor Productions.

ADDRESS: Riverside Studios, Kew.
FILM: "An Episode of Life in Greater London."
DIRECTOR: Kelly Storrie.
STARS: Lilly Ford, Kelly Storrie.
CAMERAMAN: L. G. Egrot.
TYPE: Two-reel Domestic Drama.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.
Masters.
ADDRESS: Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington.
FILM: Song-story Pictures.

DIRECTORS: H. B. Parkinson and W. C. Rowden.

CAMERAMAN: T. R. Thumwood.
STAGE: Two a week.

Rising Sun Productions.

STUDIO: Barker's, Ealing.
FILM: "Eliza's Romeo."
DIRECTOR: Bert Haldane.
STAR: Louie Freear.
TYPE: Comedy.
STAGE: Second week.

Seal.

ADDRESS: Princes Studio, Kew.
FILM: "Jessica's First Prayer."
STAR: C. Hargreave Mansell.
DIRECTOR: Bert Wynne.
STAGE: Fifth week.

Sterling Photoplays.

ADDRESS: 26, Dean Street, W. 1.
FILM: "Dutch Courage."
DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.
STAR: Dorothy Peters.
SCENARIST: Alec McKee.
TYPE: Two Reel Comedy.
STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: Not Titled.

DIRECTOR: George Dunstall.
STAR: Jock Cameron and Marie Munro.

SCENARIST: Georges Dunstall.
CAMERAMAN: Edward Groc.
TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.
STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "The Aspirants."
DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.
SCENARIST: A. Button.
CAMERAMAN: Edward Groc.
TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.
STAGE: Casting.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Criklewood.
STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman.
FILM: "A Romance of Westdale."
DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.
STAR: Milton Rosmer.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "The Passionate Friend."
DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.
STARS: Milton Rosmer, Mdlle. Valia and Fred Raynham.
STAGE: First week.

FILM: "The Lamp in the Desert."
DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.
CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: "A Lost Leader."
DIRECTOR: George Ridgwell.
CAMERAMAN: Alfred Moses.
STAR: Robert English.
SCENARIST: William J. Elliot.
STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: Sherlock Holmes Episodes.
DIRECTOR: George Ridgwell.
CAMERAMAN: Alfred H. Moses.
STAR: Eille Norwood.
STAGE: On Second Episode.

FILM: Half a Truth.
DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.
STARS: Margaret Hope, Irene Rook, Percy Standing.
CAMERAMAN: Adolph Burger.
STAGE: Sixth week.

FILM: "Froggy's Little Brother"
DIRECTOR: A. E. Coleby.
STAGE: Second week.

(Continued on page 12.)

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Arlodre, Hyde, London.

ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.
B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmophio, Ealux.
BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow, E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD., Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clapham Park.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PHOTOPAYS, Devon Chambers, 28 Fleet Street, Torquay.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolongue, 'Phone London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland., London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exclugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012. Studio: Candlemass Lane, Beaconsfield.

GLEN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD., 20, Lisle Street, London, W.C., and "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16 Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.

IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Ideafilms, Borehamwood.

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS FILM CO., LTD., 52 Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

ISLE OF MAN FILM CO., The Manx Studios, Isle of Man.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Criklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).

LAMBART FILMS, Carlton House, Regent Street, London, W. 'Phone: Gerr. 4040.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MINERVA FILM CO., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

REGULUS FILMS: 48, Carraby Street, Regent Street, W.1.

SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton 2956.

SEAL PRODUCTIONS.—Prince's Studio, Kew

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Criklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpic, Crikle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1933—Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMPSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGNTON PHOTOPAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & CO., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

The MOTION PICTURE

Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 21.

Saturday, October 29, 1921.

FOURPENCE

The Organ of all concerned
in the production of
BRITISH MOTION PICTURES

MARY
PATTERSON

Now being featured in six Comedies being produced by MILO FILMS

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."

219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.

Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
'Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.

Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Sonia," "The Knight Errant," "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds."

Address—27 Eccleston Sq., S.W.1. Victoria 2968.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal), "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).
c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

NOW PLAYING MICHAEL FANE in "SINISTER STREET" for IDEAL FILMS.

33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelm Foss Production), "John Herriott's Wife" and "The Breed of the Treshams"

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street. Regent 4329.

PHYLLIS SHANNAW.

Juv. Lead "Call of the Road," "The Right to Live," etc.

Will be shortly disengaged. All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour St., W.1. 'Phone: Regent 4329.

JOHN EAST.
Character Comedy. Tele: Hammersmith 1138, 14, Ifley Road, Hammersmith, W.6.

ARTISTES

FLORA LE BRETON

34, NEVERN SQUARE, EARL'S COURT, S.W.5.

Phone: Western 1936,

HAYFORD HOBBS.

Starring with African Film Productions. Late Juvenile Lead: London Films (three years), Windsor Films (two years), and all leading English Film Companies. All coms.: Box 4514 Johannesburg, South Africa.

ENA BEAUMONT

Leads in "The Greater Love," "The Golden Web," "All the Winners," "Patricia Brent, Spinster," "Our Girls and Their Physique," "Settled in Full," "Watching Eyes," etc. All coms. c/o A. Fraser, 26, Charing Cross Road, W.C.2.

SYDNEY WOOD,

Juv. Leads in "The Warrior Strain," "Her Benny," "Ever Open Door," "Bars of Iron," "The Flame," "The Will," "Double Event," "David and Jonathan," etc. Address—The Laurels Beverley Road, Anerley, S.E.

'Phone: Chancery 7080-7081.

MILES MANDER,

Light, Heavy and Juv. Leads. Modern, aristocratic. Extensive wardrobe. All-round athlete. Now playing Marquis Sallust in "Half a Truth" (Stoll). Disengaged Oct. 15, 1921.

Address, 3, Clifford St., W.1. 'Phone: Regent 1327.

SYBIL GRAY

Latest Films—Lead in "Stolen Jewels" (Haigh Serial White), Gipsy Girl in "Corinthian Jack," Masters, Alliance Films, Ideal and Famous Players-Lasky, etc. Address—Castle House, Hampton, Middlesex. Telephone—Molesey 89.

IRENÉE CRAVEN

LEADS.

Dignified, social sporting characters. Three years experience.

Address—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

WALTER FORDE

Comedian.

ZODIAC FILMS, LTD.

All coms.:—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,
15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.
'Phone: Hornsey 1784.

ARTISTES

TONY FRASER

LEADS.

Specialities:—Oriental and Near Eastern Parts

Just finished with Stoll. "Broken Road," "Four Features," "The Lamp of the Desert."

Address—18, Leinster Sq. W.2. 'Phone—Park 4765.

C. TILSON-CHOWNE

LEADS.

Stoll, Broadwest, Alliance. Screen Plays, Samuelson, Masters, etc.

Address:—21, Westbourne Street, W.2.
'Phone: Paddington 641.

DAVID GREY.

Address—18A, Brixton Road, S.W.

'Phone—Brixton 2372.

J. DENTON THOMPSON

Specialties in Costume Work. Recent films, "Little Dorrit," "Two Little Wooden Shoes." By Erwyn Banks & Christy Johnson, Royalty Theatre, W.

DICK WEBB

(JUVENILE).

Gaumont Masters, Famous Players-Lasky British Productions.

180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

VICTOR McLAGLAN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman, Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road" and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda," "The Headmaster," "Build Thy House," "Wuthering Heights," etc.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

'Phone: Regent 4329

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, etc. STOLL FILM CO.

All coms.: c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1.

LIONELLE HOWARD.

AT LIBERTY.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

ADELINE HAYDEN COFFIN.

Sympathetic Mother, Grande Dames. Character Parts, "Mrs. Gatty," in "Christie Johnstone" (Broadwest), "Margaret Howe" in "Beside the Bonny Briar Bush" (Lasky). 55, Campden St., Kensington, W.8. Tel.: Park 3623.

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
92, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 21

Getting the Focus

Telegram—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

Oct. 29, 1921

Studio in Law.

THIS is not a new kind of relationship. It is a brief discussion on a case which has occupied the Courts during the past week. One of the chief points which arises out of the "Castles in Spain" action was the divergency of views as to what constitutes a "good standard British production." Most of the witnesses agreed that the picture in question was not up to standard, yet others declared that it was a good all-round film, but not a super. If, among the Trade itself there is this difference of opinion, who shall decide whether a critic is wrong when he slates a production, and right when he praises it? One of the points made by Justice Coleridge, in giving judgment, was that this film had been highly praised in advertisements, and from a distributor's point of view that may be a necessary thing to do. But it at least demonstrates the fallacy of objecting to criticism which does not square with the opinions of the publicity department.

* * *

Money.

IN spite of the badness of the economic situation, there is still a certain amount of money coming into film production, judging by the recent registrations of new companies. Concerns with capital ranging from £300 at one end of the list to £16,000 at the other have come into existence, but, in some cases, they are not likely to concern themselves with the making of photoplays, although such possibility is covered by their descriptions. An interesting flotation is one in which two well-known music hall artistes—George Mozart (J. Gillings) and George Leyton are concerned as permanent directors. This company has a purely nominal capital of £300. It will be remembered that George Leyton recently made a Welch production, which was chiefly notable for its photography.

* * *

The Progress of the Club.

A LARGE number of members has been elected, and a general meeting is to be called as soon as convenient. The chief difficulty at the moment is the finding of suitable premises, but the members of the existing Committee are individually and jointly attempting to solve the problem. If any readers know of suitable premises not too remote from Shaftesbury Avenue, they would be doing a great service by passing the information on at once. Suggestions for the name of the Club are still coming to hand, and the best that has so far appeared, as well as the one which seems to meet with most general approval, is the Shadow Club. Have you any ideas for a better title? If so, put them down on a postcard, and send them off at once. The Committee appreciates a little help now and again.

people already in the profession but those "coming into it," makes it absolutely certain that, if successful, this Society would produce a flood of screen struck aspirants, who would do no good to the business, and would inflict on themselves, in the majority of cases, a great deal of unnecessary suffering and disappointment. If Captain Ilven had confined his Society to absolute War Service people already in the profession, it would have been possible to have encouraged it. As the organisation now stands, it appears to be a co-operative employment agency, with more optimism than practicability.

* * *

The Opinion of Captain Hodges.

AT a conference of social workers held last week by the National Organisation of Girls' Clubs, Captain Hodges, of Community Films (an organisation which, we believe, has some connection with the Y.M.C.A.) is stated to have remarked that the "ordinary film actor had an intensely low intelligence." We do not think that the opinion of Captain Hodges matters, either to the film actor or to the public. The point to that his remark has been given wide publicity in the newspapers, and that when mud is slung broadcast, some of it sticks. But what, in any case, are "ordinary film actors"? Does Captain Hodges mean supers? Even if he does, he is wrong. But, supposing he means the average rank and file of screen actors, how does he arrive at his conclusion? Has he come into sufficiently close contact with the majority of film actors to be able to form an opinion? It is certain that he has not, otherwise he would not have given utterance to so ill-informed and grotesque a generalisation. We are certain that Captain Hodges will find, if he cares to attend any representative gathering of film artistes—for example, the next general meeting of the prospective Club—that there are decent intelligent, well-educated and artistic men—and women—in this profession to at least as great an extent as there are in any other.

Kinema Club Notices

LAST Tuesday the Committee, comprising ladies and gentlemen, sat at 93, Long Acre, to consider the applications for membership that have been received. Just under 200 were dealt with, of which 110 were passed. Applicants will be advised as to the Committee's decisions. Those who desire to join the Club should post the application form to be found on page 6 at once, as only those members who are enrolled before Dec. 1 will be able to obtain the concessions due to Foundation members.

A sub-committee has been investigating premises and it is expected that these will be secured in the immediate future. The next meeting of the Committee is due for Tuesday next, November 1, at 8 p.m., at 93, Long Acre (entrance in Wilson Street).

The Services Society.

AS will be seen from an article on another page, Captain Norris Ilven has replied to our recent comments on this organisation. We have no doubt that Captain Ilven is working in perfectly good faith, but the real point, and one on which we must continue to insist, is that it is not even remotely kind to bring into an already over-crowded profession a number of people whose qualifications have yet to be determined. Captain Ilven insists that it is not his object to do this, but his construction of "Service" is so wide that it is inevitable that this addition would happen. It may be a laudable ambition to desire to bind together Service people now in the profession, but the extension of "Service" to include everybody and their families, who did any form of war work, together with the inclusion not only of forthcoming releases.

ARTISTES

MILTON ROSMER'S

"GENERAL JOHN REGAN" (Stoll)
 "ROMANCE OF WESTDALE" "
 "THE POINTING FINGER" "
 "WOMAN OF NO IMPORTANCE" (Ideal)
 'Phone - - - - - Langham 2243.
 16, WEYMOUTH ST., W.1.

GREGORY SCOTT,

2, KENYON MANSIONS,
 WEST KENSINGTON,
 W.

POLLIE EMERY.

DISENGAGED.

"Peach" in "The Case of Lady Camber"
 (Broadwest), "Auntie" in "Nothing Else
 Matters" (Welsh Pearson), "Madam Tour-
 terelle" in "Perpetua" (Famous Players-
 Lasky British Productions).
 7, KENYON MANSIONS, QUEEN'S
 CLUB GARDENS.

PLEASE NOTE CHANGE OF ADDRESS

CLIVE BROOK

12, Abercorn Place, N.W.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh
 Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

HARDING STEERMAN,

Characters of Distinction,

56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,

24, Cleveland Road
Barnes, S.W. 13.

MARJORIE VILLIS.

Exclusive to Harma Photoplays, Limes Rd., Croydon.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,

Character Parts,

57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.

197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph.: Battersea 21.

CRISPIN HAY,

c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,

12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,

Character Actor. Offers invited.

114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

SCENARISTS

ELIOT STANNARD

Scenarios.

85, Holbein House, Sloane
 Square, S.W.1.
 Tele.: Victoria 497.

SCENARISTS

COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,
 :: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,
 Temple Road, Cricklewood.

ARTHUR SHIRLEY,

Dramatist and Scenario Writer.

Films, "Sixty Years a Queen" (Samuelson),
 "My Old Dutch" (Ideal), "Going the Pace"
 (Maurice Tourneur), "Saved from Sea"
 (Gaumont), "Woman and Wine" (World).

Address—

Lyceum Theatre, London W.C. 2.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.
 7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11
 ('Phone: Park 2945).

GERARD FORT BUCKLE

Scenarios.

'Phone: Regent 4747.

41, Glasshouse Street, Regent
 Street, W.1.

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,

Freelance. Adapted & Original. Solendid references.
 62, Foxburne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT

Kinedramatist,

Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

IRENE MILLER,

Novelist, Journalist, Scenarist,

10, Arundel Gardens, W. 11, or Bramlins.

CYRIL E. MURRELL,

Scenarist—Comedy,

Address: C/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO

MURIEL ALLEYNE, Screen Playwright,

Plays sold to Pathé, Hepworth, Barker, M.L.B., Clarendon Universal, etc., Windsor Ho! Amersham, Bucks.

HELEN & THOMAS BLIZZARD

Original Story and Continuity Writers.

Address M.F. STUDIO.

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,

Producing Comedies

BARKERS STUDIOS, EALING.

'Phone No.: Ealing 211.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord,"

"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"

"The Face at the Window."

Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
 Bushey.

DIRECTORS

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer
 of
 "THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address—

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H. MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE,"
 "PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
 "SETTLED IN FULL,"
 "ALL THE WINNERS,"
 "WATCHING EYES,"
 "BLUFF," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
 26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

F. MARTIN THORNTON

Address—84, LEESIDE CRESCENT,
 GOLDERS GREEN, N.W.11.

Latest Productions — "BELONGING,"
 "FRAILTY," "PREY OF THE
 DRAGON," "GWYNETH OF THE
 WELSH HILLS," "LAMP IN THE DESERT."

GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer

THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.

Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,

Hoe St, Walthamstow, E.17.

THIS SPACE TO LET.

£2 10s. for 13 insertions.

ADRIAN BRUNEL,

Producer and Scenario-Writer,

19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone: 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK,

Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
 39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

ALBERT WARD,

Producer—Open to accept engagements.
 3, Ranelagh Grove, S.W.1.

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

In order to advise prospective investors of the possibilities of British film companies, the Financial Mail is conducting an Information Bureau. I notice that its latest dictum is that "so far as producing companies are concerned, the risks attaching to an investment in the majority of them are too formidable and should not be undertaken by laymen." And that's that!

* * *

Some exceedingly striking pictures should be seen in "The Old Wives' Tale," which Denison Clift is directing for Ideal. One, for example, has the cathedral of Notre Dame for its background. Some picturesque scenes were also taken in old Paris, and in its Parisian atmosphere the film should be intensely true to the story. As a matter of fact, "The Old Wives' Tale" was suggested to Arnold Bennett by the sight of two women in a Paris restaurant, one, a waitress—a beautiful pale-faced young girl—the other, an old woman, fat, shapeless, ugly and grotesque. And Arnold Bennett resolved to have two heroines in his book—hence, Fay Compton and Florence Turner.

* * *

The recent heavy rain led to an unrehearsed incident in the filming of a circus scene, staged at Hampstead Heath, for "Love's Boomerang," which J. S. Robertson is producing for F.P.-Lasky. A couple of elephants were housed in a tent adjacent to that of the circus, but both tents were blown down, and for over half an hour the bewildered elephants careered about the Heath in the rain at the unearthly hour of two in the morning. They were quickly recaptured, however, and Major Bell mobilised all available help, with the result that both tents were restored to their original condition within twenty-four hours.

* * *

Visiting the circus on the night of its camera debut I was struck by the consideration and efficiency displayed by the management in providing for the comfort of the staff during the trying hours of night and morning work in a capricious climate. Over six hundred people took part in the scene, and arrangements were made for the transportation of everyone back. All were grouped under the heading of certain districts, and conveyed during the small hours to Hampstead, where the whole party was given a sit-down meal, furnished by a firm of caterers. Each person was further supplied with a cardboard box containing fruit and sandwiches, and there was a buffet open all night where tea and coffee could be obtained. On the first night alone, twenty-six urns of tea and coffee, twenty-four gallons of milk and fifty cases of minerals were served at the buffet.

* * *

At the Crystal Palace last Friday a film was shown for the Fruit Exhibition, and this was arranged by Sidney Jay. He received a telephone message on Monday morning and within an hour he had director, lorries, lamps and all the necessary paraphernalia on the road to Wempele, in Devon, where the scenes were shot and the films finished and shown by the end of the week.

* * *

By the way, I ought to explain that when Cecil M. Hepworth remarked (as per "Wise and Otherwise" in our last issue) "Heaven save us from another all-Hepworth program," it was in the course of an article in The Hepworth Magazine, and was really in condemnation of the frenzied projection which usually accompanies the present two-feature program. I make this explanation not because I think that anyone would imagine that Mr. Hepworth was dissatisfied with his own productions (he has no cause to be!), but in order to join my protest with his against the practice of kinema operators who project the films on to the screen in this mad fashion. The effect of this is to detract from the quality of the production as seen by the spectators and is damaging alike to exhibitors, film directors and artistes.

* * *

Allow me to print the following letter without comment: "I have been trained for kinema acting by the London Academy, 107, Shaftesbury Avenue, and as so many, I am waiting engagement. But as you see not inactive of my score. I don't know which are your powers but if you could recommend me to the one director who would give me a fair trial I would pay gladly 20 per cent. by halves to both you for any engagement."

* * *

Henry Edwards, who is only too glad to be back in harness once more, seems, if possible, more energetic than ever. "The Bargain" was written by him on the Indian Ocean on his way home from China, and since his arrival he has completed the exteriors of a second film in addition. He claims to have covered 2,000 miles in obtaining the exteriors, which are a strong feature of "The Bargain." The setting of "The Bargain" is laid in the Australian wilds and in England. On one occasion Mr. Edwards was compelled to remain wet through for hours on end while being rushed back and forth from the studio scenes in which he appears, in saturated clothes, to the rushing stream from which he is dragged. To the long list of things for which Mr. Edwards has a healthy contempt may evidently be added pleurisy.

* * *

Am interested to hear that "Carnival" has now captured the popular fancy of the Indian kinc-goers. The most recent addition to large Indian kinema theatres is the Madan Theatre, which was opened last month in Calcutta with almost official ceremonial, the ceremony being performed by the Chief Justice of Bengal, who was accompanied by half a dozen of his fellow judges and quite a number of prominent State officials. The theatre opened on September 20 with "Carnival," and it "MEGAPHONE."

ON THE FLOOR

With HAROLD SHAW

The British film industry must always be under a debt of gratitude to Harold Shaw, for he put up the first real milestone in British picture productions with "The House of Temperley," which marked a new era in the picture world, and this production set a standard for many years.

Harold Shaw has a quite unobtrusive method and a very winning way, and he has ideals that Kinema commerce has never destroyed. He directs quietly, showing each artiste what he wants and why he wants it.

To the artiste he has more than once proved a star maker. Studying the personality of his lead, he has contrived more than once to direct them into the very front rank.

Harold Shaw came from America some years before the war and introduced into the British studios an entirely new method, and taught the first lesson that quality came before quantity. He has always had a vast working capital of patience, and what would often disturb and distract others leaves him with his temper in perfect running order.

A shrewd observer with a splendid fund of humour—an almost boyish enthusiasm—a vast knowledge and experience of the ways and means of the picture business, all go to make Harold Shaw a director worth watching.

“EXPLOITING” PATRIOTISM?”

CAPTAIN ILVEN’S “SERVICES CINEMA SOCIETY” BEGINS TO KICK

Recently we printed a lengthy article relating to “The Services Cinema Society,” and this has drawn forth a letter from Captain Norris Ilven, who is the President of the “Society.” He writes:—

“Sensible and creative criticism is very welcome and will be most helpful to all who are joining ‘The Services Cinema Society,’ but you have singularly failed to grasp the salient points of my appeal, copy of which possibly for the correct information of your readers you would care to print, and which I therefore enclose.”

In our previous article we quoted extensively from the booklet issued by the “Society,” but as we desire to be scrupulously fair we accede to Captain Ilven’s request, and re-print his enclosure:—

“I am going to start a Service Cinema Society, and I am going to make it a success.

“I want Service members, men and women, and I want true co-operation among them, efficient co-operation of efficient people.

“The trade shows a kindly preference towards Service people already—I want that increased by showing them that this Society will only have efficient members.

“It is not my object to add to an already crowded profession, but I do want the binding together of Service people now in it or coming into it.

“I ask for club rooms, employment advice and information bureaux, and a comprehensive wardrobe to be maintained by the co-operation of members and the help of friends.

“I want the Society a real help to its members from every point of view. Both in management and finance the Society will be administered solely to this end.

“I would ask you to study the accompanying papers, and, if they appeal to you, to join. Your membership will increase the spirit of the Society by its co-operation.”

The Captain is at pains to emphasise that he is “not going to add to an already overcrowded profession.” He evidently appreciates the fact that the profession is “already overcrowded,” and we should have thought that he would have refrained from taking steps which must inevitably result in doing what he declares he is not going to do. For however much he may emphasise the fact that he is “not going to add to an already overcrowded profession,” the terms of membership of his “Society” are so wide and comprehensive in their vagueness as to permit entrance to anybody and everybody who has either participated “in any form of war work during the Great War” or who is the “member of the family” of any person who has.

So that Captain Ilven’s own regulations are framed in such a manner that he cannot avoid adding “to an already overcrowded profession.” True, he says in his letter that: “while the Service qualifications are intentionally broad, the acid test will be rigorous.” This does nothing to clarify the position. It certainly is an admission that the broad and all-embracing qualifications were deliberate and intentional, and the fact that “the acid test” (whatever that may be) “will be rigorous” does not help matters. For if the admission ultimately is to be rigorous why allow the Service qualifications to be “intentionally broad” at first?

He further states in his letter that:

“The ‘half-fledged specimen of the screen-struck fraternity’ is surely rather a childish way to speak of a fellow who, after being found efficient by competent men in the trade, wants a job for a vacancy which exists.”

This is a very weak attempt to distort what we said, which was the recognised truism that “every half-fledged specimen of the screen-struck fraternity increases the difficulty of professional artists (most of whom served loyally and actively in the war) in securing engagements.”

Such misconstruction of our statements infers a desire to cover the defects of the Captain’s case. Captain Ilven then goes on to say:

“Members are not asked for £5 5s.; they are asked, if this object appeals to them, to pay £1 and 5s. a year for benefits which are to many self-evident already; those who are able to afford a fiver for their own and their fellow members’ benefits will be equally welcome.”

This is obviously a sudden alteration—perhaps the suddenness of the alteration is not absolutely unconnected with our previous article. The fact remains that in the only booklet issued by the “Society”—the booklet from which the lengthy statement printed above has been cut by the President with a request for its publication—the following is the only section (9) devoted to Entrance Fees and Subscriptions:—

“Parent members shall on joining the Society pay an entrance fee of £5, and an annual subscription of 5s. a year. Associate members shall on joining the Society pay an entrance fee of £1 and an annual subscription of 5s. a year.”

Why does the gallant Captain now deliberately ignore his own regulations which place the fees for “Parent members” at £5 5s. and confine his quotation to “Associate members”? Does he want his “Society” full of “Associate members”? And even if he does he should have mentioned in his letter what he has printed in his booklet, viz.: “that Associate members will be charged at a higher rate than Parent members for such services as the Council decides shall be charged for”—which is delightfully naive. Further, be it noted, that these extra charges “will be credited to the Associate as a payment to account of his entrance fee as a Parent member”; and when these extra charges, with his initial entrance fee of £1, amount to the five pounds that the “Parent Members” pay, the “Associate” becomes a “Parent member.” So that, despite Captain Ilven’s explanation, there is only one rate of fees—£5 5s.

Finally, Captain Ilven says:

“I claim it is a success already; many jobs have been secured through members’ co-operation, and thirty-four interested and cheery people dined together last week at the inaugural monthly dinner. Will you ask your gloomy one to dine with us on the second Monday in next and all future months? Then he may realise that our little show is a Mascot not a Mesopot.”

We should be obliged to the Captain if he would supply us with the names of those “many” who have secured jobs. And we certainly must accept the invitation to dinner, when we hope that this mystifying “Society” will become a little more transparent.

As it stands at present it certainly appears to call for stringent criticism, especially in view of the contradictions contained in Captain Ilven’s letter, and the fact that one of the present movers in the “Society” is none other than the head of a school of kinema-acting.

For no school, however honestly run, can do other than add to the existing overcrowding.

Application Form for Membership of the Kinema Club.

I am desirous of becoming a member of the Kinema Club and undertake to pay the agreed subscription (free of entrance fee if paid on or before Dec. 1, 1921) subject to election.

Name.....

Address.....

Qualifications.....

To be filled in and posted to the Hon. Secretary, Kinema Club 93, Long Acre, W.C.2, before Tuesday next, Nov 1.

SCREEN VALUES

MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

SINGLE LIFE

Ideal. Starring Campbell Gullan, Sydney Paxton and Kathleen Vaughan. Directed by Edwin J. Collins.

This is a comedy that does not rise to its possibilities. It is noteworthy for an absence of genuine humour, a fact that is more attributable to the continuity than to anything else. The plot is quite pleasing and evidences potentialities of ingenuity which have not been fully exploited.

In the cast there is a fair dead-level of talent—nothing abnormal either in quality or lack of it. Kathleen Vaughan is the best of the bunch, her vivacity and charming screen personality, coupled with real histrionic ability, are all very much in her favour. Sydney Paxton is characteristically reliable and adequate, while Campbell Gullan never fails to respond to the demands made on him. Evelyn Hope, too, never descends below the mediocre (often her work is above that level) in her characterisation.

Neither the scenarist nor the cameraman has excelled in their respective departments. The photography, at best, is merely average, and never touches the high standard which is the boast of British films.

Generally speaking, it is our opinion that "Single Life" fails to attain the average standard of British productions save in certain isolated departments.

MARRIED LIFE

Ideal. Starring Gerald McCarthy, M. Gray Murray, Peggy Hathaway, Hilda Antony and Roger Tréville. Directed by Georges Tréville. Scenario by Adrian Johnson. Photographed by Geoffrey Barkas.

As a straightforward, essentially British story, with no pretensions to elaborately staged situations, or "punch," this film version of J. B. Blackstone's play is undoubtedly to be considered a successful undertaking.

The treatment of the plot by director, artistes and scenarist is entirely in harmony, and, while on the one hand a good many picturegoers, saturated with the idea of melodrama and broad farce being the only two admissible types of film, will be frankly bored with its slow but natural movement, on the other hand those who have been waiting for a play corresponding to the true stage comedy will welcome it. This, of course, is a matter of the selection of the story for filming; the handling of it in the studio lays itself open to little adverse criticism.

As the hero, a politician shown at two stages of his life (separated by eighteen years), Gerald McCarthy is, while always interesting, heavy. This restraint, although justifiable on the grounds of life-like accuracy of portrayal, detracts from the grip he should have on his audience.

Peggy Hathaway, who doubles the parts of the hero's betrayed sister and her daughter, is much more successful in arousing interest and sympathy. She is very human and very pathetic as the mother, and essentially bright and girlish as the girl.

Perhaps the best character study is that given by M. Gray Murray, whose financier is an unscrupulous schemer in business but a very human father. In neither case is the part overdrawn

Hilda Antony as the politician's wife, and Roger Tréville as the girl's lover, are typical of the rest of the cast; they fit naturally into the picture and suggest excellent teamwork.

In the same way Georges Tréville's direction must be praised, rather for its general efficiency than for any unusual brilliancy of technique. He has gone on the principle that the highest art is to conceal art, and if action had been speeded up here and there, there would be little room for criticism.

Scandal turns the wife's trust into suspicion, and this, the real motive of the whole story, is cleverly developed. The death-bed scene contains a curious lapse from taste which could easily be amended.

Adrian Johnson's scenario is, as we mentioned above, in absolute harmony with the general treatment demanded, but we suggest condensation in two or three places, where the action drags, would improve the play considerably.

If one item of the production stands out as claiming unqualified praise, Geoffrey Barkas' photography is that feature. The artistic way in which the interior groupings are arranged and reproduced—there are few exteriors—stamps his work with the seal of excellence.

DICK'S FAIRY

Seal. Starring Albert Branford, Joan Griffith and Eva Westlake. Directed by Bert Wynne. Scenario by Eliot Stannard. Photographed by L. Protheroe.

To put films like this on the market does no good to the British film production industry. There is very little in the production that justifies the existence of the film or can be construed into an encouragement of new capital into the industry. We say this in all kindness and because we honestly believe that to face the facts will be for the ultimate good of all concerned.

The continuity seems to have been constructed (or, at least, has been handled by the director) to extract the last sob possible. This gives an unreal, strained and illogical character to the story.

In certain instances members of the cast are quite satisfactory. This is especially the case with Joan Griffith, whose performance as "Fairy" is flawless, while as the blind girl she is excellent.

Hargraves Mansell's characterisation only fails to be absolutely perfect by fitful gleams of theatricalism. Others in the cast are disappointing.

There is an obvious moral in the fact that in exteriors the photography is of a very high quality, while in the case of interiors it descends to mediocre. The lighting in studio sets is indifferent, and possibly this fact accounts for the poverty of quality in the indoor scenes.

With more care, more expenditure and better material and equipment this could have been a good production, because it reveals the fact that the director has it in him to turn out a good thing. As it is, the kindest we can say has been said in the first paragraph.

GENERAL JOHN REGAN

Stoll. Starring Milton Rosmer. Directed by Harold Shaw. Scenario by William J. Elliott. Photographed by Jack Cox.

It is difficult to make a comedy that will make an audience laugh; yet, to a certain extent, Harold Shaw has succeeded in doing this. "General John Regan" is a humorous story, which, if it does not actually succeed in making the audience laugh outright, should certainly be useful in brightening it up.

There is only one really bad fault to be found with the film, and this can easily be remedied by cutting the film down a little. As shown to the Trade on Tuesday last, the picture was spoilt by its length, and there were quite a few people who yawned as the afternoon wore slowly on. Still, as we have already pointed out, this can easily be remedied, and no doubt it will be.

It is quite all right to have the first few scenes of all the sleepy figures of villagers, but after the American arrives in town, things should begin to move, instead of dragging on at the same slow speed.

The cast has been well chosen, and no fault can be found with any of the artistes. Milton Rosmer is seen in a new role, that of a breezy, but impecunious Irish doctor. Madge Stuart is hardly recognisable as the slatternly servant girl, but she plays her part in a remarkably fine manner. There is only one man in England who could be trusted to play the part of the wideawake American—that man is Ward McAllister. It is rather a pity that he spoilt such an excellent performance by continually hiding his face behind his hand and chuckling at the Irish villagers. Still, he carries the part through in a very breezy manner and is certainly one of the best characters in the production.

Bertie Wright gives a very clever performance as the local editor; Robert Vallis and Teddy Arundell are complimented on their portrayals of the two R.I.C. men. Edward O'Neil's work in this production is, like most of his work, excellent. Gordon Parker, Wyndham Guise, and Judd Green play their various roles excellently. The latter's work in the scene where he appears as a bandmaster caused much laughter at the Trade show.

The photography, on the whole, is quite good, but many of the interiors are terribly harsh, and the characters' faces are far too hard and white-washed looking. Yet we are inclined to attribute this fault to the printer rather than the photographer. Jack Cox's work is usually good, and it looks as if this work in "General John Regan" was up to his usual standard before the printers took a hand in it.

William J. Elliott, the scenarist, has worked the story up nicely; there are situations that need some explaining, and it is to the scenarist's credit that he has succeeded in explaining these situations without an undue amount of sub-titling.

On the whole, "General John Regan" is one of Stoll's best pictures, and Harold Shaw is to be complimented on the share he had in making such a film.

Where they are and

A. G. Kingston is working on some new talking pictures.

Madge Tree has finished work in a new Progress film.

Thomas Weguelin is playing for Ideal in "Pickwick Papers."

Jack Jarman is playing a leading part in "Our Aggie" (Milo).

Fred Earle, last of Stoll's, has now joined Jay's Agency as casting director.

Edward R. Gordon is directing the new B. and Z. production, "Repentance."

Mary Brough is working at Elstree on her part—Mrs. Bardell—in "Pickwick Papers."

H. Lisle Lucoque is finishing "Where the Rainbow Ends" for British Photo Plays.

Bransby Williams has been appearing for Ideal in "Pickwick Papers." His part is Buzfuz.

Lois Weber, the American director, is in England and hopes to produce in this country shortly.

Percy Nash has practically finished his picture "How Kitchener was Betrayed" for Screenplays.

John Rowland has been playing Toney, Mrs. Bardell's Young Hopeful, in Ideal's "Pickwick Papers."

Ethel Oliver, now appearing in "Paddy the Next Best Thing," will be Norman Ramsey's leading lady.

Arthur Walcott has been booked for an important part in "Our Aggie," which Jack Denton is directing for Milo Films.

Muriel Gregory plays lead in "The Village Blacksmith" and "Eileen Mannah," two new song pictures (Masters).

Claude Harris, the photographer, will be responsible for the art direction of the new producing company which Norman Ramsey, M.A., is to commence.

Bertram Burleigh has just completed parts in two films—Bob Phillips in "All Roads Lead to Calvary," and Kitchener's staff officer in "How Kitchener was Betrayed."

Norman Ramsey, M.A., the writer of the story of Screenplays' Kitchener film, announces it as his intention to inaugurate his own producing company shortly. Studios have already been arranged.

LADY with ideas would like to know of lady or gentleman to collaborate in Scenario writing. — Box A, Motion Picture Studio.

Harry Gilbey is in "Pickwick Papers."

Townsend Whitling is playing in "Pickwick Papers."

Jose Brooks has been engaged to play in "Our Aggie" (Milo).

Geoffrey Benstead is managing the new B. and Z. productions.

Anna Dearley is playing Isabella Wardle in "Pickwick Papers" (Ideal).

Mary Patterson plays a star part in "Our Aggie," the new Milo production.

Sidney Eaton is in charge of the photographic department of Milo Films.

Ray Raymond is appearing in a leading rôle in "Repentance" (B. and Z.).

Frank Wilson is director of the newly formed Screencraft Production Company.

Harry Lorraine is directing the new Atlantic Screencraft production, "The Derelict."

Douglas Cox was playing Perker, the solicitor, in the trial scenes of "Pickwick Papers," for Ideal.

Ward McAllister, the American screen artiste, is playing the juvenile lead in "Repentance" (B. and Z.).

Jack Denton is directing the production of "Our Aggie" for Milo at the Barker Studio. He is also the author of the story.

Bert Darley is assistant manager for Milo Films, and, in addition to acting as assistant director, also plays juvenile lead in "Our Aggie."

Elizabeth Brandt plays the leading rôle in the new film, "The Derelict" (Atlantic).

Joyce Dearsley has been playing Emily Wardle in "Pickwick Papers" for Ideal.

Peggy Hathaway is playing a leading part in "Repentance," a new B. and Z. picture.

—DO YOU—

If the Club Committee held up the traffic in Wardour Street on Wednesday?

And if they were mistaken for country cousins just oop to see th' sights?

How many ladies really did get into Rex Davies' taxi, on Tuesday night?—and

Why?

Who has achieved fame (or notoriety) as "The Macclesfield Spendthrift"?

How Thomas Bentley likes being directed in an "Around the Town" film?

What Bransby Williams was doing at the Ideal studios last Tuesday and Wednesday? And—

If coming events always cast their shadows before.

The name of the Ideal actor who carries liquid refreshment in his pocket? And—

Why he calls it "concentrated ginger beer"?

HOW CARTOON

Perhaps one of the most popular items on the program of the Kinema Theatres is the Cartoon Film. This class of comedy is gaining in popularity each week—the indication of this fact being found in the additions that are made to this class.

There are the world-famous Mutt and Jeff comedies with which Captain Bud Fisher keeps the world laughing. These are among the pioneers—if not actually the original—of this popular form of entertainment. They have "touched the button" without a doubt, and as imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, Captain Fisher finds himself surrounded by a circle of flatterers.

Now, the cartoon film is unlike any other, for many reasons, one of which is that whereas many of the public can hazard a guess as to how the miraculous feats of the thrilling drama are obtained, the cartoon film still leaves the vast majority of members of the Kinematograph industry, even, puzzling their heads in seeking an explanation of the modus operandi of the cartoon film director.

Some seem to think that in cartoon film making a separate and distinct black-and-white picture is drawn for each individual picture of the film. But a moment's reflection will show that that is not practicable or feasible. And so still the problem is left unsolved.

And it is no simple problem when one comes to examine a Bud Fisher Cartoon Film. Mutt's tears are seen trickling from his lustrous orbs to fall with a noticeable splash in the pool at his feet. Or Jeff bestows that well-known kind of look-which-kills on his partner—lightning flashes from his eyes, and visibly runs through the body of Mutt to issue from his back as ruby gore. Notes of interrogation and exclamation flash out; swear words are suggested and emotions are hinted at—all in black-and-white. How is it all done?

Well, first of all, it has to be stated that each director has his own method. And all that is possible here is to give a general description of the ways that some of the well-known cartoonist producers adopt.

Some directors, for instance, use flat

what they are doing

Lewis Willoughby is with Stoll.

Terence O'Rourke has just arrived back from America.

Hettie Bartlett has secured an important part in "Repentance" (B. and Z.).

Phillip Simmons is playing Barry Connell, the hero, in "Half a Truth" for Stoll.

—KNOW?—

Whether H. Grindell-Mathews' speaking pictures are a workable proposition?

What was Betty Balfour doing on the tram-car on Tuesday morning? and—

What the onlookers thought—and said?

How George Ridgewell caught his cold?

If Bramlins really intends to picturise family trees?

Why there is all this silly talk about a new form of censorship?

If there was any significance in the ladies on the Club Committee going into the wrong office; and—

Why there was a full muster of the male members at the last meeting?

Why Gerald Ames called a screen character "a beast"? And—

What he will do when he meets him?

If Margery Meadows is to turn program-seller (pro tem.) at the Hackney Empire?

Kate Vaughan plays Arabella in "Pickwick Papers."

Harold Bastick is turning on the new B. and Z. film, "Repentance."

Eileen Moore is playing Mrs. Cluppinger in "Pickwick Papers," which Tom Bentley is directing for Ideal.

Betty Balfour is playing lead with Rex Davis in "Maud Em'ly" (Welsh Pearson).

Maurice Edmunds is assisting Edward R. Gordon with the production of "Repentance" for B. and Z.

Rex Davis is engaged at the Welsh Pearson studios working on the part of Henry Barden in "Maud Em'ly."

Lewis Willoughby will appear in a new Walter West production, which is shortly to be started.

Henry Vibart has been supporting Henry Edwards in "The Bargain," the latest Hepworth film.

Rex McDougall has been playing an important part in the latest Henry Edwards feature, "The Bargain."

Water Forde is preparing to commence another of his comedies for Zodiac. This will be "Walter's Flying Frolics."

Robert Fenemore has finished his first North British production, "The Lonely Road," at the Harrogate studio.

Henry Edwards, in addition to playing the leading part in the Hepworth film, "The Bargain," is partly responsible for the play on which the story of this film is based.

Phyllis Titmus will play lead in the new Hardy film.

Alma Taylor reached New York with Cecil Hepworth on October 17.

Thomas Bentley is cutting and assembling "Pickwick Papers" at Elstree.

Gladys Jennings has been playing for Stoll in "The Lamp in the Desert."

Dorothy Fane has been playing the Duchess of Lenchester in "A Lost Leader" for Stoll.

Sid Jay was responsible for the entire bookings of the cast of the new Hardy film.

Elise Craven, the dancer, is playing Gillingham for George Pearson in "Maud Em'ly."

George Foley plays lead in the new Atlantic Screencraft production, "The Derelict."

Cecil M. Hepworth arrived in New York on Monday, October 17, and expects to be back well before Christmas.

Fred Le Roy Granville writes to say that he has just passed through Chicago on his way to New York, and has nearly finished his picture.

Harding Steerman has been playing character leads for London Players at the Park Theatre, Hanwell, in "A Pair of Silk Stockings," "The Thief," "Crepe de Chine," "Trilby." He has finished with Einar Bruun in "The Corner Man," and is now playing the Rev. Silvester in "The Scourge" (Hardy).

Matehson Lang has been booked by Sidney Jay to play lead in the next Kenelm Foss picture "A Romance of Old Bagdad."

C. Tilson Chowne is playing the Guards' Officer in "Sinister Steel" (Ideal).

Fay Compton has been engaged by Sidney Jay to play lead in "The Chink in the Armour" (Thompson), which Kenelm Foss will direct.

Pat Tobin, the Irish cameraman, is now in charge of the photographic work in "Vanity Fair" being produced at the Ebury Street studios.

Madeline Seymour is playing in "The Chink in the Armour" (Thompson).

Artistes willing to sell flags on "Poppy Day" are asked to communicate with Billy Bristowe, the publicity expert, at 175, Wardour Street, W.1.

FILMS ARE MADE

cardboard models of the characters, with jointed limbs. These are worked at the joints, and also shifted about over a special background. This background lies flat on the table or floor and the models are moved bodily over it, a downward pointing camera held over the whole "scene" and one turn of the handle is made to take in one picture. When all the "scenes" have been taken in this manner, the film is edited, and from it the actual picture is taken at the usual speed.

Of course, the great consideration is to get sufficient pictures with a minimum of drawings, and so drawing material and labour are economised as far as possible.

One plan is to have quite a number of the cards printed with whatever part of the picture is to remain unchanged for any considerable length of time. This printing is done with good black ink by the lithographic process. Thus, if half of the drawing on a series of, say, 100 cards is to be identical, this portion of the cartoon is put on the lithographic stone and the hundred cards involved are printed on it. Only the other half has to be sketched in by the artist.

When all the cards are printed or drawn by the artist, the actual photographing takes place. The cards have previously been numbered by the artist according to their place in the scheme of things, and are then placed in their pre-determined position in a specially-constructed frame. This holds them in the right position for the camera lens, and then "action" begins. The frame is attached to a wheel which, when the electric current is switched on, revolves at a certain rate, making each card to come within the range of the camera for a specific length of time. This is on the same basis as those little books of drawings that the children like to get hold of, and which, when the pages are allowed to follow each other quickly, reveal a connected drawing of movement.

Therefore the present rage for cartoon comedies is merely a case of history repeating itself; which is a pleasant way of saying that it is a reversion of adults to the pleasures of their school days.

TYPING—'Phone Regent 4747

"SPEEDAC" STENOGRAPHIC BUREAU
41, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.1.

Usual terms. Typing all classes: Authors' MS., Film Scenarios a speciality under expert supervision. Write, 'phone or call for quotation.

Proprietor—P. F. Buckle—Dictation Room.

“CASTLES IN SPAIN” ACTION JUDGMENT IN FAVOUR OF H. LISLE LUCOQUE

In our last issue we gave a full report of the legal proceedings in respect to “Castles in Spain,” and the hearing was resumed last Thursday, when further evidence was called for plaintiff, H. Lisle Lucoque, who sued Gaumont for money alleged to be payable to himself.

I. Roseman, of West Kensington, who did the camera work for “Castles in Spain,” said it was a good film, and was well received at the Trade show. Col. Bromhead told witness that he was well satisfied with it.

Mrs. Scott, of the American Co., London agent for the American Film Co., of Chicago, said the film was a good all-round production, but she would not call it a super film.

R. W. Rigg, film renter, of Leeds, Newcastle and London, who had seen the film, said it was a good standard British production. Films cost from £3,000 to £40,000 to produce.

His Lordship observed that success was not always the test of a work or piece. Milton only got £20 for “Paradise Lost.”

Witness did not consider a garden scene from Virginia Water as out of place for the cottage of Milton of “Castles in Spain.”

His Lordship: Shakespeare put a scene on the Coast of Bohemia, and I never heard of anyone leaving the theatre because of that.

A. E. Vaughan, of the Vaudeville Picture Theatre, Bath, said he was so pleased with the film that he booked it, believing it would be a success.

For the defence, A. C. Bromhead, managing director for defendants, said he told plaintiff he must decide maximum cost of production, and plaintiff said it would not be more than £3,500. Witness said do not starve production, but make maximum £4,000. Plaintiff agreed that that amount would be ample. Witness had advanced £4,500 in respect of the film. When he saw the complete film he was dissatisfied, and told plaintiff he did not think much of it as it was too patchy, with nothing else but titles and sub-titles. It was agreed that if there were a loss they should bear half each.

Witness considered that the film told the story haltingly, abruptly and disjointedly and unconvincingly, and made no real successful appeal to the emotions. It was a waste of such good artistes as Aubrey Smith and Lilian Braithwaite. Witness had taken £3,200 in rent for the film in the United Kingdom.

Reginald Bromhead, Secretary and General Manager for defendants, said there was a total loss on the production of about £2,500. The film had the elements of the story and actors in its favour, but the actual handling and direction were badly carried out.

Paul Kimberley, of Hepworth, who had seen the film, pronounced it as not being a first-class British film according to the standard of March, 1920.

It was a second-rate film story, poorly told by means of badly worded sub-titles, illustrated by a moving-picture camera, and contained many technical faults.

Wm. Gavazzi King, General Secretary of the C.E.A., said in his view the film was not a first-class standard one of the time. The production failed to conform to any canons of criticism in respect to any of the particular characteristics which a film must possess. It failed as a story, photographically, and from the point of view of settings and from the dramatic point of view, not because of the capacity of the actors and actresses, but because the actors and actresses had not been given an opportunity to utilise their histrionic gifts.

J. Brooke Wilkinson, Secretary of the British Board of Film Censors and the Incorporated Association of Kinematograph Manufacturers, considered the film a childish production with a lack of imagination and artistic faculty on the part of the producer.

Geo. Parrington, film reviewer for the Provincial Cinema Theatres, Ltd., agreed that the production was a poor one. Cross-examined: Witness thought that the British standard of films were generally not lower than the American, though the latter had had fifteen years' start.

Mr. Morris, K.C., for plaintiff, suggested that the production was full of sob stuff.

Witness: It had hardly got that. It did not appeal to one's nature.

I. B. Davidson, a film manufacturer, characterised the film as amateurish.

Mr. Hogg, K.C., for defendants: What do you think of the charge of £40 to £50 for the hire of the dog?

Witness: It seems excessive. It would have been better to have bought a dog for £2. (Laughter.)

A. Bowler Reed, a film reviewer, expressed the opinion that it was deplorable to see a talented American actor acting as wet-nurse to a cat and a dog. He never realised what the builder of castles was at or after.

Cross-examined: He thought the acting in most cases good. He could not express any opinion as to the production, but only as to how it appealed to him as a film.

Further evidence was given by H. W. Mason, of the Impartial Film Report; I. Josephs, director of Butcher Films; and Gerald Ames, actor and director, of Hepworth. J. H. Taylor, formerly plaintiff's partner, said the agreement with defendants was that the production should not exceed £4,000. Plaintiff agreed to share any loss on film.

Mr. Justice Coleridge, in giving judgment, said that the agreement was on March 24, 1920, but the terms the parties thought they had really arrived at had not been put into writing. He had to decide what was the arrangement and if there was any definite arrangement at all. Much of the controversy had turned on the question of the maximum cost of the production, and it certainly would have been an unusual and improvident bargain by the defendants if the plaintiff had been left at large in the matter of expenditure. It was reasonable to expect that the parties did agree on some sum. The defendants said the maximum cost was to be £4,000, and plaintiff said the moment was to be something between £3,500 and £4,500. He thought it probable that a maximum cost was agreed on, although the letters did not help him on this subject. The defendants paid £4,500 at a time and on an occasion that seemed to bear the impress they thought that was the maximum cost, and not £4,000, and that by that payment they were discharging their obligations. The next question was: Was the film according to the contract?

It was not expected that a film would be provided that would be accepted with rapture by the public, for the parties were only too well aware of the capricious and treacherous taste of the public. What the plaintiff agreed to produce was a first-class British standard kinematograph film from the scenario based on the story, and he (the Judge) had had the greatest difficulty in arriving at what was a first-class British standard kinematograph film. It was easy for experts to come and say, “In my opinion it was,” or “In my opinion it was not.” These opinions did not guide him very much; he had not personally seen the film, and if he had he might like it or dislike it on grounds other than those that the public might like it or dislike it. Nobody had described what the words “standard film” meant.

It had been said that the words “British standard film” meant the highest pitch of production, but on the other hand it was said British meant British in March, 1920, when we were fifteen years behind the Americans in productions, and when British first-class film was something not equal to the American first-class, although by now we had caught them up.

Some of the experts said it was childish to suppose that anybody would sit it out, let alone go or encourage anybody else to go and see it. Experts for the defendants were most unappreciative and said they could not understand what it was all about. Yet others said it was just the sort of thing that was wanted, and that the public, when they had been sufficiently drenched with blood, assassination and adultery, liked to come back to the clean, old-English village life stories. He (the Judge) did not know if the wave of popular feeling did go to and fro like that, but what he was mostly guided by in this matter was what the parties seemed to have thought of the film at the time.

There were shows of the film, and he found that the defendants paid £2,000 to make up the £4,500, and he thought they paid upon the footing that the plaintiff had fulfilled his contract. For the defendants issued an advertisement in which they praised the film as something extraordinarily good, and appreciatively referred to the Maypole scene. The defendants approved of it, and it was difficult for him (the Judge) to believe that they were entitled, when it suited them, to deny it and, when it suited them, also to praise it.

He was bound to come to the conclusion that the defendants, by their conduct, recognised that whatever “first-class British standard film” meant, the plaintiff had fulfilled the contract. He was not satisfied that subsequently, when defendants claimed to treat the contract as ended, the plaintiff agreed to any new arrangement.

It was now left to decide, was the cost reasonable? There was an item of £40 for a bulldog. He thought that was extravagant, and he reduced it to £20. For the hiring of the motor for a few weeks £211 was ridiculous, and would be reduced by £100. The figure for scenery was extravagant and £500 would be reduced by £325. He deducted £573 10s. altogether from the £4,500 due for the film. The net result of the account would be that the plaintiff was entitled to judgment for £427, and also for £607 as indemnity for expenses incurred by the plaintiff for advertising.

The defendants were granted a stay of execution on the terms of payment into Court in 14 days.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUME
UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for
Kinematograph Productions. Phone—London Wall 756

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Being the Sayings of People who Matter, and of some who do not Matter.

"The movies have brought a race of actors and actresses whose expression suggested St. Vitus's Dance."—LENA ASHWELL.

"I do not see any harm in showing pictures depicting murders."—C. F. HIGHAM, M.P.

"Picture patrons are being driven away night after night because they are bored."—LORD BEAVERBROOK.

"Original genius is frozen out of film production."—Sunday Express.

"Perhaps Mrs. Asquith would do remarkably well on the films."—KATHLEEN COYLE.

"We should like to see some courageous picture theatre making a real 'feature' of its topical films."—Manchester Guardian.

"If a director has not a touch of genius his pictures will never be a great success."—W. GAVAZZI KING (sec. C.E.A.).

"Public taste was improving."—Stoll's Pictorial News.

"The real art of the film is very young—it has yet to find its Shakespeare."—ARTHUR WEIGALL.

"If we are going to be a successful industry we must sink our personal quarrels."—JEFFREY BERNERD.

YOUR CORNER LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Producing in Ireland.

The last issue of the Studio contains a very interesting article re "Producing in Ireland," and the writer is perfectly correct in stating that what is needed most is a band of experts, particularly technical men, and till such a band of men is got together it is my opinion that whether it be Ireland or any other part of the British Isles, British production will not yet come out of the rut that it is in now.

I should further like to state that the atmospheric conditions that exist in Ireland in general are photographically perfect. I even went to the trouble of proving this by taking a number of scenic films, and found that my long shots were infinitely better than those I had taken in other parts of the British Isles; the Irish atmosphere is much clearer (I mean photographic atmosphere, not political) and in consequence thereof I obtained some exquisite results.

Irish stories would certainly have a world-wide appeal, and I trust that the day is not far off when a first-class producing company will be formed to make pictures in Ireland.—JACK H. ROSS.

WHAT I THINK OF FILM CRITICS

by HEAVY LEAD

They have told me what they think of me often enough. It is my turn now.

Mind, I do not care when they tell the public that I am "characteristically villainous," or even "a satisfactory crook"; that is all in the day's work. But one of my chief objections is to the disproportionate space they give to the heroine and the juvenile lead, and then when the man who is the hub of the whole drama, the man without whom there would be no drama in fact, comes to be dealt with, he is dismissed in a couple of words, or ignored. But this is more or less a personal grouse. What I want to emphasise is the cavalier way in which the acting of a photoplay is dismissed.

I do not grumble at the injustice of it so much as the ignorance it displays. The average critic will talk about the continuity of a production, its photography, its direction, the appeal of its story and the ability of the cast as though each of these items pulled equal weight in getting the successful show over.

But consider for a minute. If each of the sections I have referred to is of average merit, the acting is the thing that is going to carry all the rest along and make a commonplace photoplay into a success.

Think of it from the other end. Let the director, the cameraman, the scenery, the story be of the very best, and what will kill the play in once? Bad acting.

Now I am not more vain than most actors. I have been too long at the game to imagine that I am the only pebble on the beach. The swollen-headed popular idol is, of course, always with us, and his behaviour has quite unjustly coloured the glasses through which the public looks upon actors as a whole. The workaday artiste is a practical man, acting is his calling, and what he does he does as well as he knows how. But like everyone who practises an art, whether for business or pleasure, appreciation means much to him.

It helps him—if the word were not so misused by posers I would say it "inspires" him, and if he knows people follow his work, he will be a better artiste for it. The man who receives so many guineas and then considers his work finally paid for is no artiste. He must have the satisfaction of feeling that his work is good, and if he has put all he knows into it he will want the rest of the world to feel it too.

And that brings me back to my friend the film critic. In the first place what does he, or most of his class, know about acting? He is as likely to praise an artiste who is simply playing to the gallery, or who may have been a stage favourite of his, as he is the man who has studied the ampler opportunities afforded by the screen, and understands its limitations.

Speaking generally, and I think most film actors will agree with me, I have found that the thoughtful, artistic player who gets inside the skin of his part, the man who makes himself an integral part of the play, is the man who gets overlooked.

But get the man who never loses his stage mannerisms, and whose facial expression and gestures are exaggerated in consequence—he will be the one to catch the critic's eye. He will score by reason of his faults. The restrained and artistic actor, who fits into the general scheme of things, instead of standing out like a bar of soap in a coal-scuttle, suffers in comparison.

As a matter of fact the public is by far the best judge. I have always held that in the theatres the best critics of acting were in the pit and gallery. Unfortunately the public verdict does not show up very quickly with the photoplay. People do not clap clever acting when they know they are only looking at a series of photographs—not as a rule that is. When they do, the actor never hears it.

So he is much more dependent on the critic than is his brother on the legitimate stage. And, although, as we all know, nearly all the criticism is destructive, what are we to say when the other type comes along and suggests improvements? Improvements, mind you, when the whole thing is closed. The picture is finished, and we are calmly told what ought to have been done. Is there a more maddening trick than that?

The whole trouble is this—we want practical men to criticise us, and we get theorists, amiable or otherwise. If critics had put in a year or two on the floor we should still have our work pulled to pieces no doubt, but most of us would feel the work was done by people who understood it. The actor is, to my mind, the chief factor in the success of a film, and except for the popular favourites he is never even mentioned. When this state of affairs is remedied, film criticism will be in a more healthy condition.

We all suffer at the hands of the fad-dist. The man with a bee in his bonnet is always with us, but I consider him comparatively harmless, because the public he writes for can, as a rule, see through him, and make the necessary allowances. But he is another count in the indictment against the body of film critics. The time has come for them to put their house in order.

Mr. HERBERT MAULE, Riding Master, PUTNEY RIDING ESTABLISHMENT,

Horses supplied to film companies: riding lessons given. Terms moderate.

'Phone PUTNEY 1984.

GETTING A SQUARE DEAL

by JACK BINMORE

There has been a lot said and written lately about British films getting a fair chance in America, and all who have the interest of the British film-producing industry at heart have eagerly noted the progress made by home producers during the last couple of years. But few, in sizing up the situation, have asked themselves whether or not British films are getting a square deal in this, the country of their origin.

Obviously, the more encouragement given to home-made products the better its chance when it comes to its disposal in Colonial and foreign markets, and the more the British film is encouraged and fostered, the greater its chances of fighting foreign competition both at home and abroad.

A large number of people in the film trade are frankly prejudiced against British films—of that there can be no doubt. A fact lost sight of by many is that during the war production in this country was practically at a standstill, and valuable years were lost, whilst America was forging ahead without serious outside competition. No pains were spared to bring her products to a high level of perfection, and thus by creating a big demand for her pictures she established a long lead that left other countries with a lot of leeway to make up before being able to compete with her on anything like terms of equality.

It was inevitable that after four years of stagnation the British film would start on a lower plane than the American standard, but now, with increased facilities and activities, the home product is making real headway.

And yet, by a great many people, praise to a British picture is given grudgingly because it is British. A number of critics attend Trade shows with the conscientious conviction that it is their almost holy mission in life to pick pictures to pieces—to depreciate the film and not to enjoy it or be entertained by it. That, I maintain, is the wrong spirit in which to view a film, from the point of view of either business or pleasure.

Quite a number of British films have been Trade shown within the last few months that are in every way fit to compare with those we are getting from America, and the standard is gradually being raised so as to give the most pessimistic of persons food for reflection on the merits of British pictures. Despite this, one can still hear at Trade shows such comments as: "Quite good—considering it's British."

Another burden which a number of British films have to bear is the way in which they are Trade shown. More often than not it is a case of going very early to a Trade show or having a struggle to obtain a seat—due in the majority of cases to artistes bringing their relatives, friends, and neighbours along to see the film in which they have played. Anyone seriously viewing a film finds it difficult to concentrate on the screen and do the picture full justice with a hubbub of conversation going on about him, and as a consequence the film very often suffers.

Again, the publicity given home products by Press, renter, and exhibitor, has not grown proportionately with the advance made in standard of production. It has been said—and wisely—that advertising is the soul of business, and publicity is undoubtedly the biggest factor in the exploitation and putting over of any film.

It cannot be denied that British films are making great strides in the right direction, and before grumbling about America not giving our films a square deal, let us first make sure that we do so ourselves—then we shall have the right to expect it from America.

"THE BIGAMIST"

In the Chancery Division on Friday, October 21, Mr. Maughan, K.C., applied to Mr. Justice Astbury, on behalf of the plaintiffs, for assistance in obtaining an early trial of the action, Stoll Film Co., Ltd., v. George Clark and Guy Newall, trading as George Clark Productions.

He said the action was closely connected with another commenced by the defendants. By an agreement dated in November, 1920, defendants agreed to give the plaintiffs the sole exclusive licence for Great Britain for all films featuring Guy Newall and Ivy Duke. There was a provision that the films should not be cut, and that the name of the producers should be advertised in a particular way.

On October 3 they delivered a film to the plaintiffs called "The Bigamist," and the plaintiffs had entered into hundreds of contracts for showing the picture. On October 5 a writ was issued by the producers asking for an injunction in regard to the cutting of the film and another alleged breach as to advertising. There had been some breach, said counsel, but it was a question whether the plaintiffs were responsible, as they said they were committed by the exhibitor, who had been compelled to comply with his obligations.

The injunction was granted by the Vacation Judge, and last week he (counsel) gave an undertaking, but the present plaintiffs had now received a letter from George Clark Productions telling them that in view of their breaches of the agreement they (the defendants) would be relieved from any obligation to deliver any further films, and declined to do so. They had made a further film called "The Persistent Lovers," and in regard to that and other films to which the plaintiffs were entitled under the agreement they had made hundreds of contracts with exhibitors for dates a long time ahead.

If they did not get the contract films they would be exposed to hundreds of actions from exhibitors with possibly very inconvenient consequences. The present plaintiffs issued a writ on October 14 asking for specific performance of the November agreement, and if a speedy trial was facilitated each side was willing to give a mutually satisfactory undertaking until the trial came on.

Mr. Luxmoore, K.C., for the George Clark Productions, said he was willing to submit to such an undertaking.

His Lordship directed that the motion should stand over with liberty to apply as to a date for the trial.

FILM ACTORS' INTELLIGENCE

Do people go too often to the kinema? The opinion of women social workers at a conference held by the National Organisation of Girls' Clubs at the Mary Ward Settlement, Tavistock Place, this week, is in the affirmative. Miss Neville, Warden of the Mary Ward Settlement, maintained that in its present state, the kinema stimulated wrong emotions.

"The kinema shows us at our worst," she said. "We see sordid, morbid scenes and grossly inartistic scenes. There is too much lack of self-control and drunkenness shown on the one hand and, on the other, too much luxury, motor-cars, powdered servants and so forth. Life is shown as an orgy, its object happiness, and the punishment at the end is only put in to satisfy the censor. Serious subjects are treated lightly and there is a tendency to jeer at married life and to treat immorality as a matter of course."

Experience had, she continued, taught her that it was the easiest thing in the world to stimulate good taste in young people and to teach them to be disgusted at bad films. It was remarkable what natural good taste even small children had, although a great effort was made nowadays to destroy it.

It had been shown time and time again that children preferred a beautiful and faithful film of bird or animal life to even thrilling adventure stories. Educationally the kinema had a great work before it. She had found that films showing beautiful swimming or dancing were invaluable in developing in young girls a sense of the dignity of the human figure which was badly needed nowadays to combat objectionable dress and lack of self-control.

The true function of the kinema, however, would always be to entertain, and it was the duty of the nation to see that such an important recreation was clean and artistic. She criticised the clumsy methods of telling the story by alternate words and pictures on the screen, or by increasing faces to six times their proper size and making them mouth the words. These methods were not only inartistic, but exhausted the mind without using it.

She suggested that the future development of the kinema did not run alongside that of the gramophone, but alongside better acting, which spoke for itself, like the more recent Charlie Chaplin films. In her opinion the kinema would never compete with the theatre, because the copy could not rival the real thing, and because the former always fell short of one's expectations at the critical moment.

Captain Hodges of Community Films, said that the technique of film-making rendered good art almost impossible, while the ordinary film actor had an intensely low intelligence.

The girls of the Settlement themselves had passed a resolution, which was brought before the conference, that the National Organisation of Girl's Clubs should, in conjunction with the National Council of Women, approach the Government with a view to appointing a censorship of films consisting of both men and women.

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES

XVII—MARY PATTERSON

Mary Patterson, whose photograph appears on the front cover of this week's issue, is not very well known to picture-goers of this country as yet, but the company of which she is the guiding spirit has set out with a modest six months' program which will be announced shortly.

She has received tempting offers to appear in America and on the Continent, and negotiations are now in progress for the sale of the Continental rights of six comedies featuring Miss Patterson, the first of which, entitled "Our 'Aggie," is now in progress.

It is a good class humorous two-reel comedy, and is being directed by the author, Jack Denton.

Mary Patterson is being supported by Bert Darley as her leading man, who also fills the position of assistant manager of Milo Films. Bert Darley is a film star of no mean order, and Miss Patterson has chosen well in securing him for her productions.

Sidney Eaton, who is also an assistant manager, and in charge of the photographic department of Milo Films, is well known in the camera world, and his appointment to this department is a guarantee that the photography of this company's films will be of the highest order.

PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Continued from Back Page.

FILM: "A Lost Leader."

DIRECTOR: George Ridgwell.

CAMERAMAN: Alfred Moses.

STAR: Robert English.

SCENARIST: William J. Elliot.

STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: Sherlock Holmes Episodes.

DIRECTOR: George Ridgwell.

CAMERAMAN: Alfred H. Moses.

STAR: Eille Norwood.

STAGE: On Third Episode.

FILM: Half a Truth.

DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.

STARS: Margaret Hope, Irene Rook, Percy Standing.

CAMERAMAN: Adolph Burger.

STAGE: Seventh week.

FILM: "Froggy's Little Brother"

DIRECTOR: A. E. Coleby.

STAGE: Second week.

Thompson Productions.

ADDRESS: B & C Studios, Walthamstow.

FILM: "All Roads Lead to Calvary."

DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.

STARS: Mary Odette, Bertram Burleigh.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Grace Rose.

SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.

EDITOR: John Miller.

CAMERAMAN: John Parker.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "The Chink in the Armour."

DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Casting.

Temple Productions.

ADDRESS: Catford Studios, S. E.

MANAGER: Maurice Edmonds.

FILM: "Some Truth."

DIRECTOR: Bannister Merwin.

STAR: A. Bromley Davenport.

CAMERAMAN: Harold Bastick.

TYPE: Three Reel Comedy.

STAGE: Finishing.

WHY WE WANT A CLUB HOW WE OVERCAME OBSTACLES AND WHY

by REX DAVIS, Member of the Club Committee

I think it was no less a giant than Napoleon who said: "The man who never made a mistake never made anything"; and sure it is that the little piece of india-rubber at the end of the pencil suggests that mistakes can be erased and one can start afresh. And so it is with our club. Therefore let us make a start, and if we make mistakes in the construction, we shall at least know we are trying to construct. And here I would like to say to those who are prone to criticise, Do let your criticism be constructive, and not destructive. The depressing reiteration of the words "you'll never be able to . . ." is a little apt to cramp one's style.

We all knew when Col. Bromhead last Sunday week wished Godspeed to the little kinema craft that we should meet shoals and sandbanks, shallows and uncharted rocks, but we do all hope that this will be a happy ship and in its log will be found only comradeship, cohesion, co-operation, and an all-pull-together.

Being privileged to hold the unenviable position of a member of the first acting committee, I can say we have all undergone a deal of mental wear and tear, and that the obstacles have been—and, of course, still are—very formidable; but obstacles in life are only there to be overcome. You will understand that from the word "go" we soon came up against them.

Some said, "You can never have a mixed club; a club should be a refuge from matrimony, not an agency for one"; whilst another, whose gallantry was only equalled by his optimism, would retort: "Then, if you keep the ladies out, you cannot have a representative club." It goes without saying, the ladies get their own way, with representation on the committee, and also they will have their own exclusive quarters in the club, so the most nervous Benedict can come to the club without a tremor.

And by the same token so can the director. I have heard certain directors, not unnaturally, remark that they will be approached about work by workless artistes. I very much doubt it. Anyway, the committee will have the strongest powers, and a breach of club etiquette like that could and would be dealt with.

We don't want a club for somewhere to go where we can air our grievances or tell each other how much better we could play the part than the artiste already cast for it! Nor to discuss the Arbuckle case. Nor to show directors stills of ourselves. But we do want a sanctuary where we can foregather, where we can be found—perhaps (from the point of view of the mighty) where we can be seen and not heard; and I would hope, so far as was possible, firms would only engage members from the club.

We want somewhere we can go when the environment and the atmosphere of Wardour Street becomes more soul-destroying than we can bear, somewhere where we can creep away and get a cup of tea and persuade ourselves that perhaps really, after all, clouds will be sunshine to-morrow. So let us co-operate, construct, combine, contrive collectively and kinematographically to fill for ourselves that long-felt want—a fellowship of players.

YOUR LETTER BOX

For the benefit of those engaged in British studios we are elaborating "Our Letter List," which has appeared in recent issues on the "High Lights" page.

In future we shall reserve space for the publication of the names of people to whom letters have been addressed, care this office, and for this service we shall make no charge whatever.

Artistes and others for whom letters are waiting can obtain them either by calling or sending an addressed envelope. Letters for the following are waiting at this office:—

Faith Bevan, Esme Kavanagh, Winifred Sadler, Elizabeth Atterbury, Daisy Burrell, Barbara Everett, Walter Forde (one letter), Maud Cressall, Elizabeth Brandt, Beatrice Chester, Marion Dyer, Ethel Callanan, Max Freeman (two letters), Hadon Cave.

Letters that are not claimed after four weeks will be opened and returned to senders.

PUBLICITY.

FRANK J. WOOLF

PUBLICITY EXPERT.

Representing British and American Theatrical and Kinema Journals.

Open to accept Commissions, Artistes' Personal Publicity Conducted Extensive Campaigns arranged.

Address: C/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO, or Telephone: Walthamstow 364.

STUDIO MANAGER

JOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—

B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,

Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone: W'stow 364."

The Historical Film must be accurately dressed.

We Stock Civil and Military costumes of all
known periods. :: ::

“The Call of the Road”
and “The Old Curiosity
Shop,” with their wealth
of costume, detail and
characteristics of their times, were dressed by us.

Write to-day stating
your requirements.

H. & M. RAYNE,
115-119, Waterloo Road,
S.E.1.

WEST END
BRANCH: 15, Rupert Street.

QUALITY FIRST

Always on Time

VICKERS FILMCRAFT
LTD.

89, SHAFTESBURY AVENUE, W.1.

Laboratories :

PARAGON WORKS, 249, ACTON LANE, W.4.

ALWAYS-ON-TIME

Phones: GERRARD 4045 and
CHISWICK 132

STUDIO SPORTS

To open the season and to have an opportunity of presenting the cups, won during the summer, the Kinematograph Sports Association held a highly successful dance, at the Caxton Hall, Westminster, on Tuesday, October 18.

Apart from the dancing, which, of course, was the great attraction, many gathered specially to see the prizes being distributed. Guy Newall and Queenie Thomas made the following presentations:—

CRICKET.

MEDALS FOR 1920.

PATHE FRERES.—F. Smith, P. Golding, F. Bassill, A. E. Norwood, A. Curtice, T. Seales, C. Graves, J. Gemmell, A. File, V. Tuthill, G. Mann.

MEDALS FOR 1921.

IDEAL FILMS.—F. A. Kendrick, A. Walton, G. Barkas, E. Evans, H. Wheddon, A. Puddephatt, F. Hunter, A. Simpson, G. Marlborough, V. Alder, N. Phillips, and a special cup to the captain.

LAWN TENNIS.

Queenie Thomas (B.P. Films), Winner of Challenge Cup and Replica. Miss Scott (Famous-Lasky), Second Prize Ladies' Singles. Mr. Maylem (Fox), Winner of Challenge Cup and Replica. Mr. Green (Famous-Lasky), Second Prize Gent's Singles. Miss Selby (Fox) and Mr. Maylem (Fox), Winners of Mixed Doubles.

SWIMMING.

Miss Humphries (P.C.T.), Winner of Ladies' Championship; Ivy Duke, Challenge Cup and Gold Medal; Miss Parkhurst (Jury), Second Prize Ladies' 100 yards; Miss Batt (International), Third Prize Ladies' 100 yards; Miss Champion (Pathé), First Prize Ladies' Breast Stroke Race; Miss Speak (W. and F.), Second Prize Ladies' Breast Stroke Race; Miss Varney (Pathé), First Prize Musical Quoits; Miss Chilvers (International), Second Prize Musical Quoits; Miss Humphries and Miss Treherne (P.C.T.), Jockey Race; Miss Batt, Miss Chilvers, Miss George, and Miss Elliott (International), Ladies' Team Race; Miss Speak (W. and F.), First Prize Back Stroke Race; Miss Champion (Pathé), Second Prize Back Stroke Race; Miss Soames (Topical), First Prize Good Night Race; Miss Wythe (Fox), Second Prize Good Night Race; Miss Wythe, Miss Pilcher, Mr. Langdon, and Mr. Stebbings, Mixed Team Race; Mr. Langdon (Fox), Gent's Championship, Challenge Cup and Gold Medal; Mr. Bishop (Gaumont), Second Prize Championship; Mr. Hanlon (Lasky), Third Prize Championship; Mr. Harwood (Kodak), First Prize Gent's Breast Stroke; Mr. Marsden (General), Second Prize Gent's Breast Stroke; Mr. Wilson, Mr. Jones, Mr. Gemmell and Mr. Curtice (Pathé), Gent's Team Race; Mr. Brown (P.C.T.), Duck Hunt; Mr. Pontefract (Pathé), First Prize Plunging; Mr. Bishop (Gaumont), Second Prize Plunging; Mr. Langdon (Fox), First Prize Obstacle Race; Mr. Marsden (General), Second Prize Obstacle Race.

The next dance will be held on November 29.

On Sunday last the semi-finals of the Kine. Golf Cup were played. T. Nassland (Alliance) beat Sam Ashworth (Silver Cinemas); and Cyril T. Mitt (Gaumont), beat Harold Pontefract (Pathé).

STUDIO FINANCE

New Companies.

BRITISH PRODUCTIONS, LTD. (177,067).—Private company. Registered October 1. Capital, £10,000 in £1 shares. To carry on the business of theatre proprietors and managers, producers of operas, stage and kinematograph and moving picture plays, and musical and dramatic performances and entertainments, etc. The subscribers (each with one share) are: H. Brooks, 2, Paper Buildings, Temple, E.C., solicitor; W. R. Semhen, 2, Paper Buildings, Temple, E.C.4, solicitor. The subscribers are to appoint the first directors. Registered office: 9, King's Bench Walk, Temple, E.C.4.

PHOENIX FILM CO., LTD.—Private company. Registered September 26. Capital, £2,000 in £1 shares. To carry on business as film producers, picture hall proprietors, etc. The subscribers (each with one share) are: J. Hubbard Clarke, J.P., B. C. Gibbs, G. Horan, R. Morrison, E. S. Hicks. The first directors are: J. H. Clarke, J.P., B. C. Gibbs, G. Horan, R. Morrison, and E. S. Hicks. Secretary: B. C. Gibbs (pro tem.). Registered office: 174a, Gt. Brunswick Street, Dublin.

SONOFILMS, LTD.—Private company. Registered September 20. Capital, £2,075, in 2,000 preferred shares of £1 each, and 1,400 founders' shares of 1s. each. To adopt an agreement with H. E. Hartley, and to acquire and turn to account world's patent rights and subsequent improvements therein for synchronising kinematograph films with gramophones or other sound producing instruments. The first directors are: A. N. Smith, T. Morris, H. E. Hartley. Qualification 100 shares. Registered office: 30, Gerrard Street, W.1.

LINCOLN STUDIO, LTD. (177,074).—Private company. Registered October 1. Capital, £1,000 in £1 shares. To acquire the business carried on at 148 and 149, Holborn Bars, E.C., as “Isograph and Rudds Camera Service,” and to carry on the business of artists, designers, photographers, advertisement agents and writers, art exhibitors, art gallery and exhibition proprietors, kinematographers, etc. The first directors are: S. P. Dobbs, 8, Shaftesbury Avenue, New Barnet, artist; Mrs. R. Dobbs, 8, Shaftesbury Avenue, New Barnet; A. R. Crouch, Redcot, 1, Rutland Road, Wanstead, Essex, artist. Registered office: 148 and 149, Holborn, E.C.

PALLIUM PRODUCTIONS, LTD.—Private company. Registered October 6. Capital, £300 in 1s. shares. To carry on the business of kinematograph film producers, etc. The permanent directors are: D. J. Gillings (George Mozart), J. H. S. Russell, George Leyton (managing director). Solicitor: G. H. Olley, 68, Coleman Street, E.C. Registered office: 20, Lisle Street, Leicester Square, W.C.

“THE ALABAMA COON”

Quite an interesting personality in both the film and the theatrical world is H. Val Jackson, who made a name for himself in the States as the Alabama Coon. His great hit was, of course, “Go to sleep, my little picanniny,” with which he travelled all over Europe. He was in Africa during the Boer War, serving in the Frontier Light Horse. Then he went to Japan and later returned to Nottingham.

With voice and banjo he has, if the truth were disclosed, made enough to retire on, but with a growing family, he has decided to come to London, where he has opened a branch at 18, Gerrard Street.

His film ventures include the Tontalini Comedies, and “A Trip to the Moon,” so that he is well qualified to understand the requirements of directors.

He has for sale or hire costumes, wigs, props, and all kinds of fancy dresses.

CAMERAMEN AT WORK

Frank Basil, The Pathé Gazette cameraman, had an amusing experience over in France the other day. The Mayor of Hornsey and his party were presenting the French town they have adopted with agricultural implements. Neither the Mayor nor the party could speak French, and so Basil acted as interpreter and translated the Mayor's speech into French. This little side-line in no way deteriorated from the value of the picture he obtained.

We have had fires in Wardour Street and fights in Wardour Street, but nothing has caused so much consternation as the report that the Gold Roosters Concert Party is practising in the Pathé studio every day for its forthcoming concert. Putting all joking aside, however, the concert party, which is composed of cameramen, is shaping well, and the concert it gave on October 28 was excellent. J. Cotter, "Jock" Gimmell, T. Scales, and F. Thorne make up the party.

The possibilities of a discussion on "The Failures and Successes of a Topical Cameraman" were shown on Friday, at the K.C.S. meeting. Henry Sanders gave a few of his experiences, but, apart from A. Moses, no one else had anything to say, not being prepared for such a lecture. Still, it just shows how interesting such a talk would be if the members only came up prepared for it.

Mr. Moses told an amusing incident which happened to him in the States. He was working with the Thanhauser, and that company supplied the artistes, cameramen and director with lunch. There was not much lunch supplied, and the late ones got none. Moses wanted to develop some stuff during lunch, and so as not to have his lunch stolen he hid his sandwiches in his camera. He was suddenly called back to work, and started to turn on a scene. The ease with which the camera was running made him suspicious, so, opening it up for examination, he discovered a mess of sandwiches tangled around a mass of film.

Another amusing story, not told by Moses, was of the start of a certain boat race. The cameraman had been explaining to a fair onlooker how pictures were taken, and so that she could see the picture he put in a bit of ground glass, and suddenly the boats came down to the starting point. Shutting up his camera, he commenced to turn, but he had forgotten to take out the glass, and there was no picture to be seen when the negative was developed.

Adventures with wild elephants, alligators, irate directors, and equally fearsome things were among the other subjects discussed.

Rodier Heath writes to me:—"I am writing to inquire whether the K.C.S. has ever considered the admission of "Student" members. Supposing, for instance, one is interested in aviation, it is possible to become a student member of the Royal Aeronautical Society. The student member has no voting power in the society, but he has the very valuable right of attending many excellent lectures, and examining various apparatus brought by the lecturer or other members. In this way he may learn a great deal that no books would ever teach him.

"But what can anyone interested in cinematography do? The only methods of learning camera work I have been able to discover are either lessons at a kinema "school" (fees about 30s. per hour!) or else by means of purchasing a camera and experimenting with it. I have tried the latter method, but am prevented by expense from taking more than a few feet at a time; also, with nobody at hand to give advice progress must necessarily be slow. Could not the K.C.S. fill the gap?"

"Just at present it is possible that there are more cameramen than jobs for them, but surely by the time the student is fit to compete with the men who are already skilled, commercial, educational and advertising films will be so much in demand that the position will be reversed, and it will be better for the K.C.S. to have reasonably competent men to meet the demand than to find any unskilled man jumping into the Industry and lowering the cameraman's status.

If too many applications for student membership were received, why not hold some form of competitive examination? Could you obtain the opinions of cameramen on this subject I, for one, should be very interested in them."

CAMERAMEN. . . .

JOHN J. COX
44, Barrowgate Road,
:: Chiswick, W.4. ::
'Phone: Chiswick 294.
Cameraman for Maurice Elvey,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD
Cameraman.
AT LIBERTY for First-Class Productions.
1920 Debie Outfit.
All Coms: 4, PERCIVAL PARADE,
WORCESTER PARK.

EDWIN DAY
Motion Picture Photographer,
12, Archer Street, Piccadilly Circus, London, W.1.
Telephone: Gerrard 780.
Telegrams: "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON
Thelton House, Cambolt
:: Road, Putney Hill. ::
Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN
"GAUMONT'S,"
105, King's Road,
Kingston-on-Thames.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

FRANK CANHAM
Motion Picture Photographer.
SPA HOTEL MARINE PARADE,
BRIGHTON

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT
GAUMONT,
:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::
Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT
EXPERT CAMERAMAN.
"The Better 'Ole" etc., "Her Benny" etc.,
"Land of My Fathers."
Offices and Dark Rooms:
2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.
'Phone: Streatham 2966.

ALFRED H. MOSES
Photographing George Ridgwell Productions.
Formerly Chief Cameraman for Thanhauser,
Norma Talmadge, British & Colonial, etc.
Address care of STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS,
Cricklewood.

PHIL ROSS
Cameraman—AT LIBERTY
Late of BROADWEST, HARMA, VANITY, etc.
19, Mayow Road, Forest Hill,
London, S.E.23.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

WILLIAM SHENTON
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address:
17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,
Boreham Wood, Herts.

HORACE M. WHEDDON,
IDEAL FILMS, LTD.
Private Address
"LYNTON HOUSE,"
BOREHAM WOOD, HERTS.

JAMES E. ROGERS,
Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth.
"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"
"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"
"Last Rose of Summer,"
PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

JACK H. ROSS.
AT LIBERTY.
"By some unknown means he has secured the largest close up of a carefully lighted human face we have ever seen."—Kine Weekly.
WHAT I DO TO-DAY OTHERS TRY TO-MORROW.
Caledonian Hotel, Harpur St., London, W.C.

You cannot do better than
by placing your orders with

L. BENJAMIN & CO.

99, Middlesex Street, E.
'Phone—London Wall 7568

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Productions and Who is Working on Them

B & Z Productions

ADDRESS: Windsor Studios, Catford.

FILM: "Repentance."

DIRECTOR: Edward R. Gordon.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Maurice Edmunds.

STARS: Peggy Hathaway, Ray Raymond, Ward McAllister.

CAMERAMAN: Harold Bastick.

TYPE: Five-reel Drama.

STAGE: First week.

British Photoplay Productions.

ADDRESS: Devon Chambers, 28, Fleet Street, Torquay.

FILM: "Where the Rainbow Ends."

DIRECTOR: H. Lisle Lucoque.

CAMERAMAN: I. Roseman.

STAR: West End Cast.

TYPE: Five-reel drama.

STAGE: Finishing.

Davidsons.

STUDIO: Lea Bridge Road, Leyton.

FILM: Not Titled.

DIRECTOR: Arthur Rooke.

STARS: Phyllis Shannaw, Victor McLaglan.

CAMERAMAN: Leslie Eveleigh.

SCENARIST: Arthur Rooke.

STAGE: Third week.

Direct Film Traders.

ADDRESS: 87, Wardour Street, W.

FILM: "Four Men in a Van."

DIRECTOR: Hugh Croise.

STAR: Johnny Butt.

SCENARIST: Hugh Croise.

CAMERAMAN: Frank Granger.

TYPE: Feature Comedy.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Famous Players-Lasky

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.

STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A.

Bell, O.B.E.

FILM: "The Man from Home."

DIRECTOR: George Fitzmaurice.

STAGE: First week.

FILM: "Love's Boomerang."

DIRECTOR: John Robertson.

STAGE: First week.

Gaumont

ADDRESS: 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, W. 12.

FILM: "Class and No Class."

DIRECTOR: Will Kellino.

STAR: Pauline Johnson.

STAGE: Fifth week.

Graham-Wilcox Productions.

ADDRESS: 89-91, Wardour Street.

FILM: "The Wonderful Story."

STAGE: Casting.

Hardy.

ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W. 1.

STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isleworth.

FILM: "The Recoil."

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.

STARS: Eille Norwood.

SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.

CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "The Scourge."

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.

SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.

CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.

STAGE: Second week.

Harma

ADDRESS: 16, Limes Road, Croydon.

FILM: "The Corner Man."

DIRECTOR: Einar J. Bruun.

STAR: Hugh E. Wright and Ida Lambert.

SCENARIST: Frank Fowell.

CAMERAMAN: A. G. Franguelli.

TYPE: Comedy Drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Ideal.

ADDRESS: Boreham Woods, Elstree

STUDIO MANAGER: F. A. Kendrick.

STAGE MANAGER: F. G. Knott.

FILM: "Pickwick Papers."

DIRECTOR: Thomas Bentley.

STAR: Fred Valpé.

CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.

STAGE: Seventh week

FILM: "The Old Wives' Tale."

DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.

STARS: Fay Compton, Florence Turner.

SCENARIST: Denison Clift.

CAMERAMAN: Geoffrey Barkas.

STAGE: Fifth week.

FILM: "Shirley."

DIRECTOR: A. V. Bramble.

STAR: Clive Brook.

CAMERAMAN: H. W. Whadden.

STAGE: Sixth week.

FILM: "Sinister Street."

DIRECTOR: George Beranger.

STAGE: First week.

Kelstor Productions.

ADDRESS: Riverside Studios, Kew.

FILM: "An Episode of Life in Greater London."

DIRECTOR: Kelly Storrie.

STARS: Lilly Ford, Kelly Storrie.

CAMERAMAN: L. G. Egrot.

TYPE: Two-reel Domestic Drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Masters.

ADDRESS: Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington.

FILM: Song-story Pictures.

DIRECTORS: H. B. Parkinson and W. C. Rowden.

CAMERAMAN: T. R. Thumwood.

STAGE: Two a week.

Milo Films

ADDRESS: 323, High Holborn, W.C. 1.

STUDIO: Barkers, Ealing.

FILM: "Our Aggie."

STAR: Mary Patterson.

DIRECTOR: Jack Denton.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Bert Darley.

CAMERAMAN: Sidney Eaton.

SCENARIST: Jack Denton.

TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.

STAGE: First week.

Rising Sun Productions.

STUDIO: Barker's, Ealing.

FILM: "Eliza's Romeo."

DIRECTOR: Bert Haldane.

STAR: Louie Freear.

TYPE: Comedy.

STAGE: Third week.

Seal.

ADDRESS: Princes Studio, Kew.

FILM: "Jessica's First Prayer."

STAR: C. Hargraves Mansell.

DIRECTOR: Bert Wynne.

STAGE: Sixth week.

Sterling Photoplays.

ADDRESS: 26, Dean Street, W. 1.

FILM: "Dutch Courage."

DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.

STAR: Dorothy Peters.

SCENARIST: Alec McKee.

TYPE: Two Reel Comedy.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: Not Titled.

DIRECTOR: George Dunstall.

STAR: Jock Cameron and Marie Munro.

SCENARIST: Georges Dunstall.

CAMERAMAN: Edward Groc.

TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.

STAGE: Fourth week.

FILM: "The Aspirants."

DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.

SCENARIST: A. Button.

CAMERAMAN: Edward Groc.

TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.

STAGE: Casting.

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Cricklewood.

STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman.

FILM: "A Romance of Westdale."

DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.

STAR: Milton Rosmer.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling

FILM: "The Passionate Friend."

DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.

STARS: Milton Rosmer, Mdlle. Valia and Fred Raynham.

STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "The Lamp in the Desert."

DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.

CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Finishing.

(Continued on page 13.)

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W. 9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Aerodrome, Hyde, London.

ALLIANCE FILM CO., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W. 5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmopho, Ealux.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH CO., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow, E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD., Thornton House, Thorton Road, Clapham Park.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N. 20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PHOTOPLAYS, Devon Chambers, 28 Fleet Street, Torquay.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N. 1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

GAUMONT CO., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W. 12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolouge, 'Phone London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland., London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W. 1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exelugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners Street, W. 1. 'Phone: Museum 3012. Studio: Candlemass Lane, Beaconsfield.

GLEN FILM PRODUCING CO., LTD., 20, Lisle Street, London, W. C., and "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

HARMA CLARENDON CO., 16 Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.

IDEAL FILM CO., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Ideal Films, Borehamwood.

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS FILM CO., LTD., 52 Shaftesbury Avenue, W. 1.

ISLE OF MAN FILM CO., The Manx Studios, Isle of Man.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Cricklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).

LAMBART FILMS, Carlton House, Regent Street, London, W. 'Phone: Gerr. 4040.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MINERVA FILM CO., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S. W. 1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

PROGRESS FILM CO., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

REGULUS FILMS: 48, Carnaby Street, Regent Street, W. 1.

SAMUELSON FILM CO., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W. 4. 'Phone: Brixton 2956.

SEAL PRODUCTIONS.—Prince's Studio, Kew

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N. W. 2. Willesden 3293—Stollpic, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1903—Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMPSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGNTON PHOTOPLAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & CO., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N. W. 10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W. 1

Phone: Museum 3607.

The MOTION PICTURE Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 22.

Saturday, November 5, 1921.

FOURPENCE

FLORA LEBRETON

Light Comedy and Character. Lead "La Poupee." Just completed principal comedy part in J. Stuart Blackton's production, "The Glorious Adventure," with Lady Diana Manners. Disengaged. 34, Nevern Sq., Earl's Court, S.W.5.

'PHONE: WESTERN 1936.

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."

219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.

Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
'Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.

Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Sonia," "The Knight Errant," "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds."

Address—27 Eccleston Sq., S.W.1 Victoria 2968.

BERT DARLEY,

Juvenile Heavy & Comedy. Featured in "The Hidden Life," "Burnt In," "Shuttle of Life," "Too Many Cooks," "Laughter and Tears," "The Beggars' Syndicate."

31, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Sq., N.W.1.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal). "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).

c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

NOW PLAYING MICHAEL FANE

in "SINISTER STREET" for IDEAL FILMS.

33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelm Foss Production), "John Herriott's Wife" and "The Breed of the Treshams"

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street. Regent 4329.

PHYLLIS SHANNAW,

Juv. Lead "Call of the Road," "The Right to Live," etc.

Will be shortly disengaged. All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour St., W.1. 'Phone: Reg. nt 4329.

JOHN EAST.

Character Comedy. Tele: Hammersmith 1132.
14, Ifley Road, Hammersmith W.6.

ARTISTES

FLORA LE BRETON

34, NEVERN SQUARE, EARL'S COURT, S.W.5.

Phone: Western 1936,

HAYFORD HOBBS.

Starring with African Film Productions. Late Juvenile Lead: London Films (three years), Windsor Films (two years), and all leading English Film Companies.

All coms.: B x 4514 J Chancery, South Africa.

ENA BEAUMONT

Leads in "The Greater Love," "The Golden Web," "All the Winners," "Patricia Brent, Spinster," "Our Girls and Their Physique," "Settled in Full," "Watching Eyes," etc.

All coms. c/o A. Fraser, 26, Charing Cross Road, W.C.2.

SYDNEY WOOD,

Juv. Leads in "The Warrior Strain," "Her Benny," "Ever Open Door," "Bars of Iron," "The Flame," "The Will," "Double Event," "David and Jonathan," etc.

Address—The Laurels, Beverley Road, Anerley, S.E.
'Phone: Chancery 7080-7081.

MILES MANDER,

Light, Heavy and Juv. Leads. Modern, aristocratic. Extensive wardrobe. All-round athlete. Now playing Marquis Sallust in "Half a Truth" (Stoll). Disengaged Oct. 15, 1921.

Address, 3 Clifford St., W.1.
'Phone: Regent 1327.

SYBIL GRAY

Latest Films—

Lead in "Stolen Jewels" (Haigh Serial White), "Gipsy Girl" in "Corinthian Jack." Masters, Alliance Films, Ideal and Famous Players-Lasky, etc.

Address—Castle House, Hampton, Middlesex. Telephone—Molesey 89.

IRENÉE CRAVEN

LEADS.

Dignified, social sporting characters.

Three years experience.

Address—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

WALTER FORDE

Comedian.

ZODIAC FILMS, LTD.

All coms.:—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,

15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.

'Phone: Hornsey 1784.

ARTISTES

TONY FRASER

LEADS.

Specialities:—Oriental and Near Eastern Parts

Just finished with Stoll. "Broken Road," "Four Features," "The Lamp of the Desert."

Address—18, Leinster Sq., W.2. 'Phone—Park 4765.

C. TILSON-CHOWNE

LEADS.

Stoll, Broadwest, Alliance, Screen Plays, Samuelson, Masters, etc.

Address:—21, Weibourne Street, W.2.

'Phone: Paddington 641.

DAVID GREY.

Address—18A, Brixton Road, S.W.

'Phone—Brixton 2372.

J. DENTON THOMPSON

Specialities in Costume Work. Recent films: "Little Dorrit"—"Two Little Wooden Shoes." By Berwyn Banks & Christy Johnson. Royalty Theatre, W.

DICK WEBB

(JUVENILE).

Gaumont Masters, Famous Players-Lasky British Productions.

180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

MARGARET HOPE,

Character Leads.

Late Ideal, Masters, Stolls, etc., etc.

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1.
'Phone: Regent 4329.

LILIAN DOUGLAS,

Just completed second lead in "PERPETUA" Famous Players-Lasky).

Open for engagements. 23, Dorset Square, Regents Park S.W.

'Phone: Pad'd. 4506.

GEOFFREY BENSTEAD,

CHARACTER LEAD.

Horseman, Athlete, Stock-whip Expert, Axeman Stunts etc.

At Present Controlling BAND Z PRODUCTION "REPENTANCE."

CYRIL PERCIVAL,

LEADS.

London, Geo. Loane Tucker, ART. Samuelson. Just completed Seven Consecutive Productions with STOLL and now with DAVIDSON. 15, The Green Richmond.

MARIE AULT,

Character and Comedy.

235, King's Road, Chelsea.

Editorial and
Advertisement Offices,
92, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 22

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

Nov. 5, 1921

"Voice and Soul."

NOT all the travail of war, it seems, has purged from the German soul the awful vice of taking itself seriously. The vile and ponderous philosophy which did so much to produce the great conflict still inhabits the mind—or at least that fantastic and demoniac perversity which passes for mind—of many Teutonic artists. Unlike our own half-witted followers of temporary fashions in culture, these German highbrows are not posers. They are in deadly earnest, and deadly in its most dreadful sense of death. They have now concluded that they will teach the world how to put voice and soul into motion pictures. Huntley Carter's vivid description and biting criticisms of their methods, which are contained in an article in this issue magnificently titled "Madness without Method," scarcely demand further comment. The episode he relates demonstrates with terrific force the fact that the German faculty for perversion is as dominant as ever. As an interesting experiment, done with the tongue slightly in one's cheek, the chaotic juggling with shapes and colours would perhaps have been amusing. But to take it seriously, as the Germans are taking it, and to believe that it is "voice and soul," makes them as dreadful and as pitiful as is a lunatic who believes he is the Messiah and hears the voice of God.

* * *

What is an Assistant Director?

A CONTRIBUTOR writes an interesting, if pathetic, letter to us, asking us to define an "assistant director." First and foremost, of course, an assistant director is someone who assists the director, but we have no very great hope that this definition will satisfy the inquirer. In many cases the assistant is someone who does all the work up to the point at which the real all-wool director can come on the set and say "Aw-w-ll ri-i-ght. Sh-h-hoot!" Then the assistant director follows the director back to his palatial apartment, carrying his little stool and megaphone, and learns what a qualified bone-head he is and how rotten the shot would have been if the director had not come to the rescue. When it is screened, of course, it is worse than that, and the director demonstrates to his own perfect satisfaction how it is entirely the assistant director's fault. Because, when you get down to it, this is the real definition of an assistant director: the director's ever-ready alibi and goat.

* * *

The Boomerang.

MRS. KENDAL is reported to have said that "kinemas are an insult to God." No doubt King James had

But there are just as many films, on the other hand, which merit an opposite opinion. Supposing, however, that the lady meant the Kinema in the abstract and in the concrete—Kinematography and all that it implies—we reluctantly conclude that it is not so much the Kinema which is an insult to God as the lady's mentality.

* * *

Filming Music.

THE crass egoism which enables a German highbrow—that happy and bitter American word!—to believe that by screening a confused mass of geometric shapes engaged in describing weird gyrations and vicious circles, will surely not rest where it is. He will next proceed to produce an equally incoherent cacaphony of sound and claim that it makes audible what would otherwise be a motion picture. Then some other genius will arise who will put these sounds into screen form, and they will all be back precisely where they began. Unless in the meantime they land in the lunatic asylum.

* * *

Art and the Screen.

LOUIS NALPAS, on his return to France from America, declared in an interview that "the illusion that we can impose the supremacy

Kinema Club Notices

IT is necessary emphatically to explain that only those who are enrolled as members of the Club before November 25 will be Foundation Members at the special subscription fee of Three Guineas, free of entrance fee. For those who join afterwards the subscription fee will be at a higher rate and there will be an entrance fee to be paid. It is vitally important that you should and so reap the benefits yourself and also enable the Committee to estimate the Club's possible revenue.

JOIN NOW

¶ For full details of the excellent progress that has been made with the Club, readers should turn to page 11, where particulars of the premises that are being secured will be found.

much the same idea about tobacco. And posterity has passed judgment on him. It may be that Mrs. Kendal has been misreported and that she said no such thing. If she did it would be interesting to have her elaborate opinion, for such a sweeping remark by itself has little meaning. Supposing that the lady means the buildings themselves. We will not only agree with her but go farther and say that they are occasionally an insult to man. But if she means that the gathering together in these buildings of a number of people in order that they may be entertained in a way that the stage no longer entertains them, we wonder frankly just how she arrives at her opinion. Perhaps what she really meant was the films themselves. Here we can find cases in which we again carry our agreement with Mrs. Kendal farther than her remark.

of the French film on its prestige as a more refined and subtle art must be forgotten once and for all. There must be art, but not too much . . . Is it not possible to produce some very fine things which shall still be accessible to all the public? Undoubtedly it is possible. But, like many others, Louis Nalpas is suffering, it seems, from an incomplete understanding of what constitutes art. He appears to regard art in the ultimate sense as something ordinary people cannot understand or appreciate. If this were true would there be good reason for keeping it out of kinematography. But it is the reverse that is true: that all real art is close to the common facts and emotions of life and nature and can be understood of all people. If not, it is not merely not art; it is something at once stupid and untrue. For art is not a pose or a fashion or even a taste.

ARTISTES

MILTON ROSMER'S

forthcoming releases.

"GENERAL JOHN REGAN" (Stoll)
 "ROMANCE OF WESTDALE" "
 "THE POINTING FINGER" "
 "WOMAN OF NO IMPORTANCE" (Ideal)
 'Phone - - - Langham 2243.
 16, WEYMOUTH ST, W.1.

VICTOR McLAGLAN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman,
 Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road"
 and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House,"
 "Wuthering Heights," etc.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.
 'Phone : Regent 4329

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, Stoll, etc.
 AT PRESENT WALTER WEST'S PRODUCTIONS.

All coms : c/o Sidney Jay,
 181, Wardour Street, W.1.

LIONELLE HOWARD.

AT LIBERTY.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

ADELINE HAYDEN COFFIN.

Sympathetic Mother, Grande Dames.

Character Parts, "Mrs. Gatty," in "Christie
 Johnstone" (Broadwest), "Margaret Howe"
 in "Beside the Bonny Briar Bush" (Lasky).
 55, Campden St., Kensington, W.8.
 Tel. : Park 3623.

GREGORY SCOTT,

2, KENYON MANSIONS,
 WEST KENSINGTON,
 W.

POLLIE EMERY.

DISENGAGED.

"Peach" in "The Case of Lady Camber"
 (Broadwest), "Auntie" in "Nothing Else
 Matters" (Welsh Pearson), "Madam Tour-
 terelle" in "Perpetua" (Famous Players-
 Lasky British Productions).

7, KENYON MANSIONS, QUEEN'S
 CLUB GARDENS.

PLEASE NOTE CHANGE OF ADDRESS

CLIVE BROOK

12 Abercorn Place, N.W.

'Phone : Hampstead 3083.

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath,

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh
 Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

ARTISTES

HARDING STEERMAN,

Characters of Distinction,
 56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,

24, Cleveland Road
 Barnes, S.W. 13.

MARJORIE VILLIS.

Exclusive to Harma Photoplays, Limes Rd., Croydon.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,

Character Parts,
 57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.

197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph.: Battersea 21.

CRISPIN HAY,

c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,

12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,

Character Actor. Offers invited.
 114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

SCENARISTS

ELIOT STANNARD

Scenarios.

85, Holbein House, Sloane
 Square, S.W.1.
 Tele. : Victoria 497.

COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,
 :: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,
 Temple Road, Cricklewood.

ARTHUR SHIRLEY,

Dramatist and Scenario Writer.

Films, "Sixty Years a Queen" (Samuelson),
 "My Old Dutch" (Ideal), "Going the Pace"
 (Maurice Tourneur), "Saved from Sea"
 (Gaumont), "Woman and Wine" (World).

Address—

Lyceum Theatre, London W.C. 2.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.
 7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11
 ('Phone : Park 2945).

GERARD FORT BUCKLE

Scenarios.

'Phone : Regent 4747.

41, Glasshouse Street, Regent
 Street, W.1.

SCENARISTS

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,

Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.
 62, Foxbourne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT

Kinedramatist,
 Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

IRENE MILLER,

Novelist, Journalist, Scenarist,
 10, Arundel Gardens, W. 11, or Bramlins.

CYRIL E. MURRELL,

Scenarist—Comedy,
 Address : C/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

MURIEL ALLEYNE. Screen Playwright.
 Plays sold to Pathé, Hepworth, Barker, M.L.B., Clarendon Universal, etc.. Windsor Ho! Amersham, Bucks.

HELEN & THOMAS BLIZZARD

Original Story and Continuity Writers.
 Address M.P. STUDIO.

DIRECTORS

BERT HALDANE,

Producing Comedies

BARKERS STUDIOS, EALING.

'Phone No.: Ealing 211.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
 "Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
 "The Face at the Window."

Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
 Bushey.

F.MARTIN THORNTON

Address—84, LEESIDE CRESCENT,
 GOLDERS GREEN, N.W.11.

Latest Productions — "BELONGING."
 "FRAILTY," "PREY OF THE
 DRAGON," "GWYNETH OF THE
 WELSH HILLS," "LAMP IN THE DESERT."

GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer

THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.

Address : B. & C. STUDIOS,
 Hoe St, Walthamstow, E.17.

ADRIAN BRUNEL,

Producer and Scenario-Writer,
 19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone : 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK,

Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
 39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

ALBERT WARD,

Producer—Open to accept engagements.
 3, Ranelagh Grove, S.W.1.

PUBLICITY

FRANK J. WOOLF

PUBLICITY EXPERT.

Representing British and American Theatrical and Kinema Journals.

Open to accept Commissions,
 Artistes' Personal Publicity Conducted. Extensive
 Campaigns arranged.

Address : C/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO,
 or Telephone : Walthamstow 364.

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

The Ideal Company, which has been playing in the Bronte country around Keighley and Bradford for the filming of Charlotte Bronte's "Shirley," has completed its work there, but had a flutter of excitement last week as a finale to its visit. Fire broke out at the Victoria Hotel, Keighley, in the early morning. Eight or ten people were sleeping on the floor on which the fire broke out, and Mr. Smith, the manager of the party, who had his door partly open, was awakened by the smoke and the crackling of burning, and after arousing the manager of the hotel Mr. Smith raced through the corridors and awakened the other sleepers in the hotel. All were got out safely. The damage to the hotel was confined to the upper storeys.

* * *

At a certain studio within the London area a crowd of 400 "supers" were used as an "audience." They were obtained from the local Labour Exchange. They were offered 7s. 6d. for the day's work. Half-way through the studio manager announced that "as they were working so well," he'd pay them 10s. each. (Loud cheers.) So the "audience" worked better still, and went home singing "For he's a jolly good fellow." Perhaps he was; but some unholy imp at the back of my brain-box keeps reminding me that a super's pay in pre-war days was 15s. a day!

* * *

Congratulations to Gaumont and its "Around the Town" film, on providing a series of pictures of British studios. The first is that of the Hepworth Company; Alma Taylor, Chrissie White, Cecil Hepworth and Henry Edwards are introduced; scenes are included of shots being taken in the studio and of the big generating equipment for lighting the studio. This is said to be the biggest generating installation in any British film studio, and is formed of the engines of the famous German submarine liner, the Deutschland. This is really valuable publicity for the British film producing industry.

* * *

At lunch with Henry Edwards last Wednesday I was privileged to see a private letter from Cecil M. Hepworth to Paul Kimberly, from which I gathered that Mr. Hepworth and Alma Taylor had had a very pleasant voyage to the States. They travelled with Charlie Chaplin, and Alma was the only person with whom Charlie would agree to dance. The two were repeatedly photographed on landing and spent much time together. Mr. Hepworth says he was delighted to find that Chaplin shared many of his views on the question of producing methods—preservation of direction of vision, and the use of daylight. C. M. H. and Alma later dined with Samuel Goldwyn (whom C. M. H. is pleasantly impressed with), and arranged to visit the D. W. Griffith Studio as well as Chaplin's.

* * *

To transplant an orchard to the grounds of its studio at Isleworth is the latest exploit of Hardy, in order to provide suitable scenery for "The Scourge." It is necessary to have an orchard scene in spring, and to obtain this effect in November artificial blooms and leaves are being fitted to the trees. This is being carried out by an expert, who has come over from Paris solely for the purpose. Some particularly fine 17th century scenery has been specially designed by Geoffrey Malins. It was during the testing of the big street scene that an amusing incident

ON THE FLOOR

With ARTHUR ROOKE

He is a showman as well as director. At all events that is the outstanding quality of Arthur Rooke when he is dealing with a large crowd. He gets every individual of the crowd interested in his work by first getting him interested in the personality of the director himself.

He has a way with children, too—a taking way which gets the best out of them.

As a matter of fact he has been a showman of one kind or another for 27 years, seven of which he has been a director or photoplays, including "The Garden of Resurrection" and "The Lure of Crooning Water."

In the case of a crowd he explains very carefully what is going to take place, and he actually rehearses as little as possible, thinking that he can get more natural action when the crowd moves spontaneously.

If his performers start wrong, he throws up his arms and rushes forward to stop the camera and the performers. If it goes well he tells them so emphatically at the end. After telling the story of the scene he encourages them to do their best, for their own credit and to please him—with "Plenty of life, boys, let's set ourselves alight!"

When it is over he thanks them as though he meant it, with a "You have been darned fine fellows, you have helped me a lot." And this skilful handling of human nature explains much of his success.

occurred recently. The lighting effects for this particular interior are on such an enormous scale that an individual who was passing by the studios came to the conclusion that a fire had broken out, and promptly summoned the fire brigade. Not only did the fire-engine put in an appearance, but the local police also came on the scene accompanied by a big crowd!

* * *

The editor has asked me to explain that our fundamental policy is to maintain a personal connection with all our readers in the producing business. We are anxious that you should not regard us as at all isolated, but for you to feel that you have a perfect right to call in at this office to see us and have a chat over the business. To this end I want to urge you to regard this as a personal invitation to yourself—whether you are an artiste or cameraman; whether you are well known or obscure; matters not—to drop in at this office any day (except Press day—Wednesday) and have a chat. You will be warmly welcomed.

* * *

Before he was "discovered" Walter Forde was on the stage. "I never made much of a success," he says, "because as an ordinary comedian I was a 'wash out.' Then one day I tried out a dumb performance, and it was a success. For three years afterwards I played on the stage and never spoke a word. Then I applied for film work—I went to every British film company in existence, and not one of them would look at me. Determined to show them they were wrong, I then invested all my savings in some film and a camera. I wrote some comedies, directed them, and played in them. Of course, technically they were terrible, but I sold them—at a loss!" But we all know how Walter is making a big name for himself as our British screen comedian, so his modesty doesn't count one, after all.

* * *

If there is any scenarist who wants to make Ten Guineas I will refer him (or her) to I. B. Davidson at the Lea Bridge Road studios. I had lunch with him the other day and he offered that sum to anyone who could suggest a novel that would make a good continuity and which he eventually makes into a film. So there you are, you folk who reckon to "MEGAPHONE." know—go in and win!

"THE SELFRIDGE OF THE FILM PRODUCING INDUSTRY."

SIDNEY JAY'S

Kinema Artistes' Agency,

181, WARDOUR STREET, W.1.

Phones : DAY .. REGENT 4329.
NIGHT .. HAMPSTEAD 8311.
Telegrams : JAYSARTAG, OX, LONDON.

Manager :
DAVID BOODSON.

New York Office :
JOHN J. LIVINGSTON,
1440, BROADWAY,
HOLLAND BUILDING,
SUITE 11.

Manager, Casting Dept. :
FREDERICK EARLE.

TO PRODUCING COMPANIES :—

We can supply you at a moment's notice with any type of Artiste, exceptionally well-dressed crowds, a choice of several studios, any kind of animal or vehicle—in fact, anything and everything pertaining to the production of first-class films.

TO ARTISTES :—

We can secure you suitable engagements with almost every film producing company in Europe. During the past FEW months we have secured engagements for many hundreds of well-known artistes, from among whom the following is a selection :—

MISS FAY COMPTON
" EVELYN BRENT
" RENEE KELLY
" MARY ODETTE
" PHYLLIS TITMUSS
" ZENA DARE
" MARJORIE HUME
" JOAN MORGAN
" MADELEINE SEYMOUR
" FAITH BEVAN
" MAUDIE DUNHAM
" MINNA GREY
" MARGERY MEADOWS
" JOAN LOCKTON
" GWEN WILLIAMS
" MARGARET HOPE
" LILIAN HALL-DAVIES
" KATHLEEN VAUGHAN
" ANN TREVOR
" HELEN HAYE
" ZOE PALMER
" FLORA LE BRETON
" GLADYS JENNINGS
" NORMA WHALLEY, Etc., Etc.

MR. MATHESON LANG
" MILTON ROSMER
" STEWART ROME
" CLIVE BROOK
" LEWIS WILLOUGHBY
" ARTHUR PUSEY
" CYRIL RAYMOND
" CAMPBELL GULLAN
" DAWSON MILWARD
" HENRY VICTOR
" HUBERT CARTER
" WARWICK WARD
" JAMES LINDSAY
" BERTRAM BURLEIGH
" LIONELLE HOWARD
" ERNEST THESIGER
" A. G. POULTON
" SYDNEY PAXTON
" WILLIAM STACK
" FRED VOLPE
" ARTHUR CLEAVE
" J. R. TOZER
" PERCY STANDING
" VICTOR McLAGLAN, Etc., Etc.

NOTE :—Mr. Sidney Jay will be pleased to interview, by appointment, any leading artistes with whom he is not already in touch.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Being the Sayings of People who Matter, and of some who do not Matter.

"A filmable face and a heart that won't break are the chief requirements of the screen actress.—MOLLIE ADAIR.

* * *

"... British directors have displayed a keen sense of their responsibility."—L. YGLESIAS.

* * *

"True Comedy is the player's greatest gift to humanity."—Weekly Despatch.

* * *

"Way Down East."... I hope British directors will aim at something higher than this.—REV. H. NEVILLE HUTCHINSON.

* * *

"I've got nothing to say."—HENRY EDWARDS.

* * *

"Charlie Chaplin is a great artiste."—CECIL M. HEPWORTH.

* * *

"A majority of ordinary film stories are vulgar, morbid, inartistic, and frequently depict unpleasant episodes."—REV. H. NEVILLE HUTCHINSON.

* * *

"I will not hear a word said against the present British Board of Film Censors."—COLONEL LEVITA (Chairman L.C.C. Theatres Committee).

* * *

"In three films I have been knocked clean out."—REX DAVIS.

* * *

"Screen-acting is entirely mental."—BERTRAM BURLEIGH.

* * *

"It is certain that to make the Club a success we must have co-operation."—C. TILSON-CHOWNE.

* * *

"When I finished reading the last issue of the MOTION PICTURE STUDIO my wife asked me what interested me so much, as she heard me say, 'Hear hear,' about a dozen times."—MARESCO MARISINI.

* * *

"The morals of the British films equal those of the British stage."—J. R. TOZER.

* * *

"Kinemas are an insult to God."—MRS. KENDAL.

* * *

"Maurice Elvey, like Agag, has walked delicately."—"THE TIMES."

SCENARIO WRITING

by AN AUTHOR

Just as there came a time when the silent stage ceased to be regarded as the Cinderella of the theatrical world, so there has come a time when scenario writing is beginning to be taken seriously by authors. That time is the present.

But this form of literary work is still in its cradle days. It has to progress far. It can only progress in one way: along certain fixed and well-defined lines; and, having regard to the fact that scenario writing is quite as honourable as, and often more remunerative than, other phases of the art of letters, there is a world of wisdom in would-be writers becoming acquainted with the facts of the case.

Formerly, the scenario was merely an elaborate summary of scenes and action, all being connected together with a profusion of dashes, thus: "Gates of city open—enter procession—assassin steps out of crowd on left—takes two steps to centre—fires revolver at general—general falls forward—police close round assassin." Obviously this form had the defect of leaving far too much to the director and players, who very often had totally different ideas to those of the author.

But the art of scenario-writing has outgrown this, and now the scenario is neat and compact, with its "pivotal" incidents prominently displayed and the development of the plot detailed as closely as if it were a novel.

It is often asked: Should a summarised synopsis be sent in or a comprehensive scenario?

As a matter of fact the proper form in which to send in a scenario is: the synopsis, the cast of characters, the scene-plot and the full scenario. And while it is a fact that certain writers advocate the synopsis only, it is generally understood among directors that the detailed script is preferred.

This is soon proved by spending a day with a director. As often as not he does not look at a piece of paper throughout—he has mastered his script in his office long before he started the day's work. Further, he adheres fairly strictly to the words and general scheme of the author. For he recognises that his work is interpretative, not creative. His is to translate the literary word and the artistic thought of the author into "filmable" action. And he will concede that he has his hands very full in doing this.

It is for this reason that authors are advised to endeavour to supervise the production of their work so far as that is practicable.

So let it be accepted that a scenario should not be scrappy but full; it must be as much a living animate entity as a novel is, and that writer is successful who can visualise the actions of his characters. Nor do film manufacturers fail to see the wisdom of the detailed script, for they are then in a better position to anticipate what kind of picture the finished film will make.

Incidentally it should be mentioned here that it is best to ascertain from the director whether he requires copies of the script for the principal players.

As has already been stated, the film story should be submitted in a four-fold form. There must be the list of characters, male and female, forming the cast, with any notes relating to their physique that may be necessary. Then there should be the scene-plot: a list of the various locations (exteriors) and interior scenes, which are required in the action. Follow this with a brief outline of the story written in staccato style; this will contain the germ of the plot, and should run to one or two hundred words, according to the length of the play. Finally comes the comprehensive scenario. In this each scene has to be fully described, the logical presises given, sequence, denouement and climax developed, and the whole plot revealed in a vivid manner, but without any dressing or picturesque verbiage. It is usual to write this in the present tense, though this is not essential.

It can be taken as a basic principle that the writer who has gained some experimental knowledge of studio work has an undoubted advantage over he who has not. The studio terms must be familiar. The scenarist, therefore, must learn that a "long shot" is a scene that is so staged that there is ample foreground such as will permit the photographing of persons full-length or, it may be, a whole crowd, or a scenic long view.

The reverse of this is a "close-up"—self-explanatory term. The camera is brought "close up" to the object which is photographed at close range.

The "cut-back" means a scene which in the chronological order of the story should have taken place earlier. In writing, this takes the form of "Meanwhile, away in the old home, etc."

The essential in a photo-play is action—never hesitant movement. And, while in America pictures that end on the sob-note are somewhat popular, in this country the happy ending is required invariably.

As to the monetary side of scenario writing, all that can be said is that with film producing firms springing up with each succeeding moon, there must, of necessity, be a demand greater than the possible supply. Further, S. Rowson, of the Ideal Film Company, which is forging to the topmost place in the producing world, said to the writer: "A good scenario is the essential groundwork of every film that is going to succeed, and the time is close at hand when a good scenario will be worth £400 easily to the director, and a capable British scenario writer will be able to earn £4,000 a year."

Given the necessary technique, a scenario may obtain anything from £5 to £25 a reel, of which there are usually five to each feature play. On top of this there are generous royalties.

Where they are and

Clive Brook has been playing lead in "Shirley" which A. V. Bramble is directing for Ideal.

C. Tilson Chowne has during the past year played in eight British films.

Kathleen Vaughan has now finished her part of Arabella Ann in "Pickwick Papers."

Margery Meadows was engaged in charitable work for the Queen's Hospital last week.

Sir Simeon Stuart has been engaged for "The Scourge," the latest Hardy production.

Phyllis Titmuss is starring in Hardy's new picture in addition to appearing in "The Gipsy Princess."

Mme. Karsavina was at Ideal studios last week doing a dancing scene for Denison Clift's picture, "The Old Wife's Tale."

Marie Ault, late of African Films Co., has just finished playing 'Lizer Ann in the new Gaumont film, "Class and No Class."

Matheson Lang has been booked to play lead in the next picture that Kenelm Foss will direct, and which is, as yet, untitled. This is the first time that Matheson Lang has appeared under Mr. Foss's direction.

Ivo Dawson called at this office to ask us to deny the rumour that has obtained to the effect that he has gone to America. He has no intention of leaving England, and can always be found at Crossways, Claygate, Surrey.

LADY with ideas would like to know of lady or gentleman to collaborate in Scenario writing. — Box A, Motion Picture Studio.

William Stack is playing lead in Hardy's third picture, "The Scourge."

Kenelm Foss has gone to Deauville for scenes in his new film, "The House of Peril."

Nathan's have been responsible for executing the large order of costumes for "The Scourge" (Hardy).

Arthur Walcott has been engaged by Walter West to play an important part in his forthcoming production.

H. M. Thompson is in charge of Granger's publicity in London, whilst Elsie Cohen handles this department in Holland.

A. G. Granger paid a flying visit to Holland this week to see the Granger-Binger film, "Sheer Bluff!" which will be Trade shown shortly in London.

Feiko Boersma, who comes from Freisland, is in charge of the photography for "Circus Jim," the new Granger-Binger film starring Evelyn Brent and Adelqui Millar.

Mack Van Lier, chief of the technical department at the Hollandia Studios in Haarlem, has just visited Pars and fixed up a contract with Fox News to represent them in Holland.

Louie Freear is now working for the screen in real earnest—she is playing the leading rôle in the two-reel comedy, "Eliza's Romeo," which Bert Haldane is directing for Rising Sun.

Gertrude McCoy has sailed from South Africa, where she has been playing lead for South African Productions for the past three months. She is due to arrive in this country on November 14.

Evelyn Brent had a "Bouquet birthday" in Holland the other day, being inundated with flowers of every description, both from the Hollandia Studio folk and from admirers, known and unknown.

Harold Cundal has now finished playing for Martin Thornton in his Stoll production, "The Lamp in the Desert," and has been engaged by Geoffrey Malins to play the groom in his latest Hardy film, "The Scourge."

Walter West is heading his own company, which is to be known as the Walter West Motion Picture Show; and the Princes Studios at Kew Bridge have been acquired for the first production, which is being directed now by Mr. West.

Caton Woodville has been engaged by Hardy to act as art director. He has an extensive experience of dress requirements of the various historical periods, and this knowledge should be valuable in selecting the hundreds of costumes needed for "The Scourge."

Jos. Proot is assistant director at the Hollandia Studios in Haarlem, and has his hands full at the moment with the new Granger-Binger circus film, "Circus Jim." His chief characteristic is a broad smile which he never loses, despite the trials of his profession. "Jos" is popular with all the English artistes who visit Holland.

Cyril Percival plays lead in "The Sport of Kings" (Davidson).

Fotheringham Lysons plays Bates, the villain, in "The Scourge" (Hardy).

Donald Lindley has given up aviation in order to become Hardy's studio manager.

Arthur Rooke is very busy at the Davidson studios on the direction of "The Sport of Kings."

Kenelm Foss experienced great difficulty last week in obtaining the services of an expert croupier for scenes in "The House of Peril."

Geoffrey Malins, O.B.E., is now busily engaged directing scenes for the new Hardy film, adapted from Raphael Sabatini's novel, "The Scourge."

Eille Norwood is busy at Stoll's on the Sherlock Holmes series, in which he stars. "The Second Stain" and "The Abbey Grange" he has finished.

Flora Le Breton, who recently played an important part in "The Glorious Adventure," has been engaged by Kenelm Foss to play in "The House of Peril" with Fay Compton and A. B. Imeson.

—DO YOU—

If A. E. Coleby has turned temperance reformer?

* * *

If you have applied for membership of the Club? and—

* * *

Whether you know that those who apply during the coming week will not have to pay so much as those who apply after?

* * *

If Stewart Rome is not having trouble with his eyes owing to the light in the Turin studio?

* * *

Why Clive Brook wore trousers that were too small for him at Keighley? And—

* * *

How he enjoyed sewing buttons on to keep 'em up?

* * *

How Kathleen Vaughan enjoyed carrying the "drunken man" to his room at Elstree?

* * *

If Phyllis Titmuss enjoyed her ride in a certain side-car known as "the flying bedstead"?

* * *

How long the famous actress kept a certain director waiting at the stage door for a reply to his offer to engage her for a new film? And—

* * *

What the director said when he received the reply?

— what they are doing —

Lawrence Anderson is one of the leads in Hardy's "The Scourge."

J. T. Tozer is playing an important part in "The Scourge" (Hardy).

William Shenton has been responsible for the photographic work in "Pickwick Papers" (Ideal).

A. Q. Walton collaborated with George Beranger in the scenario of "Sinister Street" for Ideal.

Phyllis Titmuss plays two leading parts in "The Scourge," now being directed by Geoffrey Malins at Isleworth.

George Beranger, the latest addition to the Ideal directorial staff, has started work on the floor with "Sinister Street."

Maudie Dunham has been engaged by ideal to play lead in "Sinister Street," which George Beranger is directing.

Amy Verity has been booked through Sidney Jay to play one of the two star parts in Ideal's latest production, "Sinister Street."

Tom Bentley has now finished the direction of "Pickwick Papers" for Ideal, and is now cutting and editing this prior to the Trade Show, which is fixed for November 8.

— KNOW? —

If Cheapside and St. Paul's Churchyard will not be a centre of attraction on Poppy Day? And—

* * *

How many well-known film stars will be selling Flanders Poppies in that district? * * *

If Olaf Hytten likes acting with pigs?

* * *

That you save money by joining the Club now?

* * *

If Rex Davies' eye was as black as it was painted in the Daily Mirror cartoon?

* * *

That we have received numerous congratulations on our revised "Screen Values" section? And—

* * *

That it is the only Review Section in which British productions are reviewed solely from the studio point of view?

* * *

What Henry Edwards thought of the Japanese pictures? and—

* * *

Why he drank lemonade at lunch on Wednesday?

* * *

If Adrian Brunel caught his cold from George Ridgewell?

* * *

The real reason for Betty Balfour's absence from the Committee on Tuesday? and—

* * *

If in future the Committee will employ a chucker-out?

Joan Lockton is starring in Masters Films subjects.

Harry B. Parkinson is directing "After the Ball" for Masters.

Dick Webb has just finished working for Masters.

Masters Films are about to commence producing "Bonnie Banks of Loch Lomond."

George Bishop has finished the part of Dragon King in "Where the Rainbow Ends," and is now free.

Jack Ross notifies his change of address. Letters will now find him at 142, Vaughan Road, Harrow-on-the-Hill.

Ray Lankester is playing Doctor Smith in "Repentance," which Edward R. Gordon is directing for B. and Z.

Edward R. Gordon had the B. and Z. company at Limehouse this week securing scenes for "Repentance."

Harry B. Parkinson, Walter C. Rowden and George Wynn are all producing at the moment for Masters Films, Ltd.

Robert MacAlarney, who has been acting as scenario editor at Famous Players-Lasky studio for some time, has returned to America.

George Ridgewell is now working on the fourth episode of the series of Sherlock Holmes' adventures, which he is directing for Stoll.

Harding Steerman has been booked to play Lord Sarsfield in "Topsy Turvey," which Bertram Phillips is directing at Thornton House Studios.

Stewart Rome has completed his part of Mr. Hogan in the Italian film "The Predicament of Mr. Hogan," and returns to this country early next week.

Dora Lennox has signed a contract with Fred Warden and Karl Hooper to play a leading rôle in "Edge o' Beyond," which goes on tour on December 12.

Ethel Oliver, who is playing Paddy in "Paddy the Next Best Thing" at the Savoy, has been engaged by Norman Ramsay to play lead in his first production.

Fabbie Benstead, who has been playing lead in "Little Dutch Girl" and Seymour Hicks' comedies, is now playing her first screen part. This is in "Repentance" for B. and Z.

Roswell Dague, who has been on the scenario staff at Famous Players-Lasky studio, Islington, has dropped out of its English organisation and returned to America.

Robert Fenemore has now decided to embark on the production of a series of short, well known English poems, the first of which will be Lord Lytton's "The Portrait." This will be directed at North British Productions at Harrogate.

Geoffrey Benstead is playing Toby the Flower Seller in the B and Z production "Repentance."

George Wynn has just finished directing for Masters Films, the subject "Comrades."

Olaf Hytten has been playing in "The Wonderful Story," for Graham-Wilcox.

Walter C. Rowden is this week directing "Silver Threads Among the Gold" for Masters.

C. Tilson Chowne is playing Lord Saxby in "Sinister Street," which George Beranger is directing for Ideal.

Evelyn Brent, who has been working on the star part in "The Silver Lining" for Granger-Binger, has returned to this country from Holland.

John Stuart has been engaged through Jay's Agency to play in "Sinister Street," for Ideal. He plays the juvenile lead.

Sir Simeon Stuart plays Albemarle in "The Scourge" (Jay's Booking).

John Reid has a very important part in "Sinister Street" (Jay's Booking).

A. B. Imeson plays opposite Fay Compton in "The House of Peril," for Thompson.

William Shaw is playing in a new Master song film (Jay's booking).

Frank Stanmore has been re-engaged by Famous Players-Lasky, and will go to Spain for exteriors on or about the 11th.

Will Chart was the assistant cameraman to Will Howse during the taking of "The Night Hawk," for International Artists.

Mr. HERBERT MAULE,
Riding Master,
PUTNEY RIDING ESTABLISHMENT,
Horses supplied to film companies: riding lessons given. Terms moderate.
Phone PUTNEY 1984.

MADNESS WITHOUT METHOD

by HUNTLEY CARTER

"Bubbles and foams of colour danced or wallowed across the screen, fountains and jets of light and shadow, shot into infinity, waves—great, thundering beach-combers of brilliant sound came galloping on, heaving, palpitating, rising into a crescendo, throwing off a serpentine of pearls or a thin, glittering spray that floated away like some high note, piercing, sustained, ecstatic. Globes and discs of harmonious colours came rolling into the field, some cannoning furiously against others, some buoyant as toy-balloons, some kissing or repulsing or merging with one another like white or red corpuscles. Triangles sharp as splinters darted across the rushing torrent of forms. Clouds rolled up, spread, dissolved, varnished serpents of flame blazed through the pictured music a coloured echo, no doubt, of some dominating note. From time to time, flickering and waving in and out, over and under this revel of Klangfarbe, or sounding colour, the Leitmotif appeared in playful undulant lines like lightning over a landscape, or a golden thread through a tapestry. Then the colour equivalents of the strong, clear finale poured themselves like a cataract upon the scene—masses of oblongs and squares fell crashingly shower upon shower."

The film symphony was over. So we should think! And about time!

This is not a description of Brock's benefit at the Crystal Palace. No, it is not a futurist description of a championship billiard match between Inman and Falkiner, as "the colour rolling into the field, some cannoning furiously against others, some buoyant as toy-balloons, some kissing or repulsing, or merging with one another like white or red corpuscles might lead you to believe." It is an extract from a four-column review of a music film shown to the Trade in Germany, and described in a current German daily. Four solid columns of this.

Think of it. What will the "Reviews of the Week" in the Kine be like when the futurist film comes into its own, and the long-haired reviewers let themselves go? They will require a pantechicon to take them round.

What is it all about?

Let me give the answer in quotations. It seems that the director-general of the largest film corporation has just amalgamated with a well-known American company. In order to celebrate the event he gathered together the editors of the German papers, and told them a few things about the international significance of the film, and with characteristic modesty he concluded, "I believe the function of the German film is to give the American film 'stimmung and soul.'"

One would have thought that the American film, and the British, for that, is capable of taking care of itself. Anyhow the kind of "voice and soul" which Germany is conspiring to present to the American film appears in a recent "daring experiment."

Through the possibilities—technical, actinic, and spatial—presented by the film, we have now attained to "the painter of music" (whatever this may mean). If it means the kind of person who is out to increase the public appetite for sensational matter by suggesting sounds by colours, he has been "attained" some time. Anyhow "this new magician is a young painter" who is writing film scenarios with a combination of fiddle-bow and mahl-stick.

This is how he does it. "It is necessary to produce thousands of drawings, executed with a microscopic accuracy, as well as to ensure an exact and faithful registration. It is then necessary to colour these drawings with fixed, graduated or variable colours—a task requiring the most prodigious patience and a kind of sixth sense of mathematical Raumgefühl, capable of synchronising time and movement—different movement at the same and at different times—a sort of running application of the Theory of Relativity."

Quite so. You proceed in the manner of making the trick or comic film. In other words, it is the sort of thing that happens when they manufacture pictures of our old friends Mutt and Jeff.

The first exhibit was of a musical theme, Opus I. Symphony, in Three Parts, and a group of artistes, musicians and film experts gathered together to undergo the operation, and at first displayed that scepticism which is a usual element in the transaction.

What they underwent takes up half a column of matter. We are told the room faded away (enough to make it). "The machine began to purr." (It knew what was coming.) After conducting us through the opening passages, which suggest a trip through colourful Japan in sixteen minutes, dawnlights and sunbursts and twilights dart and float and throw off schematic disguises, we arrive at something tangible. Triangles, trapezoids, cubes, circles, spirals, squares, discs, crescents, ellipses—all the usual geometrical stock-in-trade of the cubists—are seen writhing, shifting, interlacing, interlocking, intersecting, "fluent and alive." "One suddenly felt or rather saw the laws of Eurhythmia at work." And there you are. What more could the film be expected to provide? If American corporations think they are going to make anything out of an alliance with corporations that produce this hopeless neo-romantic sort of rubbish they are welcome to it. Films of the kind concern more immediately the student of psychology and medicine, to say nothing of the brain specialist.

As I say, there are four columns of this review. In the end the writer is so carried away by his enthusiasm that he starts prophesying. If the film is going to picture music, why should not painters paint movies? Instead of the Duchess of Blinkington being painted in the manner of (say) Constable or Gainsborough, let her be depicted with the lightning-like grimaces of Charlie Chaplin. Why not?

"IDEALITY"

by CYRIL PERCIVAL

Having perused this "ideal" and most interesting journal week by week since its inception, it has occurred to me that certain persons in the film business are suffering from a new and weird disease which, for want of a better name, I will call "Ideality."

This "Ideality" is a sort of "getting off their chest" a few soulful remarks each week concerning "My Ideal Director," "My Ideal Artiste," "My Ideal Cameraman," "My Ideal Studio Manager," etc. Of course all these various "symptoms" form most interesting and highly intellectual reading matter, but as an "antidote" I think it would not be a bad idea to bunch all these "said symptoms" together and approach them from the point of view of the average and commercial (save the mark!) actor.

Having taken on the job of approach from this point of view, I must, of course, make use of the word "my" which, in the present instance, really means "our" or "us"—at the same time trusting the "ours" and "us" will agree.

So—here goes!

The ideal director, from what I can gather, is a benevolent old gentleman who does whatever the artiste tells him, and who gets a good picture just the same.

My Ideal Director is the one who pays us the most money.

My Ideal Artiste never borrows make-up. (I do not claim to be the ideal in this respect, having been guilty in emergencies!)

My Ideal Producing Company is the one that runs the most directors and finds us the most work.

(It must be remembered that if it had not been for "Jeffrey" Stolls may never have "Ber-nerd" of!)

My Ideal Studio is one in which Trade papers in the waiting-room are less than 12 months old.

My Ideal Assistant Director has a very worried look and the cares of the nation on his shoulders. I have "had some," at one period of my life, so I know this is correct.

My Ideal Publicity man should be willing to "do time" for his stunts in our cause.

My Ideal Studio Manager is one whose "ideal" form of exercise is "options."

My Ideal Agent is one who will advance us a trifle "with tears in his eyes" (for further particulars see a recent issue of the Evening News).

My Ideal Cameraman is—this is where we shall have to be very careful—What's that?—Saved!—The Editor has just informed me that in his opinion I ought to be in an Ideal Home. Perhaps he's right, so if you will excuse me I had better go and consult 92, Long Acre.

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

THE LARGEST STOCK IN LONDON OF COSTUMES, UNIFORMS, and CHARACTER DRESSES suitable for Kinematograph Productions. Phone—London W'a 17568

KINEMA CLUB NEWS

BY a sudden stroke, the whole scheme for the Club passes from the nebulous to the concrete and practical. A well-known personality in the film world has advanced the sum of £1,000 to cover the first year's rents, rates, taxes, and insurance of the commodious premises that have been offered the Committee, and negotiations are proceeding for securing these premises. The buildings in question are four floors in height, and cover two shops—eight floors in all—with three very large rooms and numerous smaller rooms. These are to be re-decorated and furnished, and when finished, will provide ample accommodation for both ladies and gentlemen, with card-rooms, billiard-rooms, reading and writing rooms, bar, and dining-room, with a large room for meetings, etc.

The Club should be ready for opening in the New Year.

Through the generosity of the gentleman in question, the premises can be taken at once, but to put them into the necessary condition, and to furnish them, at least another £1,000 will be required. This is to be raised by members' subscriptions, and therefore the Committee is urging all who intend to join the Club to do so at once, so that the Committee will know exactly how much money it will have to spend on the work.

THIS IS IMPORTANT!—There is a sense in which there is no hurry for a member to join, but everybody will realise that the Committee cannot spend more money than it can see, and so it wishes to emphasise the vital importance of You joining immediately.

One hundred and fifty more members are required—sign the form now!

By joining now you will become a Foundation Member and Foundation Members will only have to pay three guineas a year all the time they remain members, and will have to pay no entrance fee. Other than Foundation Members (those joining after Nov. 25) will have to pay a much higher annual subscription as well as a stiff entrance fee. So—join now!

On this page we print an application form, which must reach this office before Nov. 25—if you post it before Nov. 10 it will be in time to be considered at the next Committee meeting. Applications by letter will be considered just the same as those by this form.

Then we are asked to urge every reader to become a "recruiting sergeant" for the Club. If every reader will become a member and also persuade one other to do so, then the Club will be in a position to be opened with everything in its favour for a highly-successful and useful life.

Full particulars of the Club can be obtained from the Hon. Secretary, 93, Long Acre, W.C.2. (Phone: Gerrard 9870).

THE ARMY BEHIND THE CAMERA

Below we print a description that has been supplied by a correspondent of the process that is followed in American studios and the technical work involved in the production of a film.

* * *

In the modern army it is estimated it requires ten men behind each actual fighting man to keep the machinery of war in efficient action. In the making of motion pictures, this invisible army is multiplied by about ten.

When the manager of a studio receives a scenario it is sent to the scenario editor, who turns it over to one of his staff of readers for a verdict. If it is accepted the "scenario doctor" takes the manu-

The head of the technical department calls in his architects, artisans, interior decorators, carpenters, etc., and they arrange for the construction of all the interior scenes. This may include a street corner in Glasgow or a snow-clad mountain peak in Oregon. The property department is given a list of furniture, properties, etc., required for the picture, and this list will usually cover a half-dozen closely typewritten pages. And the property men may be depended upon to have everything on hand, from a newspaper to a locomotive.

A purchasing department is maintained for the purpose of buying what material is required in a production; a transportation department looks after the fleet of trucks and automobiles to transport the players and properties from studio to location.

The electrical department attends to the lighting of the set, which requires from ten to thirty men while the picture is being "shot," and an endless assortment of electrical equipment, such as Kliegs, kinema twins, arcs, floods, spots, banks, overheads, Cooper-Hewitts, search-lights and a dozen other varieties of specially designed illuminating contrivances.

As each day's quota of film is exposed it is taken to the laboratory, where an army of men is employed to develop and print the many thousands of feet of celluloid. When the picture is completed the film is sent to the editorial department, where another regiment of workers known as "cutters" edits and rearranges the sequences according to continuity, while a staff of title writers and artists look after their respective ends of the completion of the film.

Aside from these principal processes named, the course of development of a story from an idea to a finished production engages the services of many other workers without the least among whom a photodrama could not be a complete success.

VOTES OF THANKS to this paper and its staff

CUT NO ICE.

If you really want to show your sincere appreciation of

"The Motion Picture Studio"

You should actively support it by

SUBSCRIBING TO IT—5s. for three Months.

ADVERTISING IN IT—Rates on application.

WE CANNOT SUPPORT YOU

if you do not

SUPPORT US

script in hand and, with one of his assistants, whips it into shape for screening. Then one of a staff of continuity writers arranges the story in proper sequence for filming, and stenographers make a dozen copies of the continuity for the various departments who participate in the production.

When the director receives the story, he engages the services of a casting department to assemble a cast. The technical adviser and a staff of assistants begin the research work, in order that the costumes, architecture, scenery and atmosphere of the picture shall be corrected in every detail.

Application Form for Membership of the Kinema Club.

I am desirous of becoming a member of the Kinema Club and undertake to pay the agreed subscription (free of entrance fee if paid on or before Dec. 1, 1921) subject to election.

Name.....

Address.....

Qualifications.....

To be filled in and posted to the Hon. Secretary, Kinema Club 93, Long Acre, W.C.2, before Thursday next, Nov. 10

SCREEN VALUES

MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"The Mystery Road."

Famous Players-Lasky British Producers—Starring David Powell and Ruby Miller—Directed by Paul Powell—Scenario by Margaret Turnbull—Photography by C. McDonnell.

Another disappointing production comes from Islington. In view of the high state of efficiency and the importation from America of persons who are regarded as being experts in their various departments, there has been no abnormally good production offered by F.P.-Lasky. In fact, we shall soon begin to think of Poole Street as "The Mystery Road."

The film under review had everything in its favour: an original story by E. Phillips Oppenheim, the resources of the Poole Street studios, and a cast the members of which have reputations for high-grade work. But the result is a film that is easily dwarfed by many British productions that, so far as studio equipment, finance and human material go, are heavily handicapped.

In the first and most obvious place, the direction has failed to bring out all the possibilities. The artistes appear to give performances that could be vastly improved had they been handled better by the director, while there are several noticeable scenes which are technically defective, and which need not have been so had the director paid closer attention to the lighting of his sets. It may be that much of the faulty direction is due to the continuity, which appears to provide very limited opportunities for dramatic picturisation.

Members of the cast are—regarded relatively—good. That is to say, they are quite up to the general standard set by the other departments of the production. David Powell gives a good dramatisation performance, and is the best of the bunch. Phyllis Bedell dances a really artistic ballet, and this is one of the bright spots in the picture. The rest of the cast are adequate.

Nor does the cameraman submit results that can compare at all favourably with the British standard of cinematography. This may be due, on occasion, to the poverty of quality in the system of set-lighting that obtains in certain scenes, but there is not evidenced that degree of photographic technique that we accustom with British photo-plays.

"The Bargain."

Hepworth—Starring Henry Edwards and Chrissie White.—Directed by Henry Edwards.—Scenario by Henry Edwards and Edward Iven.

Edward Iven and Henry Edwards have succeeded in adapting the well-known stage play into quite a passable film. But the story is built up on a piece of dramatic mechanism which belongs to a day gone by. Henry Edwards succeeds in making the threadbare plot almost convincing by his clever work.

The production has been well carried out and it is largely due to this that the picture turns out anything like the Hepworth standard.

The cameraman has done his work exceptionally well, and has secured some fine effects of a country dance round a bonfire.

As we have already mentioned, the plot is too obvious to provide any surprises, or to make possible any real dramatic suspense; and, apart from Henry Edwards' wonderful personality, the appeal is only moderate. Both as an actor and director, Edwards is being wasted on the very poor material which the film is founded on.

The settings are excellent, and in many cases beautiful. The continuity has been well preserved and the lighting is quite effective.

Henry Vibart makes an excellent father, but Rex McDougall's work as the worthless son is too stereotyped, and not convincing enough.

Chrissie White does her work well, but she has very few opportunities; while Mary Dibley makes quite a good Bella.

Henry Edwards carries his part through in a wonderful manner.

On the whole, "The Bargain" is just an average production, and marks no advance in British screencraft. The fact that Henry Edwards plays in it should succeed in putting it over, and admirers of Edwards' work will not be disappointed in him.

PRODUCING IN AFRICA

Some of the difficulties in making pictures in South Africa are suggested in a letter just received from Leander de Cordova, who directed Sir H. Rider Haggard's "Swallow," for the I.V.T.A.

"... I lack a scenario writer, technical man, painter assistant, title painter, and an indoor studio. ..."

With regard to his experiences, he has had, he says, many funny and some thrilling happenings while seeking locations for "Swallow." To one location, at a place called Waterval Boven, he had to take the company eight miles every day by foot, over mountains and through rivers, using eight horses as well as fourteen head of oxen.

Of the location itself he speaks in enthusiastic terms. "I think I can say, without egotism," he continues, "that I chanced on the most exquisitely beautiful locations ever used in any pictures ever filmed. On one location I had to use Macheela boys to carry us. We went in a hammock slung between four boys, and travelled that way for sixty miles over rugged, beautiful country.

"One of the rivers we crossed the water was as high as the boys' waists. In it we came upon hippos. They looked at us, but only looked. I had shot one already, and knew how they act if you don't put them away at one shot; so I took no chance with these, although I had my rifle by my side.

I have also been out after tiger, and while at the farm of a friend in the Cape province his stock of prize sheep was visited by a tiger. He and I went after the tiger, and after two days I was lucky enough to shoot the beast—a big fellow, whose skin now adorns my friend's home.

"It is not, however, only from wild animals that one may come to an untimely end, for I have had to sleep on a wet bed for five nights running. When you see my picture, you will, perhaps, realise that old Mr. Death and I have flirted together many times."

PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Continued from Back Page.

FILM: Not Titled.
DIRECTOR: George Dunstall.
STAR: Jock Cameron and Marie Munro.
SCENARIST: Georges Dunstall.
CAMERAMAN: Edward Groe.
TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.
STAGE: Fifth week.

FILM: "The Aspirants."
DIRECTOR: Georges Dunstall.
SCENARIST: A. Button.
CAMERAMAN: Edward Groe.
TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.
STAGE: First week.

Stoll.
ADDRESS: Temple Road, Cricklewood.
STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman.
FILM: "A Romance of Westdale."
DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.
STAR: Milton Rosmer.
STAGE: Completed.

FILM: "The Passionate Friend."
DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.
STARS: Milton Rosmer, Mdlle. Valia and Fred Raynham.
STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "The Lamp in the Desert."
DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.
CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: "A Lost Leader."
DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.
CAMERAMAN: Alfred Moses.
STAR: Robert English.
SCENARIST: William J. Elliot.
STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: Sherlock Holmes Episodes.
DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.
CAMERAMAN: Alfred H. Moses.
STAR: Eille Norwood.
STAGE: On Fourth Episode.

FILM: "Half a Truth."
DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.
STARS: Margaret Hope, Irene Rook, Percy Standing.
CAMERAMAN: Adolph Burger.
STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: "Froggy's Little Brother"
DIRECTOR: A. E. Coleby.
STAGE: Third week.

Thompson Productions.
ADDRESS: B & C Studios, Walthamstow.
FILM: "All Roads Lead to Calvary."
DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.
STARS: Mary Odette, Bertram Burleigh.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Grace Rose.
SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.
EDITOR: John Miller.
CAMERAMAN: John Parker.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "The Chink in the Armour."
DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: First week.

Temple Productions.
ADDRESS: Catford Studios, S. E.
MANAGER: Maurie Edmonds.
FILM: "Some Truth."
DIRECTOR: Bannister Merwin.
STAR: A. Bromley Davenport.
CAMERAMAN: Harold Bastiek.
TYPE: Three-reel Comedy.
STAGE: Finishing.
Welsh Pearson.
STUDIO: Willesden Green.
FILM: "Maud Em'ly."
DIRECTOR: George Pearson.
STARS: Betty Balfour, Rex Davis.
CAMERAMAN: Emile Lauste.
SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.
TYPE: Comedy Drama.
STAGE: Fourth week.

TYPING—'Phone Regent 4747

"SPEEDAC" STENOGRAPHIC BUREAU
41, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.1.

Usual terms. Typing all classes: Authors' MS., Film Scenarios a speciality under expert supervision. Write, 'phone or call for quotation.

Proprietor—P. F. Buckle—Dictation Room.

STUDIO FINANCE

PHOENIX FILM CO., LTD.—Private company. Registered September 26. Capital, £2,000, in £1 shares. To carry on business as film producers, picture hall proprietors, etc. The subscribers (each with one share) are: J. Hubbard Clarke, J.P., B. C. Gibbs, G. Horan, R. Morrison, E. S. Hicks. The first directors are: J. H. Clarke, J.P., B. C. Gibbs, G. Horan, R. Morrison, and E. S. Hicks. Secretary: B. C. Gibbs (pro tem). Registered office: 174a, Gt. Brunswick Street, Dublin.

PALLIUM PRODUCTIONS, LTD.—Private company. Registered October 6. Capital, £300, in 1s. shares. To carry on the business of cinematograph film producers, etc. The permanent directors are: D. J. Gillings (George Mozart), J. H. S. Russell, George Leyton (managing director). Solicitor: G. H. Olley, 68, Coleman Street, E.C. Registered office: 20, Lisle Street, Leicester Square, W.C.

BRITISH AND TRANSCONTINENTAL FILMS, LTD. (177,272).—Private company. Registered October 14. Capital, £16,000 in 15,000 cumulative preference shares of £1 each and 20,000 deferred shares of 1s. each. To carry on the business of cinematograph producers, etc., and to adopt an agreement with G. MacElwee and J. G. Wainwright. The subscribers (each with one preference share) are: G. MacElwee, 1 and 2, Great Winchester Street, E.C., director; A. N. Harper, 87, Howard's Lane, Putney, S.W.15, C.A. The permanent directors are: G. MacElwee, J. G. Wainwright, and H. S. L. Sharp. Qualification: £500 preference shares. Remuneration: £250 each per annum, free of income tax. Secretary: J. F. Mallabar. Registered office: 1 and 2, Great Winchester Street, E.C.

CINEMA ENGINEERING CO., LTD. (177,248).—Private company. Registered October 13. Capital, £5,000 in £1 shares. To take over the business of a cinematograph and electrical engineer carried on by E. S. Macfie as the "Cinema Engineering Co.," at 45, Cannon Street, Manchester. The first directors are: E. S. Macfie (permanent), "Burwood," Lynton Road, Heaton Moor, Stockport; F. H. Judge, 31, Henrietta Street, Old Trafford, Manchester. Qualification: £100. Secretary: E. S. Macfie. Solicitor: F. C. Webb, 16, Daneshill, Polefield, Prestwich.

YOUR LETTER BOX

For the benefit of those engaged in British studios we are elaborating "Our Letter List," which has appeared in recent issues on the "High Lights" page.

In future we shall reserve space for the publication of the names of people to whom letters have been addressed, care this office, and for this service we shall make no charge whatever.

Artistes and others for whom letters are waiting can obtain them either by calling or sending an addressed envelope. Letters for the following are waiting at this office:—

Faith Bevan, Esme Kavanagh, Winifred Sadler, Elizabeth Atterbury, Daisy Burrell, Barbara Everett, Walter Forde (one letter), Maud Cressall, Elizabeth Brandt, Beatrice Chester, Marion Dyer, Ethel Callanan, Max Freeman (two letters), Hadon Cave, Norman Ramsay, G. Albert Smith, Martin Thornton.

Letters that are not claimed after four weeks will be opened and returned to senders.

LIGHTING PROPERTIES

In our issue of October 22 Basil G. Emmott wrote:—

M. P. Prout asks what I think of the Barden white flame arc. In my experience I have always found they give a much crisper image than any Westminsters. The reason, being only a cameraman, I am afraid is beyond me.

Do I think there is anything wrong with the present systems of artificial lighting? While not at the perfect stage, they are "good enough," but, Mr. Prout, there is much to be learned in the arrangement of lamps.

Believing that to see much is to learn much, I make it my business to attend picture shows at least three times a week, and my observations force me to enquire if Mr. Prout saw anything wrong in the lighting of "The Virgin of Stamboul," "Two Minutes to Go," or "The Right to Love," all of which I saw during the last week or so.

M. P. Prout has replied as follows:—
I thank Basil Emmott for his short

"FINE WORDS BUTTER NO—"

You are continually saying that
"The Motion Picture Studio" is

THE PAPER

But words are cheap—Use the language of deeds to show your approval.

The "M.P. Studio" cannot live on bouquets—it can only thrive on active support.

ADVERTISING

and commendably succinct exposition of the causes of disagreement—if so strong a word is justified—between us, as well as for the interesting results of his experience, which also are characterised by an unnecessary brevity, not to mention a quite delightful display of modesty. Filmdom generally knows all and guesses the rest!

I fear that in endeavouring to answer him at all adequately I shall not be able to emulate either of these desirable qualities. The important nature of the subject is the only excuse I can offer for lack of brevity.

Lenses vary much in the extent to which the image produced by rays in the violet region coincides with the image found by the visually stronger rays. It is desirable for all who have to work with both kinds of arc to test their lenses and make a scale of correction.

When I asked Basil Emmott to give us an opinion on Barden lamps I was rather seeking a comparison with other flame arcs than with what they contemptuously call in America "shop lights." Lack of crispness was doubtless responsible for the scrapping of enclosed arcs and mercury vapour as main sources of light in America. Perhaps this scrapping would not have been so vigorous if more attention had been given to the testing of lenses.

The present practice in America—the most approved system—is to use flame arcs only as the main sources of light, supported by M.V. as softeners or diffusers and spotlights to counteract what I called in my article the "un-stereoscopic" effect of lamps badly placed and wrongly used.

Basil Emmott is quite right in saying that there is much to be learned in the arrangement of lamps. There is at least as much to be learned in the method of using them. May I say, without being guilty of a breach of that virtue I so extol, that, having been engaged continuously for twenty-five years in the practical as well as the scientific study of this subject, I feel—I nearly said "know"—that I am qualified to express an opinion on some portion of these unexplored (and unlearned) regions?

My contention is not that the present system is bad (and I am not even concerned whether it be "good enough"—the "passable" of my article), but that it is not as good as a little attention to easily demonstrated, fundamental principles might forthwith make it. A whole copy of the MOTION PICTURE STUDIO would barely suffice to epitomise the numerous points where this experience breaks contact with present practice.

I was at the Trade shows of "The Virgin of Stamboul" and "The Right to Love," but my memory is not as good as it was, and I have probably seen at least 300 feature films since I saw either of them. My impression of the former film (after 14 months) is that the interior work was stamped with a lack of goodness and that the features of Priscilla Dean were of the smudgy and nondescript. I remember a good silhouette of horse-men, a good fight (Wheeler Oakman and Wallace Beery) and—a lot of what I call "groping about" in the photography—low-tone "effect" work. I saw its immediate successor, "Outside the Law," last week—a film very similar in type but not, I think, so good.

As to the other film, "The Right to Love," the chief impression it left is that it would have been better if it had remained out yonder. I cannot remember photography sufficiently well (apart from some soft close-ups—good technically).

"Two Minutes to Go" I have not seen, but Charles Ray films are generally "good enough," though I can remember parts of some (e.g., "Paris Green") that are not.

I do not see many releases, but while on a holiday I recently saw three films, "A Temporary Gentleman," "The Sword of Damocles," and "Young Mrs. Winthrop" (from the same studio, if I mistake not, as "The Right to Love") the arc-light work of which was, in my opinion, far from "good enough."

JOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—

B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,
Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone: W stow 364."

The Historical Film must be accurately dressed.

◎ ◎ ◎
We Stock Civil and
Military costumes of all
known periods. :: ::

◎ ◎ ◎
"The Call of the Road"
and "The Old Curiosity
Shop," with their wealth
of costume, detail and
characteristics of their times, were dressed by us.

◎ ◎ ◎
Write to-day stating
your requirements.

H. & M. RAYNE,
115-119, Waterloo Road,
S.E.1.

WEST END
BRANCH: 15, Rupert Street.

QUALITY FIRST

Always on Time

VICKERS FILMCRAFT
LTD.

89, SHAFTESBURY AVENUE, W.1.

Laboratories :

PARAGON WORKS, 29, ACTON LANE, W.4.

ALWAYS ON TIME.

'Phones: GERRARD 4045 and
CHISWICK 132

CAMERAMEN AT WORK

That the cameramen are going to be well represented in the Kinema Club is proved by the fact that many applications have been received for membership. Those who are intending to join should send in to the secretary of the Club at 93, Long Acre, W.C., immediately, for at the present time the subscription is only three guineas, after a week or two this subscription will be raised, and an entrance fee will also be charged.

The club will be especially useful to cameramen, both topical and studio, for it will be a meeting place for everyone in the producing line, and it is somewhere to get a good meal and a rest, if you are just back from a long journey.

I met a topical cameraman last week, who was labouring under the idea that the Club was not for topical men. I pointed out to him that it was merely a suggestion brought forward by one man at the first general meeting, and immediately it was suggested about six directors, twenty cameramen, Col. Bromhead, and a few others were on their feet protesting. When the meeting was unanimous that topical men should be admitted, the proposal was withdrawn.

The need for cameramen to join the Club is obvious, for it is certain that the Kinema

THERE IS ONLY ONE paper that gives space to the
CAMERAMAN,
and that is The Motion Picture Studio.
You should, in return, support it by
SUBSCRIBING TO IT 5s. for Three Months.
Advertising in it.—Rates on application.

Club is going to be a power in the Film World and the cameraman must be well represented.

Rodier Heath's letter has brought in many replies from cameramen, but I am giving you Henry Sanders', the President of the K.C.S., idea of the thing. I saw Mr. Sanders last Saturday, and he told me that it struck him as being an extremely interesting point, but he could not see, from his own experience, that cameramen would be willing to "give" away information and technical details which had taken them many years to learn. He will bring the whole matter before a general meeting of the society, when members will be able to discuss it.

For the benefit of those who did not see this page last week, I might mention that Rodier Heath's suggestion was that the K.C.S. should admit student members, who could learn the business by being present at the K.C.S. lectures. Mr. Heath pointed out that perhaps in the near future there would be plenty of openings for cameramen, and it would be better to have these positions filled by skilled men from the student members of the K.C.S. than men who had been taught at a cinema school.

Until the general meeting I will abstain from making any comment on this matter.

I saw some of Kenneth Gordon's work in "Eve's Pictorial" last week and it is really fine. Some of the best photography I have seen for some time is included in the different issues. Nice sharp stuff and lovely diffused stuff that would almost make "Billy" Bitzer envious. The photography is streets ahead of some of the work being turned out by the big, well-equipped studios in America, and Gordon's studio only possesses about one sunlight and a couple of Wohls.

Henry Sanders considers that his biggest scoop was taken a few years ago when a certain new airship flew over from Paris. He had just photographed the airship's descent, and had moved up for a close-up of the big doors of the shed closing on the ship after her successful flight, when there was a loud report which sent him to the ground. He was up in a minute again, and instinctively commenced turning the handle. He had the negative rushed back to London, and the explosion of the great airship after its flight was shown at the Palace Theatre, London, the same night—certainly a "scoop" to be proud of.

A. St. Brown, of Gaumonts, is busy on "Class and No Class."

I see that Danvers-Yates has fixed up with the Topical. It is rumoured that he is to return to his first love—the Aeroscope.

D. P. Cooper is working down at Stoll's on "Froggy's Little Brother." "Foggy's Little Brother" was a more suitable title with the weather we were having last week.

The K.C.S. is very seriously considering holding its meetings on Wednesday instead of Friday night. Henry Sanders brought the matter up at a recent meeting, and pointed out that for topical men Friday was the worst night. The studio men present agreed that it did not matter to them which night the meeting was held on, and it was decided to bring the matter up again. Some were inclined to attribute the poor attendances of late to the fact that the meetings were held on Friday when few were able to turn up.

MEN BEHIND THE CAMERA

XI.—Arthur St. A. Brown made his entrance in the film business fifteen years ago, starting in the dark rooms. His work in the business has been done for Williamson, Gaumont, and others. He was responsible for the photography in "The Fall of a Saint," a Gaumont production in which Josephine Earle was starred. In "Walls of Prejudice," he caused something of a sensation by filming the first scene ever taken in the London Underground. "Fordington Twins" was another of his productions for Gaumont, his most recent being "Christina MacNab," and "Saved from the Sea." He is now working on "Class and No Class." His chief hobby is poultry keeping, and his recreation is firstly football and cricket. Address: 105, King's Road, Finsbury Park, N.4.

YOUR CORNER

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"The Paper."

Your last issue, no doubt, must have pleased all my colleagues, and especially the way "The Week's Products" were measured deserves praise. I sincerely hope for a continuation of that way and I am sure that in a very short time you weekly will be "the paper," without which no director nor artiste should like to be.—MARESCO MARISINI.

BRITISH LION AFFAIRS

The petition of Henry Rothfield for the compulsory winding-up of British Lion Films, Ltd., came before Mr. Justice Astbury in the Company Winding-up Court, on Tuesday, Nov. 1.—Mr. Goodman, for the petitioner, said this was a judgment creditor's petition. The company was incorporated in December, 1918, with a registered capital of £20,000.

Mr. Luxmoore, K.C., for the voluntary liquidator of the company, mentioned that the company was in voluntary liquidation.

Mr. Goodman submitted that this was clearly a case where the affairs of the company ought to be fully investigated by the Court.

His Lordship: Have you alleged that the voluntary winding-up prejudices you?

Mr. Goodman: Yes.

Mr. Luxmoore: Only that the voluntary liquidator will not allow the petitioner to prove in the liquidation for the amount he alleges to be due.

Mr. Goodman submitted that he could not have any greater prejudice than the fact that the liquidator would not admit his claim.

Mr. Luxmoore said it was a money-lending claim, and there was a complete answer to it.

His Lordship asked if the liquidator was going to move to set the judgment aside, and Mr. Luxmoore said he did not think so. The judgment was not binding on the liquidator.

His Lordship: Can a liquidator refuse to admit a judgment debt?

Mr. Luxmoore: Certainly; the bankruptcy rules apply, and in any winding-up you can question the consideration for a debt.

His Lordship: Is the liquidator an independent person?

Mr. Luxmoore: He is an incorporated accountant. He has been winding-up for two years, and the whole of the assets have been realised and he is ready to distribute, and petitioner says he is bound to be admitted to prove his claim.

Mr. Luxmoore: No formal proof has been lodged. Apparently, said counsel, the money was borrowed by two of the directors on his own responsibility, and one of them purported to have relented the money to the company, but the moneylender does not appear as creditor.

His Lordship: Would it not be fair to let the petition stand over for a certain time to give him an opportunity of establishing his claim?

Mr. Luxmoore said that would not help him, because though he established it, the liquidator would not admit it. He could take out the necessary summons to have the claim admitted. The right way was not to proceed by petition.

DIRECTORS . . .

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer of

"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."

Address--

c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.

GEOFFREY H. MALINS, O.B.E.

Producer

Latest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE,"
"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
"SETTLED IN FULL,"
"ALL THE WINNERS,"
"WATCHING EYES,"
"BLUFF," etc.

All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

JOHN J. COX

44, Barrowgate Road,

:: Chiswick, W.4. ::

'Phone: Chiswick 294.

Cameraman for Maurice Elvey,
Stoll Picture Productions.

T. R. THUMWOOD

Cameraman.

AT LIBERTY for First-Class Productions.

1920 Debie Outfit.

All Coms: 4, PERCIVAL PARADE,
WORCESTER PARK.

EDWIN DAY

Motion Picture Photographer,

12, Archer Street, Piccadilly Circus, London, W.1.

Telephone: Gerrard 780.

Telegrams: "Lucrecian, Piccy, London."

E. HARVEY HARRISON

Thelton House, Cambolt

:: Road, Putney Hill. ::

Black-and-White and Colour Expert.

A. St. A. BROWN

"GAUMONT'S,"

105, King's Road,

Kingston-on-Thames.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

FRANK CANHAM

Motion Picture Photographer.

SPA HOTEL MARINE PARADE,
BRIGHTON

BASIL W. G. EMMOTT

GAUMONT,

:: Chesterfield Lodge, ::

Jews' Walk, Sydenham.

L. G. EGROT

EXPERT CAMERAMAN.

"The Better 'Ole" etc., "Her Benny" etc.,
"Land of My Fathers."

Offices and Dark Rooms:

2b, Streatham Place, S.W.2.

'Phone: Streatham 2966.

ALFRED H. MOSES

Photographing George Ridgwell Productions.

Formerly Chief Cameraman for Thanhauser,
Norma Talmadge, British & Colonial, etc.

Address care of STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS,
Cricklewood.

PHIL ROSS

Cameraman—AT LIBERTY

Late of BROADWEST, HARMA, VANITY, etc.

19, Mayow Road, Forest Hill,
London, S.E.23.

CAMERAMEN. . . .

WILLIAM SHENTON

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Private Address:

17, Kew Gardens Road, Kew.

GEOFFREY BARKAS

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Address—IDEAL STUDIOS,

Boreham Wood, Herts.

HORACE M. WHEDDON,

IDEAL FILMS, LTD.

Private Address

"LYNTON HOUSE,"

BOREHAM WOOD, HERTS.

JAMES E. ROGERS,

Samuelson Film Co., Ltd., Isleworth.

"Edge o' Beyond," "Aunt Rachel"
"Damaged Goods," "Nance,"

"Last Rose of Summer,"

PRIDE OF THE FANCY," etc.

JACK H. ROSS,

AT LIBERTY.

For first-class Productions only.

At present engaged on my own original
Scenario "The City of Lost Footsteps" (copyright).

All communications to—

142, Vaughan Rd., Harrow-on-the-Hill.

THE PULSE OF THE STUDIO

Productions and Who is Working on Them

Alliance.

ADDRESS: 74-6, Old Compton Street, W.

STUDIO: St. Margarets, Twickenham.

FILM: "The Bohemian Girl."

DIRECTOR: Harley Knoles.

STARS: Gladys Cooper, Ellen Terry, Constance Collier, C. Aubrey Smith, Ivor Novello, Henry Vibart.

CAMERAMAN: P. Hatkin.

TYPE: Romance.

STAGE: Second week.

Artistic.

ADDRESS: 93-5, Wardour Street, W.

FILM: Untitled.

DIRECTOR: Manning Haynes.

STARS: Ernest Hendrie, Pollie Emery.

SCENARIST: Lydia Hayward.

CAMERAMAN: Frank Grainger.

TYPE: Three-reel comedies.

STAGE: Second week.

B & Z Productions

ADDRESS: Windsor Studios, Catford.

MANAGER: Geoffrey Benstead.

FILM: "Repentance."

DIRECTOR: Edward R. Gordon.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Maurice Edmunds.

STARS: Peggy Hathaway, Ray Raymond, Ward McAllister.

CAMERAMAN: Harold Bastiek.

SCENARIST: Edward R. Gordon.

TYPE: Five-reel Drama.

STAGE: Second week.

Bertram Phillips.

ADDRESS: Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clapham, S.W.

FILM: "Topsy Turvey."

DIRECTOR: Bertram Phillips.

STAR: Queenie Thomas.

SCENARIST: Frank Miller.

CAMERAMAN: Percy Anthony.

TYPE: Domestic Drama.

STAGE: Second week.

British Photoplay Productions.

ADDRESS: Devon Chambers, 28, Fleet Street, Torquay.

FILM: "Where the Rainbow Ends."

DIRECTOR: H. Lisle Lueque.

CAMERAMAN: I. Roseman.

STAR: West End Cast.

TYPE: Five-reel drama.

STAGE: Finishing.

Davidsons.

STUDIO: Lea Bridge Road, Leyton.

FILM: "Sport of Kings."

DIRECTOR: Arthur Rooke.

STARS: Phyllis Shannaw, Victor MacLagan.

CAMERAMAN: Leslie Eveleigh.

SCENARIST: Arthur Rooke.

STAGE: Third week.

Direct Film Traders.

ADDRESS: 87, Wardour Street, W.

FILM: "Four Men in a Van."

DIRECTOR: Hugh Croise.

STAR: Johnny Butt.

SCENARIST: Hugh Croise.

CAMERAMAN: Frank Grainger.

TYPE: Feature Comedy.

STAGE: Completed.

Famous Players-Lasky

ADDRESS: Poole Street, Islington.

STUDIO MANAGER: Major C. A. Bell, O.B.E.

FILM: "The Man from Home."

DIRECTOR: George Fitzmaurice.

STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "Love's Boomerang."

DIRECTOR: John Robertson.

STAGE: Second week.

Gaumont

ADDRESS: 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, W. 12.

FILM: "Class and No Class."

DIRECTOR: Will Kellino.

STAR: Pauline Johnson.

STAGE: Sixth week.

Graham-Wilcox Productions.

ADDRESS: 89-91, Wardour Street.

FILM: "The Wonderful Story."

STAGE: First Week.

Hardy.

ADDRESS: 13, Gerrard St., W.1.

STUDIOS: Samuelson Studios, Isleworth.

FILM: "The Recoil."

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.

STAR: Eille Norwood.

SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.

CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "The Seourge."

DIRECTOR: Geoffrey Malins.

SCENARIST: Rafael Sabatini.

CAMERAMAN: Germain Burger.

STAGE: Third week.

Harma

ADDRESS: 16, Limes Road, Croydon.

FILM: "The Corner Man."

DIRECTOR: Einar J. Bruun.

STARS: Hugh E. Wright and Ida Lambert.

SCENARIST: Frank Fowell.

CAMERAMAN: A. G. Franguelli.

TYPE: Comedy Drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Ideal.

ADDRESS: Boreham Woods, Elstree

STUDIO MANAGER: F. A. Kendrick.

STAGE MANAGER: F. G. Knott.

FILM: "Pickwick Papers."

DIRECTOR: Thomas Bentley.

STAR: Fred Valpe.

CAMERAMAN: Wm. Shenton.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

FILM: "The Old Wives' Tale."

DIRECTOR: Denison Clift.

STARS: Fay Compton, Florence Turner.

SCENARIST: Denison Clift.

CAMERAMAN: Geoffrey Barkas.

STAGE: Sixth week.

FILM: "Shirley."

DIRECTOR: A. V. Bramble.

STAR: Clive Brook.

CAMERAMAN: H. W. Whadden.

STAGE: Seventh week.

FILM: "Sinister Street."

DIRECTOR: George Beranger.

STARS: Maudie Durham, Amy Verity.

SCENARISTS: George Beranger and A. Q. Walton.

CAMERAMAN: William Shenton.

STAGE: First week.

Kelstor Productions.

ADDRESS: Riverside Studios, Kew.

FILM: "An Episode of Life in Greater London."

DIRECTOR: Kelly Storrie.

STARS: Lilly Ford, Kelly Storrie.

CAMERAMAN: L. G. Egrot.

TYPE: Two-reel Domestic Drama.

STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Masters.

ADDRESS: Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington.

FILM: Song-story Pictures.

DIRECTORS: H. B. Parkinson and W. C. Rowden.

CAMERAMAN: T. R. Thumwood.

STAGE: Two a week.

Milo Films

ADDRESS: 323, High Holborn, W.C. 1.

STUDIO: Barkers, Ealing.

FILM: "Our Aggie."

STAR: Mary Patterson.

DIRECTOR: Jack Denton.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Bert Darley.

CAMERAMAN: Sidney Eaton.

SCENARIST: Jack Denton.

TYPE: Two-reel Comedy.

STAGE: Second week.

Rising Sun Productions.

STUDIO: Barker's, Ealing.

FILM: "Eliza's Romeo."

DIRECTOR: Bert Haldane.

STAR: Louie Freear.

TYPE: Comedy.

STAGE: Fourth week.

Seal.

ADDRESS: Princes Studio, Kew.

FILM: "Jessica's First Prayer."

STAR: C. Hargraves Mansell.

DIRECTOR: Bert Wynne.

STAGE: Finishing week.

Sterling Photoplays.

ADDRESS: 26, Dean Street, W.1.

(Continued on page 12.)

STUDIO DIRECTORY

Addresses and 'Phone Nos. of all British Studios

AEROFILMS, LTD., The London Aerodrome, Hendon, London, N.W.9. 'Phone: Kingsbury 120—Arfilodro, Hyde, London.

ALLIANCE FILM Co., St. Margaret's-on-Thames. 'Phone: Richmond 1945.

B. & J. FILM PRODUCTIONS, Market Place, Brentford, Middlesex. 'Phone: Ealing 2048.

BARKER MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY, LTD., Ealing Green, London, W.5. 'Phone: Ealing 211 and 1582—Barmopho, Ealux.

BRITISH & COLONIAL KINEMATOGRAPH Co., LTD., Hoe Street, Walthamstow, E. 17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

BRITISH AND ORIENTAL FILMS, LTD., Thornton House, Thornton Road, Clapham Park.

BRITISH FAMOUS FILMS, LTD., "Woodlands," High Road, Whetstone, N.20. 'Phone: Finchley 1297.

BRITISH PHOTOPAYS, Devon Chambers, 28 Fleet Street, Torquay.

BROADWEST FILMS, LTD., Wood Street, Walthamstow, E.17. 'Phone: Walthamstow 399—Broadwest Films, Walthamstow.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY BRITISH PRODUCERS, LTD., Poole Street, New North Road, Islington, N.1. 'Phone: Dalston 3704.

GAUMONT Co., 59, Lime Grove, Shepherd's Bush, London, W.12. 'Phone: Hammer-smith 2090-1-2—Prolougue, 'Phone London.

GRANGER-BINGER, Haarlem, Holland, London Office: Granger's, Exclusives, 191, Wardour Street, W.1. 'Phone: Gerrard 1081 and 1728. Telegrams: Exelugrang, London.

GEORGE CLARK PRODUCTIONS, 47, Berners Street, W.1. 'Phone: Museum 3012. Studio: Candlemass Lane, Beaconsfield.

GLEN FILM PRODUCING Co., LTD., 20, Lisle Street, London, W.C., and "Belgrave," Marine Terrace, Aberystwyth.

HARMA CLARENDON Co., 16 Limes Road, Croydon. 'Phone: Croydon 921 and 2084—Cinemat.

HEPWORTH PICTURE PLAYS, LTD., Hurst Grove, Walton-on-Thames. 'Phone: Walton-on-Thames 16—Hepworth Walton.

IDEAL FILM Co., LTD., Boreham Wood, Elstree, Herts. 'Phone: Elstree 25—Ideafilms, Borehamwood.

INTERNATIONAL ARTISTS FILM Co., LTD., 52 Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

ISLE OF MAN FILM Co., The Manx Studios, Isle of Man.

J. STUART BLACKTON PRODUCTIONS, Bush House, Aldwych (using Stoll's Cricklewood Studio). 'Phone: Central 4048 (Studio, Willesden 3293).

LAMBART FILMS, Carlton House, Regent Street, London, W. 'Phone: Gerr. 4040.

MASTER FILMS, Weir House, Broom Road, Teddington. 'Phone: Kingston 1617.

MINERVA FILM Co., LTD., 110, Victoria Street, S.W.1. 'Phone: Victoria 7545.

PROGRESS FILM Co., The Beach, Shoreham-by-Sea, Sussex. 'Phone: Shoreham 19.

REGULUS FILMS, 48, Carraby Street, Regent Street, W.1.

SAMUELSON FILM Co., Worton Hall, Isleworth, Middlesex. 'Phone: Hounslow 212.

SCREENPLAYS, LTD., Cranmer Court, High Street, Clapham, W.4. 'Phone: Brixton 2956.

SEAL PRODUCTIONS.—Prince's Studio, Kew

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD., Temple Road, Cricklewood, N.W.2. Willesden 3293—Stollpic, Crickle, London.

SUCCESS FILMS, LTD., Strand Street, Liverpool. 'Phone: Central 1933—Success Films, Liverpool.

THOMPSON PRODUCTIONS, Hoe Street Studios, Walthamstow. 'Phone: Walthamstow 364 and 712.

TORQUAY & PAIGTON PHOTOPAYS, LTD., Public Hall, Paignton, S. Devon.

WELSH, PEARSON & Co., 41-45, Craven Park, Harlesden, N.W.10. 'Phone: Willesden 2862.

Spare Parts.

Repairs.

DEBRIE

STUDIO & FACTORY APPARATUS

AGENCE DEBRIE, LONDON

21, MORTIMER STREET, LONDON, W.1

Phone: Museum 3607.

The MOTION PICTURE Studio

Registered at the G.P.O.
as a Newspaper.

Vol. 1.—No. 23.

Saturday, November 12, 1921.

FOURPENCE

Registered
Trade Mark

MILO FILMS

PRIVATE INVITATION SHOW
AT

STRAND CINEMA THEATRE,
AGAR STREET, STRAND,
Friday, Nov. 18, at 11.30 a.m.

* * * *

FOR U.K.
RIGHTS

Apply :
The Manager,
323, High Holborn.

MARY PATTERSON

TWO STARS
IN "OUR AGGIE"

BERT DARLEY

Scene from "Our Aggie."

Author & Producer,
JACK DENTON.

Photographed by SIDNEY EATON.

JACK DENTON.

First of Six
Super Comedies.

* * *

See Article in this issue.

SID EATON.

ARTISTES

HENDERSON BLAND.

Christus in "From the Manger to the Cross." Starring in "General Post," "Mr. Gilfil's Love Story," "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."

219A, Maida Vale, W.9. Telephone: Hampstead 5274.

REX DAVIS

Open for offers. Manly Juvenile Leads.

Address—The Old Manor House, East Moseley.
'Phone: Moseley 72.

SYDNEY N. FOLKER.

JUVENILE.

Leads: London, Samuelson, Ideal, Broadwest, etc. 103, Fowlers Walk, Ealing, W.5.

OLAF HYTTEN,

Leads "Sonia," "The Knight Errant," "Demos," "Money," "Miss Charity," "Knave of Diamonds."

Address—27 Eccleston Sq., S.W.1. Victoria 2968.

BERT DARLEY,

ACTOR—MANAGER

MILO FILMS,

323, High Holborn.

'Phone, Holborn 4648.

KATHLEEN VAUGHAN,

LEADS.

Latest Productions: "The Prince and the Beggar Maid" (Ideal), "Corinthian Jack" (Masters).

c/o Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street W.1.

JOHN STUART.

NOW PLAYING
MICHAEL FANE
in
"SINISTER STREET"
for IDEAL FILMS.
33, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.8.

MARY ODETTE

Latest Films—
"Cherry Ripe," "The Wonderful Year," "No. 5, John Street" (Kenelm Foss Production), "John Herriott's Wife" and "The Breed of the Treshams"

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street. Regent 4329.

PHYLLIS SHANNAW,

Juv. Lead "Call of the Road," "The Right to Live," etc.
Will be shortly disengaged.
All coms.: SIDNEY JAY, 181, Wardour St., W.1.
'Phone: Regent 4329.

JOHN EAST.

Character Comedy. Tele: Hammersmith 1133.
14, Ilfley Road, Hammersmith. W.6

ARTISTES

HAYFORD HOBBS.

Starring with African Film Productions. Late Juvenile Lead: London Films (three years), Windsor Films (two years), and all leading English Film Companies.
All coms.: Box 4514 Johannesburg, South Africa.

ENA BEAUMONT.

Leads in "The Greater Love," "The Golden Web," "All the Winners," "Patricia Brent, Spinster," "Our Girls and Their Physique," "Settled in Full," "Watching Eyes," etc.
All coms. c/o A. Fraser, 26, Charing Cross Road, W.C.2.

SYDNEY WOOD,

Juv. Leads in "The Warrior Strain," "Her Benny," "Ever Open Door," "Bars of Iron," "The Flame," "The Will," "Double Event," "David and Jonathan," etc.
Address—The Laurels Beverley Road, Anerley, S.E.
'Phone: Chancery 7080-7081.

MILES MANDER,

Light, Heavy and Juv. Leads. Modern, aristocratic. Extensive wardrobe. All-round athlete. Now playing Marquis Sallust in "Half a Truth" (Stoll). Disengaged Oct. 15, 1921.

Address, 3 Clifford St., W.1.
'Phone: Regent 1327.

SYBIL GRAY

Latest Films—
Lead in "Stolen Jewels" (Haigh Serial White), Gipsy Girl in "Corinthian Jack," Masters, Alliance Films, Ideal and Famous Players-Lasky, etc.
Address—Castle House, Hampton, Middlesex.
Telephone—Molesley 89.

IRENÉE CRAVEN LEADS.

Dignified, social sporting characters.
Three years experience.

Address, 49a, Clanricarde Gardens, Bayswater, W.2.

WALTER FORDE

Comedian.

ZODIAC FILMS,
LTD.

All coms.:—c/o Motion Picture Studio.

EVELYN BRENT

Latest Productions—
"Demos," "Sonia," "Laughter and Tears," etc.
At present, Famous P.-L. Bus. Coms., Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1
Regent 4329.

MARGARET CHARLTON JAMES

Inten. Dram., Historical Plays, Char. Studies. With extensive wardrobe. Open to Offers.
All coms.: Care of Motion Picture Studio.

ARTHUR CLEAVE,

15, Shepherd's Hill, Highgate, N.6.
'Phone: Hornsey 1784.

ARTISTES

TONY FRASER LEADS.

Specialities:—Oriental and Near Eastern Parts
Just finished with Stoll. "Broken Road," "Four Features," "The Lamp of the Desert."
Address—18 Leinster Sq., W.2. Phone—Park 4765

DAVID GREY.

Address—18A, Brixton Road, S.W.
'Phone Brixton 2372.

J. DENTON THOMPSON

Specialities in Costume Work
Recent films, "Little Dorrit"—"Two Little Wooden Shoes." By Berwyn Banks & Christy Johnson, Royalty Theatre, W.

DICK WEBB

(JUVENILE).

Gaumont Masters, Famous Players-Lasky British Productions.

180, Elmhurst Mansions, Clapham Rise, S.W.4.

MARGARET HOPE,

Character Leads.

Late Ideal, Masters, Stolls, etc., etc.

All coms.: Sidney Jay, 181, Wardour Street, W.1.
'Phone: Regent 4329.

LILIAN DOUGLAS,

Just completed second lead in "PERPETUA" Famous Players-Lasky.
Open for engagements.
23, Dorset Square, Regents Park S.W.
'Phone: Padd. 4506.

GEOFFREY BENSTEAD,

CHARACTER LEAD.
Horseman, Athlete, Stock-whip Expert, Axeman Stunts etc.
At Present Controlling BAND Z PRODUCTION "REPENTANCE."

CYRIL PERCIVAL,

LEADS.

London, Geo. Loane, Tucker, ART, Samuelson. Just completed Seven Consecutive Productions with STOLL and now with DAVIDSON.
15, The Green Richmond.

C. TILSON-CHOWNE

LEADS.

Stoll, Broadwest, Alliance. Screen Plays, Samuelson, Masters, Ideal, etc.
Address:—21, Westbourne Street, W.2.
'Phone: Paddington 641.

MARIE AULT,

Character and Comedy.
235, King's Road, Chelsea.

Editorial and Advertisement
Offices,
92, Long Acre,
London, W.C.2.

Vol. 1. No. 23

Getting the Focus

Telegrams—
Southernwood,
Rand, London.
Telephone—
Gerrard 9870.

Nov. 12, 1921

Exploiting Names.

ONE of the most curious developments in the history of film production is that by which large fees are paid to well-known authors for scenarios, of which little or nothing but the title and the author's name is used. The process is probably a result of the mad rush to buy up every available novel by writers of repute—a stampede which left the market almost empty of material. The fetish of an author's name having become so deeply ingrained, some of the larger American organisations, desiring the use of the names of novelists whose existing work had already been sold, conceived the idea of persuading authors to write original scenarios and in some cases to co-operate with directors in the studio. The idea was a very sound one, for it is beyond argument that better results should be produced in this way than by adapting for the screen stories which had been expressed by another medium. Unfortunately there was no great sincerity in the carrying out of the idea, for it was soon revealed that all that was wanted was the authors' names. It has even been related that Bernard Shaw was offered a large sum for the use of his name with no obligation either to write a scenario or to allow any of his existing works to be adapted. From the point of view of the uncultured people who control much of the destiny of the production of America such a scheme no doubt appeared good. They certainly thought it was good business. The fact that authors, whose reputation was far more valuable and far less ephemeral than their own, would raise objections when they discovered that their scenarios were being distorted and mutilated and even turned into something entirely different does not seem to have occurred to them. Their mental attitude can best be realised from the fact that one of them once said casually that he had "sent Maeterlinck to der Goast" to learn scenario-writing!

The Case for the Author.

ANY widely read author—even if his work is not of any great literary value—has a name to which there is attached a value and some repute. Both the value and the reputation are, for the author, governed to a large extent by the work which he turns out. If, then, he writes a scenario it will undoubtedly contain a story which is typical of him. But if when it gets on to the screen it is not only not the story which he wrote but is something much otherwise, produced most likely in copartnership by people whose ideas and intelligence is of the standard of the more sensational type of fiction magazine, the author has

What Chaplin Learnt.

IN spite of the fact that he hid himself from the public gaze during his stay on this side, Charles Spencer Chaplin appears to have kept his eyes open. On returning to America he said that the Old World objected to the obviousness and lack of subtlety in American films, and that these dwelt too much on sex. He also declared that the director who made this type of picture excused themselves by avowing that it was the stuff the public wanted. He also said that the mentality of the masses had been misunderstood and that until they were credited with more intelligence no real impression would be made by the films.

It is precisely because of this lack of comprehension of the public that things like those discussed in the two previous paragraphs can occur. Directors and their commercial controllers have been too frequently men of little culture, with a sense of melodrama instead of drama, and a habit of trying to hide inherent defects in a welter of spectacular settings and erotic displays.

* *

The British Film League.

Kinema Club Notices

CONSULTATIONS with the Club's solicitor have been taking place during the last week with reference to the legal questions involved in acquiring the premises and the constitution of the Club, and the result of these is to permit the announcement that, all things being in order, the Club will be ready for opening during the Christmas period. It has not yet been decided what particular form the opening ceremony will take.

Applications for membership are still coming in but it is necessary to repeat that only those applicants who are enrolled during this month will be able to obtain the benefits of Foundation Members: No Entrance Fee and the special Subscription Fee of Three Guineas per annum. Those joining after Nov. 25 will have to pay an entrance fee and a larger annual subscription. Sign the form on page 14 and a very real grievance. It is not necessary to enlarge on the stupidity and short-sightedness of the people who do these things. That they are killing the very thing for which they have paid—the public value of the author's name—does not occur to them. How their minds do work is a thing which no one can understand. It is with the author's point of view which we are at the moment concerned. He is being seriously damaged by such a process—as seriously damaged as would be a great painter if he handed over a picture for which he had accepted a commission and it was publicly exhibited under his name after it had been "touched up" by a house decorator. Authors who receive such treatment have surely some means of redress, and it is sincerely to be hoped that they will use it vigorously.

JOIN NOW

THE meeting held last Wednesday to propound a scheme for a regular program of British films is of great importance to everyone in this country connected with picture-making. The scheme has all the elements of success; a British film of guaranteed standard every week, no block booking and no booking before trade show. With two exceptions all the directors and renters of British films are included in the new League, and the arrangements contain all the advantages of the now defunct "Joint Agreement" without its defects. It is to be hoped that the scheme will meet with the loyal support of everyone concerned, as its success will do much to further the expansion of British productions and to keep a little more of the money and employment, which now goes abroad within our own shores.

ARTISTES

FLORA
LE BRETON

34, NEVERN SQUARE, EARL'S
COURT,
S.W.5.

Phone : Western 1936,

MAX FREEMAN

LEADS,

All out-door sports, etc.
Communications :
c/o The Motion Picture
Studio.

F. BROOKSBANK
WALTON.

Playing dramatic or Comedy Leads

Character Studies

Now Disengaged

All Coms :

c/o The Motion Picture
Studio.

VICTOR McLAGLAN,

Juvenile or Heavy Leads.

Boxer, Wrestler, Swimmer, Horseman,
Fencer and Strong Man. "Call of the Road"
and "Corinthian Jack."

Address—N.S.C.

ANN TREVOR.

"Daniel Deronda,"

"The Headmaster," "Build Thy House,"
"Wuthering Heights," etc.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

'Phone : Regent 4329

LEWIS WILLOUGHBY

late

Goldwyn, Metro, Universal, Ideal, Stoll, etc.

AT PRESENT WALTER WEST'S PRODUCTIONS.

All coms : c/o Sidney Jay,
181, Wardour Street, W.1.

LIONELLE HOWARD.

AT LIBERTY.

c/o SIDNEY JAY, 181, WARDOUR ST., W.1.

ADELINE HAYDEN COFFIN.

Sympathetic Mother, Grande Dames.

Character Parts, "Mrs. Gatty," in "Christie
Johnstone" (Broadwest), "Margaret Howe"
in "Beside the Bonny Briar Bush" (Lasky).
55, Campden St., Kensington, W.8.

Tel. : Park 3623.

GREGORY SCOTT,

2, KENYON MANSIONS,
WEST KENSINGTON,
W.

ARTISTES

MILTON ROSMER'S

forthcoming releases.

"GENERAL JOHN REGAN" (Stoll)

"ROMANCE OF WESTDALE" "

"THE POINTING FINGER" "

"WOMAN OF NO IMPORTANCE" (Ideal)

'Phone - - - - - Langham 2243.

16, WEYMOUTH ST., W.1.

POLLIE EMERY.

DISENGAGED.

"Peach" in "The Case of Lady Camber"
(Broadwest), "Auntie" in "Nothing Else
Matters" (Welsh Pearson), "Madam Tour-
terelle" in "Perpetua" (Famous Players-
Lasky British Productions).

7, KENYON MANSIONS, QUEEN'S
CLUB GARDENS.

PLEASE NOTE CHANGE OF ADDRESS

CLIVE BROOK

12 Abercorn Place, N.W.

'Phone : Hampstead 3083

HUGH E. WRIGHT,

Character Parts.

"Mayfields," Lowfield Heath.

:: :: Crawley, Sussex :: ::

Last three years leading parts in all Welsh
Pearson successes.

Open to accept engagement 1st August.

HARDING STEERMAN,

Characters of Distinction,

56, Portland Road, W.11, or Gerrard 1753.

HENRY VIBART,

24, Cleveland Road

Barnes, S.W. 13.

MARJORIE VILLIS.

Exclusive to Harma Photoplays, Limes Rd., Croydon.

ARTHUR WALCOTT,

Character Parts,

57, Church Street, Kensington, W.8.

GORDON BEGG, Char. Straight, Com.

197A, Latchmere Rd., S.W.11. Ph.: Battersea 21.

CRISPIN HAY,

c/o MINERVA FILMS, LTD.

WILLIAM LUGG,

12, Heathfield Gardens, Chiswick, W.4.

DALTON SOMERS,

Character Actor. Offers invited.

114, Amyand Park Road, Twickenham.

SCENARISTS

ELIOT STANNARD

Scenarios.

85, Holbein House, Sloane
Square, S.W.1.

Tele. : Victoria 497.

COLDEN LORE,

Scenario Editor,

The Samuelson Film Co.,
:: Worton Hall, Isleworth. ::

SCENARISTS

LESLIE HOWARD GORDON,

Novelist and Photo-Playwright.

STOLL PICTURE PRODUCTIONS, LTD.,

Temple Road, Cricklewood.

ARTHUR SHIRLEY,

Dramatist and Scenario Writer.

Films, "Sixty Years a Queen" (Samuelson),
"My Old Dutch" (Ideal), "Going the Pace"
(Maurice Tourneur), "Saved from Sea"
(Gaumont), "Woman and Wine" (World).

Address—

Lyceum Theatre, London W.C. 2.

S. H. HERKOMER,

Scenario Writer.

Expert in Film editing and sub-titling.

7, High St., Notting Hill Gate, W.11

('Phone : Park 2945).

GERARD FORT BUCKLE

Scenarios.

'Phone : Regent 4747.

41, Glasshouse Stree, Regent
Street, W.1.

GERALD DE BEAUREPAIRE,

Freelance. Adapted & Original. Splendid references.

62, Foxbourne Road, Balham, S.W.17.

WILLIAM J. ELLIOTT

Kinedramatist,

Stoll Picture Productions, Ltd., Cricklewood.

IRENE MILLER,

Novelist, Journalist, Scenarist,

10, Arundel Gardens, W. 11, or Bramlins.

CYRIL E. MURRELL,

Scenarist—Comedy,

Address : C/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO

MURIEL ALLEYNE, Screen Playwright.

Plays s. 11 to Pathé, Hepworth, Barker, M.L.B., Clarendon Universal, etc., Windsor Ho ! Amersham, Bucks.

HELEN & THOMAS BLIZZARD

Original Story and Continuity Writers.

Address M.F. STUDIO.

PUBLICITY

FRANK J. WOOLF

PUBLICITY EXPERT.

Representing British and American Theatrical and Kinema Journals.

Open to accept Commissions,
Artistes' Personal Publicity Conducted. Extensive
Campaigns arranged.

Address : c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO,
or Telephone : Walthamstow 364.

STUDIO MANAGER

JOHN A. GEEVES,

Studio Manager—

B. & C. FILM STUDIOS,

Hoe Street, Walthamstow.

Telephone : W'stow 364."

High Lights

Intimate Studio Gossip

I am asked to deny the persistent report that the Duke of Manchester has been engaged by J. Stuart Blackton as leading man for Lady Diana Manners in her next film. The statement is without foundation, in spite of its having gained wide currency in England and America. I am delighted to be able to deny this rumour—if Mr. Blackton will permit me to say so: there is no room in the profession for any more titled aspirants.

Henry Arthur Jones because of (or should it be despite?) his success as a film dramatist broke out in a new place last week—for the moment he became a filmist-lecturer. Acting as host at the After-Dinner Club at the Suffolk Street Galleries this amazing septuagenarian read an essay on "She-Stars of the Screen." Lillah McCarthy was hostess, and I am informed that H.A.J. delighted everybody by the charm of his discourse. I am hoping to be able to secure his paper and give Studio readers some extracts.

Great excitement prevailed in the little town of Haarlem, Holland, last week-end, when a circus set up its paraphernalia, and the papers announced that performances would be given continuously for three days. Hagenbeck duly arrived with four of his famous camels; high stepping horses, comic monkeys, dainty ponies, pretty ballet girls, a dapper circus proprietor, a wonderful band, flunkies in gorgeous uniforms and clowns were everywhere to be seen, and then, a hushed moment and the show began. The audience laughed and cheered and clapped, and—the camera clicked merrily away. It was a scene for the Granger-Binger film "Circus Jim," which stars Evelyn Brent and Adelqui Millar.

This, of course, attracted large crowds, and one could not have desired a finer set of "supers" than the audience made. But film producing is a heart-breaking business. The first day all went well—maybe Evelyn Brent felt a little chilly in her butterfly ballet costume, but, anyway, she didn't show it in the take. At five o'clock the company disbanded to meet again next day at 9 a.m., when the big thrill of the picture was to be taken, Adelqui Millar, in cowboy attire, shooting at a circle against which stood Evelyn Brent. But the fates willed otherwise; a storm arose during the night, and in the morning nothing remained of the circus but a flapping tent, animals running wildly around, and a circus proprietor with a cut hand and bruised body. To add to the difficulties a large monkey got loose, stood in the middle of the street, and caused a collision between a tramcar and a motorist. And that's film life!

Of all the idiotic criticisms of our profession commend me to Dr. Preston King, who read a paper last week before the Pembroke College Medical Society at Cambridge, in the course of which he said:—"Another evil of the picture house is the language that the artistes use. This may sound strangely paradoxical to you, but it is a very real objection to the deaf and dumb. They have been taught lip reading and to them the words are clearly spoken. Take a Wild West scene, for instance; the actors let themselves go thoroughly in

ON THE FLOOR

With DUNCAN MacRAE

The nephew of the late Sir Charles Wyndham, with a vast experience of stage work in all its branches, Duncan MacRae came into the picture business with all the best traditions of the stage behind him, and imbued with many ideals, one of which being that artistic productions and commercial propositions can be concurrent.

Believing that to work successfully behind the camera you must first work before it, Duncan MacRae became an artiste and played for the Edison Co., for which he afterwards became director-general, and then director for Vitagraph, Essanay, Metro, Bioscope, after which he came back to British Productions, and his picture "Burnt In" will be remembered.

On the floor Duncan MacRae is a firm believer in "business is business" and takes his work very seriously. He has that trait so characteristic of those who come from North of the Tweed—thoroughness—and despises the easy-chair methods or the brazen bombast of the megaphone. He feels that the director is in much the same position as the captain on the bridge, and is responsible for the whole welfare of the work at hand.

Believing that the onlooker must see most of the game, he leaves nothing to chance, and thorough rehearsing and complete understanding is a sine qua non before taking.

Duncan MacRae is a firm believer in the triple alliance of the director, scenarist and cameraman—and he is a strong enough director to often ask other people's views.

He combines a pleasant manner with a spirit of discipline. There is a quaint little mannerism he has—as a conjuror will sometimes produce much from a hat, so D. M. will often seem to find inspiration by taking his hat off and putting it on again. He has one resolve as immovable as his Scotch hills, and that is the screen must be the mirror of nature.

order to play their parts properly. It requires very little imagination to picture the lurid language they employ. They think, no doubt, if they think at all, that only the photographer will hear them; but they are wrong. The master of a deaf and dumb school said he could not take his children to a picture-house again simply because of this.

What a set of foul-mouthed blackguards you film actors must be, according to this learned (?) doctor. Your lurid language is enough to set the water-works on fire. The wonder is that the celluloid manages to stand the heat. As I am not a learned doctor I cannot set my opinions against Mr. Preston with any hope of being believed, but I must say that while I have seen many exciting crowd scenes shot I have never heard language that could offend either the actresses or the lady journalists present. 'Tis true that, during some crowd scenes in the Blackton production, the sets were burned down, but Mr. Blackton informs me that this was a Fire of London scene and he had soaked the sets with paraffin and set a torch to them.

Billie Bristow, in addition to her extensive film-star publicity service, had her hands full this week with work in organising the film artistes section of "Poppy Day." This charitable event was in aid of the Flanders veterans, and the film artistes' stall was at St. Paul's, where several players were to sell flowers dressed as the character in one of their films.—Florence Turner in the part which she is now playing in "The Old Wives' Tale," Mary Dibley as the Mother in "The Fruitful Vine," Edna Flugrath as the heroine of "Kipps," Pauline Peters as the heroine of "In Full Cry," Mercy Hatton in Victorian costume, Phyllis Shannaw as the heroine of "The Call of the Road," Kathleen Vaughan as Arabella Ann of "Pickwick Papers," Molly Adair as Sylvia Scarlett of "Sinister Street," and Flora Le Breton as "La Poupée." Walter Forde attended the stall at midday and sold by auction signed portraits of kinema stars in aid of the fund.

One last word; but of great importance. Turn to page 14 and read the good news about the Club, and then fill in the form, and join up right now. By joining now you will save yourself anything up to £50.

"MEGAPHONE."

WHAT IS AN ASSISTANT DIRECTOR?

An assistant director always reminds me of electricity—something that we know exists, but what it really is we do not know.

The assistant director's duties are many and varied. But no two assistants seem to have the same position. Some see to most of the casting and become casting directors in their spare time. Others I have seen wandering round the floor with the script in one hand and a pencil in the other. Others are allowed to go out and direct scenes on their own, while some are merely messenger-boys, mere hewers of wood and drawers of water (or beer) for the director!

The duties of the assistant director are many and varied. He is a human paradox—he has not a very responsible position and yet he has a responsible position. If he makes a little mistake, there is a big row; if the director makes a mistake, then the assistant is certain to be dragged into it too.

Pity the poor assistant!

I do!

He seems to be the only one in the film business who cannot blame someone else for his mistakes. If the artiste's work is bad, he blames the director; if the director's work is bad, he blames the scenarist; if the scenarist's work is bad, he blames the author, and so it goes on. But the assistant has no such chances.

Perhaps I have arrived at a solution at last—the assistant director is a person employed by every producing company to put the blame on to.

In America the assistant director is allowed to take the company away out on location and direct scenes; he comes back and the chief director views the results in the private projection theatre; anything that has to be cut is decided by the chief. The assistant directs quite a number of scenes in this way.

Then there is the assistant who sees to it that the characters are properly dressed. He may never have directed a scene in his life. There are many like this who attend to the artiste and engage people for the film.

I have even heard of assistants who assist with the scenario—I do not mean those who score out each shot as it is taken, but those who help the director with the script, when it is being written.

Next comes the assistant who holds the slate up for every "shot," carries the tripod for the camera men, carries messages for the director and gravitates to the exalted plane of office boy.

In big firms there is always a chief director. We are shown a picture directed by Ben McTozer and supervised by someone else, who is the chief director of the company. If any of the other ten directors on the company direct a picture, the chief director has his name well to the front as supervisor, although all he ever did was to witness the final copy of the film in the projection theatre. These directors, then, are really glorified assistants.

I could go on like this for many days, and even then might never find a solution. Will somebody assist me by telling me what an assistant director really is?

BRITISH FILMS IN U.S.A.

After a stay in England and a visit to the Continent, Carl Laemmle, the head of Universal (the American film producing concern), has returned to the States and announced the results of his visit to this side.

After his four months' study of moving picture productions in this and other European countries, Mr. Laemmle is still a firm believer in the continued ascendancy of American films. It is his opinion that it will be a number of years before the master film minds of the Continent will be in a position to challenge American supremacy on the screen.

European film conditions show very little change, says Mr. Laemmle, since I was abroad a year ago. The main impressions that I received were the intense desire on the part of directors and actors to do things in the American way and the very general resentment against the tariff agitation in this country.

These two impressions taken together may seem to strengthen the feeling which has been manufacturing in America that foreign films are a menace to America. Quite the contrary; I came back still more convinced that American films have nothing to fear and everything to gain by foreign competition. It is only in costume spectacles that foreign directors ever have scored in this country and I have no hesitancy in predicting that foreign directors never will be able to produce ordinary features for this country. The customs, mannerisms, ideals, clothes and style of acting as I see them in the ordinary run of foreign features are entirely too "national" to be accepted in America.

The only chance I see for foreign made films is to have them made by an American director and American technical expert. Even then he would have great difficulty, but I have not by any means given up the idea I have entertained for some time of making productions in Germany, France, England, Czecho-Slovakia and possibly some of the northern countries. This country has no scenery or buildings like the old world and I have an idea that the company which can combine these old-world settings with American methods of production and acting will be well repaid.

The interest that European film centres take in the prospect of success of their pictures in America is well shown by the indignation which foreign directors feel at the danger of a tariff wall being erected against their productions. I cannot think of any more ill-advised move than a duty on foreign films. The revenue would be very slight; the hostile feeling aroused is already alarming and is certain to result in retaliatory measures.

SUBTLETIES AND SLEDGEHAMMERS

An artiste, unable to respond to her call from the Ideal studios wrote to Denison Clift, explaining that she "suffered a great deal with her eyes." She would suffer a great deal more without them.

* * *

Bertram Burleigh, who is now on the water-barrel, says that whisky is man's greatest enemy. Well, and doesn't the good Book tell us to love our enemies?

* * *

It is nothing to a man's credit to be able to borrow trouble.

* * *

A press puff written by an American film actress makes her state that "A wedding-ring is symbolic of love because it has no ending," but in Los it is symbolic because it has no beginning.

* * *

Victor McLaglan's definition of the difference between Capital and Labour: "The money you lend is capital, and getting it back again is labour."

* * *

Reading the Financial Mail is enough to make a financier think that in British producing companies he has guilt-edged investments.

* * *

You can sidetrack a lot of unnecessary trouble by giving your tongue a much-needed holiday.

* * *

There is a glut of reformists in studio-land just now. They are continually talking about studio reform or casting reform, or directorial reform. But we are inclined to advocate chloroform.

* * *

"Money," says D. W. Griffith, "is the key to the whole film industry's problem." Yes; but as any anti-prohibitionist would say to him, What's the good of the key if you can't find the keyhole?

* * *

WHEN a man has trouble with his landlord—he consults his solicitor.

WHEN the income-tax man presses heavily—he sends for his accountant.

WHEN business is bad, he goes to the Club and unloads all his troubles on to his friend.

* * *

Flora Le Breton affirms that men have no sense of humour, but when we look at the women that some men have married we are sure that they must have.

* * *

When a fellow is fighting your battle for you the least you can do is to hold his coat for him and cheer. Read: "Where is the co-operation?" on page —

* * *

An advertisement for a new style of cigarette-holder shrieks: "As used by

* * *

Blank Blankton, the well-known film actor." Which is, you will agree, an excellent recommendation, for no one knows better than the film actor the best way to get good puffs.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Being the Sayings of People who Matter and o some who do not Matter.

"One of the brightest aspects of the British Kinema Industry is the attention given to films suitable for children."—G. A. ATKINSON.

* * *

"One of Jackie Coogan's first purchases was the present of a motor-car to his mother."—Woman's Life.

* * *

"Why film Dickens at all?"—E. A. BAUGHAN.

* * *

"A good deal of discussion has taken place recently in film circles."—The Times.

* * *

"'Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills' owes its existence to the encouragement of the Prime Minister."—The Referee.

* * *

"All my busy life I have been screen-struck."—BETTY BALFOUR.

* * *

"My golf handicap? Well—I hope to do better next time."—HENRY EDWARDS.

* * *

"Of course I believe in mascots."—VIOLET HOPSON.

* * *

"I have often felt that if I could live my life over again I would devote such powers as I possess to the film trade—not acting, but directing, selecting and writing—to try and establish a high standard of art, beauty and morals."—HENRIETTA O. BARNETT, C.B.E.

* * *

"I have never seen so much liquor in all my life."—CECIL M. HEPWORTH (in America).

* * *

"Films are too gruesome—more gruesome than ever the stage was allowed to be."—SIR ALFRED FRIPP.

* * *

"Until I studied 'Pickwick Papers' for the purpose of suggesting a scenario for a film I had no real idea of Dickens' powers as a novelist, and of his weaknesses."—E. A. BAUGHAN.

* * *

"British Street crowds are extraordinary kind to the bashful film artiste."—JOHN BARRYMORE.

* * *

"While the cinematograph can be used, and is used, for amusement, interest and instruction, I consider it a prostitution of art and science to use it, as it too often is, at present."—DR. PRESTON KING.

* * *

"My visitors to-day included girls from Liverpool, etc., who had the impression that Wardour Street was paved with gold."—SIDNEY JAY.

DEREK DONOVAN'S DIARY

We have secured the right to reproduce extracts from the diary of a well-known film actor, and these will be found to be interesting and illuminating comments on studio life. We have taken care to alter certain names, places and dates so that the actual events and persons cannot be identified.

Mon. June 27: Got home at three this morning after working at the studio for nearly twelve hours on end. Directors seem to think that an artiste is above the human (but below the divine!) in that his body does not need rest and refreshment. Same time, I have to marvel at the director who himself seems capable of working for hours without either. But there, no one pretends to believe that directors are human.

Tues. July 7: Met Jeff Thomson at Patmac's this evening and jawed about things in general and our work in particular. Jeff is a born grouser. I'm wondering if he is not right, too, in this case. So long as we artistes are prepared to accept all the inconveniences and injustices lying down, then there is no reason to hope for an improvement in the business. However, Jeff is strongly in favour of some kind of organisation for film artistes after the style of the V.A.F.

Fri. July 15: My life is fairly crowded for once in a while. Long may it be so! Just finished at Elstree and am now off on location for Stoll. Latter has fine studio. First time I've been in it. Impressed with the organisation. Confirms what I have often thought—that so many producing companies waste money unnecessarily because of the absence of real organisation and a consequent burden of heavy overhead expense.

Think heads of companies ought to contribute a sum to pay the best accountancy brains in the country to evolve a scheme of financing and working film studios.

Sunday, July 17: Tucked away in the heart of Cumberland. Filming all day yesterday and the director says we can have a day's rest to-day. Appreciate this consideration very much. If only directors and studio managers would understand that the more consideration they pay to the human needs of their artistes (temperamental cusses at best!) the better work they can get out of them. Went to church—of all places—this morning and all the time I was looking at everything with professional eyes. The congregation was a crowd of excellent "types" that would make Elvey rub his hands with glee. So was the parson. And the interior of the church would have looked fine on the screen. Strange how I am cursed with this inability to look at life with normal eyes, but am always mentally transferring its streets and its people, its sorrows and its comedies to the screen! Guess as I die I'll wonder what a longshot of my coffin would look like.

Tuesday, July 26: What a life this is! Full of adventure; but there's a heap of tragedy in it. Met a girl at the studio to-day who left home at the age of 17 to get on the screen; married a man who reckoned to make her a star instead of which he made her a wreck. Now the poor girl's left with a kiddie and no money and is working in crowds to keep the kiddie from the hospital. Well-dressed girl, she was—that is the tragedy of it: the tragedy of Pretence. I go to Stoll's to-morrow for my last scene, and then—?

(Further Extracts Next Week.)

FILM FUNDAMENTALS

by JOHN RODGER.

There are certain established facts which are the fundamentals of the film, and the day must surely come when these facts will be regarded as of vital importance. Non-observance of these is why the film is not taken so seriously as it ought to be by public or by the profession. One of these fundamentals is the fact that the photoplay is illusory. It is the essence of unreality. Over a silver sheet flit a series of shadows—fleshless, voiceless and incapable of establishing a personal contact with the audience. That audience might boo itself black in the face but the villain on the screen continues his black, dark deeds, unconscious of the wrath of the audience. The heroine playing a difficult part never hears the applause that would do so much to inspire her to greater displays of histrionic talent. It is all an illusion.

But it is not a vice of the film—it is its virtue. It is essential to the success of the photoplay that this illusion is preserved intact.

I am often inclined to attribute the decline in the popularity of the stage to those articles in the Press revealing all the inner secrets of stage-craft and the "Behind the Scenes" write-ups. But with the films it is still more vital that the public should not know too much about the methods of work and the process of making a photoplay.

The same applies to the personal appearances of film stars, and I notice that E. Fletcher-Clayton, writing in the Kine, inclines to the same view. He says:—"I am forced to the conclusion, as a student of showmanship, that kinema stars should never be seen in public. Theatrical or music-hall stars may show themselves with impunity, but kinema stars should never be seen by the public eye excepting upon the screen."

All illusion vanishes when one sees screen stars in the flesh. It vanishes more completely than in the case of a theatrical star who may appear at a society function or at a charity bazaar. A screen star's personality evaporates outside the studio, and the wisdom of making public appearances is therefore doubtful.

In my opinion, nothing should be allowed that may transgress this fundamental of maintaining the illusion of the films. To let the public know too much about us and our work is to invite trouble:

* * * The foregoing are the views of our correspondent and are not necessarily our own opinion, nor do we expect they will be allowed to remain unchallenged, and we will place space at the disposal of dissentients.

Where they are and

Sinclair Hill is now directing "The Truant" for Stoll.

Roy Travers is playing in "The Chink in the Armour" (Thompson).

Joan Morgan is playing the heroine Millie Stretton in "The Truants" (Stoll).

Ruth Mackay is playing in Hardy's new picture, "The Scourge."

Teddy Arundell is playing Detective-Inspector Hopkins for Stoll's Sherlock Holmes series.

Madeline Seymour has been engaged by Kenelm Foss to play in "The Chink in the Armour."

Henry Edwards has just completed another Hepworth production which will shortly be ready for Trade showing.

Emelyn Francis has returned to this country from Italy, and will shortly be seen in a new British production.

A. E. Coleby has now finished studio work on "Froggy's Little Brother," and is now casting for his second Stoll production.

Humberstone Wright is busy at the Worton Hall Studios, where he has a prominent part in "The Scourge" (Hardy).

Irene Tripod has been engaged to play an important part in "The Chink in the Armour," which Kenelm Foss is directing for Thompson.

George K. Arthur has been engaged by Ideal to play The Card in the film version of Arnold Bennett's "The Card," which is to be produced by them.

Mme. D'Esterre, who played the house-keeper to Sherlock Holmes all through the first Stoll series of Holmes films, is playing the same part throughout the second series which George Ridgewell is directing.

Phyllis Titmus has been taken ill, and this has necessitated Hardy engaging Madge Stuart to play the heroine in "The Scourge." Every one will regret to hear of Miss Titmus' illness and her removal to a nursing home for a few weeks. She had already figured in several scenes, and these will now have to be re-photographed. This stroke of bad luck will also necessitate her absence from the cast of "The Gipsy Princess," in which she had a prominent part at the Strand Theatre. Miss Stuart, her successor, will be remembered as being the heroine in "Innocent," "General John Regan," "Great-heart," and several other Stoll productions, and Stoll has kindly released her for "The Scourge."

TYPING—'Phone Regent 4747

"SPEEDAC" STENOGRAPHIC BUREAU

41, GLASSHOUSE STREET, W.1.

Usual terms. Typing all classes: Authors' MS., Film Scenarios a speciality under expert supervision. Write, 'phone or call for quotation.

Proprietor—P. F. Buckle—Dictation Room.

Phillip Simmons is playing Tony in "The Truants" (Stoll).

Douglas Munro plays in "The Sport of Kings" (Davidson).

Beatrice Anderson has been added to the cast of "The Scourge."

Martin Thornton's next Stoll production is "The Little Brother of God."

Lewis Willoughby is playing opposite Violet Hopson in her latest film.

Madeline Seymour has finished playing Lady Brakenstall in "The Abbey Grange" (Stoll).

Harding Steerman has been engaged by the Hardy Film Company for its new production.

Millicent Bromhead is assistant director to Arthur Rooke on "The Sport of Kings" (Davidson).

Violet Hopson is playing lead in the new racing film now being directed at Kew Bridge by Walter West.

Teddy O'Neill is playing Squire Cunningham in "The Reigate Squire," the latest Sherlock Holmes episode.

Robert Courtneidge is contemplating making a film version of his famous musical comedy success, "The Arcadians."

Robert English has been cast for the important part of John Mudge in "The Truants," which Sinclair Hill is directing at Stoll's.

Leslie Howard Gordon is responsible for the scenario and the original novel of "The Little Brother of God," which Martin Thornton is directing for Stoll.

"Peter," Violet Hopson's dog, who made such a success in the film of H. A. Vachell's play, "Her Son," has a big part in the new picture which Walter West is directing.

Josephine Earle is back again in London.

Basil Tozer makes an excellent Duke of Buckingham in "The Scourge."

Cameron Carr is playing the villain in yet another racing film under the direction of Walter West.

OVER THE

During the break in the day's work in the studio, when the director, artistes and staff gather round the lunch-table, there is usually an interchange of stories—reminiscences of humorous and thrilling happenings encountered in the course of film-making. We invite readers to contribute those stories to this column: there is no need to put them into literary form—we have a staff here for that purpose. Just send the facts.

While on location on one of my first films, says Olaf Hytten, I met the choicest type of Scottish hotel-keeper. He ought to have a big banking account, judging by the system of charging that obtained at his little hotel. It was a shabby little place and I was given a dirty room at the top of the house. The bed was lumpy and uncomfortable, and I couldn't sleep. The window would not close and before midnight I had caught a draught and was in tearing agony with the toothache. This was all bad enough, but insult was added to injury when the Scottish boss handed me the bill—two guineas for the night! I told him that the charge was preposterous.

"It's our usual charge, sirr-r-r." He pointed out.

That maddened me.

"Well, I refuse to pay it, especially as I could not get a wink of sleep all night

PULSE OF

Continued from

Stoll.

ADDRESS: Temple Road, Cricklewood

STUDIO MANAGER: J. Grossman.

FILM: "The Passionate Friends."

DIRECTOR: Maurice Elvey.

STARS: Madge Stuart, Milton Rosmer, Mdle.

Valia and Fred Raynham.

CAMERAMAN: Jack Cox.

STAGE: Finishing.

FILM: "The Lamp in the Desert."

DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.

CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.

TYPE: Drama.

STAGE: Completed.

FILM: "A Lost Leader."

DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.

CAMERAMAN: Alfred Moses.

STAR: Robert English.

SCENARIST: William J. Elliott.

STAGE: Completed

FILM: Sherlock Holmes Episodes.

DIRECTOR: George Ridgewell.

CAMERAMAN: Alfred H. Moses.

STAR: Eille Norwood.

STAGE: On Fourth and Fifth Episode.

FILM: "The Little Brother of God."

DIRECTOR: Martin Thornton.

CAMERAMAN: Percy Strong.

STAGE: Casting.

FILM: Not titled.

DIRECTOR: A. E. Coleby.

CAMERAMAN: D. P. Cooper.

STAGE: Schedule.

FILM: "The Truants."

DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.

STAR: Joan Morgan and Phillip Simons.

CAMERAMAN: Adolph Burger.

STAGE: Third week.

FILM: "Half a Truth."

DIRECTOR: Sinclair Hill.

STARS: Margaret Hope, Irene Rook, Percy Standing.

CAMERAMAN: Adolph Burger.

STAGE: Completed.

FILM: "Froggy's Little Brother"

DIRECTOR: A. E. Coleby.

MAITT & MYERS
81-83, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

To Producers:—We can supply any type of artiste, well dressed crowds, in fact everything appertaining to a production. We can also place first class films,
'Phone: 5600 Regent.

Grams: Maimye "Piecy" London.

what they are doing

Cecil Cameron is playing a prominent part in "The Scourge."

Lawford Davidson is playing Lionel Callon in "The Truants" for Stoll.

Flora Le Breton is now playing the part of a pert little Frenchwoman in "The Chink in the Armour" for Thompson.

LUNCH TABLE and was marching up and down the room with a raging toothache."

Whereupon the Scottish gent. took back my bill and said:

"That'll mean another half-crown for wear and tear of carpet!"

Cyril Percival recalls one of the many incidents that gather round the late George Loane Tucker when he was directing for the old London Film Company. On one of those rare occasions he had an argument with another director—Mr. Blank—in Wardour Street over the probabilities of a certain company starting to produce a certain film. "G. L." refused to believe that this would take place and concluded: "It's stark madness and if they do, they're maniacs." During the week it was announced in the Kinematograph Weekly that the company was going to produce the film and Mr. Blank immediately wrote confirming this and asking "G. L." what he thought of the company now. "G. L." handed the letter over to me," remarked Percival, and I asked him what I should reply.

"Oh," replied Mr. Tucker, "just say, 'Dear Blank, Read Mark xii, '17.'" "G. L." always was an expert on the Bible, so I turned up the verse in the Bible that was on his desk. And I read: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

C. Tilson Chowne is playing Lord Saxby, an officer of the Guards, in "Sinister Street" (Ideal).

Lewis Gilbert has been engaged by Stoll to play Captain Tavernay in "The Truants."

Roy Overbaugh is the chief cameraman to John S. Robertson at the Islington Studios.

B. E. Doxat-Pratt recently celebrated his second anniversary at the Hollandia Studios in Haarlem.

George Bellamy has been provided with the part of Sir John Stretton in Stoll's latest production, "The Truants."

Amy Verity is playing lead in "Sinister Street" for Ideal, but this is not a Sidney Jay booking as has been assumed. Fryer Rodgers was responsible.

Geoffrey Kerr has been playing an important part in "Perpetua," which John S. Robertson has directed for F. P.-Lasky.

James Kirkwood is the latest American star to join the F. P.-Lasky Company at Islington. He is to play lead in the next production which George Fitzmaurice is to direct.

Bert Darley, who in addition to acting as manager of Milo Films, has been playing lead in its first production, tells us that this has now been finished, and will be shown to a specially-invited audience on Friday, November 18. The title is "Our Aggie," and he is now engaged with the preliminaries of the next production, which is to start immediately.

Phyllis Du Barry was discovered by George Pearson who gave this child-artist a good part in the Welsh-Pearson production, "Nothing Else Matters." She is a professional dancer and singer with two years' experience on the stage. Her business agent is Percy Clarbour, 49, High Street, W.C.2 (Phone, Regent 2716), to whom all communications should be addressed.

Clive Brook draws attention to his new address and to the fact that his telephone number is now Hampstead 3083.

Madge Stuart will play lead in "The Scourge," Hardy's third production, opposite to William Stack, in place of Phyllis Titmus, who has been taken suddenly ill.

Maurice Binger, of Hollandia Films, Haarlem, has bought the rights of a famous Dutch play, which he proposes to picture, with a great English emotional actress in the main rôle.

Norman Doxat-Pratt (aged 6) created a sensation by heading a circus procession through the street of old-world Haarlem, mounted on a white pony, and dressed as a little clown. These scenes were taken for the Hollandia film, "Circus Jim."

Evelyn Brent has just returned from Holland, where she has been playing lead in Granger-Binger's "Circus Jim," and has now signed up with F. P.-Lasky to start immediately in its new production. She desires all future business communications to be addressed to her agent, Sidney Jay.

THE STUDIO

Back Page

CAMERAMAN: D. P. Cooper.
STAGE: Cutting and Assembling.

Temple Productions.

ADDRESS: Catford Studios, S. E.
MANAGER: Maurice Edmonds.
FILM: "Some Truth."
DIRECTOR: Bannister Merwin.
STAR: A. Bromley Davenport.
CAMERAMAN: Harold Bastick.
TYPE: Three-reel Comedy.
STAGE: Completed.

Thompson Productions.

ADDRESS: B & C Studios, Walthamstow.
FILM: "All Roads Lead to Calvary."
DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.
STARS: Mary Odette, Bertram Burleigh.
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR: Grace Rose.
SCENARIST: Kenelm Foss.
EDITOR: John Miller.
CAMERAMAN: John Parker.
STAGE: Completed.

FILM: "The Chink in the Armour."
DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.
TYPE: Drama.
STAGE: Second week.

FILM: "Dicky Monteith."

MAITT & MYERS.
81-83, Shaftesbury Avenue, W.1.

DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.
STAR: Stewart Rome.
STAGE: Scheduled.

FILM: "A Romance of Old Bagdad."
DIRECTOR: Kenelm Foss.
STAR: Matheson Lang.
STAGE: Scheduled.

Violet Hopson Productions.

ADDRESS: Princes Studio, Kew Bridge, Brentford.
FILM: Untitled.
DIRECTOR: Walter West.
STAR: Violet Hopson.
SCENARIST: Bertram Brown.
CAMERAMAN: G. Pauli.
TYPE: A Racing Drama.
STAGE: Second week.

Welsh Pearson.

STUDIO: Willesden Green.
FILM: "Maud Em'ly."
DIRECTOR: George Pearson.
STARS: Betty Balfour, Rex Davis.
CAMERAMAN: Emile Lauste.
SCENARIST: Eliot Stannard.
TYPE: Comedy Drama.
STAGE: Fifth week.

Artistes:—We can place you with recognised producing firms. There is no necessity to write for appointment. Our Offices are open 10-4. Call and bring your photograph.
Phone: 5600 Regent.

Mr. HERBERT MAULE,
Riding Master,
PUTNEY RIDING ESTABLISHMENT,
Horses supplied to film companies: riding lessons given. Terms moderate.
Phone PUTNEY 1984.

Grams: Maimye "Piccy" London

THE MONEY BOGEY

While there is often complaint at the quality of British pictures, it must not be overlooked that our Producing concerns are working under the huge handicap of restricted finance. In fact, this difficulty about finance is at the bottom of the whole question, and to save the industry fresh capital must be attracted. By the courtesy of the Moving Picture World, we are able to print the views of F. W. Heathcote, of the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank, on the way in which producing companies may receive adequate financial support from the banks. These views, when read to apply to British conditions, are very interesting as well as informative.

The motion picture industry is coming to realise the necessity of going outside its own ranks for the financing of productions. Banks and financial houses have heretofore been reluctant to take part in such financing, owing to the uncertain and untried nature of the business.

The production of motion pictures can be financed by hypothecating all rights and title to a picture during production and afterwards, the lender retaining a lien upon all rentals until advances have been repaid. To do this satisfactorily, however, it is necessary to know the production cost of the picture being financed.

There has been an undue tendency on the part of directors to charge to a given picture a large amount of expense which did not rightly belong there. Many pictures have been shown as costing a certain sum to produce, whereas, as a matter of fact, the correct amount should have been considerably less, inasmuch as a good deal of overhead had been charged thereto.

A problem to contend with has been the cost of carrying actors, actresses and other employees between pictures. A very common practice has been to charge half of this to the last picture and half to the next picture, which is obviously wrong. It will be necessary for all directors to rearrange their accounting so as to provide for a general overhead account among their capital disbursements as distinct from production cost.

In this manner, a certain director, producing, say, four pictures in a year, would have upon his general ledger five main classifications of expense, namely, picture numbers 1, 2, 3 and 4, and also "general overhead expense." The latter would not be chargeable to any one picture, but would be a charge against the concern as a whole.

In making up an annual balance sheet and profit and loss account, the returns on the various pictures over and above the cost of same, would represent the gross profits, and against this would be offset the debit account, representing general overhead expense, the net result being the profit obtained from the operations as a whole.

It is a very frequent thing for actors, actresses, cameramen, directors, property men, etc., to be engaged under a yearly contract, and if for any reason production is halted temporarily, it obviously would not be right to charge the cost of these salaries against a picture which was being financed by a bank or outside concern, when nothing was being given to the picture by such employees. It is impossible to expect banks and financiers to assist in the production of a picture, against production cost, if such practices prevail.

There is a very frequent tendency on the part of many directors to charge against the picture in progress many items such as, automobile equipment, cameras, etc., which should be charged to appropriate capital accounts, which could in turn be credited with a fair rental for the time used on any one picture.

It is the practice at some studios to carry a general overhead account, but the purpose of this is defeated in many cases by distributing this overhead account each week among all the pictures in progress. In some cases it will happen that there is only one picture in progress and this picture, therefore, has to stand the cost of an overhead payroll and equipment sufficient to produce five or six pictures simultaneously.

There is an utter lack of uniformity of accounting practices and methods throughout the motion picture industry, and this condition must be rectified if the industry is to be recognised by the financial interests and adequate monetary assistance received.

I have stated that there is frequently a conflict between the artistic and business elements in production, and this is the direct cause of a large amount of entirely unnecessary expense.

Lack of business management and foresight frequently necessitates the idleness of many actors, while a certain piece of equipment or "property" is obtained, the need for which was not foreseen. To an observer it appears that a very large percentage of the time of motion-picture employees is spent in waiting for somebody else, and this would naturally indicate a lack of business management and foresight.

Obviously this results in a vast increase in the cost of production.

Another article next week.

YOUR LETTER BOX

Artistes and others for whom letters are waiting can obtain them either by calling or sending an addressed envelope. Letters for the following are waiting at this office:

Faith Bevan, Winifred Sadler, Elizabeth Atterbury, Daisy Burrell, Barbara Everett, Maud Cressall, Elizabeth Brandt, Beatrice Chester, Marion Dyer, Hadon Cave, G. Albert Smith, Martin Thornton, Coralie Middleton, Lois Weber.

Letters that are not claimed after four weeks will be opened and returned to senders. No charge whatever is made for this service, and artistes are at liberty to take full advantage of the facilities offered.

FRONT COVER BIOGRAPHIES

XIV.—MILO FILMS

There is nothing incongruous in devoting this feature this week to the biography of a producing company instead of a person, because before there can be "persons" there must be the producing company. To a great extent the existence of film players, directors, cameramen and studio workers is bound up in the various producing companies of this country.

Furthermore, it is only right to give prominence to the inception of new producing companies because the future of the industry depends, to a certain degree, on encouraging fresh capital to come into the business, and new companies to raise their banners under which British artistic talent can work for the good of the industry as a whole.

Milo Films is one of the newest, but it is well known that youth is ever the period of energy and enthusiasm. Thus it comes as no surprise to learn that new as Milo is, it is rapidly forging ahead. To such an extent, in fact, that it can now announce the completion of its first production. This is one of the series of six high-class comedies which it has scheduled to produce.

For some considerable time there has been an emphatic demand—from the public and the exhibitors—for good short features, especially from high-quality British comedies. This demand Milo has set itself to supply.

Its premiere is "Our Aggie," and its quality is the standard of the other five that will complete the series. It is an original story of domestic comedy, and is said to be exceptionally well handled by the three leads: Mary Patterson, Bert Darley and Jack Jarman. The story is from the pen of Jack Denton, who also directed the production. Mr. Denton will be remembered as the director of so many Ideal and other successes. The photographic department has been left in the capable hands of Sidney Eaton—who, as a Kine-Cameraman, has a high reputation in the trade.

We are informed that Milo will hold a private show of "Our Aggie" in the Strand Cinema (in Agar Street, Strand) at 11:30 a.m. on Friday, November 18, and that all communications should be addressed to Milo Films, 323, High Holborn, W.C. (Phone: Holborn 4648).

A TIP FROM VICTOR

Victor McLaglan, the boxer-actor, is an authority on physical culture. In his opinion, the average man and woman do not take sufficient exercise. Here is a simple exercise which, he declares, should keep everyone fit, as it affects all the abdominal muscles, and it is here that a great many illnesses have their foundation:—Lie flat on the floor, then, with the heels kept firmly in place, raise the body to a sitting position. Commence by doing this exercise about half a dozen times, and gradually increase the number until it takes ten minutes. "No one can afford to play with their health," says McLaglan, "but 90 per cent. of the population take tremendous risks by under-exercise and over-feeding."

NIGHTMARES

Maurice Elvey dressed in corduroys.

* * *

Sid Jay asked to supply something that he couldn't.

* * *

Olaf Hytten drinking cocoa through a straw.

* * *

Peter Upcher in a boxing part.

* * *

Any old star without "a remarkably heavy mail bag."

* * *

Violet Hopson entertaining her press critics to dinner.

* * *

Clive Brook preaching a sermon from the pulpit of a Little Bethel.

* * *

The Islington studios without its chef.

* * *

Any cameraman who doesn't know more about producing than D. W. Griffith and Kenelm Foss put together.

* * *

A. E. Coleby reading the Church Times.

* * *

Mary Odette unaccompanied by her mother.

* * *

A scenarist thanking the director for improving his (or her) scenario.

* * *

Geoffrey Malins and I. B. Davidson playing draughts.

* * *

Florence Turner having an argument with Maresco Marisini.

* * *

Walter Forde blushing.

* * *

The Cameramen's Society holding a meeting.

* * *

Victor McLaglan playing Little Lord Fauntleroy.

THE SEVENTH ART

Being extracts from an address given by Georges Treville to members of the Playgoers' Club

Ever since the world began, every new idea, every new invention, has had to fight against the "pessimists." (I think you call them, in English, "kill-joys" or "wet-blankets".) You have all met them, those people who, with an indulgent smile, will destroy "art" in two shakes!

This reminds me of the days when I played my first part for the screen, some eighteen years ago! It was quite a small film of four or five hundred feet. I was actually looked down upon by the French Stage for daring to lower myself in appearing on the screen, and thus endanger "the prestige of the legitimate stage." In those times the kinema detractors were the actors themselves!

Our resources then were very primitive; we used to work mostly by natural light, without make-up and with old-fashioned canvas or paper settings.

Our scenarios were full of touching candour, with most ingenious plots. (But those, like the poor, will always be with us.)

In less than two years, however, progress took giants' strides. We began producing films mostly taken from our plays. Gradually our stage actors became converted in face of the overwhelming success of this new art.

Pathé and Gaumont improved their lighting, proper sets were built, and the French kinema was launched.

A few years later (I may say about twelve years ago, when film production was in its infancy in England, and only a little more advanced in America, I paid a visit to England to take some pictures for a film I was then directing. I said at the time that England was destined to become the centre, not only of the film market, but of production as well. I expressed my views on the subject to several financial promoters, but they seemed to consider the kinema only as a passing attraction—as a mere child's toy—and did not attach any importance to my proposals!

Vastly disappointed, I returned to Paris. There, whilst working side by side with Cappellani, Chautard, Caillard and many others, we received, one day, in our studio, some American visitors who were anxious to study our technique and methods of production. They greatly admired our settings, the disposition of our lighting arrangements, and the way we instructed our artistes. They took numerous notes, and I have since heard that these genial visitors have become managers of one of the largest and most important film producing companies in the United States!

I have recently returned to England, and I am surprised to find that, although the international market has considerably developed, the actual British production has not increased in the same proportion.

We all know that the war is undoubtedly the main cause of the standstill which has been affecting French and English markets for several years, but is this the only cause?

In France we often make the mistake of choosing our scenarios according to our French taste, without trying to appeal to a wider and international public. We only think of the impression our films will make upon our friends of the Trade show!

We are wrong!

And the result is that many among our good films cannot pass the censors of other countries. Our French writers are content to sell their adaptation rights, but would not dream of writing specially for the screen, because we cannot afford to pay them.

England possesses everything needed by the successful director. Very few countries in the world have such a variety of beautiful locations (as yet very little exploited). No other country can be proud of more intelligent actors (especially when carefully trained for film work). No other country can boast of more numerous or more enlightened patrons of the arts.

I feel confident that the day will soon come when there will be a great, if belated, business boom, when England and France will join hands in their united efforts to place the Kinema Industry on a firm and imperishable footing!

An interesting discussion followed Mr. Treville's interesting address, in the course of which Denison Clift referred to producing conditions in this country and America, and George K. Arthur spoke as to the British film artistes' attitude.

This is a group photograph of those who participated in the first social function—a dance—of the Famous-Lasky Sports and Social Club which was held at the Portman Rooms Baker Street, W., recently. The club comprises the members of the Laboratories, the Islington Studio, Famous Players Film Co., and the Service Company, consequently there was a large attendance, whilst a lively jazz band kept the dancers in continual motion. Organised by H. Supper, secretary, and the officials and committee of the Club, the function was a complete success. J. C. Graham, managing director, arrived shortly after the opening of the dance and was received with enthusiastic applause.

The Historical Film must be accurately dressed.

© © ©

We Stock Civil and Military costumes of all known periods. :: ::

© © ©

"The Call of the Road" and "The Old Curiosity Shop," with their wealth of costume, detail and characteristics of their times, were dressed by us.

© © ©

Write to-day stating your requirements.

H. & M. RAYNE,
115-119, Waterloo Road,
S.E.1.

WEST END
BRANCH: 15, Rupert Street.

QUALITY FIRST

Always on Time

VICKERS FILMCRAFT
LTD.

89, SHAFTESBURY AVENUE, W.1.

Laboratories :

PARAGON WORKS, 249, ACTON LANE, W.4.

ALWAYS ON TIME.

'Phones : GERRARD 4045 and
CHISWICK 132

WHERE IS THE CO-OPERATION ?

An old legend is that film people are too much concerned about nothing to pay any attention to the things that matter. This is the sort of statement that is made without thinking and which is generally accepted because to do so involves no thinking. As a matter of fact, artistes and directors are capable of being just as businesslike as any other person who has to work for his own living. So that there is no genuine excuse for the scant attention that certain artistes and directors are paying to a subject that is of vital importance to them.

It was in response to the continued requests of scores of people engaged in British productions that THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO was launched. It was scarcely an experiment because we felt confident of the wholehearted support of every person who works in the studio. Our objects were to support the worker in the British studio, to champion his rights and to throw our influence into the scale for improved conditions in the Industry and for better British pictures. THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO was to be the official organ of studioland. And it is!

With pardonable pride we look back over the period of our existence—now nearly half a year—with the knowledge that we have not failed to do what we set out to do and to be.

Our plans for the future are full of fresh endeavours for the benefit of artistes, directors, cameramen, scenarists and studio-workers generally, but—and this is what we must emphasise—it is absolutely impossible for us to bring those plans to fruition if we are not supported by those for whom we exist.

There are still scores of Ought-To-Be-Readers who manage to muddle through—Heaven above knows how—without this journal. They are imperfectly equipped. Their loss is infinitely greater than ours. They can manage without this paper much less than this paper can manage without them. For their sakes—and for the sake of the profession that they influence—we hope the day will soon come when they will be numbered among the "Ought-To-Be's" no longer.

But circulation will not keep this paper in existence. At least, we do not want to exist on circulation. For this reason: We are convinced that the usefulness of this journal to those engaged in British productions may be impaired if we have to fall back on general public circulation.

In our opinion it is necessary to treat THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO as a professional journal, and its circulation to be confined, so far as is possible to those in the profession. The public can learn too much about the business—and the more it knows the more the illusion of the film is spoiled. It is for that reason that we are deliberately sacrificing general circulation for intensive and professional circulation.

Thus, it is obvious that THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO is forced to depend far more on its advertisements than would be the case if we went out for a general circulation. Those in the producing business are in honour bound to support the STUDIO. We are supporting you—you must support us.

Our "Artistes' Cards Section" is of great utility to all concerned.

We have in our possession letters from directors saying that they refer to the photos. when casting for productions.

Camera, the American studio journal, has paid eulogistic tributes to the STUDIO: "It tells us what England is doing in the production line; it also locates some of our missing friends."

Tom Terriss, the director of Cosmopolitan Productions, and late director of Vitagraph features, writes from New York, "It fills a long-felt need. Even in this country we have nothing to approach it."

A member of our staff happened by accident to be in the board room of one of our largest studios last week about an hour before the directors of the company gathered in session and in front of each director's chair lay a copy of the STUDIO on the table.

A few weeks back we printed full details of International Artist's premiere, "The Night Hawk," and before the paper had been on sale a week that company had received 1,200 inquiries from exhibitors about the film—1,200 possible bookings before the Trade show.

These few facts, selected at random, serve to show what a powerful advertising medium the STUDIO is—artistes who can afford to refrain from reserving advertising space merit our envy.

This article is not an appeal by any means. It is a statement of our policy. It explains the fact that the STUDIO must depend on its advertising if it is to safeguard its readers' interests by restricting its circulation to those in the profession. We do not want to have to reverse this policy—that is for our readers to determine by the way in which they support our advertising columns.

THE TWENTY-SIXTH

Three issues after this—the issue dated December 5—will be our twenty-sixth number. On that date THE MOTION PICTURE STUDIO will have been in existence for the first half-year, and we intend to commemorate this by the issue of a Special Number. It will be full of special features, and we are making arrangements for it to be specially circulated throughout all the studios in this country, America and on the Continent.

It is necessary for those who intend to take full advantage of this opportunity for special publicity to let us know at once what advertising space they wish reserved. There will be no increase in the usual advertising rates.

SCREEN VALUES

MEASURING UP THE WEEK'S PRODUCT

"Cwyneth of the Welsh Hills."

Stoll. Directed by F. Martin Thornton. Starring Madge Stuart. Scenario by Leslie H. Gordon. Photography by Percival Strong.

F. Martin Thornton has made quite an average film out of the novel—a film which abounds with beautiful scenes of Wales. But there is very little to it. There is nothing to grip; it is all a very plain story of Welsh life, devoid of incident of any kind. Martin Thornton has done his work quite well, and the film should be interesting to Welshmen and those who have read the novel.

The acting is good throughout. Madge Stuart makes an appealing heroine, and is well suited to the part of Gwyneth.

Mrs. Hubert Willis is good as Jane Ryhs.

J. R. Tozer plays his part well, and Lewis Gilbert lives his part.

Eille Norwood has very little to do, but the very dramatic scenes in which he appears, could only have been done by him.

Harvey Braban makes a fine Gwilyn Rhys, but perhaps the finest bit of acting in the film is given by Henderson Bland, as the minister.

The continuity is good and the story has been well adapted, except that it is a bit too long in the screen form.

The photography, by Percival Strong, is one of the finest features in the film. The lighting and trick effects with shadows are worthy of a better film and the super-imposed sub-titles are excellently photographed—in fact, if the whole film was as good as the photography, it would be a very fine offering.

"Gwyneth of the Welsh Hills" is of the old melodramatic type with the handsome stranger, who betrays the innocent village girl. Everything is there; the village squire, the parson, the innocent village girl, and the villain.

As we have already said, it is just an average offering, and marks no advance in British productions.

"The Adventures of Mr. Pickwick."

Ideal. Starring Fred Volpé. Directed by Thomas Bentley. Scenario by E. A. Baughan and Eliot Stannard. Photography by William Shenton.

In the hands of Thomas Bentley, "Pickwick Papers" has become almost as funny a film as the original story. The story has certainly not suffered anything by being presented in screen form, and it is mostly due to Bentley that it has turned out successful, for if it had been badly handled it would have been a very slow affair indeed.

As it is, it is one of the most amusing British films we have yet seen and one which should sell well in foreign markets. "The Adventures of Mr. Pickwick" is a credit to the British film industry.

The acting is good throughout, but perhaps the most striking thing about the film is the amazing array of Dickensian types. No two characters are alike, not even in the crowd scenes, and here, again, Bentley is to be complimented, for it takes a very clever man to find and cast types of the kind he has given us.

Chief acting honours go to Fred Volpé as Mr. Pickwick; he might be a little too tall for the part, but any such idea is soon forgotten when he starts acting. He gives one of the finest performances we have seen for some time.

Mary Brough is good as Mrs. Bardell, and Ernest Thesiger, Hubert Woodward and Barnaby Williams give good interpretations of their various rôles.

Tupman is well interpreted by Frank G. Arlton, and Thomas Weguelin gives a fine performance as Mr. Wardle.

All the other artistes, especially the fat boy, are well cast and play their rôles excellently.

E. A. Baughan and Eliot Stannard have adapted a very difficult subject to the screen and made of it a fine screen picture. There is never a tiresome moment, and the start and finish (the latter may not please some people) are, at any rate, a novelty, and should be a pleasing novelty to most picture-house patrons. The continuity is, on the whole, well preserved, and the most has been made out of the story.

William Shenton is very unlucky, for on the day of the Trade show London was all fog, which had entered the theatre where the picture was being shown, with dire results to the screening. Still, so far as could be seen, the photography was good, as Shenton's photography usually is.

Ideal has, in "The Adventures of Mr. Pickwick," one of the best films that firm has yet turned out. All those who have had a hand in the making of the picture are to be complimented.

"Where the Rainbow Ends."

British Photoplay Productions.—Starring Babs Farren, Cave Chinn, Roger Livesey, Harold Deacon, George Bishop, and Vesta Sylvia. Directed by Lisle Lucoque. Photographed by I. Roseman.

Lisle Lucoque has made of the well-known stage play, an equally good film, and one which should enjoy the same popularity as the play itself has done. The subject could not have been better handled, although some of the fake parts are rather mechanical. A great feature of the film is the beautiful exteriors, and these alone are sufficient to warrant its success.

Babs Farren invests her part with a charm, that makes it excellent, while B. Cave Chinn, as the typical English boy, succeeds in sustaining his role in fine style.

Roger Livesey, as the lion's cub, is responsible for causing a great deal of merriment. George Bishop makes a fine dragon king, and the thankless role of the wicked Uncle has a clever exponent in Fred Glover.

Eric Gray is exceptionally good as Jim Blunders.

Vesta Sylvia, as Will o' the Wisp, is beautiful and natural.

All the acting is of a very high standard.

The play has been well adapted, for although one misses the words, the screen version contains all the attractiveness of the original.

I Roseman has taken full advantage of the beautiful exteriors, and has expended great care on all the interiors. The photography will do a great deal to make the picture a success.

"The Fifth Form of St. Dominics."

Davidson-Granger. Starring W. A. Freshman, Ralph Forbes and Maurice Thompson. Directed by A. E. Coleby. Adapted by A. E. Coleby and Dave Aylott. Photography by D. P. Cooper.

The first reel of this picture is very slow, but by the time the second reel has been reached the picture gets better and better, until finally one is left wishing to see it all through again, it is so good. But that first reel! Seldom have we experienced anything so tedious—a mass of sub-titles, with here and there a peep at one or two shots. We cannot say who is guilty for getting so much writing in at the start, but, with a little less of the first reel, "The Fifth Form at St. Dominic's" is one of the best productions A. E. Coleby has done.

Coleby has made the picture a really enjoyable film of a schoolboy's life, and in obtaining the realism he has succeeded in making the crowds of schoolboys appearing in the film act—well, perhaps not act, but be real.

The acting is fine; everyone plays his part admirably. We would like to have space to compliment every boy in the film separately, but we must be content with just mentioning a few of the leads.

Ralph Forbes does some very fine work as Oliver Greenfield.

Maurice Thompson has some of the most important parts and gives an exceptionally good performance.

W. A. Freshman we do not remember seeing on the screen before, but he is a great find, and whoever is responsible for discovering him is to be complimented.

Humberstone-Wright gives a fine performance, as does also Sam Austin.

Phyllis Shannaw plays her very small part excellently, and is well supported by the rest of the cast.

The book was adapted to the screen by Dave Aylott and A. E. Coleby, and both have done their work well.

The camera work almost surpasses the high standard set up by D. P. Cooper in "The Call of the Road." The exteriors are especially fine, especially the scenes on the river.

Some fine shots have been taken in a real railway carriage.

The interiors are, on the whole, cleverly done and well lighted, except for one or two shots, which are somewhat hard.

SERVICE FOR DIRECTORS

John Payne, of Bramlins, has just returned from Paris, where he went, amongst other reasons, personally to fix up an agency business to represent Bramlins in France, and generally on the Continent. This has now been done, and it will be found that a thoroughly efficient agency had been established there. It can be easily seen that any firm which is producing on the Continent will find it of the greatest benefit to get in touch with Bramlins in Paris. It would mean a saving of great expense and trouble. Instead of having to wander round looking for locations, and, having got them, attempting to obtain the permits to shoot the particular spots, a director will be given a list of places from which he can immediately choose. The instinct of the French and other countries is to well over-charge the rich (sic) Englishman, but if a French kinema expert who is trained to the business is in charge this little matter will be over-come.

DIRECTORS . . .

HUGH CROISE

Producer.

Sole Adaptor and Producer
of
"THREE MEN IN A BOAT."Address—
c/o MOTION PICTURE STUDIO.GEOFFREY H.
MALINS, O.B.E.

—Producer—

Latest Productions:

"THE GREATER LOVE,"
"PATRICIA BRENT, SPINSTER,"
"SETTLED IN FULL,"
"ALL THE WINNERS,"
"WATCHING EYES,"
"BLUFF," etc.All coms.: c/o A. FRASER,
26, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.2

FOREIGN OFFERS INVITED.

BERT HALDANE,

Producing Comedies
BARKERS STUDIOS, EALING.
'Phone No.: Ealing 211.

WILFRED NOY,

Producer of "The Lost Chord,"
"Spinner o' Dreams," "The Lady Clare,"
"The Face at the Window."Address—THE STUDIOS, Melbourne Road,
Bushey.

F. MARTIN THORNTON

Address—84, LEESIDE CRESCENT,
GOLDERS GREEN, N.W.11.Latest Productions — "BELONGING,"
"FRAILTY," "PREY OF THE
DRAGON," "GWYNETH OF THE
WELSH HILLS," "LAMP IN THE DESERT."

GRACE ROSE

Assistant Producer

THOMPSON BRITISH PRODUCTIONS.
Address: B. & C. STUDIOS,
Hoe St, Walthamstow, E.17.

ADRIAN BRUNEL,

Producer and Scenario-Writer,
19, Randolph Crescent, W.9 ('Phone: 5280 Paddington).

RICHARD GARRICK,

Pathé Consortium Cinema Service Artistique,
39, Rue du Bois, Vincennes, France.

ALBERT WARD,

Producer—Open to accept engagements.
3, Ranelagh Grove, S.W.1."THE SERVICES CINEMA SOCIETY"

Following our recent articles respecting this "society," we have interviewed the "President," Captain Norris Irven, and the information that we have gathered is of such a character as to cause us to postpone further comment in these columns other than giving the following facts, which speak for themselves, and which are a complete justification of our attitude.

Captain Norris Irven we found at the Ex-Officers' Association headquarters, where he is engaged in finding jobs for ex-officers. In connection with the "society," it is intended to run an agency for finding jobs for ex-officers in film work.

The present constitution of the "society" is:—

President.—Captain Norris Irven (late Rifle Brigade), 19, Stratford Place, W.1.

Vice-Presidents.—Major Eric Lankester (late H.A.C.), 33, Chester Terrace, Regent's Park, N.W.; Harry J. Worth (late N.A.C.B.), 14, James' Street, W.C.2; Evan Wyndham (late R.A.F.), 97, New Bond Street, W.1.

Members of the Council.—Major H. A. Arbuthnot (late R.A.F.), Hill Lodge, Tittle Row, Maidenhead; Philip Bouracier (late London Reg.), St. Hilda, 62, Rodenhurst Road, Clapham Park, S.W.; Major the Hon. L. P. Cary (late Grenadier Guards), 96, Piccadilly, W.1; H. W. Cundall (late E.L.F.), 36, Russell Road, Kensington, W.14; Captain W. S. Dunn (late R.A.S.C. Remounts), 96, Piccadilly, W.1; Commander E. L. Frewen (late R.N.), 96, Piccadilly, W.1; Sgt.-Major P. Hill (late R.A.S.C. Mechanical Transport), 14, Lydhurst Avenue, Streatham Hill, S.W.

Honorary Secretary and Treasurer.—Hugh Macrae (late R.F.A.), Chartered Accountant, 46a, Pall Mall, S.W.1.

Honorary Solicitors.—Bulcraig & Davis, Donnington House, Norfolk Street, Strand, W.C.2.

Honorary Auditor.—Hector Munro (late Cameron Highlanders), Chartered Accountant, 17, Ironmonger Lane, E.C.2.

Registered Office.—46a, Pall Mall, London, S.W.1.

The "president" is self-appointed. The "council" is self-elected. It is therefore a body with no real legal existence, and its "rules" are therefore null and void, and cannot be binding because the "council" has not been elected by a general meeting of the members.

In view of this fact, we refrain from further comment, as the "society" can have no functioning power because it is improperly constituted. And as the "council" does not include any gentleman of prominence in the film world we fail to see how the "society" can hope to be of any use to the professional film artiste. In fact, Captain Irven definitely says that it is intended to be a "club for supers"; established artistes will not be assisted—for an obvious reason. What is (or was) intended, was to create an army of inexperienced "supers" out of a motley mob of screen struck.

We rejoice that our efforts have so far succeeded in preventing this.

CLUB NEWS

Applications for memberships are still coming in, but it is necessary to emphasise the importance of those who intend to join the Club to apply NOW. By applying this week members are enrolled:

Free of entrance fee and at the special subscription fee of Three Guineas per annum. Those joining after will have to pay a steep entrance fee and an increased annual subscription.

There are, of course, a number of pessimists who say, "Oh, you'll never form a Club. It has been talked of so often." The obvious rejoinder is that the Club has already been formed, members enrolled, premises secured, and preliminary arrangements made for furnishing and equipping the extensive buildings as Club quarters ready for a Christmas opening. It is not something "in the air." It is a fait accompli. Sign the form on this page, join yourself and persuade others to do ditto.

Application Form for Membership of the Kinema Club.

I am desirous of becoming a member of the Kinema Club and undertake to pay the agreed subscription (free of entrance fee if paid on or before Dec. 1, 1921) subject to election.

Name.....

Address.....

Qualifications.....

To be filled in and posted to the Hon. Secretary, Kinema Club 93, Long Acre, W.C.2, before Thursday next, Nov. 17

BENJAMIN'S FOR BEST COSTUMES

